Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Benin, foreign banknotes, and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 500,000.

Restrictions on use of funds No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions Yes. Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MEF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.

Repatriation requirements Yes. Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone’s investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank Yes. Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents’ investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.

Controls on capital and money market instruments Yes. RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Bhutan states that, as of August 7, 2018, Bhutan continues to avail itself of transitional arrangements under Article XIV, Section 2, pursuant to which it maintains exchange restrictions in connection with: (1) the availability of foreign exchange for travel, except for medical travel abroad by Bhutanese citizens, invisibles, and private transfers; (2) foreign exchange balancing requirement on remittances of income in convertible currencies or other foreign currencies from FDI; and (3) on the availability of foreign exchange for importers that have not provided evidence that goods for which payments have been made were actually imported. Bhutan also maintains exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a), in connection with: (1) the foreign exchange balancing requirements for imports of capital goods (for projects involving FDI) and primary raw materials (for certain industrial projects); (2) banning residents who do not comply with the requirement to repatriate export proceeds from accessing foreign exchange for unrelated imports; (3) requiring FDI companies to pay for their establishment and operational expenses from their own convertible currency resources; (4) requiring Bhutanese companies to pay the interest on and amortization of external loans from their own convertible currency resources; (5) restricting the availability of Indian rupees for making payments and transfers to India for certain current international transactions and banning the access to Indian rupees for unrelated current international transactions for those who contravene Royal Monetary Authority’s (RMA’s) 2012 guidelines on Indian rupee transactions. (Country Report No. 18/300)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Yes. Banking institutions have been instructed to freeze all capital transfers and financial assets of individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to the relevant UNSC resolutions. In addition, financial institutions are required to report to the RMA any financial transactions linked to groups associated with terrorism. The RMA has the power to share information and cooperate in any way necessary with domestic and foreign supervisors to combat money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Other security restrictions
Yes.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes. The currency of Bhutan is the Bhutanese ngultrum.

2022 ANNUAL REPORT ON EXCHANGE ARRANGEMENTS AND EXCHANGE RESTRICTIONS INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution
Indian rupee banknotes circulate freely in Bhutan, but there is no legal/official provision establishing them as legal tender in Bhutan. Since January 2015, Indian rupee (INR) denominations above Rs. 500 (specifically currency notes in denominations of Rs. 500 and Rs. 1,000) started to circulate, and individuals from India are allowed to carry to Bhutan INR in denominations of Rs. 500 and/or Rs. 1,000 subject to a limit of Rs. 25,000. The RMA opened an exchange counter at the RMA (Thimphu and Phuntsholing branch office) for facilitating the exchange of ngultrum notes for INR notes, beginning with the facility for Bhutanese proceeding on pilgrimage to India. Any Bhutanese may avail INR from the RMA exchange counters in Thimphu and the RMA branch Office in Phuntsholing up to a limit of Rs. 10,000 a month a person on production of personal context identity (Citizenship Identity Card) to the exchange counter tellers. All current international transactions denominated in rupees have been streamlined to reflect the legal status of the rupee as a foreign currency. Since the demonetization of high denomination Indian rupee note in India from November 2016, INR denominations of 500 and 1000 were not allowed to be used in Bhutan and only INR denominations of 100 and below are allowed to be used in Bhutan. The new series of INR denominations up to 500 were re-permitted in Bhutan since June 2018. Further, the RMA opened up exchange counters at the Airport and Phuntsholing to facilitate exchange of Indian rupees to ngultrum and vice versa.

Exchange rate structure

Conventional peg Yes. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg vis-à-vis the Indian rupee. No current legal documents establish a fixed exchange rate arrangement; the ngultrum has been pegged at par with the Indian rupee since the introduction of the ngultrum in 1974. Under the RMA Act of Bhutan 2010 (Provisions 88 and 89), the Bhutanese government, on recommendation of the RMA, may declare the external value of the ngultrum, and the RMA will determine the appropriate external value. The RMA does not publish the intervention data.

Official exchange rate
Yes. The ngultrum is officially pegged to the Indian rupee at par. Under the RMA Act of Bhutan 2010 (Provisions 88 and 89), the government may at any time, on recommendation of the RMA, declare the external value of the ngultrum vis-à-vis currencies for which the RMA determines a fixed exchange rate or the width of the exchange rate band against that of foreign currencies whose rate or width it considers compatible with the primary monetary policy objective. The rates for currencies other than the Indian rupee are determined on the basis of the prevailing rupee exchange rates (average rate) against the currencies concerned. The official exchange rate is used for all foreign exchange transactions in Bhutan. The method as mentioned above is prevailing rupee exchange rates (average rate) against the currencies concerned plus fixed margin as decided by the RMA.

Exchange tax  No.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes. Banks may charge customers a spread of 0.2% above or below the dealing rate used by the RMA. Hotels licensed under restricted authorized money changers (AMCs) may charge a commission of 0.5% on cash only. ADs (banks and AMCs) use exchange rates that are determined by the RMA on a daily basis.

Spot exchange market  Yes. In addition to the five depository institutions operating in Bhutan, there are 65 AMCs licensed by the RMA. These AMCs may purchase but not sell foreign currency. Commercial banks may only make foreign exchange transactions with the CB. These banks may maintain accounts abroad, conduct operations for the purchase and sale of banknotes, and make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. As of December 2019, there were 65 AMCs licensed by the RMA. As stipulated in Chapter IIIC of the Foreign Exchange Regulations 2020, any person other than authorized bank may apply for a license from the RMA to carry out money-changing business in Bhutan. Accordingly, these licensed AMC operations are limited to (1) buying from individual’s banknotes and traveler’s checks denominated in convertible currencies against the ngultrum or (2) selling to an authorized bank, holdings of banknotes and traveler’s checks denominated in convertible currencies against the ngultrum. They are not allowed to operate like authorized banks, viz. maintain accounts abroad or transfer on behalf of their clients. The RMA allows commercial banks to hold convertible currency up to the maximum limit of US$15 million, beyond which the commercial banks are required to sell it to the RMA.

Operated by the central bank  Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility  Yes. The RMA stands ready to buy and sell ngultrum at the official exchange rate without any commission and buys and sells on demand. The RMA rates for the US dollar, euro, Swiss franc, Singapore dollar, Hong Kong dollar, Swedish krona, and other major traded currencies are based on the previous day’s closing rates in international markets, as determined by the RMA. Only banks are eligible to deal with the RMA. Since 2016, the RMA opened an exchange counter at the RMA (Thimphu and Phuntsholing branch office) for facilitating the exchange of ngultrum notes for INR notes, beginning with the facility for Bhutanese proceeding on pilgrimage to India and Indian merchants in the border town. Any Bhutanese citizen going on pilgrimage may, in person, avail INR from the RMA exchange counters in Thimphu and RMA branch Office in Phuntsholing up to a limit of Rs. 30,000 a person on production of personal Citizenship Identity Card to the exchange counter tellers. Indian merchants were permitted to deposit their sale proceeds in ngultrum with any of the commercial banks and were allowed to repatriate the equivalent in INR the next day through banking channel (demand draft, telegraphic transfer, and real-time gross settlement).

 Allocation Yes.
 Auction No.
 Fixing No.
 Interbank market No. Banks are allowed to trade foreign exchange with each other, but in practice they deal only with the RMA.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

- Domiciliation requirements: Yes.
- Preshipment inspection: No.

Persons granted import licenses may purchase foreign exchange from authorized banks to settle payments for the goods specified in the license.

Bhutanese persons importing goods and services from third countries may apply to the authorized banks to remit convertible currency by filling in the forms provided by the banks accompanied by the Import License and the supplier’s invoice or other documentary evidence showing the c.i.f. value of the goods to be imported.

Letters of credit: Yes.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses: Yes.

Other: No.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Yes. An import license is required for the importation of capital and intermediate goods from countries other than India. Such licenses are governed by the Rules and Procedures for Imports of Goods from Third Countries issued by the Department of Trade of the Ministry of Economic Affairs. Foreign exchange for all payments related to licensed merchandise imports is automatically made available by authorized banks against import licenses. Capital imports from third countries by foreign direct investors must be financed by their own convertible foreign exchange resources. Start-up support is provided by the RMA for the purchase of capital goods.

Travel allowances to countries other than India are limited to the equivalent of US$3,000 a ticketed passenger a calendar year. For private travel to India, individuals are permitted Rs. 10,000 to 30,000 a month in cash, and may withdraw Rs. 15,000 and Rs. 150,000 a month through their debit and credit cards, respectively. Pursuant to the Foreign Exchange Rules and Regulations (FERR) 2020 and Foreign Exchange Operational Guidelines 2020, the private travel allowances are Rs. 10,000 to 30,000 a month in cash. For business travel, there is a country-specific per diem covering accommodations. There are no time restrictions for business travel.

Amount above the limits prescribed by the RMA is allowed with prior approval of the RMA based on the bona fide test on the transactions.

The RMA management grants the approval.

Allowances for fees and tuition for education are based on statements provided by the institutions. Students may also purchase foreign exchange for a monthly stipend of US$2400 (students may take the amount permitted in the form of international debit card), and a stipend and living allowance of Rs. 50,000 a month. The settling-in allowance and monthly stipends may be purchased in advance.

For medical treatment abroad, subject to referral by a local physician, foreign exchange may be purchased or transferred through the banking channel to cover the cost of treatment and medicine and for living expenses abroad. Bhutanese citizens traveling to India for medical treatment may purchase up to Rs. 100,000 in cash. If the cost of treatment exceeds the amount purchased initially, the balance because of the hospital may be transferred directly to its bank account based on a cost estimate from the hospital.

Foreigners employed directly by a public or private organization in Bhutan, with valid employment documents from the Bhutanese government, may remit their salary and savings in foreign exchange through an authorized bank. Private firms must obtain RMA approval to remit foreign workers’ wages and savings in foreign exchange before the funds are processed through an authorized bank.

The RMA may set limits on such remittances.

Direct investment in convertible foreign exchange may be made in (1) manufacturing, with a minimum investment of US$1 million, of which 20%–74% may be foreign investor equity, and (2) services, with a minimum investment of US$500,000, of which 20%–74% may be foreign investor equity. FDI in the manufacturing and service sectors is subject to sector-specific policies, standards, and procedures. Priority service sectors are permitted up to 100% additional foreign equity ownership. Other forms of collaboration, such as for technical and marketing purposes and for franchising of trade names, patents, and trademarks, are allowed with the Ministry of Economic Affairs’ permission. The Royal Government must allow FDI in both manufacturing and service sectors. These must be governed by project-specific agreements (if any) and sector-specific policies, standards, and procedures. The priority sector activities are listed in Schedules I and II. These must be fast-tracked for approval and clearances. In addition, the Royal Government must allow FDI in other activities with maximum foreign investors’ equity of 74% and minimum project cost of Nu 50 million and Nu 25 million for manufacturing and services, respectively. FDI in activities as listed under Schedule III may not be permitted.

Controls apply to all real estate transactions.

On September 1, 2014, the RMA reintroduced housing and vehicle loans (after temporary suspension of access to Indian rupees to finance imports of personal vehicles and housing construction materials in March 2012). New housing, vehicle, and consumer loan guidelines were issued to guide financial institutions in prudent management and monitoring of credit to these sectors to mitigate systemic risk.

Stabilized arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement of the Plurinational State of Bolivia is a crawling peg to the US dollar (also called a “sliding” rate) and is characterized by small exchange rate movements that are not announced in advance. The CBB determines the floor price for the daily competitive foreign exchange auction (“bolsín”) in which the financial private sector and the nonfinancial private sector participate. The CBB ensures that the exchange rate is consistent with moderate inflation, thus mitigating external and internal inflationary pressures, because the exchange rate is still used as a benchmark for the prices of nontradable goods, albeit to a decreasing extent because of bolivianization (dedollarization) in real and financial transactions. The exchange rates used in most exchange transactions fluctuate... daily within a band of 12 centavos (1.7%), defined by the official buying and selling exchange rates (Bs. 6.86 and Bs. 6.96, respectively) plus a margin of one centavo at each end. Because the boliviano stabilized against the US dollar since November 2011, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement. The authorities consider that the de facto stabilized arrangement does not fully reflect the exchange arrangement managed by the CBB because the official policy of a crawling peg has not changed. The CBB’s crawling peg mechanism allows the sliding rate to be set at 0 without changing the arrangement if the underlying economic fundamentals warrant it. The CBB publishes information on its exchange market interventions and on its foreign exchange purchases and sales in the “Weekly Statistics” section and in other publications such as the Monthly Statistical Bulletin, all of which are available on its website. Publication of the size of interventions is updated on Friday each week; and the exchange rate of operations registered during the day is updated on a daily basis.

The official selling exchange rate is the minimum auction price resulting from the bolsín. The official exchange rate is used for official transactions, and the buying rate (Bs. 0.10 less than the official rate) is used for valuation and accounting purposes. The CBB uses the official selling exchange rate of the day for same-day sales of US dollars to the general public and to financial institutions, by debiting the accounts in domestic currency and crediting the accounts in US dollars held with financial institutions (Board Resolution No. 63/2013). The CBB can sell US$ to financial institutions and to the general public on the same day at the official selling exchange rate in effect (RD No. 63/2013). The majority of foreign exchange operations transacted by financial institutions and exchange bureaus are carried out at an exchange rate within the band defined by the buying and selling exchange rates, plus a margin of Bs. 0.01 at each end. The CBB does not sell US dollars directly to the general public (ventas en ventanillas) and/or through financial intermediation entities with majority participation of the government. The CBB sells dollars to financial intermediaries (FIs) through two arrangements (bolsín and direct same-day sales). Similarly, foreign currency (FC) can be acquired from any FI.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Items 4 and 5 of Paragraph I of Article 298 of the Political Constitution of the State (CPE) specify that the customs and foreign trade regime falls under the exclusive jurisdiction of the central level of government.

Law No. 1990, the General Customs Law, which governs the exercise of customs authority and the legal relationships established between National Customs and individuals or legal entities involved in importing and exporting goods into or from the national customs territory, and establishes the general rules applicable to the Special Free-Trade Zones System.

Authorization for exemption from customs duties on goods donated to the Institute of Statistics (INE) and the Military School of Engineering “Mcal. Antonio José de Sucre” (EMI).

Authorization for exemption from customs duties on goods donated to Universidad Mayor de San Andrés and Universidad Mayor de San Simón.

Authorization for exemption from customs duties on goods donated to the Ministry of Rural Development and Lands, Universidad Mayor de San Andrés and Universidad Técnica de Oruro.

Positive list

Yes. Some goods are subject to the presentation of previous authorizations (autorizaciones previas –Aps) or certificates © as supporting documents for importation or subsequent customs clearance, in accordance with the procedure set forth in S.D. No. 25870 of August 11, 2000.

Negative list

Yes. Imports of certain goods are prohibited because they are considered harmful to the environment, human or animal health or life, or plant life.

Open general licenses

No.

Licenses with quotas

No.

Other nontariff measures

Yes. Health and Plant Health Permits (animals, food, plants, seeds, medications, leather, wood, wool, cotton, and fine animal fur) prior to the shipment of goods in the country of origin, which are required for the customs clearance certificate, within the framework of Decision No. 515 and Resolution Nos. 1153 and 1475 of the Andean Community.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. Tariff Schedule
To contribute to transformation of the means of production with a view to prioritizing strategic sectors that add value and diversification, while leveraging and focusing on domestic market potential and supply, without ignoring external demand, a schedule of tariffs for merchandise imports was established comprising seven tariff rates (TRs), with rates of 0% and 5% to encourage imports of capital goods and inputs and foster change in the productive matrix; medium rates of 10%, 15%, and 20% so as not to affect imports of goods included in the household basket; and high rates of 30% and 40% to discourage merchandise imports that compete with national production, primarily manufactured goods.

Furthermore, imports are subject to the VAT and, in the case of certain goods, they are subject to the Specific Consumption Tax and the Special Tax on Hydrocarbons and their Derivatives.

The TR applicable to imports of diesel oil (subheading 2710.19.21.00 of the Common Nomenclature of the Andean Community Member Countries (NANDINA)) was temporarily held at 0% for a further year, until December 31, 2020, through S.D. No. 4115.

Tax and Customs Treatment Applicable to Specific Products

The Plurinational State of Bolivia has established tariff deferrals for certain goods to promote the productive sector and has also given priority to the import of medical inputs and medication to combat the COVID-19 pandemic.

S.D. No. 4192, of March 16, 2020, temporarily defers the TR for the import of medical supplies and equipment to 0% until December 31, 2020.

S.D. No. 4211, of April 8, 2020, temporarily defers the TR for wheat imports to 0% for a 2-year period.

S.D. No. 4227, of April 28, 2020, defers the TR for the import of inputs and medicines for the treatment of COVID-19 and other basic diseases to 0%.

S.D. No. 4272, of June 23, 2020, temporarily defers the TR for the import of fabrics for the manufacture of biosafety clothing and paper for the printing of newspapers to 0% until December 31, 2021.

S.D. No. 4298, of July 24, 2020, temporarily defers the TR for imports of machinery and equipment to 0% until December 31, 2021.

S.D. No. 4299 eliminates the granting of prior import authorizations (S.D. 2752) for articles used for transportation or packaging.

S.D. No. 4372 reduces the engine and tire tariffs to promote road safety and reduce the likelihood of accidents.

S.D. No. 4428 reduces the import TR to 0% for diesel oil (subheading 2710.19.21.00) from January to December 31, 2021.

S.D. No. 4438 reduces the import TR for sugars (glucose, lactose, etc.), chlorine, iodine, oxides, hydroxides, aldehydes, acids, vitamins, and other organic compounds to 0% until December 31, 2021, before a second wave of COVID-19.

The rates on finished goods or those that generate some negative externality were modified, to protect the industry and the population in general.

Law No. 1391 of August 31, 2021, which establishes tax incentives for the import and commercialization of capital goods and industrial plants pertaining to the agricultural and industrial sectors, for economic reactivation and promotion of the import substitution policy; and approval of its Regulatory S.D. No. 4579, on exemption from the payment of VAT on the import, and commercialization in the domestic market, of capital goods, industrial plants and vehicles of high volume and tonnage capacity.

S.D. No. 4467, effective February 24, 2021, reduces the import TR for oxygen, cylinders, generators, and ISO tank containers for the transport of oxygen to 0% until December 31, 2021.

S.D. No. 4514, effective May 26, 2021, with the aim of protecting domestic industry and encouraging the consumption of Bolivian products, and also encouraging reading, modifies the TRs for publications and printed matter, ceramic plates and tiles, and glass canisters, bottles, and jars.

S.D. No. 4521, effective June 16, 2021, makes it easier for autonomous governments to engage in direct foreign procurement of COVID-19 vaccines.

S.D. No. 4522, effective June 16, 2021, modifies the import customs TRs for: chicken, powdered milk, cocoa, potatoes, tomatoes, onions, apples, and strawberries.

S.D. No. 4539, effective July 7, 2021, to encourage the assembly of electric vehicles, modifies the import TRs for telematic control units, telematic systems, and electric motors. The TRs for electric motor vehicles and agricultural machinery are also modified.

S.D. 4728. Effective May 26, 2022, with the aim of promoting domestic production, the purpose of this S.D. is to alter the TRs on potatoes (20%), tomatoes (20%), onions (30%), and strawberries (20%). These rates will remain in force until September 30, 2022.

S.D. 4573: Alters TRs until December 31, 2022, on goods identified in tariff subheadings of the Bolivian Customs Import Tariff that include dairy products and derivatives, sugar and derivatives, confectionery, fruits, vinegars, candles, saddlery, leather goods and light household goods.

Trade Agreements

The Plurinational State of Bolivia grants preferential treatment to imports from countries with which it has preferential agreements within the framework of ALADI.

The tariff preferences granted in the framework of all the agreements amount to 100% of the tariff universe except for the agreement with Mexico and with Chile.

Similarly, with the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela, there is a tariff preference equal to 100% of the tariff universe. Outside the ALADI framework, there is a tariff preference with the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela.

Donation of Goods

Subsequently, Law No. 617 of December 17, 2014, determined that imports of goods donated to public entities directly from abroad or acquired by them with resources derived from nonreimbursable financial cooperation or from donations will be exempt from the full payment of customs duties.

In addition, S.D. No. 2308 of March 25, 2015, regulating Law No. 617, establishes the procedure and the requirements for processing exemption from import duties on in-kind donations of goods or on goods acquired with resources derived from donations or nonreimbursable cooperation.

Items 4 and 5 of Paragraph I of Article 298 of the CPE specify that the customs and foreign trade regime falls under the exclusive jurisdiction of the central level of government. Law No. 1990 of July 1999, the “General Customs Law,” which governs the exercise of customs authority and the legal relationships established between National Customs and individuals or legal entities involved in importing and exporting goods into or from the national customs territory, and establishes the general rules applicable to the Special Free-Trade Zones System. Law No. 2493 of August 4, 2003, Amending Tax Measures and Establishing the Tax Regime Applicable to Free-Trade Zones.

The Government of the Plurinational State of Bolivia established a socioeconomic policy that puts the country’s food security and food sovereignty first. Thus, export permits are granted without quota restrictions when this activity does not jeopardize the supply of basic products.

S.D. No. No. 3456 of January 10, 2018: (1) amended and incorporated provisions into S.D. No. 1554, regulating Law No. 307 on the sugarcane production complex to promote exports and (2) established oversight and monitoring mechanisms for ensuring conditions for adequate fairly priced domestic supplies, taking market conditions into account.

S.D. No. 3920 of May 29, 2019, authorizes soybean exports equal to 60% of the national production of the previous fiscal year according to official National Statistics Institute (INE) data after verification of sufficiency and supply in the domestic market at a fair price.

S.D. No. 4139 of January 22, 2020 revokes the Certificate of Internal Supply and Fair Price issued by the National Customs Service and eliminates the following products from the list of those that may be subject to temporary suspension of exports: beef and live cattle, corn and its by-products, sorghum, oil, and sugar.

S.D. No. No. 4417 of December 10, 2020 repeals S.D. No. 4139 of January 22, 2020, such that the regulation of exports through the issuance of Certificates of Domestic Supply and Fair Price, must again be governed by the provisions of the regulations in force prior to the approval of S.D. No. 4139.

There are no restrictions on outward remittances of dividends, interest, and royalties with respect to technology transfers or transfers under other business categories. All remittances or transfers are subject to payment of the taxes prescribed by law. When income of Bolivian origin is paid to recipients abroad, it is presumed that the net profit subject to tax is equivalent to 50% of the total amount paid or remitted. Those who make such payments or remittances to recipients abroad must make a single and final withholding at the rate of 25% of the presumed net profit subject to tax.

Article 471 of Law No. 393 on Financial Services stipulates that the ASFI will regulate the maximum limits on investment abroad by FIs, that is, entities that accept deposits and grant loans. In accordance with ASFI Resolution No. 429/2016 of June 17, 2016, the limits on investing in shares of multilateral financing organizations may not exceed 40% of the bank’s regulatory capital. Investments in shares of auxiliary financial service companies, in enterprises in the securities, insurance, and pension sectors, and in development banks may not exceed the amount of their regulatory capital, insofar as it is a requirement for obtaining credit lines. ASFI through Resolution No. 247/2019 modified the Regulation of Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities and lowered the foreign investment limit of banks from 25% to 15% of regulatory capital. To compute this limit, investments in time deposits and securities abroad are considered, in addition to the account of banks and corresponding entities abroad. Additionally, through Resolution No. 246/2019, ASFI approved reducing limits on investment abroad for new open and closed investment funds, from 25% to 5%. This limit will not apply to investment funds that are currently in operation. However, it is established that the limit that these will have will be the level of investments registered as of March 27, 2019.

Effective February 26, 2021, pursuant to ASFI Resolution No. 145/2021, the limit on investments and demand deposits abroad held by financial intermediation entities was reduced from 15% to 10% of regulatory capital.

Moreover, in accordance with Law No. 65 of December 10, 2010, investments abroad by pension fund managers may not exceed 50% of each managed fund. Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/UI/No. 464/2017 states that the National General Treasury of Bolivia (TGN) may also directly or indirectly invest the resources of Integrated Pension System’s Funds (Fondos del Sistema Integral de Pensiones – SIP Funds) in foreign debt securities up to the limit of 10% of the total amount of each issue through the intermediaries contracted by the Ministry of the Economy and Public Finance of the Plurinational State of Bolivia.

In accordance with S.D. No. 25201, each year, the CBB sets the maximum limit for investments abroad by insurance companies. Since January 1, 2015, the maximum limit for investments abroad by insurance companies is 10% of their investment resources; this limit remained unchanged in CBB Board Resolution No. 6/2018 of January 9, 2018.

Through CBB Board Resolution No. 6/2019 of January 8, 2019, the CBB lowered the maximum limit for foreign investments with insurance company resources from 10% to 7%.

As of January 7, 2020, through CBB Board Resolution No. 007/2020, it was established that in fiscal year 2020, the maximum limit for foreign investments of insurance companies would remain at 7% of their investment resources. Effective January 21, 2021, CBB Board Resolution No. 19/2021 establishes for fiscal year 2021 the maximum limit for investments abroad by insurance companies at 5% of their investment resources (it was previously set at 7%)

Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/UI/No. 464/2017, issued by the Pension and Insurance Supervision and Control Authority, the body supervising and regulating pensions, approves the SIP Investment Regulation for compliance (on a transitional basis) by pension fund administrators (AFPs), establishing that the resources of SIP Funds may be invested directly or indirectly in sovereign debt securities issued by other countries in accordance with the following limit and conditions: (1) up to 10% of the total amount of each issue and up to 10% of the value of each Fund; (2) they must have an international risk rating of AAA or another equivalent that represents the highest credit rating; (3) returns equal to or exceeding the investment options presented by the local market; (4) authorization on the part of the Pensions and Insurance Supervision and APS, which does not imply liability of any sort with respect to management of the investment portfolio of the SIP Funds; and (5) the amounts must be denominated in US dollars. The administrative resolution also stipulates that the TGN may directly or indirectly invest the resources of SIP Funds in foreign debt securities up to the limit of 10% of the total amount of each issue through the intermediaries contracted by the Ministry of the Economy and Public Finance of the Plurinational State of Bolivia.

The investment regulations approved by Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/UI/No. 464/2017 of April 19, 2017 are amended as follows; “the resources of SIP funds may be invested in securities representing debt issued abroad by the TGN of the Plurinational State of Bolivia (Bolivian sovereign bonds), in amounts up to the following percentages of the total amount of each issue. 4th Issue 10% (BBVA Previsión AFP S.A. 5%, Futuro de Bolivia AFP S.A. 5%).

Through Resolution No. 247/2019, ASFI modified the Regulation of Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities and lowered the foreign investment limit of banks from 25% to 15% of regulatory capital. To compute this limit, investments in time deposits and securities abroad are considered, in addition to the account of banks and corresponding entities abroad.

Also, the new formula to calculate the limit takes the monthly average of the daily balance of the sub-accounts with the cutoff date on the last day of the month. The deadline to adequate to this limit is June 28, 2019. Additionally, through Resolution No. 246/2019, ASFI approved reducing limits on investment abroad for new open and closed investment funds, from 25% to 5%. This limit will not apply to investment funds that are currently in operation. However, it is established that the limit that these will have will be the level of investments registered as of March 27, 2019.

Effective February 26, 2021, ASFI Resolution No. 145/2021, which amends the Regulation on Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities, establishes that investments abroad may not exceed 10% of regulatory capital (previously it was 15%).

Effective March 17, 2021, pursuant to ASFI Resolution No. 202/2021, for the purposes of computing the limits, investments in sovereign debt bonds issued abroad by the Plurinational State of Bolivia are also considered to be investments abroad starting in fiscal year 2021.

In accordance with S.D. No. 25201, each year, the CBB sets the maximum limit for investments abroad by insurance companies. Since January 1, 2015, the maximum limit for investments abroad by insurance companies is 10% of their investment resources; this limit remained unchanged in CBB Board Resolution No. 6/2018 of January 9, 2018.

Through CBB Board Resolution No. 6/2019 of January 8, 2019, the CBB lowered the maximum limit for foreign investments with insurance company resources from 10% to 7%.

As of January 7, 2020, through CBB Board Resolution No. 007/2020, it was established that in fiscal year 2020, the maximum limit for investments abroad by insurance companies would remain at 7% of their investment resources.

Effective January 21, 2021, CBB Board Resolution No. 19/2021 establishes for fiscal year 2021 the maximum limit for investments abroad by insurance companies at 5% of their investment resources (it was previously set at 7%).

Effective March 15, 2021, Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 221/2021 establishes that for fiscal year 2021 the maximum limit for investments by insurance companies set by the CBB includes investments in debt securities issued abroad by the National General Treasury (Bolivian Sovereign Bonds).

Moreover, pursuant to Law No. 65 of December 10, 2010, investments abroad by pension fund managers may not exceed 50% of each managed fund. Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/UI/No. 464/2017, issued by the Pension and Insurance Supervision and Control Authority, the body supervising and regulating pensions, approves the SIP Investment Regulation for compliance (on a transitional basis) by AFPs, establishing that the resources of SIP Funds may be invested directly or indirectly in sovereign debt securities issued by other countries in accordance with the following limit and conditions: (1) up to 10% of the total amount of each issue and up to 10% of the value of each Fund; (2) they must have an international risk rating of AAA or another equivalent that represents the highest credit rating; (3) returns equal to or exceeding the investment options presented by the local market; (4) authorization on the part of the Pensions and Insurance Supervision and APS, which does not imply liability of any sort with respect to management of the investment portfolio of the SIP Funds; and (5) the amounts must be denominated in US dollars. The administrative resolution also stipulates that the TGN may directly or indirectly invest the resources of SIP Funds in foreign debt securities up to the limit of 10% of the total amount of each issue through the intermediaries contracted by the Ministry of the Economy and Public Finance of the Plurinational State of Bolivia.

Effective March 15, 2021, Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 221/2021 provides that SIP Funds may be invested in debt securities issued abroad by the TGN (Bolivian Sovereign Bonds) up to 2.5% of the total amount of the fourth issue for each AFP.

These limits were amended by Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 120/2022 of February 2, 2022.

The investment limit for investments made abroad in Bolivian Sovereign Bonds of the first, second, and third issues will be the level recorded on the date of notification of Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 120/2021.

Through R.D. No. 012/2022, the CBB sets the FY 2022 maximum limit for investment abroad by insurance companies at 5% of their investment resources, pursuant to the authority conferred by Article 35 of Law No. 1883, of June 25, 1998, and Article 18 of Supreme Decree No. 25201, of October 16, 1998. Thus, Board Resolution No. 019/2021 of January 21, 2021 is annulled.

In the case of the external public debt of the nonfinancial public sector, the Plurinational Legislative Assembly will authorize the contracting of public debt when the capacity to generate revenue to cover principal and interest is demonstrated and the most advantageous conditions in terms of rates, maturities, amounts, and other conditions are technically justified. Public debt will not include obligations that have not been expressly authorized and guaranteed by the Plurinational Legislative Assembly (CPE, Article 322). The external debt of publicly owned enterprises must be approved by the Superior Strategic Council of Publicly Owned Enterprises (COSEP). Commercial and financial loans to the private sector without official backing do not require authorization but must be reported to the CBB for statistical purposes.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions  Yes.

The purpose of the Financial Services Law (Law No. 393) is to regulate financial intermediation activities, the provision of complementary financial services, as well as the organization and operation of FIs and complementary financial services companies, financial consumer protection, and the government’s involvement as the governing body of the financial system, ensuring universal financial services and guiding operational activities in support of the country’s economic and social development policies. It includes aspects focused on financial consumer protection and the development of the housing and productive sectors by establishing a system to control interest rates and minimum portfolio levels (S.D. No. 1842 and S.D. No. 2055). It also strengthens the prudential and solvency measures applicable to financial institutions, in addition to establishing deposit insurance for low-income savers, who account for more than 90% of the total number of deposit accounts. Law No. 921 of March 29, 2017, amends the first paragraph of Article 51 ter. of Law No. 843, as amended by Law No. 771 of December 29, 2015, establishing that when the rate of return on equity of financial intermediation entities regulated by the ASFI exceeds 6%, the net taxable profits of these entities will be subject to an additional corporate income tax rate of 25%.

Borrowing abroad  Yes.

In accordance with Chapter VIII of Title II of Book 2 of the Compilation of Standards for Financial Services, revised April 27, 2018, short-term foreign liabilities are subject to reserve requirements, with the exception of liabilities incurred solely in connection with foreign trade operations in which the assets and liabilities of each transaction are exactly matched.

Maintenance of accounts abroad  No.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)  No.

Lending locally in foreign exchange  Yes.

In accordance with the ASFI Circular of December 16, 2010, as amended by ASFI Resolution No. 13/2014, the specific provisions for loans denominated in FC or in indexed domestic currency (MNV) as a function of the category and type of credit are as follows: Category A:

(1) For Business, Microcredit, SMEs 2.25% and 1% for direct and contingent, respectively;
(2) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential mortgage credit, social residential mortgage credit, and social residential credit with no mortgage guarantee, 2.5%;
(3) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential credit without mortgage guarantee and duly secured home loans without mortgage guarantee, 7%;
(4) for consumption (direct and contingent), 7%.

Category B:
(1) For Business, Microcredit, SMEs 5% for both direct and contingent;
(2) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential mortgage credit, social residential mortgage credit, and social residential credit with no mortgage guarantee, 5%;
(3) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential credit without mortgage guarantee and duly secured home loans without mortgage guarantee, 12%;
(4) for consumption (direct and contingent), 12%.

Category C: 20% for all types of loans;
Category D: 50% for all types of loans;
Category E: 80% for all types of loans;
Category F: 100% for all types of loans.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Yes.

Reserve requirements Yes.

The reserve requirement regime varies by currency.

Via CBB Board Resolution No. 35/2019, the reserve requirement for deposits in FC and MVDOL (unit of account indexed to the exchange rate vis-à-vis the US dollar) for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs up to 360 days is 31.5% (previously 46.5%), 18% for DPFs between 360 and 720 days (previously 33%), and 10% for DPFs greater than 720 days (previously 25%). With the release of these resources, the Fund for Loans to the Productive Sector and Social Interest Housing III (CPVIS III Fund) was created. In addition, it allows the CBB or one or more foreign institutions to act as delegated administrators in the administration of the FC Liquid Assets Requirement Fund (RAL-ME).

For domestic currency and domestic currency indexed to the Housing Development Unit (MNUFV), it is 11% for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs of 30–360 days, 5% in securities and 6% in cash. Deposits in MN and UFV greater than 360 days are exempt from reserve requirements. For funds in escrow, which is the percentage of cash reserves that FIs hold in FC and MVDOL in their vaults, the reserve requirement is 40%, and for domestic currency, it is up to 50% for MNUFV.

Board Resolution No. 044/2020 adds the single transitory provision to the Reserve Requirements, specifically referring to the Extraordinary Reserve Requirement associated with the Exceptional Funds. The exceptional funds received by FIs must be used in the construction of new portfolios between April 1, 2020, and July 31, 2020. If this increase is less than the amount established in the schedule, the FIs must constitute an extraordinary legal reserve in cash for 100% of the difference.

Board Resolution No. 055/2020 modified the Single Transitional Provision so that the exceptional funds also reach Development Financial Institutions and Credit Unions when calculating new portfolio creation.

Via Board Resolution No. 060/2020, the reserve requirements were reduced as follows: (1) in domestic currency and MNUFV (cash) from 6% to 5.5%; (2) in domestic currency and MNUFV (securities) from 5% to 4.5%; (3) in FC and MVDOL (cash) from 13.5% to 10%; (4) in FC and MVDOL (securities) from 18% to 11%; except for time deposits of 720 days or more, for which 10% is maintained. FIs may maintain up to 60% of their cash reserve requirement in domestic currency and MNUFV in Funds in Custody in any location; previously, the percentage was 50%.

The released resources (from the reductions in the reserve requirements) should be kept at the Fondo para Créditos para la Adquisición de Productos Nacionales y el Pago de Servicios de Origen Nacional (CAPROSEN).

Board Resolution No. 071/2020 of July 31, 2020, granted authorization on an exceptional basis for loans granted from the CAPROSEN fund to compensate for the extraordinary legal reserve for non-compliance with the portfolio targets for the July and August 2020 account closings. It also includes the portfolio resulting from loans to IFDs and Savings and Loan Cooperatives (CACs) between April 1 and September 30, 2020. Board Resolution No. 081/2020 of September 8, 2020, modified the CPVIS III Fund so that loans requested from the CBB by EFVs, CACs, and IFDs using their Fund resources as collateral would not be conditional on any sort of increase in the portfolio. Furthermore, the credit granted by banks to CACs and IFDs is recorded as part of the allocation of the proceeds of loans requested by banks from the CBB using their resources in the CPVIS III Fund as collateral.

Board Resolution No. 018/2021 of January 21, 2021, extended the terms of the CPVIS III Fund. In this connection, liquidity loans may be requested until January 3, 2022, and the liquidity loans will come due January 31, 2022.

Board Resolution No. 047/2021 of March 23, 2021, extended the terms of the CPVIS II [sic] Fund with regard to voluntary contributions until June 30, 2022, requests for liquidity loans until September 30, 2022, and the maturity of liquidity loans and the repayment of CBB resources to FIs until December 31, 2022.

Effective January 10, 2022, Board Resolution No. 147/2021 (Article 5) amends the regulation on required reserve ratios as follows: The legal required reserve ratios on liabilities specified in Article 3 of the regulation are as follows; in domestic currency and MNUFV, a 5.5% reserve in cash and 3.5% (previously 4.5%) in securities. In FC and MVDOL, 10% in cash and 9% (previously 11%) in securities for DPFs with maturities longer than 720 days; and 10% for other liabilities. FIs must constitute a legal reserve in cash, at a rate of 100%, on accounts included in “Other liabilities with the public, companies with State participation, and banks and other lending institutions.”

Investment regulations Yes.
Abroad by banks Yes.

Article 471 of Law No. 393 on Financial Services stipulates that the ASFI will regulate the maximum limits on investment abroad by FIs, that is, entities that accept deposits and grant loans.

ASFI Resolution No. 429/2016 of June 17, 2016, specifies the following maximum limits for investment by banks abroad: FIs, entities that accept deposits and grant loans, may invest up to 40% of their regulatory capital to set up branches or fixed agencies abroad, and/or to purchase shares in multilateral lending institutions abroad. Investments in shares of complementary financial services companies, firms in the securities, insurance and pension sectors, and in development banks may not exceed the amount of their regulatory capital, when it is a requirement for obtaining credit lines.

ASFI through Resolution No. 247/2019 modified the Regulation of Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities and lowered the foreign investment limit of banks from 25% to 15% of regulatory capital. To compute this limit, investments in time deposits and securities abroad are considered, in addition to the account of banks and corresponding entities abroad. In addition, the new formula to calculate the limit takes the monthly average of the daily balance of the sub-accounts with the cutoff date on the last day of the month. The deadline to comply with this limit is June 28, 2019. Furthermore, ASFI Resolution No. 246/2019 approved the reduction in the limits on investment abroad from 25% to 5% for new open and closed investment funds. This limit will not apply to investment funds currently in operation. It was established, however, that the limit applicable to these funds will be the percentage of investments reached and reported up to March 27, 2019.

ASFI Circular No. 627/2020 and ASFI Resolution No. 081/2020 approved and put into effect the Regulation that provides for the responsibility of financial intermediation entities to control the financing received or granted. It provides for the obligation of the Internal Audit Unit of the financial intermediation entity to incorporate, within its Annual Work Plan, the verification of the financing contracted by the entity. It determines that the supervised entities must have policies and procedures to achieve an optimal management of the financing, allowing for the expansion of credit coverage to the productive sector. It specifies that FIs must consider preventive measures for the control of financing to monitor that it does not exceed the legal limits. It also stipulates that the supervised entity that grants financing must have policies and procedures for assessing and mitigating the risk inherent in the financing; and credit coverage for the production sector in rural areas must take the classification of urban and rural municipalities into account.

Effective February 26, 2021, ASFI Resolution No. 145/2021, which amends the Regulation on Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities, establishes that investments abroad may not exceed 10% of regulatory capital (previously it was 15%).
Authority Resolution No. 202/2021, for the purposes of computing the limits, investments in sovereign debt bonds issued abroad by the Plurinational State of Bolivia are also considered to be investments abroad starting in fiscal year 2021.

Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 221/2021, of March 15, 2021, establishes that for fiscal year 2021 the maximum limit for investments by insurance companies set by the CBB includes investments in debt securities issued abroad by the National General Treasury (Bolivian Sovereign Bonds).

The investment limit for investments made abroad in Bolivian Sovereign Bonds of the first, second, and third issues will be the level recorded on the date of notification of Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 221/2021.1.

The net open foreign exchange position limits are the same for resident and nonresident assets and liabilities.

For FIs, the long position limit in FC, MVDOL, and other FCs is 60% and the short position limit in FC, MVDOL, and other FCs (excess of liabilities over assets in those denominations), is 40% of equity. In the case of MNUFV, the long position limit (excess of assets over liabilities in that denomination) is 10%.

CBB Resolution No. 11/2019 changed for financial institutions the long position limit in FC, MVDOL, and other FCs from 60% to 50% and the short position limit in FC, MVDOL, and other FCs (excess of liabilities over assets in those denominations), was increased to 50% from 40% of equity.

CBB Resolution 011/2019 changed for financial institutions the long position limit in FC, MVDOL, and other FCs from 60% to 50% and the short position limit in FC, MVDOL, and other FCs (excess of liabilities over assets in those denominations), was increased to 50% from 40% of equity.

CBB Resolution No. 070/2021 modified the formula for calculating the long position in foreign exchange, MVDOL, and other FCs. Accordingly, it was established that the book equity value is net of the investment in fixed assets (net equity value). The position limits were not modified.

Foreign currency 04/21/2021 The physical entry and exit of foreign currency (FC) into and from the national territory in amounts between US$10,000 and US$20,000 or the equivalent in another currency must require registration in a form designed for this purpose by the Central Bank of Bolivia, which must include, among other things, data on the origin and intended use of the funds. The entry and exit of FC into and from the national territory in amounts greater than US$20,000 or the equivalent in another currency must be performed through financial intermediation entities regulated by the Financial System Supervisory Authority.
Previously, amounts less than US$50,000 or its equivalent in other currencies required the declaration to the National Customs of Bolivia using Form No. 250 “Sworn Declaration of Accompanied Baggage and Entry of Foreign Currency” and Form No. 251 “Sworn Declaration of Exit of Foreign Currency.” Amounts between US$50,000 and US$500,000 or their equivalent in other currencies require CBB authorization. Larger amounts are subject to authorization by the Ministry of Economy and Public Finance by way of specific Ministerial Resolution after, among other considerations, a favorable technical opinion from the CBB.

Currency board
Yes. The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The CB covers base money with its foreign reserves, including currency in circulation and commercial bank deposits. The Law on the Central Bank, adopted by the parliamentary assembly of Bosnia and Herzegovina, guarantees convertibility of the currency of Bosnia and Herzegovina. There are no restrictions on the purchase and sale of foreign exchange. The Central Bank of Bosnia and Herzegovina (CBBH) publishes data on its sales and purchases.

Conventional peg

Stabilized arrangement

Crawling peg
The convertible mark is pegged to the euro at the rate of KM 1 per €0.51129. This rate applies to CB transactions as well as accounting and valuation. The exchange rate is fixed by the Law on the CBBH, and it can be changed only through parliamentary approval. The official exchange rate is used for foreign exchange transactions between the CB, commercial banks, and government and for valuation of import and export transactions.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.

Loans

By residents to nonresidents  Yes. Loans to nonresidents with maturity of less than a year are prohibited, excluding loans from banks and loans granted by residents for establishing permanent economic relationships. Loans in domestic currency between residents and nonresidents are prohibited. Residents other than banks may conduct loan operations abroad only in their name and on their own behalf. Residents must receive from nonresidents adequate instruments securing the loan repayment.

To residents from nonresidents  Yes. Residents (except banks) may contract loans with nonresidents only in their name and on their own behalf. Residents must transfer loans from abroad through a bank or foreign exchange account abroad opened in accordance with the laws on foreign exchange operations in both countries. Financial loans from abroad may be used through a bank if the loan agreement stipulates payment for goods and services directly to the supplier or if the loan is used to repay a previous foreign loan (refinancing).

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies  No. Documents confirming the legitimate origin of the funds must be provided before the bank may complete a transaction.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions  Yes. The foreign exchange and the banking laws of the entities regulate these transactions.

Borrowing abroad  No. Banks may conduct loan activities abroad in their name and on their own behalf or in their name and behalf of some else or in other’s name and behalf of some else.

Maintenance of accounts abroad  No. Maintenance of accounts abroad by credit institutions is not restricted.

Crawling peg Yes.

The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as a crawling peg. The official exchange rate of the pula is determined according to a weighted basket of currencies comprising the SDR and the South African rand. The crawl rate is set as the difference between the Bank of Botswana’s (BOB’s) inflation objective and the average inflation forecast in major trading partner countries. The crawl rate is thus determined using a forward-looking approach and is revised regularly. In this approach, the authorities periodically determine the crawl rate for the subsequent period, such as the next 6 or 12 months. The weights of the basket are 45% for the South African rand and 55% for the SDR. A downward rate of crawl of 2.87% per annum was maintained for 2021 and 2022, while the weights of the Pula basket remained unchanged. This rate of crawl was implemented to enhance domestic industry competitiveness in response to the adverse impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the economy. Decisions relating to this framework are made by the President of the Republic of Botswana on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance after consultation with the BOB.

Composite Yes. The monetary policy framework is primarily an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a basket of currencies comprising the SDR and rand. Within this framework, the crawl rate is determined using a forward-looking approach, which is based on the difference between the average inflation forecast in major trading partner countries and the BOB’s medium-term inflation objective within a 3%–6% range, to achieve price stability, the overarching goal of the BOB.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes. The sale of BOB certificates to counterparties is restricted to domestic commercial banks and merchant banks.

Borrowing abroad No.

Maintenance of accounts abroad No.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) Yes. Commercial banks’ loans to nonresidents are restricted to 25% of the bank’s unimpaired capital for each nonresident customer, and total large exposure loans (that is, loans in excess of 10% of unimpaired capital) to resident and nonresident companies may not exceed 800% of the bank’s unimpaired capital.

Lending locally in foreign exchange No.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange No. These transactions are subject to the listing requirements of the Botswana Stock Exchange.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Yes.

Reserve requirements Yes. As of May 13, 2020, the domestic currency deposit reserve requirement (RR) was reduced to 2.5% from 5%, as one of the relief measures in response to the negative impact of COVID-19 pandemic. The RR aims to regulate the amount of liquidity absorbed through BOB certificates. RR averaging is also allowed for liquidity management purposes since October 2019. Foreign currency deposits are not subject to RRs.

Liquid asset requirements No. Commercial banks are required to maintain, at all times, 10% of total deposit liabilities as liquid assets.

Interest rate controls No. The Regulatory Guideline on the Disclosure Framework for Deposit and Lending Interest Rates prescribes that the interest payable on the 91-day deposit or equivalent products must be 350 basis points below the prevailing Bank Rate.

Credit controls No. The Banking Act (Cap. 46:04), along with Guidelines on large exposures, restricts a bank from granting facilities that are in excess of 10% of a bank’s unimpaired capital to a single customer or group of related customers without the specific approval of a bank’s entire board of directors. Further, a bank is required to seek prior approval of the BOB before granting loans and other credit facilities to a single entity or group of related companies which, in aggregate, are in excess of 30% of a bank’s unimpaired capital.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts No.

There are prudential limits on individual and overall foreign currency exposure. For major currencies, the limit is 15% of a bank’s unimpaired capital; for other currencies, it is 5%. The overall foreign currency exposure limit is 30% of a bank’s unimpaired capital, using the shorthand method.

Insurance companies are required to hold assets in Botswana, the fair value of which is not less than 70%, or a higher percentage as may be prescribed, of the Net Liabilities and PCT. This is in regard to policies other than linked long-term policies. The remaining 30% can be invested abroad as a combination of corporate and government securities subject to the 20% limit on foreign corporate securities, 20% limit on foreign government securities and 5% per institution.

There are no specific currency-matching regulations/rules; however, insurers are only allowed to invest in derivative instruments provided:

1. The derivatives are in respect of a linked long-term policy,
2. The derivatives are acquired in respect of assets in excess of liabilities and PCT, and
3. The derivatives are acquired for the purpose of reducing investment risk.

This provides for insurers to hedge against (currency) investment risk.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes. Pension funds may invest up to 70% of their assets outside Botswana, as provided under the Retirement Funds Act and Pension Fund Prudential Rule (PFR2) (prudential rule).

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes. Pension funds may invest a minimum of 30% of their assets in Botswana, as provided under the Retirement Funds Act and PFR2 (prudential rule).

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Exchange Measures

- Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: Yes.

  The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation with Brazil states that, as of August 20, 2021, the tax on financial transactions (Imposto sobre Operações Financeiras–IOF) of 6.38% on exchange transactions carried out through credit card, debit card, and traveler’s checks (including cash withdrawals) by companies to fulfill their payment obligations for purchases of goods and services abroad by their customers gives rise to a MCP subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3. In January 2008, the IOF for these exchange transactions was raised to 2.38% and then further increased to 6.38% in March 2011. The scope of operations was expanded to other foreign exchange transactions in addition to credit cards in December 2013. (Country Report No. 21/217)

- Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: Yes.

  In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

- Other security restrictions: Yes.

  Restrictions apply according to UNSC resolutions and Brazilian legislation on Countering the Financing of Terrorism.

Exchange Arrangement

- Currency: Yes. The currency of Brazil is the Brazilian real.

- Other legal tender: No.

Exchange rate structure

- Unitary: Yes.

- Dual

- Multiple

Classification

- No separate legal tender

- Currency board

- Conventional peg

- Stabilized arrangement

- Crawling peg
The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as floating. There is no official exchange rate for Brazil as the exchange rate of the real is defined by supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The Central Bank of Brazil (BCB, in Portuguese: Banco Central do Brasil) intervenes to smooth out excessive volatility and/or provide liquidity and hedge, with the ultimate objective of assuring a functioning foreign exchange market. Consolidated data on intervention in the interbank market are available in the BCB’s weekly publication on currency flows on the BCB website with a lag ranging from 7 to 12 days, considering execution dates. However, the Deputy Governor for Monetary Policy may choose to publish intervention volumes on the same day of each auction. Data on interventions in the derivatives market are published on the same day of each auction.

As announced December 29, 2021, Law No. 14,286, of 2021, is going to update provisions on exchange arrangement, when Resolution National Monetary Council (CMN) No. 3,568, of 2008, will be replaced by new infralegal regulation. Law No. 14,286/2021 will take effect December 31, 2022.

There is no official exchange rate for the real determined by the BCB. The BCB publishes a reference rate, known as the PTAX rate, which is the average of four polls conducted by the BCB with the group formed by its primary dealers (up to 14 institutions in the domestic US dollar interbank market). The polls start at a random time in the 10 minutes following 10:00, 11:00, 12:00, and 13:00, and the dealers have two minutes to report their bid and ask quotes for the US dollar–Brazilian real (USD–BRL) at the beginning of the poll. The BCB cannot buy or sell at the quotes provided by the dealers, but dealers who consistently provide out-of-market quotes may lose their dealer status. At each poll, the two highest and two lowest bid and ask quotes are trimmed, and the consistency of the final results is tested against market parameters obtained from the BCB’s information systems and data feeders. The PTAX rate is published after the last poll results. The BCB does not require that government agencies use the PTAX rate as a benchmark for conversion. However, government agencies and financial institutions generally use the PTAX as it is a reliable reference. According to the foreign exchange regulation, the exchange rate is freely agreed between the parties, including if the government is the client.
| Inflation-targeting framework | Yes. | Brazil implemented a formal inflation-targeting framework for monetary policy in 1999. |
| Target setting body | Yes. | A one-year inflation target and its tolerance interval are fixed 30 months in advance by the CMN, which is composed of the Minister of Economy (chair), the Ministry of Economy’s (ME’s) Special Secretary of Finance and the Governor of BCB. |

| CPI | Yes. | National CPI Extended is measured by the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics. The definition is given by the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics. National CPI Extended measures inflation rate for a group of products and services from retail trade, relative to household expenditure. The income range between 1 and 40 minimum wages was created to guarantee a 90% coverage of families living in urban areas. |
| Target horizon | Yes. | A one-year inflation target and its tolerance interval are fixed 30 months in advance by the CMN, and the BCB must pursue this target. The inflation-targeting framework in Brazil is flexible. The horizon that the BCB sees as appropriate for the return of inflation to the target depends on both the nature of the shocks that affect the economy and their persistence. |
| Operating target (policy rate) | Yes. | The BCB’s MPC (COPOM) was created on June 20, 1996, and was assigned the responsibility of setting the stance of monetary policy and the short-term interest rate. The aim of creating the COPOM was to enhance the monetary policy transparency and confer adequate regularity to the monetary policy decision-making process. The Selic rate is the primary instrument of the monetary policy. It is... | the average interest rate charged on the daily interbank loans – with a maturity of one day (overnight) backed by federal government securities – registered in the Special System of Clearance and Custody (Selic). In sum, the Selic rate balances the market for the bank reserves.

Yes. The COPOM publishes votes of individual members in favor of monetary policy decisions in the meeting minutes on the BCB’s website.

Publication of minutes
Yes. The Committee releases the meeting minutes on the BCB’s website and to the press through the BCB’s press officer up to six working days after each decision is reached. The minutes provide a summary of the COPOM’s discussion, in line with the inflation-targeting regime’s commitments to transparency and accountability.

Publication of inflation forecasts
Yes. The COPOM publishes inflation expectations in the meeting minutes on the BCB’s website 8 times a year.

Exchange tax
Yes. Foreign exchange transactions are subject to the IOF general tax rate of 0.38%, which is levied and collected on the settlement date of the foreign exchange operation. An IOF of 6.38% is applied to foreign exchange transactions related to the purchase of prepaid cards and traveler’s checks. It is also applied to foreign exchange transactions carried out by institutions part of cross-border Payment Schemes, as service providers of these Payment Schemes for the payment of obligations because of operations abroad carried out by their clients in connection with expenditures, including the situation where the resources are held in nonresident domestic currency account and automated teller machine (ATM) withdrawals abroad.

On July 29, 2022, Decree No. 11.153 announced that the IOF general tax rate will be gradually reduced to 5.38% as of January 2, 2023; to 4.38% as of January 2, 2024; to 3.38% as of January 2, 2025; to 2.38% as of January 2, 2026; to 1.38% as of January 2, 2027; and to 0% as of January 2, 2028.

There are some transactions on which the IOF rate of 0% is already applicable, such as (1) trades involving overseas depositary receipts (DRs) issued by Brazilian companies; (2) inflows of export proceeds; (3) interbank transactions between institutions that make up the national financial system and that are authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market, and between these institutions and institutions abroad; (4) investments by investment funds in the international market, according to the limits and conditions established by the Brazilian Securities and Exchange Commission (Comissão de Valores Mobiliários of Brazil – CVM); (5) outflows related to local revenues of international air transportation companies.
domiciled abroad; (6) inflows of foreign currency to cover expenses from the use of credit cards issued abroad; (7) inflows of cash donations received by financial institutions controlled by the Brazilian government and destined for the prevention, monitoring, and combating of deforestation and the promotion of the conservation and sustainable use of Brazilian forests, as provided by specific legislation; (8) inflows and outflows of funds obtained as external loans and financing, including effective March 18, 2022, external loans with maturity less than 180 days (previously, external loans with maturity less than 180 days as well as external loans with an initial term of more than 180 days but repaid within a 180-day period were subject to a 6% IOF rate); (9) remittances of interest on owner’s equity and dividends; (10) transactions of foreign investors, including through simultaneous operations, for investment in the financial and capital markets; (11) purchases of foreign exchange by institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market, executed simultaneously with a sale transaction, when required by Law; (12) nonresidents’ investments in fixed-income securities and derivative margin deposits; (13) settlements of foreign exchange inflow transactions, including through simultaneously contracted foreign exchange transactions after December 1, 2011, related to inflows stemming from cancelation of DRs invested in stocks in the stock market; (14) use of credit and debit cards by the public sector for acquisition of goods and services abroad; and (15) settlements of foreign exchange operations derived from a foreign investor regime switch from direct investment to investment in stocks traded on a securities exchange according to regulation issued by the CMN. Some cross-border operations have been exempt from the IOF (set in the Law, not amendable by Presidential Decree), most notably operations carried out for payment of imported goods, foreign exchange operations by diplomatic missions, and credit to housing programs or for project purposes, including infrastructure facilities and Itaipu Binacional.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.  Banks and other institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market may freely set their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  As of August 4, 2022, there were 183 institutions authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market buying and selling foreign currency (104 banks and 79 nonbank financial institutions) (www.bcb.gov.br/estabilidadefinanceira/instituicoesoperacambio). Any institution authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market may maintain accounts abroad for the purpose of performing international payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. Any institution authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market can qualify to be a primary foreign exchange dealer, which is eligible to operate directly with the BCB. (In practice, however, because of the weight given to transacted amounts in the qualifying process, only banks have been selected as dealers so far.) Currently, there are 14 primary foreign exchange dealers, which are the only institutions authorized to buy/sell currencies in the BCB’s foreign currency auctions (www.bcb.gov.br/estabilidadefinanceira/dealerscambio). Any of the 183 foreign exchange-authorized institutions, however, can perform operations with the BCB in which they cash their deposits in foreign currencies or vice versa. Nonbanks have a limit of US$300,000 an operation with clients (not applicable to operations in the interbank market). Banks and nonbanks may contract with companies, which act as foreign exchange bureaus to perform foreign exchange operations up to US$3,000 related to unilateral transfers or international travel. The limit is US$1,000 if both the foreign and the national currencies are delivered in cash. There were 4,770 such contractor companies as of August 4, 2022.

Operated by the central bank: Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility: No.
Allocation: No.
Auction: Yes. Depending on market circumstances, the BCB may execute foreign exchange auctions and direct operations for intervention purposes. The types of auctions performed by the BCB in the interbank market are spot, forward, and credit lines (equivalent to foreign exchange swaps). Only foreign exchange dealers authorized by the BCB are eligible to participate in these auctions. Currently, there are 14 institutions authorized as primary dealers. The dealers are selected every 12 months based on the volume traded in the foreign exchange market and, for those previously authorized, their past performance as dealers. The BCB may also intervene in the derivatives market using specific listed contracts at B3, formerly BM&FBOVESPA, the foreign exchange swaps (formally called US Dollar Swap with Reset Referencing One-Day Repurchase Agreements) which function as synthetic futures contracts. In this kind of auction, any preregistered market participant may take part. In credit lines and foreign exchange swaps auctions, the amounts to be auctioned are preannounced. There is a minimum amount for bids for auctions in the interbank market. In the auctions with preannounced amounts, that is also the maximum bid. The frequency of the auctions is only known if they are part of an intervention program. All BCB auction operations are delivery versus payment (DVP); if an institution’s payment fails, that institution will lose its dealer status. Results are disclosed in Communiqués. During previous acute crisis, the BCB has used foreign currency loans and earmarked spot auctions in which the amounts must be used to finance export trades and in which all institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market can participate. Brazilian Global dollar-denominated bond repo agreements were introduced in 2020.

Fixing: No.

Interbank market: Yes. As of August 4, 2022, there were 183 institutions authorized by the BCB to operate in the interbank foreign exchange market (104 banks and 79 nonbank financial institutions – securities intermediaries and foreign exchange brokerage firms). Nonbanks can only operate on a spot basis, while banks can also perform future or forward operations. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. The Brazilian currency leg of all foreign exchange interbank transactions must be settled through the BCB-operated real-time gross settlement (RTGS) system. In 2021, 51.4% of the operations in the interbank market were settled through a clearinghouse, which acts as a central counterparty (B3 Foreign Exchange Clearinghouse). The BCB intervenes in the foreign exchange interbank market mainly with auctions via its primary foreign exchange dealers.

Over the counter: Yes.
Brokerage: Yes.
Market making: Yes.
Concerning the deliverable foreign exchange market, only interbank operations are allowed to be traded on a forward basis, limited to 1,500 days. Forward foreign exchange auctions are one of the instruments available for the BCB for intervention purposes. Foreign exchange operations related to import and financial transactions must be settled within 360 days, while those related to export or National Treasury transactions must be settled within 1,500 days.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) No. There are three separate markets for gold transactions: financial, foreign exchange, and commercial. Transactions with gold in any grade of purity (crude or refined) by institutions of the national financial system in the financial market, following the extraction of Gold or to implement exchange rate policy, are regulated by the CMN. These transactions are subject to the IOF. Rules regarding gold transactions for industrial purposes are defined separately by the federal states, which also establish different rates for the commercial tax levied thereon. The Electronic Declaration of International Physical Movement of Valuables must be submitted to the customs office of the Secretariat of the Federal Revenue of Brazil (RFB) for imports and exports of gold as a financial or foreign exchange instrument in amounts exceeding R$10,000 or its equivalent.

On domestic ownership and/or trade No.

On external trade No.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

Brazilian and foreign banknotes, checks, and traveler’s checks may be taken out or brought into the country without restriction. Companies that transport cash and valuables must declare to Brazilian customs the amount being transported. The sender/recipient of the banknotes, checks, and traveler’s checks, in the case of a transfer to another country, must be a bank authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market in Brazil. All cases of transport in cash in an amount that exceeds R$10,000 must be declared to the customs office of the RFB.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports Yes.

Minimum financing requirements No.

Advance payment requirements Yes. The payment of import financing operations with a maturity of more than 360 days cannot be transferred prior to the arrival of the good or to the rendering of the service.

External financing of imports for periods of more than 360 days must be registered with the BCB strictly for statistical purposes.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes.

Domiciliation requirements No.

Preshipment inspection No.

Letters of credit No.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses No.

Other Yes. Imports must be registered in the import subsystem of the Integrated Foreign Trade System (Sistema Integrado de Comérico Exterior – SISCOMEX/IMPORT), which allows importers, carriers, banks, and brokers to register the various stages of an import process directly through the interlinked computers of the SECEX and RFB.

Commercial imports must be registered in Brazil’s SISCOMEX.
The granting of nonautomatic licenses for imports of used machinery and equipment is conditional on proof that such items are not produced in Brazil and that no substitute item is currently produced in Brazil. Nonautomatic licensing is also used for administration of duty and tax concessions; to benefit, imports must undergo a “similarity examination” to ascertain that there is no equivalent domestic product.

Imports are grouped into the following three categories: (1) those that do not require licenses (most common), (2) those subject to automatic import licenses, and (3) those subject to nonautomatic licenses. In general, imports are exempt from approval requirements.
However, some require approval (that is, an import license) from the SECEX or another government agency, and it is promptly given to importers that fulfill licensing requirements. As a rule, licenses are valid for 90 days and may be extended if the delay is justified by the importer. Import licenses for certain imports may be obtained after the goods have arrived but before customs clearance.

Products subject to automatic licensing are listed in the Administrative Treatment of SISCOMEX and on the Ministry Web page. Products under the special customs regime of drawback are also subject to automatic licensing. Products subject to nonautomatic licensing are listed in the Administrative Treatment of SISCOMEX and on the Ministry Web page. They are mostly products that may damage human, plant, or animal health or cause environmental damage; products classified as weapons or made for warlike purposes; products subject to nontariff quotas as established in the agreements of the Uruguay Round; products subject to tariff quotas; and products subject to trade remedy measures established in accordance with the WTO agreements.

The Brazilian normative framework related to similarity examination and import licensing procedures is based on the following legislation:
(1) Decree-Law No. 37 of November 18, 1966; (2) Decree No. 6,759 of February 5, 2009; and (3) SECEX Ordinance No. 23 of July 14, 2011. Any person, enterprise, or institution may request import licensing. The only requirement is SISCOMEX registration. Import licenses are obtained through the SISCOMEX. Such an administrative procedure – that integrates the registration activities and monitors imports and exports – is based on the sole flow of computerized information so as to make the process efficient and fast. Importers may request import licensing directly from their institution if it is registered with the SISCOMEX.
Imports of used consumer goods are prohibited for environmental, safety, and consumer rights reasons. Used consumer goods may be imported only by the government or education and scientific institutions. Imports of used nonconsumer goods (except aeronautic goods and packaging materials in temporary admission or reimportation) are subject to nonautomatic licensing.

Imports of agrochemical products not authorized under Brazilian regulations are prohibited, as are imports of weapons and military equipment (from Eritrea, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, and Libya) and of certain drugs, for reasons of security, health, morals, or UNSC resolutions. It is forbidden to import, export, or store dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane (DDT) and to import and export rough diamonds from countries not participating in the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme.

In addition to imports covered by the LAIA agreement, goods imported through the Manaus and Tabatinga free trade zones are subject to an annual quota. Foreign goods worth up to the equivalent of US$2,000 imported into the Manaus Free Trade Zone may be transferred to other parts of Brazil (as a passenger’s baggage) free of import duties.

Sanitary and phytosanitary measures and technical regulations, conformity assessment, and standards must be observed.

The MERCOSUR agreement established a customs union with a CET. Ad valorem tariffs range from 0% to 20%. Exceptional cases are subject to higher rates. MERCOSUR members are allowed temporary national tariff exceptions. Accordingly, Brazil may maintain an exception list for information technology and capital goods under the “ex tarifários” program established by Ordinance ME Foreign Trade and International Affairs Special Secretariat No.
309 of June 24, 2019. For general items, up to 100 tariff codes may be included on the list of CET exceptions through December 31, 2021. MERCOSUR countries adopted a program aimed at consolidation of the customs union, which includes revision of the CET, free trade zones, special common import regimes, a common automotive policy, a national exception to CET lists, harmonization of drawback customs programs, elimination of the double-levy CET, and distribution of customs income. MERCOSUR countries could also increase the import tax for extra-zone imports up to WTO consolidated tariffs for 200 MERCOSUR Common Nomenclature positions until December 31, 2021. This was a temporary and strategic mechanism that allowed MERCOSUR countries to cope with the international crisis. However, Brazil has never used this capacity.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.
State import monopoly Yes. Imports of petroleum and its derivatives are subject to disclosure to the National Petroleum Agency.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements No. Exporters may keep all their proceeds abroad.
Surrender requirements Yes.
Surrender to the central bank No.
Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Once the proceeds in foreign currency are repatriated (by own decision of the recipient of the foreign currency), regulation requires to sell these proceeds to ADs in return for local currency.

Financing requirements No.

Documentation requirements Yes.
Letters of credit No.
Guarantees No.
Domiciliation No.
Preshipment inspection Yes. Preshipment inspection is required for commodities subject to standardization.
Other Yes. Documentation includes invoices, international shipment notification, and export registration.

Export licenses Yes. New export operations should use the Single Export Declaration (Declaração Única de Exportação). The Single Export Declaration is based on the electronic receipt and comprises information of a commercial, administrative, customs, tax, and logistics nature that characterizes the export operation of the merchandise contained therein. It is basic document for the customs clearance and should therefore cover all the goods contained in an export consignment subject to this procedure. By now with the implementation of the Licensing, Permits, Certificates, and Other Export Documents (LPCO-Exportation) module of the Single Window, it is also possible to request to the government bodies the legal document necessary to the export through a single point on the Internet. The responsible agency will analyze the request within 30 days (Law No. 9.784, of 1999, Article 49).
As of August 10, 2020, the inward process is now regulated by Ordinance SECEX No. 44 (2020) which updated the rules of the regime to simplify the procedures and provide greater predictability and legal certainty to foreign trade operators.
As for financed exports, similarly as to the previous system, it is necessary to present the Operations Summary Form (Ficha de Resumo de Operações) directly to the National Development Bank so that the financing operation can be started. The LPCO will be created by the National Development Bank itself to ensure consistency between the Ficha de Resumo de Operações and the LPCO so as to mitigate a large reason for requesting rectification of the credit records.

A number of products are subject to special export procedures, including exports subject to export taxes, export licenses, or country-specific tariff quotas in certain markets under Brazil’s international agreements.

The Annex of Ordinance SECEX No. 52 lists the export procedures of goods under quotas, which are described on the Annex XVII of Ordinance SECEX No. 23. These include (1) certain types of beef to the EU under the “Hilton quota”; (2) poultry and poultry preparations to the EU subject to country-specific tariff quotas; (3) sugar and confectionery products to the EU subject to export licenses; (4) milk to Colombia under the MERCOSUR quota; (5) cigarettes; (6) precious stones, which may be sold for foreign currency to nonresidents; (7) arms and ammunition subject to export tax and other restrictions; and (8) cars to Argentina, under the Economic Complementation Agreement – ACE No. 14. The exports procedures of cars to Colombia, under MERCOSUR/Colombia ACE No. 72, are described in the Ordinance SECEX No. 49. In accordance with UNSC resolutions, Brazil prohibits exports of weapons and military equipment to the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iraq, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, Libya, Sierra Leone, Somalia, and Sudan and of materials and technology that could lead to the development of nuclear weapons. Exports of some products are prohibited for reasons of environmental protection and compliance with international agreements (for example, Montreal Protocol) and UNSC resolutions. Some export operations are subject to control by government agencies, including the SECEX. Most operations that the SECEX examines have automatic approval through the SISCOMEX, under parameters of analysis in the system. Exports of certain goods require authorization from government agencies mainly for reasons of safety and environmental protection and compliance with international agreements. Decree No. 10,407 (2020) of June 29, 2020, as amended by Decree No. 10,752 (2021) of July 23, 2021, instituted prior authorization for the export of certain medical products essential to combat COVID-19.

Without quotas Yes.

With quotas Yes. Some products listed in SECEX Ordinance No. 72 of December 18, 2020, are subject to tariff quotas/licenses when exported to certain markets. There are export quotas for Europe and United Kingdom (poultry, beef – Hilton quota – and sugar), Colombia (milk and cars), Argentina (cars), and Paraguay (cars). There are also some export quotas for goods in MERCOSUR/Colombia and MERCOSUR/Israel Agreements (SACME – MERCOSUR Quota Management System). In the case of beef and poultry, the producers must be accredited by the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Food Supply (Ministério da Agricultura, Pecuária e Abastecimento – MAPA) and accepted by the EU or United Kingdom as safe exporters to obtain a quota. Exports of milk (HS 0402) to Colombia must obtain a MERCOSUR quota authorization from the Subsecretariat of Foreign Trade Operations (SUEXT) to benefit from the access conditions under the ACE.

Export taxes Yes. In general, exports are not subject to export tax. However, exports may be subject to taxation by executive action. Currently, only exports of cigarettes and guns are taxed.

Other export taxes

Yes. Export duties apply to the following: (1) cigarettes to the Caribbean, Central America, and South America, 150%. Effective July 26, 2021, the export duties on weapons and ammunition to the Caribbean, Central America, and South America of 150% were removed.

Controls on direct investment

Outward direct investment Yes. Investment abroad by financial institutions, pension funds, mutual funds, and insurance companies is subject to prudential rules set by their regulators. CNSP Resolution No. 321/2015 allows supervised entities to invest in foreign companies such as insurance, “capitalization,” and open pension and reinsurance companies only as permanent investment and if approved by the Superintendence of Private Insurance (Superintendência de Seguros Privados). The installation of bank branches, and corporate participation, directly or indirectly, in financial institutions or similar companies abroad, depend on prior authorization from the BCB and are subject to compliance with specific conditions by the participating institution.

Inward direct investment Yes. FDI is subject to the 0.38% IOF. There are limits on participation in certain economic activities (media). FDI in nuclear energy, hydraulic power generation, postal and telegraph services, education, and transportation of valuables is not allowed. Authorization is required for investment in (1) real estate in border areas and rural land, (2) fishing, (3) prospecting and extraction of mineral resources, (4) the hydrocarbon sector, (5) telecommunications, (6) courier services, (7) international road transportation, and (8) the financial sector. Law No. 13,097 allows FDI, including control, in the Brazilian healthcare sector.

On June 17, 2019 (Law No. 13842), Brazil eliminated the requirement for management and at least 80% of the voting shares of air transport companies to be in the hands of Brazilian nationals (Law No. 7565, Items I to III of the caput and paragraphs 1 to 4 of Articles 181, 182, 184, 185, and 186) [Annex 7 and Annex 8], hence allowing for foreign investment and foreign management in air transport.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment No.

Provisions specific to institutional investors
Yes.
Resolution CMN No. 4,993 of March 24, 2022, provides rules governing the investment of technical reserves, provisions and funds of insurance companies, capitalization companies, open private pension entities, and local reinsurers, on the application of the resources required in the country to guarantee the obligations of admitted reinsurers and the portfolio of Individual Programmed Retirement Funds. Resolution CNSP No. 432 (2021) provides rules governing investments that exceed technical provisions.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents
Yes.
The only type financial assets issued by nonresidents for insurers whose investment is permitted are: securities issued by central governments of foreign jurisdictions and their central banks, provided the external risk rating of the issue, conferred by a credit risk rating agency registered or recognized in Brazil by CVM, is equal to or higher than AA- or equivalent rating and fixed-term deposits and certificates of deposit issued or unconditionally guaranteed by financial institutions, and BDRs.

Application limits depend on the type of provisions being guaranteed by such assets.

Investments in Brazil are subject to some limits under the Law, which establishes the maximum technical provisions that may be invested in federal bonds, stocks (per type), and so forth. Assets that exceed the technical provisions are subject to a liquidity requirement (at least 20% of the risk capital in highly liquid assets). Effective January 3, 2022, the restriction where derivative transactions without an underlying operation were not allowed was lifted by Resolution CMN No. 4,948, of September 9, 2021. Previously, entities could engage in hedging operations with financial institutions or stock exchanges abroad to protect themselves against the risk of fluctuations in interest rates, exchange rates, and commodity prices.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad
Yes.
Insurance companies may invest their technical provisions in accordance with the legislation, as follows: (1) securities issued by central governments of foreign jurisdictions and their central banks, provided the external risk rating of the issue, conferred by a credit risk rating agency registered or recognized in Brazil by CVM, is equal to or higher than AA- or equivalent rating; (2) in Brazilian sovereign bonds issued abroad (Eurobonds, Global Bonds, A-bonds); (3) corporate bonds of Brazilian companies issued abroad; (4) in certificates of deposit issued or unconditionally guaranteed by...

- The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The Brunei Darussalam Central Bank (BDCB) issues Brunei dollars and manages the Currency Fund, which is used to back up the currency in circulation. Under the Currency Interchangeability Agreement (CIA), signed in 1967, which remains in effect between the BDCB and the Monetary Authority of Singapore, the monetary authorities agree to the mutual exchange of their currency at par without charge. The monetary authorities and banks must accept each other’s currency at par, and the currencies are customary tender in both countries.

- Excess currency is repatriated regularly, with the cost borne by the currency-issuing authority. The BDCB must ensure that reserves in... the Currency Fund cover at least 100% of the currency in circulation as required under the Currency Order, 2004, as amended by the Currency and Monetary (Amendment) Order, 2010. The BDCB publishes data on the reserves used to cover the currency in circulation in its annual report.

Official exchange rate

The Brunei dollar exchange rate is pegged at S$1 per Brunei dollar. This rate applies to CB transactions and is used for accounting and valuation purposes. Given the peg to the Singapore dollar, the Brunei dollar exchange rate in relation to other currency follows closely that of the Singapore dollar. The BDCB administers the CIA between Brunei Darussalam and Singapore on behalf of the Brunei government.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.  The Brunei Association of Banks provides indicative daily buying and selling rates to its members for transfers/remittances in 15 other currencies on the basis of the interbank quotes for these foreign currencies against Singapore dollars. Customers are encouraged to liaise with their respective banks for competitive rates should they want to deal in this foreign exchange as rates fluctuate from time to time.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  As of December 31, 2021, there were 7 banks (6 conventional and 1 Islamic), 18 remittance companies, and 24 money changers that were authorized to conduct foreign exchange transactions (including four hotels with conditional license). Money-changing businesses:

- do not conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB;
- do not maintain accounts abroad;
- are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; and are not allowed to make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.
As for remittance businesses, foreign exchange transactions are not conducted directly with the CB. Remittance business can maintain accounts abroad. Remittance business operations are mainly focused on transmitting funds abroad. The purchase and sale of banknotes are not part of their operations.

Operated by the central bank: Yes. The BDCB does not control or direct any foreign exchange activity with banks, except for the Singapore dollar activity.

Foreign exchange standing facility: Yes. The BDCB stands ready to buy and sell Singapore dollars for Brunei dollars at the official rate without a bid-ask spread or commission. The BDCB deals only in Singapore dollars and does not quote rates for other currency. The BDCB deals directly with the government.

Allocation: No.
Auction: No.
Fixing: No.

Interbank market: Yes. The foreign exchange market is an interbank market between the licensed banks operating in Brunei Darussalam. All licensed banks are foreign exchange ADs by virtue of their banking license. The BDCB does not intervene directly in interbank foreign exchange operations; however, it monitors banks’ foreign exchange positions. Banks have their own internal policies on foreign currencies’ exposure. There are 7 licensed banks.

Over the counter: Yes.
Brokerage: No.
Market making: No.

Forward exchange market: Yes. There is no forward market for foreign exchange in Brunei Darussalam. However, as a result of the CIA, foreign exchange risk may be hedged in Singapore dollars through the use of facilities available in Singapore, including (1) foreign currency futures and options traded on the Singapore International Monetary Exchange, (2) OTC forward transactions arranged by banks in Singapore, and (3) transactions on the short-term foreign exchange swap market of banks in the Singapore money market.

Official cover of forward operations: No.

Abroad by banks

Section 37 of the Banking Order of 2006 and the Islamic Banking Order of 2008 prohibit banks from acquiring or holding share capital—or otherwise having an interest—in a financial, commercial, agricultural, industrial, or other type of company that in the aggregate exceeds 10%, or any other percentage the authorities set, of the bank’s capital funds.

Section 38 of the Banking Order of 2006 does not allow banks to acquire or hold more than 20% of the capital of any other company without prior approval by BDCB.

In banks by nonresidents

Section 37 of the Banking Order of 2006 and the Islamic Banking Order of 2008 prohibit banks from acquiring or holding share capital—or otherwise having an interest—in a financial, commercial, agricultural, industrial, or other type of company that in the aggregate exceeds 10%, or any other percentage the authorities set, of the bank’s capital funds. This limit applies to both domestic and foreign equity holdings.

Investment firms and collective investment funds are regulated by BDCB under the Securities Markets Order, 2013, and the Securities Markets Regulations, 2015 (“SMR”). Chapter XIII (Public Collective Investment Scheme), Division III (Investment and Borrowing Powers), states certain limitations. For example, Regulation No. 165(1)(c), SMR states that other collective investment schemes may not have more than 20% of their value in the units of collective investment schemes. Regulation No. 166, SMR states that the total exposure of a public collective investment scheme to derivatives may not exceed the net asset value of the public collective investment scheme property. Regarding stock lending and borrowing, Regulation No. 167(2), SMR requires that the operator of a public investment scheme ensures that the value of any collateral for the stock lending arrangement is at all times at least equal to the value of the securities transferred. Regarding borrowing restrictions, Regulation No. 168(2), SMR states that the operator of a public collective investment scheme must ensure, except in the case of a property collective investment scheme, that the public collective investment scheme’s borrowing does not, on any day, exceed 20% of the net asset value of the public collective investment scheme property and must take reasonable care to ensure that arrangements are in place that enable borrowings to be repaid to ensure such compliance.

- Other security restrictions: Yes.

Bulgaria maintains exchange restrictions and restrictive measures in accordance with UNSC resolutions and decisions and regulations of the EC, adopted with the aim of preserving peace and the rule of law, safeguarding human rights, preventing conflicts, and strengthening national and international security.

Detailed information on sanctions imposed by the UNSC and the EC can be found on the Internet page of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, with reference to the EU Sanctions Map.

Bulgaria implements the following European Regulations and Directives for the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purposes of money laundering or terrorism financing and regarding the information accompanying transfers of funds:

Effective March 12, 2021, the EC decided to revoke the EU framework for sanctions against persons identified as responsible for the misappropriation of Egyptian state funds, and, to that effect, to lift the restrictive measures currently in force against nine Egyptian individuals. Restrictive measures were initially adopted on February 21, 2011.

There are arrangements with Cambodia, Guinea, the DPRK, and Lao P.D.R. Bulgaria has outstanding transferable ruble accounts with Cuba. Bulgaria is a member of the EU.

There is an inactive agreement with Mozambique.

Foreign exchange control is exercised by the MOF, BNB, Ministry of Economy, NRA, customs administration, and postal authorities.

Extraction, processing, and trade of precious metals and gemstones and items containing them or made of them by occupation may be carried out by: (1) merchants registered under the Commerce Act or under the legislation of an EU Member State or of another State which is a party to the Agreement on the EEA, as well as legal persons established on the basis of a legal act. The activity of the merchant or the business of the legal person must include carrying out activities with precious metals and gemstones and items containing them or made of them by occupation and (2) companies under the Obligations and Contracts Act, if they engage in such activities by occupation and are entered in the public register of the persons carrying out activities with precious metals and gemstones and items containing them.

Persons carrying out extraction, processing, and trade of precious metals must be registered with the Ministry of Economy and Industry within 14 days prior to commencing activities. The Minister of Economy and Industry or an authorized official thereby issues a certificate of the registration. The register which is maintained by registration officials, appointed by an order of the Minister of Economy and Industry in electronic format, is publicly available on the website of the Ministry of Economy and Industry.

Precious metals and stones or products thereof may be freely taken across the border in unlimited amounts as per an amendment of the Currency Act of December 6, 2011. According to Article 4 of Ordinance No. H-1 from February 1, 2012, the transfer across the border of precious metals and precious stones in unprocessed, semi-processed, and processed form, as well as products with and from them, may not be declared to the following amounts: (1) gold and platinum in raw and semi-processed form and coins in total until 37 grams irrespective of the content of gold or platinum; (2) jewelry and accessories of gold or platinum alloys in total up to 60 grams irrespective of the content of gold or platinum; (3) silver in raw and semi-processed form and coins, as well as jewelry and accessories from silver alloys, totaling up to 300 grams regardless of the silver content; and (4) precious stones incorporated in the articles referred to in Items 2 and 3.

Transfer across the border of the country of precious metals and precious stones and articles with and from them above the amounts specified in Article 4 of Ordinance No. H-1 from February 1, 2012, as well as the transport in powder or other type of articles with and from precious metals and precious stones must be declared to customs. A declaration (single administrative document) is required if the precious metals and stones or products thereof are being transported for commercial purposes; these are treated as commercial goods irrespective of the amount. Precious metals and stones or products thereof exceeding the prescribed amount transported to or from another EU member must be declared to customs on demand. Transportation across borders of precious metals and stones and products thereof by mail is prohibited, except for parcels with declared value. Importation and exportation of raw diamonds are subject to the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme.

  Cash amounting to €10,000 or more in leva or another currency taken across the border or from another EU member must be declared to customs on demand. Persons may export domestic or foreign currency less than the equivalent of €10,000 to a third country without a customs declaration; larger amounts must be declared. Persons may export cash exceeding lev 30,000 or its equivalent to a third country only on presentation of a certificate from the appropriate directorate of the NRA of payment of taxes or exemption.

  When cash in the amount of BGN 30,000 or more or their equivalent in another currency is carried across the border of the country to a third country, the customs authorities must request through official channels information concerning the existence or non-existence of liabilities (under Article 87, Paragraph 11, of the Tax and Social Insurance Procedure Code with regard to the person concerned). Where the information provided ex officio contains data of existence of public liabilities in excess of BGN 5,000, the customs authorities do not permit such cash to be carried across the border (Paragraph 2 of Article 11a of the Currency Law, supplemented in 2020).

  Foreign natural persons who export cash that does not exceed what they previously imported and declared are exempt and need only declare the type and amount of exported funds.

  Exportation of domestic banknotes by mail is prohibited, except for parcels with declared value. Parcels to a third country with banknotes or cash equal to or exceeding €10,000 require a declaration.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures | Yes. Bulgaria applies the EU import licensing system, based on the premise that import licenses are not required except for specific products subject to quantitative restrictions, safeguard measures, or import monitoring and surveillance. The basic regulations setting up the rules for imposition of safeguard measures are Regulation (EU) No. 2015/755 of the European Parliament and of the Council of April 29, 2015, on common rules for imports from certain third countries and Regulation (EU) No. 2015/478 of the European Parliament and of the Council of March 11, 2015, on common rules for imports (codified version of Regulation No. 260/2009). By Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159, the European Commission imposed a definitive safeguard measure, which consists of tariff-rate quotas on imports into EU of certain steel products. (This Regulation entered into force February 2, 2019.) Where tariff quotas are exhausted, a safeguard duty at the rate of 25% is applied on the imports of the steel products in the scope of the Regulation No. 2019/159 of February 2, 2019.

After the second review investigation carried out by the European Commission, the Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2020/894 of June 29, 2020, amending Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 imposing definitive safeguard measures against imports of certain steel products is in force.

Agricultural imports are licensed for statistical purposes under an automatic licensing system. Import licenses require lodging a security and are valid in all EU member countries. Some EU agricultural tariff quotas are subject to import licensing. Licenses may be issued on a pro rata or historical basis or related to quotas of exporting countries. Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013 requires licensing of certain agricultural imports, which are listed in Annex, Part I, of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2016/1237 and include cereals, rice, sugar, olive oil, flax and hemp, fruits and vegetables, processed fruits and vegetables, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pork, eggs, poultry, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. Import licenses are issued by the relevant authority on request. Forest Law Enforcement, Governance, and Trade voluntary partnership agreements with the EU are subject to licensing. Under these agreements, timber-producing countries agree to verify the legality of their shipments of timber and timber products to the EU. Forest Law Enforcement, Governance, and Trade voluntary partnership agreements were signed with Cameroon (2011), the Central African Republic (2012), the Democratic Republic of the Congo (2013), Ghana (2010), Indonesia (2014), Liberia (2013), and Vietnam (2019). Lately, Voluntary Partnership Agreement between the EU and the Republic of Honduras on forest law enforcement, governance, and trade in timber products to the EU was signed on February 23, 2021, and effective September 1, 2022. Negotiations are ongoing with Côte d’Ivoire, Gabon, Guyana, Laos, Malaysia, and Thailand.

Bulgaria applies all EU trade policies. The EU acquis includes a number of legal provisions that engage customs to carry out checks in the context of the enforcement of many different policies aiming at the safety and security of the EU. In accordance with Articles 134 and 267 of Regulation (EU) No. 952/2013 (Union Customs Code), prohibitions or restrictions may be imposed on imports, exports, or goods in transit when they are justified on grounds of:

- public morality, public policy, or public security;
- the protection of health and life of humans, animals, or plants;
- the protection of the environment;
- the protection of national treasures possessing artistic, historic, or archaeological value; and
- the protection of industrial and commercial property.

The negative list is available on the EC website.

Products covered by Community legislation with specific provisions relating to border controls are not subject to import controls described in Articles 27 to 29 of Regulation (EC) No. 765/2008 according to Article 15(5) of Regulation (EC) No. 765/2008.

Bulgaria applies all EU trade policies. Import prohibitions and surveillance are maintained on security, technical, sanitary, phytosanitary, environmental, and other grounds. The EU maintains tariff-rate quotas and preferential regimes on some agricultural products that require licenses: cereals (wheat, barley, maize, and rice), sugar (sugar and sugarcane), olive oil, fruits and vegetables (garlic), processed fruits and vegetables (preserved mushrooms), beef and veal (including meat and live animals), milk and milk products, pork (including meat and live animals), eggs, and poultry. On October 12, 2017, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1836 of October 10, 2017, amending Regulation (EU) 2017/1509 concerning restrictive measures against the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea prohibited to import, purchase or transfer, directly or indirectly, textiles from the DPRK, whether or not originating in the DPRK.

seeds other than hybrids; manioc, arrowroot, salep, Jerusalem artichokes, sweet potatoes and similar roots, and tubers with high starch or inulin content, fresh, chilled, frozen, dried, sliced, or in pellets; sago pith; and sweet potatoes for human consumption.

Other nontariff measures

Import surveillance applies to the following agricultural products: rice, flax and hemp, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. These products are subject to automatic licensing for statistical purposes and to maintain better control over their origin. The EU licenses a range of firearms and ammunition. Imported food must comply with the requirements of EU food and animal health laws, conditions recognized by the EU as equivalent to these requirements, or requirements contained in specific agreements. The EU has sanitary and phytosanitary agreements with Andorra, Canada, Chile, EFTA, the Faeroe Islands, Liechtenstein, Mexico, New Zealand, San Marino, Switzerland, and the United States of America. Imports of live animals and animal products are prohibited except from previously approved areas, which are on the Commission’s relevant “third country list.” Products and live animals generally may be imported only from countries on the approved third country import list for that product or animal species. Products of animal origin usually must be from establishments approved for exportation to the EU. In October 2010, the EU adopted legislation that prohibits the sale of illegally harvested timber and timber products in the EU – Regulation No. 995/2010. Under Regulation No. 995/2010, operators who sell domestically produced or imported timber and timber products in the EU for the first time must exercise due diligence to ensure that such products do not contain illegally timber harvested. Due diligence systems involve a risk management exercise based on information and criteria in the regulation. Anyone trading in timber and timber products within the EU, except first-time participants in the EU market, must keep records of their suppliers and customers. Timber and timber products with valid Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade or CITES licenses are considered to be in compliance. Effective January 1, 2021, a new law entered into full force across the EU – the Conflict Minerals Regulation – Regulation (EU) No. 2017/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 17, 2017, laying down supply chain due diligence obligations for Union importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold originating from conflict-affected and high-risk areas. It aims to help stem the trade in four minerals – tin, tantalum, tungsten, and gold – which sometimes finance armed conflict or are mined using forced labor.

Imports of the following items are prohibited in accordance with UN or EU regulations: antipersonnel mines, torture equipment, and certain products from the Islamic Republic of Iran, the DPRK, and Syria.

concerning trade in certain goods which could be used for capital punishment, torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment (codified version of Regulation No. 1236/2005), Council Regulation (EU) No. 692/2014 (as amended) restricts imports into the EU of goods from Crimea or Sevastopol, in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol.

Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1030 effective June 24, 2021, amending Regulation (EC) No. 765/2006 concerning restrictive measures in respect of Belarus prohibit the import petroleum products as listed in Annex VII, import, purchase or transfer, directly or indirectly, potassium chloride ("potash") products as listed in Annex VIII from Belarus, whether or not originating in Belarus. Furthermore, restrictions on access to Union capital markets should be imposed in relation to the Belarusian Government, as well as Belarusian state-owned financial institutions and entities. A prohibition should also be introduced on providing insurance and re-insurance to the Belarusian Government and Belarusian public bodies and agencies.

Council Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1509 of August 30, 2017, concerning restrictive measures against the DPRK and repealing Regulation (EC) No. 329/2007 introduced restrictions on the import and export of certain goods, services, and technology which could contribute to the DPRK’s nuclear-related, ballistic missile-related, or other weapons of mass destruction-related programs, luxury goods embargo.

Bulgaria applies import tariffs according to the Community Customs Code for trade with countries outside the EU and does not levy tariffs on trade within the EU. Under the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, common customs tariff duties are set by the European Parliament and the Council or by the Council based on a proposal from the Commission. The basic customs legislation is the EU Customs Code and its implementing regulation: Council Regulation (EEC) No. 2913/92, October 12, 1992, establishing the Community Customs Code (OJ L 302, October 19, 1992), applied as of January 1, 1994, and Commission Regulation (EEC) No. 2454/93, July 2, 1993, establishing Provisions for the Implementation of the Common Customs, as amended. The EU has exclusive authority in customs matters. Customs procedures, as defined in EU legislation, are harmonized and monitored at the EU level. The tariff nomenclature, known as the Combined Nomenclature, is based on the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS). The 2013 tariff reflects the fourth amendment to the HS (HS 2007). The EU has harmonized the structure and established a number of minimum rates for excise duties – indirect taxes on the consumption or use of certain products – on alcohol, tobacco, and energy. The EU maintains a public online database that integrates tariff rates and other measures, including quantitative restrictions and contingency measures applied on imports (and exports) – known as TARIC (Integrated Tariff of the European Communities).

Export licenses  Yes. Effective July 13, 2021, the rules concerning obligation for export licenses issued for husked (brown) rice and for semi-milled or wholly milled rice, whether or not polished or glazed are abolished by Regulation (EU) 2021/1467 of July 6, 2021.

Without quotas  Yes. Bulgaria has adopted EU policies for export licenses. An export authorization or license is required for cultural goods and certain agricultural products and for the control of exports of dual-use items and technology. Under Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013, the Commission may require an export license for one or more products from the following categories: cereals, rice, sugar, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pig meat, eggs, and poultry meat. Article 2(2) of Regulation No. 1237/2016 requires a license for exports of products listed in Part II of the Annex and the following Union products referred to in Part II of the Annex to be exported:
(1) products that are under the customs procedure of inward processing;
(2) products that are basic products as listed in Annex III to Regulation (EU) No. 510/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council and that are under the customs procedure of outward processing;
(3) products that are subject to the recovery or remission of the amount of import or export duty as set out in Chapter 3 of Title III of Regulation (EU) No. 952/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council in respect of which a final decision has not yet been taken.
Export licenses are issued by the relevant authorities at the request of economic operators.

There are quantitative restrictions and controls on exports for foreign policy or national security reasons. These follow EU common rules governing exports of military technology and equipment, as defined in Council Common Position (Common Foreign Security Policy (CFSP)) No. 2008/944, which aims to standardize members’ arms export policies to meet agreed minimum standards. Exports of dual-use items are controlled at the EU level. Effective September 9, 2021, the EU’s dual-use export control system in Regulation (EU) No. 2021/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 20, 2021, entered into force, setting up a Union regime for the control of exports, brokering, technical assistance, transit, and transfer of dual-use items (recast). It defines dual-use items as “items, including software and technology, which can be used for both civil and military purposes, and includes items which can be used for the design, development, production or use of nuclear, chemical or biological weapons or their means of delivery, including all items which can be used for both non-explosive uses and assisting in any way in the manufacture of nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices.” Bulgaria has imposed some restrictive measure on some countries for security reasons.

Effective January 31, 2021, an export authorization is required for the export of vaccines against SARS-related coronaviruses. This requirement also covers active substances including master and working cell banks used for the manufacture of such vaccines. Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1728 of September 30, 2021, prolonged the implementation of this measure until December 31, 2021.
In line with its CFSP obligations, Bulgaria has imposed restrictive measures on some countries for security reasons.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Yes.

The Law on Limitation of Cash Payments aims to limit cash payments. According to the law, payments in Bulgaria may be made only through transfers or payments on account if (1) the amount is equal to or exceeds lev 10,000; (2) the amount is less than lev 10,000 but may be considered as part of a linked payment transaction on the same grounds whose total value is equal to or exceeds 10,000 lev; or (3) the provisions of the law are applicable also to foreign currency payments equal to or exceeding lev 10,000. The provisions do not apply to (1) withdrawals or cash payments from the holder’s own accounts; (2) withdrawals or cash payments from accounts of family members, direct relatives, and fully or partially legally disabled individuals; (3) cash transactions by foreign exchange bureaus; (4) banknote and coin operations with the CB; (5) exchanges by banks of damaged Bulgarian banknotes and coins; (6) payment of wages; and (7) payments of deposits guaranteed as defined by the Law on Bank Deposits Guarantee.

The amendments to the Law on Limitation of Cash Payments on April 10, 2018, create a new possibility of collecting revenues by means of card payments to the budget organizations and their subordinate budget authors by delegation serviced by the BNB. In this way, these budget organizations can optimize the management of their revenues as the amounts directly come to the account with the BNB, designated for the purpose. In this way, cashless payments in the public sector are optimized, and the costs for servicing cash payments are reduced.

With regard to natural and legal persons, this amendment to the Law creates one more free and convenient way for them to pay their obligations to the budgets of these budget organizations.

Article 4, Paragraph 8, of the Law expressly says that natural and legal persons pay no bank charges or fees for making card payments to budget organizations.

Differentiated minimum required reserves (MRRs) rates by currency have not been imposed in the country (no currency differentiation).

Differentiated MRRs rates for liabilities to nonresidents compared with domestic liabilities (residency differentiation) are currently active in the country. According to Article 3 of Ordinance No. 21 on the MRRs maintained with the BNB by banks, the MRRs rate on liabilities to nonresidents is lower (5%) than for the same type of liabilities to residents (10%).

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Insurance companies Yes.

The Solvency II Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 transposed into the Bulgarian Insurance Code introduces prudential requirements tailored to the specific risks which each insurer bears. Those prudential requirements are not restrictions and apply equally to all insurers. The directive requires insurance companies to hold capital in relation to their risk profiles to guarantee that they have enough financial resources to withstand financial difficulties. Also, the Insurance companies under the scope of the Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market of the EU and EEA) have to put in place an adequate and transparent governance system and conduct their own risk and solvency assessment on a regular basis. These insurers should invest its assets in accordance with prudent person principle (Article 124 of the Insurance Code). There are no restrictions on investing in financial instruments issued by nonresidents for insurance undertakings under the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market).

Chapter XVII, Articles 198–207, of the Insurance Code defines the technical reserves requirements and the provisional fund of an insurer excluded from the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers without a right of access to the market of the EU and EEA). The general rules for diversification, the currency conformity rules, and special rules for the cover of reserves for the investment funds of life insurance companies apply. The requirement of Article 198 is not a restriction, because it is a general rule applicable equally to all insurers that fulfill the requirements of Part IV of the Insurance Code. Chapter XVIII, Article 208, of the Insurance Code and the following defines own funds; the solvency margins, and guarantee capital, which applies only to the insurers without a right of access to the common market. Different types of assets may cover technical reserves of insurance companies without a right of access to the common market (Article 200 of the Insurance Code). The requirement of Articles 208 and 200 is not restrictions, because they are general rules applicable to all insurers equally. There are no restrictions on investing technical reserves in financial instruments issued by nonresidents. Investments to cover technical provisions are securities admitted for trading on a regulated market or a multilateral trading facility (MTF) in the Republic of Bulgaria or in another Member State, as well as shares, qualified bonds, and other qualified debt securities, admitted for trade on internationally recognized and liquid regulated markets or multilateral trading facilities in a third state as it is described in Article 200, Paragraph 1, p. 1, of the Insurance Code. There are other assets that may cover the technical provisions of the insurers without a right to access of the common market described in Article 200 of the Insurance Code. All assets must be invested in compliance with the prudent person principle. According to the rules on diversification, the technical provisions can be invested: (1) up to 20% in real estate, but not more than 10% in a single property or in a group of properties that may be regarded as one investment because of their location; (2) up to 80% in securities under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Items 1 and 3, but not more than 30% in assets other than qualified bonds and other qualified debt securities; (3) without any restriction whatsoever in assets under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (4) up to 5% in securities of a single issuer, where this restriction may not apply to assets specified in Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (5) up to 50% in bank deposits, but not more than 25% of the gross amount with one bank; and (6) up to 3% in cash in hand and under current accounts.

Territorial distribution rules stipulate that the technical reserves must be covered by assets located on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or on the territory of a member state. By permission of the Commission, issued in each specific case, technical reserves may also be covered by assets, located within the territory of a third country.

The requirement for territorial distribution of assets under Article 205, Paragraph 1, may not apply to cases where the technical reserves are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers in... the proportion set under Article 202.
The assets’ location according to Article 205, Paragraph 1, must be:
(1) For ownership of real estate – the real estate’s location;
(2) For securities:
   (a) the issuing enterprise’s seat of business;
   (b) the bank’s seat of business – in case the securities are guaranteed by a bank;
   (c) the Depository’s seat of business – in the case of dematerialized securities;
(3) For deposits – the place where the deposit contract has been concluded;
(4) For any other receivables – the debtor’s seat of business;
(5) For shares in investment funds – the location of assets included in the fund with a predominant share, fixed pursuant to the terms and conditions under Items 1–4.

Requirements for professional qualification and reliability – Article 80(7) stipulates that each member of a management or control body of an insurer or of a reinsurer, respectively, as well as each person authorized to manage and/or represent it must hold a permit for long-term residence in the Republic of Bulgaria if he is a person from a third country.

In terms of granting consent in the case of a transfer of an insurance portfolio within the EU, the FSC must refuse to grant consent, when insurance contracts, under which risks located in the Republic of Bulgaria are covered, are transferred to:
(1) a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in another member state;
(2) an insurer from a member state which does not have the right to cover risks on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria.

In terms of certification of the capital solvency requirement of an insurer with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria on transfer of insurance portfolio by an insurer from a third country established in a member state through a branch – the FSC must issue a document, certifying that, following the transfer, the undertaking insurer will have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement.

The FSC must refuse to issue such certificate, if: (1) following the transfer, the undertaking insurer or the branch of an insurer from a third country registered in the Republic of Bulgaria, respectively, will not have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement and therefore the interest of the insured person is jeopardized or (2), as a result of the transfer, a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria will undertake a portfolio of contracts covering risks located in other member states.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not participate in procedures for obtaining a license to perform insurance or reinsurance activity under the Insurance Code or participation in a company carrying out such activity, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the Insurance Code.

There are no limits on securities and on investment portfolio held abroad. The assets of the insurers must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of undertakings, or market, and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole.

For small insurers without a right of access to the common market, the maximum amount may be 20% in case an insurer invests technical reserves in debt securities issued by a credit institution having its seat of business in a member state, subject to special supervision, for the purpose of protecting the holders of such securities. Furthermore, the technical provisions of such insurers must be covered by assets situated in the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or in the territory of a Member State. With a permission by the FSC granted on a case-by-case basis, the technical provisions may also be covered by assets situated in the territory of a third country. The requirement for territorial distribution of the assets does not apply to cases where the technical provisions are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers. Freedom of investment is regulated in Article 196 of the Insurance Code, and it is relevant to the insurers with a right to access of the common market:

1. The insurer or the reinsurer, respectively, may not be placed under an obligation to invest in specific asset categories.
2. The investment decision of the insurer or reinsurer or of the persons managing the investment operations may not be subject to a preliminary approval or to a notification procedure.
3. The Commission may, by an ordinance, limit the assets or the benchmark values, with which the insurance policies related to investment funds are to be associated.

Location of the assets and prohibition to pledge assets are regulated in Article 197 of the Insurance Code: The assets for covering the technical reserves as regards risk located within the boundaries of the EU may be located in any member state, as well as in a third state. There are no limits on securities and on investment portfolio held abroad. There are no restrictions on investing technical reserves in financial instruments issued by nonresidents. The only limit is on the eligibility of those assets to cover the technical provisions of an insurer.

However, for an insurer without a right of access to the common market (small insurers), the technical provisions must be covered by assets situated in the territory of Republic of Bulgaria or in the territory of a Member State. With a permission by the FSC granted on a case-by-case basis, the technical provisions may also be covered by assets situated in the territory of a third country. The requirement for territorial distribution of the assets does not apply to cases where the technical provisions are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers. This provision applies only for small insurers without a right of access to the market of the EU and EEA.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Yes.

Assets covering technical reserves must be in the same currency as the liabilities ensuing from contracts under which the technical reserves were set up. Currency matching is required when the assets in any one currency exceed 7% of the assets in the other currencies. Up to 20% of the total amount of technical reserves may be covered by assets in a currency other than the one in which they were set up, provided the total amount of assets for cover of technical reserves in all currencies is at least equal to the total amount of liabilities in all currencies. If the technical reserves were set up in leva, euros, or another currency of an EU member, the assets for their cover may be in euros (Article 206 of the Insurance Code).

Pension funds

Yes.

Controls specific to pension funds in Bulgaria are provided in the SIC. Chapter 14 on Assets and Investments and Chapter 25 on Investments contain the requirements for the investment of mandatory and voluntary pension funds, respectively. The specialized reserve requirements are laid down in Chapter 16 of the SIC, as well as...
as in Article 213 with regard to voluntary pension funds only. In addition, further detailed requirements on the reserves are stipulated in Ordinance number 19 of December 8, 2004, on pension reserves and reserves for guaranteeing the payment of lifelong pensions.

With respect to investing funds of the supplementary mandatory pension funds, there are specific restrictions with regard to investment in third countries. These restrictions are valid for:

- debt securities issued, or guaranteed by a third country designated by an ordinance of the FSC, the obligations which constitute sovereign debt, or are issued by a third country central bank and are admitted to trading on a regulated market in a Member State or on an official stock exchange market, or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized, and publicly available;
- bonds issued by a local authority of a third country determined by an ordinance of the FSC, in which case the bonds must have an investment credit rating and be admitted to trading on a regulated market in a Member State or on an official stock exchange market, or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available;
- corporate bonds admitted to trading on an official market on a stock exchange or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available, whereas the bonds must have an investment credit rating;
- shares, other than shares of a collective investment undertaking, as well as rights or warrants on them traded on an official stock exchange market or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available, whereas the shares must be included in the indices of these markets.

According Article 176, Paragraph 2, item 14, of SIC, the supplementary mandatory pension funds cannot invest in investment property unless it is located in EU member state. The detailed requirements for the third country investing described above, as well as the full list of applicable third countries, are stipulated in Ordinance number 29 of July 12, 2006, on the minimum level of credit ratings of banks and on the determination of countries, international financial organizations, markets, and indices of these markets pursuant to Article 176, Paragraph 2, of the SIC.

Moreover, some limits apply to the diversification of supplementary pension funds’ investment portfolios (Articles 177a, 178, and 251 of the SIC). These limitations are the same for investments in both local and foreign securities.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not, directly and/or indirectly, participate in procedures for obtaining a license for carrying out the activity as a company for additional social security under the SIC or participation in such a company, where the percentage of contribution represents 10% or more than 10% of the capital of the company.

The activity of supplementary pension insurance can be carried out only by pension insurance companies licensed by the FSC (Article 121 and Article 353 of the SIC). Foreign companies are not allowed to provide services except for institutions for occupational retirement provision based in the EU and the EEA (Article 120a, Article 229d, and Article 353 of the SIC).

<td>The legal framework does not contain any specific limits in this regard. No more than 20% of the assets of a supplementary mandatory pension insurance fund may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 178, Paragraph 17, of the SIC). No more than 30% of the assets of a supplementary voluntary retirement insurance fund or of a fund for supplementary voluntary pension insurance with occupational schemes, as appropriate, may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 251, Paragraph 14, of the SIC). The Law on Collective Investment Schemes (CISs) and other collective investments applies as of 2011. CIS investment policy requirements in Chapter 6 outline the legal obligations regarding the investment policy of CISs. Detailed rules are given in Ordinance No. 44, which incorporates Directive (EC) Nos. 2010/43 and 2010/44. In 2013, the AIFMD was transposed in Part III, Title 2, of the Law on CISs and other collective investments, and in Part III, Title 1, a new type of investment fund was introduced – the national investment fund. National investment fund investment policy requirements are mentioned in Article 187. Investments in local and foreign securities are treated the same. In terms of the investment firms, Bulgaria fully transposed the EU framework on markets in financial instruments, which consists of Directive (EU) No. 2014/65 and Regulation No. 2014/600. In terms of capital requirements, Bulgaria complies with the EU rules under capital requirements. According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, there are prohibitions for companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby directly and/or indirectly to participate in procedures for obtaining a license for providing services or carrying out activities under the Markets in Financial Instruments Act or participation in a company that has been licensed under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the said Act, or participate in procedures for obtaining a license, permit, or in a registration procedure under the CISs and Other Undertakings for Collective Investment Act or participation in a company that owns a license, permit, or is registered under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of that Act. ## Exchange Arrangement

| Currency | Yes. The currency of Burkina Faso is the CFA franc (XOF). |
| Other legal tender | No. |

Exchange rate structure

- Unitary: Yes.
- Dual
- Multiple

Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Conventional peg: Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Burkina Faso participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, to replace the agreement dated December 4, 1973. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility.

- Stabilized arrangement
- Crawling peg
The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rates for other currencies are derived from the rate for the currency concerned in foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The operational target of price stability is defined as an annual inflation rate in the WAEMU that falls within a band of ±1% around a central rate of 2%. The Harmonized CPI is the benchmark rate to measure inflation.

Yes.  The commission rate charged on transfers to all countries that are not members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes.  Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU went into force November 10, 2015.

Spot exchange market

Yes.  Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) continuously post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post a notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions based on the requestor’s identity document. Banks and licensed exchange dealers are intermediaries authorized by the minister responsible for finance to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. As of December 31, 2021, there were 15 active banks, including 2 branches, and 171 authorized exchange bureaus operating in Burkina Faso. They may conduct transactions in foreign currencies, except euros with the BCEAO. Licensed exchange houses may not make transfers or payment in foreign currency with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister responsible for finance, with the consent of the BCEAO.

In their operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.

Operated by the central bank | Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility | Yes.

The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and on payments made by banks and financial institutions.

Allocation | No.
Auction | No.
Fixing | No.

Interbank market | Yes.

Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2021, 13 banks participated in the domestic currency interbank market in the common currency, the CFAF. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.

Over the counter | Yes.
Brokerage | No.
Market making | No.

Forward exchange market | Yes.

Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps.

Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur in respect of derivatives instruments.
traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.

A multilateral clearing agreement exists in the context of the WAMA among the countries of the WAEMU and other ECOWAS countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone). Payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be effected under the clearing arrangements. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission.

All residents of WAEMU countries are treated as residents of Burkina Faso for the purposes of determining the foreign assets of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export proceeds, the issuance and marketing of securities, imports and exports of gold, investment and borrowing operations, and the physical exportation of payment instruments and securities by postal package or ordinary mail.

However, for statistical purposes related to the balance of payments, all countries other than Burkina Faso are considered foreign countries. In addition, all transfer operations with the rest of the world must be performed through an authorized intermediary bank, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.

Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.

Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.

The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation.
demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler’s checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler’s checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports
- Yes.

Domestic currency
- Yes.

Residents and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency from other WAEMU areas. However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.

Foreign currency
- No.

Residents and nonresident travelers may freely import CFA area banknotes denominated in foreign currencies. If such means of payment exceed the equivalent of CFAF 5 million, they must be declared to customs. Resident travelers are required to surrender foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of their arrival in the national territory.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
- Yes.

Held domestically
- Yes.

Approval required
- Yes.

Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Held abroad
- Yes.

Approval required
- Yes.

Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.

Surrender requirements
- Yes.

Surrender to the central bank
- Yes. ADs must immediately surrender residents of the WAEMU zone’s proceeds from invisible transactions to the BCEAO. At the request of the BCEAO, ADs must sell to it, in exchange for currency that it issues, all their holdings in euros or other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers
- Yes. Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the payment due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Burkina Faso, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 500,000.

Restrictions on use of funds
- No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions
- Yes. Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.

Repatriation requirements

requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers

Yes. Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents’ investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.

Controls on capital and money market instruments

Yes. RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) the issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

On capital market securities

Yes. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature

Yes. Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to prior declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No. The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from the RCPSFM, with authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature are as follows.

Bonds or other debt securities

Yes.
The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: No. These purchases are subject to prior declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes. The issuance of securities and sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the minister responsible for finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Purchase abroad by residents: Yes. The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM.

Sale or issue abroad by residents: No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. The issuance by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone of securities constituting a loan must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes.

On money market instruments: Yes. The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: No. These purchases are subject to prior declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes. The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM, with authorization of the BCEAO as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. </table> | Purchase abroad by residents       | Yes. | These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.

Controls on credit operations

Yes. Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister responsible for finance.

Commercial credits

Yes. There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).

To residents from nonresidents

No. There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.

Financial credits

Yes. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the minister responsible for finance and substantiated by documentation.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the minister responsible for finance and substantiated by documentation.

To residents from nonresidents

No. There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries’ foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

Yes. The regulations governing financial credits apply.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to approval by the minister of finance. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to approval by the minister of finance and the submission of supporting documents.

To residents from nonresidents

No. These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered direct investments and therefore require prior declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on direct investment

Yes. Investment that implies control of a company or enterprise is considered direct investment. Mere participation is not considered direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.

Outward direct investment

Yes. All investments abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of Burkina Faso and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in Burkina Faso. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

Inward direct investment

Yes. FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

No. The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on real estate transactions

Yes.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. These purchases require authorization by the minister of finance.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No. Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are permitted. These require declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes.

Sale locally by nonresidents

No. Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on personal capital transactions

Yes. Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the minister of finance.

Loans

Yes. The regulations governing securities and investments apply.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. These transactions require authorization by the minister of finance. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.

To residents from nonresidents

Yes. These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies

Yes. Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to authorization by the MOF and the BCEAO. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents

No. These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants

Yes. Immigrants with resident status must obtain approval from the minister responsible for finance to settle debts incurred abroad when they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.

Transfer of assets

Yes.

Transfer abroad by emigrants

Yes. These operations require authorization by the minister of finance if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.

Transfer into the country by immigrants

Yes. Foreign accounts of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, they may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require approval by the minister responsible for finance.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings

No. These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes. The Law on Money Laundering defines the legal framework relative to money laundering in Burkina Faso, to prevent the use of the WAEMU’s economic, financial, and banking channels for laundering money or other illicitly obtained assets (Article 4). The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAEMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 set the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of WAEMU members. It has been incorporated into Burkina Faso national law.

Borrowing abroad

No. Loans from abroad are unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the minister responsible for finance and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

Yes. Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of their clients’ outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Yes. Commercial lending is permitted. Financial credits are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, following BCEAO approval.

Lending locally in foreign exchange

Yes. There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but minister responsible for finance authorization and BCEAO approval
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange  Yes. These purchases require authorization by the minister responsible for finance if their issuance has not been authorized by the RCPSFM.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange  Yes.

Reserve requirements  No. A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.

Liquid asset requirements  No. According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.

Interest rate controls  No.

Credit controls  Yes. Financial loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, advances to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.

Open foreign exchange position limits  Yes. No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.

On resident assets and liabilities  Yes. No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position.
On nonresident assets and liabilities

Yes.

No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. #### Exchange Measures

- Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: Yes. The IMF staff report for the Request for Disbursement under the Rapid Credit Facility states that, as of October 6, 2021, Burundi maintained one multiple currency practice (MCP). The MCP arises from the use of an official rate for government transactions, which deviates from market rates by more than 2%. (Country Report No. 21/242)

- Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: Yes. Burundi maintains restrictions on financial transactions and accounts of individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to UNSC Resolution No. 1269 (1999) and the updated list of organizations associated with terrorism prepared by the U.S. Department of State.

- Other security restrictions: No. There are no other restrictions.

Exchange Arrangement

- Currency: Yes. The currency of Burundi is the Burundi franc.
- Other legal tender: No.

Exchange rate structure

- Unitary: No. The exchange rate structure is dual because, according to the IMF staff report, Burundi has an MCP. The exchange rate for official transactions may deviate from the market exchange rates by more than 2%.
- Dual: Yes. On March 1, 2013, the Bank of the Republic of Burundi (BRB) set a fluctuation margin on foreign currency purchases and sales by commercial banks and exchange bureaus of ±1% of the reference rate it publishes each morning. With the replacement of the Marché des Enchères Symétriques en Devises (MESD—Symmetric Currency Auction Market) with the Marché Interbancaire des Devises (MID—Interbank Currency Exchange), calculation of the reference rate was modified to include all BRB transactions with customers on the previous day, beginning April 12, 2013. To prevent further sharp fluctuations, bank operations whose exchange rate deviates from the defined band are systematically excluded from the calculations. The exchange rate structure is dual because, according to the IMF staff report, Burundi has an MCP. The exchange rate for official transactions may deviate from the market exchange rates by more than 2%.

Multiple
No separate legal tender
Currency board
Conventional peg
Stabilized arrangement
Crawling peg
Crawl-like arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The regulations governing the interbank foreign exchange market allow the BRB to intervene on its own initiative. Since June 2016, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands
Other managed arrangement Floating
Free floating

Official exchange rate Yes. The method for calculating the reference rate includes all bank transactions with customers on the previous day. For the BRB, the official exchange rate is used for government transactions, foreign exchange sales, and to adjust banks’ net open positions.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.  ADs are allowed to determine freely their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  Banks and exchange bureaus are free to set traded market exchange rates, which they post for the clients. Banks can freely purchase and sell foreign exchange for trade and capital transactions. The BRB has set a fluctuation margin on foreign currency purchases and sales by commercial banks and exchange bureaus of ±1% of the reference rate, which it publishes each morning. The BRB licenses banks. Ten commercial banks operate on the spot exchange market. Licensing of exchange bureaus has been suspended since August 2016. The BRB licenses exchange bureaus, for a period of five years, renewable. However, their current business activity is severely controlled. Sixty-four licensed exchange bureaus are in operation. They may engage in foreign currency note purchases and sales with the public, but may not hold accounts abroad or make foreign exchange payments or transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank  No.
Foreign exchange standing facility No.
Allocation No.

Fixing No.

_Interbank market_ Yes. Only commercial banks (10) are authorized by the CB to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. There are no limits on commissions of market participants. Since the decline in foreign exchange reserves, no transactions have been recorded in the interbank market, apart from CB interventions. The BRB intervenes in the interbank foreign exchange market on its own initiative in accordance with market conditions. The market is open on all business days. The CB intervenes in the foreign exchange market mainly to finance the import of priority products such as petroleum products, drugs, and fertilizers.

Over the counter Yes. Foreign exchange transactions take place over the counter.
Brokerage No.
Market making No.

Forward exchange market No. There is no derivatives market in Burundi.

_Official cover of forward operations_ No. There is no official cover of forward operations in Burundi.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

_Prescription of currency requirements_ Yes. The currency of settlement is prescribed by Law No. 1/34 of December 2, 2008, Article 25, which stipulates that the currency unit of Burundi is the Burundi franc (FBu) and that all monetary transactions taking place in the territory of Burundi must be expressed in FBu, unless a waiver is granted by the BRB.

_Controls on the use of domestic currency_ Yes. All payments for goods and services in Burundi must be made in domestic currency. However, nonresidents staying in a hotel or guesthouse in Burundi may pay their hotel bills in foreign currency. Residents are required to repatriate receipts from exports of goods and services. Foreign exchange acquired for specific operations is to be rendered, if the relevant operations have not taken place.

_For current transactions and payments_ Yes. All payments for goods and services in Burundi must be made in domestic currency. However, nonresidents staying in a hotel or guesthouse in Burundi may pay their hotel bills in foreign currency. Residents are required to repatriate receipts from exports of goods and services. Foreign exchange acquired for specific operations is to be rendered, if the relevant operations have not taken place.

_For capital transactions_ Yes. Domestic currency may not be used for international settlements for capital transactions.

_Transactions in capital and money market instruments_ Yes. Domestic currency may not be used for international settlements for capital transactions.

_Transactions in derivatives and other instruments_ Yes. Domestic currency may not be used for international settlements for capital transactions.

_Credit operations_ Yes. Domestic currency may not be used for international settlements for capital transactions.

_Use of foreign exchange among residents_ Yes. Transactions in foreign currency among residents are not permitted. All monetary transactions taking place in the territory of Burundi must be expressed in FBu, unless a waiver is granted by the BRB.

Domiciliation requirements

A DII must be filed. The bank that records the DII must authenticate the documents and ensure that the DII is properly completed (Article 40 of the Foreign Exchange Regulations). It must assign the DII an order number in an uninterrupted series that identifies the bank making the payment and the DII with or without provision of foreign exchange (2010 version of Foreign Exchange Regulations). Shipments of imported food, pharmaceuticals, and chemicals exceeding the equivalent of US$3,000 in c.i.f. value and of all other goods exceeding US$5,000 in c.i.f. value are subject to preshipment inspection by international supervisory and oversight agents with regard to quality, quantity, and price (Exchange Regulations of December 6, 2006, Article 39, Paragraph (a)). Inspections are carried out by the Société Générale de Surveillance S.A. (SGS). All other goods with a c.i.f. value of less than said amounts are subject to a documentary check. A supplementary physical check may be carried out when the goods arrive. Goods not inspected before shipment for a valid reason may be inspected in transit or on arrival.

Letters of credit

There is no obligation to settle import transactions with LCs.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses

The validation of a DII serves as an exchange authorization and gives access to foreign exchange.

Other

Goods imported into Burundi must be insured by approved Burundi insurers; premiums must be paid in Burundi francs, unless the BRB has granted an exemption.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

The only requirement is a DII. Imports of commercial samples, personal luggage, and the personal effects of travelers, as well as all imports by diplomatic and UN missions, are exempt from the DII requirement.

Official missions are governed by Decree No. 120-121/VP1-VP2/002 of February 3, 2006, setting the scale and terms and conditions for official mission orders and costs as follows: (1) per diems: US$350 a night for government officials and public figures with the rank of minister; US$300 a night for directors-general and other senior management officials; and US$250 a night for other officials; (2) per diem supplements: US$100 a night for transit expenses longer than six hours a day; US$50 a night to supplement living expenses for a mission without per diems or with per diems less than US$50; and (3) communications costs as indicated on the mission order for the government and government-owned companies and as determined by the board of directors for semipublic companies. For private missions, the amounts are as follows: (1) business travel expenses: amount granted by the employer, not to exceed US$10,000 a trip, and (2) visit and tourism travel expenses: US$350 a night, not to exceed US$10,000 a trip.

Commercial banks sell foreign exchange for personal payments within the limits of their available foreign exchange. Transactions are limited to US$500 a person a day and US$3,000 a person a month. Pension transfers are effected through the National Social Security Institute.

For health-related travel, an initial allowance up to US$10,000 is granted on departure; additional transfers are authorized on presentation of invoices. For an accompanying traveler, the allowance is US$300 a day, not to exceed US$5,000 in total. Amounts for education, moving, and subsistence expenses for students are as follows: (1) Scholarship students may receive the sum of the amount awarded by the government or organization financing the studies plus the difference between US$5,000 a quarter and the amount of the scholarship award. (2) Students who are not on scholarship may receive up to US$5,000 a year for moving and equipment expenses plus living expenses of US$5,000 a quarter and tuition fees. (3) Interns may receive the amount allowed by the employer, but no more than the amount for official mission expenses. It should be noted that additional amounts may be acquired if certain conditions are met.

Foreigners residing and working in Burundi may transfer abroad their total salary after payment of their taxes and deduction of local expenses.

The use of credit cards abroad is subject to the same ceilings as payments for services and other operations against foreign exchange accounts (Article 76 of the Foreign Exchange Regulations).

Official exchange rate

Yes. The escudo is pegged to the euro at the rate of CVEsc 110.265 per euro. There is no official bid-ask spread for euros. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

Yes.

U.S. dollar

Yes. The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.

The Bank of Cabo Verde (BCV – Banco de Cabo Verde) collaborates with the government in defining the country’s monetary and exchange rate policy, which aims to achieve and maintain price stability. However, the implementation of monetary and exchange rate policy is done autonomously by the BCV.

The operational framework for monetary policy uses the interest rate as its operational target, exchange rate stability as an intermediate objective, and the maintenance of price stability as a final objective. The (semiannual) Monetary Policy Report and the monetary policy guidelines are analyzed/discussed (bimonthly) in the MPC and approved by the Board of Directors of the BCV.

Exchange tax  No.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.

Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign currency. They may freely negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currency, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate.

Under the terms of Article 12 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, foreign exchange trading in Cabo Verde is generally done only by financial institutions expressly authorized thereto by the legal and regulatory rules governing their activity, except in specific cases of international money orders (Article 13) and manual exchange (Article 14).

On an exceptional basis, the Central Bank of Cabo Verde may authorize entities not referred to above to trade in foreign exchange and travelers' checks, provided they meet the requirements defined in an Official Notice (Aviso).

The operations of the foreign exchange market are regulated through CB Technical Instruction No. 121/2005.

There is a parallel foreign exchange market in Cabo Verde. The exchange rates practiced in this market have been close to the rates applied in the formal market.

Spot exchange market  Yes.

As of December 31, 2021, there were two foreign exchange bureaus operating in the country. Foreign exchange bureaus can buy and sell foreign banknotes and coins and traveler’s checks and may also provide money transfer services to and from abroad (under the conditions specified in Aviso No. 3/2003). Foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad, within the framework of the liberalization promoted by Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018.

Licensed foreign exchange bureaus are authorized to conduct foreign exchange operations directly with the CB.
Operated by the central bank  Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility  Yes.  The BCV buys and sells escudos for euros at the announced exchange rate. There is no official bid-ask spread for euros. The BCV engages in sales and purchases of foreign currency with commercial banks and the government on demand. There are no restrictions on access to foreign currency.

Allocation  No.

Auction  No.

Fixing  No.

Interbank market  Yes.  Commercial banks may trade foreign currency with each other. All seven commercial banks participate in the interbank foreign exchange market, but there are virtually no interbank foreign exchange transactions.

EntITIES authorized to trade in foreign exchange may freely negotiate the exchange rates and fees to be applied when trading in the quoted currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate because the Cabo Verde escudo is pegged to it.

Over the counter  Yes.  Banks are free to negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate.

Brokerage  No.

Market making  No.

Forward exchange market  Yes.  The regulation governing the forward foreign exchange market (BCV Technical Instruction No. 121/2005) dates from 2005. Only credit institutions are authorized to contract and engage in foreign exchange forward transactions, in Cabo Verde and abroad, for the purpose of hedging the foreign exchange risks inherent to commercial or financial transactions in foreign currency. The said institutions may enter into contracts with residents, with each other, and with nonresident credit institutions.

Official cover of forward operations  No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  No.  Most dealings in foreign exchange with the general public are conducted by seven commercial banks: (1) Banco Comercial do Atlântico, (2) Caixa Económica de Cabo Verde, (3) Banco Caboverdiano de Negócios, (4) Banco Interatlântico, (5) Banco Africano de Investimentos, (6) Ecobank, and (7) Internacional Investment Bank de Cabo Verde.

Controls on the use of domestic currency  No.

For current transactions and payments  No.

For capital transactions  No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments  No.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments  No.

Credit operations  No.

Use of foreign exchange among residents  No.  Under Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, there are no restrictions against the use of foreign exchange among residents.
Also, there are no restrictions against the use of foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents. Article 18 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that residents may reciprocally assume debts or grant credits denominated in foreign currency or in units of account used in international payments and clearing arrangements.

Payments arrangements

There are inoperative bilateral payment agreements with Cuba and Angola.

Administration of control

Foreign exchange transactions were fully liberalized, according to Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018.

The BCV serves as the country’s foreign exchange authority, pursuant to the terms of Article 25 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018.

The June 2018 foreign exchange law fully liberalized foreign exchange transactions and economic and financial operations with entities abroad. This rendered irrelevant the prior authorization, prior verification process, and the special and prior authorization to which certain operations were previously subjected to.

However, in exceptional circumstances and in consultation with the BCV, the government may impose temporary restrictions on economic, financial, and foreign exchange transactions undertaken by residents with nonresidents (Article 23 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018).

Payments arrears

External arrears are owed to Russia, for which rescheduling negotiations are under way. External arrears owed to Brazil were rescheduled and are being paid according to the new agreement.

Article 19 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts may be freely opened and operated in national territory, thereby revoking the restrictions imposed by Article 22 of Legislative Decree No. 25/98 of June 29, 1998. The only requirement is to provide statistical data and conserve their respective elements, pursuant to Aviso No. 6/2018 of August 27, 2018.

Approval required  No.

Domestic currency accounts  Yes.  Article 19 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts may be freely opened and operated in national territory, thereby revoking the restrictions imposed by Article 22 of Legislative Decree No. 25/98 of June 29, 1998.

Convertible into foreign currency  Yes.

Approval required  No.

Blocked accounts  No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget  No.

Financing requirements for imports  No.
Minimum financing requirements  No.
Advance payment requirements  No.
Advance import deposits  No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports  No. Article 10 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that economic and financial transactions may be freely contracted with entities abroad, without prejudice to the provisions of Article 23. The only requirement is to provide statistical data and conserve their respective elements, pursuant to Aviso No.6/2018 of August 27. Institutions authorized to trade in foreign exchange may, subject to their Due Diligence, the Know Your Customer principle, and the application of legislation of another nature (for example, within the scope of anti-money laundering and the financing of terrorism), request the documentation necessary to provide the service, irrespective of whether the transaction involves foreign exchange.

Domiciliation requirements  No. Article 16 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that payments between residents and nonresidents to settle economic and financial transactions with entities abroad may be made directly through any means of payment denominated in escudos or in foreign currency. Article 20 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts with nonresident institutions may be freely opened and operated.

Preshipment inspection  No.
Letters of credit  No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses  No.
Other  No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures  Yes. Import licensing was delegated to the Chambers of Commerce in 2000 through the protocols published in Official Bulletin (B.O.) No. 1, Series II of January 3, 2000. A series of subsequent trade legislation maintained the option to delegate powers through the signing of a protocol to enable the two Chambers of Commerce existing in Cabo Verde to issue import licenses on behalf of the government.

Import licenses that are issued will be valid for one year and may be renewed for a further year.

Positive list  No. Cabo Verde has not implemented the positive list of imported goods, so there are no import restrictions, except for goods whose importation is prohibited or subject to conditions.

Negative list  Yes. The Report of the Working Group on the Accession of Cabo Verde to the WTO, published in the Supplement to B.O. No. 26 of June 29, 2009, contains a list of goods subject to international trade restrictions and a list of goods which may not be imported into Cabo Verde.

Chapter III of the Customs Code defines prohibited goods as those whose importation or exportation is prohibited in Cabo Verde in any way or is subject to restrictions relating to quality, packaging, or special formalities. Similarly, goods whose importation or exportation is not accompanied by the appropriate specific document, legally required for this purpose, are also considered prohibited.

Open general licenses  Yes. Import licenses are generally issued freely, with the exception of certain goods that are prohibited or restricted by law. For example, drugs are imported exclusively by the national pharmaceutical firm Empresa Nacional de Produtos Farmacêuticos – Decree-Law No. 53/79 of June 9, 1979.

With the exception of imports channeled through the small packages regime, which are of a noncommercial nature with a value of up to CVEsc 100,000 and a weight not exceeding 150 kg, as well as donations and aid to the government/municipalities and nonprofit entities that are not required to submit import licenses, all other imports are subject to licensing and/or administrative authorizations (sanitary and phytosanitary certificates, authorization to import arms, munitions, etc.).

Article 4 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005 established specific products exempt of licensing:

“The following must be exempt from licensing:
(1) Imports of merchandise without commercial value as defined by order of the member of government responsible for foreign trade;
(2) Active and passive processing operations, temporary imports, reimporting on an as-is basis, reexporting, and transit operations;
(3) Merchandise imports subject to special duty-free, bonded warehouse, free warehouse, and special customs warehouse systems;
(4) Industrialized merchandise earmarked for consumption in international congresses, fairs, exhibitions, and similar events;
(5) Imports of merchandise earmarked to supply ships and aircraft, as provided in the relevant legislation;
(6) Merchandise that is seized, abandoned, found at sea, discarded, or salvaged from wrecks, and sold at auction; and
(7) Imports of merchandise without foreign exchange expenditure, owned by airlines or maritime navigation companies and intended for their exclusive use.”

Licenses with quotas

No.

Other nontariff measures

Yes. As per Article 5 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005:

“The following merchandise must be subject to non-automatic licensing:
(1) Merchandise subject to health, phytosanitary, and safety inspections;
(2) Merchandise subject to mandatory restrictions defined by law. Applications for the importing of merchandise referred above must be accompanied with a certificate of compliance issued by the competent authorities.”

Pursuant to Article 43 of Legislative Decree No. 4/2010 of June 3, 2010:

(1) For purposes of this Code, all merchandise for which importing or exporting is prohibited in any way or that are subject to restrictions deriving from rules applicable to quality, packaging, or special formalities will be considered prohibited merchandise.
(2) Merchandise for which importing or exporting is not accompanied with the appropriate specific document required by law for that purpose, and more specifically a permit, license, certificate, or similar document will also be considered to be prohibited.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. There are currently 13 tariff bands with a maximum rate of 55% and an unweighted average of 11%.

Import duty has been reduced in accordance with the commitments made by Cabo Verde in connection with List CLXI List appended to the Protocol of Accession of Cabo Verde to the WTO, approved under Resolution No. 73/VII/2008 of June 19, 2008, as subsequently

The Customs Statistics Tax was established under Article 31 of Law No. 23/VIII/2012 of December 31, 2012.

In the context of providing incentives for domestic industry and fighting the use and abuse of alcohol, tobacco, and sugar products, the import duty and excise duty rates for the products listed in Article 32 of Law No. 5/IX/2016, B.O. No. 73, Series I of December 30, 2016, were increased in 2017. The taxes are applicable to all imports from third-party countries.

As a member of the ECOWAS, Cabo Verde applies the trade liberalization scheme under which originating products benefit from import duty exemptions.

Pharmaceutical drugs are imported exclusively by the national pharmaceutical firm Empresa Nacional de Produtos Farmacêuticos.

Limits apply according to type of asset, but no distinction is made between residents and nonresidents. Ministerial Order No. 40/2005 of June 4, 2005, establishes a set of rules governing the type of assets that may represent technical provisions and on the limits of prudential diversification and dispersion, and also a set of principles to be followed by insurers in the definition, implementation, and control of investment policies.

Exchange Measures

| Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices | No. |
| Exchange measures imposed for security reasons | Yes. |
| In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) | Yes. |

Banks have been instructed to freeze transfers of capital and assets of certain individuals and funds and other financial assets of terrorists and organizations associated with terrorism to combat money laundering, pursuant to relevant UNSC resolutions.

| Other security restrictions | No. |

Exchange Arrangement

| Currency | Yes. The currency of Cambodia is the Cambodian riel. |
| Other legal tender | No. |

Exchange rate structure

| Unitary | Yes. The exchange rate regime comprises two rates: the official rate and the market rate. The daily spread between the official and market rates is generally ±1%. |
| Dual | |
| Multiple | |

Classification

| No separate legal tender | |
| Currency board | |
| Conventional peg | |
| Stabilized arrangement | Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a managed float. Given the high degree of financial dollarization, the National Bank of Cambodia (NBC) intervenes in the foreign exchange market to accommodate demand for riel and maintain exchange rate stability. The NBC publishes intervention data twice a year, in semiannual reports and annual reports of the NBC in Khmer language, which will be published on the NBC website with 1–2-month lag. There are also English versions of annual reports but published with a time lag of around 3–5 months. FXI is also published in forms of announcement and Press Release on the website whenever the NBC intervenes in the foreign exchange market. |
Seasonal factors include tax payment and harvest. Depreciation pressures also stemmed from the increasing government spending during the pandemic. Furthermore, in 2021 current account deficits significantly widened to 46% of GDP. NBC sold approximately USD 591.2 million to the market. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized.

Official exchange rate

Yes. Effective July 29, 2022, the official exchange rate is the weighted average of the interbank foreign exchange market transactions completed by Banks and Microfinance Institutions (MFIs) on National Bank of Cambodia Platform (NBCP) in the previous working day. Previously, the official exchange rate was based on the average daily market rate of the previous day, which is adjusted by taking into account liquidity conditions in the market. The official rate is used for banks’ and financial institutions’ accounting, customs valuation purposes, and foreign exchange transactions with the government. The NBC’s Official Exchange Rate Determination Committee meets every morning to set the official daily exchange rate, with approval from the director general of Central Banking.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Commercial banks and money changers are free to set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients. The ADs are allowed to determine freely foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. There is no formal spot exchange market. Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at their own rates. Money changers may also buy and sell banknotes and traveler’s checks at their own rates. The NBC licenses commercial banks and other foreign exchange agents (money changers). Foreign exchange dealers may conduct foreign exchange business, maintain accounts abroad, and buy and sell banknotes and traveler’s checks. There were 25 licensed money changers and 2,329 authorized money changers as of December 31, 2021. Licensed money changers can directly transact with the NBC, and they are able to make foreign currency payment and transfer on behalf of the clients.
| Operated by the central bank | Yes. | The NBC intervenes in the foreign exchange market through purchases and sales of US dollars to maintain a stable exchange rate to achieve price stability. The NBC holds foreign exchange reserves in US dollars, euros, pounds sterling, Australian dollars, and other currencies in accordance with the guidelines of the Investment Committee. The NBC interacts with the market using three channels: (1) auction; (2) bilateral transaction with money changers and banks; and (3) direct transaction with the government. The current format of NBCs’ interaction with market participants appears to be managing riel liquidity (demand for Cambodian riel (KHR) tax payment, etc.) and to limit volatility in exchange rate. On bilateral basis, the NBC uses the official quote. |
| Foreign exchange standing facility | Yes. | The NBC buys and/or sells US dollars and Cambodian riel (KHR) to manage the supply of foreign and the local currency to the market. The NBC also buys and sells US dollars and Cambodian riel directly to the government and public entity, except the Electricité Du Cambodge (EDU). The NBC sells Cambodian riels to market according to market conditions. Since 2012, the NBC has ceased to sell US dollars to market. However, the NBC sold USD during the pandemic given the depreciation pressures on local currency. |
| Allocation | No. | |
| Auction | Yes. | Auction takes place occasionally, depending on the deviation of exchange rate from its normal trend. The NBC provides guidance on rates and announces amounts in advance. There is a minimum bid rate, but there is no limit on amounts. There are some penalties for those who do not settle on time. There are no restrictions on the use of currency obtained at auction, but the NBC requests information beforehand on the intended use of local currency purchased. Banks and licensed money changers may participate and are not required to submit information on the intended use of the foreign currency exchange on a transactional or an aggregate basis. Auction results are regularly disclosed to the public. |
| Fixing | No. | |
| Interbank market | Yes. | The interbank foreign exchange market is still at an early stage of development, with the operation taking place on a retail customer basis. Banks conduct transactions among each other through NBCP. There is no limit on the bid-ask spread and commission fee. The number of banks participating in the interbank foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2021, is 32. The NBC grants licenses to banks, and foreign exchange is one of the businesses that they can operate under bank license. There are a few number of money changers who are the market makers. Money changers are allowed to participate in the platform since 2021. Money changer did not have transactions in the interbank market in 2021. |
| Over the counter | Yes. | The informal interbank market may operate over the counter, and there are no brokers. |
| Brokerage | No. | Foreign exchange market does not operate based on a brokerage system. |
| Market making | Yes. | There is no exact year when the market-making activities emerged. There are a few money changers who are the market makers, yet the operations are not under control of the CB. The CB also proposes its own quotes to market participants through NBCP. Since 2021, money changers are allowed to participate in the NBCP where banks conduct transactions among each other. There are 5 money changers who joined the NBCP; however, they are yet to undertake transactions. |
| Forward exchange market | Yes. | Forward exchange market exists among commercial banks. The CB | does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. There is no exact year when the forward exchange market was formed.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

No. The use of domestic currency is not restricted for payments and receipts between Cambodia and the rest of the world; however, such operations must be undertaken solely through authorized intermediaries.

Controls on the use of domestic currency

No. Domestic currency can be used for settlement of international current or capital transactions.

For current transactions and payments

No. For current transactions and payments.

In the primary market, 20% of each subscription for equity is reserved for Cambodian investors, and the remaining 80% is for both Cambodian and non-Cambodian investors. However, director general of the Securities and Exchange Commission of Cambodia (SECC) may define the reallocation, if the above allocation is not fulfilled. There are no restrictions in the secondary market.

The issuing company must be an incorporated public limited company or a permitted entity in Cambodia.

Residents may buy foreign exchange freely at local banks for the purchase of foreign securities.

No.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

Yes.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

Yes.

For security reasons, Cameroon supports UNSC Resolution No. 1373 to combat money laundering and terrorism financing (Regulation No. 01/03/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of April 4, 2003), UNSC Resolution No. 1267 (1999), restricts financial transactions, and freezes accounts if they relate to terrorists or organizations associated with terrorism pursuant to the updated list of organizations associated with terrorism drawn up by the U.S. State Department.

Conventional peg

Yes.

The exchange rate arrangement of the CAMU is a conventional peg. Cameroon participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country’s renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate  Yes.  The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax Yes. Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries, after the consent of the CB. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct exchange transactions with their customers. Licensed intermediaries consisted of 25 exchange bureaus and 19 banks, as of December 31, 2021. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Operated by the central bank Yes. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Interbank market

There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All the 14 banks are allowed to participate in the interbank market.

In principle, all licensed banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.

Forward exchange market

There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

For current transactions and payments

No.

For capital transactions

No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments

No.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments

No.

Credit operations

No.

Use of foreign exchange among residents

Yes.

The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries.
Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.

Payments arrangements

Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements

No.

Operative

No.

Inoperative

No.

Regional arrangements

Yes. An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements

No.

Barter agreements and open accounts

No. There is no formal clearing agreement between any CEMAC country and other countries. Nor are there any regulatory provisions governing this mechanism. In practice, however, some countries may receive production or capital goods from abroad in exchange for financial flows.

Administration of control

Yes. Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the CB, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the MOF, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears

No. Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official

No.

Private

No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

Yes. CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

On domestic ownership and/or trade

No. Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

On external trade

Yes. Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

On exports

CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFA 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Domestic currency

Residents and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFA 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFA 5 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.

Foreign currency

Residents and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFA 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.

Held domestically

The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC.

Generally, the BEAC’s approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.

Approval required

Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019.

In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require foreign currency accounts to be established, these are authorized by the BEAC. In addition, effective December 23, 2021, companies in the extractive sector benefit from a special provision allowing them to hold foreign currency accounts abroad as part of their ordinary operations.
The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive issued in June 2019.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad
Yes. Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency
No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Yes. There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

Approval required
No.

Domestic currency accounts
Yes. There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

No.

Blocked accounts
No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget
No. The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.

Financing requirements for imports
No. Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.

Minimum financing requirements
No. There are no financing requirements.

Advance payment requirements
No.

Advance import deposits
No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports
Yes. For import payments of less than CFA 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFA 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents.

Domiciliation requirements
Yes. Imports valued at more than CFA 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.

Preshipment inspection
Yes. There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, imports with an f.o.b. value exceeding the equivalent of CFA 2 million are subject to inspection by the Société Générale de Surveillance.

Letters of credit
No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses
No. Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

Other  Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures  Yes. In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply. In Cameroon, importers are required to file an import declaration with the Société Générale de Surveillance when the value of the imported goods exceeds the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. The import of certain goods on the list issued by the Ministry of Industrial and Commercial Development (MINDIC) each year requires licenses.

Positive list  No.

Negative list  Yes. Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.

Open general licenses  Yes. There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in Cameroon this system applies mainly to long-term supply contracts. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.

License with quotas  Yes. In Cameroon, quotas apply to container imports.

Other nontariff measures  No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs  Yes. The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.

Taxes collected through the exchange system  Yes. Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

State import monopoly  No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements  Yes. Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Surrender requirements  Yes.

Surrender to the central bank  Yes. Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.

Surrender to authorized dealers  No.

Financing requirements  No. Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.

Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings immediately after collection, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Letters of credit
No.
The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Guarantees
No.
No guarantees are required. However, export companies applying for VAT refund should submit proof of repatriation of export earnings signed by the MOF.

Domiciliation
Yes.
Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.

Preshipment inspection
Yes.
There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, exports, whatever their destination, are subject to Société Générale de Surveillance inspection.

Other
Yes.
In Cameroon, a health certificate is required prior to shipment for exports of fresh foods (such as fruits and vegetables).

Export licenses
No.

Without quotas
No.

With quotas
No.

Export taxes
Yes.
Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.

Collected through the exchange system
Yes.
Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

Other export taxes
Yes.
In Cameroon, a tax of 17.5% is levied on exports of lumber; the rate applicable to exports of semi-worked wood is 12.5%.

Prior approval: No.

Quantitative limits: No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test: Yes. All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided.

Amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be settled through licensed intermediaries with stronger verifications.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements: Yes. Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately.

Surrender requirements: Yes.

Surrender to the central bank: Yes. Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.

Surrender to authorized dealers: No.

Restrictions on use of funds: No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions: Yes. The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries.

Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the CB must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”

Repatriation requirements: Yes. In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated, immediately after collection.

Surrender requirements: Yes.

Surrender to the central bank: Yes. Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.

Surrender to authorized dealers: No.

Controls on capital and money market instruments: Yes.

Canada imposes sanctions, which may include exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, for the preservation of national or international security against the following: (1) under the Special Economic Measures Act (SEMA): the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK), the Islamic Republic of Iran, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, South Sudan, Syria, Ukraine, Venezuela, and Zimbabwe; (2) under the UN Act (UN Act), to implement UNSC decisions, pursuant to Articles 25 and 103 of the Charter of the UN, with respect to Al-Qaida and the Taliban, the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iran, Iraq, DPRK, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, and Yemen. Sanctions under the UN Act also affect certain individuals and entities in connection with terrorist activities under the Regulations Implementing the UN’s Resolutions on the Suppression of Terrorism; and (3) on June 20, 2018, the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) (S.C. 2017, c. 21) was established and authorizes the government to place controls on the movement of currency to individuals suspected of contributing to acts of significant corruption and/or gross human rights violations. Foreign nationals from Myanmar, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Sudan, and Venezuela are currently listed pursuant to this Act. Canada may also implement exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions under other mechanisms, including the Criminal Officials Act, against specific individuals, groups, and entities but not against entire jurisdictions or economic sectors in Tunisia and Ukraine.

The Regulations Amending the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2018-259) have amended the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2017-233) to include 17 foreign nationals from Saudi Arabia, who, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, are responsible for or complicit in gross violations of internationally recognized human rights, particularly the torture and extrajudicial killing of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi. These individuals were listed pursuant to the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (S.C. 2017, c. 21).

Floating

Free floating
Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating, with the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar determined by supply and demand. However, under an intervention policy established by the government in close consultation with the Bank of Canada (BOC), the BOC may intervene in the foreign exchange market on behalf of the government. The current policy is to intervene on a discretionary, rather than systematic, basis and only in exceptional circumstances. The last time the BOC intervened was as part of the concerted intervention with authorities in Europe, Japan, the United Kingdom, and the United States to counter an excessively strong yen following the March 2011 earthquake in Japan. Previously, the BOC intervened in September 1998 to influence movements in the Canadian dollar. Interventions are announced on the BOC’s website, and the amount of intervention is published in the government’s monthly official press release on international reserves. The amount of any BOC intervention in foreign currency markets is published in the monthly release of the government’s official international reserves. This release is generally published three business days after month end.
Official exchange rate

The BOC publishes on its website the exchange rate for 26 currencies vis-à-vis the Canadian dollar. The foreign exchange rates are published once a day, at 16:30 ET (Eastern Time), in the form of a single indicative rate for each currency pair that is based on an average of rates observed during the business day. They may differ from the rates of financial institutions and other market sources. The BOC exchange rates are released for informational purposes only and are not intended to be used as the benchmark rate for executing foreign exchange trades. The BOC does not guarantee the accuracy or completeness of these rates.

- Other

Yes. The inflation target is set jointly by the BOC and the federal government. The BOC and the government have renewed the inflation-control target framework seven times since its adoption in 1991—most recently on December 13, 2021, for five years, effective January 1, 2022. The target aims to keep the total CPI inflation at the 2% midpoint of a medium-term target range of 1%–3%. The BOC raises or lowers its policy interest rate to achieve the target, typically within six to eight quarters—the time usually needed for policy action to work its way through the economy and have its full effect on inflation. Decisions are made on a consensus basis.

Target number

Yes.

Point target

Yes.

Target with tolerance band

Yes. The inflation target is expressed as the year-over-year (y-o-y) increase in the total CPI. The bank also monitors a set of “core” inflation measures. The BOC’s preferred core inflation measures are CPI-trim, CPI-median, and CPI-common. CPI-trim (trimmed mean): a measure of core inflation that excludes CPI components whose rates of change in a given month are located in the tails of the distribution of price changes. CPI-median (weighted median): a measure of core inflation corresponding to the price change located at the 50th percentile (in terms of CPI basket weights) of the distribution of price changes in a given month. CPI-common (common component): a measure of core inflation that tracks common price changes across categories in the CPI basket. CPI is published by Statistics Canada.

Assets of certain entities and individuals may be frozen or their accounts blocked through prohibition against dealing in the property of designated persons under Canadian economic sanctions. These entities and individuals are identified in the relevant regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above. For example, after the Regulations Implementing the UN Resolutions on Libya went into effect, in 2013, accounts and property belonging to designated persons affiliated with the Qadhafi family were frozen in Canada. Permits can be granted by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, on an exceptional basis, in respect of activities that are prohibited under the SEMA. Authorization for activities prohibited under the UN Act regulations requires a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC.

Import permits are required (under various laws) for a broad range of items, including certain endangered species of flora and fauna, natural gas, material and equipment for the production or use of nuclear energy, and certain internationally controlled drugs. Under Canada’s Export and Import Permits Act, import permits are also required for products that are included on the Import Control List, including certain small arms, large-caliber armaments or weapons, military products, chemicals, and a number of other textiles and apparel, agricultural, and metal products. In addition, Health Canada does not permit the process of importing of unregistered drugs. Imports of used motor vehicles (less than 15 years old) are generally prohibited for reasons of safety and environmental standards. Exceptions are generally available for vehicles imported from the United States and Mexico. Some regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above include import restrictions. Imports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC. Imports prohibited under SEMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order. The exemptions for used vehicles originating from Mexico (which began to be phased in on January 1, 2009) are entirely phased.

Open general licenses | Yes.
Licenses with quotas   | No.
Other nontariff measures | Yes.
Import taxes and/or tariffs | Yes.

Measures consistent with international trade obligations are in effect. Measures are imposed, taking into consideration competition policy factors and other economic costs, as appropriate.

On average, import tariffs are low. Canada’s trade-weighted average tariff rate for all goods, including agricultural goods, has been less than 1% since 1998, largely as a result of duty-free access for imports from the US under preferential trade terms. Canada actively seeks to liberalize trade through bilateral and regional FTAs and currently has FTAs in place with its North American trade partners (Canada–US–Mexico Agreement), the EU, the UK, the Asia-Pacific region (Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) currently implemented between Canada, Australia, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, Singapore, Vietnam, and Peru (effective September 19, 2021)), South Korea, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Honduras, Panama, the EFTA countries, Ukraine, Israel, and Jordan. Canada is also engaged in ongoing negotiations with the MERCOSUR trade bloc (Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay), the UK’s accession to the CPTPP, and negotiations recently launched with Indonesia. Canada maintains three unilateral tariff preference programs (General Preferential Tariff, Least Developed Country...
Tariff, and Commonwealth Caribbean Countries Tariff) providing additional preferential access for most goods from developing countries.

Canada also continues to unilaterally reduce its MFN tariffs applicable to all members of the WTO. Since 2009, Canada has eliminated more than 2,470 MFN tariffs, including on both imported machinery and equipment and industrial manufacturing inputs (making Canada a tariff-free zone for industrial manufacturers), and a broad range of goods used as agri-food processing ingredients. The highest MFN tariffs apply to a limited number of over-quota, supply-managed agricultural goods (dairy, poultry, and eggs). Canada’s other sectors with higher-than-average MFN tariffs include textile products and apparel, footwear, and ships.

In 2020, Canada implemented two unscheduled temporary changes to its tariff regime in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, which will remain in effect for as long as warranted by COVID-19. Both remain in effect. Imported goods for emergency medical use by public health bodies (for example, hospitals) and first responders became eligible for relief from tariffs and sales taxes. Relief was extended to emergency goods imported for use at public and private care residences, such as seniors’ residences, retirement homes, nursing homes, and shelters.

Imports of certain medical supplies, including personal protective equipment, are eligible for tariff relief. These include diagnostic test kits, face and eye protection, gloves, protective garments, disinfectants/sterilization products, medical devices, thermometers, wipes, and medical consumables. Relief is available to all importers such as businesses, distributors, and individual Canadians.

Without quotas
Yes. The Export Control List identifies goods and technologies controlled under the Export and Import Permits Act. This list includes all items identified in the various international export control regimes in which Canada participates. In addition, certain items are controlled to ensure the orderly export marketing of certain products subject to import limitations by other countries, to implement bilateral agreements, to ensure adequate supply and distribution, and for nonproliferation purposes (that is, chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and their delivery systems). The Automatic Firearms Country Control List is a positive list of destinations to which Canadians may apply for permits to export prohibited firearms, weapons, or devices (as defined in the Criminal Code). The export of these prohibited items to countries that are not listed on the Automatic Firearms Country Control List is not allowed. The Area Control List includes countries to which the exports of all items are controlled. At present, only North Korea is on this list. Permits are required for the process of exporting of controlled goods and technologies to all countries except, in most cases, the United States, as well as for the export of all items destined for countries on the Area Control List. Acts and Regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above contain export restrictions, excluding the Freezing Assets of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act. Exports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC. Exports prohibited under SEMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order.

With quotas Yes. Certain items are controlled to ensure orderly export marketing of products subject to import limits by other countries and to implement bilateral and FTAs and/or ensure adequate supply and distribution. Canada administers export quotas and issues export permits or certificates for textiles and apparel goods exported under NAFTA, for high sugar and sugar-containing products, processed food, dog and cat food, and vehicles exported under Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA), and for peanut butter, sugar, and sugar-containing products exported to the United States.

Export taxes Yes.
Collected through the exchange system No.
Other export taxes Yes. Since 1994, Canada has imposed an export tax on some tobacco products. This export tax is administered under the Excise Act, 2001.

Schedule 2, the property of those persons, or interests and property of those persons; and (3) new debt of more than 90 days’ maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, LCs, bank drafts, bankers’ acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper or similar instruments in relation to designated persons listed in Schedule 3, the property of those persons, or interests and property of those persons.

The Special Economic Measures (Belarus) Regulations prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from, directly or indirectly, dealing in transferable securities and money market instruments, including treasury bills, CD and commercial papers but not including instruments of payment, issued by Belarus, certain listed entities, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of Belarus or such listed entities. It is also prohibited to, directly or indirectly, transact in, provide financing for or otherwise deal in debt of longer than 90 days’ maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, LCs, bank drafts, bankers’ acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper and other similar instruments in relation to Belarus, certain listed entities, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of Belarus or such listed entities.

Similarly, regulations made under the UN Act, SEMA, and the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act restrict all financial services to designated individuals, including capital transactions. Measures under the SEMA were also imposed with respect to the People’s Republic of China effective March 21, 2021.

The Special Economic Measures (Ukraine) Regulations (SOR/2014-60) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment in the Crimea region of Ukraine that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine that is held by or on behalf of the Crimea region of Ukraine or a person in the Crimea region of Ukraine. SOR/2014-60 was amended June 29, 2015, to prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment in the Crimea region of Ukraine that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine. Effective February 24, 2022, these Regulations were amended to prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine.
Donetsk People’s Republic and/or Luhansk People’s Republic regions of Ukraine that is owned, held, or controlled by the Donetsk People’s Republic and/or Luhansk People’s Republic regions of Ukraine or a person in the Donetsk People’s Republic and/or Luhansk People’s Republic regions of Ukraine, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of the Donetsk People’s Republic and/or Luhansk People’s Republic regions of Ukraine or a person in the Donetsk People’s Republic and/or Luhansk People’s Republic regions of Ukraine. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Ukraine) Permit Authorization Order. In addition to the limitations on debt and equity financing, the Special Economic Measures (Russia) Regulations (SOR/2014-58) place limitations on the provision of financial services associated with property and oil exploration. The Special Economic Measures (Iran) Regulations (SOR/2010-165) were amended February 5, 2016. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are prohibited from dealing in property, entering into transactions, or providing financial or related services to persons listed in Schedule 1 of the Regulations or to a person acting for the benefit of a listed person. The broad prohibition against financial services was lifted following the February 5, 2016, amendments. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Iran) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (Syria) Regulations (SOR/2011-114) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in Syria if the investment involves property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of Syria, a person in Syria, or a Syrian who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are also prohibited from providing or acquiring financial or other related services to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of Syria or any person in Syria for the purpose of such an investment. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Syria) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Regulations (SOR/2011-167) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in any entity in the DPRK that involves dealing in property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of the DPRK, any person in the DPRK, or a DPRK national who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. The regulations also prohibit the provision or acquisition of financial services—including those that are intended to facilitate an investment in any entity—to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of the DPRK or persons in the DPRK. Provision of such financial services requires a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Permit Authorization Order.

There are controls on direct investment by nonresidents in (1) activities related to Canada’s cultural heritage and national identity, in particular (a) publication, distribution, and sale of books, magazines, periodicals, and newspapers in print or machine readable form, but not including solely printing or typesetting any of the above; (b) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of film and video recordings; (c) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of audio and video music recordings; (d) publication, distribution, and sale of music in print or machine readable form; and (e) radio communication intended for direct reception by the general public; radio, television, and cable broadcasting companies; and satellite programming and broadcast network services; (2) air transport—foreign ownership of Canadian common carriers is limited to 49% and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned directly or indirectly by any single non-Canadian and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned by one or more non-Canadians authorized to provide air services in any jurisdiction, and only Canadians (as defined in the Canada Transportation Act) may register an aircraft as Canadian and obtain an operator certificate for the following commercial air services: (a) domestic air services; (b) scheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under air services agreements; (c) nonscheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under the Canada Transportation Act; and (d) specialty air services; (3) maritime transport; (4) telecommunications—foreign investment in a facilities-based telecommunications service supplier is restricted to 20% direct investment and 33.3% indirect investment. Restrictions do not apply to satellite and sub-sea facilities and do not apply to providers with less than a 10% revenue share of the telecommunications market; (5) uranium—51% minimum Canadian ownership requirement in individual uranium mining properties at the first stage of production unless the project is controlled by Canadian nationals, as defined in the Investment Canada Act (ICA); the Cabinet may grant exemptions if Canadian partners cannot be found; and (6) fish harvesting.

Under the ICA, significant acquisitions of control of Canadian businesses by non-Canadian investors are subject to net benefit review. The thresholds for direct acquisitions of control by WTO members and trade agreement partners are adjusted annually by a formula to reflect changes in nominal GDP. The new thresholds become effective January first of each year. Effective January 1, 2021, the review thresholds are: Can$1.043 billion (previously Can$1.075 billion) in enterprise value for private sector WTO investments, Can$1.565 billion (previously Can$1.613 billion) in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments, and Can$415 million (previously Can$428 million) for state-owned enterprise (SOE) WTO investments. Effective January 1, 2022, the review thresholds are: Can$1.141 billion in enterprise value for private sector WTO investments, Can$1.711 billion in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments, and Can$454 million for SOE WTO investments. The trade agreements that offer this private sector trade agreement investment threshold are: the Canada-United Kingdom Trade Continuity Agreement (effective April 1, 2021), the CPTPP (in force in Peru effective September 19, 2021), Canada-EU CETA, Canada-United States-Mexico Agreement, Canada-Chile FTA, Canada-Peru FTA, Canada-Colombia FTA, Canada-Panama FTA, Canada-Honduras FTA, Canada-Korea FTA. Effective January 1, 2021, until March 31, 2021, UK private investors were not privy to the private sector trade agreement threshold, as a result of the exit from the EU (and applicability of the CETA) and before coming into force of the Trade Continuity Agreement. The review threshold for non-WTO investments is Can$5 million for direct acquisitions and Can$50 million for indirect acquisitions. For all non-Canadian investors, acquisitions of Canadian cultural businesses are also reviewable at these thresholds (that is, Can$5 million and Can$50 million), except for (1) (e) of the paragraph above, for which non-cultural business thresholds apply. Under the guidelines on the acquisition of control of major investments in Canada by SOEs, the governance and commercial orientation of SOEs are examined as part of the net benefit review of those investments. In addition, in December 2012, the government issued a policy that SOE applications for the control of a Canadian oil-sands business will be approved only in an “exceptional circumstance.” An SOE includes... entities influenced directly or indirectly by a foreign government. A direct acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian directly acquires a Canadian business. An indirect acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian acquires a business outside Canada and that business has a subsidiary in Canada. Decisions to allow an investment are based on “likely net benefit” to Canada. The net benefit factors are set out in Section 20 of the ICA. Decisions regarding investments by non-Canadians into non-cultural industries are made by the Minister of Innovation, Science and Industry. The Minister of Canadian Heritage makes decisions on investments related to cultural businesses. A list of cultural businesses is given in Schedule IV of the Investment Canada Regulations. Ministers have 45 days to make a decision on a reviewable investment. The review period may be extended by 30 days, and beyond only with the agreement of the Minister and the investor. Investments by non-Canadians in the cultural sector (below threshold value acquisitions and establishments of new Canadian businesses) that are only subject to a notification under the Act may be subject to a review if the Governor General in Council orders it, based on the belief that it is in the public interest to do so and the investment is related to Canada’s national identity and cultural heritage.

On April 18, 2020, the government issued a Policy Statement on Foreign Investment Review and COVID-19, which states that the government will apply enhanced scrutiny to investments in businesses related to public health or supply of critical goods and services, as well as by state-owned investors or private investors assessed as being closely tied to the state.

Foreign investments of any size are reviewable for national security. Effective March 24, 2021, the government issued updated Guidelines on the National Security Review of Investments, supportive of continued transparency in the review process. This update specifically addresses national security concerns relating to investments involving potentially sensitive technologies, sensitive personal data, and the security of critical mineral supply chains.

The Regulations implementing the UN Resolutions on Iran (SOR/2007-44) prohibit financial or related services or the facilitation of any transaction related to uranium mining in Canada, or to the production or the use of nuclear materials and technologies listed in Information Circular INFCIRC/254/Rev. Effective March 8, 2022, the government issued a Policy Statement on Foreign Investment Review and the Ukraine Crisis, indicating that investments with ties to Russia will support a finding by the Minister that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the investments could be injurious to Canada’s national security, and that acquisitions of control by Russian investors will be found to be of net benefit to Canada on an exceptional basis only.

Effective August 2, 2022, a voluntary filing mechanism is available to allow certain non-Canadian investors (for example, minority investors) to get certainty under the ICA, as well as to extend the time for national security review for these investments absent a filing.

Various provinces have additional levies on the purchase of residential property by nonresidents. As of August 2, 2016, British Columbia imposed a 15% additional property transfer tax for foreign entities and taxable trustees on the purchase of residential property in metropolitan Vancouver. Effective February 21, 2022, British Columbia increased it to 20% and expanded the coverage area to also include the Fraser Valley, Capital, Nanaimo, and Central Okanagan Regional Districts. Ontario has, effective March 30, 2022, a 20% (previously 15%) nonresident speculation tax (NRST) on the purchase or acquisition of an interest in residential property located in the entire province (previously in the Greater Golden Horseshoe area) by individuals who are not citizens or permanent residents of Canada or by foreign corporations (“foreign entities”) and taxable trustees. The NRST applies to the transfer of land which contains at least one and not more than six single-family residences. Examples of land containing one single-family residence include land containing a detached house, a semi-detached house, a town house, or a condominium unit. In a situation involving the purchase of multiple condominium units, each unit would be considered land containing one single-family residence. Examples of land containing more than one single-family residence that are subject to the tax include land containing duplexes, triplexes, fourplexes, fiveplexes, and sixplexes. The NRST does not apply to other types of land such as land containing multi-residential rental apartment buildings with more than six units, agricultural land, commercial land, or industrial land. The NRST applies on the value of the consideration for the residential property. If the land transferred includes both residential property and another type of property, the NRST applies on the portion of the value of the consideration attributable to the residential property. For example, if the purchase price of the transaction is $1,000,000 and contains one single-family residence with a value of the consideration of $400,000, and commercial land with a value of the consideration of $600,000, the 15% NRST would apply to only the $400,000 portion. Effective April 1, 2022, Nova Scotia imposed a 5% nonresident deed transfer tax on the purchase of residential property in the province. The Regulations Implementing the UN Resolutions on the DPRK prohibit any person in Canada or any Canadian outside Canada to knowingly sell or lease or otherwise make available real property to the DPRK, to a national or to any person acting on behalf or at the direction of the DPRK or a national.

There are also quantitative investment limits, which are set out in the Federal Pension Benefits Standards Act and its accompanying regulations. Most provinces in Canada have adopted the federal pension investment rules. The investment rules limit pension funds to owning no more than 30% of a company’s voting shares to elect directors. Based on the market value of a pension fund’s assets, the pension fund may invest a maximum of 10% in any one entity. There are certain exemptions to the quantitative limits such as investment in real estate corporations, resource corporations, and investment corporations. There is also an exemption to the 10% maximum investment in any one entity limit for securities or funds composed of mortgage-backed securities issued or fully guaranteed by the Government of Canada, the government of a province, or any agency thereof.

Exchange tax

Yes. Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes.

Spot exchange market

Yes. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC’s OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Operated by the central bank

Yes. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Foreign exchange standing facility

Yes. Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Allocation

No.

Auction

No.
Fixing

Interbank market  Yes.  There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.

Over the counter  Yes.  Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.

Brokerage  No.

Market making  No.

Forward exchange market  Yes.  There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.

Official cover of forward operations  No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  Yes.  Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

For current transactions and payments  No.

For capital transactions  No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments  No.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments  No.

Credit operations  No.

Use of foreign exchange among residents  Yes.  The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, effective April 22, 2022, the CAR adopted a law which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.

Payments arrangements  Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements  No.

Operative  No.
Inoperative

Regional arrangements

Yes. An operation’s account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements

No.

Barter agreements and open accounts

No. There is no formal clearing agreement between any CEMAC country and other countries. Nor are there any regulatory provisions governing this mechanism. In practice, however, some countries may receive production or capital goods from abroad in exchange for financial flows.

Administration of control

Yes. Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears

No. Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official

No.

Private

No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

Yes. CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

On domestic ownership and/or trade

Yes. Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

On external trade

Yes. Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

Domestic currency

Yes. CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).
Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.

On imports

Foreign currency

Yes.

Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Domestic currency

Yes.

CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.

Foreign currency

No.

Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Yes.

Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.

Approval required

Yes.

The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC.

Generally, the BEAC’s approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.

Held domestically

Yes.

Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.

Approval required

Yes.

Generally, the BEAC’s approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.

Held abroad

Yes.

Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019.

Generally, the BEAC’s approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.

Approval required

Yes.

The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad

Yes.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously, these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency

No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Yes.

There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.

Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.

There are no financing requirements.

For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.

Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.

There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the CAR, imports exceeding CFAF 1 million or the equivalent are subject to mandatory preshipment inspection.

The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures
Yes. In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.

Positive list
No.

Negative list
Yes. Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.

Open general licenses
No. There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.

Licenses with quotas
No.

Other nontariff measures
No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs
Yes. The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.

Taxes collected through the exchange system
Yes. Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

State import monopoly
No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements
Yes. Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Surrender requirements
Yes.

Surrender to the central bank
Yes. Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.

Surrender to authorized dealers
No.

Financing requirements
No. Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.

Documentation requirements
Yes. Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Letters of credit
No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Guarantees
n.r.

Domiciliation
Yes. Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.

Capital Transactions

The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc zone, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc zone countries.

Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which entered into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”

Repatriation requirements: Yes.

In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.

Surrender requirements: Yes.

Surrender to the central bank: Yes.

Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.

Surrender to authorized dealers: No.

Controls on capital and money market instruments: Yes.

On capital market securities: Yes.

The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature: Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes.

The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.

Purchase abroad by residents
Yes. Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.

Sale or issue abroad by residents
Yes. Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions.

Bonds or other debt securities
Yes.

Controls on credit operations

Yes. There are no specific regulations on borrowing and lending by instrument type or by maturity.

Commercial credits

Yes. Borrowing directly related to the financing of commercial transactions and borrowing and lending contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. Banks may verify and then execute commercial credits granted to nonresidents, except when the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeds CFAF 100 million, in which case such credits must be reported to the MOF and BEAC for approval 30 days before the transaction. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.

To residents from nonresidents

No. Only banks are authorized to verify and then execute commercial credits received by residents, which they must declare to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.

Financial credits

Yes. Loans contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction. Banks may verify and execute borrowing and lending transactions for their customers, as well as their repayment, except when the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeds CFAF 100 million, in which case they must be reported to the MOF and BEAC for approval 30 days before the transaction. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Conventional peg Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the CAMU is a conventional peg. Chad participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CAMU member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country’s renunciation of the MCA.
- Stabilized arrangement
- Crawling peg
- Crawl-like arrangement
The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.
Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC’s OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. Commercial banks may also acquire euro notes at 1.5% from the CB. There are eight authorized foreign exchange bureaus in Chad. Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
CHAD

| Auction | No. |
| Fixing | No. |
| Interbank market | Yes. |

There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All banks approved by COBAC and authorized by the Monetary Authority to operate in the country are automatically eligible to participate in the interbank market. Only participation in BEAC intervention requires the approval of the governor after COBAC’s consent. There are eight authorized banks, all of which participate in the interbank market.

In principle, all licensed banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.

| Over the counter | Yes. |
| Brokerage | No. |
| Market making | No. |
| Forward exchange market | Yes. |

There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission.

| Official cover of forward operations | No. |

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

| Prescription of currency requirements | Yes. |
| Controls on the use of domestic currency | No. |

Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

| For current transactions and payments | No. |
| For capital transactions | No. |
| Transactions in capital and money market instruments | No. |
| Transactions in derivatives and other instruments | No. |
| Credit operations | No. |
| Use of foreign exchange among residents | Yes. |

The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries.
Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.

Payments arrangements

Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements

No.

Operative

No.

Inoperative

No.

Regional arrangements

Yes. An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements

No.

Barter agreements and open accounts

No. There is no formal clearing agreement between any CEMAC country and other countries. Nor are there any regulatory provisions governing this mechanism. In practice, however, some countries may receive production or capital goods from abroad in exchange for financial flows.

Administration of control

Yes. Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears

No. Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official

No.

Private

No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

Yes. CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

On domestic ownership and/or trade

No. Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Resident Accounts

| Foreign exchange accounts permitted | Yes. | Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. |
| Holding domestically             | Yes. | The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Generally, the BEAC’s approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts. |
| Approval required                | Yes. | Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law. |
In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require foreign currency accounts to be established, these are authorized by the BEAC. In addition, effective December 23, 2021, companies in the extractive sector benefit from a special provision allowing them to hold foreign currency accounts abroad as part of their ordinary operations.

| Approval required | Yes. | The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. |
| Accounts in domestic currency held abroad | Yes. | Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. |
| Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency | No. |

Nonresident Accounts

| Foreign exchange accounts permitted | Yes. | There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. |
| Approval required | No. |
| Domestic currency accounts | Yes. | There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. |
| Convertible into foreign currency | No. | Nonresidents may not convert the balances of their domestic currency accounts to foreign currency or transfer them abroad. |
| Approval required | No. |
| Blocked accounts | No. |

Imports and Import Payments

| Foreign exchange budget | No. | The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries. |
| Financing requirements for imports | No. | Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. |
| Minimum financing requirements | No. | There are no financing requirements. |

Floating

Free floating
Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangements is free floating. The Central Bank of Chile (BCCH) reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market, in exceptional circumstances, to keep the currency near its equilibrium value to avoid costly future reversals. These interventions take the form of transparent, well-founded measures, including explicit definitions of the periods and amounts involved and clearly explained reasons for the intervention. The BCCH usually announces the amount of foreign exchange it intends to buy or sell in its monthly bulletin. It publishes its auction results daily and its reserves weekly.

Effective January 13, 2021, the Board of the BCCH announced a program for replenishment and expansion of international reserves, which was suspended in October of that year.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as free floating. The exchange rate in the Formal Exchange Market (MCF) is the rate freely agreed by the participants. The BCCH publishes daily exchange rates of the foreign currencies generally accepted in international exchange markets in the Official Gazette, based on the previous day’s transactions in the MCF and, where appropriate, on reports on transactions in international markets. The Law of the CB specifically states that the exchange rate in the MCF is the one freely agreed by the intervening parties. Nevertheless, the Law of the CB also requires it to authorize “adjustment systems” (“sistemas de reajuste”) for credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives (Article 35.9), and the US dollar and other foreign currencies have been authorized as one of those “adjustment systems.” Only for those specific transactions (credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives), the exchange rates published in the Official Gazette are mandatory.

Inflation target

Yes.

The Board of the BCCH sets targets and carries out such functions in accordance with the Organic Constitutional Law (LOC). In general, the adoption of Agreements by the Board requires a majority vote by its members. The Board is free to change the target.
Target number
Yes.

Point target

Target with tolerance band
Yes. Since 2007, the explicit objective of the BCCH has been to maintain annual inflation of the headline CPI at about 3% most of the time, with a tolerance range of ±1%. There are no automatic consequences from missing the inflation target, but rather the authorities use their discretion to return inflation to within the target band.

Band/Range

Target measure
Yes.

CPI
Yes. Since 2007, the explicit objective of the BCCH has been to maintain annual inflation of the headline CPI.

Core inflation

Target horizon
Yes. The target is always for a two-year period.

Operating target (policy rate)
Yes.

Policy rate
Yes. The BCCH executes its monetary policy by influencing the overnight interbank interest rate, the rate at which banks lend to each other from one day to the next. The Monetary Policy Meeting (MPM) is the BCCH’s Board instance to decide any change in the Monetary Policy Rate. There are 8 scheduled MPMs in a year. The dates for these meetings are published the previous year, although the Board reserves the right to hold special MPMs if deemed necessary.

Target corridor band
Yes. The target corridor band is set symmetrically in relation to the monetary policy rate ±50 basis points. The permanent liquidity facility (PLF) provides overnight liquidity at the monetary policy rate +25 basis points, while the permanent deposits facility absorbs overnight liquidity at the monetary policy rate of −25 basis points.

Accountability
Yes.

Open letter
No.

Parliamentary hearings
Yes. The BCCH presents its Monetary Policy Report (IPOM) to the Finance Commission on a quarterly basis and the Financial Stability Report every six months. In total, there are 6 hearings in the year, one of which (the September IPOM) is in front of the entire Senate. It should be noted that Article 4 of the Organic Law of the BCCH states that the BCCH must inform the President of the republic and the Senate of the policies and general rules it sets in the exercise of its functions.

Transparency
Yes.

Publication of votes
Yes. The minutes of the MPM state whether the decision was unanimous or, if not, the number of votes in favor and against the decision. These votes are not anonymous, although the reasons behind the votes are.

Publication of minutes
Yes. On the day of the MPM, the decision adopted is reported to the public through a communiqué published at 6 p.m. The minutes of MPMs, which present the contents and basis for the voting, are published 11 business days after the meeting is held. The official records of the meetings are published 10 years later. The IPOM, which is signed by the Board and published quarterly (in March, June, September, and December), includes the inflation projections.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax

No.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. Commercial banks may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market

Yes. Only institutions licensed by the BCCH may conduct foreign exchange transactions, which must be carried out through the MCF. As of December 31, 2021, 21 banks and 9 nonbank entities (8 stock brokers and 1 securities dealer) are authorized institutions. Under Article 39 of the LOC of the BCCH, anyone may freely engage in foreign exchange operations. Without prejudice to that provision, Article 42 of that law authorizes the BCCH to limit execution of certain operations to the MCF. The MCF comprises all banking institutions; the BCCH may authorize other entities and individuals, provided they meet the requirements in Chapter III of the Compendium of Foreign Exchange Regulations (CNCI). A list of these entities is given in the annex to Chapter III. Chapter II also lists operations that must be conducted exclusively through the MCF, executed in the MCF, and reported to the BCCH, and those that need only be reported. Therefore, exchange bureaus may operate in the exchange market, except for transactions that must be executed exclusively through the MCF. At present, no exchange bureaus participate in the MCF, although they are not legally barred from requesting authorization to do so if they meet the CNCI requirements.

In Chile, there are 14 private banks and one government bank, in addition to six branches of foreign banks.

Regulatory changes in the texts governing access to and operation of the formal foreign exchange market were published on August 30. They are designed, inter alia, to allow more expeditious access to this market for financial intermediaries supervised by the Financial Markets Board (CMF).

Interbank market

Yes. The interbank market includes 21 banks licensed by the Superintendency of Banks and Financial Institutions (SBIF) (currently the CMF). There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. The CB has not intervened in this market.

The interbank market is operated as a continuous electronic OTC market by the Bolsa de Comercio (Stock Exchange), based on market-making agreements. Banks and other members of the MCF also deal on their own account.

No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments

No. There are no controls on the use of CLP in transactions between residents and nonresidents, domestically or abroad.

The provisions in reference were included in Chapter VIII of the Compendium of International Foreign Exchange Regulations that was repealed effective April 14, 2022. The control on the use of CLP for cross border payments of payment cards (for payment between financial institutions) was abolished.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments

No. Effective March 1, 2021, the use of CLP is authorized for the subscription of derivatives that can be settled through the delivery of CLP. Previously, exchange derivatives on the CLP, in which at least one of the counterparties is a nonresident, must be payable in foreign currency, eliminating the possibility of foreign exchange derivatives with physical delivery of CLP. Hence, the settlement offshore was through non-deliverable forwards (NDF) previously.

Credit operations

No. Effective March 1, 2021, the use of CLP is authorized for granting of credit by Chilean residents or persons with a domicile in Chile, to nonresidents or persons without a domicile in Chile. This refers to granting of credit in CLP in an offshore market. The liberalization covers individual as well as institutional investors, and all kinds of credits. Effective September 1, 2021, the use of CLP is authorized for granting or constituting credits, deposits, investment, and capital contributions in Chile by nonresidents or persons without a domicile.

In banks by nonresidents

No.

The incorporation of a bank in Chile requires, among other things, that the company be incorporated in the country as a corporation. In addition, the founding or controlling shareholders are required to comply with a set of fit and proper requirements, but none concerning nationality (Articles 27 and 28 of the General Banking Law, LGB).

In addition, Article 29 of the General Banking Law regulates how financial institutions incorporated abroad can significantly participate in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank: “A financial institution incorporated abroad that requests to take a significant part in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank or to establish a branch in accordance with Article 32 may only be authorized if, in the country in which its head office operates, there is supervision that allows adequate monitoring of the risk of its operations and, in addition to complying with the provisions of the previous article, if it has prior authorization from the supervisory authority of the country in which its head office is incorporated. Additionally, to grant authorization, the supervisory bodies of both countries must be able to exchange relevant information on these institutions on a reciprocal basis.

In the case of investment holdings or other types of companies incorporated abroad, they must assure the Financial Market Commission, in whatever manner the latter deems necessary, that the provisions of the foregoing paragraph are permanently complied with if they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country.

As for the companies referred to in the previous paragraph, which are incorporated in a country that applies the rules of the Basel Committee, the preceding paragraphs are not applicable, if they are obliged to deliver, in the manner and within a time frame determined by the Board, reliable financial information regarding said companies and their subsidiaries, it being understood that such information emanates from the supervisory bodies. When these companies are not subject to the supervision of a body or are not required to provide such information to the body, the information must be endorsed by internationally recognized external auditors. To grant the corresponding authorization to these companies, they must assure the Board, in the manner it determines, that the provisions of this paragraph will be permanently complied with when they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country.

In the event of non-compliance with the provisions of this article, the provisions of the second and final paragraphs of Article 36 of this law apply.

For the purposes of this article, a significant shareholding in a Chilean bank is considered to be one which, according to the rules of Article 36, requires authorization from the Board.”

Open foreign exchange position limits

Yes.

Banks are required to observe a limit on interest rates and currency risk exposure.

On resident assets and liabilities

Yes.

Chapter III B. 2 of the Compendium of Financial Standards of the BCCH states that the difference between payables, in the liabilities and expenditure accounts, and receivables, in the assets and revenue accounts, that have different maturities—the so-called maturity mismatch—must comply with the following: (1) The sum of the 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (2) The 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (3) The sum of the 90-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed twice the core capital.

On nonresident assets and liabilities

Yes.

Chapter III B. 2 of the Compendium of Financial Standards of the BCCH states that the difference between payables, in the liabilities and expenditure accounts, and receivables, in the assets and revenue accounts, that have different maturities—the so-called maturity mismatch—must comply with the following: (1) The sum of the 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed core capital. | 03/01/2021 | The use of CLP is authorized for opening and holding of bank accounts in CLP by nonresidents or persons without a domicile in Chile. |

| 09/01/2021 | The use of CLP is authorized for deposits or investment abroad by Chilean residents or persons domiciled in Chile. |

| 04/14/2022 | There are no controls on the use of CLP in transactions between residents and nonresidents, domestically or abroad. The provisions in reference were included in Chapter VIII of the Compendium of International Foreign Exchange Regulations that was repealed. The control on the use of CLP for cross border payments of payment cards (for payment between financial institutions) was abolished. |

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments

| 03/01/2021 | The use of CLP is authorized for the subscription of derivatives that can be settled through the delivery of CLP. Previously, exchange derivatives on the CLP, in which at least one of the counterparties is a nonresident, must be payable in foreign currency, eliminating the possibility of foreign exchange derivatives with physical delivery of CLP. Hence, the settlement offshore was through non-deliverable forwards (NDF) previously. |

China officially maintains a de jure managed floating exchange rate arrangement with a view to keeping the RMB exchange rate stable at an adaptive and equilibrium level based on market supply and demand with reference to a basket of currencies to preserve the stability of the Chinese economy and financial markets. The floating band of the RMB’s trading prices is 2% against the US dollar in the interbank foreign exchange market—that is, on each business day, the trading prices of the RMB against the US dollar in the market may fluctuate within a band of ±2% around the midrate released that day by China’s Foreign Exchange Trading System (CFETS).
People’s Bank of China (PBC) announced that the RMB’s floating range would be expanded in an orderly manner, based on the developments of the foreign exchange market and economic and financial situation. Based on the market demand and their pricing capacity, banks can determine their quotes of RMB against other currencies. There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand (PBC No. 2014/188).

The CFETS publishes exchange rate indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket, and an exchange rate index against a basket of the currencies listed on CFETS (the CFETS RMB Index). In 2021, the CFETS RMB Index rose by 8.1%. In 2022, the index has remained stable, with a small fall of 0.5% in the first half of the year. To ensure that CFETS basket remains representative, CFETS reviews the currency basket for the RMB Index annually and adjusts the composition and the weightings of the currencies as necessary. In December 2021, the CFETS recalculated the weightings for the currencies in the RMB Index basket, applying a trade weighting methodology that considers re-export factors. Although the exchange rate increased its flexibility since March 2022, more observations are needed to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as crawl-like.

Yes. The PBC authorizes the CFETS to publish the daily midrates for the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hong Kong dollar, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso, New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, Thai baht, and the US dollar at 9:15 a.m. each working day to serve as the day’s midrates for the interbank spot foreign exchange market (including the OTC method and the bid-offer method). At the same time, the CFETS also publishes the daily reference rate (similar to the midrate) of the RMB against Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel. For bank’s counter transactions (that is, bank customer transactions), banks can determine their RMB quotes against other currencies. There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot foreign exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand.

The method for determining the RMB–US dollar midrate is as follows: The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opening quote, asks for quotes from all market makers in the interbank foreign exchange market and uses their quoted prices as the calculation sample for the RMB–US dollar midrate. The quotes for the US dollar must refer to the closing price of the previous day and take into account foreign exchange supply and demand and changes in the exchange rates of the main international currencies. After eliminating the highest and lowest quotes, it takes the weighted average of the remaining market makers’ quotes and obtains the daily
The midrate of the RMB–US dollar is determined by the CFETS based on indicators including the transaction volume of the quoting parties in the interbank foreign exchange market and the circumstances of the quotes.

The method for determining the midrate of the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso, New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, and Thai baht is as follows:

The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opens, asks for quotes from market makers of the corresponding currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market, eliminates the highest and lowest quotes, takes the average of the remaining market makers’ quotes, and obtains the daily RMB midrates against the corresponding currencies.

The midrate against the Hong Kong dollar is determined by the CFETS through cross-rates based, respectively, on the day’s midrate of the RMB against the US dollar and the exchange rate for the US dollar against the Hong Kong dollar on international foreign exchange markets at 9:00 a.m.

The regional trading reference rates for the Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel are determined by the CFETS by asking for quotes from quoting banks before the opening quote and then taking a simple average of the quotes. The CFETS publishes its exchange rate index, and other RMB indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket. The number of currencies included in the CFETS RMB currency basket was increased from 13 to 24 in 2017. The new currencies account for about 21% of the new basket and are included as they have become directly traded in the onshore foreign exchange market in 2016.

Monetary aggregate target Yes.

The Law of the People’s Republic of China on the PBC stipulates that “the aim of monetary policies must be to maintain the stability of the value of the currency and thereby promote economic growth.”

The current reality in China requires that monetary policy take into account multiple objectives such as inflation, growth, employment, balance of payments, and also set aside space for financial stability and financial reforms. Therefore, in developing and implementing monetary policies, the PBC needs to consider multiple factors such as currency stability and economic growth and to properly adjust the weights of each objective according to key tasks of economic management.
In recent years, the PBC has continued to refine the modern monetary policy framework in pursuit of the ultimate goal of a stable currency. It explicitly maintains the intermediate objective of matching the growth in money supply and total social financing to the nominal economic growth rate and continues to refine the policy rate system involving a short-term rate (open market operations rate) and a medium-term rate (medium-term lending facility rate). This provides guidance to the market interest rates, which float around the pivotal policy rates. Together with robust mechanisms for the formation and transmission of market interest rates, and refined mechanisms for adjustments in money supply, these PBC systems form an organic whole, providing a positive monetary and financial environment for high-quality economic growth.

The trading prices against the Malaysian ringgit, Swiss franc, Korean won, UAE dirham, Saudi Arabian riyal, Hungarian forint, Polish zloty, Danish krone, Swedish krona, Norwegian krone, Turkish lira, and Mexican peso float within a ±5% range of the current day’s midrates of the RMB against these currencies. The trading prices of the RMB against the Russian ruble, South African rand, and Thai baht float within a ±10% range of their respective midrates on the current trading day. Effective March 11, 2022, the trading prices of the RMB against the Russian ruble float within a ±10% range (previously within ±5%) of the respective midrates on the current trading day.

In regional trading, the price of the RMB against the Kazakhstani tenge, the Mongolian tögrög, and the Cambodian riel floats within a 10% range of the respective reference rates.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  As of the end of 2021, 515 banks were qualified to engage in spot foreign exchange settlement and sales operations. Of these, 124 are qualified to initiate forward and swap transactions for their customers. Banks may determine their RMB exchange rates to the US dollar with their clients without any limit on the spread, based on market supply and demand.

In August 2008, the State Administration of Foreign Exchange (SAFE) launched a pilot project to license institutions to provide foreign currency conversion services to individuals. As of the end of 2021, there were 62 institutions across the country licensed to provide such services. These institutions are only permitted to handle banknote conversion transactions for individuals; they are not permitted to handle foreign currency payments and transfers, maintain accounts abroad, or engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the PBC. The licensed institutions may freely determine the currencies they trade unless otherwise required by the State, and set their exchange rates according to relevant regulations of the PBC and SAFE regarding banks’ exchange rates.

Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign...
wealth funds may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market, or they may apply for membership of the CFETS and then participate in the market through an agent. Foreign nonbank financial institutions can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate in the foreign currency interbank market through an agent.

Within the trading band, banks may independently decide the buying and selling prices for interbank market transactions based on market supply and demand. As of the end of 2021, there are 764 participants in the renminbi-foreign exchange market. Direct trading of the following foreign currencies against the renminbi has been launched on the interbank foreign exchange market.

The interbank foreign exchange market launched direct trading of the RMB against Malaysian ringgit (August 19, 2010), Russian ruble (November 22, 2010), Thai baht (originally a regional trading currency, direct trading began on February 5, 2018), Japanese yen (June 1, 2012), Australian dollar (April 10, 2013), New Zealand dollar (March 19, 2014), pound sterling (June 19, 2014), euro (September 30, 2014), Singapore dollar (October 28, 2014), Swiss francs (November 10, 2015), South African rand (June 20, 2016), Korean won (June 27, 2016), UAE dirham (September 26, 2016), Saudi Arabian riyal (September 26, 2016), Hungarian forint, Polish zloty, Danish krone, Swedish krona, Norwegian krone, Turkish lira, and Mexican peso (all on December 12, 2016).

The midrate of the trading band does not need to be between bank’s bid and ask price. Market makers propose their quotes based on market prices.

Over the counter Yes.
The interbank market may operate over the counter.

Brokerage Yes.
The interbank market may operate by means of a bid-offer method.

Market making Yes.
Effective January 8, 2021, the SAFE has adjusted the market-making system to better exploit the potential of existing market makers. It no longer assigns market makers to specific products, but encourages market makers to expand their capacity for trading and market making across all product categories. It has also adjusted its mechanisms for testing, licensing, and delicensing market-making organizations.
Previously, the SAFE classifies foreign exchange market makers as spot trading market makers, forward and swap trading market makers, and comprehensive market makers.

As of the end of 2021, 25 banks have been approved as market makers on the interbank markets. Market makers may operate in foreign exchange spot markets, futures markets, swap markets, and forward markets, depending on their capacity and capabilities. As of the end of 2021, there are currently 20 banks providing market-making services in the RMB spot trade foreign exchange market; 17 in the options market; and 5 in the swap market.

Banks may offer their customers products such as RMB–foreign currency forward transactions, foreign exchange swaps, and currency swaps and options.

Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market, or they may apply for membership of the CFETS and then participate in the market through an agent. Foreign nonbank financial institutions can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate in the foreign currency interbank market through an agent.

Financial institutions (including finance companies) that sell foreign exchange forward to their clients must deposit foreign exchange risk reserves. The risk reserve ratio is currently 0%. The calculation should be based on the amount of contracted forward foreign exchange sales of the previous month, and the reserves should be deposited in dollars with the PBC. The holding period of the foreign exchange risk reserve is one year, and the interest rate is tentatively set at 0.

Domestic institutions approved by the SAFE for derivatives business of RMB against foreign exchange for customers are allowed to handle foreign exchange derivatives business for foreign institutional investors if they meet the conditions for settlement agents in the interbank market set out in the Announcement No. 3 of the PBC [2016].

Official cover of forward operations

No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

Yes.

Pursuant to the Regulations of the People’s Republic of China on the Administration of Foreign Exchange, for all cross-border trade (including border trade), there are no restrictions on the foreign currencies that can be used. In cross-border transactions, contractual parties may agree to use freely convertible currencies or RMB. When transnational trading companies carry out cross-border trade with foreign trading agencies, they may value and settle accounts in freely convertible currencies or RMB. When transnational trading companies carry out cross-border trade with foreign trading agencies, they may value and settle accounts in freely convertible currencies or RMB.
Enterprise and individuals in all regions of China may settle cross-border transactions for current account items using RMB because the deregulation of personal cross-border receipts and payments of renminbi under current accounts became complete under Yin Fa [2018] No. 3.

RMB may be used for both outward and inward FDI. Eligible institutions outside mainland China may invest in China subject to conditions. Qualified investors that meet the conditions listed in PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, sell investment products to clients according to law and in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may engage in bond and spot bond trading approved by the PBC on the interbank bond market. All types of foreign institutional investors can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, bond forwards, forward interest rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on hedging needs, without investment limits. RMB clearing banks may participate in the domestic interbank lending market. Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out spot securities trading and bond repo business in the interbank bond market. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct transactions permitted by the PBC on the interbank market, including spot bond trading, bond repos, and bond lending, without restriction on the amounts. The financing ratio of domestic correspondent banks with respect to the renminbi accounts of foreign participating banks must not exceed 3% of the domestic correspondent bank’s total renminbi deposits at the end of the previous year.

China Securities Regulatory Commission (CSRC), PBC, and SAFE Decree [2006] No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments in which the PBC permits qualified foreign institutional investors (QFIs)/RMB qualified foreign institutional investors (RQFIs) to invest. QFIs/RQFIs may invest in domestic securities and futures markets, including: shares, depositary receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the National Equities Exchange and Quotations (NEEQ); products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIs/RQFIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits QFIs/RQFIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC. Announcement Concerning Matters Related to Further Facilitating Investment in Chinese Bond Markets by Foreign Institutional Investors (PBC, CSRC, SAFE Announcement [2022] No. 4) specifies that foreign institutional investors granted access to the interbank bond market may invest and trade in the bond market either directly or through a market connect. Domestic banks, securities, and insurance institutions may invest in external capital markets as qualified domestic institutional investors (QDIIs) or RMB qualified domestic institutional investors (RQDIIs). QDIIs have an overall total limit on the size of their investments (currently US$180 billion), but RQDIIs have no size limit. However, they need to invest in security products denominated in RMB. As of June 30, 2022, a total of 176 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$159.729 billion.

On April 30, 2018, the PBC published Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81, perfecting and clarifying that QDIIs can use RMB to invest in offshore financial products valued in RMB. On May 2, 2018, the Shanghai headquarters of the PBC published the supporting Shanghai Headquarters Notice (2018) No. 1, clarifying requirements related to macroprudential management and information disclosures of RQDIIs.

Hong Kong institutions and individuals may invest in domestic A shares through Hong Kong brokerage agencies and institutions (northbound Shanghai stock connect and Shenzhen stock connect), and domestic institutions and individuals may invest in Hong Kong shares through domestic securities companies (southbound HK stock connect). The Shanghai–Hong Kong and Shenzhen–Hong Kong stock connects have a daily cap on investments, and investment targets are limited.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, since 2013 the SAFE has launched a qualified domestic investment enterprise (QDIE) pilot scheme in Shenzhen, and in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao, has launched qualified domestic limited partnership (QDLP) pilots.

These programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The QDLP/QDIE schemes are currently pilot operations; the SAFE exercises regional quota controls, and the competent local financial administrative authorities have led the formation of joint review teams charged with managing the qualifications of qualified institutions and individual institution quotas within the pilot regions. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In December 2019, US$5 billion was added to the QDLP/QDIE quota for the pilot in Beijing. In November 2020, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Shenzhen, Shanghai, and Beijing. In December 2020, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen) and Jiangsu and US$3 billion for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Qingdao. In June 2021, US$1 billion was added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Ningbo.

Foreign CBs, monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may initiate bond forward and interest rate swaps, forward rate agreements, and other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC without limitation on the amount.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments Yes.
Qualified institutions that meet the requirements of PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including all types of financial institutions that are legally registered and established outside China, including commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products the aforementioned financial institutions issue to clients legally and in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may carry out spot bond trading on the interbank market, and can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, forward bond, forward rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on hedging needs, with no investment limit. Foreign institutional investors granted access to the interbank bond market may engage in spot transactions of securities, derivatives transactions of such securities for the purpose of risk management, and other transactions as approved by the PBC and the CSRC.

Domestic correspondent banks, foreign clearing banks, and foreign participant banks can process renminbi purchase and sales operations for capital and financial accounts based on cross-border renminbi settlement needs for current account items, direct investment, and approved securities investments; transaction varieties include spot, forward, foreign exchange swaps, currency swaps, and options.

Bank financial institutions initiating derivative product trading operations must be approved by the China Banking and Insurance Regulatory Commission (CBIRC) and be subject to supervision and examination by the CBIRC.

On March 26, 2018, formal trading of RMB-denominated crude oil futures targeting domestic and foreign investors began on the Shanghai Energy Exchange.

On May 4, 2018, foreign investors were introduced into iron ore futures trading on the Dalian Commodity Exchange.

Since November 30, 2018, foreign investors were formally introduced into purified terephthalic acid futures on the Zhengzhou Commodity Exchange.

On November 19, 2020, formal trading of RMB-denominated international copper futures targeting domestic and foreign investors began on the Shanghai Energy Exchange.

On December 22, 2020, foreign investors were introduced into palm oil futures trading on the Dalian Commodity Exchange.

On June 18, 2021, foreign investors were introduced into palm oil options trading on the Dalian Commodity Exchange. On June 21, 2021, foreign investors were introduced into crude oil options trading on the Shanghai International Energy Exchange.

Credit operations

Yes. RMB cross-border lending by domestic institutions must be registered with the local foreign exchange regulator. The sum of their offshore RMB and foreign currency loans should not exceed 30% of shareholder’s equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year. Additional requirements on the loan’s objectives, funding sources, lending period, usage, withdrawal, etc., are also in place.

Domestic correspondent banks may offer RMB financing accounts to banks participating in foreign RMB operations within certain limits and maturities. Domestic enterprises and financial institutions may, subject to macroprudential policies, attract RMB funds from abroad. Domestic parent banks or head offices may provide RMB liquidity support to foreign RMB clearing banks. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business.

Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets. They do not need to obtain approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance.

Domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement.

Multinational enterprise groups, in accordance with their own operational and management needs, may engage in currency (RMB/foreign) pooling transactions with member enterprises both domestically and abroad.

(1) Effective January 5, 2021, the macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas loans by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5.

(2) Effective February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas loans has been simplified. Loans repaid ahead of schedule are not counted in the loan quota for domestic companies making overseas renminbi loans; the currency conversion factor has been adjusted to 0.5.

(3) Effective February 4, 2021, refinements have been made to the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises. Domestic enterprises may open multiple renminbi accounts if required to handle a single renminbi loan borrowed overseas; they may also use a single renminbi account to handle receipts and payments connected to multiple overseas renminbi loans.

(4) Effective April 18, 2022, non-financial enterprises may use a single foreign currency account to receive loan payments from multiple separate overseas loans.

Approval required  Yes.  Export enterprises may open foreign exchange accounts abroad to deposit proceeds from bona fide and legitimate export transactions with SAFE registration. To deposit the foreign exchange export revenues abroad, enterprises should meet the following requirements: (1) Export revenues must be legally compliant and accurately reported; they must have a genuine need to make payments overseas in compliance with relevant regulations. (2) They must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years.

To deposit foreign exchange revenues abroad, services and trade enterprises should meet the following requirements: (1) Foreign currency revenues from services or trade must be legally compliant and accurately reported; they must have a genuine need to make payments overseas in compliance with relevant regulations. (2) They must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years. Domestic group companies in compliance with the conditions above may nominate a single corporate entity to manage all overseas receipts and payments for other domestic group members that make overseas deposits.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad  Yes.  Resident entities may deposit their RMB proceeds received from RMB cross-border transactions in their offshore accounts without SAFE approval/registration.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency  Yes.  When making external payments, institutions and individuals must present valid evidence and commercial documents to designated foreign exchange banks to convert domestic currency to foreign currency. Current account transactions do not require permission, but capital account transactions require permission or registration; cross-border payments for direct investment require registration with SAFE or a bank. The registration serves information collection and statistical purposes. For cases subject to registration, institutions need only to comply with the relevant laws and regulations. Because approval involves market access, the authorities have the discretion to grant approval (for example, QDII quota). Facilitated exchange annual quota controls are in place for the settlement of foreign exchange by individuals and the purchase of foreign exchange by domestic individuals. The annual facilitated quota is the equivalent of US$50,000 an individual a year. Within the annual facilitated quota, these transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification; for current accounts, transactions that do not use the facilitated quota can be completed at the bank based on valid identification and documentation of the existence of a trading quota; under capital accounts, such transactions are completed in accordance with the relevant regulations concerning individual foreign exchange controls for capital accounts.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. Foreign individuals with valid identification documents may open foreign exchange savings accounts in banks. Domestic banks that open foreign exchange accounts for foreign institutions should verify the documents provided such as their proof of legal registration abroad. Pursuant to the Notice of the SAFE Concerning Questions Related to the Administration of Foreign Exchange Accounts of Foreign Institutions, without approval, funds in the domestic foreign exchange accounts of foreign institutions (as referred to in this document—institutions legally registered and established outside China (including the Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwan regions) must not be directly or covertly used for foreign exchange settlements.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign institutions in pilot free trade zones are permitted to settle foreign exchange using their domestic foreign exchange accounts. Where RMB is remitted onshore for use after settlements of foreign exchange, domestic banks must first review the valid commercial documents and vouchers of domestic institutions and domestic individuals concerned before processing the transactions, in accordance with the relevant provisions on cross-border transactions.

Approval required Yes. On registration by SAFE or a bank, foreign investors may establish foreign exchange accounts to retain foreign exchange related to direct investment.

Domestic currency accounts Yes. Hong Kong and Macao RMB business clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts with the PBC; other RMB clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts at their China head office or at branches designated by their China head offices. Domestic correspondent banks may open RMB interbank current accounts for foreign participating banks and act as agents for foreign participating banks to carry out cross-border RMB payments. Account financing is also available on correspondent bank accounts. Foreign participating banks may use RMB funds from RMB cross-border trade and investment business including RMB funds in domestic interbank current accounts to invest in China’s interbank bond market subject to conditions.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Foreign individuals may convert and transfer abroad RMB (1) obtained from their legitimate current transactions in China and (2) originally converted but not yet completely used, in accordance with the relevant SAFE regulations.

Nonresident enterprises may convert to foreign exchange RMB funds deposited on settlement accounts in domestic banks and transfer abroad. Domestic correspondent banks and nonresident clearing banks may process trade of goods and services and direct investments for nonresident participating banks and enter China’s interbank foreign exchange market to clear their positions.

Foreign institutions issuing RMB bonds in China may follow rules and open nonresident RMB accounts to deposit proceeds from bond issuance.

Import taxes and/or tariffs
Yes.
Based on the Regulations of the People’s Republic of China on Import and Export Tariffs, import tariffs may follow the MFN rates, agreed rates, preferential rates, regular rates, quota rates, or provisional rates.

MFN duty rates apply to imported goods originating in WTO member countries that are subject to the MFN clause, import goods originating in countries or regions with which China has bilateral trade agreements for reciprocal MFN treatment, and goods originating in the customs territory of China.

Agreed duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions with which China has regional trade agreements that include preferential duty clauses.

Special preferential duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions with which China has trade agreements that include special preferential duty clauses.

General duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions other than those with MFN rates, agreed rates, and preferential rates and to imported goods of undetermined origin. Import tariff quota controls are in effect for wheat, corn, rice, sugar, cotton, wool, wool top, and chemical fertilizer, and within the tariff quota, the tariff quota duty rate applies to imported goods subject to tariff quotas. (The tariff rate for imports subject to tariff quota depends on quantity imported. A lower tariff rate applies to imports below a certain threshold volume and a higher tariff applies to imports above the threshold volume. There are no quantitative restrictions.) Provisional rates may be applied to imported goods subject to MFN rates, agreed rates, preferential rates, and tariff quota rates for specified time periods.

Taxes collected through the exchange system

Yes.
In accordance with the relevant laws, regulations, and China’s WTO accession protocol, state trading is in effect for importing activities involving the following products: grain (wheat, corn, rice), crude oil, oil products, sugar, tobacco, chemical fertilizers, and cotton.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements
Yes.
Foreign exchange proceeds of resident entities may be repatriated to China or deposited abroad; the conditions and terms for deposit abroad are regulated by the SAFE based on the international balance of payments status and foreign exchange management needs. Domestic entities with bona fide and legitimate export revenues and external payment needs in line with foreign exchange regulations, and which have not violated the foreign exchange regulations in the past two years, may open accounts abroad and deposit the proceeds from bona fide and legitimate transactions after registration with SAFE. The registration needs to be revised in case the total funds deposited abroad annually exceed the amount of funds originally registered with SAFE. Resident entities may freely determine the period for keeping their deposit abroad, except when SAFE requires the repatriation of the funds because the entity violated the regulations. The RMB revenue of resident entities and individuals may be repatriated to China or deposited externally without PBC or | Regulations for non-trade payments are the same for foreign-owned and domestically owned enterprises. There are separate rules for individuals. Facilitated exchange annual quota controls are in place for the settlement of foreign exchange by individuals and the purchase of foreign exchange by domestic individuals. The annual facilitated quota is the equivalent of US$50,000 an individual a year. Within the annual facilitated quota, such transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification; for current accounts, transactions that do not use the facilitated quota can be completed at the bank based on valid identification and documentation of the existence of a trading quota.

Trade-related payments | Yes. |
| Payments in foreign exchange can be made directly through authorized banks by presenting valid proof and commercial bills. No transaction evidence is needed for trade-related RMB cross-border payments. On the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence,” banks may effect current account RMB cross-border settlement according to the payment or receipt instructions submitted by domestic enterprises.

Receipts may be repatriated or deposited overseas.
When a single service trade transaction (including transport, travel, communication, building installation, labor contracting, insurance, financial, computer and information, exclusive right to use and franchise sports, cultural and entertainment services, other commercial services, government services) exceeds the equivalent of US$50,000, the resident payer must submit a “Taxation Filing Form for Foreign Payments under Trade in Services and Other Items” to the financial institution making the transfer.
Effective June 29, 2021, when multiple overseas payments are required for a single contract, domestic organizations and individuals need only file before the first payment.

The Taxation Filing Form does not need to be completed or submitted for the following foreign payments with foreign exchange by domestic institutions and individuals:
(1) Travel, conference, product exhibition, and other expenses incurred overseas by domestic institutions;
(2) Office expenses incurred by the overseas representative offices of domestic institutions and project payments for projects contracted overseas by domestic institutions;
(3) Import and export trade commissions, insurance premiums, and compensation paid overseas by domestic institutions;

(4) International transportation payments that overseas institutions obtain under import trade;

(5) Insurance premiums, insurance benefits, and other relevant expenses under the insurance item;

(6) Repair fees, fuel costs, port charges, and other expenses incurred overseas by domestic institutions engaging in transportation or distant fishery;

(7) Group charges of domestic travel agencies for overseas tourism and boarding, travel, and other relevant expenses paid for reservations on behalf of tourists;

(8) Income or revenues that the Asian Development Bank or International Finance Corporation under the World Bank Group obtain in China, including profits distributed from and income from transfer of shares in joint ventures in which they invest, revenues from leasing out or transferring property (including real estate) in China, and interest on loans to institutions in China;

(9) Interest under foreign government loans (onlending) (including mixed foreign government loans (onlending)) and international financial organization loans provided to China by foreign governments and international financial organizations. The term “international financial organizations” herein includes but is not limited to the IMF, the World Bank Group, the International Development Association, the International Fund for Agricultural Development, and the EIB;

(10) Interest on the foreign financing of designated foreign exchange banks or finance companies, such as overseas loans, overseas interbank lending, overseas agency payments, and other debts;

(11) Foreign aid funds gratuitously donated by a state organ of China at or above the provincial level;

(12) Legally obtained dividends, bonuses, interests, or proceeds obtained from the sale of securities paid by a domestic securities company or a depository and clearing company to an overseas institution or individual;

(13) Foreign exchange for personal use of overseas education, tourism, and family visits by domestic individuals;

(14) Remittance refund under service trade, proceeds, and current transfers by domestic institutions and individuals;

(15) Effective June 29, 2021, domestic reinvestment of lawful revenues earned by foreign investors from FDI;

(16) Effective June 29, 2021, payments for non-trade and non-profit purposes made in compliance with an approved budget by a government authority, agency, or social organization;

(17) Other cases prescribed by the authorities.

The formalities for the outward remittance of earnings on domestic securities investments by QFIIIs and RQFIIIs were greatly simplified, no longer requiring the submission of such materials as a special audit report issued by a Chinese certified public accountant (CPA) or tax filing certificate; these have been replaced with a letter of commitment to complete tax filings.

CSRC, PBC, and SAFE Decree No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments QFII and RQFII can invest in. QFIIIs/RQFIIIs may invest in domestic securities and futures markets, including: shares, depositary receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the NEEQ; products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIIIs/RQFIIIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits...
QFIIs/RQFIIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC.

Investment in domestic securities by QFIIs/RQFIIs or other overseas investors are subject to the following restrictions on equity shares: (1) No single QFII/RQFII or other overseas investor may hold more than a 10% share of the total shares of listed company and (2) all QFIIs/RQFIIs or other overseas investors may not hold a total that exceeds 30% a company’s A shares, or of all of its shares listed on domestic exchanges.

Foreign investors may make strategic investments in A shares of domestically listed companies, but are subject to the following restrictions. (1) Investors must (a) be legally incorporated and operating foreign legal persons or other organizations that are financially sound and have good credit and mature management experience; (b) have actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million, parent company actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million, or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million; (c) have a sound governance structure and good internal control systems with standardized operations; and (d) have received no material penalties from domestic or foreign regulatory agencies in the past three years (including the parent company). (2) A shares of the listed company must be acquired through acquisition under contract or acquisition through issuance of new shares by the listed company or by other means set forth in national laws and regulations. (3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company’s shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of special industries with specific requirements or with approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors’ shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulations, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulations. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations.

In August 2018, the CSRC amended the Measures for the Administration of Equity Incentives of Listed Companies, permitting listed companies to extend equity incentives to non-Chinese employees working outside China as well as those working in China. The Measures for the Administration of Registration and Settlement of Securities were also amended at the same time, permitting foreign natural persons working outside China to open trading accounts for A shares. In February 2019, the PBC and SAFE issued the Regulation on the Administration of Funds for Equity Incentives for Foreign Employees of Domestic Listed Companies, setting out the principles for the administration of funds used in equity incentive plans for the foreign employees of domestic listed companies.

Since November 2014, investors from the Mainland and Hong Kong SAR can invest in Hong Kong and Shanghai stock markets, respectively (SH–HK stock connect), under certain conditions and within the limit jointly published by the CSRC and the Hong Kong Securities and Futures Commission. Since December 2016, when certain conditions are met, investors from the Hong Kong SAR may invest in the Shenzhen stock market and vice versa (SZ–HK stock connect). The overall quota for the SH–HK stock connect was abolished in August 2016, while SZ–HK stock connect was established without overall limits, but both schemes have daily quotas: for the Shanghai and Shenzhen component RMB 52 billion and for the Hong Kong component RMB 42 billion.

Foreign investors may complete foreign exchange fund exchange and foreign exchange risk hedging operations at Hong Kong renminbi clearing banks or participating banks, incorporated into renminbi purchase and sales operations.

Global Depository Receipts (GDR): Based on the objective of hedging risk, overseas securities institutions engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell underlying stocks and permitted investment products corresponding to depositary receipts in accordance with the requirements of the relevant competent authorities. The CSRC sets an upper bound on the total level of GDR assets that may circulate on the domestic market. The first GDR was issued by Huatai Securities on June 17, 2019, and has been eligible for cross-border conversion since October 17, 2019. The Measures for the Administration of the Cross-Border Funds for Depositary Receipts (Provisional) (PBC and SAFE Announcement [2019] No. 8) were published on May 27, 2019.

The CSRC launched a pilot program in March 2018 for the issuance of Chinese Depository Receipts (CDRs) by innovative enterprises, making arrangements for the issuance, public offering, and trading of CDRs, setting forth the basic conditions and procedures for CDR offerings, and producing the general requirements for the use of CDRs to engage in refinancing. Subsequently, the PBC and the SAFE issued regulations concerning the administration of cross-border funding of depositary receipts.

In October 2018, the CSRC published the Regulatory Provisions of the CSRC on the Interconnection Depositary Receipt Business of the Shanghai Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange (Provisional) (CSRC Announcement [2018] No. 30), clarifying the institutional arrangements related to CDRs under the terms of Shanghai–London connect, including review and approval of offerings, listing and trading, information disclosures, cross-border exchange, and registration and clearing.

Effective February 11, 2022, as part of the project of opening up capital markets, the CSRC expanded and enhanced the Shanghai-London Stock Connect. In China, the mechanism was extended to the Shenzhen Stock Exchange; overseas, it was extended to the Swiss and German markets. Regulatory Provisions of the CSRC on the Interconnection Depositary Receipt Business of the Shanghai Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange (Provisional) was amended; the amended regulation has been renamed Provisions on the Supervision and Administration of Depositary Receipts under the Stock Connect Scheme between Domestic and Overseas Stock Exchange and was published and promulgated on February 11, 2022.

Capital raised by foreign issuers of domestic CDRs based on new securities can be remitted abroad in renminbi or foreign currencies and may also be retained for use domestically. In accordance with the dividends and allotments distributed by a foreign issuer, the domestic depository trustee of CDRs may provide corresponding services to the holders of CDRs and process the receipts, payments, and currency conversions of the related funds.

Overseas-listed companies controlled by foreign shareholders may repurchase their overseas-listed and traded shares, provided the SAFE verifies the source of the funds and approves payment abroad.
Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. A solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance companies’ investments in equity-type assets (previously no more than 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company’s own funds. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period. A single investment in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Insurance fund offshore investment in equity-type assets includes equity instruments or products such as common stock, preferred stock, global depositary receipts, American depositary receipts, and equity of unlisted enterprises. When insurance institutions invest in foreign shares, the shares should be traded on the main board of the securities exchange in a specified country or region, or on the Hong Kong ChiNext board. Direct investments in the equity of unlisted enterprises are limited to equity of enterprises in the financial services, pension, health care, energy, resources, automotive services, and modern agriculture sectors.

On approval, qualified fund management firms and other securities management organizations may, within limits, combine foreign exchange funds and RMB funds of resident entities and individuals and use the funds to engage in portfolio investment, including in stocks. QDIIs, including banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may use foreign exchange to purchase stock and other investment instruments as permitted by regulations abroad within their respective SAFE-approved investment quotas and regulatory limits. As of June 30, 2022, a total of 176 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$159.729 billion.

Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired and must be invested in RMB-denominated products in foreign financial markets.

The market value of securities issued by the same institution (except governments and international financial organizations) held by a single fund or collective plan may not exceed 10% of the net value of the fund or collective plan; funds and collective schemes must not buy securities with the intention to control or influence the institution that issues the security or its management. The entire fund or collective plan managed by the same domestic institutional investor may not hold more than 10% of the total volume of the same institution’s voting securities. Index funds may not be subject to these restrictions.
On registration with the SAFE, domestic employees of domestic affiliates of foreign listed companies may participate in these companies’ equity incentive programs and purchase shares or options under the terms of such programs.

China mainland and Hong Kong investors may invest in the Hong Kong stock market and Shanghai/Shenzhen stock markets, respectively, under certain conditions and subject to limits.

Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81 further standardized matters related to the investment products, use of funds, macroprudential management, and information reporting for foreign securities investments of qualified renminbi investors.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in additional to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao since 2013. QDLP/QDIE programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In December 2019, US$5 billion was added to the QDLP/QDIE quota for the pilot in Beijing. In November 2020, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Shenzhen, Shanghai, and Beijing. In December 2020, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen) and Jiangsu, and US$3 billion for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Qingdao. In June 2021, US$1 billion was added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Ningbo.

CDRs: Based on the objective of hedging risk, domestic securities companies engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell the underlying stocks for depositary receipts and their permitted investment products; the balance of assets in overseas markets must not exceed the cap set by the CSRC.

Sale or issue abroad by residents  Yes.

Approval by the CSRC and registration with the SAFE are required for the issuance of shares or depositary receipts abroad by resident enterprises. Funds originating from such issuance are not subject to the restrictions required for repatriation, but may be converted to RMB and used in China.

Reminbi capital raised by domestic enterprises by issuing stocks abroad can be remitted into and used in China.

Bonds or other debt securities  Yes.

Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out spot bond trading and bond repo business on the interbank bond market. The PBC or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, bond loans, bond forward and interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements without restriction on the amounts.

Various types of financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products issued by the aforementioned financial institutions to clients in compliance... with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may conduct spot bond trading on the interbank bond market and can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, forward bond, forward rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on their hedging needs, with no investment limit.

CSRC, PBC, and SAFE Decree [2006] No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic securities and futures markets, including: shares, depositary receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the NEEQ; products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC.

These investors may also apply to participate in new stock offerings, convertible bond offerings, additional share offerings, allotments of shares, and other similar type investments. Such investments are subject to the upper limits on individual institutions.

Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may participate in all listed transactions without limits on the amounts through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a commercial bank with international clearing qualifications and clearing agent qualifications, and through direct investment.

Foreign participating banks of RMB purchasing and selling business, after applying to the CFETS, can become members of the interbank foreign exchange market. They have access to all listed transaction products with no quota limits, but the transaction context is limited to the RMB purchasing and selling business. The arrangement of foreign RMB clearing banks was at the beginning a supportive arrangement for the RMB business in Hong Kong SAR and Macau SAR in 2003. In 2009, with the pilot program of cross-border RMB business, the arrangement was expanded. Direct investment by foreign investors in the interbank bond market has been gradually developed since 2016.

Indirect investment can be made in the domestic bond market by foreign investors through the bond market connect, with subject bonds comprising all bond types that can be traded and circulate on the domestic interbank bond market.

Effective June 30, 2022, foreign institutional investors that have been granted access to the interbank bond market may trade directly on the market or through the bond market connect. This arrangement allows investors from mainland China and overseas to participate in each other’s bond markets. “Northbound trading” has been permitted since July 2017, allowing investors from Hong Kong and other regions to invest in the China interbank bond market; “southbound trading” was launched in September 2021, enabling domestic institutions to invest in Hong Kong and global bond markets.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents
Yes.

Foreign governmental institutions, international development institutions, foreign financial institution corporations, and non-financial enterprise corporations can all issue RMB bonds on China’s bond market. Of these, foreign financial institution corporations issuing bonds on the national interbank bond market should be approved by the PBC; foreign governmental institutions and international development institutions issuing relevant bonds on the national interbank bond market, and foreign non-financial enterprise corporations issuing non-financial corporate debt financing instruments on the national interbank bond market should apply to register with the National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors.

The National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors issued guidelines that apply to issuances of renminbi bonds by foreign non-financial institutions, foreign government institutions, and international development agencies.

On December 2015, the CSRC launched the pilot program to issue Panda Bonds on the exchange bond market; foreign institutions can issue Panda Bonds on the exchanges.

Purchase abroad by residents
Yes.

QDIIs, which include banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may purchase bonds abroad, within their respective SAFE-approved foreign exchange quotas and regulatory limits.

For QDIIs, the net amount of funds remitted abroad by banks, securities dealers, and insurance companies for investment in securities may not exceed their approved investment limits.

Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period. A single investment in a single legal entity (domestic or overseas) may not exceed 20% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter.

When insurance funds make offshore investments in fixed-income products such as government bonds, government-backed bonds, international financial institution bonds, corporate bonds, or convertible bonds, the currency of denomination need not be a major international currency; bonds should have a BBB- or BBB-equivalent rating from an internationally recognized ratings agency. In the event that an issue is exempt from credit rating requirements in accordance with regulations, the issuer should have a credit rating not less than this bond credit rating requirement. Bonds issued abroad by the Chinese government are not subject to credit rating restrictions. Convertible bonds should be listed and traded on the required main board market of national or regional securities exchanges. As of June 30, 2022, a total of 176 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$159.729 billion.
Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired. RMB funds cannot be remitted offshore to purchase foreign exchange.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. In December 2020, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen) and Jiangsu, and US$3 billion for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Qingdao. In June 2021, US$1 billion was added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Ningbo.

Effective September 24, 2021, “southbound trading” bond market connect was launched, enabling domestic institutions to invest in Hong Kong and global bond markets. Enterprises and financial institutions that issue bonds abroad with maturities in excess of one year must apply in advance to the National Development and Reform Commission (NDRC) for filing and registration. Domestic financial institution legal persons may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Domestic financial institution legal persons may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval.

Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China, as well as domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China), may freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement.

The macroprudential adjustment parameter for financial institutions and enterprises lowered to 1 from 1.25 for financial institutions and enterprises on December 11, 2020, and January 7, 2021, respectively.

As defined in Notice of the PBC Concerning Matters Related to the Comprehensive Macropujdential Management of Cross-Border Financing (Yin Fa [2017] No. 9), this applies to companies other than finance companies and does not include government financing platforms or real estate developers. The financial institutions to which it applies include all financial institution legal persons approved by the PBC, CBRC, CSRC, and CIRC.

QFIIs/RQFIIs may purchase money market funds. QFIIs/RQFIIs may directly participate in investment transactions in interbank bond markets. Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks with quotas to invest in the interbank bond market may carry out bond repo business in the interbank bond market.
market to fund offshore RMB business. The limit on financing through repos is tied to the bonds held onshore. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, bond loans, bond forward and interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements without restriction on the amounts. An archival filing requirement is implemented instead of the previous quota approval. Various types of financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products issued legally and in compliance with rules and regulations to clients by the aforementioned financial institutions, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may conduct spot bond trading and other interbank bond market transactions approved by PBC on the interbank bond market without restriction on the investment amount.

GDR: Based on the objective of hedging risk, overseas securities institutions engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell currency management instruments and hedge-based stock market risk and exchange rate risk financial products or instruments in accordance with the requirements of the relevant competent authorities. The CSRC sets an upper bound on the total level of GDR assets that may circulate on the domestic market.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Foreign issuers that meet the conditions in Yin Zong Bu [2015] No. 72 may issue cross-border interbank CDs in the Shanghai Pilot Free Trade Zone.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. QDIIs may purchase money market instruments permitted by regulation, subject to their respective foreign exchange quotas and regulatory limits. RQDIIs may invest in renminbi-denominated products in foreign financial markets. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Foreign investment of insurance funds in money market products includes money market instruments or products with maturities of not more than one year, such as commercial paper, bankers acceptances, large negotiable CDs, reverse repo agreements, short-term government bonds, and overnight interbank borrowings. When insurance funds invest in securities investment funds, the funds should be approved or registered by the specified country or region’s securities regulator; fund managers must comply with relevant regulations; they must be able to supply verifiable performance records covering a history of no less than three years; the investment mix must be simple and clear, with underlying assets that are clear and compliant with relevant regulations; currency market funds must have an AAA or equivalent rating.

CDRs: Based on the objectives of cross-border conversion and hedging risk, domestic securities companies engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell underlying stocks and permitted investment products corresponding to depositary receipts in accordance with the requirements of the relevant competent authorities; total investment in assets on overseas markets must not exceed the upper bound set by the CSRC.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. Under the framework of the comprehensive macroprudential management of cross-border financing, the PBC and SAFE will no longer enforce advance review and preapproval requirements for the issuance of foreign debt, but each financial institution and enterprise will follow uniform and clear rules to estimate a cap on the financing-risk-weighted balance of cross-border financing linked to their capital or net assets, and the financial institution or enterprise will be permitted to engage in cross-border RMB or foreign currency financing within that limit. At the same time, the PBC will set and adjust the relevant parameters based on macro control requirements to make countercyclical adjustments to the cross-border financing of financial institutions and enterprises. This covers all domestic institutions that take in funds in local or foreign currency from nonresidents and includes on- and off-balance-sheet financing.

On collective investment securities Yes. CSRC, PBC, and SAFE Decree [2006] No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic publicly traded investment funds, securities and futures institutions, and private investment funds established lawfully by a private investment fund manager registered with the Asset Management Association of China.

Cross-Border Wealth Management Connect: Effective September 10, 2021, Hong Kong and Macau residents may purchase wealth management products from mainland banks in the Guangdong/Hong Kong/Macau Greater Bay Area, in compliance with the rules of this pilot project. Effective June 24, 2022, exchange trade open-ended funds are included in the interconnection mechanism between China and Hong Kong, China.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. Hong Kong public placement fund products that meet requirements may be publicly offered for sale in mainland China subject to registration with the CSRC.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. QDIIs may purchase collective investment securities abroad, subject to their respective foreign exchange quotas and regulatory limits. RQDIIs may invest in renminbi-denominated products in foreign financial markets according to regulations.

Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. A solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance companies’ investments in equity-type assets (previously no more than 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company’s own funds. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed

Wealth funds may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market, or they may apply for membership of the CFETS and then participate in the market through an agent. Foreign nonbank financial institutions can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate in the foreign currency interbank market through an agent.

Foreign CBs, monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may initiate bond forwards and interest rate swaps, forward interest rate agreements, and other interbank market transactions approved by the PBC. Qualified institutional investors that meet the requirements of PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including all types of financial institutions legally registered outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, and the investment products legally issued to clients by said financial institutions, as well as other medium- to long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may initiate spot trading on the interbank bond market and may engage in bond lending, bond forward, forward interest rate agreement, and interest rate swap transactions.

Financial institutions (including finance companies) that sell foreign exchange forwards to their clients must deposit foreign exchange risk reserves. The risk reserve ratio for foreign exchange forwards is currently 0%. The calculation should be based on the amount of contracted forward foreign exchange sales of the previous month and the reserves should be deposited in dollars with the PBC. The holding period of the foreign exchange risk reserve is one year and the interest rate is tentatively set at 0.

Effective January 5, 2021, the macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas loans by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5.

Effective February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas loans has been simplified. Loans repaid ahead of schedule are not counted in the loan quota for domestic companies making overseas renminbi loans; the currency conversion factor has been adjusted to 0.5.

Effective March 1, 2022, domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Previously, prior approval was required.

The outstanding overseas loans of domestic banks shall not exceed the upper limit determined by its net Tier 1 capital (calculated as working capital for domestic branches of foreign banks), the leverage ratio of overseas loans, and the macroprudential adjustment parameters. In principle, overseas loans issued by domestic banks may be used for relevant expenses within the scope of operation of overseas enterprises and shall not be used for the following purposes: securities investment or repayment of overseas debts under Domestic Guarantees for Foreign Loans; transactions without authentic trade background or other forms of speculative arbitrage transactions; and the repatriation of funds to China through financing provided to domestic entities, equity investment, etc. If the overseas loan is used for overseas investment, it should comply with the regulations of the relevant domestic authorities on overseas investment.

To residents from nonresidents

Yes.
Enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their net assets. They do not need to obtain approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance.

Effective February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises has been updated. Domestic enterprises which needed to open multiple renminbi accounts to handle separate renminbi loans may now instead use a single renminbi account to receive funds released from multiple loans.

Effective April 18, 2022, non-financial enterprises may use a single foreign currency account to receive loan payments from multiple separate overseas loans.

Financial credits

To residents from nonresidents: Yes.

Cross-border guarantees by residents and nonresidents are not subject to SAFE approval. Under certain conditions, domestic institutions may accept guarantees offered by foreign institutions or individuals. Foreign non-financial institutions may use the funds on their RMB settlement accounts as collateral for domestic financing. Onshore guarantees for offshore loans must be registered individually.

Controls on direct investment: Yes.

Outward direct investment: Yes.

In 2014, the Ministry of Commerce amended the Administrative Measures on Overseas Investment, implementing an administrative model that “primarily relies on a filing system and is supported by approvals” for enterprises investing and incorporating overseas. With the exception of overseas investments in sensitive countries and regions and sensitive industries, for which an approval system is in place, all other overseas investments are administered using a filing system. Countries for which approvals are required refer to countries that have no diplomatic relationship with the People’s Republic of China and countries that are subject to UN sanctions; when necessary, the Ministry of Commerce may additionally announce a list of other countries for which approval management is required. Industries for which approvals are required are those that involve the export of products and technologies with export restrictions placed by the People’s Republic of China, and industries that affect more than one country’s (region’s) interests. At present, 99% of overseas investment matters are administered using the filing system.
In 2017, the Ministry of Commerce, NDRC, PBC, and Ministry of Foreign Affairs jointly issued Guiding Opinions on Further Directing and Regulating the Direction of Overseas Investments, which defined three classes of overseas investment: encouraged, limited, and forbidden. According to the Administrative Measures on Overseas Investment, for overseas investors that fall under administration by the filing system, state-owned key enterprises submit filings to the Ministry of Commerce, and local enterprises submit filings to the local provincial-level regulatory authority for commerce. Where overseas investments must be assessed for the purposes of administration procedures, the enterprise shall submit requests to the Ministry of Commerce.

In December 2017, the NDRC issued Administrative Measures for Outbound Investment by Enterprises, which facilitated overseas investment by specifying that for non-sensitive projects, enterprises are required only to register their investments; for sensitive projects, assessment is still required.

Outward direct investment should also be registered at banks. Banks may process such operations as opening accounts and remitting funds for enterprises on the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence.” Domestic institutions may use a variety of legitimate asset sources for outward direct investment, including their own foreign exchange funds, foreign currency loans obtained domestically in accordance with regulations, foreign exchange purchased using RMB, or tangible or intangible assets, and such profits as are kept abroad. During the preparatory stage of formal startup of a foreign project, resident entities may remit funds overseas in an amount not to exceed the smaller value of US$300 million and 15% of the Chinese investor’s total investment.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao since 2013. QDLP/QDIE programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In December 2019, US$5 billion was added to the QDLP/QDIE quota for the pilot in Beijing. In November 2020, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Shenzhen, Shanghai, and Beijing. In December 2020, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, US$5 billion was separately added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen) and Jiangsu and US$3 billion for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Qingdao. In June 2021, US$1 billion was added to the quota for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Ningbo.

Outward direct investment by state-owned enterprises (SOEs) and private enterprises should be filed with or approved by the NDRC and Ministry of Commerce.

Because the Foreign Investment Law and the corresponding implementation regulations went into effect, China has implemented a pre-establishment national treatment plus negative list administration system for foreign investors. Foreign investors are not... permitted to invest in fields listed on the negative list as prohibited. To invest in fields listed on the negative list as restricted, foreign investors must comply with the relevant restrictive investment requirements, including the holdings requirements on the negative list, and restrictions on senior managers. Foreign investment in fields not contained in the access negative list is administered in accordance with the principle of equal treatment for domestic and foreign capital. Nonresidents may invest in China, provided they are in compliance with the requirements of laws and regulations concerning foreign investment and other laws and regulations. Foreign enterprises and individuals that establish a partnership enterprise in China must apply for registration of the enterprise to the local administrative department for industry and commerce authorized by the State Administration for Industry and Commerce; approval of the Ministry of Commerce is not required in such cases. Partnership enterprises whose main business is investment are subject to additional government provisions. Conversion of the invested funds from foreign exchange to RMB may be carried out as determined by the enterprise. FDI should also be registered at banks.

Special Administrative Measures (Negative List) for Foreign Investment Access (2021 Edition) and Special Administrative Measures (Negative List) for Foreign Investment Access in Free Trade Pilot Areas (2021 Edition) have gone into effect. They were issued by the NDRC and Ministry of Commerce on December 27, 2021.

The negative list for foreign investment was further reduced. The national negative list was cut from 33 items to 31; the negative list for free trade zones was cut from 30 items to 27.

The 2021 edition of the negative lists further reduced the number of restricted items, improved the regulations, and targeted the restrictions more precisely. The reduction in the national list down to 31 items represents a 6.1% decrease; the cut in the Free Trade Zone (FTZ) list to 27 items a 10% decrease.

Effective January 1, 2022, the 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes:
(1) Increasing openness in the manufacturing sector. For example, in vehicle manufacturing, the foreign ownership limits on manufacturers of passenger vehicles were canceled, as was the restriction that a single foreign investor may invest in a maximum of two joint ventures in the same category of vehicle.

(2) Continued expansion of access to entry in the service sector in FTZ pilot regions. In market surveys, restrictions on foreign investment were canceled with the exception of the requirement that a Chinese partner must hold a controlling stake in companies carrying out TV and radio audience surveys. In social surveys, foreign companies are permitted to invest, but Chinese partners must hold a stake of no less than 67%, and the company’s legal representative should be a Chinese citizen.

(3) Increased precision in the negative lists for foreign investment. The following new clause was added to the rubric of the 2021 edition of the negative list: “A Chinese company in an industry which is forbidden to foreign investment must obtain the agreement of the relevant Chinese national regulators before making a public offering of shares overseas. Foreign investors may not participate in the operations or management of the company, and their holdings in the company must comply with the holdings restrictions that apply within China.”

(4) Improved management of the negative lists. In compliance with the Implementation Regulations for the Foreign Investment Law, the following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: “When a foreign-owned company in China makes an investment within China, the rules of the negative list for investments shall apply.” The connection between the negative lists for investment and the negative lists for market access was improved. The following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: “The terms of the Market Access Negative Lists shall apply to all investors, Chinese as foreign.”

The aggregate balance of medium- and long-term foreign debt and outstanding short-term foreign debt of foreign-invested enterprises may not exceed the difference between total investment and registered capital. “Total investment” means the sum of construction funds and working capital required for production as stipulated in joint investment contracts and enterprise articles of association. Within this scope, preapproval is not required to borrow from nonresidents; however, the borrower must complete the SAFE registration procedures. Converting such funds to RMB does not require SAFE approval.

Foreign investors currently are not subject to restrictions in investing in the B shares of domestically listed companies.

Foreign investors may make strategic investments in A shares of domestically listed companies, but are subject to the following restrictions: (1) Investors must (a) be legally incorporated and operating foreign legal entities or other organizations that are financially sound and have good credit and mature management experience; (b) have actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million, parent company actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million, or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million; (c) have a sound governance structure and good internal control systems with standardized operations; and (d) have received no material penalties from domestic or foreign regulatory agencies in the past three years (including parent company). (2) A shares of the listed company must be acquired through acquisition under contract or acquisition through targeted issuance of new shares by the listed company or by other means set forth in national laws and regulations. (3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company’s shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of industries with specific requirements or approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors’ shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulation, if such limits are in place for specific industries, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulation. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations.

Foreign investors may engage in direct investment activities in China using RMB legally obtained abroad. Legitimately obtained RMB includes RMB obtained by foreign investors from (1) cross-border trade settlement in RMB; (2) mainland China in the form of profits and earnings from equity swaps, reduction of invested capital, clearing, and advance recovery of investment; and (3) the issuance of bonds and shares denominated in RMB abroad and other ways.

Banks may settle inward direct investment transactions in RMB on the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence,” relying on the income and payment instruction submitted by the enterprises.

Profit of less than US$50,000 from direct investments may, following a bona fide test by the bank, be repatriated without documentary proof. For the repatriation of profits above US$50,000, banks must verify documents related to the current profit repatriation, including the board of directors’ resolutions on the distribution of profits (or the partners’ resolution on the distribution of profits), originals of tax filing forms, and audited financial reports.

“A” shares of listed companies may not be transferred for three years. Premature liquidation before expiration of the term of operations requires approval of the original reviewing and approving authority or a judicial decision. On liquidation, after registering with the relevant bank, a foreign investor may purchase foreign currency and initiate repatriation of funds. RMB funds obtained from liquidation by foreign investors may be remitted abroad by banks, with no need for PBC approval.

The regulations governing direct investment apply.

Purchases of real estate abroad by resident entities are conducted similarly to direct investment abroad. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. A single investment in equity and fixed-income assets may not exceed 5%, and investments in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate investments may not exceed 30% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The total balance does not include real estate purchased with insurance companies’ own funds for their own use, the balance of which may not exceed 50% of their total net assets at the end of the previous quarter. A single investment in real estate may not exceed 5% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. ### Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes. In accordance with China’s WTO accession, foreign financial institutions may establish wholly owned subsidiary banks, Chinese–foreign joint venture banks, or branches of foreign banks in China. Pursuant to the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-Funded Banks amended and announced in September 2019, foreign banks may simultaneously establish a wholly owned subsidiary bank and a foreign bank branch, or simultaneously establish a Chinese–foreign joint venture bank and a foreign bank branch.

The restriction requiring foreign sole or major shareholders planning to establish Chinese–foreign joint venture banks to “present year-end total assets of not less than US$10 billion for the year preceding the application to establish” was eliminated, and the restriction requiring foreign banks planning to establish branches to “present year-end total assets of not less than US$20 billion” was eliminated.

Branches of foreign banks may accept time deposits from resident Chinese citizens for individual deposits in amounts not less than RMB 500,000.

A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank branch can engage in renminbi operations immediately on startup; no separate review and approval are needed.

Business entities of a foreign-owned banks engaged in renminbi operations as set forth in Article 29 or Article 31 of the Regulation within their scope of operations should make preparations and complete the following tasks during the preparation period: A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank making its first application to engage in RMB operations should meet the following requirements: (1) allocate an appropriate number operating personnel who meet business development needs; (2) produce important business vouchers and forms for use with the public; (3) outfit themselves with security facilities approved by the competent authorities; (4) establish internal control systems and operational procedures for renminbi operations; and (5) if a business entity of a foreign-owned bank needs to increase registered capital or working capital to engage in renminbi operations, it should retain a certified public accounting firm registered in China to verify capital, and submit the capital verification certificate to the local office of the CBIRC.

Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwanese banks that establish wholly owned banks, joint venture banks, and branches on the mainland are subject to the relevant requirements of the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-Funded Banks.

Commercial banks and other financial institutions borrowing loans abroad with maturities in excess of one year must apply in advance to file and register them with the NDRC.

All foreign borrowing must be registered with the SAFE. Chinese-funded commercial banks issuing bonds must obtain the permission of the CBIRC. Domestic financial institutions may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets. They do not need to get the approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance.

Domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China) may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their capital or net asset, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. To promote the smooth linkage and transition of policies, in accordance with national treatment principles, the “cross-border financing leverage ratios” for Chinese and foreign-invested enterprises were uniformly increased. The leverage ratio for cross-border financing of bank type corporate financial institutions and branches of foreign banks is 0.8 (for enterprises the leverage ratio is 2 and for nonbank financial institutions it is 1). The macroprudential adjustment parameter for financial institutions and enterprises lowered to 1 from 1.25 for financial institutions and enterprises on December 11, 2020, and January 7, 2021, respectively.

Effective March 1, 2022, domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Previously, prior approval was required.

The outstanding overseas loans of domestic banks shall not exceed the upper limit determined by its net Tier 1 capital (calculated as working capital for domestic branches of foreign banks), the leverage ratio of overseas loans, and the macroprudential adjustment parameters. In principle, overseas loans issued by domestic banks may be used for relevant expenses within the scope of operation of overseas enterprises and shall not be used for the following purposes: securities investment or repayment of overseas debts under Domestic Guarantees for Foreign Loans; transactions without authentic trade background or other forms of speculative arbitrage transactions; and the repatriation of funds to China through financing provided to domestic entities, equity investment, etc. If the overseas loan is used for overseas investment, it should comply with the regulations of the relevant domestic authorities on overseas investment.

Banks must comply with provisions of the Commercial Banking Law of China concerning asset–debt ratio management. SAFE registration and permission are not required for residents who borrow foreign exchange from domestic Chinese financial institutions to repay principal. However, creditors must submit regular loan registrations and report the principal and interest repayment status to the SAFE.

The PBC enforces different deposit reserve ratio for differing types of financial institutions for RMB deposits. Currently, the reserve ratio for major banks is 9.75%; for small or medium banks, it is 7.5%. Deposit reserve rates of 5% are in force for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks.

On July 15, 2021, the PBC lowered financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on RMB deposits by 0.5 percentage points. On December 15, 2021, it lowered financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on RMB deposits by 0.5 percentage points, and applied the most favorable deposit reserve ratio gearing to all financial institutions which submit to inclusive finance assessments and use a certain proportion of all new deposits for local lending.

On April 25, 2022, the PBC reduced all required reserve ratios by 0.25 percentage points. For local commercial banks operating within a single province and for rural commercial banks with deposit reserve rates higher than 5%, the reserve rate reduction (RRR) was reduced by a further 0.25 percentage points. Effective June 15, 2021, the PBC raised financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on foreign currency deposits by 2 percentage points to 7%. Effective December 15, 2021, it raised financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on foreign currency deposits by 2 percentage points to 9%.

On May 15, 2022, it lowered financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on foreign currency deposits by 1 percentage point to 8%.

The ratio of the balance of current assets to the balance of current liabilities may not be lower than 25%.

Commercial bank loans to single nonbank customers must not exceed 10% of their net capital; risk exposure to single nonbank customers must not exceed 15% of net Tier 1 capital.

For a Chinese-funded commercial bank to apply to invest in the formation of, hold shares in, or acquire an overseas institution, the applicant must meet the following conditions: (1) It must have a sound and effective corporate governance structure and internal controls, business line management, and risk control capabilities that are compatible with the development of its overseas business. (2) It must have a clear overseas development strategy. (3) It must have good consolidated management capabilities. (4) The primary main prudential regulatory indicators must meet the regulatory requirements. (5) The balance of its equity investments must in principle not exceed 50% of its net assets (on a consolidated accounting basis). (6) It must have been profitable for the latest three consecutive fiscal years. (7) The balance of its year-end assets must be at least RMB 100 billion for the year preceding its application. (8) It must have a team of professionals compatible with the foreign business environment. (9) Other prudential conditions prescribed by the CBIRC.

As referred to here, overseas institutions must mean the overseas level-one branches, wholly affiliated or controlled financial institutions of Chinese-funded commercial banks, representative institutions, and transnational (cross-border) institutions established by level-one branches or wholly owned subsidiaries.

As a founder or strategic investor of a Chinese-funded commercial banking institution, overseas financial institutions must meet the following conditions: (1) In principle, its most recent total year-end... assets must not be less than US$10 billion. (2) It must have a good long-term credit rating in the most recent two years by an international rating institution accepted by the CBIRC. (3) It must have been continuously profitable in the most recent two fiscal years. (4) Commercial bank capital adequacy ratios must reach the local banking industry average in the place of incorporation and must not be lower than 10.5%. The total capital of nonbank financial institutions must not be lower than 10% of total weighted risk assets. (5) It must have sound and effective internal controls. (6) There must be a complete financial institution supervision and regulatory system in the place of incorporation. (7) Economic conditions must be good in the country (region) where the institution is located. (8) Other prudential conditions prescribed by the CBIRC.

As founders or strategic investors, overseas financial institutions that become shareholders of Chinese-funded commercial banks should abide by the principles of long-term shareholding, optimized governance, business cooperation, and competition avoidance. The CBIRC may adjust the requisite conditions for an overseas financial institution to become a founder in accordance with financial sector risk conditions and regulatory requirements.

When a foreign bank invests in or buys an equity stake in a small rural bank, the regulatory regime depends on the category of the small rural bank at the time of the investment. Foreign banks must also comply with national regulations governing foreign investors in China. CBIRC Decree [2019] No. 9.

Open foreign exchange position limits  Yes.

The SAFE Administrative Regulations for Financial Institutions that Handle Proprietary Foreign Exchange Trading Operations put forward a related regulatory requirement. Financial institutions trading foreign exchange on their own behalf may not have a daily total transaction volume (total open foreign exchange position) and exceed 20% of foreign exchange working capital. As authorized by top management, financial institutions trading foreign exchange on their own behalf may retain a small overnight open foreign exchange position no greater than 1% of foreign exchange working capital or foreign exchange operating funds. The cumulative foreign exchange open position ratio is the ratio of cumulative foreign exchange open positions to net capital, which is calculated on a quarterly basis and should not exceed 20%. Qualified commercial banks may simultaneously use other methods to measure foreign exchange risk (for example, the at-risk value method or the base-point present value method).

On resident assets and liabilities  Yes.

On nonresident assets and liabilities  Yes.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Insurance companies  Yes.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents  Yes.

Insurance companies must calculate ratios for the various types of investment products on a consolidated basis (including domestic and foreign investment amounts). A differential, solvency-based proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance company investments in equity-type assets, with eight different bands. The highest permitted book value must not exceed 45% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets or equity-type assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories.

The total amount of foreign investments of insurance companies must not exceed 15% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount actually investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Insurance companies must calculate ratios for the various types of investment products on a consolidated basis (including domestic and foreign investment amounts); ratios for individual projects are required to be consistent with domestic products of the same type. A differential, solvency-based proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance company investments in equity-type assets (both domestic and foreign), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company’s own funds. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate investments may not exceed 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter; this total book value does not include real estate purchased with insurance companies’ own funds for their own use, whose balance may not exceed 50% of their total net assets at the end of the previous quarter. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period.

The total amount of foreign investments of insurance companies must not exceed 15% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount actually investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Insurance companies must calculate ratios for the various types of investment products on a consolidated basis (including domestic and foreign investment amounts); ratios for individual projects are required to be consistent with domestic products of the same type. A differential, solvency-based proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance company investments in equity-type assets (both domestic and foreign), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company’s own funds. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate investments may not exceed 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter; this total book value does not include real estate purchased with insurance companies’ own funds for their own use, whose balance may not exceed 50% of their total net assets at the end of the previous quarter. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Market making 01/08/2021  The State Administration of Foreign Exchange (SAFE) has adjusted the market-making system to better exploit the potential of existing market makers. It no longer assigns market makers to specific products, but encourages market makers to expand their capacity for trading and market making across all product categories. It has also adjusted its mechanisms for testing, licensing, and delicensing market-making organizations.

Previously, the SAFE classifies foreign exchange market makers as spot trading market makers, forward and swap trading market makers, and comprehensive market makers.

01/05/2021  The macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas loans by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5.

02/04/2021  Refinements have been made to the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises. Domestic enterprises may open multiple renminbi accounts if required to handle a single renminbi loan borrowed overseas; they may also use a single renminbi account to handle receipts and payments connected to multiple overseas renminbi loans.

02/04/2021  The regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas loans has been simplified. Loans repaid ahead of schedule are not counted in the loan quota for domestic companies making overseas renminbi loans; the currency conversion factor has been adjusted to 0.5.

04/18/2022  Non-financial enterprises may use a single foreign currency account to receive loan payments from multiple separate overseas loans.

As part of the project of opening up capital markets, the China Securities Regulatory Commission expanded and enhanced the Shanghai–London Stock Connect. In China, the mechanism was extended to the Shenzhen Stock Exchange; overseas, it was extended to the Swiss and German markets.

Foreign institutional investors that have been granted access to the interbank bond market may trade directly on the market or through the bond market connect.

“Southbound trading” bond market connect was launched, enabling domestic institutions to invest in Hong Kong and global bond markets.

The macroprudential adjustment parameter for enterprises was lowered to 1.

Hong Kong and Macau residents may purchase wealth management products from mainland banks in the Guangdong/Hong Kong/Macau Greater Bay Area, in compliance with the rules of this pilot project.

Foreign investors were introduced into palm oil options trading on the Dalian Commodity Exchange.

Foreign investors were introduced into crude oil options trading on the Shanghai International Energy Exchange.

The macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas loans by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5.

The regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas loans has been simplified. Loans repaid ahead of schedule are not counted in the loan quota for domestic companies making overseas renminbi loans; the currency conversion factor has been adjusted to 0.5.

Domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to People’s Bank of China and State Administration of Foreign Exchange advance review and approval requirement. Previously, prior approval was required.

Refinements have been made to the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises. Domestic enterprises may open multiple renminbi accounts if required to handle a single renminbi loan borrowed overseas; they may also use a single renminbi account to handle receipts and payments connected to multiple overseas renminbi loans.

Non-financial enterprises may use a single foreign currency account to receive loan payments from multiple separate overseas loans.

Controls on direct investment

The 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes include continued expansion of access to entry in the service sector in FTZ pilot regions. In market surveys, restrictions on foreign investment were canceled with the exception of the requirement that a Chinese partner must hold a controlling stake in companies carrying out TV and radio audience surveys. In social surveys, foreign companies are permitted to invest, but Chinese partners must hold a stake of no less than 67%, and the company’s legal representative should be a Chinese citizen.

The 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes include improved management of the negative lists. In compliance with the Implementation Regulations for the Foreign Investment Law, the following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: “When a foreign-owned company in China makes an investment within China, the rules of the negative list for investments shall apply.” The connection between the negative lists for investment and the negative lists for market access was improved. The following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: “The terms of the Market Access Negative Lists shall apply to all investors, Chinese as foreign.”

The 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes include increased precision in the negative lists for foreign investment. The following new clause was added to the rubric of the 2021 edition of the negative list: “A Chinese company in an industry which is forbidden to foreign investment must obtain the agreement of the relevant Chinese national regulators before making a public offering of shares overseas. Foreign investors may not participate in the operations or management of the company, and their holdings in the company must comply with the holdings restrictions that apply within China.”

The 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes include increasing openness in the manufacturing sector. For example, in vehicle manufacturing, the foreign ownership limits on manufacturers of passenger vehicles were canceled; as was the restriction that a single foreign investor may invest in a maximum of two joint ventures in the same category of vehicle.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

The macroprudential adjustment parameter for enterprises was lowered to 1.

China and State Administration of Foreign Exchange advance review and approval requirement. Previously, prior approval was required.

06/15/2021 The reserve requirement for foreign exchange deposits was increased to 7% from 5%.
07/15/2021 The People’s Bank of China reduced the reserve requirement ratio for all banks by 0.5 percentage point.
12/15/2021 The People’s Bank of China raised financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on foreign currency deposits by 2 percentage points to 9%.
05/15/2022 The People’s Bank of China lowered financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on foreign currency deposits by 1 percentage point to 8%.

During 2021, the dollar strengthened against most of the currencies... of its peers among developed countries and currencies of emerging economies. Against this backdrop, the Colombian peso fell about 16% and the largest decline in the exchange rate was seen during the first half of the year, in line with the behavior of most of the currencies in the region and influenced by the restrictions on mobility at the beginning of the year as a result of the increase in Covid-19 cases, concerns regarding the vaccination process in the country and the fiscal situation, the uncertainty associated with the discussion of the fiscal reform in Congress and its subsequent withdrawal, the demonstrations and blockades at the national level, and the expectations and subsequent materialization of a downgrade of the country’s credit rating below investment grade. In the second half of the year, the currency was under pressure from episodes of lower oil prices, the interest rate difference between Colombia and other countries in the region, and the demand for dollars by foreign investors.

During the first half of 2022, the U.S. dollar strengthened against most of the currencies of developed countries and some currencies of emerging economies. This strengthening was associated with increased demand for safe-haven assets and with expectations and materialization of a tighter monetary policy by the Federal Reserve. Against this backdrop, the performance of the Colombian peso was volatile. In particular, June saw a significant depreciation of the currency against its peers in the region, in line with the global environment, and also influenced by local factors, such as uncertainty regarding the economic policies to be pursued by the incoming government after the presidential elections and the persistence of inflationary pressures.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The Banco de la República (Bank of the Republic, or BR) publishes daily data on interventions on the exchange market. The BR publishes the date, amount, and mechanism. When an intervention involves options, the information is published on the day that the option is exercised. Each month (on the fifth business day), the BR publishes a press release indicating the amount purchased or sold in the previous month (aggregate monthly amount).

Yes. The representative market rate (RMR) is the economic indicator of the peso–US dollar exchange rate; it is not an official exchange rate. It is used as a reference for the quotation and settlement of foreign exchange transactions, for transactions indexed to the US dollar, and for the conversion of accounts in foreign currency to local currency. The RMR is the weighted average amount of US dollar buy/sell operations in exchange for Colombian legal tender, for settlement in both currencies on the same day, conducted by exchange market intermediaries (EMIs) during the hours of operation established by the BR in its general regulations.

To calculate the RMR, derivative operations must be excluded, as well as operations conducted by EMIs with entities other than those supervised by the Office of the Financial Superintendence of Colombia (Superintendencia Financiera de Colombia – SFC) and with the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Also excluded are operations by EMIs with the following entities supervised by the SFC: foreign financial entities, foreign reinsurers, foreign financial entities with no trade offices, and representative offices of the foreign securities market. (External Regulatory Circular DODM-146 of May 25, 2018). The RMR is calculated daily and certified by the SFC (not

It is the responsibility of the BR to maintain the purchasing power of the currency. To that end, its Board of Directors must establish a specific inflation target. The target decision is adopted by a majority vote. The monetary policy objective is to maintain a low, stable inflation rate and achieve the maximum sustainable level of production and employment.

Effective May 28, 2021, the Board of Directors approved a change in the day of publication of the minutes of meetings at which monetary policy decisions are adopted to facilitate their preparation, review, and translation. As of that meeting, the minutes are published on the second business day following the meeting (Internal Resolution No. 3 of August 30, 2019, as amended by Internal Resolution 3 of May 28, 2021). Previously, the minutes were drafted as part of the agenda of the session of the Board of Directors and they were published on the next business day after meetings at which decisions on monetary policy were adopted (Internal Resolution No. 3 of August 30, 2019, which rescinded Internal Resolution No. 1 of 2007).

Publication of inflation forecasts

Yes. Chapter 2 of the Report on Monetary Policy (previously called the Report on Inflation) contains forecasts and the balance of inflation risks. This report, on the basis of which the technical team makes its monetary policy recommendation, is published on the next business day following the meeting of the Board of Directors for the months of January, April, July, and October, on the same day that the minutes are published. Likewise, an Excel annex is published detailing the specific forecasts of the main variables of the macroeconomic forecast. Inflation forecasts are quarterly for a two-year horizon.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. Banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (with SFC authorization), stock brokerage companies, the National Development Financial Corporation (Financiera de Desarrollo Nacional – FDN), the Foreign Trade Bank (BANCOLDEX – Banco de Comercio Exterior), Special Financial Services and Exchange Intermediation Companies (Sociedades de Intermediación Cambiaria y Servicios Financieros Especiales – SICSFEs, formerly exchange bureaus), and Companies Specializing... in Electronic Deposits and Payments (Sociedades Especializadas en Depósitos Electrónicos – SEDPE), the Financial Corporation for Territorial Development (FINDETER), the Agricultural Sector Financing Fund (FINAGRO), the Colombian Institute of Educational Credit and Technical Studies Abroad (ICETEX), the National Corporation for Promotion of Territorial Development (ENTerritorio), and the National Savings Fund (FNA) are the EMIs authorized to intermediate in foreign exchange market operations. Authorized entities that are not registered with the BR as EMIs may not perform authorized operations as EMIs, nor are they subject to the regulations and obligations applicable to such intermediaries.

Effective April 1, 2021, FINDETER, FINAGRO, ICETEX, ENTerritorio, and the FNA are authorized as EMIs. ICETEX also requires that the Office of the Financial Superintendence issue prudential rules that are applicable to it to perform authorized exchange operations. (R.E. 1 of February 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020).

The BR Board of Directors determines the foreign exchange transactions that EMIs are authorized to carry out, based on the type of entity and its capital, with regard to EMIs referred to in Article 8, paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, of R.E. 1 of 2018. In the case of EMIs referred to in Article 8, paragraph 6, of R.E. 1 of 2018, the level of capital is not taken into account.

EMIs may freely determine their foreign exchange buying and selling rates and commissions.

As of December 31, 2021, there were 42 EMIs registered with the BR (20 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 2 finance companies, 10 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, FDN, the Central Counterparty Clearinghouse (CCP) of Colombia, FINDETER, and 3 SICSFEs).

Spot foreign exchange transactions may be conducted through or outside trading systems. All entities supervised by the SFC, including EMIs as well as the State, are authorized to participate in foreign exchange trading systems or to act as clearing members in spot transactions before a CCP. The Central Counterparty Clearinghouse of Colombia (CRCC) is the sole CCP in the country.

CCPs may perform clearing and settlement of peso-dollar spot transactions (R.E. 22 of 2020).

EMIs must record all spot foreign exchange transactions in a foreign exchange transaction registration system, with the exceptions of spot transactions with unsupervised entities or the State involving amounts of less than US$250,000.

Entities supervised by the SFC, other than EMIs, must record spot foreign exchange transactions performed with foreign agents (R.E. 2 of 2020).

Spot foreign exchange transactions conducted (1) between EMIs and (2) between an EMI and another entity that is supervised by the SFC and participates in a foreign exchange trading system must be cleared through an authorized foreign exchange clearing and settlement system or a CCP. Spot foreign exchange transactions performed by FINDETER, FINAGRO, ICETEX, ENTerritorio, and the FNA are exempt from this requirement if these entities are not participants in foreign exchange trading systems (R.E. 1 of 2020).

The submission of spot foreign exchange transactions to CCPs was authorized by R.E. 23 of September 25, 2020, and its operational implementation became effective February 1, 2021, which means that the performance of spot foreign exchange transactions in the trading systems will be blind when the CCP is involved in the clearing and settlement of these transactions.

In addition, residents may engage professionally in the purchase and sale of foreign exchange and traveler’s checks, provided they are registered in advance in the trade register and in the register of professional foreign exchange dealers established by the National Tax and Customs Directorate (DIAN). Residents who engage professionally in buying and selling foreign exchange may not carry out foreign exchange transactions directly with the BR.

Residents may make foreign exchange purchases and sales on the unregulated market with other residents, provided they do not do so habitually or in a professional capacity. If they do so habitually, they must comply with the requirements applicable to professionals who buy and sell foreign exchange and traveler’s checks.

As of December 31, 2021, there were 42 EMIs registered with the BR (20 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 2 finance companies, 10 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, FDN, the CCP of Colombia, FINDETER, and 3 SICSFEs).

The BR may intervene in the foreign exchange market to regulate financial market liquidity and the normal functioning of the domestic and external payments of the economy, to prevent undesirable exchange rate fluctuations, and to increase and reduce international reserves, in accordance with the directives of the Board of Directors, through spot or forward foreign exchange purchases or sales, to or from banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives, the FDN, BANCOLDEX, stock brokerage companies, companies that manage pensions and severance benefits, foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems, and CCPs as well as the State – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit, as long as they are registered with the BR as EMIs and have standing instructions with the BR.

The authorization to participate depends on the intervention mechanism, as explained below.

The BR may conduct intervention operations through various systems and mechanisms.

The authorized intervention operations are as follows:
1. Direct uniform price auction sales of put or call options at market rates;
2. Direct uniform price auctions (with three minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auction sales of foreign exchange (with three minutes of bids);
(3) Spot sales of foreign exchange and forward purchases of dollars by means of foreign exchange swap contracts with delivery in auctions and OTC transactions.
(4) Forward dollar sales at market rates through forward contracts, by means of the auction mechanism (R.E. 4 of March 12, 2020).
The auction quotas of the different mechanisms are announced in advance in the invitations to bid. The amount of the direct purchase/sale intervention in the trading systems is not announced in advance, but the exchange intervention carried out over a month is reported on the fifth business day of the following month through a press release.

Delays, incompletion of intervention operations, and errors in the price of auctions by authorized agents are subject to sanctions. The sanction regime does not apply to: (1) direct foreign currency purchase or sale operations with the national government – the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit; (2) dollar purchase or sale operations that are cleared and settled through foreign currency clearance and settlement systems; and (3) Non-delivery forward (NDF) contracts that are cleared and settled through a CCP (R.E. 17 of June 30, 2020).

(1) Option auctions:
The auction may be held with banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (once they have been authorized as EMIs by the SFC), the FDN, and BANCOLDEX, whose capital reaches the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation, as well as the State – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation may also be counterparties.
The entities must be registered with the BR and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR. The BR may intervene in the foreign exchange market through options to increase or reduce international reserves and control exchange rate volatility. The BR sells put or call options in uniform price auctions. The participants must offer the option premium (bid price expressed in pesos per US$1,000), as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. In the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order based on the amount of the premium, and all bids with a premium equal to or exceeding the premium at which the auction limit is met (hereinafter the cutoff premium) are approved. All approved bids must pay the cutoff premium. The BR may partially approve bids it believes could give rise to an unacceptable concentration. The BR reserves the right to approve a put or call options auction below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. The general terms and conditions of auctions are announced in an invitation to bid on the immediately preceding business day. Options may be exercised only when the option exercise conditions established by the BR are satisfied.
(a) Options to increase or reduce international reserves:
The BR may auction put options to increase international reserves. The call option to reduce international reserves has been discontinued since May 27, 2016.

In accordance with the regulations, put options may be exercised only when the RMR is below its recent average (average for the preceding 20 business days). The amount of the auctions is announced in the invitation. The participants must pay a premium established by means of the uniform price auction mechanism. The exercise price for options is the RMR in effect the day the option is exercised. Entities that comply with the provisions of Regulatory Circular DODM 143 (now Market Operations and Analysis Department (DOAM-143)) participate in this program.

(b) Options to control exchange rate volatility: It is established in the regulation that the BR will announce and hold a put or call option auction to control volatility when the RMR is 4% or more below or above its moving average for the preceding 20 business days. This instrument is inactive and was last used in 2009.

(2) Purchase or sale of foreign exchange at market rates:
The BR may buy and sell US dollars directly through auctions or other systems and mechanisms through which interbank foreign currency operations are performed. Banks, financial corporations, finance companies, and financial cooperatives (provided they are authorized as EMIs by the SFC), FDN, and BANCOLDEX may participate. Stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation and the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit may also participate. The entities must be registered with the BR and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR.
The BR buys and sells dollars in uniform price auctions (with 3 minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auctions (depending on what is announced in the invitation to bid. Uniform price auctions have always been used). The BR announces to the agents the quota of dollars to be auctioned. Participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to sell or buy dollars to or from the BR, as well as the amount in dollars. Each agent may submit only one offer in an amount that does not exceed 80% of the auction quota, which may be altered in the first three minutes of the auction. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction to buy or sell dollars below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. Foreign exchange trading systems must grant access to the BR on special terms when it intervenes to implement exchange policy. These terms must be defined in the regulations governing the operation of such systems.

(3) Foreign exchange swap contracts at rates set by the BR through auction or over-the-counter mechanisms:
The BR may also intervene through foreign exchange swap contracts, under which a spot sale of dollars by the BR and a forward purchase of dollars in the amount traded are transacted simultaneously. The swap contracts are offered through auctions (uniform price) or over the counter. The auction may be held with banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (once they have been authorized as EMIs by the SFC), the FDN, and BANCOLDEX, whose capital reaches the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation, as well as the State—Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Companies that manage pension funds and severance benefits, on their own account or for third parties or managed funds, may also be counterparties (R.E. 5 of March 18, 2020), whereas only foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems and CCPs that clear peso-dollar spot purchase and sale contracts may participate in over-the-counter transactions (this applies to the latter pursuant to R.E. 24 of September 25, 2020). In the auction, participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per US dollar) at which they would be willing to sell dollars to the BR on the maturity of the operation, as well as the amount in dollars to be exchanged. They may submit as many bids as they wish for a total not to exceed the total amount of the auction. The BR will announce the total amount. of the auction. They may be conducted at 30, 60, 90, 180, or 365 calendar days. They are forward delivery transactions. Spot dollar sales are carried out by the BR on the day of the auction, and forward dollar purchases on the maturity date of the foreign exchange swap contract.

OTC participants offer the amount in dollars to be exchanged. Ten minutes prior to the OTC operation, the BR announces the initial and forward exchange rates.

(4) NDF sale contracts at market rates.

The BR may execute forward contracts in which it negotiates the future sale of dollars. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through auctions. The same entities authorized for option auctions may participate, but stock brokers may perform these operations only when the contracts are cleared and settled through a CCP (External Regulatory Circular DOAM-143 of August 14, 2020). Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through a uniform price auction. The participants offer the exchange rate (the offer price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which the dollars are available to the BR for purchase on maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. The general terms and conditions of the auction are announced through an invitation on the previous business day. Each authorized agent may present as many bids as it wishes and in a total amount that does not exceed the auction quota. In the process of the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order by the offer price and all bids that contain a price that is greater than or equal to the cut-off at which the auction quota is met (the cut-off price) are approved. All of the approved bids pay the cut-off price. The BR may partially approve bids which in its opinion give rise to an unacceptable concentration of the forward contracts. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction below the announced quota or to declare it void. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars may be performed for 30 calendar days. The plan for the performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CCP is announced in an invitation through the means available. The BR intervention operations that are performed through a CCP are subject to the terms and conditions set forth in the operating regulations of the given clearinghouse. The BR’s sanctions scheme is not applicable to operations that are cleared and settled through a CCP (R.E. 17 of June 30, 2020). Performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CCP was established by R.E. 18 of June 30, 2020, and an amendment to External Regulatory Circular DOAM-143.

There are no restrictions on the use of resources that agents acquire in BR auctions.

The Board of Directors continued adopting measures in response to the crisis caused by COVID-19:

- Effective January 18, 2021, as delegated by the Board of Directors of the BR, the Monetary and Exchange Intervention Committee at its ordinary session, decided that the institution would renew the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars in February 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.
- Effective February 15, 2021, as delegated by the Board of Directors of the BR, the Monetary and Exchange Intervention Committee at its ordinary session, decided that the institution would renew the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars in March 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates. Accordingly, US$90.9 million, corresponding to the renewal of the maturities of the remaining balance of these operations, was offered at auction on March 20, 2021; however, no bids were submitted. Subsequently, the bank did not carry out any further intervention operations in the foreign exchange market.

Fixing

No.

Interbank market

Yes. Almost all operations on the spot interbank market are carried out through foreign exchange trading systems. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or on the commissions of market participants. As of December 31, 2021, there were 42 EMIs registered with the BR (20 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 2 finance companies, 10 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, FDN, the CCP, FINDETER, and 3 SICSFEs).

The BR may buy and sell US dollars directly through auctions or other systems and mechanisms through which interbank foreign currency operations are performed. If the BR intervenes directly, it carries out the operations using the quotations found in the market, and it proposes its own quotes.

Over the counter

Yes. Foreign exchange transactions may be conducted through trading systems or on the OTC market.

Brokerage

Yes. Authorized purchases and sales of foreign exchange by stock brokerage companies may be conducted through their proprietary position or under commission contracts.

Market making

No.

Forward exchange market

Yes. Trades of non-standardized foreign exchange derivatives may be carried out through trading systems or other trading platforms used by the market (OTC market). Entities supervised by the SFC, the State, and foreign agents may participate in the trading systems. EMIs must record all non-standardized financial derivatives transactions daily in a foreign exchange transaction register. Entities supervised by the SFC, other than EMIs, that engage in foreign exchange derivatives transactions with foreign agents on the OTC market must record those transactions in an authorized foreign exchange transaction register. This recording is mandatory for application of close-out netting. The EMIs referred to in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents with which they have signed a framework contract. They may also contract financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset denominated in foreign currencies with any other resident EMI. EMIs may carry out transactions in commodity derivatives with authorized foreign agents and contract commodity derivatives denominated in foreign currencies with residents and with other EMIs. The stock brokerage companies referred to in Article 8(3) of R.E. 1/2018 (EMIs) may offer their clients foreign exchange rate derivatives only when they are cleared and settled through a CCP authorized by the SFC. Residents (other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018) may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents that have carried out financial derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year amounting to more than US$1 billion or with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018. The BR also authorizes residents (other than EMIs) to carry out commodity-price derivatives transactions in foreign currency, provided they are carried out with authorized foreign agents. Entities supervised by the SFC may enter into credit derivatives with authorized foreign agents exclusively in the form of credit default.
swaps (CDS). These instruments are no longer restricted to portfolio hedging, do not require the prior authorization of the SF, but must be issued by foreign issuers.

The BR may intervene in the exchange market through forward contracts in which the future sale of dollars is negotiated. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through uniform price auctions, in which the participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to buy dollars from the BR on the maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. Article 1 of Decree No. 2153 of December 26, 2016, under which Colombia adopts customs tariffs and other provisions, establishes:

1. Duties:
   - The duties referred to in this Decree include ad valorem duties, which must be paid in the country’s legal tender.
   - The tariff rates in Colombia are subject to the tariff classification of each of the goods to be imported, and range between 0%, 5%, 10%, 15%, 20%, 25%, 30%, and 35%.

- There are variable tariffs in place to protect agricultural products. Decree No. 547 of January 31, 1995.
- Total tariffs of the Andean Price Band System (APBS).
- Bi-weekly circular issued by the DIAN.
  - These are ad valorem duties applicable to reference agricultural products, their substitutes, agro-industrial products, or by-products.

2. Articles of Decree No. 1165 of 2019 establishes the following:
   - “Article 16. TAXABLE BASE. The customs charges arising from imports shall be paid as follows:
     - For customs duties, the taxable base shall be the customs value of the imported goods, determined in accordance with the provisions governing customs valuation.”

   In accordance with the above, customs charges (Duty + VAT) are paid on imports of goods based on the rules governing the determination of the customs valuation, regardless of the quantities of the goods.

3. Other Taxes. According to Article 512-3 of the Tax Law. Tax on consumption: 8%. Free On Board (FOB) value less than or equal to US$30,000.
   - For imports of transport equipment classified under tariff headings 87.03/87.04/88.01/88.02.

   With certain exceptions, imports are subject to the CET of the Andean Community. The weighted average tariff rate for 2022 between January and June was 4.89%.

Authorized securities issuers established in Colombia may simultaneously offer securities in the international and local markets, with prior SFC authorization in the case of local offerings.

On collective investment securities: Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Foreign capital portfolio investments must be made through local administrators. These include holdings in collective investment funds.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Issuance is not allowed. The offering of financial and foreign securities market services in Colombia is expressly regulated and must be conducted through representation offices and under correspondent contracts with authorized securities market intermediaries. Representation offices may not provide advertised services, such as sales of holdings in collective portfolios.

Purchase abroad by residents: Yes.

Sale or issue abroad by residents: No.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments: Yes.

The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 and residents may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with foreign agents, as well as in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset denominated in foreign exchange with residents and other EMIs.

Stock brokerage companies specified in Article 8(3) of R.E. 1/2018 (EMIs) may offer their clients exchange rate financial derivatives only when they are cleared and settled through a CCP authorized by the SFC.

Derivatives with cash settlement to cover any obligation may be contracted by EMIs and residents.

EMIs may enter into credit derivatives contracts only with foreign agents through CDS since September 19, 2008.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: Yes.

The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents who have framework contracts with a close-out netting clause with EMIs, in accordance with the provisions established by the SFC in the Basic Accounting and Financial Circular, and foreign clearing and settlement houses. The requirement for a close-out netting clause in a framework contract took effect on September 1, 2018 (Circular DODM 144), previously this clause was not required as part of the contract. The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with residents other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents (including clearing and settlement houses abroad) who have carried out derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year in an amount exceeding US$1 billion in nominal terms (there are no similar regulatory requirements for residents such as preceding year transactions or credit ratings).

EMIs may not issue CDS (Article 65 of R.E. 1/2018) since January 1, 2019.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents who have framework contracts with EMIs, in accordance with the provisions established by the SFC in the Basic Accounting and Financial Circular, and foreign clearing and settlement houses. The framework contract must include a close-out netting clause as of September 1, 2018 (Circular DODM 144). The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with residents other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents (including clearing and settlement houses abroad) who have carried out derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year in an amount exceeding US$1 billion in nominal terms. In the case of CDS sales to EMIs or residents, the foreign agents must also be rated investment grade by at least one internationally renowned credit rating agency (this requirement has been in effect since January 1, 2019). Circular DOAM-144 sets out requirements for nonresident counterparties to carry out derivatives transactions with EMI or residents. There are no similar regulatory requirements for residents such as preceding year transactions or credit ratings.

EMIs may enter into credit derivatives contracts only with foreign assets through CDS as the buyer of a CDS contract.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 and other residents may engage in transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying assets with authorized foreign agents. EMIs may enter into credit derivatives contracts only with foreign assets through CDS as the buyer of a CDS contract.

(1) Foreign agents authorized to conduct derivative operations with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 that have framework agreements with EMIs, in accordance with the provisions established by the SFC in the Basic Accounting and Financial Circular, and foreign clearing and settlement houses. The framework contract must include a close-out netting clause as of September 1, 2018 (Circular DODM 144).

(2) Foreign agents authorized to conduct derivative operations with residents other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 that have carried out derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year in an amount exceeding US$1 billion in nominal terms. Entities supervised by the SFC may purchase CDS (in accordance with the terms set out in the regulation) from foreign agents with whom they have signed a framework contract provided the nonresident has an investment grade credit rating from at least one internationally renowned credit rating agency. There are no similar regulatory requirements for residents such as preceding year transactions or credit ratings.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 and other residents... may engage in transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying assets with authorized foreign agents.

Controls on credit operations: Yes.

Commercial credits: Yes.

By residents to nonresidents: No. Residents and EMIs (Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018) may grant credits to nonresidents, regardless of the currency of denomination, disbursement, or payment. The credit may be denominated, disbursed, or paid in foreign currency and Colombian legal currency, as agreed by the parties.

To residents from nonresidents: Yes. Nonresidents may grant credits to EMIs and residents, regardless of the currency of denomination, disbursement, or payment, as agreed by the parties. Effective May 28, 2021, pursuant to R.E. 4 of 2021, the restriction that nonresident individuals could only provide financing for certain cases was eliminated. Previously, nonresident individuals could not grant foreign credits to residents, with the following specific exceptions: leasing or finance leases contracted with nonresidents; advance payment for goods for immediate use and intermediate goods (applies to operations channeled before November 1, 2010); financing of goods for immediate use and intermediate goods (applies to operations with shipping documents dated before September 1, 2010); financing of capital goods (applies to operations with shipping documents dated before September 1, 2010); financing of the purchase of capital goods – free zone (applies to operations with shipping documents dated before September 1, 2010); financing of the purchase of goods for immediate use – free zone (applies to operations with shipping documents dated before September 1, 2010); advance payment for exports of capital goods (applies to operations channeled before November 1, 2010); legal acts or proceedings other than international business reorganizations; advance payments for future capitalizations in those cases in which at the time of the disbursement of funds regulations for the issue and placement of shares have not been issued, or the capitalization has not been approved by the competent corporate body.

As a requirement for the disbursement and channeling of foreign credits obtained by residents from nonresidents, a deposit must be made with the BR under the conditions, amount, and term indicated in general by the Board of Directors (currently 0%). Prior to the issuance of R.E. 1/18, these credits were also subject to a deposit requirement under the same conditions. Disbursements in Colombian legal currency of credits granted by nonresidents should take place through the Colombian legal currency accounts of nonresidents with EMIs used exclusively for external credits. Transfers of foreign amounts into these accounts of nonresidents are subject to the deposit requirement.

Financial credits: Yes.

By residents to nonresidents: No. Residents and EMIs (Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/18) may grant credits to nonresidents, regardless of the currency of denomination, disbursement, or payment. Prior to the issuance of R.E. 1/18, disbursements in foreign currency were considered foreign credits regardless of their denomination.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Yes.
Borrowing abroad
Yes.

Borrowing from abroad by EMIs is governed by R.E. 1/2018.

The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) and (2) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in Colombian legal currency from nonresidents (effective May 28, 2021, pursuant to R.E. 4 of 2021, the restriction that nonresidents individuals could not grant financing to residents and EMIs was eliminated) or through the placement of securities on international capital markets for the purpose of carrying out lending operations denominated in Colombian legal currency. When this financing is disbursed in a foreign currency, the EMI must make the deposit required pursuant to Article 47 of R.E. 1/2018. As long as the resources are used in authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

As of April 1, 2021, the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) and (2) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in foreign currency from nonresidents, from EMIs, or through the placement of securities on international capital markets exclusively for the purpose of carrying out the following activities:

(1) Lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in foreign currency in the same currency in which the financing was obtained, with a term equal to or less than that of the financing obtained.

(2) Lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in Colombian legal currency, with a term equal to or less than that of the financing obtained. The financing in foreign currency must be covered by a foreign currency derivative effective from the date the financing is disbursed until it reaches maturity, or it must be designated by the competent body of the EMI as a hedging instrument for the investments controlled abroad, in compliance with the hedge accounting requirements of the IFRS. As long as the resources are used for authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

(3) Operations carried out in their capacity as local suppliers of foreign currency liquidity to foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems and CCPs in accordance with operating rules of the system or clearinghouse, as the case may be. These operations must have a shorter term than that of the financing obtained.

The financing obtained by these EMIs must be reported to the BR in accordance with the form and within the deadlines determined by the latter and is subject to the deposit referred to in Article 47 of this resolution. No deposit is required in some cases (R.E. 1 of February 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020).
The authorization to perform export leasing operations was removed from R.E. 1/18 given that they are already considered to be part of authorized lending operations.

The EMIs specified in Article 8(6) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in Colombian legal currency from nonresidents other than individuals or through the placement of securities on international capital markets for the purpose of carrying out lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in Colombian legal currency. This financing must be reported to the BR in accordance with the form and within the deadlines it has determined.

When the financing is disbursed in foreign currency, the EMI must provide a deposit referred to in Article 47 of this resolution. As long as the resources are used in authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

Financing disbursed in Colombian legal currency by nonresidents in accordance with the provisions of Article 45(2) of this resolution is not subject to the deposit requirement provided for under Article 47 of R.E. 1/18. (R.E. 1 of February 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020).

EMIs are allowed to maintain accounts abroad.

Residents and EMIs (Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/18) may grant credits to nonresidents, regardless of the currency of denomination, disbursement, or payment.

The specified EMIs may obtain financing in foreign currency from nonresidents (effective May 28, 2021, pursuant to R.E. 4 of 2021, the restriction requiring that this financing be obtained from nonresidents other than individuals was eliminated), from EMIs, or through the placement of securities on international capital markets, to be used exclusively for specific purposes, including foreign currency lending operations in the same currency in which the financing was obtained, at equal or shorter terms than the financing.
Abroad by banks  Yes.  Entities subject to SFC inspection and supervision may make capital investments abroad in accordance with the Organic Law on the Financial System, as well as financial investments abroad. EMIs in general are authorized to make financial investments abroad. Financial institutions supervised by the SFC that wish to directly make or increase their capital investments in financial institutions, the securities market, insurance and reinsurance companies, and branches and agencies domiciled abroad must obtain prior authorization from the SF. Such authorization is also required if they intend to make such investments indirectly through their affiliates and subsidiaries abroad, provided the investment is made through one or more transactions within a period of one year and in compliance with any of the materiality criteria indicated in the regulation, namely: (1) the amount of the investment: when the initial investment is no less than 10% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment and the increase in the investment is no less than 5% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment. For purposes of calculating the initial investment, it will be understood that, in addition to the first operation, the initial investment will include the investment increases made within the 12 months following the first operation; and (2) coordination between the supervisors: when the financial supervisor in the location where the investment is to be made does not have a MoU with the SF. Capital investments or increases that do not meet the above criteria must be reported to the SFC before the operation is carried out.

In banks by nonresidents  Yes.  The acquisition of 10% or more of the subscribed shares of entities subject to SFC inspection or an increase in that percentage requires prior approval by the SFC.

Open foreign exchange position limits  Yes.  The limits take into account foreign currency rights and obligations regardless of whether the counterparties to the positions are residents or nonresidents. The proprietary position in foreign currency (the difference between the balance-sheet and off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities denominated in foreign currency) excludes the value of investments controlled abroad and derivatives and other obligations designated by the EMI as hedging instruments for these investments. The three-business-day arithmetic mean of EMI’s own foreign currency position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 20% of the EMI’s capital, and the position may be negative, but the absolute value of the negative position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 5% of capital. Moreover, EMIs are required to meet the limits on the following consolidated indicators: (1) positive exchange risk indicator (IRC⁺) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are greater than 0); the three-business day average of the IRC⁺ may not be less than 40% of the EMI’s capital; (2) negative exchange risk indicator (IRC⁻) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are less than 0); the three-business-day average of the IRC⁻ may not be less than 40% of capital; and (3) short-term exposure indicators. The “Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator” (the sum of (1) the EMI’s net surpluses per currency, adjusted by a foreign exchange haircut, and (2) the EMI’s net shortfalls per currency; net surpluses or shortfalls per currency are the difference between liquid assets per currency and net liquidity requirements per currency), will be calculated for periods of 7 and 30 calendar days, and must be greater than 0. The “Consolidated Short-Term Exposure Indicator” (the sum of (1) the EMI’s “Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator,” considering significant currencies at the consolidated level, and (2) the Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator” (the sum of (1) the EMI’s net surpluses per currency, adjusted by a foreign exchange haircut, and (2) the EMI’s net shortfalls per currency; net surpluses or shortfalls per currency are the difference between liquid assets per currency and net liquidity requirements per currency), will be calculated for periods of 7 and 30 calendar days, and must be greater than 0.
Short-Term Exposure Indicators calculated by country, where their affiliates are established, provided they are less than 0) will be calculated for a period of 30 calendar days and must be greater than 0.

(4) The position in investments controlled abroad (PICE) (the difference between the value of investments controlled abroad and the value of derivatives and other obligations designated by the EMI as hedging instruments for these investments). Since July 31, 2019, the PICE may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 150% of capital for controlled investments. (Before the PICE was introduced, these items were part of the global foreign currency position).

Exchange Measures

- Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: No.
- Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: No.
- In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51): No.
- Other security restrictions: No.

Exchange Arrangement

- Currency: Yes. The currency of the Comoros is the Comorian franc.
- Other legal tender: No.
- Exchange rate structure
  - Unitary: Yes. The exchange rate is based on fixed parity with the euro.
  - Dual: No.
  - Multiple: No.
- Classification
  - No separate legal tender: Yes.
  - Currency board: Yes.
- Conventional peg: Yes. The Comoros participates in the franc zone area. The Comorian franc is pegged to the euro at the fixed rate of CF 491.96775 per euro; the value of other currencies is based on the exchange rates of these currencies in the foreign exchange markets. The exchange rate arrangement is established by the following documents: (1) the monetary November 23, 1979, cooperation agreement between the Comorian and French governments; (2) the November 23, 1998, decision by the European Council of Ministers authorizing France to maintain its monetary arrangements with the CFA area countries and the Comoros; and (3) the January 14, 1999, order of the governor of the Central Bank of Comoros (CBC) on euro–Comorian franc parity. Decree No. 87-005/PR, Regulating Financial Relations between the Comoros and Other Countries and its regulations apply. The government of either the Comoros or France may change the exchange rate arrangement after notification to the other party.
- Stabilized arrangement: No.
The Comorian franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed rate of CF 491.96775 per euro. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation. The government of either the Comoros or France may change the exchange rate arrangement after notification to the other party to the monetary cooperation agreement.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The terms of government borrowing directly from the CB are defined under Article 22 of the CBC charter. The discount rate is indexed to the euro zone interbank market rate, that is, the Euro Short-Term Rate, which succeeded Euro Over Night Index Average in the Euro area as of October 2019. The CBC adopted this new reference rate, which it applies to all its operations previously referring to Euro Over Night Index Average.

While the external anchoring of the Comorian currency is clearly defined through the rules of fixed parity between the euro and the Comorian franc and the external hedging of the national currency (the ratio of external assets to the CBC’s demand deposits must remain at least 20%), the objective of monetary stability stipulated in Article 6 of the CBC’s charter is not accompanied by an explicit inflation indicator or target. However, the Comoros is subject to multilateral convergence criteria in the framework of regional cooperation in Africa (COMESA, SADC, Association des Banques Centrales Africaines, or Association of Central African Banks, etc.). Among these criteria is the inflation rate, which is currently set at a maximum of 7% in the Association des Banques Centrales Africaines, or Association of Central African Banks zone and a maximum of 5% in COMESA and SADC. This inflation norm is set at 3% in the other communities of the Africa-France Monetary Cooperation (CMAF).

Foreign exchange market

Yes. Foreign exchange dealers authorized by the CBC may deal in any currency and freely set their spreads and commissions.

Spot exchange market

Yes. Licensed institutions must be designated authorized intermediaries by the CB to carry out foreign exchange transactions and money transfers. Nine licensed institutions have authorized intermediary status. Two other financial intermediaries are authorized to engage in OTC foreign exchange and money transfer operations. All authorized financial institutions may carry out foreign exchange transactions with the CB. Only credit institutions may maintain correspondent accounts abroad. Seven credit institutions are licensed: four commercial banks and three microfinance networks. There are also three authorized intermediaries: the financial services provided by the Postal Administration and two private money transfer and foreign exchange companies.

As of December 31, 2021, there were ten approved credit institutions including four banks and four decentralized financial institutions. There are also three financial intermediaries.

Operated by the central bank  Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility  Yes. The CBC exchanges Comorian francs against euros at the official rate, subject to a commission, after verification and economic justification of the transaction.

Allocation  Yes. The CBC exchanges Comorian francs against euros at the official rate, subject to a commission, after verification of the transaction.

Auction  No.

Fixing  No.

Interbank market  Yes. The interbank foreign exchange market is not active, but interbank foreign exchange dealing is permitted. At present, it is limited to deposits of cash surpluses of microfinance institutions at banks in the market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread nor on the commissions set by market participants. All financial institutions (credit institutions and financial intermediaries) licensed by the CBC are authorized to participate in the interbank market. As of December 31, 2021, there were four banks and four decentralized financial institutions that may participate in the interbank market.

Over the counter  Yes. OTC Comorian franc–euro exchange transactions are carried out between licensed institutions at the official rate plus a commission.

Brokerage  No.

Market making  No.

Forward exchange market  Yes. There is no forward foreign exchange market. However, forward cover transactions against exchange rate risk are authorized by the CBC and are provided to traders for up to three months by licensed commercial banks that are authorized to conduct this type of transaction.

Official cover of forward operations  No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  Yes. The Comoros is linked to the French Treasury through an operations account, through which settlements with France, Monaco, and other operations account countries (franc zone area members) take place in euros or in the currency of any other operations account country. Settlements with other countries usually take place through correspondent banks in France in the currency of the countries or in euros through foreign accounts in Comorian francs.

Controls on the use of domestic currency  Yes. Settlements in domestic currency abroad require CBC approval.

For current transactions and payments  Yes. Settlements abroad in banknotes are not allowed.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices  Yes. The IMF staff report for the Request for a Three-Year Arrangement under the Extended Credit Facility and Review of Performance under the Staff Monitored Program states that as of June 29, 2021, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) maintained one exchange rate restriction subject to IMF approval arising from an outstanding net debt position against other contracting members under the inoperative regional payments’ agreement with the CEPGL. (Country Report No. 21/168)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) No.

Other security restrictions No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency Yes. The currency of the DRC is the Congo franc (CDF).

Other legal tender No. In the DRC, the CDF is the only legal tender. No other currency has ever been accepted as legal tender in the DRC. However, the Central Bank of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (BCC) publishes, on a daily basis, exchange rates for certain currencies listed and admitted on the national territory by the foreign exchange regulation.

Crawl-like arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the CDF is determined by supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The BCC intervenes through auction, which is the only operational framework for the BCC’s transactions with the market. Among the services of the CB, the statistics of interventions are published on a daily basis and the Directorate of Statistics layers them in its weekly, monthly, semiannual, and annual publications. This information is also published on the BCC’s website. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as crawl-like.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The BCC publishes the daily official (reference) exchange rate, which is based on the weighted average of the amounts and rates from market transactions, as reported by the commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus. The official exchange rate is an indicative rather than an operational rate.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange tax  Yes.  A charge of 0.02% is levied by the BCC on all payments entering or leaving the country, regardless of the nature of the originator or the beneficiary.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  The foreign exchange market is regulated by an agreement signed in 2003 between the BCC and the licensed banks. Participants in the exchange market are the BCC, the licensed banks, and all other licensed financial intermediaries (for example, exchange bureaus) that accede to the agreement. As of December 31, 2021, there were 15 active commercial banks. Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission. There is also a parallel market with a fairly large number of participants for which the volume of transactions is difficult to estimate. The daily spread between the official rate and parallel rate averaged 3.45% in 2020 and 1.94% in 2021. Any Congolese legal entity wishing to engage in activity as an exchange bureau must be licensed by the BCC. There are currently 30 authorized foreign exchange bureaus. The exchange bureaus cannot execute foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCC. Exchange bureaus are authorized to buy and sell foreign currencies for local currency in cash and to buy and sell foreign currencies for other currencies in cash. Exchange bureaus may not (1) maintain accounts abroad. They are required to maintain accounts in domestic currency and/or foreign-currency-denominated accounts opened in... the Congolese banking system or (2) conduct foreign exchange transactions in excess of US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies a person a day. The exchange bureaus may not execute transfers with the rest of the world, import or export banknotes, or hold deposits for their customers.

Operated by the central bank  Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility  No.
Allocation  No.
Auction  Yes. The CB has been holding bilateral auctions since May 15, 2015, twice a week, on Mondays and Thursdays; in exceptional cases, depending on the monetary policy requirements, it may organize bilateral auctions on the other days of the week. Only commercial banks and the CB are authorized to participate in bilateral foreign exchange auctions, which are multiple rate auctions. The auctions are subject to rate limits. There is a mechanism to ensure that the accepted bid buying and selling exchange rates remain within plus or minus 2% of the marginal auction rate. Accordingly, buying (selling) bids greater than (less than) 102% (98%) of the marginal auction rate are honored at the maximum (minimum) auction exchange rate. There is no limit to the amount. The auction amount is not announced in advance. The BCC organizes two auctions per week in strict compliance with the schedule. Banks that fail to honor their commitments deriving from auction operations are penalized in accordance with the tariffs and conditions of the BCC of December 2003. The BCC publishes the auction results at its website and in its information system, or through other means of communication (duly signed letter, e-mail, fax, and swift messages) using a standard form. In addition, a confirmation message for the purchase or sale of foreign exchange is sent to each accepted bank.

Fixing  No.

Interbank market  Yes. Operations in the interbank foreign exchange market take place over the counter or by bilateral auction. No charges or commissions are assessed. Only commercial banks and the BCC participate in this market. There are currently 15 authorized commercial banks in the interbank market. Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission. As of December 31, 2021, almost all banks participated in the interbank market. The BCC purchases US dollars sporadically at the banks’ initiative. In 2021, the BCC was a net buyer of US dollars.

Over the counter  Yes. Foreign currency transactions are executed over the counter at prices determined by supply and demand.

Brokerage  No.
Market making  No.

Forward exchange market  Yes. A forward exchange market exists and is regulated by the same institutional mechanism as the spot market.

Official cover of forward operations  No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency  No.

For current transactions and payments  No.  Domestic transactions between residents and nonresidents may be expressed and carried out in domestic currency. Except as otherwise provided in the Exchange Regulations, transactions may also be denominated and settled in one of the foreign currencies quoted by the BCC, by agreement of the parties. For current transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. International transactions are frequently expressed and settled in foreign currencies.

For capital transactions  No.  Domestic transactions between residents, and between residents and nonresidents, are expressed and settled in domestic currency. Except as otherwise provided in the Exchange Regulations, transactions may also be denominated and settled in one of the foreign currencies listed by the BCC, by agreement of the parties. For capital transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. International transactions are frequently expressed and settled in foreign currencies.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments  No.  International and domestic capital transactions between residents and between residents and nonresidents are expressed in the currency agreed between the parties. For capital and money market transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. Money market instruments are expressed and settled in national currency. However, the government may issue treasury bills in foreign currency.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments  No.  Money market instruments are expressed and settled in national currency. For derivatives transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency.

Credit operations  No.  Capital transactions between residents and nonresidents are expressed and settled in national currency or any other currency quoted by the BCC. For credit operations, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency.

Use of foreign exchange among residents  Yes.  The domestic currency and foreign currencies are in circulation. However, residential rent, education, and health-related expenditures and the cost of domestic water and electricity consumption are set and paid for only in domestic currency when the transactions are between residents.

Payments arrangements  Yes.  Foreign exchange transactions initiated in the context of international accords are settled in accordance with the provisions of the foreign exchange regulations in force.

Bilateral payments arrangements  Yes.

Operative  No.

Inoperative  Yes.  There is an inoperative bilateral payments agreement with Zimbabwe.

Regional arrangements  Yes.  The DRC is a member of COMESA, the SADC, the CEPGL, and the Economic Community of Central African States.

Clearing agreements  Yes.  Within the CEPGL, the DRC has payments agreements that use the clearing mechanism. Payments are made through SDR-denominated accounts among the CBs of Burundi, the DRC, and Rwanda. These agreements are inoperative.

Barter agreements and open accounts  No.

Administration of control  Yes.  Foreign exchange transactions must take place through the BCC or authorized intermediaries. The BCC also supervises authorized banks and nonbank intermediaries and regulates the foreign exchange positions of banks. Supporting documentation is required for operations involving (1) revenue transfers for exports of goods and services.
services, imports of services, and imports of goods exceeding the equivalent of US$2,500 and (2) current transfers, capital movements, and international payments exceeding US$10,000.

Payments arrears
- Official: Yes.
- Private: No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)
- On domestic ownership and/or trade: Yes. Only Congolese may purchase, transport, sell, or hold gold in areas not covered by exclusive mining concessions. Foreign individuals and legal entities may do so only on behalf of authorized marketing agencies.
- On external trade: Yes. Gold from artisanal production may be exported only by authorized marketing agencies and does not require BCC authorization. However, they must comply with the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme and require, in addition to an export declaration made through a licensed bank, an appraisal certificate from the Centre for Evaluation, Expertise and Certification (CEEC) and a certificate of origin. In addition to pre-financing, the repatriation of proceeds from exports of gold must be effected within 20 days of the date of shipment.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes
- On exports
  - Domestic currency: No.
  - Foreign currency: Yes. There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. Travelers exiting the country may carry foreign exchange not exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currency, unless they are in transit internationally or on a service mission. Travelers must declare the amount of foreign exchange carried. Transfers of amounts exceeding US$10,000 must be made through a bank. The transfer abroad of foreign banknotes representing part of the foreign exchange position of a licensed bank requires authorization by the BCC. The bank must apply to the BCC online, specifying in foreign currency the amounts to be exported and the name and address of the recipient correspondent bank abroad.
- On imports
  - Domestic currency: No.
  - Foreign currency: Yes. There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. The amount of foreign cash that may be held on entering or leaving the national territory must be less than US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies. Larger amounts must be transferred via bank transfer. For their operations, licensed banks are authorized to physically export and import foreign-currency-denominated banknotes, which are, in their entirety, deemed to be part of the bank’s exchange position, based on BCC authorization requested online.

Resident Accounts
- Foreign exchange accounts permitted: Yes.
- Held domestically: Yes. Licensed banks are authorized to open foreign-currency-denominated accounts for residents ("Résident en Monnaies Etrangères" accounts) without prior authorization from the CB. These accounts may (1) be demand or time deposits; (2) bear interest; (3) be credited or debited without restriction; and (4) record domestic transfers between Résident en Monnaies Etrangères accounts, subject to the signature of exchange documents. Balances in foreign exchange accounts held domestically may be transferred abroad freely subject to the provision of a description and supporting documentation.

Approval required No.

Held abroad Yes. In accordance with the foreign exchange regulations, licensed banks are permitted to open bank accounts with foreign correspondents to execute transactions for their customers or themselves. Companies holding mining rights are permitted to hold foreign bank accounts with reputable international banks and report those accounts to the BCC. Accounts designated as "Principal Account" may be used to manage funds the company is permitted to hold outside the national territory, and other accounts to manage funds transferred from the principal account to service foreign debt, and for provisions and statutory, legal, and discretionary reserves.

Approval required Yes.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency Yes. Holdings in domestic currency are converted freely by agreement between the account holder and the commercial bank.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. Licensed banks are authorized to open foreign-currency-denominated accounts for nonresidents ("Non-résident en Monnaies Etrangères" accounts) without prior authorization from the CB. These accounts may (1) be demand or time deposits; (2) bear interest; (3) be credited or debited without restriction; and (4) record domestic transfers between Non-résident en Monnaies Etrangères accounts, subject to the signature of exchange documents. Balances in foreign exchange accounts held domestically may be transferred abroad freely subject to the provision of a description and supporting documentation.

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes. Licensed banks may open domestic currency accounts for nonresidents without BCC approval. These accounts may be demand or time deposit accounts.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Balances in domestic currency accounts originating from legitimate international transactions may be converted and transferred.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No. Transactions may be freely conducted on these accounts.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports No. There are no restrictions; the importer simply has to comply with administrative measures. This includes importer payments to nonresident suppliers that must be accompanied by a declaration to which the goods and services contract, the invoice, and/or any other supporting documentation are attached. The importer is required to pay the invoice through an intervening bank.
Minimum financing requirements  No.
Advance payment requirements  No.
Advance import deposits  No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports  Yes.
Domiciliation requirements  Yes. With the exception of border trade, all transactions relating to the import of goods, irrespective of the form of financing, require the prior filing of a model IB declaration for imports of goods with a resident commercial bank.
Preshipment inspection  Yes. Imports are subject to preshipment inspection. The amount, invoice price, and quality of imports must be verified and approved by the foreign agent of the Office of Congolese Control. Verification certificates are not required for imports of up to the f.o.b. equivalent of US$2,500 a shipment.
Letters of credit  Yes. Regulations on import payments follow generally accepted international payment methods.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses  No. An import declaration validated by a licensed bank constitutes authorization to import and/or make payments to a foreign supplier and does not limit the amount of the transaction.
Other  Yes. Written authorization from the relevant government department is required for certain goods, such as coins, commemorative coins, banknotes, weapons, and ammunition.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures  Yes.
Positive list  Yes. All products are authorized, except certain goods that require the consent of the relevant government department.
Negative list  No.
Open general licenses  Yes. The following may be imported without an exchange document, provided they are not intended for resale: (1) commercial samples without value; (2) newspapers, periodicals, and magazines for personal use and by subscription; (3) baggage and personal articles; (4) goods for the resupply of oil platforms carried from abroad aboard aircraft, ships, and other domestic means of transport; and (5) articles whose total value, including freight and insurance, does not exceed US$2,500 a shipment (cargo splitting is prohibited).
Licenses with quotas  No.
Other nontariff measures  No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs  Yes. The tax and customs services determine and collect import taxes and duties.
Taxes collected through the exchange system  Yes. The BCC charges an exchange control fee of 0.02% on payments made abroad by the banks to cover import expenses and on imports for which no foreign currency is purchased.
State import monopoly  Yes. Military materials are subject to a state import monopoly.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements  Yes. With the exception of gold and diamonds produced by artisanal miners, for which the amount must be received at the bank no later than 20 days from the date of exit, export or reexport receipts from all other products of any nature must be repatriated no later than 60 calendar days from the date (1) the goods exit the national territory for a final destination or (2) the goods are shipped from an African country to a final destination.
The exporter is required to transmit the transport document for shipped goods to the intervening bank for certification of the shipment date. In the case of exports on consignment, the export proceeds must be repatriated as soon as the merchandise has been sold and not later than the end of the validity period of the EB declaration form. As the sales progress, the exporter is required to receive a consignment accounting statement along with the relevant payment when the exporter must repatriate the proceeds.
For companies holding mineral rights, export receipts from mining products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and from shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment period.
Mineral rights holders are authorized to keep 40% of export receipts in the primary account. Only mineral rights holders that have provided the bank references and regularly report activity in the primary account to the BCC may keep a portion of export or pre-financing receipts abroad. The 60% of export receipts required to be repatriated must be deposited to an account opened with the intervening bank within 15 days of the deposit of funds in the primary foreign account. The repatriated portion of export receipts must be used to cover domestic expenses payable to residents and may not be used to finance imports or any other international payment.
Accounts opened with the national banking system must also be credited with pre-financing and miscellaneous resources and obligations related to the firm’s operations.
Every mineral rights holder is required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month’s activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.
The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a mineral rights holder, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance.
To that end, the mineral rights holder must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a notarized letter to its banker authorizing verification of the transactions in its primary account within 30 days of receipt of the BCC correspondence.
For petroleum production companies, export receipts from petroleum products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and of shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment.
Every petroleum exploration and production company must be required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month’s activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.
The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a petroleum exploration and production company, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance.
To that end, the petroleum exploration and production company must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a notarized letter to its banker authorizing verification of the transactions in its primary account within 30 days of receipt of the CB.
or to the BCC. If they do surrender them, the terms, conditions, and arrangements must be agreed to by the bank and its customers.

Trade-related payments | Yes. |

Payments from abroad for invisible transactions (services) and outward transfers in connection with primary or secondary income are permitted on submission of an exchange document, depending on the case, the IS declaration for services of any amount and the income and capital (RC) declaration for primary and secondary income for any amount equal to or exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies listed by the BCC. Funds sent in connection with primary and secondary income must come from transactions with a lawful economic origin.
Prior approval | No.
Quantitative limits | No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test | Yes. Presentation of regulatory documents is required. The resident commercial bank that validates the declaration must ensure that the anti-money-laundering law is observed.
Investment-related payments | Yes.
Prior approval | No.
Quantitative limits | No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test | Yes. For financial operations, the signing of an RC Declaration Form with a commercial bank for statistical purposes is a prerequisite, regardless of the amount. Profits, dividends, interest, rental income, and other such income earned in the DRC must be transferred through licensed banks according to contractual provisions.
Payments for travel | Yes.
Prior approval | No.
Quantitative limits | No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test | Yes. Residents and nonresidents entering or leaving the country may bring foreign banknotes and coins of an amount less than US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies. Amounts in excess of this ceiling at the time of entering or leaving the national territory must be transferred via bank transfer.
Personal payments | Yes.
Prior approval | No.
Quantitative limits | No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test | Yes. Any payment of the amount of US$10,000 or more requires the filing of a model RC declaration and must be compliant with the anti-money-laundering law in the DRC.
Foreign workers’ wages | Yes. Foreign workers’ income and wages earned in the DRC may be transferred through licensed banks.
Prior approval | No.
Quantitative limits | No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test | Yes. Any sending or receiving of primary or secondary income and capital having a value of US$10,000 or more or equivalent in other foreign currencies requires the prior signing of an RC Declaration Form with a licensed bank.
Credit card use abroad | Yes.
Prior approval | No.
Quantitative limits | Yes. The issuer is responsible for defining the overall transaction limits a mechanism a day. In practice, commercial banks cap the withdrawal between US$500 and US$1,500. As a COVID-19 measure, this ceiling was increased to US$2,500 to promote the use of electronic money.
Indicative limits/bona fide test | Yes. The daily limit depends on the type of card.
Other payments: Yes.

Prior approval: No.

Quantitative limits: No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test: Yes. For transfers or deposits to an account of a nonresident with a resident bank, any payment greater than or equal to US$10,000 is subject to the signing of an RC Declaration Form.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements: Yes. Payments to and from other countries for invisible transactions and current transfers are permitted with an IS or RC exchange document from a licensed bank (for statistical purposes). Payment of a current transfer of less than US$10,000 does not require an RC. Licensed banks must produce a statement of receipts in foreign currency. Licensed banks must complete a statement of receipts in foreign currency for proceeds from exports of services. Exporters must obtain payment from foreign buyers of services based on an export of services declaration and repatriate payments through a licensed bank. A stamped export of services from a licensed bank authorizes exportation of services on payment of the amount invoiced. The proceeds of exports of services must be repatriated no later than 30 calendar days from the date the services were rendered.

Surrender requirements: No.

Surrender to the central bank: No.

Surrender to authorized dealers: No.

Restrictions on use of funds: No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions: Yes. Inward and outward capital transactions are permitted on submission of an RC declaration form. The capital involved must represent the proceeds of lawful transactions.

Licensed banks are permitted to negotiate and obtain lines of credit for own account subject to compliance with prudential rules issued by the BCC.

Banks may freely debit or credit accounts in foreign exchange of nonresidents, although a foreign exchange document must be signed for transfers of more than US$10,000.

Financing may be provided in foreign currency. However, short-term loans to resident households must be contracted and paid in national currency.

A foreign exchange document is required only for nonresidents who subscribe to these securities.

The CB may not purchase foreign currency deposited in residents’ or nonresidents’ accounts at its own initiative.

Banks are required to hold reserves in national currency on their foreign currency deposits. The reserve ratios are 12% for term deposits and 13% for demand deposits. On the other hand, the ratios applied to demand and term deposits in national currency are 0.

A liquidity ratio of 100% must be observed.

The borrowing and lending rates charged by banks are liberalized.

The treatment is the same as for residents.

Instruction No. 18 establishes the terms and conditions for licensing of banks and bank officers and their employment status.

Authorization must be obtained from the BCC.

Authorization must be obtained from the BCC.

The limits on the open foreign exchange positions of each bank are determined by the BCC. Banks must observe the following: (1) a maximum ratio of 5% between their long or short positions in each foreign currency and their capital and (2) a maximum ratio of 15% between their short positions in all foreign currencies and their capital.

| Conventional peg | Yes. | The exchange rate arrangement of the CEMAC is a conventional peg. The Republic of Congo participates in the CEMAC and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country’s renunciation of the MCA. |

The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Other monetary framework

- Exchange tax: Yes. Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.

- Exchange subsidy: No.

- Foreign exchange market: Yes. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC’s OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

  - Operated by the central bank: Yes. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

  - Foreign exchange standing facility: Yes. Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

  - Allocation: No.
There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC).

A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.

In principle, all licensed banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.

Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.

There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.

- Inoperative
  - No.

Regional arrangements

- Yes.

  An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements

- No.

Barter agreements and open accounts

- Yes.

  In the Republic of Congo, under production-sharing and investment contracts, clearing accounts used to make import payments from export receipts are held abroad under the control of MOF and BEAC departments.

Administration of control

- Yes.

  Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears

- No.

  Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official

- No.

Private

- No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

- Yes.

  - On domestic ownership and/or trade
    - Yes.

      CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

    - On external trade
      - Yes.

        Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

- Yes.

  Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

Domestic currency

- Yes.

  CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries.
outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

| Foreign currency | Yes. | Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others. |
| Domestic currency | Yes. | CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. |
| Foreign currency | No. | Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. |

Resident Accounts

| Foreign exchange accounts permitted | Yes. | Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. |
| Held domestically | Yes. | The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC. Generally, the BEAC’s approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts. |
| Approval required | Yes. | Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law. |
| Held abroad | Yes. | In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require foreign currency accounts to be established, these are authorized by the BEAC. In addition, effective December 23, 2021, companies in the extractive sector benefit from a special provision | allowing them to hold foreign currency accounts abroad as part of their ordinary operations.

| Approval required | Yes. | The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. |
| Accounts in domestic currency held abroad | Yes. | Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously, these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC. |
| Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency | No. |

Nonresident Accounts

| Foreign exchange accounts permitted | Yes. | There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. |
| Approval required | No. |
| Domestic currency accounts | Yes. | There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. |
| Convertible into foreign currency | No. |
| Approval required | No. |
| Blocked accounts | No. |

Imports and Import Payments

| Foreign exchange budget | No. | The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries. |
| Financing requirements for imports | No. | Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. |
| Minimum financing requirements | No. | There are no financing requirements. |
| Advance payment requirements | No. |
| Advance import deposits | No. |
| Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports | Yes. | For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast. |
| Domiciliation requirements | Yes. | Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. |
| Preshipment inspection | Yes. | There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the Republic of Congo, imports valued at CFAF 3 million or more... |
Letters of credit No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses No. Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

Other Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures Yes. In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.

In the Republic of Congo, an import program is established each year for five separate zones: (1) CEMAC member countries, (2) France, (3) other operations accounts countries, (4) EU countries other than France, and (5) all other countries. Under this program, imports of nine products require licenses and all others are subject to ex post declaration.

Positive list No.

Negative list Yes. Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.

Open general licenses Yes. There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in the Republic of Congo, imports of cement, forest products, oil products, and some staples require a license. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.

Licenses with quotas Yes. In the Republic of Congo, licenses with quotas apply to imports of cement, wheat flour, and sugar.

Other nontariff measures Yes. In the Republic of Congo, imports of commercial goods must be insured through licensed insurance companies.

Import taxes and/or tariffs Yes. The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.

In the Republic of Congo, a surcharge of 30% applies to imports of goods previously subject to quantitative restrictions. This surcharge is to be eliminated in three to six years, with the longer period applying to certain agricultural products and textiles.

Taxes collected through the exchange system Yes. Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

State import monopoly No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements Yes. Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds...

Surrender to authorized dealers | No.

Financing requirements No.

Documentation requirements Yes.
Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Letters of credit No.
The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Guarantees n.r.

Domiciliation Yes.
Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.

Preshipment inspection Yes.
The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the Republic of Congo, the Société Générale de Surveillance (SGS) and COTECNA handle preshipment inspections.

Other No.

Export licenses No.

Without quotas No.

With quotas No.

Export taxes Yes.
Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.

Collected through the exchange system Yes.
Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

Other export taxes Yes.
In the Republic of Congo, export taxes of up to 13% apply to certain products.

Investment-related payments: Yes.

Prior approval: Yes. In the Republic of Congo, payments for depreciation of direct investments require authorization from the General Directorate of Money and Credit.

Quantitative limits: No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test: Yes. There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc., payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided.

Payments for travel: Yes.

Prior approval: No.

Quantitative limits: No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test: Yes. Indicative limits are established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Licensed intermediaries must serve their customers’ foreign currency needs, to the extent that funds are available to them, and check supporting documentation, including, as applicable, a valid travel document and ticket, a mission order, a health evacuation authorization, or a certificate of registration at a school or university, and report to the appropriate authorities.

Personal payments: Yes. Transfers are unrestricted, on submission of supporting documentation.

Surrender to authorized dealers | No.
Restrictions on use of funds | No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions | Yes. The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which came into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution
January 30, 2015. Under this arrangement the CB operates on the foreign exchange market for three reasons: (1) to manage the requirements of the nonbank public sector (NBPS); (2) to address sudden movements in the exchange rate without changing the trend in this macro price (these interventions are known as stabilization operations); and (3) to meet its foreign exchange requirements with programs for the purchase of reserves. The BCCR publishes its intervention data on a daily basis right after the MONEX trading session closes.

In 2021, the BCCR participated in the foreign exchange market only for the first reason. More specifically, this year, it sold US$35.8 million for stabilization purposes, primarily in October (US$279.6 million in 2020). These sales were intended to address an unusually large deficit on the private foreign exchange market, with a cumulative negative result of US$87.8 million during the latter half of the month, as against surpluses registered for the same period during previous years.

In terms of foreign exchange management for the NBPS, the BCCR’s policy has been to address these requirements with its net international reserves (RIN) and to return them through purchase on the foreign exchange market (Mercado de Monedas Extranjeras: MONEX) at the conditions prevailing on the private foreign exchange market.

During 2021, and in general, since the beginning of the pandemic, there has been a substantial increase in demand for foreign exchange in the NBPS and from pension operators. This demand reduced the central government’s budget space to replace all foreign exchange sold to the NBPS on the foreign exchange market.

Foreign exchange intermediaries had a net selling position on the foreign exchange market of US$2,421 million, that, in addition to the net buying position of the remaining non-intermediary participants (US$125.3 million), enabled the CB to purchase US$2,331.6 million, while it executed US$35.8 million in sales for stabilization purposes. These purchases enabled the BCCR to replace some of the sales of reserves to meet the net requirements of the rest of the NBPS (US$2,709.8 million) and net sales to the Ministry of Treasury in the amount of US$920 million. Accordingly, the use of net international reserve (RIN) for operations of the NBPS amounted in 2021 to approximately US$1,300 million.

There was an increasing trend in the average exchange rate on the foreign exchange market, placing it at CRC 622.67 (as against CRC 586.55 for the previous year). Until end-2021, to mitigate the shortage of instruments in foreign exchange in the domestic financial system and to strengthen the country’s -net international reserve position, the Board of Directors of the BCCR authorized the collection in the short term of resources in US dollars through the MIL platform.

During the first half of 2022, the public supply of foreign exchange reached a high as against the three previous years, as the foreign exchange market addressed pressures that fostered a more accentuated increase in the exchange rate, particularly during the second quarter, when less foreign exchange was normally available for reasons of seasonality.
The increased pressure on the foreign exchange market was first observed in mid-May. Foreign exchange intermediaries relieved some of the pressure on the foreign exchange market by divesting their foreign exchange positions (FXPs). Between the beginning of January and July 29 of this year, the FXP declined by US$63.7 million. The pressure on the foreign exchange market can be explained by increased demand for foreign exchange, primarily to cover the oil bill, as well as the increased demand from pension operators. The dollarization of savings and the shift to colones in credit to the private sector discussed earlier in this report were also influencing factors.

Increases in international raw materials prices and the effects of global supply chain problems on transportation costs for merchandise led to an increase in the value of imports. More specifically, during the first half of 2022, the oil bill was US$1,336.3 million, as compared to US$684.6 million one year earlier, under the impetus of the cumulative increase, as against December 2021, of 81.3% in the price per barrel and 7.7% in the imported volume.

The increase in demand for foreign exchange on the part of pension operators has been present since 2015, when these institutions began to increase the share of assets denominated in US dollars in their investment portfolio, for enhanced diversification. Between 2018 and 2022 (May), the balance of assets issued by nonresidents and managed by supplementary pension operators increased by US$3,167 million.

On July 29, 2022, net demand in the NBPS amounted to US$2,191.1 million (US$1,985.6 million during the same period of 2021). This demand was motivated by the need to cover the oil bill and debt payments. To restore some of this foreign exchange, the BCCR bought a total of US$1,618.3 million on the foreign exchange market. On that date, the exchange rate was CRC 672.28, equivalent to 8.18% year on year and a cumulative rate of 4.66% in 2022.

Since October 2021, the exchange rate has increased its flexibility. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from crawl-like, effective October 28, 2021.

Official exchange rate

Yes. Costa Rica does not have an official exchange rate; however, for the liquidation of instruments, contracts, and obligations denominated in foreign currency, Article 48 of the Organic Law of the BCCR (LOBCCR) provides that, at the debtor’s option, the latter may be paid in colones at an amount equivalent to the actual market value.

The actual market value is determined by using the buying and selling benchmark exchange rate, which is calculated daily by the BCCR pursuant to Article 9 of the Regulation on Spot Exchange Operations (ROCC). Benchmark exchange rates will be used, as applicable, for all purposes set forth by the various laws, regulations, rules, and general provisions.

The buying and selling benchmark exchange rates for each day will be calculated by the BCCR based on online information submitted to the CB by each entity authorized to participate in the foreign exchange market.

The benchmark exchange rates are calculated as follows pursuant to Article 9 of the ROCC: The benchmark exchange rates (buying and serving) for day 1 are the average (weighted by amount) of the exchange rates of the foreign currency (buying and selling) transactions between foreign exchange dealers and the public on day 1_t, during the period defined by agreement of the Board of Directors of the BCCR.

The exchange rate is a reference for the market; its use is not mandatory.

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework

Yes. Under Article 5 of the minutes from Session 5813-2018 of January 31, 2018, the Board of Directors of the BCCR adopted an inflation targeting framework.

The BCCR upheld the institutional commitment to the domestic stability of the colón embodied in an inflation target of 3%, with a tolerance range of ±1 percentage point (pp), which was maintained in the January 2022 Monetary Policy Report (IPM), as revised in July 2021.

On January 5, 2022, the Board of Directors decided to combine the series of the macroeconomic program and the IPM into one report, beginning in January 2022. The report will thereafter be known as the IPM and will be published in January, April, July, and October every year.

In the July 2022 IPM, the Board of Directors of the CB confirmed the explicit inflation target of 3%, with a tolerance of ±1 pp for a horizon of 12–24 months, which was defined since January 5, 2016.

Target setting body

Yes.

- Government

- Central Bank

Monetary Policy Committee

Yes. The Board of Directors of the BCCR maintained the long-term inflation target at 3%, with a tolerance band of ±1 pp, in the 2021–2022 macroeconomic program and its respective revision in July 2021.

Other

- Government and Central Bank

Inflation target

Yes.

Target number

Yes.
The long-term inflation target is 3%, with a tolerance band of ±1 pp.

It is measured as the year-on-year change.

It is approximated as the simple average of the year-on-year change in the fixed exclusion indicators for volatility (IEV), truncated mean (IMT), reweighting for volatility (IRV), reweighting for persistence (IRP), and fixed exclusion of agricultural products and fuels (IEF).

It is biannual, associated with macroeconomic programming with a benchmark value of 3% (long-term inflation of key trading partners).

The policy rate is defined as the BCCR target interest rate used as a benchmark to bring the cost of overnight operations in the integrated liquidity market within a band consisting of interest rates for its standing deposit and credit facilities. It is determined by the Board of Directors of BCCR.

In 2021, the CB has maintained the expansionary and countercyclical stance of the monetary policy it adopted in March 2019 and deepened with the pandemic. This policy seeks to contribute to the economic recovery process and ensure the stability of the financial system. Thus, the CB has lowered its monetary policy rate (TPM) by 450 basis points (b.p.) between March 2019 and July 2021.

The BCCR uses the TPM to indicate its monetary policy stance. Since mid-June 2020, this indicator has been maintained at its historic minimum of 0.75%, after having declined by 450 b.p. between March 2019 and the first half of 2020. However, in December 2021, the Board of Directors introduced a process of gradually increasing the TPM (by 50 b.p. during that month and 625 b.p. in terms of 2022) to reach 7.5% in July.

The TPM was increased by following steps:
- As of December 17, 2021, the TPM was increased by 50 b.p. arriving at 1.25%.
- As of January 27, 2022, the TPM was increased by 50 b.p. arriving at 1.75%.
- As of March 15, 2022, the TPM was increased by 75 b.p. arriving at 2.50%.
- As of April 28, 2022, the TPM was increased by 150 b.p. arriving at 4.00%.
- As of June 20, 2022, the TPM was increased by 150 b.p. arriving at 5.50%.
- As of July 28, 2022, the TPM was increased by 200 b.p. arriving at 7.50%.

This band is determined by the Board of Directors. The upper value of the band is the standing credit facility (FPC) interest rate and the lower value the standing deposit facility (FPD) interest rate. As of June 18, 2020, the FPC interest rate was 0.01% and the FPD interest rate, 1.5%.

As of December 16, 2021, the TPM was 1.25%, the interest rate for the BCCR FPC was 2%, and the interest rate for the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 0.51%.
As of January 27, 2022, the TPM was 1.75%, the FPC was 2.5%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 1%.

As of March 15, 2022, the TPM was 2.5%, the FPC was 3.25%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 1.75%.

As of April 28, 2022, the TPM was 4%, the FPC was 4.75%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 3.25%.

As of June 16, 2022, the TPM was 5.5%, the FPC was 6.25%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 4.75%.

As of July 28, 2022, the TPM was 7.5%, the FPC was 8.25%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 6.75%.

Exchange tax

Yes. In accordance with Article 97 of the LOBCCR and Article 5 of the ROCC, foreign exchange dealers are charged a participation fee equivalent to 25% of the foreign exchange dealing spread on all their foreign exchange operations.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. Article 2 of the ROCC authorizes the BCCR, financial institutions supervised by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities (SUGEF), stock brokers, and exchange houses to participate in the exchange market on their own account and at their own risk. Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the operations they carry out in the market.

Spot exchange market

Yes. For the purchase and sale of currencies, the foreign exchange market has: platforms for the trading of foreign exchange by dealers with the general public (including both physical and electronic “windows,” automated teller machines (ATMs), and Internet banking), the MONEX, and operations between foreign exchange dealers outside MONEX.
MONEX is a foreign exchange market organized and operated through an electronic platform of the BCCR. Participants in the market include foreign exchange dealers, the BCCR, and nondealers (individuals and legal entities).

Outside MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves by means of transfers. As of December 31, 2021, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms.

For exchange houses, Chapter VI of the ROCC (Article 15) states that: “Exchange houses may make spot foreign exchange purchases and sales in notes, bank drafts, checks, transfers to and from other countries, and other payment instruments, on their own behalf and at their own risk.” Currently, their only operations in Costa Rica are foreign exchange swaps.

According to the foreign currency management strategy for the NBPS, the BCCR has the obligation to: (1) directly meet the net daily foreign currency requirements by drawing on the sale of its international reserves and (2) replenish the foreign currency used to meet the net requirements of the NBPS through participation in MONEX on the basis of the prevailing conditions in the foreign exchange market.

Currently, the CB does not have a foreign exchange allocation mechanism; there is no foreign exchange auction or any exchange rate fixing mechanism.

The BCCR operates in the foreign exchange market as any market participant, in response to three reasons:
(1) The purchase or sale of foreign exchange to meet the net requirements of the NBPS.
(2) Purchase and sale operations for stabilization with the aim of limiting abrupt movements in the exchange rate.
(3) Its own transactions associated with financial hedging.

The BCCR does not buy or sell foreign exchange at the request of commercial banks, nor does it deal directly with the government and other public entities.

Pursuant to Articles 2 and 3 of the ROCC, the Board of Directors of the BCCR is the body entrusted with authorizing entities to act as intermediaries in the foreign exchange market.

Financial intermediaries supervised by the SUGEF are authorized to carry out foreign exchange intermediation operations and, by extension, to participate in MONEX.

Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the market. These exchange rates should take into account any surcharges for commissions or other additional costs, so that the exchange rate reported corresponds to the final amount that the customer will receive or pay for the currency traded.

Therefore, BCCR does not establish limits on exchange rates or on the effective margin.

As of December 31, 2021, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms.

In MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may freely publish the exchange rates at which they buy and sell dollars. Exchange dealers must pay a fee of 0.02% on the amount traded.

The BCCR trades in foreign currency in MONEX directly like any other participant, but does not do so in the form of market makers. It does so to prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate and to meet its own needs (Article 87 of the LOBCCR) as well as to meet the foreign currency requirements of the NBPS (Article 89 of the LOBCCR).

In addition to MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves (outside of MONEX) by means of transfers.

Foreign exchange dealers may offer buying and selling rates to other participants in the MONEX. The role of market makers is not taken into consideration in the Costa Rican exchange regulations.

The Regulation on the Use of Derivatives in Foreign Currency and the Regulation on Operations with Foreign Exchange Derivatives were repealed at meeting 5973-2020 of the BCCR Board of Directors. Article 5 from this same session approved the Regulation on Derivatives in Foreign Currency.

The BCCR does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market; however, to ensure compliance with the limit established for the daily change in the foreign currency position of foreign exchange dealers, it receives information from these institutions regarding their foreign exchange derivative transactions.

Pursuant to Article 89 of the LOBCCR, Article 5 of the Regulation on Derivatives in Foreign Exchange enables institutions in the NBPS to engage in hedging operations with foreign exchange derivatives effectively executed with government commercial banks, although the BCCR does not participate in these markets.

The Treaty on Payments and Securities Settlement Systems in Central America and the Dominican Republic, Law No. 8876, was approved November 1, 2010, and published in the official gazette, La Gaceta No. 8 of January 12, 2011.

This treaty aims to promote legal certainty, the development and strengthening of payments and securities settlement systems of systemic importance in Central America and the Dominican Republic, and stronger CB control over payment systems.

Outward payments (PEX): The SINPE service was used to establish an interconnection with the payments system for Central America and the Dominican Republic (SIP) to offer customers the possibility of sending and receiving funds within the region.
In addition, the inclusion of regional partners is allowed, which enables them to access funds mobilization services for third parties using the same SINPE platform. Currently, Banco Internacional de Costa Rica (BICSA), located in Panama, already operates in SINPE as a regional partner and carries out immediate payment transactions with Panama.

Barter agreements and open accounts  No.

Administration of control  Yes.

The exchange market regulations are the responsibility of the BCCR. The SUGEF is responsible for supervising foreign exchange bureaus and financial intermediaries authorized to participate as foreign exchange brokers. The General Superintendency of Securities (SUFEVAL) supervises brokerage firms acting as foreign exchange brokers, and effective July 1, 2022, the Superintendency of Pensions (SUPEN) supervises pension funds participating, in the foreign exchange market for their own requirements.

Payments arrears  No.

Official  No.

Private  No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

On domestic ownership and/or trade  Yes.

There are controls only on the gold trade for national archeological treasures.

On external trade  Yes.

The country has controls regarding the ownership of the so-called archeological assets made of gold.

The National Archaeological Heritage Law No.6703, Article 1, establishes that furniture or real estate produced by indigenous cultures previous or contemporary to the establishment of the Hispanic culture in national territory, among which figures, coins, and gold tokens may be considered as national archaeological heritage.

The only possessor of archaeological objects is the State. However, individuals who already had this type of objects were given the possibility to become custodians, by registering in the Heritage Registry Archaeological of the National Museum.

Regarding the commercialization of gold within the country, Article 15 bis, of Law No. 7786, states that individuals or legal entities whose activity consists of being merchants of metals and precious stones must (1) register with the SUGEF, (2) be subject to supervision by the SUGEF regarding prevention of money laundering, terrorism financing, and the financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and (3) be subject to the prudential regulations established by the National Financial System Supervision Council, as well as to the sanctioning regime established in Article 81 of the aforementioned law.

On exports and imports of banknotes  No.
Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. There are no quantitative limits on transfers abroad from foreign currency accounts owned by residents. However, each financial institution is responsible for compliance with the Law on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism (Law No. 8204), of the General Regulations Governing the Law on Drug Trafficking, Related Activities, Money Laundering, Terrorism Financing, and Organized Crime, and with SUGEF Agreement 1210, Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204.

SINPE has controls on the movement of funds; both the origin and destination of the funds must be identified for each transaction in the system.

Likewise, a service was designed to strengthen the work of the Compliance Officers in accessing transactions processed in SINPE by the same customer, according to identification number.

In addition, there is a service called the Single Account Registry (Padrón Único de Cuentas – PUC), which centralizes the information from all customer fund accounts opened with all financial institutions in the country. Compliance Officers, the General Superintendence of Financial Institutions, and the Costa Rican Drug Institute (ICD) have access to this registry for the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing.

Approval required No. The management and transfer of funds from such accounts are subject to the law of the land and to the regulations of the entity in which they are opened. A service was designed in SINPE for requesting and moving funds to and from abroad through an automatic interface between SINPE and SWIFT.

Held abroad Yes. Resident agents may freely hold accounts in colones in nonresident financial institutions.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad Yes. Domestically, financial institutions may convert collections or payments received. However, this is not a regulation imposed by the BCCR, and it is an added benefit. When payment is received from a source in a particular currency, it may be converted into an open currency of the recipient, provided the institution is an authorized foreign exchange intermediary. If the institution does not offer this service, the transaction will be returned to the originator. Originating customers must authorize their currency conversions to ensure that they agree with the operation.
Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required Yes. A valid identity document is required. Foreign nonresident individuals located in the national territory may only use a valid passport and up-to-date authorization to be in the country. Foreign persons are not authorized to open any financial services or products unless they meet all the required immigration requirements authorizing their regular stay in the country. Financial institutions may limit the type or quantity of services they provide taking into account customer risk classifications.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Each financial institution is responsible for compliance with the Law on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism (Law No. 8204 of the General Regulations Governing the Law on Drug Trafficking, Related Activities, Money Laundering, the Financing of Terrorism, and Organized Crime and SUGEF Agreement 12-10 Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204).

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Effective January 1, 2021, the import quota on sausages from Panama was eliminated.

Other nontariff measures
Yes.
The Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock may impose nontariff measures of a phytosanitary nature, and the Ministry of Economy, Industry, and Trade establishes technical regulations.

Import taxes and/or tariffs
Yes.
There is no uniform rate; customs tariffs on most goods vary: up to 15% in the manufacturing sector and up to 151% for certain agricultural products. The following taxes are also levied on imports: (1) a VAT of between 1% and 13% was applied to a list of goods and services, from which certain essential items are exempt, and (2) selective consumption taxes at rates ranging from 0% to 95%.

Trade defense measures: a 3.67% antidumping duty is applied to imports of refined sugar from Brazil. This measure will take effect until February 2022. Effective March 1, 2022, the antidumping duty of 3.67% applied to imports of refined sugar from Brazil expired.

An additional tariff was implemented for a safeguard measure on imports of refined sugar (tariff paragraph 170199.00.00) of 27.68%. This measure will be in effect for 3 years since August 19, 2020.

The importation of 50,061 metric tons of rice in bulk with a 0% tariff is authorized because of a shortage. This authorization is valid from December 24, 2020, to December 31, 2021 (Executive Decree No. 42765-MAG-MEIC-COMEX).

Effective August 27, 2021, the volume that could be imported was increased by 18,594 tons (Decree No. 43160 MAG-MEIC-COMEX).

Effective November 5, 2021, the importation of 83,554 metric tons of rice in bulk with a 0% tariff is authorized from January 1, 2022, to December 31, 2022 (Decree No. 43266 MAG-MEIC-COMEX).

Effective February 10, 2022, the amount of bulk rice that could be imported was revised to 114,483 metric tons with a 0% tariff is authorized from January 1, 2022, to December 31, 2022 (Decree No. 43410 MAG-MEIC-COMEX).

Effective August 12, 2022, as per Executive Decree No. 43642-MAG-MEIC-COMEX the customs duty was reduced on imports of milled rice to 3.5% and on paddy rice to 4%.

Taxes collected through the exchange system
No.

State import monopoly
Yes.
Imports of fuel are handled by the Costa Rican Petroleum Refinery (RECOPE).

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes.
Paragraphs (h), (i), and (j) of Article 49 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank state that debt instruments or securities, foreign currency deposits, and loans disbursed in foreign currency may be agreed to and must be paid in foreign currency, all corresponding to entities subject to oversight by SUGEF.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 86, states that only the CB, institutions supervised by SUGEF, and other institutions authorized by the CB may deal in foreign exchange. The latter two categories must meet a series of requirements established in the article.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 88, authorizes the CB to regulate the limits on own-account operations by supervised institutions, with respect to their transactions in foreign currencies.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 90, authorizes the CB to regulate forward or futures transactions and other similar transactions in foreign currencies.

The ROCC regulates foreign exchange dealing by authorized institutions as provided under the Organic Law of the Central Bank.

The regulations governing operations in foreign exchange derivatives regulate operations in foreign exchange derivatives by institutions supervised by SUGEF, SUGEVAL, and SUPEN.

The National Banking System Organic Law (LOSBN), in Article 3(1), establishes collaboration in the execution of monetary, exchange, credit, and bank policy as a core banking function.

Article 75 of the LOSBN stipulates that “All operations carried out in foreign currency by commercial banks, as well as assets and liabilities held abroad in foreign currency, are subject to the provisions of the LOBCCR and to the attendant resolutions and recommendations approved by the Board of Directors of the Central Bank.”

There is a limit on the direct and indirect lending operations that financial intermediaries may engage in with a given individual or legal entity, amounting to 20% of the subscribed and paid-in capital plus non-redeemable reserves, as provided for in Article 135 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank. This limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations.

Borrowing abroad

Yes.
Commercial banks and financial institutions supervised by the SUGEF must inform the BCCR in advance when contracting credit abroad. The credit and saving unions can borrow abroad without BCCR approval.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

No.
Article 75 of the LOSBN stipulates that “All operations carried out in foreign currency by commercial banks, as well as assets and liabilities held abroad in foreign currency, are subject to the provisions of the LOBCCR and to the attendant resolutions and recommendations approved by the Board of Directors of the Central Bank.” This Article allows the CB to establish controls on the maintenance of accounts abroad; however, in practice, this authority has never been exercised and commercial banks may maintain accounts abroad without any type of controls.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or nonfinancial)

Yes.
Article 74 of the LOSBN stipulates that “Commercial banks may... carry out all operations in foreign currency that, in accordance with relevant bank practices and technical principles.”

Law No. 8204 on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism and SUGEF Agreement 12-10 “Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204” state that financial entities must maintain detailed information on their customers (know-your-customer policy), including those to whom they have extended credit.

In practice, there are no specific requirements for lending to nonresidents.

However, the Borrower Rating Regulation (SUGEF Agreement 105) requires financial entities that extend credit in foreign currency to borrowers who do not generate foreign exchange to perform an additional generic estimate. There are no specific requirements for entities’ credit operations with nonresidents. Chapter III of the Macropudimental Policy Database document contains further details.

In 1992, the Board of Directors of the CB stipulated the following during its sessions 4554 and 4555 in Gazette 48 of March 9, 1992: “State-owned banks may, on their own account and risk, receive current account, savings, and term deposits...denominated in foreign currency. All banks in the National Banking System, except those classified in category C and followed by the BCCR, and other financial entities regulated by the Office of the Auditor General of Financial Entities, which must be authorized in advance by the BCCR, may, also on their own account and risk, issue investment certificates denominated and payable in foreign currencies and may freely sell them in the national territory or abroad.”

The Office of the Auditor General of Financial Entities subsequently became the SUGEF.

Paragraph (i) of Article 49 of the LOBCCR establishes, from November 3, 1995, that “...the following may be agreed to in foreign currency and, in such cases, shall be paid in the said currency: (i) foreign currency deposits with entities subject to oversight by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities.”

Article 75 of the LOSBN states that: “Commercial banks may carry out all operations involving foreign exchange, which, in accordance with the applicable banking practices and technical principles, are usually carried out by such institutions, provided they were authorized in accordance with the Organic Law of the Central Bank to act as agents and for the account of the Central Bank in the corresponding operations and business activities.”

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange

Reserve requirements

Liquid asset requirements
Interest rate controls  No.

Credit controls  No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents  No. According to the laws on money laundering, terrorism financing, and organized crime, financial institutions may limit the type or amount of services they offer to nonresident foreign individuals, taking into account customer risk classifications. Pursuant to Article 16 of Law No. 8204, financial institutions must require the following: Maintenance of registered accounts – they may not maintain anonymous accounts, encrypted accounts, or accounts under fictitious or imprecise names. In the case of legal entities classified as risky according to the parameters established by the National Council of Supervision of the Financial System, financial institutions must require that the legal and nonlegal representatives of a company be notarized. This must be verified especially when commercial relationships are established, in particular the opening of new accounts, the issuance of deposit passbooks, the creation of trust transactions, the rental of safe deposit boxes, or the execution of transactions, including inward or outward transfers in domestic or foreign currency, in amounts equal to or greater than US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies. The purpose of these regulations is to prevent money laundering and the financing of terrorism, which is why they do not relate to exchange rate controls.

Reserve requirements  No. Paragraph (C) of Title III of the Monetary Policy Regulations established a minimum reserve requirement differentiated for deposits and liabilities according to currency. The minimum reserve requirement for deposits and liabilities denominated in domestic currency is 12%, while the minimum reserve for deposits and liabilities denominated in foreign currency is 15%. Minimum reserve requirements differentiated by nature of deposit-taking instruments are not considered. Reserve requirement rates in both national and foreign currency apply uniformly to deposit accounts regardless of whether their owners are residents or nonresidents. Financial intermediaries do not receive any remuneration for deposits in the CB in consideration of the minimum legal reserve.

In Article 8 of the Minutes from Session 6066-2022 held on June 15, 2022, the Board of Directors of the BCCR increased the EML gradually for deposits and liabilities in domestic currency from 12.0% to 13.5% effective July 1, 2022, during the first half of July 2022, and to 15.0% effective July 16, 2022. This change in the regulation on the EML eliminated the differentiation of the reserve requirement by type of currency in which the deposits are made and now both rates are at 15%.

Liquid asset requirements  No.

Interest rate controls  No.

Credit controls  No.

Investment regulations  Yes.

Abroad by banks  Yes. There is a limit to the active, direct and indirect operations that financial intermediaries can carry out with individuals or legal entities, of 20% of the subscribed and paid capital plus non-redeemable equity reserves. This is established by provision of the Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 135; but this limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations, so it is not a differentiated treatment for banks abroad or with nonresidents. Open foreign exchange position limits Yes. The FXP as a proportion of core capital must be within the range of ±100%.

The average monthly ratio of the FXP to core capital expressed in dollars must be equal to the value defined by the institution as desirable, with no objection by the BCCR management. The tolerance range for compliance with the monthly average of this indicator is between −3 pp and +1 pp of the ratio.

The daily change in the FXP ratio to core capital for foreign exchange operations may not exceed ±3% of the value of core capital expressed in US dollars.

The National Financial System Supervision Council, pursuant to Article 10 of the legal act adopted during session 1340-2017 of June 13, 2017, approved specific rules for financial intermediaries to improve their management of market, interest rate, and exchange rate risk in a manner that is consistent with their risk profile, systemic importance, and macroeconomic conditions.

The agreement is based on the fact that a neutral FXP protects the financial intermediary’s income statement from fluctuations in the exchange rate, but not necessarily its capital adequacy ratio; therefore, it was requested that quantitative restrictions be determined for the FXP for “trading” and “nontrading” transactions. The formula for calculating the capital adequacy indicator was changed, in particular the capital requirement component associated with exchange risk, such that greater exposure to exchange risk results in higher capital requirements.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes. There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, changes in these positions are subject to the conditions indicated in Article 4 of the Regulations for Exchange Operations. There are limits on changes in the foreign currency positions of foreign exchange dealers; however, no distinction is made between resident and nonresident positions.

On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes. There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, there are limits on the FXP with respect to capital, average monthly capital levels, and daily changes in capital, subject to the provisions of Article 4 of the ROCC.

Provisions specific to institutional investors Yes. On February 7, 2014, amendments were made to Agreement SGV-A-61 requiring entities to communicate relevant information to the markets and to Agreement SGV-A-75 relating to periodic reporting of information.

Insurance companies No. Article 25 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers only sets forth general principles regarding investment policies.

Specific provisions for the investments backing the technical reserves of insurance companies are set out in Article 23 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers. Although at least 40% of these securities must be instruments meeting the requirements of Article 27 of this chapter, for example, having at least one investment grade rating, investment in other types of instruments is not restricted. For derivative instruments (Articles 28 and 32 of the Regulations), entities can carry out only interest rate, price, and foreign exchange risk hedging operations.

| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | No. |
| Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad | No. |
| Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally | No. |
| Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition | No. |
| Pension funds | Yes. |

On November 2, 2018, the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, a comprehensive overhaul of the Regulations Governing Investments by Authorized Entities, was published in the Official Gazette.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents: Authorized entities may invest in securities issued in the foreign market up to 25% of the asset administered by the fund, whose proportion may be increased up to 50%, provided it can be demonstrated, in accordance with the provisions set forth in “Title II. Governance of Investments” of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, that the limit increase complies with Article 62 of the Law on Worker Protection.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad: Article 67 of General limits:

Securities issued by the same issuer or its subsidiaries and affiliates, up to 10%.
Up to 10% for each external investment manager.

Article 68 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets established limits by type of instrument.

Funds must comply with the following maximum limits:
(1) Debt securities.
   (a) Up to 5% in each of the following instruments: repos, securities lending, structured notes with protected capital, and level III standardized debt.

(2) Securities representative of ownership:
   (a) Up to 25% in level I instruments.
   (b) Up to 10% in level II instruments.
   (c) Up to 5% in level III instruments.

Article 17 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets defines the types of instruments by level:
Level III standardized debt: the risk ratings corresponding to these instruments must be within the top two ratings of the scale below investment grade.
Level I securities representative of ownership: shares, American depositary receipts (ADRs), and units in funds or special-purpose vehicles (financial, debt, equity, mixed, or index funds as well as exchange-traded funds (ETFs) that replicate financial indices. Funds that in their investment strategies use derivative instruments whose purpose is different from the efficient portfolio handling criterion, defined by the UCITS, are exempt).
Level II securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into investment vehicles related to property management, real estate investment, real estate, and project development (past the feasibility stage).
Level III securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into funds that invest in private equity.

Article 69 of limits by issuer:
Funds must comply with a maximum investment limit of up to 10% from a single issuer of any type of securities, except the Ministry of Finance of Costa Rica, the BCCR, and issuers of international sovereign debt of countries with risk ratings within investment grade.

The requirements are not differentiated by investment destinations.

The Asset Management Regulations do not establish minimum limits. However, the Worker Protection Law (7983) in its Article 61 provides that "pension operators must invest, at least, 15% of the Compulsory Regime of Complementary Pensions (ROP) in securities with mortgage guarantee or product of mortgage securitization processes, as long as their yield generates, at the operators’ discretion, an adequate return according to the risk that these instruments present. Investment in securities issued by entities that are, at the time of making the investment, in a situation of financial irregularity, are prohibited in accordance with the provisions of the SUGEF."

Article 15 of the Regulation Governing the Management of assets established the following rules on permissible currencies:
Securities and underlying assets in which funds invest can be denominated in any currency. The Management Body will be required to justify the use of the currencies, demonstrating that aspects such as liquidity and/or traded volume were analyzed and that hedging for exchange rate risk for these currencies is possible. The foregoing is established in “Title II. Governance of Investments.” The risks stemming from the above must be reported by the Management Body, in accordance with paragraph (f) of Article 5 of this Regulation.

The investment fund indicates the currency in which shares (assets) are subscribed in its prospectus.

Official exchange rate  Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed exchange rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rates between the CFA franc and other currencies are automatically inferred based on the rates between those currencies and the euro. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may vote to modify the monetary cooperation accord between the WAMU member countries and France. Legally, the permanence of monetary cooperation accords is guaranteed by the November 23, 1998, decision of the EC concerning exchange matters relating to the CFA franc and the Comorian franc (Decision No. 98/683/CE).

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor  Yes.

U.S. dollar
Euro  Yes. The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The operational target of price stability is defined as an annual inflation rate in the WAEMU that falls within a band of ±1% around a central rate of 2%. The Harmonized Consumer Price Index (HCPI) is the benchmark rate to measure inflation.

Authorized intermediaries may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients, except for the euro, which must be traded against the CFA franc at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. However, they can charge a commission of up to 2% of the transaction amount. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.

The commission rate charged on transfers to all countries that are not members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.

The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect concerning the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic exchange operations with euro banknotes and issue a transaction receipt for any operation with a customer. In addition, to ensure that customers have satisfactory information, authorized intermediaries must (1) post at their windows, at all times, the rates effectively applied for the various currencies and (2) post a notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions based on the requestor’s identity document.
As of December 31, 2021, Côte d’Ivoire had 28 banks and 120 exchange bureaus. Exchange bureaus are dealers authorized, on the approval of the Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF), to transact in foreign exchange with the public. Exchange bureaus may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except euros) with the CB. Registered banknote exchange houses may not make transfers or payments in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. In their transactions with customers, these authorized intermediaries (licensed intermediary banks and licensed exchange dealers) freely set the buying and selling rates for foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed parity of CFAF 655.957 and may give rise to a commission of a maximum of 2.0%.

Operated by the central bank

Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility

Yes.

The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU members on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.

Interbank market

Yes.

Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are permitted. There is no foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU. As of December 31, 2021, 19 banks participated in the interbank market in domestic currency.

Forward exchange market

Yes.

Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments.
traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes. Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes. CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions (both current and capital transactions) outside the WAEMU.

For current transactions and payments Yes. CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.

For capital transactions Yes. The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments Yes. The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments Yes. Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following derivatives operations with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward foreign exchange contract and (2) foreign exchange swaps and options. Authorized transactions in foreign exchange derivatives can be carried out between two foreign currencies or between the CFA franc and a foreign currency with the exception of the euro or a currency whose issuing body has a transaction account with the French Treasury.

Credit operations Yes. Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.

Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements No.

Operative No.

Inoperative No.

Regional arrangements Yes. A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, replacing... the previous agreement dated December 4, 1973. This monetary cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.

There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Côte d’Ivoire for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, the issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exportation of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Côte d’Ivoire are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Gold imports and exports from and to foreign countries require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (gold-lined or gold-plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.

CFA franc (XOF) banknotes may be exported freely by travelers from one WAEMU member country to another. Shipments of banknotes issued by the BCEAO between any WAEMU resident individual or legal entity other than the BCEAO and its banking or commercial correspondents located outside WAEMU member countries are prohibited.

The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler’s checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler’s checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

| Repatriation requirements | Yes. |
| Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched. |
| Surrender requirements | Yes. |
| The domiciling bank is responsible for the repatriation via the accounts of foreign correspondents of the BCEAO of at least 80% of the export proceeds received. For purposes of coverage of its current foreign currency needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as owned foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that the sum of the foreign exchange resources it has to cover its requirements does not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO. The authorized intermediary bank surrenders foreign currencies to the CB immediately.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Exporters must collect and surrender to an authorized intermediary bank total earnings from sales of goods abroad within 30 days following the payment due date as stipulated in the sales contract, which in principle should be within a maximum of 120 days after the shipment of goods. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the issuing bank. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are authorized, provided the domiciling bank provides the necessary supporting documents to verify domiciliation.

Financing requirements No.

Documentation requirements Yes. Export transactions require a customs declaration.

Letters of credit No.

Guarantees No.

Domiciliation Yes. Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.

Preshipment inspection Yes.

Other No.

Export licenses Yes.

Without quotas Yes. Exports are permitted on the basis of a simple authorization from the Directorate of Foreign Trade, which issues certificates of origin, as needed. Exports of diamonds, gold, and precious metals, however, require MEF authorization, with the exception of articles with a small gold content, traveler’s personal effects weighing less than 500 grams, and coins (fewer than 10 pieces, irrespective of their face value or denomination).

With quotas Yes. Exports of lumber are subject to quantitative quotas allocated through an auction.

Export taxes Yes.

Collected through the exchange system No.

Other export taxes Yes. Exports of cocoa and coffee are subject to export tax and may be effected only by exporters authorized by the Authority for the Regulation of Coffee and Cocoa.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers Yes. Payments and transfers for current transactions with WAEMU and non-WAEMU countries may be made freely through authorized intermediaries. Transfers exceeding CFAF 500,000 are subject to documentary requirements. Payments and receipts of foreign ships on stopovers in WAEMU countries or by WAEMU ships abroad are considered current transactions.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements

Yes. Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.

Surrender requirements

Yes.

Surrender to the central bank

Yes. Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers

Yes. All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their date of entry into the national territory any foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency valued in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 500,000. The BCEAO may, in monitoring banks' external positions, request the surrender of foreign currency held abroad by ADs.

Restrictions on use of funds

No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Yes. Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MEF authorization, except in the case of (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans granted to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or on raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries, however, are generally permitted.

Repatriation requirements

Yes. Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone’s investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.

Surrender requirements

Yes.

Surrender to the central bank

Yes. Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers  Yes. Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents' investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.

Controls on capital and money market instruments  Yes. Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets (Conseil Régional de l'Epargne Publique et des Marchés Financiers - CREPMF) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) the issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

On capital market securities  Yes. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature  Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents  No. Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents  Yes. The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to CREPMF authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes. The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.

Sale or issue abroad by residents  No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these transactions result in foreign control over resident entities, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.

On collective investment securities

Yes. The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No. These purchases are subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to CREPMF authorization with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these transactions result in foreign control over Ivoirian establishments, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments

Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge exchange risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial or financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services by a resident; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Purchase abroad by residents
Yes. These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents
Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, non-WAEMU resident) credit institution.

Controls on credit operations
Yes. Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MEF.

Commercial credits
Yes.

By residents to nonresidents
Yes. There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).

To residents from nonresidents
No. There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.

Financial credits
Yes.

By residents to nonresidents
Yes. These credits require MEF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MEF and substantiated by documentation. However, authorized intermediaries are permitted to grant the following credits to their foreign correspondents: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries’ foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance.

To residents from nonresidents
No. There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries’ foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted and must be done through...
intermediaries in all cases where the money borrowed is made available to the borrower in the country. These loans must be declared to the Directorate of External Finance and to the BCEAO for statistical purposes. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. The repayment of any foreign loan must be reported for statistical purposes to the Directorate of External Finance and to the BCEAO and must be made through an approved intermediary.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

- By residents to nonresidents: Yes. The granting of guarantees and sureties requires the authorization of the minister of finance. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MEF approval and the submission of supporting documents.
- To residents from nonresidents: No. These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on direct investment

- Yes. Investment implying control of a company or enterprise is considered to be direct investment. A simple investment is not considered a direct investment if it does not exceed 10% of the capital stock of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.

Outward direct investment

- Yes. All investments abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of Côte d’Ivoire and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in Côte d’Ivoire, require MEF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU member countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.

Inward direct investment

- Yes. FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

- No. The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of liquidation proceeds is subject to MEF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes.

Controls on real estate transactions

- Yes. These purchases require MEF authorization.

Purchase abroad by residents

- Yes. Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

- No. Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must | Stabilized arrangement                 | Yes. On July 10, 2020, Croatia joined the ERM II with the central rate of the Croatian kuna at 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna and the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands. The Croatian National Bank (CNB) conducts foreign exchange auctions on a discretionary basis to ensure the stability of the kuna and provide liquidity for payments domestically and abroad (described under Section H.1.a.3. Auction). The CNB may set intervention exchange rates, which it applies in transactions with | banks to limit exchange rate volatility. Intervention data (prices and volume) are published on the CNB website. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

The reference exchange rate published daily by the CNB is based on the stipulated turnover and foreign currency exchange rates in the foreign exchange market. The euro–kuna midpoint exchange rate is the arithmetic mean of the weighted buying and selling exchange rates of banks. The reference exchange rate is used by market participants for accounting and statistical purposes and for banks’ transactions with consumers that include currency clause.

The monetary policy framework is based on exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. On July 10, 2020, Croatia joined the ERM II with the central rate of the Croatian kuna at 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna and the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate. The CNB intervenes in the foreign exchange market to limit or reduce exchange rate volatility. Previously, there was no predetermined target level or range or fluctuation margin, and the CNB intervened on a discretionary basis to limit or ease exchange rate volatility. Effective July 12, 2022, the EC adopted the Decision on the adoption by Croatia of the euro on January 1, 2023, amendments to the regulation according to which Croatia becomes the 20th member of the euro area and the regulation determining a fixed conversion rate between the euro and the kuna at 7.53450 kuna per 1 euro.

At end-2021, all 20 banks and one branch of a foreign bank are licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange with the public.

In addition to banks, as of June 30, 2021, 1124 foreign exchange bureaus were licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange. Foreign exchange bureaus may be legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople and may only buy foreign cash and checks denominated in foreign currency and sell foreign cash in exchange for kuna cash and may not engage in foreign exchange transactions with the CNB. They may buy and sell foreign cash only to natural persons – that is, they may not enter into foreign exchange transactions with legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople. Foreign exchange bureaus must sell foreign cash surpluses (difference between foreign cash bought and sold) to the credit institution with which it entered into agreement on currency exchange operations. Foreign exchange bureaus may not maintain accounts abroad for the purpose of foreign exchange activity and may not make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility No.

Allocation No.

Auction Yes. The CNB can conduct ERM II interventions intra-marginal and at the margin to maintain the exchange rate within the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate of 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna. Previously, there was no predetermined target level or range or fluctuation band, and the CNB occasionally intervened at its discretion to ensure the stability of the kunas and to provide liquidity for payments domestically and abroad.

Access to foreign exchange auctions is granted only to banks. Three auction models are in use: (1) a differentiated exchange rate model (multiple price auction) – the amount to be distributed is allocated to bidders from lowest to highest for purchases and from highest to lowest for sales; (2) a uniform exchange rate set by the CNB based on the bidders’ rates; and (3) a fixed exchange rate set by the CNB in advance. The auction is announced to the banks by the Refinitiv, Bloomberg, and telephone. Banks are informed of the success or failure of their bids immediately and aggregate results are published on the CNB website the day of the auction. The minimum bid is €300,000/US$300,000.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. Banks are free to set their bid-ask rates on the interbank market. All banks may participate in the interbank market. Banks quote buying and selling prices continuously, but there is no official market-making agreement. Banks may participate in the CNB foreign exchange auctions.

Over the counter Yes. There is an OTC foreign exchange market whose participants are monetary financial institutions and other legal entities.

Brokerage No.

Market making No. Banks quote buying and selling prices continuously, but there is no official market-making agreement.

Forward exchange market Yes. The CNB does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

The average daily foreign exchange turnover in 2021 in outright forward transactions amounted to 8.0 millions of euros and in swap transactions 303.3 millions of euros.

Official cover of forward operations Yes. The CNB has provided, on occasion, swap facilities at par for banks in a limited forward market.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency No.

For current transactions and payments No.

Cash flow control in the EU

Cash flow control in the EU is related to the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing.

The export and import of cash in the Republic of Croatia are not limited, but there is only the requirement to submit a written declaration if cash in the value of 10,000 euros or more is brought in or taken out.

According to the Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 which is applied from June 3, 2021, natural persons when entering or leaving the EU through Croatia have to declare cash (accompanied cash) worth €10,000 or more to the competent authority. Also, where unaccompanied cash (for example, cash in postal packages, courier shipments, unaccompanied luggage, or containerized cargo) of a value of EUR 10,000 or more is entering or leaving the EU through Croatia, the competent authority may require the sender or the recipient of the cash, or a representative thereof, as the case may be, to make a disclosure declaration within a deadline of 30 days.

In addition, according to Article 3 of the Act on Amendments to the Foreign Exchange Act (Official Gazette No. 52/2021 – in force June 3, 2021), natural persons entering the Republic of Croatia from another Member State (EU) or leaving the Republic of Croatia and entering another Member State, or having entered the Republic of Croatia from another Member State, must, on request from the authorized customs official or border police official, declare the cash (accompanied cash) they are carrying if that cash equals a value of EUR 10,000 or more, in writing, using the declaration form containing the information referred to in Article 3, paragraph (2) of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672. Furthermore, according to the Act on Amendments to the Foreign Exchange Act (Official Gazette No. 52/2021), competent authority is the Customs Administration, but the Government of the Republic of Croatia may issue a decree regulating that for economic reasons the controls on accompanied cash are also to be performed by the border police if reasons of security thus allow.

Submission of data to Anti-Money-Laundering Office (AMLO) by the Customs Administration is prescribed in more detail in the Rulebook on the means and extent of reporting cash transport across the State border to the AMLO by Customs Administration. Pursuant to the aforementioned Rulebook, the Customs Administration submits to AMLO the data on cash transfers across the State border by electronic data transfer using the AMLO’s IT system, and thus, the Customs Administration’s data are directly available in the AMLO’s database.

Capital transactions must be reported to the CNB for statistical purposes and are regulated by the Foreign Exchange Act and Capital Market Act (CMA). Under the Foreign Exchange Act, capital transactions are not restricted. Nevertheless, payments and collections in the Republic of Croatia in foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents are not allowed in the case of purchase and sale of real estate in the Republic of Croatia, stakes in companies headquartered in the Republic of Croatia, and securities listed or... issued in the Republic of Croatia, irrespective of their denomination in kuna or in foreign exchange, except securities issued in the Republic of Croatia which are listed in another country. In other words, according to the Foreign Exchange Act and CMA, nonresidents are not allowed to pay directly in foreign exchange but are allowed to convert foreign exchange to kuna freely for purchases of real estate, company stakes, and securities. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments. In the CMA (Official Gazette No. 65/18) which came into force July 27, 2018, the provisions of the Directive 2014/59/EU establishing a framework for the recovery and resolution of credit institutions and investment firms, Directive 2014/51/EU in respect of the powers of the European Supervisory Authority (European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority) and the European Supervisory Authority (European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA)) and of the Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 on OTC derivatives, central counterparties, and trade repositories concerning definition of legal basis for services that provides central counterparties, opening of an insolvency procedure of one or more clearing members and risk control mechanisms enabling measuring and management of exposure were implemented. The CMA (Official Gazette No. 65/18) has beside above-mentioned regulations implemented Directive 2014/65/EU, Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014, and Regulation (EU) No. 596/2014.

Investments in capital and money market securities must be reported to the CNB for statistical purposes. Limits apply to investments by pension funds, insurance companies, investment funds and pension insurance companies. A valid prospectus must be published before offering a security to the public or admission to a regulated market, except as prescribed by the CMA. The CMA (Official Gazette No. 88/08, 146/08, 74/09, 54/13, and 159/13) – no longer in force – was amended in 2015 with the Act on Amendments to CMA (Official Gazette No. 110/15) – no longer in force – with a view to harmonization with provisions of the Directive 2013/50/EU amending Directive 2004/109/EC on the harmonization of transparency requirements in relation to information about issuers whose securities are admitted to trading on a regulated market, Directive 2003/71/EC on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading, and Directive 2007/14/EC laying down detailed rules for the implementation of certain provisions of Directive 2004/109/EC concerning financial reporting of an issuer of securities admitted to trading on the regulated market, administrative sanctions, and measures. These regulations were also implemented in the new CMA No. 65/18. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA (Official Gazette no. 17/20) in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.

Pursuant to approval from the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (Hanfa), the Zagreb Stock Exchange is the market operator of the regulated market and multilateral trading facility. Trading of shares or other securities is prescribed by the CMA and rules of the stock exchange. The stock exchange manages the regulated market, which consists of the regular market, the official market, and the prime market, according to its rules. Securities may be admitted to the regular and official markets in accordance with the provisions of the CMA and Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014. Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2017/568 and the rules of the stock exchange concerning the number of shares available to the public or the number of shares available in the near future that the stock exchange considers sufficient. Securities may be admitted to the prime market, the highest segment of the regulated market, in accordance with the rules of the stock exchange. Admission to trading must be approved by the stock exchange. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.

Criteria for admission to listing/trading is also regulated by the Zagreb Stock Exchange rules.

Hanfa is the competent authority in Croatia to ensure implementation of the provisions of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and of Part III, Head 1. of the CMA covering the drawing up, approval, and distribution of the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market. Under the Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 which is directly applicable in all member states, as well as in Croatia, issuers from another EU member and third-country issuers may make a public offering or apply for admission of securities to a regulated market in Croatia, using a prospectus previously granted by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home member state. The prospectus and its supplements approved by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home EU member state are considered valid, provided Hanfa, as the relevant authority of the issuer’s host member, and the ESMA were notified. Under the CMA, the stock exchange operates a regulated market consisting of a regular market and an official market. The stock exchange can by its own operating rules, prescribe other segments of the regulated market for which it will prescribe stricter conditions in connection with listing and investor protection, the Zagreb Stock Exchange, as the only operator of the regulated market in Croatia, prescribed by its own Rules the three segments of the regulated market – Regular market, Official market and the Prime market (only for shares) as the highest segment with the highest standards with regard to listing, transparency and investor protection. The approval of the stock exchange is required for trading financial instruments on the regulated market, including the approval for trading of financial instruments on each of the segments of the regulated market operated by the respective stock exchange. Under Article 331 of the CMA, shares of issuers whose registered office is in a third country that are not listed in either that country or in the country where the majority of the shares are held, may be traded on the official market that is a higher segment of the regulated market, only if the stock exchange considers that the reasons for non-listing are not related to investor protection. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

Act on Amendments to the CMA (Official Gazette No. 17/20) raises the threshold for the obligation to publish a prospectus for public offerings of securities from the existing EUR 5,000,000 to EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, with the obligation to prepare an information document on the offer for all offers of securities between EUR 4,000,000 and EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, calculated over a period of 12 months.

This change represents an administrative relief for issuers (the approval of the prospectus by Hanfa is now required only for offers of securities which exceed the total consideration of EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months) and makes it cheaper to issue securities, and at the same time, investors receive through the information document uniform and relevant information on the basis of which they can make an investment decision.

If Croatia is the issuer’s home member state Hanfa must, at the issuer’s request or at the request of the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, notify the relevant EU host member state’s authority with a certificate of approval attesting that the prospectus has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, an electronic copy of that prospectus, and where applicable, accompanied by a translation of the prospectus and any summary, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. As the competent authority that has approved a registration document or a universal registration document and any amendments thereto, according to the conditions of Article 26 of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, Hanfa must at the request of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such document, notify the competent authority of the home Member State for the prospectus approval with a certificate of approval attesting that the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and with an electronic copy of that document. Where applicable, the notification of the registration documents or universal registration documents must be accompanied by a translation of the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such documents. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, which concern regulated sales and issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales and issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

When it comes to “resident foreign issuance,” the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: If it has a prospectus approved in the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out, it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.

Bonds may be admitted to the regular and official market segment of the regulated market in accordance with the provisions of the CMA,
Regulation No. 600/2014, and the rules of the stock exchange. Specific conditions for the admission of debt securities on the official market operated by the stock exchange are prescribed in Article 332 of the CMA according to which the form and content of debt securities submitted for admission to trading on the official market, which is a higher segment of the regulated market, must conform to the appropriate regulations, and the securities must be freely negotiable. However, a stock exchange may treat debt securities that are not fully paid up as freely negotiable as long as there are mechanisms to ensure that their negotiability is not restricted and the trading is transparent by providing the appropriate data to the public. If admission to trading on the official market is preceded by a public issue, the first admission to trading on the official market may be made only after the end of the period of subscription and payment in a public issue. This does not apply to continuous and repeated issues of debt securities whose closing date for subscription is not fixed. Application for official listing must be made equally for all debt securities. Admission to trading is approved by the stock exchange. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC. Marketing of UCITS established in another Member State within the territory of the Republic of Croatia:

Marketing of units of UCITS established in another Member State within the territory of the Republic of Croatia is regulated by Articles 137 to 143 of the Croatian Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette Nos. 44/16, 126/19, and 110/21). Units of a UCITS established in another Member State may be marketed in the Republic of Croatia only by management companies from Croatia or another Member State which are authorized UCITS management companies pursuant to the regulation transposing the provisions of Directive 2009/65/EC into the legal system of the Member State. For the purpose of marketing units of a UCITS established in another Member State in the Republic of Croatia, a management company must ensure that facilities are available in the Republic of Croatia for: execution of requests for issuance and redemption of units and ensuring of other payments related to units of the UCITS fund to the holders of units in the manner stipulated in the prospectus of UCITS fund, providing information to investors about possible ways of submitting a request for issuance or unit redemption, as well as payment methods based on the request for unit redemption, facilitation of information processing and access to procedures and measures related to complaint resolution of investors and exercising the rights of investors arising from their investments in the UCITS fund, in accordance with Articles 63 and 64 of this Act and placing information and documents (prospectus and rules of UCITS fund, the latest audited annual reports and subsequent half-yearly reports of the UCITS fund and key investor information document KIID).

Management company must submit the notification letter with its annexes concerning the commencement of marketing in the Republic of Croatia to the competent authority of UCITS home Member State. The notification letter must be prepared in accordance with the standard model prescribed by Commission Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010 in the English language and sent to the designated e-mail address published on the website of the competent authority of the UCITS home Member State. Competent authority of the UCITS home Member State must forward notification letter and its annexes to Hanfa in accordance with the rules set out in the Commission Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010. Management company may commence marketing of units of UCITS established in another Member State on the territory of the Republic of Croatia as of the date when the competent authority of UCITS home Member State informs management company that the documents referred to above have been forwarded to Hanfa. Management company must notify Hanfa when it starts marketing activity in the Republic of Croatia without delay.

Similar rules apply for marketing of AIFs with some additional conditions for AIFs distributed to professional investors whereby national private placement regime is not established.

Implementation of the Directive (EU) No. 2019/1160 and the direct application of the Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 aim to remove barriers to effective cross-border marketing of investment funds, to harmonize the notification process and to harmonize the different practices applied in the Member States as regards cross-border marketing of investment funds.

Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 lays down additional rules and procedures concerning undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS) and alternative investment fund managers (AIFMs).

That Regulation and Directive 2019/1160 collectively further coordinate the conditions for fund managers operating in the internal market and facilitate cross-border distribution of the funds they manage.

Regulation (EU) 2019/1156 further strengthens the principles applicable to marketing communications governed by Directive 2009/65/EC and extends the application of those principles to AIFMs, thereby resulting in a high standard of investor protection, regardless of the type of investor.

Marketing of open-ended investment funds established in the third country within the territory of the Republic of Croatia:

Marketing of open-ended investment funds established in the third country is permitted in Republic of Croatia by the management company from the third country (through a branch), management company from the member state (through a branch), or by the management company from Republic of Croatia, under following conditions in addition to rules mention above: level of protection of the investors in the fund is at least the same as the one prescribed for UCITS funds and the assets of the fund are invested in accordance with the risk diversification principle; the company has acquired permission for establishing a branch from Hanfa; the company has acquired permission for marketing of the fund from Hanfa.

Hanfa is the competent authority in Croatia to ensure implementation of the provisions of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and of Part III, Head 1. of the CMA covering the drawing up, approval, and distribution of the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market. Under the Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 which is directly applicable in all member states, as well as in Croatia, issuers of structured products, such as certificates, warrants, covered warrants, etc. (which are considered transferable securities within the meaning of Article 3, Point 87c, of the CMA) from another EU member state and third-country issuers, may make a public offering or may apply for admission of securities to a regulated market in Croatia using a prospectus previously granted by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home member state. The prospectus and its supplements approved by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home EU member state, if Croatia is not the home member state, are considered valid pursuant to the provisions of the CMA, provided Hanfa, as the relevant authority, and ESMA were notified. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents of shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

Act on Amendments to the CMA raises the current threshold for the obligation to publish a prospectus for public offerings of securities from the existing EUR 5,000,000 to EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, with the obligation to prepare an information document on the offer for all offers of securities between EUR 4,000,000 and EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months.

This change represents an administrative relief for issuers (the approval of the prospectus by Hanfa is now required only for offers of securities which exceed the total consideration of EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months) and makes it cheaper to issue securities, and at the same time, investors receive through the information document uniform and relevant information on the basis of which they can make an investment decision.

If Croatia is the issuer’s home state, Hanfa must, at the issuer’s request or at the request of the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, notify the relevant EU host member state’s authority with a certificate of approval attesting that the prospectus has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, an electronic copy of that prospectus, and where applicable, accompanied by a translation of the prospectus and any summary, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus.

As the competent authority that has approved a registration document or a universal registration document and any amendments thereto, according to the conditions of Article 26 of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, Hanfa must at the request of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such document, notify the competent authority of the home Member State for the prospectus approval with a certificate of approval attesting that the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and with an electronic copy of that document.

Where applicable, the notification of the registration documents or universal registration documents must be accompanied by a translation of the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such documents.

Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments. When it comes to “resident foreign issuance,” the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: if it has a prospectus approved in... the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129.
If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.

CNB regulations apply.

There are no restrictions imposed to credit institutions on lending locally in foreign exchange. However, banks are required to inform natural persons about the risks of borrowing in foreign exchange without having an income stream in these currencies.

Reserve requirements

Deposits in domestic and foreign currency are subject to reserve requirements. The calculation period follows the calendar month. The maintenance period covers the second Wednesday of the month to the day preceding the second Wednesday of the following month. Kuna and foreign exchange components are calculated separately. Seventy-five percent of the calculated foreign exchange component of reserve requirement is included in the calculated kuna component of reserve requirement and allocated in kunas. Banks must allocate 70% of the kuna component of reserve requirement to accounts at the CNB, while for allocating the foreign exchange component that percentage is 0. At least 2% of the foreign exchange component of the reserve requirement is to be maintained by the average daily balance of funds in bank’s own foreign exchange (euro) settlement accounts in Croatian component of TARGET2 (Payments module (PM) accounts). The remaining portion of the reserve requirement may be met with the average daily balances of liquid claims. The CNB does not remunerate reserve requirement funds.

Effective August 10, 2022, a 5% reserve requirement applies to deposits in domestic and foreign currency. (Previously, the reserve requirement was 9%). As of December 14, 2022, the reserve requirement rate will be 1%, the kuna component will be entirely maintained by the average daily balance in the bank’s settlement accounts, while the foreign exchange component will entirely be maintained by the average daily balance of funds in bank’s own foreign exchange (euro) settlement accounts in Croatian component of TARGET2.

On the euro adoption date reserve requirement of the HNB must cease to have effect and the minimum reserve requirement framework of the ECB must apply.

Liquid asset requirements

Effective August 1, 2022, 8.5% of foreign exchange liabilities (minimum required amount of foreign currency claims) must be... covered by short-term foreign exchange assets with maturity of less than three months. (Previously, minimum required amount of foreign currency claims of 17% applies.) In addition to foreign-exchange-denominated instruments, liabilities include foreign-exchange-indexed instruments (liabilities in kunas with a one- or two-way currency clause).

After December 29, 2022, the requirement to cover foreign exchange liabilities by short-term foreign exchange assets must cease to have effect.

Banks must report daily open positions in foreign exchange relative to the bank’s regulatory capital. A prudential capital requirement of 8% of a bank’s own funds is imposed by Article 351 of the CRR.

Along with the Insurance Act, the following laws apply to institutional investors: (1) the Act on Mandatory Pension Funds and Act on Voluntary Pension Funds, (2) the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering and AIFs Act, and (3) the Act on Pension Insurance Companies.

In accordance with the Insurance Act, the insurance supervisor was granted powers over the following: approval of ancillary own funds, classification of own funds items, undertaking specific parameters, a full or partial internal model, ancillary own funds of an intermediate insurance holding company, a group internal model, the use of the duration-based equity risk sub-module, the use of the matching adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the volatility adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the transitional measure on the risk-free interest rates, and the use of the transitional measure on technical provisions, to determine the level and scope of group supervision, to identify the group supervisor, and to establish a college of supervisors. In accordance with the Insurance Act the insurance supervisor was granted powers over the following: to decide to deduct any participation, to determine the choice of method to calculate group solvency, to make the determination on equivalence, to permit insurance and reinsurance companies to be subject of determination of the solvency capital requirement of the subsidiary. and to make determination of the equivalence in a third country and the application of transitional measures.

The Insurance Act, which came into force in 2016, transposed provisions of the solvency regime, including rules of capital requirements, reporting and public disclosure, transparency and

According to the Croatian Insurance Act, investment in particular categories of assets is not required and therefore provisions on limits are not required any longer. The assets held to cover the technical provisions related to those risks are not required to be localized within the Community or in any particular Member States. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to all their assets in accordance with the Insurance Act, Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2015/35, and other regulations of the European Commission which determine qualitative requirements for identification, measurement, monitoring, and control and management of the investment risks, especially taking into account the prudent person principle. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to invest only in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. All assets, in particular those covering the Minimum Capital Requirement and the Solvency Capital Requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and maintain the localization of those assets such as to ensure their availability. Insurance companies should invest in derivative instruments insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management. Investment and assets, which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market, should be kept to prudent levels. Assets should be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole.

Investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance companies to excessive risk concentration. Assets held to cover the technical provisions should also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities.
Those assets should be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity which manages their asset portfolio, should ensure that the investment is made in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries.

Pension funds Yes. Mandatory pension funds are regulated by the Act on Mandatory Pension Funds; voluntary pension funds are regulated by the Act on Voluntary Pension Funds.

Pension insurance companies (pension pay-out phase) are regulated by Act on Pension Insurance Companies. Pension Insurance Companies are specific companies more or less unique to the Croatia pension sector. They have been introduced in the 2000 after pension reform and carry out their role in the pension pay-out phase. After the accumulation phase carried through mandatory and/or voluntary pension funds (or through other sources), the majority of the accumulated personal pension benefits (2nd and 3rd pillar of the Croatian pension scheme) are transferred to the Pension Insurance Companies who will carry out the pension pay-out phase.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents Yes. The Act on Mandatory Pension Funds specifies three categories of mandatory pension funds (A, B, and C) and establishes limits on investments for each category. Mandatory pension fund assets may be invested as follows: (1) At least 30% A, 50% B, and 70% C of the fund’s NAV must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (2) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (3) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (4) Up to 50% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (5) Up to 65% A and 40% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). By the amendments to the law fund assets can be invested in infrastructure projects and startups. (6) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (7) Up to 15% A and 10% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of open-ended AIFs or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (8) Up to 20% A, 20% B, and 20% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (9) Up to 10% A, 5% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in the cash held on the business account of the pension fund. (10) Up to 55% A, 35% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable equity and/or debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia. Up to 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). (11) Up to 0.2% A and 0.1% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable equity securities and/or shares offered through regulated capital raising systems accepted by the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

Voluntary pension fund’s assets may be invested as follows: (1) No more than 10% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuing entity. If the value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer in which the fund is invested exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV, but with following exceptions: (a) Investments in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another EU member, units of local and regional self-government of an EU member, OECD member, or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members may be without limitations, provided the fund’s prospectus and promotional materials clearly indicate country members, units of local and regional self-government or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members in whose securities and money market instruments a fund may invest more than 35% of the fund’s NAV; (b) no more than 25% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions headquartered in Croatia or another EU member; (c) no more than 10% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments of issuers of related companies; (2) up to 5% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution whose head office is in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (3) the total value of investment in transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer, the value of deposits placed with that person, and exposures to OTC financial derivatives arranged with that person may not exceed 15% of the fund’s NAV; (4) up to 30% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of UCITS funds authorized in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18); and (5) up to 15% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of an AIF according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

An individual mandatory pension fund may invest a maximum of:
(1) 10% of one issue of transferable debt securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member, the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members or issue by units of local and regional self-government in Croatia or another EU or OECD member or debt securities and MM instruments traded on regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member.

(2) 20% of one issue of transferable equity with the right to vote and 10% without right to vote whose issuer is joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member listed on the official market or other segments of the regulated market for which the stock exchange will prescribe stricter conditions regarding listing and protection investors in the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a state OECD member.

(3) 20% of the share in an individual fund shares of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or EU or equivalent funds that have received a work permit in an OECD member state, provided the implementation of supervision of these funds and investor protection level identical to those prescribed by law which regulates the establishment and operation of open-ended investment funds with the public offer.

(4) 15% of units or shares of open-ended AIF or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member.

(5) 5% of the regulatory capital of one credit institutions referred (in deposits and money on account).

(6) 100% of individual issue of transferable securities – infrastructure projects and startup.

The Act on Pension Insurance Companies (which came into act in 2014 and was later amended in 2018) establishes limits on investments in different types of assets, in certain cases distinguishing between the investments of assets accumulated through mandatory or voluntary pension schemes.

Assets stemming from mandatory pension schemes may be invested as follows: (1) At least 70% of assets must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; (2) up to 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD member; (3) up to 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (4) up to 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (5) up to 10% of assets may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according; (6) up to 20% of assets may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (7) up to 10% of assets may be invested in units or shares of open-ended AIFs or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (8) up to 20% of assets may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (9) up to 10% of assets may be invested in real estate ownership or other proprietary rights regarding real estate located in...
Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (10) up to 5% of assets may be invested in the cash held on the business account in a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member (or up to 10% for the period no longer than 14 days).

Assets stemming from voluntary pension schemes may be invested as follows:
(1) Up to 20% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD member; (2) up to 20% of assets may be invested in debt securities traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (3) up to 20% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (4) up to 20% of assets may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according; (5) up to 30% of assets may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (6) up to 20% of assets may be invested in units or shares of open-ended AIFs or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (7) up to 20% of assets may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (8) up to 20% of assets may be invested in real estate ownership or other proprietary rights regarding real estate located in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (9) up to 10% of assets may be invested in the cash held on the business account in a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member (or up to 20% for the period no longer than 14 days); (10) up to 5% of assets may be invested in tradeable securities and money market instruments not listed on a regulated market.

Investment of assets stemming from either mandatory or voluntary pension schemes is further limited by Ordinance on permitted investments and investment limits relating to assets covering technical provisions of the pension insurance company, as follows:

- up to 10% of single issue of debt securities;
- up to 10% of single issue of money market instruments;
- up to 10% of single issue of equities;
- up to 20% of units or shares of a single investment fund (UCITS);
- up to 10% of units or shares of a single AIF;
- up to 30% of regulatory capital of a single bank;
- up to 5% of single issue of tradeable securities or money market instruments not listed on a regulated market (assets stemming from voluntary pension schemes only).

Moreover, investments of total assets (both stemming from mandatory and voluntary pension schemes) of a single Pension Insurance Company is limited as follows:

- up to 15% of single issue of debt securities;
- up to 15% of single issue of money market instruments;
- up to 15% of single issue of equities;
- up to 25% of units or shares of a single investment fund (UCITS);
- up to 15% of units or shares of a single AIF;
- up to 30% of regulatory capital of a single bank.

Furthermore, for both the assets stemming from mandatory and voluntary pension schemes, investments in transferable securities, money market instruments and units or shares of investment funds are limited to 5% of total assets per single issuer or 10% of total assets per issuers that are in connection.

Similar limits are set for other types of assets: (1) up to 5% of assets may be invested in a deposit in a single bank or 10% of assets in deposits in banks that are in connection; (2) up to 10% of assets may be invested in a single real estate or multiple real estates that are in connection; and (3) up to 5% of assets may be invested in OTC securities or up to 10% of assets in OTC securities of multiple counterparties that are in connection.

The Act on Mandatory Pension Funds specifies three categories of mandatory pension funds (A, B, and C) and establishes limits on investments for each category. Mandatory pension fund assets may be invested as follows: (1) At least 30% A, 50% B, and 70% C of the fund’s NAV must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (2) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (3) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities traded on the regulated market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member. The Act on Pension Insurance Companies (which came into act in 2014 and was later amended in 2018) establishes limits on investments in different types of assets, in certain cases distinguishing between the investments of assets accumulated through mandatory or voluntary pension schemes.

Assets stemming from mandatory pension schemes may be invested as follows: (1) At least 70% of assets must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; (2) up to 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD member; (3) up 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (4) up to 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (5) up to 10% of assets may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according; (6) up to 20% of assets may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (7) up to 10% of assets may be invested in units or shares of open-ended AIFs or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (8) up to 20% of assets may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (9) up to 10% of assets may be invested in real estate ownership or other proprietary rights regarding real estate located in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (10) up to 5% of assets may be invested in the cash held on the business account in a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member (or up to 10% for the period no longer than 14 days).

Assets stemming from voluntary pension schemes may be invested as follows: (1) Up to 20% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD member; (2) up 20% of assets may be invested in debt securities traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (3) up to 20% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (4) up to 20% of assets may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according; (5) up to 30% of assets may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (6) up to 20% of assets may be invested in units or shares of open-ended AIFs or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (7) up to 20% of assets may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (8) up to 20% of assets may be invested in real estate ownership or other proprietary rights regarding real estate located in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (9) up to 10% of assets may be invested in the cash held on the business account in a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member (or up to 20% for the period no longer than 14 days); (10) up to 5% of assets may be invested in tradeable securities and money market instruments not listed on a regulated market.

Investment of assets stemming from either mandatory or voluntary pension schemes is further limited by Ordinance on permitted investments and investment limits relating to assets covering technical provisions of the pension insurance company, as follows: up to 10% of single issue of debt securities; up to 10% of single issue of money market instruments; up to 10% of single issue of equities; up to 20% of units or shares of a single investment fund (UCITS); up to 10% of units or shares of a single AIF; up to 30% of regulatory capital of a single bank; up to 5% of single issue of tradeable securities or money market instruments not listed on a regulated market (assets stemming from voluntary pension schemes only).

Moreover, investments of total assets (both stemming from mandatory and voluntary pension schemes) of a single Pension Insurance Company is limited as follows: up to 15% of single issue of debt securities; up to 15% of single issue of money market instruments; up to 15% of single issue of equities; up to 25% of units or shares of a single investment fund (UCITS); up to 15% of units or shares of a single AIF; up to 30% of regulatory capital of a single bank.

Furthermore, for both the assets stemming from mandatory and voluntary pension schemes, investments in transferable securities, money market instruments and units or shares of investment funds are limited to 5% of total assets per single issuer or 10% of total assets per issuers that are in connection. Similar limits are set for other types of assets: (1) up to 5% of assets may be invested in a deposit in a single bank or 10% of assets in deposits in banks that are in connection; (2) up to 10% of assets may be invested in a single real estate or multiple real estates that are in connection; and (3) up to 5% of assets may be invested in OTC securities or up to 10% of assets in OTC securities of multiple counterparties that are in connection.

The Act on Mandatory Pension Funds specifies three categories of mandatory pension funds (A, B, and C) and establishes limits on investments for each category. Mandatory pension fund assets may be invested as follows: (1) At least 30% A, 50% B, and 70% C of the fund’s NAV must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (2) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (3) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities traded on the regulated market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (4) Up to 50% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (5) Up to 65% A and 40% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). By the amendments to the law fund assets can be invested in infrastructure projects and startups. (6) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (7) Up to 15% A and 10% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of open-ended AIFs or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (8) Up to 20% A, 20% B, and 20% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (9) Up to 10% A, 5% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in the cash held on the business account of the pension fund. (10) Up to 55% A and 35% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable equity and/or debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia. Up to 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). (11) Up to 0.2% A and 0.1% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable equity securities and/or shares offered through regulated capital raising systems accepted by the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

Voluntary pension fund’s assets may be invested as follows: (1) No more than 10% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuing entity. If the value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer in which the fund is invested exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV, but with following exceptions: (a) Investments in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another EU member, units of local and regional self-government of an EU member, OECD member, or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members may be without limitations, provided the fund’s prospectus and promotional materials clearly indicate country members, units of local and regional self-government or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members in whose securities and money market instruments a fund may invest more than 35% of the fund’s NAV; (b) no more than 25% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions headquartered in Croatia or another EU member; (c) no more than 10% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments of issuers of related companies; (2) up to 5% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution whose head office is in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (3) the total value of investment in transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer, the value of deposits placed with that person, and exposures to OTC financial derivatives arranged with that person may not exceed 15% of the fund’s NAV; (4) up to 30% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of UCITS funds authorized in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18); and (5) up to 15% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of an AIF according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

An individual mandatory pension fund may invest a maximum of:
(1) 10% of one issue of transferable debt securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member, the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members or issue by units of local and regional self-government in Croatia or another EU or OECD member or debt securities and MM instruments traded on regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member.
(2) 20% of one issue of transferable equity with the right to vote and 10% without right to vote whose issuer is joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member listed on the official market or other segments of the regulated market for which the stock exchange will prescribe stricter conditions regarding listing and protection investors in the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a state OECD member.
(3) 20% of the share in an individual fund shares of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or EU or equivalent funds that have received a work permit in an OECD member state, provided the implementation of supervision of these funds and investor protection level identical to those prescribed by law which regulates the establishment and operation of open-ended investment funds with the public offer.
(4) 15% of units or shares of open-ended AIF or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member.
(5) 5% of the regulatory capital of one credit institutions referred (in deposits and money on account).
(6) 100% of individual issue of transferable securities – infrastructure projects and startup.

The Act on Pension Insurance Companies (which came into act in 2014 and was later amended in 2018) establishes limits on investments in different types of assets, in certain cases distinguishing between the investments of assets accumulated through mandatory or voluntary pension schemes.

Assets stemming from mandatory pension schemes may be invested as follows: (1) At least 70% of assets must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; (2) up to 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD member; (3) up 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (4) up to 10% of assets may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member; (5) up to 10% of assets may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according;

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition | Yes.
--- | ---
Investment of a pension fund’s assets must take into account the liability maturity of the fund. Invested assets must be adjusted for valuation changes resulting from risks and possible losses caused by changes in interest or exchange rates or by other capital risks. A pension fund’s assets must be invested in a way that is aligned with the currency of liabilities of the fund (40% A, 60% B, and 90% C of the mandatory pension fund’s NAV and 70% of the voluntary pension fund’s NAV – applicable only to IORP).

Assets covering the technical provisions of a Pension Insurance Company must be invested in a way that is aligned with the currency of liabilities of the company, that is, at least:
- 90% of assets stemming from mandatory pension schemes;
- 70% of assets stemming from voluntary pension schemes;
- must be invested in assets which are traded or settled in the same currency used for pension pay-outs.

Investment firms and collective investment funds | Yes.

Open-ended investment funds with a public offering are regulated by the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering; AIFs are regulated by the AIFs Act. Investment firms' investments are not restricted in the context of providing investment services to clients in accordance with the applicable regulations.

Where that individual client is a credit institution or an investment firm, or where a group of connected clients includes one or more credit institutions or investment firms, the limit with regard to concentration risk is the higher of 25% of the investment firm’s own funds or EUR 150 million, provided for the sum of exposure values with regard to all connected clients that are not credit institutions or investment firms, the limit with regard to concentration risk remains at 25% of the investment firms’ own funds.

Where the amount of EUR 150 million is higher than 25% of the investment firm’s own funds, the limit with regard to concentration risk may not exceed 100% of the investment firm’s own funds.
Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund’s assets are subject to the following limits:

1. Up to 10% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund’s NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members.

Effective October 21, 2021, Act on Amendments to the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette No. 110/21) amended Point (7) of this Article: exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 25% (previously 35%) of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions (a) where the bonds are subject to the definition of covered bonds under the law governing the issue and public supervision of covered bonds; or;
(b) if the bonds were issued before July 8, 2022, and, at the time of issue, the requirements were met:
- those bonds are issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State that are subject to special public supervision by virtue of a specific law to protect investors in those bonds; and
- the proceeds from the issuance of such bonds must be invested in accordance with the specific law in the assets that will enable the bond maturities to meet the obligations arising from bonds and that, in the event of default of the issuer, used primarily to pay the principal and accrued interest from those bonds.
(c) if more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund must not exceed 80% of the net asset value of the fund;
(8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund’s assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1 and Article 258, up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS’ investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund’s NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund’s assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund’s NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund’s NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund is invested are not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCUTS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering:
Article 12 (1) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette No. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are described, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, the same may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from transactions with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject to special law for the purpose of protecting investors in bonds. If more than 5% of the net value of the AIF’s assets is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net value of the AIF’s assets may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF. (7) The investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and accordingly investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF. (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies. (9) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Article 10 (2) (9) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs and units in collective investment undertakings. (10) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange. (11) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate. (12) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. (13) Total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:
Article 17 of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF’s exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF’s assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance with a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings.

Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund’s assets are subject to the following limits: (1) Up to 10% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund’s NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members; (7) Effective October 21, 2021, Act on Amendments to the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette No. 110/21) amended Point (7) of this Article: exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 25% (previously 35%) of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions (a) where the bonds are subject to the definition of covered bonds under the law governing the issue and public supervision of covered bonds; or (b) if the bonds were issued before July 8, 2022, and, at the time of issue, the requirements were met: - those bonds are issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State that are subject to special public supervision by virtue of a specific law to protect investors in those bonds; and - the proceeds from the issuance of such bonds must be invested in accordance with the specific law in the assets that will enable the bond maturities to meet the obligations arising from bonds and that, in the event of default of the issuer, used primarily to pay the principal and accrued interest from those bonds. (c) if more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund must not exceed 80% of the net asset value of the fund; (8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund’s assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1 and Article 258, up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS’ investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument.
is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund’s NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund’s assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund’s NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund’s NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund is invested are not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCITS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering: Article 12 of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are described, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, the same may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from transactions with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject to special law for the purpose of protecting investors in bonds. If more than 5% of the net value of the AIF’s assets is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net value of the AIF’s assets may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and accordingly investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Article 10 (2) (9) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs and units in collective investment undertakings, (10) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange, (11) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (12) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate, (13) total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 17 of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF’s exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF’s assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity. (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance to a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk.

distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF’s net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund’s assets are subject to the following limits: (1) Up to 10% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund’s NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members. Effective October 21, 2021, Act on Amendments to the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette No. 110/21) amended Point (7) of this Article: exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 25% (previously 35%) of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions (a) where the bonds are subject to the definition of covered bonds under the law governing the issue and public supervision of covered bonds; or (b) if the bonds were issued before July 8, 2022, and, at the time of issue, the requirements were met: - those bonds are issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State that are subject to special public supervision by virtue of a specific law to protect investors in those bonds; and - the proceeds from the issuance of such bonds must be invested in accordance with the specific law in the assets that will enable the bond maturities to meet the obligations arising from bonds and that, in the event of default of the issuer, used primarily to pay the principal and accrued interest from those bonds. (c) if more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund must not exceed 80% of the net asset value of the fund (8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund’s assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1. and Article 258, up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS’ investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund’s NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund’s assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund’s NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund’s NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund are invested is not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCUTS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering: Article 12 (1) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are described, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, the same may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from transactions with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject to special law for the purpose of protecting investors in bonds. If more than 5% of the net value of the AIF’s assets is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net value of the AIF’s assets may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and accordingly investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in... transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Article 10 (2) (9) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs and units in collective investment undertakings, (10) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange, (11) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (12) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate, (13) total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 17 (1) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF’s exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF’s assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance to a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8)
A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.”

Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF’s net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Act on Amendments to the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette No. 110/21) amended Point (7) of this Article: exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 25% (previously 35%) of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions (1) where the bonds are subject to the definition of covered bonds under the law governing the issue and public supervision of covered bonds; or
(2) if the bonds were issued before July 8, 2022, and, at the time of issue, the requirements were met:
- those bonds are issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State that are subject to special public supervision by virtue of a specific law to protect investors in those bonds; and
- the proceeds from the issuance of such bonds must be invested in accordance with the specific law in the assets that will enable the bond maturities to meet the obligations arising from bonds and that, in the event of default of the issuer, used primarily to pay the principal and accrued interest from those bonds.
(3) if more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund must not exceed 80% of the net asset value of the fund.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
Yes.

The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation Discussions with Curaçao and Sint Maarten states that, as of July 15, 2021, limitation on distribution of dividends or profits to nonresidents gives rise to an exchange restriction under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF’s Articles of Agreement. On March 23, 2020, to reduce the risk of capital outflows, the Central Bank of Curaçao and Sint Maarten (CBCS) suspended the extension of foreign exchange licenses for the following transactions equal or exceeding NA f. 150,000: (1) extension of a loan to a nonresident; (2) transfers to own foreign bank account by legal entities; (3) transfers to current account with foreign-related companies by legal entities; (4) transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account; (5) investments abroad; (6) participation in a foreign company by a resident; (8) distribution of dividends or profits to nonresidents; and (9) early redemption of loans received. (Country Report No. 21/186)

Conventional peg

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional pegged arrangement. Official buying and selling rates for certain other currencies are set daily on the basis of rates of the US dollar abroad. The current peg was established in a national decree on December 24, 1971.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The guilder is pegged to the US dollar, the intervention currency, at NA f. 1.79 per US dollar. The official selling rate is NA f. 1.82 per US dollar. This rate includes a 1% license fee on purchases of foreign exchange. Customs applies a rate of 1.82, and a rate of 1.79 is used for valuation. The council of ministers is authorized to make changes to the exchange rate arrangement.

Exchange tax  No.  There is no exchange tax, but a license fee of 1% applies to all transfers to nonresidents.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.  Eight local banks and three money transfer companies have been licensed by the CBCS to deal in foreign exchange with the public. For transactions exceeding NA f. 25,000, the banks may determine the buying and selling rates themselves and for transactions up to NA f. 25,000, the official rates published by the CBCS have to be used. The banks can freely determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to operate in Curaçao and Sint Maarten, conditioned on the terms of the license. However, no foreign exchange bureau is active yet. Foreign exchange bureaus cannot make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB; they are required to have a local or foreign bank account. Foreign bank accounts must be established in a jurisdiction with membership of the FATF or Caribbean FATF and sufficiently comply with their recommendations. The types of transactions they can affect are limited to currency exchange services. Foreign currency payments and transfers are done by banks and money transfer companies. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread. In accordance with Article 9 sub 8 of the National Ordinance on the Central Bank, the CBCS fixes the exchange rates for foreign exchange transactions.

Operated by the central bank: Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility: Yes. The CBCS buys and sells US dollars and other officially published currencies from/to foreign exchange banks, the government, and other parties. Other parties are institutions with accounts at the CBCS (for example, the public pension fund and the Social Security Bank). The buying and selling rates of US dollars are NA f. 1.7895/1.7905 for foreign exchange banks, NA f. 1.78/1.8018 for the government, and NA f. 1.78/1.82 for other parties.

Allocation: No.

Auction: No.

Fixing: No.

Interbank market: Yes. There is an interbank foreign exchange market in which 8 licensed foreign exchange banks may trade among themselves at freely determined rates. Trading takes place through Reuters and sometimes through OTC transactions. The CBCS sets foreign exchange rates for amounts up to NA f. 25,000. Larger transactions take place directly in the foreign exchange market via Reuters or Bloomberg platforms or over the counter. The CBCS does not intervene.

Over the counter: Yes.

Brokerage: No.

Market making: No.

Forward exchange market: No.

Official cover of forward operations: No.

Restrictive measures against the proliferation and use of chemical weapons are in force, pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1542. These measures are in line with UNSC Resolutions No. 1540 (2004), 2118 (2013), 2209 (2015), 2235 (2015), and 2325 (2016). The measures include freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies that are listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1542 after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for, providing support for, or being otherwise involved in the manufacturing, acquiring, possessing, developing, transporting, stockpiling, transferring, using, or preparing for the use of chemical weapons.

Restrictions concerning the situation in Nicaragua are in force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) No. 2019/796: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies that are responsible for cyberattacks or attempted cyberattacks, or provide support for such attacks, or are otherwise involved, as identified by the Council of the EU and listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) No. 2019/796. Restrictions concerning the situation in Nicaragua are in force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1716: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for serious human rights violations or repression of civil society or democratic opposition; or undermining democracy and the rule of law in Nicaragua.

Restrictions concerning Turkey’s unauthorized drilling activities in the Eastern Mediterranean are in force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1890 in view of Turkey’s unauthorized drilling activities: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for, involved in, or supporting drilling activities that have not been authorized by the Republic of Cyprus, within its territorial sea or in its exclusive economic zone or on its continental shelf.

As of December 8, 2020, sanctions were imposed against serious human rights violations and abuses, pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 2020/1998, which established a framework for targeted restrictive measures to address serious human rights violations and abuses worldwide: freezing of funds and economic resources of and prohibition to make funds and economic resources available to persons, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being involved in serious human rights violations and abuses.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty of the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Union with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union.” These include “sustainable development,” “balanced economic growth,” “full employment,” and “a high level of protection and improvement of the quality of the environment.” Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. (Previously, it was defined as inflation rate below, but close to, 2% over the medium term.)

A mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more was introduced by the EU Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, for the purpose of preventing money laundering. Effective June 3, 2021, Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 replaced Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 and extended the definition of cash, so as to include gold and prepaid cards, in addition to banknotes, coins, and bearer-negotiable instruments (for example, traveler’s checks). Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 in cash are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be detained by administrative order. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. In addition, the EU regulation provides that national authorities may require the sender or recipient of unaccompanied cash, of a value of €10,000 or more, entering or leaving the EU to make a disclosure declaration within 30 days. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders. Effective April 29, 2022, Law 63(I)/2022 was enacted to implement Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672; it replaced Law 53(I)/2009, which corresponded to the repealed Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005. In addition to extending the definition of cash, the new national law introduced a disclosure requirement for unaccompanied cash, while it maintained the requirement for declaration of cash of a value of €10,000 or more by individuals traveling within the EU who enter or leave Cyprus. The new law also provides for higher fines for failure to declare the cash and introduces the possibility of imprisonment.

resident or nonresident natural or legal entity, either alone or with associates, is subject to approval in accordance with the Business of Credit Institutions Laws and EU Regulation No. 1024/2013. Moreover, approval is required for additional acquisitions that increase control up to or exceeding 20%, 30%, and 50% or to the extent that the bank would become the acquirer’s subsidiary. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for screening FDI from non-EU countries and for the European Commission and the Member States to exchange information and raise concerns related to specific investments in one Member State that could pose risks to security or public order in another Member State, or in the EU as a whole. Under the regulation, Member States may maintain their existing screening mechanisms, adopt new ones, or remain without such national mechanisms. Cyprus did not adopt or amend any FDI screening mechanism following this regulation.

Under the Immovable Property Acquisition (Aliens) Laws, the acquisition of real estate in Cyprus by non-Cypriots from non-EU countries must be approved by the district officer (except acquisition by inheritance). When the real estate concerned exceeds 2,676 square meters (2 donums), approval is granted only for (1) a primary or secondary residence not exceeding 4,014 square meters (3 donums), (2) professional or commercial premises, and (3) premises for industrial sectors deemed beneficial to the domestic economy.
Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

| Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions | Yes. |
| Borrowing abroad | No. | Credit institutions may freely borrow from abroad. |
| Maintenance of accounts abroad | Yes. | Credit institutions may maintain accounts abroad, subject to their net open positions in foreign exchange. |
| Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) | No. | Credit institutions may grant loans in euro and foreign currency to residents and nonresidents, subject to the prudential liquidity requirements prescribed by the CBC, Regulation (EU) No. 2015/61 with regard to liquidity coverage requirement, or the ECB in the context of the SSM. |
| Lending locally in foreign exchange | Yes. | Credit institutions may grant loans to residents in foreign currency, subject to the prudential liquidity requirements. |
| Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange | Yes. | These are subject to liquid asset and capital requirements prescribed for prudential reasons. |
| Differential treatment of deposit accounts held in foreign exchange | No. |
| Reserve requirements | No. | In accordance with ECB regulations, the minimum reserve ratio on deposit liabilities of credit institutions is 1% for deposits in both domestic and foreign currencies. |
| Liquid asset requirements | No. | There is a 100% liquidity coverage requirement. As of March 12, 2020, the ECB Banking Supervision allowed banks under its direct supervision (significant institutions) to operate temporarily (until further notice) below the 100% LCR. Similarly, the CBC allowed banks under its direct supervision (less significant institutions) to operate temporarily below the 100% LCR, as of March 18, 2020. In line with the ECB announcement on July 28, 2020, on the timeline to end the temporary relief measures taken in reaction to the COVID-19 pandemic, the CBC issued a circular to less significant institutions on October 11, 2020, on the timeline to restore their capital and liquidity positions. The circular informed the less significant institutions that they may continue to operate below the Pillar 2 Guidance and the combined capital buffer requirement until at least end-2022, and below the 100% LCR until at least end-2021; the exact timeline would be decided following the 2021 supervisory review and evaluation process, on a case-by-case basis according to the individual situation of each bank. As announced December 17, 2021, and effective January 1, 2022, the ECB expects all banks under its supervision (significant institutions) to maintain LCR above 100%. |

| Credit controls | No. |
| Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents | No. |
| Reserve requirements | No. |
| Liquid asset requirements | No. |
| Interest rate controls | No. |
| Credit controls | No. |
| Investment regulations | Yes. |
| Abroad by banks | Yes. | Credit institutions may invest directly abroad (for example, | establishment of a subsidiary or branch abroad), subject to approval by the CBC, or the ECB in the context of the SSM. Investments over certain thresholds are subject to capital requirements according to EU Regulation No. 575/2013.

In banks by nonresidents
Yes. The acquisition of 10% or more of a credit institution’s share capital by any resident or nonresident natural or legal person, either alone or with associates, is subject to approval in accordance with the Business of Credit Institutions Law and EU Regulation No. 1024/2013. Moreover, approval is required for additional acquisitions that increase control up to or exceeding 20%, 30%, and 50% or to the extent that the credit institutions would become the acquirer’s subsidiary.

Open foreign exchange position limits
Yes. The overall net open/uncovered overnight (intraday) position in all foreign currency may not exceed 6% of a credit institution’s capital base, and its overall net foreign exchange intraday exposure may not exceed 8% of its capital base. The net open/uncovered overnight (intraday) position in any one foreign currency may not exceed 3% (5% for intraday) of the credit institution’s capital base. These limits do not distinguish between resident and nonresident assets and liabilities. Open foreign exchange positions are also subject to prudential own funds requirements in accordance with EU Regulation No. 575/2013.

On resident assets and liabilities
Yes. The overall net open/uncovered overnight (intraday) position in all foreign currency may not exceed 6% of a credit institution’s capital base, and its overall net foreign exchange intraday exposure may not exceed 8% of its capital base. ### Changes during 2021 and 2022

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

- In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

Exchange Arrangement

Monetary policy framework

- Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. (Previously, it was defined as inflation rate below, but close to, 2% over the medium term.)

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

- Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 replaced Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 and extended the definition of cash, so as to include gold and prepaid cards, in addition to banknotes, coins, and bearer-negotiable instruments (for example, traveler’s checks).
- Law 63(I)/2022 was enacted to implement Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672; it replaced Law 53(I)/2009, which corresponded to the repealed Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005. In addition to extending the definition of cash, the new national law introduced a disclosure.
requirement for unaccompanied cash, while it maintained the requirement for declaration of cash of a value of €10,000 or more by individuals traveling within the EU who enter or leave Cyprus. The new law also provides for higher fines for failure to declare the cash and introduces the possibility of imprisonment.

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. In January 2022, the Czech National Bank (CNB) resumed its program of sales of a part of the CNB’s investment income on international reserves. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate was reclassified to floating from free floating, effective January 1, 2022. Data on CNB’s foreign exchange operations are published on the CNB’s web page with a monthly frequency.

Free floating

Official exchange rate

Yes. The CNB declares foreign exchange market rates on the basis of its monitoring the movement of currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market. The CNB publishes daily rates for 32 currencies against the koruna for customs and accounting purposes. The published exchange rates correspond to rates for individual currencies on the foreign exchange market at 2:15 p.m. local time. Under the Act on Accounting and other legal norms, the exchange rates are used for nontrading purposes (that is, for valuing assets and liabilities, tax and customs proceedings, etc.).

Inflation target

Target number

Yes.

Point target

Target with tolerance band

Yes. The target is headline inflation of 2% with a tolerance band of ±1 percentage points.

Band/Range
The CNB’s inflation target is set as 2% year-on-year growth in the CPI. Although the CNB endeavors to keep inflation at 2%, the actual inflation figures significantly deviate from the target, largely as a result of the unpredictable shocks that continuously hit the economy. The CB reacts to the impacts of such shocks, but it cannot return inflation to the target immediately, nor is meaningful for it to do so from the macroeconomic point of view. A tolerance band of one percentage point in either direction around the target reflects the natural volatility of inflation.

The inflation target is set for headline CPI. The CPI measures in a representative way and over time relative changes of final consumer prices of goods and services paid by the population (including all taxes). It is published monthly by The Czech Statistical Office (CZSO). In practice, the CNB concentrates on the “monetary policy-relevant inflation,” which excludes from the headline inflation first-round effects of indirect tax changes.

The standard monetary policy horizon is 12–18 months ahead. Given the size and nature of current inflationary shocks, monetary policy horizon has been temporarily prolonged to 18–24 months ahead in summer 2022.

There is no numerical interest rate target. Interest rates are used as the monetary policy instrument, and their changes correspond to the relevant macroeconomic forecasts and their risks. The main CNB instrument is the two-week repo rate. In some situations, the CNB may use other instruments at its disposal. For instance, it may conduct foreign exchange interventions to influence the koruna exchange rate and moderate excessive exchange rate volatility. The CNB was using foreign exchange interventions from November 2013 till April 2017 as part of its exchange rate commitment with the aim of providing the required monetary policy easing in a situation where monetary policy interest rates have reached “technical zero.”

Parliamentary hearings are held at least twice a year.

The CNB promotes the importance of having a credible and transparent monetary policy to effectively anchor inflation expectations and thereby maintain price stability and overall macroeconomic stability in the Czech Republic.

Voting ratio is published at the press conference on the day of decision. Individual votes on interest rates are published in the minutes of the Board meeting eight days after the meeting.

Attributed minutes with opinions of individual board members are published eight days after the meeting.

Forecasts are conducted and published in detail four times a year, including endogenous interest rates and exchange rate outlooks.

There are two types of nonbank foreign exchange institutions in the Czech Republic: (1) foreign exchange institutions authorized only for cash transactions (bureau-de-change activity—863 registration holders as of December 31, 2021) and (2) noncash foreign exchange institutions—112 as of December 31, 2021. Under the national legislation (Act No. 370/2017 Coll. on Payments) implementing the Payment Services Directive 2 (No. 2015/2366/EC, PSD 2), noncash spot currency exchange transactions are permitted only within the framework of payment transactions, and a payment institution license or a small payment institution license (as defined in Article 32 of the PSD 2) is required. Therefore, all noncash foreign exchange institutions must have a new payment institution license or a small payment institution license. There were 73 small payment institutions and 21 payment institutions as of December 31, 2021 (not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though). Under Electronic Money Directive (EMD) No. 2009/110/EC on the taking up, pursuit, and prudential supervision of the business of electronic money institutions, electronic money institutions, and small electronic money institutions may carry out this activity. There were 2 electronic money institution and 16 small electronic money institutions as of December 31, 2021 (not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though). The CNB issues these licenses. Foreign cash foreign exchange bureaus must be licensed. The licensing requirements for foreign entities are similar to those for Czech entities. Payment institutions in an EU member state may operate in the Czech Republic under the European passport regime under Article 28 of the PSD 2. Electronic money institutions can also operate in the Czech Republic under the European passport regime. The operation of cash foreign exchange bureaus is governed by Act No. 277/2013 Coll. on Foreign Exchange Activities. This law sets out the reporting requirements to the CNB, registration of business premises, and information for customers about exchange rates and fees and requirements. Cash foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad and may purchase and sell only banknotes, coins, and checks. They may not make payments on behalf of their clients. Noncash foreign exchange operations are governed by the Payments Act implementing the PSD 2 and the EMD, EC delegated, and implementing regulations and decrees of the CNB. Foreign exchange services within the scope of Article 18(1)a of the PSD 2, which also apply to electronic money institutions under Article 3 of the EMD, may be provided in addition to the payment services listed in the annex to the PSD 2, including transfers on behalf of clients. Under Article 10 of the PSD 2 and Article 22 of the Payments Act, noncash foreign exchange institutions may have accounts in credit institutions in an EU member country or a third country with banking supervision similar to that of the CNB. The same rules apply to electronic money institutions under Article 80 of the Payments Act. All institutions must comply with measures for the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing under the Anti-Money-Laundering Directive (No. 2015/849) and implementing Czech legislation (Act No. 253/2008 Coll.). Under Act No. 136/2011 Coll., on the circulation of banknotes and coins, as amended, employees handling foreign currency of cash and noncash foreign exchange... institutions must complete a CNB course on the identification of counterfeit banknotes and coins.

Interbank market  Yes. All banks and other institutions with valid licenses may operate in the local interbank market, but not all are active market makers. For example, according to the results of the Bank for International Settlements Triennial Survey, in 2019, only three banks represented 75% of the total turnover of the local market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads, which depend only on the current liquidity conditions in the market. There are no special commissions; only a brokerage fee is paid to brokers.

Over the counter  Yes. The majority of foreign exchange transactions are made over the counter. Koruna futures contracts are traded on stock exchanges abroad, but these transactions are negligible.

Brokerage  Yes. The majority of transactions take place via electronic or voice brokers, although bilateral direct trades are also conducted.

Market making  Yes. Market makers provide prices continuously based on supply and demand without CNB or any other interference.

Forward exchange market  Yes. Currently, the CNB is not active on the local derivatives market but uses derivatives in other major currencies mainly for reserve management purposes.

On October 18, 2016, the Foreign Exchange Act. No. 219/1995 Coll. was repealed by Act No. 323/2016 Coll. Act No. 323/2016 Coll. does not replace the Foreign Exchange Act as most foreign exchange activities have been already regulated by Foreign Exchange Activities Act No. 277/2013 Coll. and the remaining provisions by the Crisis Management Act No. 240/2000 Coll. The Czech government is authorized to apply restrictions during the state of emergency only. To resolve the state of crisis, the Czech government must discuss with the CNB measures that are within the scope of the activity of the above bank. Certain measures are in effect to prevent money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 2018/1672 of the European Parliament and the Council of October 28, 2018, on controls of cash entering or leaving the EU, cash controls have been implemented by National Act No. 253/2008 Coll. on Selected Measures against Legitimization of Proceeds of Crime and Financing of Terrorism in the Czech Republic. Cash controls are based on a mandatory declaration system. Natural persons must declare to the customs authorities in writing imports and exports of currency of the Czech Republic or another country in the amount of €10,000 or more on entry into the Czech Republic from a non-EU third country and on exit to any such territory. The customs authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to the FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler does not make a declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the national law, the customs authorities have the right to check natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. Cash may be confiscated in the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation. The national law allows penalties up to CZK 10 million or a forfeiture of the items for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, the customs authorities may exchange information with the appropriate authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. Because the Czech Republic has no external borders with third countries, cash controls are applied only at international airports and in respect to the international post. The Czech Republic does not apply cash controls to cross-border movements of cash within the EU. Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation harmonizes the system only for the EU’s external.

At the request of the CNB, legal entities with branches in the Czech Republic and natural persons with permanent residence in the Czech Republic must report accounts and balances on accounts or other forms of deposit abroad, including money entrusted for deposit. Foreign legal entities and natural persons may be asked to fulfill this requirement for their business in the Czech Republic. Prudential limits apply to pension companies (that administer third pillar transformed and participation funds) and other institutions. Controls apply to transformed fund deposits in nonresident institutions by the pension companies unless the nonresident institution is a bank with a registered office in the Czech Republic, a branch of a foreign bank in the Czech Republic, or a bank with a registered office in an OECD member. Pension companies may invest assets in pension/participation funds (third pillar) in deposits that are freely redeemable or time deposits whose maturity does not exceed two years of a bank headquartered in the Czech Republic, a foreign bank headquartered in another EU member, or a bank headquartered in another foreign country whose prudential rules the CNB considers equivalent to those of the EU. The Solvency II regulatory regime was introduced September 23, 2016, and second pillar pension funds were abolished January 1, 2016, and liquidated by December 31, 2017.

UCITS (65/2009/EU Directive) may be commercially sold or issued abroad with prior notification according to the UCITS directive. Controls apply to (1) purchases by pension companies, when investing assets in the transformed fund (third pillar), of derivatives; only safety derivatives are permitted—on markets that are not EU regulated or equivalent foreign markets derivatives must be valued daily, and the pension company must be able to realize them at any time; (2) purchases by pension companies, when investing assets in participation funds (third pillar), except in the conservative plan, of derivatives not traded on a regulated market or MTF verified by the CNB or of derivatives not traded on a regulated market or MTF verified by CNB but that meet prudential requirements under Czech law; and (3) purchases by insurance companies of derivatives only if the derivative contract reduces the risk or eases the portfolio management of the assets.

Commercial trading in derivatives and other instruments is reserved for regulated financial institutions (brokers and banks). Commercial sale or issuance abroad requires notification under the 2004/39/EC Markets in the Financial Instruments Directive (MiFID).

Controls apply to credits and loans to nonresident borrowers other than governments and CBs of OECD members by a private pension fund.

Controls apply to (1) airlines that must be majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or their citizens, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (2) lotteries and similar games, except (a) casino games, which may be authorized for legal persons established in the Czech Republic, and (b) consumer lotteries, whose prizes must be in-kind fulfillment, services, goods, or products, etc., valued in one calendar year no more than CZK 0.2 million; no single prize may exceed CZK 20,000; (3) the operation of a branch as a “mortgage bank” to the extent that a mortgage bank is authorized to issue mortgage securities in the domestic market, which is reserved for financial institutions incorporated and authorized under domestic law, Act. No. 190/2004 Coll. on Bonds; and (4) the extent that under EU Directive No. 85/611/EEC, a depository of a UCITS must either have its registered office in the same EU country as that of the company or be established in the EU country if its registered office is in another EU country.

Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments.

Effective October 1, 2021, the amendments contains, in particular:
- changes to the rules for calculating Pillar 2 capital requirement,
- changes to the capital buffer framework,
- changes to the regulation of financial holding companies and mixed financial holding companies subject to certain prudential requirements on a consolidated basis,
- changes to the remuneration framework taking into account the principle of proportionality.

Effective January 1, 2022, amendments introduced minor changes regarding leverage ratio requirements.

On nonresident assets and liabilities  Yes. Credit institutions are not subject to foreign exchange position limits. However, Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk which is the sum of its overall net foreign exchange position and its net gold position in the reporting currency multiplied by 8%. Furthermore, according to Decree No. 163/2014 Coll., if the absolute value of a credit institution’s net foreign exchange position in any foreign currency or in CZK, as per Article 352 of the CRR, exceeds 15% of its capital on an individual basis or its total net foreign exchange position, as per Article 352 of the CRR, exceeds 20% of its capital on an individual basis, the CNB must be notified immediately.

Provisions specific to institutional investors  Yes. In the Czech Republic, investments of insurance and reinsurance companies are regulated by the Insurance Act (Act No. 277/2009 Coll.). The Solvency II Directive was transposed into the Insurance Act on September 23, 2016. Since then, rules for investments of insurers and reinsurers have not changed. The rules are based on the prudent person principle. There are no legal quantitative limits; nevertheless, insurance and reinsurance companies must follow stipulated principles, for example:

1. Investments are only possible in assets whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and take them into account appropriately in the assessment of its overall needs. All assets must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole.
2. The assets intended to settle liabilities must be invested in a manner adequate to the nature and duration of insurance/reinsurance obligations and in the best interests of all policyholders and beneficiaries.
3. Investments must be diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive dependence on a particular asset, issuer, or group of persons or geographical area and to avoid excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole.

Moreover, the relevant insurance/reinsurance company has to set the rules for its investments according to the above-mentioned principles.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents  No. No legal quantitative limits on securities issued by nonresidents are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad  No. No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held abroad are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally  No. No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held locally are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition  No. In terms of currency matching, no legal quantitative rules on assets/liabilities composition are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the
In the Czech Republic, the pension companies and pension funds are regulated by the Supplementary Pension Savings Act No. 427/2011 Coll., also known as third pillars of the National Pension Scheme. Pension funds and pension companies are supervised by the CNB, and the law prescribes their prudential rules on eligible assets, including investment limits. These limits vary, depending on the kind of fund and its strategy. There is only a limited prescribed strategy for third pillar funds, except for the conservative plan, which must comply with the portfolio composition and investment limits. Transformed pension funds (third pillar): In 2013, pension funds were changed from self-management to transformed pension plans managed by pension companies, and clients' and shareholders' assets are now separate. There is now a guarantee of zero plus yields for which the pension company must hold sufficient funds (or decrease its own funds). General robust prudential rules apply to the management of pension funds. The law prescribes eligible assets and investment limits—for example, 10% in instruments issued by the same entity, except government bonds; 10% in real estate; and 50% in assets in the currency of liabilities to beneficiaries and use of derivatives only for hedging. Pension funds and pension companies are authorized and supervised by the CNB under Act No. 42/1994 Coll. on State-Contributory Supplementary Pension Insurance Act. Supplementary pension savings (third pillar): In 2013, the law adopted in 2011 established a new third pillar based on UCITS principles. Pension funds are managed by a pension company authorized and supervised by the CNB under UCITS-like prudential rules. Pension savings are individual pension plans that allow investment in a broader array of participation funds (type of common fund). Employers are encouraged by tax law to contribute. Savings are supported by a direct government contribution. The conservative fund for the participation pension funds (third pillar) is the only mandatory fund. Similarly to the UCITS rules, the law prescribes eligible assets. The investments may consist only of transferable securities; risk management is required, and techniques and instruments for efficient portfolio management are allowed. The conservative plan (third pillar) may invest only in bonds, money market instruments, money market funds, and deposits. Investment limits are 30% for private bonds and money market instruments. Limits for a single issuer are 5%–100% for public bonds with a qualified rating. Other plans must invest in UCITS-like transferable securities. Limits for collective investment schemes are 5%–35%. IORP—second pillar: Domestic IORP are prohibited. EU-IORP are permitted if the contributing employer is in the Czech Republic. For transitional-transformed pension funds, bonds and other debt securities are not allowed unless they are issued by governments and CBs of OECD members; guaranteed by such governments; or issued by the EIB, EBRD, or IBRD (Article 33 of the Act on Pension Funds). For supplementary pension savings (third pillar), up to 100% may be in bonds and money market instruments issued by governments and CBs of OECD members with a qualified rating. Limits for other single issuers are 5%–20%. The limit for other financial instruments is 30% (conservative fund).

Exports and Export Proceeds

Export licenses

| 01/30/2021 | The exportation of COVID-19 vaccines as well as their active substances was subject to the production of an export authorization until December 31, 2021. |
| 01/01/2022 | Export surveillance for a period of 24 months was introduced to replace the authorization requirement for exports of COVID-19 vaccines as well as their active substances, which was in place during January 30, 2021, until December 31, 2021. |

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

| 10/01/2021 | Directive (EU) No. 2019/878—CRD V, which is based on the revised Basel III standard, came into effect. The amendments contains, in particular, - changes to the rules for calculating Pillar 2 capital requirement, - changes to the capital buffer framework, - changes to the regulation of financial holding companies and mixed financial holding companies subject to certain prudential requirements on a consolidated basis, - changes to the remuneration framework taking into account the principle of proportionality. |
| 01/01/2022 | Amendments introduced minor changes regarding leverage ratio requirements. |

Conventional peg Yes. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg. The formal framework for the Danish fixed exchange rate policy is the ERM II. Denmark participates in the ERM II with a central rate of DKr 746.038 per €100. The central rate is a conversion of the central rate vis-à-vis the deutsche mark before the third stage of the EMU and was last adjusted in January 1987. Denmark has entered into an agreement with the ECB and the euro area member countries on a narrower fluctuation band of ±2.25%. In recent years, the Danmarks Nationalbank (DN) has consistently maintained a stable krone within less than 1% of the central rate. The DN’s net purchase or sale of foreign currency during a month is published at 5:00 p.m. on the second working day of the following month in the Foreign Exchange
The agreement on Denmark’s fixed exchange rate policy vis-à-vis the euro within a narrow fluctuation band of ±2.25% around the central rate in ERM II was concluded at an informal meeting of the Economic and Financial Affairs Council of September 25–27, 1998, in Vienna, between the ministers of economy and finance and the CB governors of the EU member countries.

Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, extending the definition of cash, so as to include gold and prepaid cards, in addition to banknotes, coins, and bearer-negotiable instruments (for example, traveler’s checks), and making a distinction between accompanied and unaccompanied cash. In accordance with Regulation (EU) No. 1672/2018, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for accompanied cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Natural persons entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the competent authorities of the member state through which they enter or leave the EU. Further to this, the Danish Customs Act, Section 10c (1) applies to cross-border transportation from Denmark to another EU member state and from another EU member state to Denmark for accompanied cash with a value of €10,000 or more. For unaccompanied cash of a value of more than €10,000, the sender or the recipient of the cash may be required to make a disclosure declaration within a deadline of 30 days. The cash may be detained until the disclosure declaration has been made according to the EU regulation Article 4 and the Danish Customs Act, Section 10d(2). The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU, cf. section 10 e. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the person makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to carry out controls on natural persons, their luggage, and their means of transport. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member states to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member state may exchange information with authorities in other member states. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member state to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purpose of the regulation; the regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

Imports of goods from Crimea or Sevastopol (Council Regulation (EU) No. 692/2014 as amended) are prohibited, in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol. Direct and indirect imports of certain goods and certain gold, precious metals, and diamonds are prohibited from the government of the DPRK and its public agencies and the Central Bank of the DPRK (Council Regulation (EU) No. 1509/2017). Imports of charcoal from Somalia (Council Regulation (EU) No. 147/2003 as amended, cf. Regulation No. 642/2012). Imports of certain gold, precious metals, and diamonds from the government of Syria, its public agencies, and its CB are prohibited under UN resolutions and EU regulations. Imports of endangered species of wild fauna and flora and pelts of certain wild animals are restricted. Imports of certain goods may also be prohibited as a result of technical requirements or for safety purposes. Imports of certain chemicals, dual-use-products, crude oil, etc., from certain countries are prohibited. Other examples: Imports of food and agricultural products from parts of Japan are prohibited (Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 1533/2021 imposing special conditions governing the import of feed and food originating in or dispatched from Japan). Effective March 29, 2022, imports of certain bivalve molluscs from Turkey are prohibited (Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 478/2022 on maintaining protective measures on imports of bivalve molluscs from Turkey). Imports of certain goods and products from Russia, including oil products, iron and steel products and certain wood products are prohibited (Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 as amended concerning restrictive measures in view of Russia’s actions destabilizing the situation in Ukraine). Import of different kinds of meat products from pigs from certain countries is restricted because of risk of disease (African pig disease). Import licenses are required for some goods (for example, certain agricultural products from countries outside the EU) and for surveillance and safety.

Open general licenses
- No.

Licenses with quotas
- Yes.

License requirements are required for some goods (for example, certain agricultural products from countries outside the EU) and for surveillance and safety.
including rice, sugar, milk products, beef, fruits, and vegetables. Licenses are required for (1) textile imports from DPRK. However, textile imports from DPRK have been suspended because of the prohibition against import of textile in Regulation No. 2017/1509 on EU’s restrictive measures against DPRK, cf. Article 16h.; (2) steel and aluminum import from non-EU countries, and (3) certain wood products from Russia. For a number of goods from certain third countries, there is a temporary increase of official controls and emergency measures governing the entry into the EU. The temporary suspension of imports of betel from Bangladesh ended effective April 15, 2021.

Controls apply to (1) registration under the Danish flag of vessels owned by foreign entities. Foreign owners (EU/EEA and non-EU/EEA) of commercial vessels need to maintain and prove that economic activity in relation to the vessel is carried out in or from Denmark and appoint a contact for control and similar purposes that may be sued on behalf of the owner or the ship owner (a Danish natural or legal person). For fishing vessels and pleasure crafts, the vessel must be effectively administered, controlled, and directed from Denmark and owners fulfill an establishment requirement. For non-EU/EEA entities, the establishment requirement may be fulfilled by setting up a subsidiary, branch, or agency in Denmark. For EU/EEA entities, the requirement may also be fulfilled merely by appointing an entity in Denmark that may be contacted for control and similar purposes and that may be sued on behalf of the owner or the ship owner; (2) ownership by non-EU residents of one-third or more of a business engaged in commercial fishing; (3) airlines established in the country that must be majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or nationals of EU countries, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (4) investment in accounting services by non-EU residents through indirect control—see the approval procedure in the Danish Act on Approved Auditors and Audit Firms, Section 13(2)—and in legal services by nonresidents; and (5) the extent that under EU Directive 2009/65/EF, a depository of a UCITS must either have its registered office in the same EU country as that of the UCITS or be established (have a branch) in the same EU country as the UCITS if its registered office... is in another EU country. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments.

Solvency II implies a principle of prudent person instead of the former quantitative regulation. Insurance companies and pension funds must invest all their assets in accordance with the prudent person principle but there are no specific quantitative limits. IORP are now subject to the principle of prudent person (from the IORP II directive). One quantitative restriction still exists in relation to maximum exposure toward the company, which has set up the institution (sponsor). IORP are not included as insurance companies nor as pension funds.

No separate legal tender

Currency board: Yes. Djibouti’s exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The Djibouti franc has been pegged to the US dollar since 1949, but the legislation establishing the currency board and determining the fixed exchange rate is Law No. 118/AN/11/6ème L of January 22, 2011. The Central Bank of Djibouti (BCD) guarantees and provides for unlimited conversion to US dollars of banknotes and coins used as legal tender in Djibouti. The full issuance of Djibouti francs is covered by foreign exchange reserves. The National Assembly of Djibouti has the authority to make decisions regarding changes in the exchange rate arrangement.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. The official buying and selling rates for currencies other than the US dollar are set by local banks and money changers, based on cross-rates for the US dollar in international markets. Banks may freely set quotes and commissions in transactions with their clients. Foreign exchange bureaus may not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCD but may maintain accounts abroad. The operations of licensed foreign exchange bureaus are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes. Transfer bureaus (hawalas) may engage in exchange operations and make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank

Yes. The BCD stands ready to exchange US dollars for Djibouti francs at the fixed exchange rate of DF 177.721 per US dollar without a margin or commission. The BCD exchanges unlimited amounts of US dollars with the treasury and banks at the fixed exchange rate through transfers between accounts held abroad. Foreign exchange bureaus handle the retail end of this business with large overseas transfers.

Interbank market

Yes. ADs are allowed to trade foreign exchange with each other, but the interbank foreign exchange market is not active. Banks operating on the local market use the interbank market. Islamic banks use a number of liquidity management instruments, including the interbank musharaka and the interbank mudarabah. However, banks primarily rely on international financing arrangements rather than the interbank... market for their liquidity requirements.

As at June 30, 2022, cumulative mandated debt amounted to DJF 7,065 billion (including DJF 4,075 billion in principal and DJF 2,360 in interest), corresponding to maturities falling due with the African Development Bank (AfDB), the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries, the Islamic Development Bank (IsDB), the International Development Association, Exim Bank of China, Exim Bank of India, the Arab Fund for Economic and Social Development, the EIB, the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), France, Spain, and Turkey.

As at June 30, 2022, public entities had accumulated DJF 3,776 billion (including DJF 2,038 billion in principal and DJF 1,738 billion in interest) in guaranteed external debt service. These maturities are due with the AfDB, the IsDB, Arab Fund for Economic and Social Development, Exim Bank of China, the Saudi Development Fund, Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries, and the Abu Dhabi Fund.

Status of direct external debt arrears:
The stock of the government’s external debt arrears as at June 30, 2022, was DJF 18,391 billion corresponding to outstanding maturities falling due with Iran, Exim Bank of China, the AfDB, IFAD, and the IsDB.

A debt rescheduling arrangement is still pending for payments in arrears with Iran amounting to DJF 837 million. The same is true for Exim Bank of India and Exim Bank of China, with outstanding amounts of DJF 3,328 billion and DJF 13,884 billion. It should be noted that no debt deferral agreement was made with these two partners (Exim Bank of India and Exim Bank of China) as part of the G20 Initiative. The remainder of the arrears are with the AfDB, IFAD, and the IsDB, totaling DJF 342 million.

Status of guaranteed external debt arrears:
The stock of external debt arrears guaranteed by the State as at June 30, 2022, amounted to DJF 5,560 billion. The arrears of the PORT, Société Immobilière de Djibouti, and the Electricity Board of Djibouti (EDD) (only arrears from the railway electrification project) are, respectively, DJF 2,478 billion (45%), DJF 1,366 billion (25%), and DJF 1,161 billion (21%). The remaining stock of external debt arrears amounting to DJF 555 million is held by the Economic and Social Development Fund (9%), and Urban Rehabilitation and Social Housing Agency (0.6%).

the CARICOM countries require a license. Imports of certain goods from the more developed CARICOM countries (Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica, Trinidad, and Tobago) also require a license.

Open general licenses Yes. Certain goods require a license for public health or safety reasons.

Licenses with quotas Yes. There are certain quantitative restrictions on imports of flour.

Other nontariff measures No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs Yes. Most rates are ad valorem. Dominica applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET. The maximum tariffs on most CARICOM agricultural and nonagricultural products are 40% and 20%, respectively. Lower rates apply to machinery (0%–15%) and some essential foodstuffs (0%–15%), whereas higher rates apply to import-substituting domestic appliances (20%–35%) and motor vehicles (10%–40%). Specific taxes are applied to some goods. These include an excise tax levied on (1) motor vehicles, (2) alcohol, (3) petroleum products, and (4) tobacco and tobacco substitutes at the rates set out in the Excise Tax Regulations (SRO 5) of 2006. Certain imports are exempt. A VAT is levied, and legislation designates certain zero-rated items and exempt imports. Imports are subject to a 1.5% environmental surcharge in addition to the 3% customs service charge. An environmental surcharge of ECS3,000 is payable on vehicles more than five years old. Vehicles less than five years old are subject to a rate of 1.5%, but a concessionary rate of 1% is extended to returning residents.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.

State import monopoly Yes. A state agency imports sugar and rice in bulk.

Currency board

Conventional peg

Stabilized arrangement

Crawling peg

Crawl-like arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed float. The Central Bank of the Dominican Republic (CBDR) aims to increase gradually the flexibility of the exchange rate alongside the implementation of the inflation-targeting framework formally adopted in 2012. The CBDR does not pursue a particular fixed exchange rate level, but rather seeks to manage a pathway around its long-term equilibrium value, consistent with the fundamentals of the Dominican Republic economy and its inflation target. The CBDR intervenes in the foreign exchange market to avoid instances of excessive exchange rate volatility that might affect the inflation target given that the exchange rate pass-through remains high.
The CBDR publishes data on foreign exchange sales and purchases in the foreign exchange market by different institutional actors (financial intermediaries and remittance/foreign exchange agents). The data are published on a gross (all transactions) basis and a net basis (excluding interbank operations). The CBDR does not disclose data on its volume of foreign exchange transactions with financial intermediaries. Since December 2021, the exchange rate increased its flexibility. However, more observations are needed to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands

The horizon over which the inflation target must be met is two years (24 months).

Operating target (policy rate)

| Policy rate | Yes. |

The CBDR holds a monthly Monetary Policy meeting to analyze internal and external risks in relation to meeting the inflation target. A Monetary Policy Communiqué is published after this meeting on the CBDR website containing the decision taken on the policy rate, a summary of the reasons behind it, and a reference interest rate that defines the overnight interest rates of the daily expansion and contraction operations. As of August 2022, the policy rate was 7.75%.

The CBDR licenses financial institutions and exchange agents to operate in the foreign exchange market. As of December 31, 2021, the 82 authorized financial and foreign exchange entities comprise 17 full-service banks, 14 savings and loan banks, 10 savings and loan associations, and 41 foreign exchange agents and remittance/foreign exchange agents.
The CBDR buys and sells foreign exchange through authorized foreign exchange intermediaries. Operating in the foreign exchange market is defined as “exchange intermediation”: This term comprises the act of buying and selling currencies regularly (currency notes and currencies of foreign countries, irrespective of their denominations or characteristics, and regardless of the means of payment used to make such purchases and sales), including but not limited to bills of exchange, checks, payment orders, promissory notes, bank drafts, and transfers.

The CBDR monitors the market closely and intervenes to limit excessive exchange rate volatility. The CBDR buys and sells foreign exchange through authorized foreign exchange intermediaries.

As of December 31, 2021, 17 full-service banks, 14 savings and loan banks, and 10 savings and loan associations actively participated in the interbank market.

Banks trade foreign exchange freely with each other and their customers. The CB implemented an electronic foreign exchange trading platform to be operated by the entity itself with the participation of various foreign exchange intermediation entities. The CBDR monitors the market closely and intervenes to limit excessive exchange rate volatility. The CBDR buys and sells foreign exchange through authorized foreign exchange intermediaries.

The interbank market operates over the counter. The interbank market operates over the counter.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes. Settlements within the LAIA (ALADI) framework must be made in US dollars. Transactions are carried out through the Federal Reserve and are settled in US dollars. Other transactions between residents and nonresidents may be made in any currency. Sums owed will be paid in the agreed currency and, if no explicit agreement exists, in the domestic currency. The foreign exchange regime will be based on the free convertibility of the domestic currency with other currencies. Economic agents will be able to perform transactions in foreign currencies based on terms entered into freely in compliance with general contract regulations. Under no circumstances must the CB require certain foreign currency operations to be carried out exclusively with the CB or according to terms that do not guarantee the free determination of prices on the market.

Licenses with quotas

Yes.

Products included in the Technical Rectification to Schedule XXIII of Tariff Concessions of the Dominican Republic under the WTO rules are subject to tariff rate quotas (rice, garlic, refined sugar, brown sugar, chicken meat, onion, beans, milk, and corn).

No imports of agricultural products are subject to quantitative restrictions (for example, quotas); tariff quotas are applied only to a specific list of products, within the framework of the WTO or trade agreements.

Under the WTO, the Dominican Republic applies tariff quotas to imports of chicken, corn, beans, onions, powdered milk, rice, and sugar.

Under the Central American-Dominican Republic Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA-DR) tariff quotas are applied to imports from the USA for the following products: beef, cuts of pork, lard, chicken thighs, turkey meat, powdered milk, mozzarella cheese, cheddar cheese, ice cream, yogurt, husked rice, semi-whitened or whitened rice, beans, and glucose. Quotas are applied to Nicaragua for the following products: chicken breasts, onions and shallots, and beans. Quotas are applied to Costa Rica for chicken breasts and powdered milk.

Under the CARIFORUM-EU EPA (Caribbean Forum-EU Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA)), the Dominican Republic applies a tariff quota to powdered milk originating from the EU.

The import of radio transmitters/receivers and radio communications, radio broadcasting, or television equipment or appliances listed under Section 85.25 and Section 85.26 are subject to the approval and issue of a trade license (Oficio de Autorización) by INDOTEL (Dominican Institute of Telecommunications).

<td>In the Dominican Republic, there are five tariff rates: 0%, 3%, 8%, 14%, and 20%, which apply to the temporary duty- and tax-free import system for certain goods reexported within 18 months of being processed, prepared, or repaired. A zero rate applies to imports of raw materials, machinery, and equipment to be used in the textile, agriculture, and tourism (within poles under development) sectors. The Customs Duty of the Dominican Republic, Law No. 146-00 and amendments proclaimed on May 4, 2007, provide for a 100% exemption from import duties for inputs, fertilizers, equipment, and machinery to be used in the agricultural industry, as well as a 100% exemption from payment of the Tax on the Transfer of Industrialized Goods and Services (Impuesto sobre Transferencia de Bienes Industrializados y Servicios – ITBIS). In addition, Law No. 158-01 as amended promotes the execution of new projects intended to develop the country’s tourist destinations (polos turísticos). The free trade agreement between the Dominican Republic, Central America, and the USA (CAFTA-DR) allows duty-free entry for goods from the USA in respect of 97.1% of customs duty; only 2.9% of the customs duty, limited to agricultural products characterized by high production sensitivity, will be subject to tariff relief phased in over the next nine years. On capital market securities

Operations in securities for public offering are regulated under Law No. 249-17 on the Securities Market of December 19, 2017, as well as the regulatory provisions issued by the National Securities Market Board and the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market within the scope of their authorities. Private investments are not governed by this law. Transactions related to FDI are regulated under Law No. 16-95 of November 20, 1995.

In 2019, the Regulation to the Law on Public Offerings was approved, establishing the conditions and requirements for the issuance of securities by issuers entitled to differential treatment and companies in the Dominican securities market. The said regulation also provides for fixed income exchange public offerings and public offerings for the acquisition of shares. In 2020, the Office of the Superintendent published instructions establishing the requirements for the authorization of a public offering and the preparation of the required documents.

In addition, the Regulation on Corporate Governance was approved in 2019, which sets out the voluntary regime for fixed income securities issuers and mandatory provisions applicable to listed companies.

Also in 2019, the Regulation on Administrators and Investment Funds was approved and published, modernizing the regulatory framework and allowing for greater diversification of instruments as an investment alternative to funds. In 2020, an instruction containing guidelines for preparing the various documents provided for in the Regulation on Administrators and Investment Funds was published. The Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market is currently preparing the Regulation on Public Offering Trusts and Securitization Companies and the Securitization Process, as required by Law No. 249-17 (Transitional Provision Three of the Law on the Securities Market).

Law No. 163-21 on Promotion of the Placement and Trading of Publicly Offered Securities in the Dominican Republic Securities Market was approved in 2021; it is aimed at promoting the placement and trading of publicly offered securities in the Dominican Republic securities market. The Law states that the promotion and development of the public offering of securities as a financing mechanism for investment projects, enterprises, and commercial companies to contribute to the stimulation of various sectors of the national economy is of national interest. The Law deals with tax measures aimed at promoting the development of listed companies in the Dominican Republic by establishing a capital gains tax exemption for listed companies for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. Likewise, it lowers the capital gains tax rate for the seller of shares of a listed company, which must be reported in the annual tax return. It should be mentioned that this tax rate is valid for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. In addition, it grants a special liability regime to the purchasers of shares listed in the Stock Market Registry, which are subscribed or traded in the stock market and which are part of a public offering, so that they are not considered to have joint and several liability for the tax obligations of the seller or of the issuing listed company. This special liability regime is not applicable to those shareholders who, directly or indirectly, participate in the management of the company in which investments are made or exercise, directly or indirectly, control over the administration and management of the company in the manner provided by Law No. 249-17 of December 19, 2017, on the Securities Market of the Dominican Republic and its implementing regulations. On the other hand, it grants the National Securities Market Council powers to offer temporary differentiated regulatory treatment for compliance with corporate governance provisions, for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. For investment funds, Law No. 163-21 grants an extension of an additional three years to the time period established in Law No. 249-17, that is, 6 years for the real estate transfer tax.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature

Yes.

Traded in our securities market are fixed income securities of corporate issuers, and both fixed income and variable income securities (of a participating nature) issued against autonomous assets, that is, investment funds and publicly offered trusts, and separate securitization assets. The first public offering of common shares was approved in April 2022. This public offering of shares will involve the issuance of new shares as a result of a capital increase to be carried out, which will represent 30% of the company’s total capital stock once the new shares are placed.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes.

Public offerings by foreign issuers are governed by the Law on the Securities Market and the Regulation on Public Offerings, which was published on October 29, 2019. Likewise, by Law No. 163-21 of August 6, 2021, on Promotion of the Placement and Trading of Publicly Offered Securities of the Dominican Republic. In addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into Spanish and be duly authenticated by the competent authorities in the home country and by consular officials of the Dominican Republic in that country. As well, they must comply with the provisions of Article 8 of the General Law on Commercial Companies No. 479-08, as amended, requiring them to register their domicile in the entry that they make in the Commercial Registry of the jurisdiction of that domicile. Under paragraph III of Article 30 of the Regulation on Public Offerings, if the issuer is not domiciled in the Dominican Republic, local representation will be required for receiving communications and for dialogue with the Office of the Superintendent regarding any matters affecting its supervision as the issuer of a public offering, particularly any requirement that the Office of the Superintendent or the representative of the body of bondholders may establish for fixed income.

It should be clarified that the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regulates activities, operations, and transactions on the securities market of the Dominican Republic, including publicly offered securities that are offered or traded in the national territory. Only publicly offered securities that are promoted by a securities intermediary registered in the Registry and that meet the requirements established in the regulations and in the internal bylaws of the securities markets and the centralized securities depository may be listed in the foreign securities trading system. Foreign securities issued by issuers entitled to differential treatment may be registered and promoted by their issuer or by a securities intermediary. The regulations will establish the details for the registration and trading of foreign securities publicly offered within the country, for which the approval of the Monetary Board is required.

Purchase abroad by residents No. The Regulation for Securities Intermediaries creates the position of “intermediary/introducer,” defined as follows: “the securities intermediary making a referral and providing assistance to a client in order for the latter to establish a contractual relationship with another domestic or foreign securities intermediary and to assist with opening and maintaining securities brokerage accounts on the client’s behalf.”

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. As of the date of this report, residents who are participants in the securities market for the issue of publicly offered securities abroad must report, as market sensitive information, the authorization to carry out the public offering, pursuant to Article 12 regarding the classification of market sensitive information established in Resolution R-CNVM-2015-33-MV. Pursuant to said resolution, securities issuers and participants subject to this regulation are required to inform the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market of authorizations for a public offering of securities on the domestic market or abroad.

Notification of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regarding the aforementioned market sensitive information is not required for residents who are not participants in the securities market.

Residents who are not participants in the securities market are defined as legal entities not registered in the Securities Market Registry and therefore not subject to supervision by the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market.

Effective December 9, 2022, the Regulation on Privileged Information, Market Sensitive Information, and Market Manipulation (R-CNVM-2022-10-MV) repealed the aforementioned Resolution R-CNVM-2015-33-MV. Article 22(g) of this Regulation will require the issuers of securities, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts to report the authorization of a public offering in the foreign market as market sensitive information. Likewise, in the event that residents are not participants in the aforementioned securities market, they are not required to notify the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regarding the aforementioned market sensitive information.

Bonds or other debt securities: Yes.

The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican Republic requires the prior authorization of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market. Certain issuers, such as the CB, the government, and multilateral agencies, and the securities they issue, are governed by their own laws and are exempt from the authorization of the Office of the Superintendent for public offerings. They must submit the legal basis for each issuance and the description of the essential characteristics of the securities for purpose of entry in the Registry. The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican territory is applicable to both residents and nonresidents. Participants in the securities market that issue abroad must comply with the provisions of Article 12 of the Regulation on Market Sensitive Information. If they are not participants in the securities markets, compliance with this provision is not required.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: No.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Public offerings by foreigners are governed by the Law on the Securities Market and the Regulation on Public Offerings, which was published on October 29, 2019, and entered into force on March 1, 2020, and by Law No. 163-21 of August 6, 2021, on Promotion of the Placement and Trading of Publicly Offered Securities of the Dominican Republic. In addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into Spanish and be duly authenticated by the competent authorities in the home country and by consular officials of the Dominican Republic in that country. The Regulation on Public Offerings, which will regulate the sale of foreign securities, is currently being prepared.

The Regulation for Securities Intermediaries creates the position of “intermediary/introducer,” defined as follows: “the securities intermediary making a referral and providing assistance to a client in order for the latter to establish a contractual relationship with another domestic or foreign securities intermediary and to assist with opening and maintaining securities brokerage accounts on the client’s behalf.”

Residents who are participants in the securities market for the sale or issue of publicly offered securities abroad must report, as market sensitive information, the authorization to carry out the public offering, pursuant to Article 12 regarding the classification of market sensitive information established in Resolution R-CNV-2015-33-MV.

Effective December 9, 2022, this resolution was repealed on the entry into force of the Regulation on Privileged Information, Market Sensitive Information, and Market Manipulation (R-CNMV-2022-10-MV), which requires that the issuers of securities, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts listed in the Securities Market Registry report the authorization of a public offering in the foreign market as market sensitive information.

Pursuant to said regulation, securities issuers, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts, which are subject to this regulation, are required to inform the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market of authorizations for a public offering of securities abroad. If they are not participants in the securities market as indicated, compliance with this provision is not required.

The regulations will establish the details for the registration and trading of foreign securities publicly offered within the country, for which the approval of the Monetary Board is required.

Residents who are participants in the securities market for the sale or issue of publicly offered securities abroad must report, as market sensitive information, the authorization to carry out the public offering, pursuant to Article 12 regarding the classification of market sensitive information established in Resolution R-CNV-2015-33-MV.

Effective December 9, 2022, this resolution was repealed on the entry into force of the Regulation on Privileged Information, Market Sensitive Information, and Market Manipulation (R-CNMV-2022-10-MV), which requires that the issuers of securities, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts listed in the Securities Market Registry report the authorization of a public offering in the foreign market as market sensitive information. Pursuant to said regulation, securities issuers, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts, which are subject to this regulation, are required to inform the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market of authorizations for a public offering of securities abroad. If they are not participants in the securities markets, compliance with this provision is not required.

Law No. 249-17 on the Securities Market of December 19, 2017, and the Regulation for Securities Intermediaries (under R-CNMV-2019-21-MV of August 13, 2019) apply. The derivatives currently in use are linear (forward, with and without delivery; swaps). For customers in the securities market, derivatives must be defined within their product offering, and they must have an operating manual deposited with the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market. Securities intermediaries have a risk policy and have requirements regarding the definition of limits. The Regulation for Securities Intermediaries establishes certain measures for transactions with derivatives, such as the following:

1. Securities intermediaries may not offer non-standardized derivative instruments to non-professional investors, unless contracting of the product is not speculative, but has a hedging purpose for the client.
2. Clients must be duly informed of the asset and investment valuation method, where applicable, such as in the case of derivative instruments and leveraged products. Valuation by the intermediary must meet objective and verifiable criteria, which must be established contractually.

Public offerings by foreigners are governed by the Law on the Securities Market, Law No. 163-21, and the Regulation on Public Offerings, which was published on October 29, 2019. In addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into Spanish and be duly authenticated by the competent authorities in the home country and by consular officials of the Dominican Republic in that country.
well, they must comply with the provisions of Article 8 of the General Law on Commercial Companies No. 479-08, as amended, requiring them to register their domicile in the entry that they make in the Commercial Registry of the jurisdiction of that domicile. Under paragraph III of Article 30 of the Regulation on Public Offerings, if the issuer is not domiciled in the Dominican Republic, local representation will be required for receiving communications and for dialogue with the Office of the Superintendent regarding any matters affecting its supervision as the issuer of a public offering, particularly any requirement that the Office of the Superintendent or the representative of the body of bondholders may establish for fixed income.

The sale of publicly offered securities by nonresidents within the Dominican territory is regulated by the Law on the Securities Market. The Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regulates activities, operations, and transactions on the securities market of the Dominican Republic, including publicly offered securities that are offered or traded in the national territory. Only publicly offered securities that are promoted by a securities intermediary registered in the Registry and that meet the requirements established in the regulations and in the internal bylaws of the securities exchanges and the centralized securities depositary may be listed in the foreign securities trading system. Foreign securities issued by issuers entitled to differential treatment may be registered and promoted by their issuer or by a securities intermediary. The regulations will establish the details for the registration and trading of foreign securities publicly offered within the country, for which the approval of the Monetary Board is required.

The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation, Second and Third Reviews under the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, Request for a Waiver of Nonobservance of Performance Criterion, and Financing Assurances Review for Ecuador states that, as of September 20, 2021, Ecuador maintained an exchange restriction subject to IMF approval arising from a 5% tax on transfers for the making of payments and transfers abroad on current international transactions. There are a number of exemptions from this tax. In September 2021, the government enacted an Executive Decree lowering the tax rate to zero for foreign airline companies operating in Ecuador, which will enter into force on its publication in the official gazette. In addition, the SUCRE (Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos) regional payments arrangement also gives rise to an exchange restriction subject to IMF approval since the period for settlement under the bilateral payment arrangement exceeds three months. (Country Report No. 21/228)

The currency of Ecuador is the US dollar. In accordance with Article 94 “Currency in the Republic of Ecuador,” all transactions, monetary and financial operations, and the relevant accounting records executed in the Republic of Ecuador must be drawn up in US dollars, in accordance with this Code. The circulation, exchange, withdrawal, and demonetization of US dollars, the currency of the Republic of Ecuador, must be exclusively incumbent on the Central Bank of Ecuador (CBE), as provided under this Code and the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The CBE is the sole entity authorized to provide and manage national coins in the Republic of Ecuador, equivalent to and convertible to US dollars, as provided under this Code and subject to the regulation and authorization of the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The currency determined in this article is a means of payment. The currency is valid as legal tender in the Republic of Ecuador in the framework of the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The state may not in any case require any individual or legal entity under private law to accept currency.
The exchange rate arrangement is classified as no separate legal tender. All transactions, monetary and financial operations, and the relevant accounting records executed in the Republic of Ecuador must be denominated in US dollars in accordance with Articles 43 and 94 of the Organic Monetary and Financial Code (COMF).

The circulation, exchange, withdrawal, and destruction of US dollars, which is legal tender in Ecuador, must be the exclusive power of the CBE, in accordance with the provisions established in this Code and the regulations prepared by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board.

The CBE is the sole entity authorized to supply and manage currency in the Republic of Ecuador, equivalent and convertible to US dollars, in accordance with the provisions of this Code and the regulations and authorization of the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board.

The currency specified in this article is the means of payment. The currency is legal tender in the Republic of Ecuador pursuant to the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. Under no circumstances can the government force a natural or legal person established under private law to receive currency other than US dollars.

Exchange tax
Yes.
Ecuador has no tax on foreign exchange operations. However, all transfers abroad are subject to the capital outflow tax (ISD), barring certain exemptions. Outflows in connection with bank loans exceeding one year are exempt for specific sectors indicated in the Productivity Code (such as housing and microfinance).

Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75% (previously 5%).
Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50% (previously 4.75%).
Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25% (previously 4.5%).
Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4% (previously 4.25%).

Exchange subsidy
No.

Foreign exchange market
Yes.
Authorized intermediaries are allowed to freely determine the spread between the buying and selling exchange rate and the commissions they charge their clients.

Spot exchange market
Yes.
Exchange bureaus that engage in transactions in the country must obtain a license from the Banking Superintendency (SB), out of which two are active according to the public registry of the SB as of September 6, 2022, and may only engage in the following transactions in accordance with Section II: Constitution, Functioning, and Operation of Exchange Bureaus; Chapter XXXVI: Financial Service Institutions; Title II: National Financial System, Book I: Monetary and Financial System, Codification of Monetary, Financial, Securities, and Insurance Resolutions.

1. Buy, sell, and exchange foreign banknotes or coins.
2. Buy and sell traveler’s checks denominated in foreign exchange.
5. Arrange draws or transfers in foreign exchange charged to accounts that the company holds with banks in the country or abroad in connection with their business activities.

According to the SB register, there are two active exchange bureaus.

The SB must indicate which entities are authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations (not only exchange bureaus). Purchase and sale or currency swap operations carried out regularly on a permanent basis in the free currency market, as well as the purchase and sale of checks, draws or transfers in foreign exchange, made against accounts in domestic or foreign banks, must be carried out solely by banks or exchange bureaus duly authorized by the SB.

The CBE publishes the price table (reference exchange rates) on its website. This information is a reference for operations carried out in the public and private sectors.

Operated by the central bank
No.

Foreign exchange standing facility
No.
Because the Ecuadorian economy is dollarized and the law does not provide for the use of currencies other than the US dollar for making domestic transactions, there are no exchange markets, except of a marginal nature in financial institutions and on an informal level. Thus, the CBE does not intervene or engage in any type of activity in the national financial system in any currency other than the US dollar.

Allocation
No.
As of December 31, 2021, 24 institutions (23 national banks) hold licenses granted by the SB, according to its public registry. In accordance with Article 312 of the Constitution, financial institutions may not engage in any activity that is unrelated to the financial system.

Article 194, Indent d, Numeral 5, of the COMF states that, with regard to services, financial entities may “on their own behalf or on behalf of third parties, carry out foreign exchange transactions, repo transactions, and issue and negotiate traveler’s checks.”

Article 43 of the COMF regarding information on trading in foreign currencies other than the US dollar states that entities in the national financial system authorized to trade in foreign currencies other than the US dollar are required to report to the CBE, following the form and periodicity specified by the Board, on the amounts and exchange rates of their transactions and to provide information needed by the Bank concerning movements in their foreign currency accounts. Failure to comply with this provision will be punishable as a serious infraction in accordance with said Code.

The economy of Ecuador is dollarized, and therefore, there are no foreign exchange markets other than the dollar, except on a marginal basis. Accordingly, the CBE does not engage in any operations or practices with currencies other than the US dollar with the national financial system.

The functions of the CBE include the administration of resources abroad, for which it has the Policy for the Investment of International Investment Assets and which entail the authorization to conduct swap operations solely with the gold portfolio.

At present, there are no portfolios in other foreign currencies for “Contingent State.” There are only minimum balances in euro and yen, which are the currencies with the highest movement. To keep accounts abroad active, the cash management unit acquires other foreign currencies to fulfill specific obligations, as required by the Payments System Directorate.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes. Transactions with all countries must be carried out in convertible currencies and whenever possible, import and export payments and collections must be made in the currency stipulated in the customs documents.

Effective March 11, 2022, the Monetary Policy and Regulation Board issued Resolution No. JPRM-2022-009-M, which eliminates operations with the SUCRE system and mandates. Previously, transactions channeled through SUCRE agreement had to be recorded using the “sucre” unit of account, with clearance every six months in convertible currencies.

However, Ecuador is still part of the SUCRE agreement, even though

Because the US dollar is the legal tender in Ecuador, it can also be generally used worldwide for all types of international transactions. It has not channeled any operations through the SUCRE system and mandates since 2019. Related to the SUCRE agreement, effective March 11, 2022, the Monetary Policy and Regulation Board issued Resolution No. JPRM-2022-009-M, which eliminates operations with the SUCRE system and mandates. Public and private financial institutions require approval for accounts denominated in currencies other than US dollars. The CBE may open accounts in currencies other than US dollars on behalf of public sector entities for funds received as grants or loans. There are no restrictions on transferring funds from these accounts abroad. Residents may open and maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad. There are no restrictions on balances transferred to Ecuador; however, the ISD is payable on all capital transferred abroad.

Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75% (previously 5%). Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50% (previously 4.75%). Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25% (previously 4.5%). Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4% (previously 4.25%).

Approval is not required for private sector entities. However, the Financial Policy and Regulation Board approves the opening and maintenance of accounts abroad for use by public sector entities, subject to approval from the Ministry of Economy and Finance and the CBE.

Accounts in domestic currency held Yes. The US dollar is used as domestic currency, and no distinction is made between accounts in US dollars held domestically and those held abroad. Transfers abroad are subject to the ISD tax, except for the outflows relating to bank loans of over one year for specific sectors identified in the Productive Code (for example, housing and microfinance).

Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75% (previously 5%). Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50% (previously 4.75%). Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25% (previously 4.5%). Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4% (previously 4.25%).

Inspection documents are required for agricultural, medical, arms, and psychotropic imports. In addition, EP Petroecuador (the state-owned oil company) may, without a license, import supplies, materials, and equipment during emergencies. COMEX is responsible for issuing rules on import procedures other than customs procedures, such as registrations, authorizations, prior control documents, and licenses. It also determines what goods are prohibited. The reshipment of goods whose importation is prohibited is mandatory, except for clothing, perishable goods, and educational material, which will be Ecuador prohibits imports of certain products (221 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the Harmonized System (HS)), regardless of origin. The bans mostly affect organic chemicals (71 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 29 of the HS) and the other products of the chemical industry (56 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 38 of the HS), followed by nuclear reactors (35 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 84 of the HS), and fish and crustaceans, mollusks, and more aquatic invertebrates (34 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 3 of the HS). In addition, Ecuador prohibits the importation of other products (692 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the HS) according to the origin of the products for phyto-zoosanitary reasons and to implement, among others, the resolutions of the UNSC, and other international agreements in which Ecuador is a party.

Effective May 30, 2022, Resolution 009-2022, in compliance with Article 5 of Executive Decree No. 68.

Updating the lists of subheadings subject to ex ante control and prohibited from importation.

Eliminating 1,405 (45% approximately) tariff subheadings from both lists, leaving a total of 2,254 controlled tariff subheadings and 221 tariff subheadings subject to import prohibition.

Five percent of the import quotas for “cotton not carded or combed” with a zero tariff is distributed to textile manufacturers not affiliated with the Association of Textile Industries of Ecuador. There are also import quotas for vehicles, parts for vehicle assembly, and for cell phones.

Measures include safeguards, quotas, and contingencies. Plant protection and animal healthcare certificates are required, as are quality certificates for imports of certain products. A set of technical standards applies to imports of certain goods for consumer, health, and environmental protection.

Ecuador uses various pre-import control documents, including importer registration, permits, prior import authorizations, the certificate of inspection or classification verification issued at origin, the customs destination document, certificates of recognition, and automatic and non-automatic licenses. In addition, some of the products subject to technical regulations issued by the Ecuadorian Standardization Service (INEN) require a “Certificate of Recognition” as a supporting document for importation, and products subject to phyto-zoosanitary requirements need the relevant certificates. The type of prior control may vary for the same product depending on the circumstances. Therefore, the requirements may vary or one type of permit may be replaced by another. Thus, the “Product Registration” has been replaced by the “Authorization for the Importation of Pesticides and Related Products for Agricultural Use” or by the “Sanitary Authorization for Veterinary Products”; or the “Importer Registration” by the “Phytosanitary Import Permit” or “Zoosanitary Import Permit”; the pre-import control documents called “Registro Sanitario” and “Permiso de importación” have been replaced by the document “Licencia de importación no automática.”

In 2012, COMEX established an import license, of a general and non-discriminatory nature, for imports under any customs regime or destination. This license is a necessary requirement to clear goods and COMEX must determine the requirements, terms, and conditions that importers must comply with to obtain non-automatic licenses. In the case of non-automatic import licenses for basic foodstuffs, which are granted by the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, the Ministry issued an instruction for importers to obtain the licenses. However, for the issuance of any type of license, a final order or judgment is required.

Effective March 4, 2022, Resolution 002-2022, in compliance with Article 5 of Executive Decree No. 68: Elimination of the Ex Ante Control Document in the Ecuadorian One-Stop Scheme for 134 food subheadings (mineral waters, meat products, condiments, cookies, fruits, vegetables, candies), wheelbarrows and ceramics, from the repealed Ecuadorian technical regulations.

Effective March 17, 2022, Resolution 005-2022, in compliance with article 5 of Executive Decree No. 68: Elimination of the Ex Ante Control Document in the Ecuadorian One-Stop Scheme for 6 subheadings, including medical chairs, notebooks, condoms, of the repealed Ecuadorian technical regulations.

In 2022, the Ecuadorian National Tariffs contained 8,315 tariff lines at the 10-digit HS 2017 level. Ecuador applies both ad valorem and compound tariffs. Compound tariffs apply to 5% of tariff lines (421 HS lines at the 10-digit level) and mostly tax apparel (350 HS61, HS62, HS63, and HS64 lines).

The MFN tariff of Ecuador consists of 42 rates ranging from 0% to 67.5%, including tariffs resulting from the application of the price band, but excluding estimates of ad valorem equivalents. In 2022, 93.3% of the tariff lines were subject to tariff rates lower than 30%; 47.9% applied a tariff equal to 0%; and only 1.0% of the total tariff lines had a tariff higher than 30%.

Imports are also subject to other charges that include: foreign currency transfers abroad (ISD), the VAT, the special consumption tax (ICE), and the contribution to the Development Fund for Children (FODINFA).
In addition to specific tariffs, Ecuador continues to apply the Andean Price Band System (SAFP) to 189 tariff lines at the HS 2017 10-digit level (approximately 2.5% of the tariff universe). Products subject to the SAFP are meat and edible meat offal; milk and milk products (HS04); cereals (HS10); milling products (HS11); oil seeds and oleaginous fruits (HS12); animal or vegetable fats and oils (HS15); preparations of meat, fish or crustaceans (HS16); sugars and sugar confectionery (HS17); cereal-based preparations (HS19); residues and waste from the food industries; starch products (HS35); and miscellaneous products of the chemical industries. The lines to which the SAFP applies have two components: a fixed ad valorem component and a variable component. The duties resulting from the application of the SAFP vary according to the international price of the products in question. The purpose of this measure is to stabilize the domestic price of these products.

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, Resolution-COMEX-019-2020, dated September 2020, approved the commercial policy of incentives for productive development in Ecuador, which consists of the temporary deferral of the total payment of tariffs, which may be accessed only by natural persons, legal entities, or commercial trusts that carry out business activities or operate an ongoing business; they must comply with certain requirements established in Sections I, II, III, and III of the Annex I of the Resolution. This measure is applicable to imports from all countries.

In compliance with Executive Decree No. 68, related to the competitiveness strategy, simplification of procedures, trade facilitation, and boosting productivity, the COMEX has adopted the following resolutions on the subject of import tariffs:

Effective August 1, 2021, Resolution 009-2021 (in compliance with Article 8 of Executive Decree No. 068) was issued. The measure lowered the tariffs of 667 products: 590 now have a zero tariff; 30 are taxed at 5%; 20 at 10%; and the remaining 27 between 15% and 25%. Among the sectors, most benefited by the reform are those related to agriculture, technology, manufacturing, and automotive. As for agribusiness, almost half of the items will affect this sector, reducing the import tax on machinery and equipment.

In addition, to boost competitiveness, the Government issued Executive Decree No. 68, effective June 9, 2021, entitled “Decree for the Facilitation of Trade and Production, the Simplification of Procedures and the Competitiveness Agenda” to eliminate obstacles to productive activities and national and international trade and to consolidate the policy of quality, competitiveness, and productive reactivation.

The government decision establishes a period of 30 days for the Ministry of Production, Foreign Trade, Investment and Fisheries (MPCIEP); the Ministry of Environment, Water and Ecological Transition; the National Customs Service of Ecuador (SENAE); the National Standardization Service (INEN); the Health Regulation and Control Agency (Arcsca); the Agency for Regulation and Phytosanitary and Zoosanitary Control (Agrocalidad); and the Internal Revenue Service present an action plan to facilitate, through digital tools, or eliminate procedures, permits, licenses, certifications, technical regulations, and registrations that reduce national competitiveness.
Payments made for ISD on the import of raw materials, inputs, and capital goods included in the list established by the Tax Policy Committee may be considered as a tax credit for the payment of income tax (IR) (or its advance payment) for the year in which such payments were made, as well as for the following four years. This list was established in 2012, but may be modified in each tax year.

Some transactions are exempt from ISD, such as payments for imports for the consumption of electric and induction stoves, their parts and pieces; pots and pans designed for use in induction stoves; and electric water heating systems for domestic use, including electric showers. Payments made abroad by administrators and operators of Special Economic Development Zones (ZEDE) for imports of goods and services related to their activity are also exempted. Payments for the importation of goods used to execute a public project, regardless of the import regime used, and the acquisition of services for the execution of the public project are also exempt.

In the case of exports of goods and services, if the foreign currency corresponding to the payment of such exports does not enter Ecuador, ISD will be incurred.

All transfers abroad are subject to the ISD, barring certain exemptions. The Law for Productive Development, Investment Attraction, and Employment Generation and its Regulation exempts the payment of the ISD for new productive investments that sign investment contracts for the import of capital goods and raw materials necessary for the development of the project, up to the amounts and terms established in the aforementioned contract.

Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75% (previously 5%). Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50% (previously 4.75%). Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25% (previously 4.5%). Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4% (previously 4.25%).

Exports and Export Proceeds

- Surrender to authorized dealers: No.
- Financing requirements: No.
- Documentation requirements: Yes.
- Letters of credit: No.
- Guarantees: No.
- Domiciliation: Yes. Exporters must register with the Internal Revenue Service, after having obtained a digital certificate for their electronic signature and authentication from the CBE or from Security Data company, and after having registered on the ECUAPASS portal. The National Council for Foreign Trade (COMEX) requires that exporters also register with the Ministry of Production, Trade, Investment, and Fishing for:

Preshipment inspection Yes. Prior to shipment, the SENAE authorizes exporters to begin the export process, with no charge from customs. The export customs declaration (DAE) is required, along with a pro forma invoice, previous authorizations, and an electronic preshipment certificate of origin.

Other Yes. The International Coffee Organization Certificate of Origin, issued by the National Coffee Board (COFENAC), has been added to customs documentation requirements for coffee exporters.

The declarant must manage the accompanying and/or supporting documents to be attached to the DAE. These documents include the commercial invoice, packing list, prior authorization (if applicable), certificate of origin (if applicable), and phytosanitary certificate (if applicable). The export process begins with the transmission of the DAE. Once the DAE is received, the export entry report of the merchandise is registered in the primary zone through which it will be exported. Once the export entry report is registered, the ECUAPASS computer system automatically assigns the gauging channel for the goods, which may be automatic, documentary, or intrusive physical.

If the assigned gauging channel is automatic, the exit of the goods from Ecuadorian customs territory is authorized (Authorized Exit); otherwise, the gauging act is performed, and if there are no observations, the responsible operator technician registers the closing of the gauging in the ECUAPASS system, and the status of “Authorized Exit” is assigned to the DAE. If there are any new developments in the gauging process, the technician operator records the observations so that they can be justified or corrected by the declarant within a period of one day. With the authorized departure from the DAE, the goods can be shipped. If necessary, the declarant may correct the DAE. Once the goods have been shipped, the declarant can regularize the DAE with SENAE, which completes the definitive export process.

Export licenses Yes. Exports of some products require licenses.

Without quotas Yes. The export prices of bananas, cocoa and finished products, coffee, and fish are subject to minimum f.o.b. reference prices.

The Foreign Trade Committee (COMEX) is responsible for issuing regulations on export requirements, other than customs formalities, such as registrations, authorizations, prior control documents, and licenses.

In 2018, Ecuador prohibits definitive exports and temporary exports for outward processing in respect of certain products (480 HS tariff lines at the 10-digit level). The prohibitions mostly affect metal products and their manufactures, tools and implements, nuclear reactors, and automobiles.

Ecuador guarantees the free export of goods, with the exception of those that could affect public health, the preservation of the environment, animal and plant health, and cultural heritage. Exports may also be restricted to comply with the commitments assumed by...
Ecuador within the framework of the various international agreements to which it is a signatory, such as the Montreal Protocol.

Likewise, COMEX may regulate and/or restrict exports to ensure the supply of raw materials for national production and thus promote the incorporation of added value, in execution of the National Industrial Development Plan. These controls may be imposed ex officio or at the request of an industry.

With quotas No.

Export taxes Yes. Ecuador does not impose taxes on exports; however, in the case of exports of goods and services, if the money corresponding to the payment for such exports did not enter Ecuador, they would be subject to ISD.

Collected through the exchange system No.

Other export taxes No.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers No.

Trade-related payments No. Transfers abroad are subject to the ISD tax. The tax is applicable to all financial transfers abroad. Certain import payments are exempt or generate a tax credit for importers. Imports of capital goods and raw materials necessary for the development of the project are exempt from the payment of the ISD, up to the amounts and terms established in the investment contract.

Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75%.
Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50%.
Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25%.
Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4%.

Prior approval No.

Quantitative limits No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test No.

Investment-related payments No. Payments abroad are subject to the ISD. The tax is applicable to all financial transfers abroad, including interest payments. Dividend payments are exempt. The ISD is waived for the outflows relating to bank loans of over one year for specific sectors identified in the Productive Code (for example, housing and microfinance).

The Law for Productive Development, Investment Attraction, and Employment Generation and its Regulation establishes the following exemptions to the payment of the ISD in the case of investments:

1) Dividends distributed by national or foreign companies domiciled in Ecuador, after payment of IR, when applicable, in favor of effective beneficiaries who are natural persons domiciled or resident in Ecuador or abroad, shareholders of the company that distributes them, up to the term established in the aforementioned investment contract, as long as the resources of the investment come from abroad and the investor demonstrates the income of the foreign currency to the country.

2) Companies that reinvest in the country at least 50% of the profits, in new productive assets, will be exempt from payment of the ISD for payments abroad, for distribution of dividends to effective beneficiaries residing in Ecuador, of the corresponding fiscal year. For the application of this exemption, the corresponding capital increase must be made, which must be completed until December 31 of the fiscal year following that in which the profits were generated, subject to reinvestment.

(3) Payments made abroad, for the amortization of capital and interest generated on loans granted by international financial institutions or specialized non-financial entities qualified by the corresponding control entities in Ecuador, which grant financing with a term of 360 calendar days or more; payments made abroad, for dividends distributed by national or foreign companies domiciled in Ecuador, after payment of IR.

Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75%.
Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50%.
Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25%.
Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4%.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. Article 208 – Relationships in lending, borrowing, and contingent operations. The Financial Policy and Regulation Board must dictate the rules governing relationships that financial entities will be required to keep in their lending, borrowing, and contingent operations, considering the risks stemming from differences in terms, rates, currencies, and other factors.

Moreover, the Board must dictate the rules governing the development of risk management policies, technologies, and procedures.

Article 209 – Orientation of credit operations. The Financial Policy and Regulation Board must regulate, by way or rules, the orientation and direction of the credit operations of entities of the national financial system and non-financial entities that grant credits above the limits established by the Board. In that regard, consideration must be given, among others, to segments, interest rates, guarantees, and credit limits. Under no circumstances may the Board intervene in defining the recipient individual or legal person of credit operations.

To this end, the Board must consider term-matching between the assets and liabilities of regulated entities.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: No.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: Yes.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51): Yes.

Banks have been instructed to freeze accounts and assets of listed individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, in accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions. Further, in 2002, the authorities established the Egyptian Money Laundering Combating Unit (EMLCU), which is the Egyptian financial intelligence unit responsible for combating money laundering and terrorism financing. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and designated nonfinancial businesses and professions concerning transactions suspected of being proceeds of a crime or involving money laundering or terrorism financing or attempts to conduct such transactions. The EMLCU takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. Anti-Money Laundering/Combating the Financing of Terrorism (AML/CFT) Law No. 80 of 2002 was amended in May 2014, to address deficiencies in Egypt’s AML/CFT regime, including with regard to international standards on combating money laundering/financing of terrorism and proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Egypt exited from the follow-up process at the Middle East and North Africa Region Financial Action Task Force (MENAFATF). In accordance with the amendments, the EMLCU will carry out Egypt’s commitment under international conventions, treaties, and charters with respect to terrorism financing and financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

Other security restrictions: No.

Unitary: Yes.

Dual
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. On November 3, 2016, the Central Bank of Egypt (CBE) announced its decision to move, with immediate effect, to a liberalized exchange rate regime to quell any distortions in the domestic foreign currency market. Pursuant to the above, banks and other market participants are at liberty to quote and trade at any exchange rate. Bid and ask exchange rates are determined by forces of demand and supply. The CBE uses the prevailing market rate for any transactions it undertakes. Since March 2022, the exchange rate has increased its flexibility. However, more observations are needed to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as stabilized.

The US dollar–pound official exchange rate is published daily through Reuters and Bloomberg. This rate reflects the weighted average interbank rate. The CBE uses its official rate to carry out foreign exchange transactions with banks, the government, and public institutions.
Monetary policy is in transition to a flexible inflation-targeting regime, where policy tools are utilized to anchor inflation expectations, to contain demand-side pressures and second-round effects of supply shocks to achieve inflation targets over the medium term. Policy tools include a corridor of overnight deposit and lending standing facilities, open market operations, and reserve requirements. The monetary policy rate is set by the CBE’s MPC, which has six members comprising of the governor of the CBE, two deputy governors, and three other members of the Board of Directors. The MPC convenes every six weeks to decide on appropriate actions with respect to key policy rates. The MPC’s decisions are communicated to the market through a monetary policy press release that gives an analysis of the committee’s decision, which is published on the CBE’s website following each MPC meeting. In May 2017, the CBE announced for the first time in its history its inflation target of 13% (+/-3%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2018. In December 2018, the target lowered to 9% (+/-3%) on average during the fourth quarter of 2020. The target was most recently lowered in 2020 to 7% (+/-2%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2022. The Central Agency for Public Mobilization and Statistics (CAPMAS) is the entity responsible for calculating and publishing the headline CPI every month, which the CBE uses to derive the core CPI index as an indicative index for research purposes only. The transition from the direct-quantity target to targeting short-term interest rates was made in June 2005. The CBE adopted a corridor system using an overnight lending facility as the ceiling rate and an overnight deposit facility as the floor rate. The CBE employs open market operations as a monetary policy tool to achieve its operational target to ultimately attain its intermediate target. Open market operations achieve that by regulating the supply of reserves in the banking system. The CBE main operation could be deposit auctions or reverse repo depending on the market liquidity condition.

Exchange tax No.
Exchange subsidy No.
Foreign exchange market Yes. The CBE allows market participants to freely decide the client and interbank bid and ask rates.
Spot exchange market Yes. The CBE licenses nonbank foreign exchange dealers (foreign exchange bureaus, bazaars, and duty-free markets). As of December, 30, 2021, there were 81 licensed foreign exchange bureaus, 80 bazaars, and 9 duty-free markets. Foreign exchange bureaus may buy and sell domestic and foreign means of payment (banknotes and traveler’s checks) on their own behalf. These transactions are conducted in cash. Foreign exchange bureaus may not make transfers into or out of Egypt and must sell all working-day foreign currency exceeding their authorized operating balance to commercial banks. Almost all banks licensed to operate in Egypt (currently 38) are involved in foreign exchange transactions.

Operated by the central bank Yes. Banks are required to manage and maintain their positions in foreign currencies through the interbank market on a daily basis without breaching their authorized net positions. The CBE does not buy commercial banks’ foreign currency balances exceeding their authorized net open position.
Foreign exchange standing facility No.
Allocation No.
Auction Yes. The multiple-price auction mechanism, which allows the CBE to buy and sell foreign exchange (exclusively in US dollars), follows these rules: (1) The CBE sets the amounts (not the price). (2) Each bank may submit up to three bids, for which the total amount submitted is determined by the quota assigned to the bank by the CBE, based on its commercial utilization and previous sales in the interbank market. (3) On the auction day, the CBE announces the auction amount one hour before the auction. (4) Banks authorized by the CBE may participate. (5) Auction results are announced to the public through several data service providers, such as Reuters and Bloomberg, as well as on the CBE website. No auctions have been conducted since November 3, 2016.
Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. Banks (currently 38) that are members of the interbank convention on foreign exchange trading buy and sell foreign exchange at freely determined rates. Dealers may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market through an electronic dealing system during regular dealing hours.

Brokerage No.

Market making No.

Forward exchange market Yes. Authorized commercial banks are permitted to conduct forward foreign exchange transactions on their own behalf. The banks are free to determine the rates for forward transactions and conduct forwards and swaps on behalf of their customers strictly for business needs. The CBE does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. In practice, the CBE permits authorized commercial banks to conduct forward foreign exchange and swap transactions to cover five genuine needs: supplier payments, LCs, transfer collections, dividend payments, and export proceeds.

Official cover of forward operations No.
