The CRR replaced domestic regulations on the calculation of own funds requirements for foreign exchange risk. According to its provisions, banks are subject to large exposure limits, which apply to exposures to both residents and nonresidents. There is no binding direct limit on open foreign exchange positions. However, in accordance with the CRR if the sum of the overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position exceeds 2% of total own funds, banks must calculate own funds requirements for foreign exchange risk in line with the provisions of the CRR. The relevant Polish regulations, which implemented the capital requirements provided for in EC Directives Nos. 2006/48/EC and 2006/49/EC, are now superseded by the CRD IV package consisting of the CRD and the CRR.
On nonresident assets and liabilities  Yes.

Provisions specific to institutional investors  Yes.

Insurance companies  No.

In compliance with EU directives and the Polish Act on Insurance and Reinsurance Activity, a KNF’s permission is required for non-EU entities to set up an insurance company; insurance companies located in the EU are subject to the general provisions of EU and domestic law. The KNF must be notified of investment transactions that would result in the acquisition of 10%, 20%, one-third, or 50% of shares or voting power or in an increase beyond 10%, 20%, one-third, or 50% of total shares or voting power. The KNF must also be notified whenever a given entity intends to become a parent company (either directly or indirectly) of an insurance or reinsurance company (currently, Article 82 of the Act on Insurance Activity). The KNF may object to the transaction within a 60-working day period.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents  No.

New regulations concerning the allocation of assets of insurance companies are consistent with prudent person principle resulting from the implementation of the Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II) and prudent person principle is provided in Art. 132 of this directive. The main principles are: (1) With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. (2) All assets, in particular those covering the Minimum Capital Requirement and the Solvency Capital Requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. (3) Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. With respect to assets other than assets held in respect of life insurance contracts where the investment risk is borne by the policy holders:

(1) the use of derivative instruments must be possible insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management,

(2) investment and assets which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market must be kept to prudent levels, (3) assets must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of undertakings, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole,

(4) Investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance undertakings to excessive risk concentration.

The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that undertakings can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to possess the risk-management system. According to Article 57 of Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, the risk-management system must cover investments, in particular derivatives. The requirements concerning the risk-management system are laid down in Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, which implements appropriate regulations of Solvency II Directive. When undertakings have a material investment in other currencies, the insurance company must properly identify and manage the currency risk. Furthermore, the currency risk is taking into account when the undertakings calculate solvency capital requirement. In short, the higher the currency risk exposure, the more the solvency capital requirement.

No.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Yes.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)
Yes.

Pursuant to Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51), Portugal implements UNSC resolutions (UNSCRs) that approve restrictive measures (related to freezing of funds and other economic resources) directly and immediately by way of Article 8(3) of the Constitution of the Portuguese Republic and Law No. 97/2017, and does so for the preservation of international security.

As a full-fledged member of the EU, Portugal also benefits from decisions and regulations of the Council of the EU implementing UNSCRs that approve restrictive measures related to freezing of funds and other economic resources, as well as imposing restrictive measures of EU initiative.

Portugal has all of the rights and obligations stemming from its membership at the EU. Therefore, all directly applicable EU legislation applies in Portugal including all decisions adopted in the framework of the CFSP and all regulations based on Article 215 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU. Details on these restrictive measures are available on the following websites:

eeas.europa.eu/topics/sanctions-policy/423/sanctions-policy_en and data.europa.eu/euodp/pt/data/dataset/consolidated-list-of-persons-groups-and-entities-subject-to-eu-financial-sanctions/resource/3a1d5dd6-244e-4118-82d3-db3be0554112. Exchange measures in accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) were notified to the IMF effective July 30, 2019.

Free floating

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Portugal participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rates against the euro are the average of the buying and selling rates. The exchange rates against the euro published by the ECB are released for reference purposes only.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)  Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade  No.
On external trade  Yes.
In accordance with EU legal acts, there is a ban on trade in gold, precious metals, and diamonds with the government of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK) (as of May 2016, as amended) and Syrian public agencies (as of June 2013, as amended).

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes  No.
In accordance with EC Regulation No. 1889/2005 and Decree-Law No. 61/2007 of March 14, 2007, there is a mandatory declaration system for cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU.

The obligations to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders. According to Decree-Law No. 61/2007 of March 14, 2007, when required by the Portuguese customs authorities, a similar declaration must be presented when cash is transported within the EU.
European Cash Declaration Form is used for declaration. The form allows the identification of a person or legal entity by its tax ID number. In accordance with EC regulations, there is a ban on the provision of new DPRK banknotes and coins to or for the benefit of the CB of the DPRK (as of May 2016, as amended), and a ban on the provision of new Syrian banknotes and coins (as of June 2013, as amended).

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions
Yes.

Regulation (EU) No. 2015/847 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 May 2015 (amended by Regulation (EU) 2019/2175 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of 18 December 2019), on Information Accompanying Transfers of Funds entails the prohibition of initiating wire transfers without complete information. Some capital movements and transactions may be subject to restrictions adopted in the framework of the EU CFSP, specifically decisions and regulations of the Council of the EU implementing the UNSCRs that approve restrictive measures related to freezing of funds and other economic resources, as well as imposing restrictive measures of EU initiative.

Repatriation requirements
No.

Surrender requirements
No.

Surrender to the central bank
No.

Surrender to authorized dealers
No.

Controls on capital and money market instruments
Yes.

On capital market securities
No.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature
No.

Purchase locally by nonresidents
No.

There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public by the buyer of shares or other securities of a participating nature when such purchases occur through a public takeover bid. Such public offers are subject to (1) prior registration with the Portuguese Securities Markets Commission (Comissão do Mercado de Valores Mobiliários—CMVM), pursuant to Article 114 of the Securities Code; and (2) prior publication of the respective prospectus (Article 134 of the Securities Code). Qualifying holdings in listed companies are subject to disclosure based on the EU Transparency Directive: Articles 16 et seq. of the Securities Code lay down the framework for disclosure triggered by a ladder of holding thresholds. Prospectuses approved by the appropriate authority of another EU country, pertaining to public offerings of takeover bids of shares admitted to trading in Portugal, are recognized by the CMVM, subject to translation into Portuguese and provided the CMVM receives the necessary documentation (Article 147-A of the Securities Code).

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents
No.

There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public by the issuers of shares or other securities of a participating nature. When securities of less than €100,000 in nominal value (or subscription price as applicable) are offered to the public in Portugal, a prospectus is required and subject to approval by the CMVM and to public disclosure by the offeror (Articles 108, 111, 114, and 134 of the Securities Code). If the issuer is registered in another EU country, or if the securities were or are to be admitted to trading in a regulated market in another EU country, the approval of the prospectus may be the responsibility of that country’s authority, if that is the choice of the issuer or of the offeror (Article 145 of the Security Code). A prospectus approved by the appropriate authority of an EU Member State is valid in Portugal if the CMVM receives the necessary documentation (Article 146 of the Securities Code)—the prospectus in English, the Portuguese translation of the summary, and the documents’ certificate of approval. The CMVM may approve prospectuses of an issuer from a non-EU country if they are drawn up according to international standards of organizations of securities supervisory authorities—namely the International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO)—and contain information required under the Securities Code and the Prospectus Regulation (Article 147 of the Securities Code).

Purchase abroad by residents

No.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No. There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public. Sales or issues of shares or other securities of a participating nature through a public offering launched simultaneously in Portugal and abroad require the prior publication of a prospectus (Article 134 of the Securities Code), which must be approved by the CMVM (Article 145, Subparagraph 1, of the Securities Code). If the sale or issue occurs through a public offering launched only abroad, the CMVM has no authority to control such offers, but may be consulted by the foreign authorities.

Bonds or other debt securities

No.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No. There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public to support the buying decisions of resident and nonresident investors before bonds and other debt securities are offered to the public. A prospectus must be published and be subject to approval by the CMVM (Article 114 of the Securities Code).

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

No. There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public before bonds and other debt securities are offered to the public. When securities of less than €100,000 in nominal value (or subscription price as applicable) are offered to the public in Portugal, a prospectus is required and is subject to approval by the CMVM and to public disclosure by the offeror, pursuant to Articles 108, 111, 114, and 134 of the Securities Code. If the issuer is registered in another EU country or if the securities were or are to be admitted to trading in a regulated market, the approval of the prospectus may be the responsibility of that country’s authority, if that is the choice of the issuer or of the offeror (Article 145 of the Security Code). A prospectus approved by the appropriate authority of an EU country is valid in Portugal as long as the CMVM receives the necessary documentation (Article 146 of the Securities Code)—the prospectus in English, the Portuguese translation of the summary, and the certificate of approval of such documents. The CMVM may also approve prospectuses of an issuer from a non-EU country, provided they are drawn up in accordance with international standards set by international organizations of securities supervisory authorities—namely IOSCO—and contain information required under the Securities Code and the Prospectus Regulation (Article 147 of the Securities Code).

Purchase abroad by residents

No.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No. There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public. Sales or issues of debt securities through a public offering launched simultaneously in Portugal and abroad require the prior publication of a prospectus (Article 134 of the Securities Code), which must be approved by the CMVM (Article 145, Subparagraph 1, of the Securities Code). If the sale or issue occurs through a public offering launched only abroad, the CMVM has no authority to control such offers, but may be consulted by the foreign authorities.
There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public. Pursuant to Article 12(2) of Decree-Law No. 69/2004 of March 25, 2004, before commercial paper is offered to residents, the issuer must prepare an information document for CMVM approval. Furthermore, according to Article 17(8), issuance of commercial paper for which a prospectus is optional is subject to the same requirements as public offers for which a prospectus is mandatory under the securities law. CMVM Regulation No. 2/2014 of November 4, 2014, provides additional guidance related to the issuance of commercial paper.

Only the marketing and sale of units in foreign alternative investment funds to local retail investors require CMVM authorization. Sale and issuance of units of EU-harmonized funds—UCITS—are allowed, under the national regime resulting from the Directive 2009/65/EC (UCITS Directive), subject to a notification to CMVM from the home country competent authority. Sale and issuance of units of EU alternative investment funds distributed only to professional investors are allowed, under the national regime resulting from the Directive 2011/61/EU (AIFMD), subject to a notification to CMVM from the home country competent authority. Sale and issuance of units of third country alternative investment funds distributed only to professional investors are allowed, subject to CMVM’s authorization and, after the date to be specified on the delegated act to be adopted by the Commission pursuant to Article 67(6) of AIFMD, subject to notification to CMVM by the competent authority. The national regime on UCITS and alternative investment funds is established in the General Framework of Collective Investment Schemes. Venture capital, social entrepreneurship, and specialized investment funds follow the regime established in the General Framework of Collective Investment Schemes (according to Article 65 of the Legal Framework of Venture Capital, Social Entrepreneurship, and Specialized Alternative Investment).
their marketing, distribution, or sale to retail investors was prohibited throughout the territory of the EU, following temporary decisions by the European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA). Such restrictions were implemented as permanent measures in Portugal by the Regulation CMVM No. 5/2019, in force effective July 3, 2019. These prohibitions apply to the marketing, distributing, or selling the specific types of financial instruments either by Portuguese firms to resident and to nonresident retail investors and by non-Portuguese firms to resident retail investors. Apart from these special cases related to the information required to be disclosed to the buyer and to the high level of risk that makes the financial instrument not adequate to retail investors, the transactions of derivative instruments can generally be undertaken.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

- Insurance companies
  - Yes.

  Nondiscriminatory prudential rules apply to foreign insurance companies (non-EEA) in the following situations: (1) setting up a subsidiary, which requires approval by the Portuguese Insurance and Pension Funds Supervisory Authority (Autoridade de Supervisão de Seguros e Fundos de Pensões—ASF); (2) forming a branch requires ASF approval; (3) acquisition of an insurance supplier already established in the host country, which requires ASF approval; and (4) acquisition of qualifying holdings in insurance companies.

- Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents
  - No.

- Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad
  - Yes.

  Restrictions apply to the acquisition of assets located outside Portugal if the asset in question is to cover part of the minimum capital requirement of a local branch of a non-EU insurance company or to the acquisition of assets located outside the EU for assets exceeding the minimum capital requirement.

- Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally
  - No.

- Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition
  - Yes.

  The currency-matching requirement for insurance companies is 80%, not including assets covered by adequate methodologies of exchange rate coverage.

- Pension funds
  - Yes.

  Pension funds may be managed either by entities set up specifically for this purpose or designated as pension fund management companies or by insurance companies that are part of the “life assurance” class and are established in Portugal. The establishment of pension fund management companies is subject to ASF authorization.

Exchange tax No.
Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes.
Spot exchange market Yes. Exchange rates of commercial banks for transactions in US dollars are based on the buying and selling rates of the QCB. The buying and selling rates of commercial banks for other currencies are based on the QCB’s rates for the US dollar and on the market rates for the other currency against the US dollar. A spread of QR 0.0085 is applied to exchange transactions with the public. Thirty-seven institutions are licensed by the QCB to deal in foreign exchange with the public. These institutions consist of 17 commercial banks and 20 foreign exchange bureaus, which are allowed to operate subject to licensing by the QCB. Foreign exchange bureaus do not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the QCB, but they may maintain accounts abroad. Their operations are not limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; they may also make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.
Commercial banks trade US dollars domestically based on the price determined by the QCB, plus a margin of 0.24% when dealing with the public. Commercial banks trade other currencies based on the QCB-determined exchange rates of riyals against US dollars and market-determined rates of other currency against the US dollar. Commercial banks have a margin of 0.24% for US dollar trades and trade other currencies through the US dollar.

Operated by the central bank Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The QCB buys and sells foreign currency at the announced rates every business day from 8:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., unless it decides otherwise. The QCB purchases US dollars at a fixed rate of QR 3.6385 and sells US dollars at a fixed rate of QR 3.6415 to banks in Qatar. The QCB does not deal directly either with the government or with other public entities.

Banks are allowed to trade foreign exchange among themselves. All commercial banks (17) participate in the interbank market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants.

The interbank foreign exchange market is based on a market-making agreement.

In the commercial banking sector, importers may purchase foreign exchange in the forward market. However, the QCB does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices No. No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2019.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons Yes. In accordance with UNSC Resolution Nos. 1267 (1999), 1333 (2000), 1373 (2001), and 1988 (2011), certain restrictions are maintained against the listed terrorists and the Taliban, aimed at freezing their accounts and banning all payments to persons and organizations related to terrorism.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) Yes. In accordance with UNSC Resolution Nos. 1267 (1999), 1333 (2000), 1373 (2001), and 1988 (2011), certain restrictions are maintained against the listed terrorists and the Taliban, aimed at freezing their accounts and banning all payments to persons and organizations related to terrorism.

Other security restrictions Yes. Measures have been taken to freeze the accounts and assets of listed individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism, and for safety reasons such as nonproliferation of weapons of mass destruction (that is, UNSC Resolution No. 1540 (2004)). These measures were taken in accordance with UNSC resolutions, updated by the 14 committees empowered (the activity of three committees being terminated as a result of lifting the related restrictions). In accordance with UNSC Resolution No. 1989 (2011), certain restrictions are maintained against the listed terrorists and the Taliban, aimed at freezing their accounts and banning all payments to persons and organizations related to terrorism.

Classification

No separate legal tender

Currency board

Conventional peg
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating; the exchange rate of the leu is determined in the interbank foreign exchange market. The National Bank of Romania (NBR) may intervene to smooth excessive exchange rate fluctuations. There is no formal definition of excessive exchange rate fluctuations: the assessment is based on domestic and international market circumstances and on prevailing macroeconomic conditions. The NBR intervenes either directly with market participants at their quoted rates or via market makers. The NBR does not publish information on its interventions.

From August 2019, the leu followed a depreciating trend within a narrow 2% band against the euro. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from stabilized, effective August 23, 2019. The de facto methodology for classification of exchange rate regimes is based on a backward-looking statistical approach that relies on past exchange rate movement and historical data. Therefore, this reclassification does not imply statements or views on future or intended policies nor does it imply a policy commitment on the part of the country authorities.

The NBR quotes rates for 30 foreign currencies and the SDR. The exchange rates are based on the quotes of 10 local banks licensed to perform foreign exchange transactions. These banks are selected by the NBR, taking into consideration their participation in the interbank foreign exchange market. The use of exchange rates listed by the NBR is not compulsory for foreign exchange transactions and accounting records.
The inflation target is set by the CB in consultation with the government. Within the NBR, the inflation target is adopted through a decision of the NBR Board.

Flat multi-annual inflation target of 2.5%±1 percentage point is adopted.

The flat multi-annual inflation target is defined in terms of the annual change in the consumer price index (that is, year-on-year (y-o-y) headline inflation). The consumer price index is based on the national definition.

Flat multi-annual inflation target is adopted.

As of August 6, 2020 the policy rate is 1.5%. The monetary policy interest rate is the interest rate on NBR’s main open-market operations, which normally have a maturity of one week.

The interest rates on the NBR’s standing facilities, that is, the deposit facility and the lending facility, were set at ±0.50 percentage points around the monetary policy rate as from March 23, 2020, when the amplitude of the interest rate corridor was narrowed from ±1.00 percentage points. As of August 6, 2020, these interest rates stood at 0.5% (deposit facility) and 2.0% (lending facility).

According to NBR’s Statute (Article 35(4)), on behalf of the Board, the governor must submit to the parliament, until June 30 of the following year, the NBR’s annual report, which covers the NBR’s activities, annual financial statements, and the auditor’s report, subject to debate, but not voted in the joint session of the two Chambers of parliament.

NBR’s monetary policy decisions are communicated and explained to the public via: press releases, press briefings following the decisions, inflation reports (presented in detail in press conferences), publication of minutes, and annual reports.

Starting with the NBR Board meeting of September 30, 2016, the account (minutes) of discussions underlying monetary policy decisions are published in the “Monetary Policy” section on the NBR website within seven calendar days after each Board meeting dedicated to monetary policy issues. The aim is to provide the general public with the rationale and economic data behind monetary policy decisions. The minutes include the outcome of the vote and the voting results are not attributed.

Publication of inflation forecasts
Yes. In the context of the inflation-targeting framework, the NBR updates and publishes its medium-term inflation forecast on a quarterly basis within the inflation report.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax
No.

Exchange subsidy
No.

Foreign exchange market
Yes. Residents and nonresidents are allowed access to the foreign exchange market without supporting documents. Juridical persons other than authorized credit institutions may purchase or sell foreign exchange through intermediaries. Individual persons may purchase or sell foreign currency either through intermediaries or through foreign exchange offices authorized by the MPF, except those supervised by the NBR. Commercial banks and exchange bureaus are free to set both their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients. Article 26 Paragraph (1) (b) and article 30 paragraph (1) of Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the Modification and Completion of Some Normative Acts, which repeals the Law No. 656/2002 on the Prevention and Sanctioning of Money Laundering and on Measures for Preventing and Combating Terrorism Financing, subsequently amended and supplemented.

www.onpcesb.ro/pdf/nlpcsb.PDF designates the National Agency for Fiscal Administration (NAFA) for anti-money laundering and combating the financing of terrorism (AML/CFT) licensing and supervision of specialized foreign exchange entities, except those supervised by the NBR. According to the provisions of art 30 para(3) of Law no.129/2019 the structure of the supervisory committee, and includes at least members representing the MPF (legal and tax structures, legislative regulation structure), National Office for the Prevention and Control of Money Laundering, and law enforcement, Consumer Protection Authority and Ministry of Internal Affairs.

Spot exchange market
Yes. Foreign exchange offices conduct transactions with foreign currency banknotes and accept traveler’s checks denominated in those currencies. They may also conduct transactions with foreign currencies that are not quoted. Licensing and control of foreign exchange offices/bureaus are performed by the MPF. Foreign exchange offices are not allowed to perform payments and transfers on behalf of their clients, because the payment services may only be legally performed in Romania by credit institutions, payment institutions, and electronic money institutions. Foreign exchange offices may maintain accounts abroad.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes No.
NBR regulations (NBR Regulation No. 4/2005 on the Foreign Exchange Regime) do not stipulate controls on exports and imports of banknotes, but in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1762/2018, cash controls require mandatory declaration of cash entering or leaving the EU equivalent to €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying cash of a value equivalent to €10,000 or more must make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. Thus, in accordance with the requirements to declare cash under Regulation (EC) No. 1762/2018, controls of cash entering or leaving the Community and based on the Article 7 Paragraph 6 of Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the Modification and Completion of Some Normative Acts, which repeals the Law No. 656/2002 on the Prevention and Sanctioning of Money Laundering and on Measures for Preventing and Combating Terrorism Financing subsequently amended and supplemented, the NAFA is required to communicate to the NOPCML (financial intelligence unit Romania), on a monthly basis, all the information it holds regarding declarations by natural persons of cash in domestic or foreign currency equal to or above the limit in Regulation (EC) No. 1762/2018. In addition, Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the Modification and Completion of Some Normative Acts, which repeals the Law No. 656/2002 on the Prevention and Sanctioning of Money Laundering and on Measures for Preventing and Combating Terrorism Financing subsequently amended and supplemented to immediately notify the financial intelligence unit of suspicion of money laundering/financing of terrorism (ML/FT). The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries, and the information must be transmitted to the EC. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes. Credit institutions’ accounting reports must conform to International Financial Reporting Standards. Following implementation of International Financial Reporting Standards 9 (IFRS 9), starting by 2018, which has replaced International Accounting Standard 39 Financial Instruments: Recognition and Measurement, a regulation has been issued at European level (Regulation (EU) No. 2017/2395 amending Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 as regards transitional arrangements for mitigating the impact of the introduction of International Financial Reporting Standards 9 on own funds and for the large exposures treatment of certain public sector exposures denominated in the domestic currency of any Member State). Under this regulation, credit institutions were able to choose for a progressive phase-in regime (with a maximum duration of 5 years) to mitigate that potentially significant negative impact on Common Equity Tier 1 capital arising from expected credit loss accounting. The prudential filter regulation (NBR Regulation No. 16/2012 on the Classification of Credits and Investments and the Establishment and Use of Prudential Value Adjustments) was repealed by NBR Regulation No. 1/2018.

In accordance with Regulation (EU) 2020/873 of the European parliament and of the council of June 24, 2020, (amending regulations (EU) no 575/2013 and (EU) 2019/876) as regards certain adjustments in response to the covid-19 pandemic, to mitigate the potential impact that a sudden increase in expected credit loss provisions could have on institutions’ capacity to lend to clients at times when it is most needed, the transitional arrangements should be extended by two years, and institutions should be allowed to fully add back to their Common Equity Tier 1 capital any increase in new expected credit loss provisions that they recognize in 2020 and 2021 for their financial assets that are not credit- impaired. Those changes would bring additional relief from the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on institutions’ possible increase in provisioning needs under IFRS 9 while maintaining the transitional arrangements for the expected credit loss amounts established before the COVID-19 pandemic.

Borrowing abroad No.

Maintenance of accounts abroad No.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) No. NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 (as amended and supplemented) requires that credit institutions have in place policies and processes for the identification, measurement, evaluation, monitoring, reporting, and control or decreasing of country risk and transfer risk. Credit institutions must set limits on country exposures. The credit institution’s management body approves the strategies, processes, and policies on the management of country risk and transfer risk to ensure that these policies and processes are implemented effectively and are fully integrated into the overall risk management of the credit institution.

<tr>
<th>Lending locally in foreign exchange</th>
<th>Yes.</th>
</tr>
</thead>

Capital requirements addressing foreign exchange risk, indirectly affecting local lending in foreign exchange, are included in Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012. This regulation is directly applicable across the EU and supersedes the previous regulation (NBR-NSC Regulation No. 22/27/2006) on capital adequacy of credit institutions and investment firms (repealed with effect from January 1, 2014) which included provisions on capital requirements for foreign exchange risk and foreign exchange position limits. Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk.

There is a different provisioning regime for foreign exchange loans by nonbank financial institutions to unhedged borrowers under NBR Regulation No. 5/2012 on the Classification and the Establishment, Adjustment, and Use of Specific Credit-Risk Provisions relevant to Romanian entities under the supervision of the NBR, other than credit institutions. The provisioning costs for foreign exchange loans to unhedged borrowers are higher than those for local currency lending.

According to NBR Regulation No. 17/2012, subsequently amended and supplemented, creditors must warn unhedged clients of the consequences of exchange rate depreciation on debt obligations and establish the maximum debt levels (debt-to-income ratio, DTI) for consumer loans. Effective January 1, 2019, the NBR Regulation No. 17/2012 provides for an aggregate Debt-service-to-income (DSTI) ceiling of 40% of which the maximum DSTI for loans denominated or indexed in a foreign currency granted to debtors exposed to foreign exchange risk is 20%. The maximum levels of DSTI are increased by 5 percentage points in case of a mortgage loan contracted by the debtor for the purchase of the first residential property to be occupied by the debtor (including Prima Casa loans). The caps on the DSTI have been set including taking into account the impact of the currency risk, the interest rate risk, and the risk of decrease of the eligible income available during the period of the credit life, while the shock factors previously provided within the regulation were eliminated. The regulation provides also for an exemption from the maximum level of the aggregate DSTI, under certain conditions, for up to 15% of the loans granted by a creditor.

LTV ratios apply to foreign currency consumer loans (75%) and for foreign currency credit agreements secured by mortgages as follows: (1) 85% for lei; (2) 75% for euros, for unhedged borrowers; (3) 60% for other foreign currency, for unhedged borrowers; and (4) 80% for foreign currency credit, for hedged borrowers. Following the entry into force of the Capital Requirements Directive (CRD) IV package in 2014, the requirements for credit institutions were incorporated into NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions.

Minimum reserve requirement ratios can differ according to the currency and residual maturity involved. The minimum reserve requirement ratio on leu-denominated liabilities of credit institutions is 8%. The minimum reserve requirement ratio on foreign-currency-denominated liabilities was reduced in two steps during 2016, from 14% to 10% (to 12% from 14%, as from January 24, 2016, and to 10% from 12%, as from October 24, 2016), then to 8% in 2017 (from May 24, 2017) and to 6% in 2020 (effective February 24, 2020). The minimum reserve ratio on leu- and foreign-currency-denominated liabilities with a residual maturity of over two years without early withdrawal, transfer, or repayment clauses is zero.

Following the entry into force of the CRD IV package, all its requirements for credit institutions were incorporated into NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions. According to the amended regulation, for qualifying holdings (direct or indirect holdings in an enterprise that represent 10% or more of the capital or of the voting rights or that make it possible to exercise significant influence over the management, except financial sector entities or enterprises deemed by the relevant authority to be engaged in the following: (1) direct extension of banking; (2) activities ancillary to banking; and (3) leasing, factoring, management of unit trusts, management of data processing services, or similar activity) for the purpose of calculating the capital requirement, Romanian credit institutions must apply a risk weight of 1.250% to the greater of the following: (1) the amount of qualifying holdings in excess of 15% of eligible capital; or (2) the total amount of qualifying holdings that exceed 60% of the eligible capital of the institution (NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and Regulation No. 575 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 (Capital Requirements Regulation)). Total investments outside the financial sector may not exceed 60% of a bank’s own capital (Regulation No. 575 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 (Capital Requirements Regulation)). Banks may not acquire shares in a nonfinancial entity, either resident or nonresident, if that results in control over that entity. In addition, NBR approval is needed if a bank intends to acquire a qualifying holding in a financial entity outside the EU, if this entity will be included in the scope of the bank’s prudential consolidation (Government Emergency Ordinance No. 99/2006).
Regarding Credit Institutions and Capital Adequacy, approved by Law No. 227/2007, as amended.

In banks by nonresidents Yes. Advance NBR notification is required for investments by residents or nonresidents of 10% or more in a bank’s capital. The NBR may oppose the acquisition within (generally) 60 working days of notification.

Open foreign exchange position limits Yes. Foreign exchange risk capital requirements are included in Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012. This regulation is directly applicable across the EU and supersedes the previous (NBR-NSC Regulation No. 22/27/2006) on capital adequacy of credit institutions and investment firms (repealed with effect from January 1, 2014) which included provisions on capital requirements for foreign exchange risk and foreign exchange position limits. Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes.

On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Insurance companies Yes. Insurance/reinsurance companies are licensed and supervised under the Law No. 237/2015 on the authorization and supervision of the business of insurance and reinsurance, which transposes the European Union Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II), with subsequent completions. The regulatory framework is completed by the European Commission’s Regulations (Commission Delegated Regulation 2015/35 and all the other Regulations laying down implementing/regulatory technical standards with regard to different area of the Directive), which are binding in their entirety and directly applicable in all Member States, and by the secondary legislation issued by the Romanian FSA to implement the European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority (EIOPA) Guidelines or to regulate other aspects not covered by the legislative acts previously mentioned. Solvency II is a risk-based supervision regime, imposing for the insurance/reinsurance companies to determine their solvency capital requirements (SCR) and minimum capital requirements (MCR) depending on the risks associated to their businesses, using the standard formula provided by the Directive or their own internal models approved by the FSA, and to cover them with eligible own funds. The regulatory framework establishes detailed rules for insurance/reinsurance companies related to their system of governance, classification of own funds in three tiers, eligibility criteria of own funds for covering of SCR, methodologies to calculate technical provisions, etc. The Solvency II regime does not apply to specific insurance companies which fulfill certain conditions (such as gross written premiums under €5 million, technical reserves under €25 million, locally business only, non-underwriting of liability, credit and suretyship risks, etc.). For this category of insurance companies, member states are allowed to impose their own licensing and supervision conditions. In Romania, for this category of insurance companies, the FSA decided to maintain the former supervision regime, with some improvements mainly related to the qualitative requirements (such as those related to system of governance, public disclosure, etc.). Consequently, for... the insurance companies falling out the scope of Solvency II regime, there are no significant changes in legal requirements related to available and minimum solvency margin, minimum guarantee fund, methodology to calculate the technical reserves, assets admitted to cover the technical reserves and other quantitative requirements) comparing to those applicable before January 1, 2016, the former provisions being included in the Regulation No. 28/2015 on the operation of supervised insurers in accordance with the national regime. According to Article 24, the categories of assets admitted to cover the technical reserves are: (1) investments: (a) government securities and treasury notes; (b) securities issued by local public administration authorities; (c) bonds and other money and capital market instruments, similar therewith, traded on a supervised market; (d) shares and other variable yield securities, similar therewith, traded on a supervised market; (e) units in UCITS and other investment funds; (f) deposits and current accounts with credit institutions; (g) land and buildings owned by the insurers, except for agricultural land and land located outside the built-up area of localities; (2) receivables: (a) receivables with contractors and intermediaries resulting from direct insurance operations and acceptances in reinsurance; (b) the part of the technical reserves related to contracts ceded in reinsurance, except for the contracts ceded to captive insurers and reinsurers and which do not have a rating granted by at least one of the rating agencies registered or certified according to Regulation (EC) No. 1060/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council of September 16, 2009, on credit rating agencies; (c) interest receivable related to the assets admitted to cover the gross technical reserves; (3) other assets: (a) acquisition costs carried forward; (b) available cash. The rules for the diversification of the admitted assets are established in Article 26 as follows: (1) The insurers may invest maximum: (a) 50% of the gross technical reserves in shares, bonds, and other capital market instruments traded on a regulated and supervised market, as well as units with UCITS and other investment funds in compliance with the provisions of Letter b); (b) 5% of the gross technical reserves in shares and other negotiable securities treated as shares, bonds, debt securities, and other money or capital market instruments, as well as units with UCITS and other investment funds issued by the same entity; (c) 20% of the gross technical reserves in land and buildings, in compliance with the provisions of Letter d) and of Article 24(4); (d) 10% of the gross technical reserves in one land or building or in a number of plots of land or buildings sufficiently closely located so as to be considered a single investment; (e) 90% of the gross technical reserves in deposits and available funds with credit institutions, but not more than 20% of the gross technical reserves in a single credit institution; (f) 3% of the gross technical reserves in cash; (g) 5% of the part of the technical reserves related to the contracts ceded in reinsurance to insurers/reinsurers that do not have a rating granted by at least one of the rating agencies registered or certified according to Regulation (EC) No. 1060/2009. (2) In the case of the categories of assets admitted to cover the gross technical reserves, other than those referred to in Paragraph (1), for which no maximum limits were provided, when investing them, the insurers must comply with the following rules: (a) the assets covering the gross technical reserves must be diversified so that there is no excessive use of a certain category of assets, of an investment market, or of an investment; (b) the investments in certain types of assets posing a high risk either because of the nature of the asset or because of the status of the issuer must be limited to a prudential level; (c) the limits of certain categories of assets must have regard to the treatment of reinsurances in the calculation of the technical reserves; (d) if the assets held represent an investment in a subsidiary that manages in full or in part the insurers’ investments in their name, when applying the provisions of Article 23 (6), Articles 24–26 hereof, and those regarding the categories of gross technical reserves for the insurers pursuing life insurance business provided by the FSA regulations, they must take into account the subsidiary’s assets, the treatment of the assets of other subsidiaries of the insurers being similar.

With the implementation of the Solvency II regime, there are no investment restrictions. The insurance/reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle (in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report; all assets, in particular those covering the MCR and the SCR, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability). The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that undertakings can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The requirements of Solvency II and of the Commission Delegated Regulation No. 2015/35 cover extensively some of the main aspects of the prudent person principle, such as asset-liability management, investment in derivatives, liquidity risk management, and concentration risk management. For the insurance companies falling out the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Regulation No. 28/2015 provides that the assets that cover gross technical provisions must be placed in Romania. These insurers may invest gross technical provisions in (1) government bonds and treasury bills; (2) debt securities, bonds, and other money and capital market instruments traded in supervised markets; (3) shares and other variable yield participations traded in supervised markets; and (4) units in UCITS and other investment funds.

With the implementation of the Solvency II regime, there are no investment restrictions. The insurance/reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle (in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report; all assets, in particular those covering the MCR and the SCR, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability).

Investment risk management policy – Rule No. 35/2015:
In its risk management policy, the undertaking should cover at least the following information with regard to investments:
(1) the level of security, quality, liquidity, and profitability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this;
(2) its quantitative limits on assets and exposures, including off-balance-sheet exposures, that are to be established to help to ensure the undertaking achieves its desired level of security, quality, liquidity, profitability, and availability for the portfolio;
(3) the level of availability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this;
(4) consideration of the financial market environment; (5) the conditions under which the undertaking can pledge or lend assets;
(6) the link between market risk and other risks in adverse scenarios;
(7) the procedure for appropriately valuing and verifying the investment assets;
(8) the procedures to monitor the performance of the investments and review the policy when necessary;
(9) how the assets are to be selected in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries.

For the insurance companies falling out of the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Regulation No. 28/2015 provides that the assets that cover gross technical provisions must be placed in Romania. These insurers may invest gross technical provisions in (1) government bonds and treasury bills; (2) debt securities, bonds, and other money and capital market instruments traded in supervised markets; (3) shares and other variable yield participations traded in supervised markets; and (4) units in UCITS and other investment funds.

With the implementation of Solvency II, for firms falling under the Solvency II regime, there are no investment restrictions. The insurance/reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle (in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report; all assets, in particular those covering the MCR and the SCR, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability). Investment risk management policy – Rule No. 35/2015:

In its risk management policy, the undertaking should cover at least the following information with regard to investments:

(1) the level of security, quality, liquidity, and profitability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this;

(2) its quantitative limits on assets and exposures, including off-balance-sheet exposures, that are to be established to help to ensure the undertaking achieves its desired level of security, quality, liquidity, profitability, and availability for the portfolio;

(3) the level of availability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this;

(4) consideration of the financial market environment;

(5) the conditions under which the undertaking can pledge or lend assets;

(6) the link between market risk and other risks in adverse scenarios;

(7) the procedure for appropriately valuing and verifying the investment assets;

(8) the procedures to monitor the performance of the investments and review the policy when necessary;

(9) how the assets are to be selected in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries.

For the insurance companies falling out of the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Regulation No. 28/2015 provides the following maximum limits of the investments covering gross technical provisions: (1) 50% in shares, bonds, and other instruments traded in a regulated and supervised capital market and in debt securities in companies for collective investment in securities, according to the provisions of point (2); (2) 5% in shares and other negotiable securities treated as shares, bonds, debt certificates, and other money and capital market instruments and in debt securities in companies for collective investment in securities issued by the same company; (3) 20% in land and buildings (agricultural land and land outside built-up areas may not cover technical provisions); (4) 10% in a single land or building investment or in multiple land and building investments close enough together to be considered one investment; and (5) 90% in deposits and accounts in credit institutions, with no more than 20% of the gross technical provisions in a single credit institution. The above maximum limits apply to the total value of the technical gross provisions and are similar for life and non-life.
activity. For both non-life-insurance and life insurance activity, the assets covering the technical provisions must be evaluated on a prudential basis, taking into account the minimum between the book value and the market value. If a certain asset does not have rules regarding maximum limits, the FSA may restrict the use of that asset.

With the implementation of Solvency II regime, there are no currency-matching rules. For the insurance companies falling out of the scope of Solvency II regime, Article 28 of the FSA Regulation No. 28/2015 provides matching rules for assets covering technical provisions as follows: (1) The insurers must comply with the principle of matching assets, which refers to the coverage of the obligations subscribed in a certain currency with assets expressed or realizable in the same currency. (2) The insurers' obligations are deemed to be paid in the currency in which the commitments in the contract were expressed. (3) If the insurers' obligations provided in the contract are not expressed in a certain currency, the insurers' commitments are deemed to be payable in Romanian leu. (4) By way of exception from Paragraph (3), the insurers may opt for the currency in which the premiums are collected if there is an adequate framework for adopting such a solution; this is possible if, starting from the entry into force of the contract, it is likely that a claim is paid in the currency in which the premium is collected, and not in Romanian leu. (5) If the insurers reported a claim that may be paid in a currency other than that resulting from the implementation of the procedures mentioned in this article, the insurers’ commitments must be paid in that currency and, particularly, in the currency established by the court of law or by a settlement concluded between the insurer and the contractor. (6) If a claim is requested which is expressed in a currency known in advance by the insurers but which is different from the currency resulting from the implementation of the procedures mentioned in this article, the insurers’ commitments may be paid in that currency. (7) The insurers may choose not to cover the technical reserves with matching assets if the implementation of the procedures provided by this article results in their obligation to keep the assets in a currency not exceeding 7% of the assets expressed in other currency, to comply with the principle of matching assets. (8) If the commitments may be paid in a currency of a third country, if the investments in such currency are regulated, if the currency is subject to transfer restrictions or if, for similar reasons, the currency is not appropriate to cover technical reserves, the insurers do not have the obligation to comply with the principle of matching assets. (9) The insurers may hold assets that are not matching to cover an amount not exceeding 20% of their obligations in a certain currency.

Pension funds

Yes.

Pension funds are governed by Law No. 411/2004 regarding privately administered pension funds, recast as amended, Law No. 204/2006 on voluntary pension funds, as amended and Law no 1/2004 on occupational pension. The Private Pensions Guarantee Fund was established under Law No. 187/2011 to guarantee the rights of members and beneficiaries of the private pension system. Annual contributions that private pension funds’ management companies make to the Private Pensions Guarantee Fund are computed based on provisions of Norm No. 2/2013. As a first measure for guaranteeing the rights of members and beneficiaries, privately administered pension fund management companies are required to establish a technical provision based on the provisions of Norm No. 13/2012 and voluntary pension fund management companies are required to establish a technical provision based on the provisions of Norm No. 26/2015. The market regulator is The FSA – The Private Pensions Sector, formerly known as the Private Pension System Supervisory Commission.
Yes. Laws and other regulations do not set different limits on securities issued by residents and nonresidents from the EU or the EEA. Some regulations refer to specific securities issued by countries that are not EU or EEA members traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, and EEA countries. There are general rules for portfolio diversification established by the primary law provisions (Article 25 of Law No. 411/2004 and Article 87 of Law No. 204/2006 and Article 98 of Law No. 1/2020) and secondary legislation (Norm No. 11/2011 on the investment and evaluation of private pension fund assets, as amended and Norm No. 16/2020 on the investment of occupational pension funds). Regarding the Norm No. 11/2011 the assets of pension funds may be invested in (1) money market instruments up to 20% with the following sublimits: (a) current accounts in lei or foreign currency in banks authorized to operate in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 5%; (b) bank deposits in lei or foreign currency in banks authorized to operate in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 20%; (c) treasury bills traded on regulated markets or on a secondary market in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 20%; (d) reverse repo agreements with credit institution counterparties up to 5%; (2) government bonds (including treasury bills designated in (1) (c)) issued by the MPF, EU members, or EEA countries up to 70%; (3) municipal bonds and other securities issued by local authorities in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries and traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 30%; (4) securities traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 50% with the following sublimits: (a) shares and rights traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 50%; (b) corporate bonds, except those that embed derivatives up to 30%; (5) government bonds issued by countries that are not EU or EEA members, traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 15%; (6) municipal bonds and other securities issued by local authorities of countries that are not EU or EEA members, traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 10%; (7) bonds issued by the World Bank, EBRD, and EIB and traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 15%; (8) bonds issued by foreign nongovernmental institutions, except as indicated in (7) traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 5%; (9) UCITS including exchange-traded funds in Romania or EU members up to 5%; and (10) exchange-traded commodities and non-UCITS traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 3%. In addition, effective September 19, 2019 Emergency Government Ordinance No. 38/2019 introduced the possibility for the assets of privately administered pension funds to be invested: (1) in shares and bonds of public private partnerships issued in accordance with Emergency Government Ordinance No. 39/2018 regarding public private partnerships or in infrastructure investment funds up to 15%; (2) financial instruments traded on regulated markets and issued by real estate investment funds or companies undertaking real estate activities such as real estate development or marketing, purchasing and selling own real estate, letting and sub-letting activities, and facility management up to 3%; (3) private equity shares or bonds issued by companies in Romania, EU members or EEA countries or units issued by private equity funds from EU members or EEA countries up to 10%.

Effective May 14, 2020, regarding the Norm No 16/2020 on the investment of occupational pension funds, the asset of pension funds may be invested in:

1. current accounts in lei or foreign currency in banks authorized to operate in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 20%;

The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are free floating. Under this arrangement, the exchange rate of the ruble is determined by market factors. Following the transition to the free floating exchange rate arrangement, the Central Bank of the Russian Federation (BR) retained the ability to intervene in the domestic foreign exchange market in the event of threats to financial stability.

In 2019, the main impact on the exchange rate was from operations by foreign investors related to:
- an easing of monetary policy in developed countries and a corresponding increase in the attractiveness of currencies of emerging-market countries for carry trade transactions;
- an improvement in the mood among investors with regard to the trade conflict between the United States and China and growth in demand for risk assets in global markets;
- and also an easing of monetary policy in Russia and an increase in the attractiveness of investments in federal loan bonds.

In 2020, the dynamics of the ruble’s exchange rate have been determined by capital flight from developing markets because of the coronavirus pandemic, the decline in oil prices in March–April, and an inflow of capital as financial markets stabilized.

Since 2017, the MOF implemented a mechanism for foreign exchange purchases and sales to enhance the stability and predictability of local economic conditions and to reduce the impact of price volatility in the global energy market on Russia’s economy and public finance (fiscal rule). Sales and purchases of foreign exchange by the MOF through the BR depend on the difference in the projected and actual amount of oil and gas revenue in the federal budget. The projected revenue is calculated using separate benchmark prices for oil and gas, respectively. As long as the actual oil and gas revenue exceeds the amount projected, the MOF purchases foreign exchange through the BR equal to the amount of additional oil and gas revenues. If the actual oil and gas revenue drops below the projected level, the MOF sells foreign exchange equal to the amount of the resulting shortfall in oil and gas revenue. A benchmark Urals oil price of US$40/bbl (in real 2017 terms, adjusted for US inflation) is used in this framework. The size of these operations is announced at the start of every month and purchases/sales are evenly distributed within the month. From mid-August to end-2018, the BR suspended the purchase of foreign exchange under the fiscal rule with the aim of limiting exchange rate volatility and associated risks to financial stability. On December 14, 2018, the BR Board of Directors decided to resume foreign exchange purchases starting from January 15, 2019. It was announced that deferred purchases could be performed gradually throughout 2019 and subsequent years. (These purchases began on February 1, 2019, and it is assumed that they will be carried out regularly over 36 months.)

On February 11, 2020, the BR announced that the sale of foreign currency in the domestic market, which the BR will receive from the National Wealth Fund (NWF) in connection with the purchase of Sberbank shares using the NWF’s resources, will progress evenly over three to seven years after the transaction is closed. The BR... would announce the rule-based daily volume of foreign currency sales in the domestic market associated with this transaction and the start date of these sales after determining the value and date of the transaction to acquire Sberbank shares using the NWF’s resources. The decision to invest a portion of NWF funds in Sberbank shares (Federal Law No. 50-FZ of March 18, 2020, on the Purchase by the Russian Federation Government of Common Shares of the Sberbank of Russia Public Joint-Stock Company from the Central Bank of the Russian Federation and the Repeal of Certain Provisions of Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation) was made by the government in connection with the fact that the volume of the NWF’s liquid funds exceeded 7% of GDP. Effective March 9, 2020, the BR decided to suspend foreign exchange purchases by the fiscal rule for 30 days amid increased financial markets volatility. The decision applied to both regular foreign currency purchases and those postponed in 2018. On March 10, 2020, the BR decided to start proactive foreign currency sales in the domestic market under the fiscal rule taking into account current oil price and its impact on the operations of the NWF in April. These operations will be performed until the start of regular foreign currency sales from the NWF funds related to the Sberbank transaction. Effective March 19, 2020, the BR started open market sales of foreign currency received from the NWF as part of the deal to acquire Sberbank shares. The foreign exchange sales for Sberbank deal were pre-announced on February 11, 2020. The BR calculated the amount of additional sales related to the Sberbank transaction based on full replacement of the shortfall of foreign currency supply in the domestic foreign exchange market because of the decline in proceeds from oil exports, oil products, and natural gas if the price of Urals crude falls below $25/barrel. The daily sales volume of the foreign currency proceeds from the deal will vary depending on the deviation of Urals crude below $25/barrel. Above this level, no operations will be performed. These operations will be performed in addition to standard foreign exchange sales from NWF funds in the domestic market under the fiscal rule. The BR will apply this foreign currency sales mechanism in the domestic market until September 30, 2020.

After the effective period of this mechanism expires and provided the global oil market maintains its current trends in August–September, the BR is going to offset the sales of foreign currency related to the Sberbank deal and the fiscal rule-based foreign currency purchases suspended in 2018 and in March–April 2020, as well as the proactive foreign currency sales carried out under the fiscal rule in March–April.

Information about the frequency and volumes of the BR’s foreign currency interventions is posted on the BR’s website under the “Liquidity of the banking sector and monetary policy instruments” subsection of the “Statistics” section.

Data on operations involving the purchase (sale) of foreign exchange performed by the BR on instructions from the Russian Ministry of Finance are published on the official website of the BR on a daily basis in the Factors Affecting Banking Sector Liquidity table (under the column Operations of the Russian Ministry of Finance Involving the Purchase (Sale) of Foreign Exchange in the Domestic Exchange Market).

The BR establishes official exchange rates for a number of foreign currencies against the ruble. These rates may be used in calculating state budget revenues and expenditures for payments and settlements by state administrative agencies with businesses, organizations, and individuals and for taxation and accounting. Regulation of the use of the official exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble for various purposes, including the areas of their mandatory use, is not within the BR’s purview.

Official exchange rates are set every business day and, effective April 3, 2020, on non-business days announced in the Russian Federation (for example, related to quarantine), with the exception of non-business days that are weekends or official holidays, and take effect the next calendar day. Information on official rates is published on the BR’s website the day they are set and in the next edition of the BR Bulletin. The official rate for each currency applies until the next official rate becomes effective.

The official US dollar–ruble exchange rate is calculated on the basis of quotes for this currency pair in the domestic foreign exchange market. The calculation of official rates for other foreign currencies against the ruble is based on quotes of these currencies against the US dollar in the global market and the official exchange rate of the US dollar and the ruble.

Pursuant to Federal Law No. 86-FZ of July 10, 2002, on the Central Bank of the Russian Federation, the BR licenses credit institutions to handle banking transactions (Paragraph 8 of Article 4). Branches may handle all or some of the banking operations (including purchase and sell foreign exchange cash) that are provided for under the banking license of the credit institution (or the regulation on the branch) and delegated to them. Internal structural subdivisions that purchase and sell foreign exchange cash must also handle other transactions delegated to them by the credit institution.

Operations with foreign exchange cash are performed in accordance with relevant BR regulations. Pursuant to Articles 8.8 and 8.9 of the BR Regulation No. 135-I of April 2, 2010, basic and universal banking licenses allow credit organizations to carry out operations in foreign currency. As of January 1, 2020, the number of credit institutions (other than branches) licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange was 402 banks and 40 nonbank credit institutions.

Foreign exchange swap operations involving the sale of US dollars for rubles may be performed. Interest rates are set at the key rate minus 1.00 percentage point for the ruble side of the transaction and LIBOR +1.50 percentage points a year for the foreign exchange side. Information about the parameters is posted on the BR’s website.

To supply Russian credit institutions with foreign currency, there are 1-week, 28-day, and 12-month repo auctions in US dollars and euros (the possibility of holding 12-month repo auctions was suspended as of April 1, 2016); the BR applies the minimum interest rates on these operations. The spreads with respect to the LIBOR rate for 1-week and 28-day repo operations are 2 percentage points. The BR has not performed the relevant operations since October 2017. Furthermore, the BR does not perform credit auctions in connection with the expiration of the given mechanism on January 1, 2018. The maximum debt of credit institutions to the BR under repo operations in foreign currency in 2019 was set on January 1, 2018, at US$15 billion.

The interbank market operates on the Moscow Exchange Open Joint-Stock Company and over the counter. As of December 31, 2019, 246 credit institutions had foreign currency claims on interbank loans, including repo operations; 114 credit organizations had debts on interbank loans, including repo, in foreign currency; 532 credit organizations had claims on correspondent accounts (nosto) in foreign currency; and 139 credit organizations had liabilities for correspondent accounts (loro) in foreign currency. BR currency interventions are carried out on the basis of the market rate. There are no restrictions on the spread between the exchange rates of buyers and sellers or on the commissions of market participants.
brokers in the foreign exchange market.

There were 13 institutions with market-making status in the foreign exchange market of the MMVB-RTS Moscow Stock Exchange Public Joint-Stock Company as of December 31, 2019: 12 credit institutions, 2 of which are credit institutions registered in the Republic of Belarus and 1 international financial institution (the Eurasian Development Bank).

Forward exchange market

Forward transactions are concluded by authorized banks. Trading in futures contracts is performed in currency exchanges, with most trading concentrated in the Moscow Exchange Open Joint-Stock Company.

The BR does not participate in the domestic currency derivatives market, but it does use swap transactions to provide ruble and foreign exchange liquidity. Under Russian securities market laws, one-day currency swap transactions by the BR are not considered financial derivatives.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. Residents may open foreign exchange accounts with authorized banks without restriction and perform foreign exchange operations on such accounts in accordance with the foreign exchange legislation. Foreign exchange accounts for residents are opened, maintained, and closed following the same procedure as for domestic currency accounts opened by authorized banks on the basis of a bank account or deposit agreement.

Accounts of residents in foreign currency opened with authorized banks may be used for any operations, with the exception of operations in foreign currency between residents that are not listed in Article 9 of Federal Law No. 173-FZ that contains the list of foreign currency operations that are permitted between residents. The provisions of Instruction No. 181-I with regard to a failure to provide an authorized bank with documents related to the performance of operations pertain to residents that have concluded foreign trade agreements with nonresidents, the obligations under which do not exceed 200,000 rubles.

Residents may transfer funds from their accounts (deposits) at authorized banks to their own accounts opened at banks outside Russia without restriction.

Approval required No.

Held abroad Yes. Residents may transfer funds from their accounts (deposits) at authorized banks to their own accounts opened at banks outside Russia without restriction.
subject to notification requirements. Foreign branches of authorized banks may freely maintain accounts with nonresident banks subject to the permission of the parent bank.

Pursuant to Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017, on Amending Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation, two types of banks were defined: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license is not permitted to open bank (correspondent) accounts at foreign banks, with the exception of the opening of an account at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to provide loans to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals subject to the private law of a foreign state (Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017). A bank with a universal license that has obtained the status of a bank with a basic license or that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, or a bank with a basic license that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, is required to abrogate a bank (correspondent) account agreement with a foreign bank within one year of the date such status is acquired. This restriction does not apply to cases in which an account is opened at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system.

Residents may transfer to their accounts with banks outside Russia funds from their accounts with authorized banks or from other accounts with banks abroad. Transfers by resident legal entities of funds to their accounts with banks outside Russia from their accounts with authorized banks require, at the time of the first transfer, presentation to the authorized bank of the notification provided to the tax authority where the resident is registered and acknowledgment of receipt of that notification.

Any types of foreign exchange transactions on accounts (deposits) opened with banks abroad are allowed between residents that stay outside the territory of the Russian Federation in the aggregate for more than 183 days in a calendar year. If resident individuals are abroad in the aggregate for more than 183 days in a calendar year, then they are exempted for the period of their stay abroad from submitting a notice to the tax authority. When returning to Russia (if the period of the stay abroad in the aggregate was less than 183 days in a calendar year), such an individual must notify the tax authority of accounts abroad before June 1 of the year following the reporting year and must also submit to tax authorities with which he is registered reports on the movement of funds on accounts (deposits) at banks located outside the Russian Federation. Residents’ accounts at banks outside Russia may be credited with interest earned on the balance of such accounts, as well as a minimum deposit required by respective bank while opening an account (deposit), cash placed in an account (deposit), and funds received as a result of conversion operations using funds credited to such accounts (deposits), as well as funds received as a result of the following: (1) if funds in rubles are transferred from the account of another resident in Russia and if funds in rubles are transferred from the account of another resident abroad; (2) transfers in connection with execution of the Russian budget; (3) transfers for carrying out the activities of Russian diplomatic missions, consulates, and other official offices abroad and of permanent missions to interstate or intergovernmental organizations; (4) transfers of foreign currency by a Russian resident to another resident’s account abroad that do not exceed in one business day through one authorized bank the equivalent of US$5,000 at the official BR exchange rate on the date the funds are debited; (5) transfers for settlements between transportation entities and individuals abroad, as well as with branches, representative offices, and other subdivisions of legal entities, under passenger transportation agreements; (6) transfers by residents from their accounts with authorized banks to accounts of related residents (spouse or close relative – direct forebear or descendant: parent, child, brother, sister, grandparent, grandchild, full-blooded or half-blooded, with a common father or mother, adoptive parent, adopted child) opened with authorized banks or with banks abroad; (7) transfers of foreign exchange from accounts with authorized banks to the accounts of Russian diplomatic missions, consulates, and other official representative offices abroad and to the accounts of permanent Russian missions to interstate or intergovernmental organizations by federal executive branch authorities through their representatives or representative offices and by entities authorized to use those accounts for the payment of wages and other payments for maintenance of their representatives or personnel of their representative offices abroad and for payment of business travel expenses; (8) settlements with resident individuals abroad, with the branches, representative offices, and other subdivisions of legal entities established under Russian law, as well as with nonresident individuals, under contracts for the transportation of passengers, and settlements in foreign exchange and rubles by resident individuals abroad and with nonresident individuals, under contracts for the transportation of freight by individuals for personal, family, household, and other noncommercial needs; (9) wages paid and other payments made to resident individuals related to the performance of their official duties outside Russia under labor agreements (contracts) with nonresidents, and in the form of payment for and/or reimbursement of expenses incurred by such resident individuals in connection with official business travel abroad; (10) payments to individuals in accordance with rulings of courts of foreign states, with the exception of decisions by international commercial arbitration bodies; (11) payments of pensions, scholarships, child support, and other payments of a social nature to individuals; (12) insurance payments to individuals effected by nonresident insurers; (13) payments made in the process of returning funds previously paid by resident individuals, including the return of funds transferred in error, the refunding of money for a product previously purchased by a resident individual from a nonresident and subsequently returned, or for a service for which a nonresident was paid by a resident; and (14) a gift of foreign exchange assets to a spouse or close relatives.

Funds may also be credited to residents’ accounts opened with banks abroad as follows: (1) Funds received under credit facilities and loan agreements with nonresident agents of foreign governments and under credit facilities and loan agreements with, effective December 2, 2019, residents of EAEU member states or with residents of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information may be credited to residents’ accounts opened at banks located within the territory of states that are members of the EAEU or opened at banks located within the territory of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information (previously residents of OECD and Financial Action Task Force (FATF) member countries), for a period exceeding two years. (2) In the case of payment or reimbursement by (nonresident) contracting authorities and/or (nonresident) third parties for local expenses of residents under agreements (contracts) concluded by them with nonresidents in the performance of activity by said residents, arising in connection with the construction, reconstruction, or modernization by residents of facilities located outside the territory of the Russian Federation – for the period of the construction, reconstruction, or modernization, on the conclusion of which the remaining funds must be transferred to residents’ accounts opened at authorized banks. (3) Foreign currency obtained by residents from exhibitions and sports, cultural, and other similar events abroad must be used to cover expenses of such events for the duration of the event. (4) Foreign currency proceeds must be credited to the accounts of resident transportation entities with banks abroad for payment of aerial navigation, airport, and port fees and other fees in foreign countries; expenses associated with the servicing of air, river, and seacraft and other vehicles of such transportation entities and their passengers abroad; and expenses for the activities of branches, representative offices, and other offices of such transportation entities abroad.
The foreign currency from Items (1) and (3) above credited to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents’ obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts with authorized banks.
Effective January 1, 2020, funds received from nonresidents may be credited without restriction to accounts (deposits) of resident individuals opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation on the condition that these banks are located within the territory of an EAEU member state or within the territory of a foreign state (territory) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information. Previously, the following funds received from nonresidents could be credited to accounts of resident individuals opened at banks in OECD or FATF member countries: (1) income from the leasing (or subletting) of the resident individual’s real estate or other property located outside Russia to nonresidents;
(2) funds paid in the form of accumulated interest (coupon) income provided for under the terms of an issue of foreign securities belonging to a resident individual, as well as other income on foreign securities (dividends, payments on bonds and bills, and payments when there is a reduction in the authorized capital of an issuer of a foreign security); and (3) funds paid to a resident individual in the form of income earned from the placement of funds and/or securities in trust with a nonresident trust manager.
The following funds may be credited to accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation: (1) foreign currency received under operations between resident individuals who have spent a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year outside the Russian Federation, which are performed outside the Russian Federation; (2) those returned as taxes by the competent authorities of the state visited by the resident; (3) those received as wages and other payments in foreign currency outside the Russian Federation by resident individuals under labor agreements with resident legal entities providing for the performance by such resident individuals of their official duties outside the Russian Federation; (4) effective August 2, 2019, those received from operations performed outside the territory of the Russian Federation between resident individuals who have spent a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year outside the Russian Federation and by resident legal entities that are Russian public higher education institutions or branches thereof, located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts; (5) effective January 1, 2020, funds in the currency of the Russian Federation under foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded by such residents with nonresidents, with respect to which the repatriation requirement has been lifted; and (6) effective January 1, 2020, those paid by a nonresident pursuant to the requirements of the laws of a foreign state, bypassing accounts at authorized banks, in the form of income from the sale of precious metals recorded on accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

Funds received under operations related to the inheritance of foreign exchange assets and the transfer of foreign exchange assets by an estate to beneficiaries of the estate may also be credited to accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

The following funds received from nonresidents may be credited to the accounts of representative offices or branches of resident legal entities opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation:

1. those paid as a refund for funds previously paid by a representative office or branch of a resident legal entity for goods purchased from a nonresident and being returned by the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity, for a service for which the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity made payment to the nonresident in the event that the service was not performed or was not properly performed, under transactions related to the performance of activities of the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity, with the exception of transactions that entail the performance of foreign trade activity;
2. those previously offered by the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity as security under a lease for premises that are being returned by the nonresident;
3. those paid to the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity under a purchase and sale agreement for a motor vehicle and/or other property which the resident legal entity allocated to its representative office or branch, with the exception of transactions that entail the performance of foreign trade activity; and
4. effective August 11, 2020, those paid in the form of insurance payouts by nonresident insurers.

Effective April 17, 2020, the crediting of funds to accounts (deposits) of residents opened at financial market institutions located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on the account of a resident, and the debiting of funds from such accounts (deposits) are performed in all cases without restriction.

Nonresident Accounts

Nonresidents have the right to open bank accounts (bank deposits) in foreign currency at authorized banks within Russia. They may carry out any operations on their accounts in foreign currency and in Russian rubles.

Nonresidents have the right without restriction to transfer foreign currency from their bank accounts (bank deposits) at authorized banks to their own accounts (deposits) at banks abroad.

BR Regulation No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, replaced Regulation No. 138-I of June 4, 2012, which, among other things, abolished the requirement for transaction passports and established the procedure for registering foreign trade contracts; reduced the number of documents submitted to authorized banks for currency control; raised the threshold for the amount of obligations for which the contract or loan agreement is subject to mandatory registration. The amount of obligations must be equal to or exceed the equivalent of: 3 million rubles for import contracts or credit agreements and 6 million rubles for export contracts; submission to the authorized bank by residents of the documents related to the conduct of foreign exchange transactions under contracts with nonresidents is no longer required if the amount of obligations does not exceed 200,000 rubles.

The provisions of Instruction No. 181-I with regard to a failure to provide an authorized bank with documents related to the performance of operations pertain to residents that have concluded foreign trade agreements with nonresidents, the obligations under which do not exceed 200,000 rubles.

The requirements of Instruction No. 181-I apply to nonresidents only with regard to their presentation to an authorized bank of the settlement document for the given operation when performing an operation that involves the debiting of rubles from their bank account (with the exception of cases referred to in paragraphs 2 through 5 of Item 2.8 of Instruction No. 181-I); the document must contain in the entry “Purpose of payment” the code for the type of operation, which corresponds to the name of the operation indicated in Annex 1 to Instruction No. 181-I.

Nonresidents may without restriction make transfers of rubles between their accounts and from accounts abroad to accounts at authorized banks or from accounts at authorized banks to accounts abroad or at other authorized banks.

Foreign exchange operations between residents and nonresidents with rubles as a means of payment are performed without restriction.

Nonresidents, except individuals, in the performance of a foreign exchange operation involving the debiting of rubles from the nonresident’s own bank account opened at an authorized bank in rubles must submit to the authorized bank a settlement document for a foreign exchange operation, indicating (except for certain cases) the code for the type of foreign exchange operation corresponding to the purpose of the payment.

Follow-up monitoring of the performance of the aforementioned operations is performed within the context of monitoring residents who are parties to such operations.

The requirement concerning the importation of goods into the Russian Federation after a resident has made an advance payment for imports within the deadline established by a foreign trade agreement (contract) is provided for by the foreign exchange legislation of the Russian Federation.

Thus, when performing foreign trade activity residents are required, within the deadlines specified by foreign trade agreements (contracts), to either import the goods into the Russian Federation or provide for the return to the Russian Federation of the funds paid to nonresidents as an advance payment.

When performing foreign trade activity residents are required to provide information to authorized banks about the deadlines for nonresidents’ fulfillment of obligations under foreign trade agreements (contracts) through the transfer of goods to residents based on the advance payments made by the residents, and the deadlines for the return of said advance payments in accordance with the terms of the foreign trade agreements (contracts). In the event that goods are not imported into the Russian Federation and an advance payment is not returned, this information is forwarded by the authorized bank to the foreign exchange control body (the Russian Federal Customs Service), which applies administrative enforcement measures against the resident for violation of the repatriation requirement.

Submission to the authorized bank by residents of the documents related to the conduct of foreign exchange transactions under any contracts with nonresidents is not required if the amount of obligations under them does not exceed 200,000 rubles.

In the case of a contract the obligations under which exceed the equivalent of 200,000 rubles but do not exceed the equivalent of 3,000,000 rubles, when debiting foreign currency from its account a resident must submit to the authorized bank documents related to the performance of the transaction, together with the order to debit the foreign currency.

In the case of an import contract the obligations under which are equal to or greater than the equivalent of 3,000,000 rubles, a resident must register the contract with an authorized bank.

The following are subject to registration with an authorized bank: (1) agreements, including agency agreements, commission agreements, and trust agreements providing for the importation of goods into the Russian Federation in the performance of foreign trade activity; (2) agreements providing for the purchase and/or performance of services related to the purchase within the Russian Federation (or outside the Russian Federation) of fuel and lubricants (bunker fuel), food, material and technical supplies, and other goods (with the exception of spare parts and equipment) necessary to ensure the operation and maintenance of vehicles, regardless of their type and purpose, en route or at intermediate stopping points or parking areas;
(3) agreements, including agency agreements, commission agreements, and trust agreements, with the exception of agreements referred to under (1), (2), and (4), which provide for the performance of work, delivery of services, or the transfer of information and intellectual property, including exclusive rights thereto; and (4) agreements providing for the transfer of movable and/or real property under a rental agreement or financial lease agreements (leasing).
To register a contract, a resident importer must present to an authorized bank an import contract (excerpt from a contract) containing information needed by the authorized bank for registration of the contract and the performance of foreign exchange control, including oversight of the resident’s compliance with repatriation requirements, as well as other information needed by the authorized bank.

A resident must register an import contract the obligations under which are equal to or greater than the equivalent of 3,000,000 rubles, with an authorized bank no later than the date that a declaration of the goods or a document used as a declaration of the goods in accordance with the legislation on customs regulation is filed.

Licenses are required for imports of various alcoholic products, as well as dual-purpose items, military equipment, medicine, industrial waste, and ozone-depleting substances.

Private imports of ethyl alcohol are prohibited.

Most customs duties range from 5% to 25%, but duties up to 80% are levied on certain sensitive goods. The following products are exempt from duties: insulin and some other pharmaceuticals, printed materials, cotton and cotton waste, some animal species, uncut diamonds, wheelchairs, works of art, collectibles, and antiques.
Imports of goods from developing economies on an approved list are subject to a customs duty that is 75% of the applicable rate.

Repatriation requirements  Yes. Residents engaged in foreign trade activity must credit to their accounts at authorized banks, within the time periods specified in the foreign trade contracts, funds in foreign currency or rubles because of them under the terms of said contracts for goods delivered to nonresidents, work performed for them, services provided to them, and information or intellectual property transferred to them, including exclusive rights thereto, except: (1) when foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation is credited to accounts of resident legal entities or third parties with banks outside the territory of the Russian Federation to fulfill the obligations of resident legal entities under credit facilities and loan agreements with nonresident organizations that are agents of foreign governments and under credit facilities and loan agreements with residents of, effective December 2, 2019, EAEU members or with residents of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information (previously residents of OECD and FATF member countries), for a period exceeding two years; (2) in the case of payment or reimbursement by (nonresident) contracting authorities and/or (nonresident) third parties for local expenses of residents under agreements (contracts) concluded by them with nonresidents in the performance of activity by said residents, arising in connection with the construction, reconstruction, or modernization by residents of facilities located outside the territory of the Russian Federation – for the period of the construction, reconstruction, or modernization, on the conclusion of which the remaining funds must be transferred to residents’ accounts opened at authorized banks; (3) when foreign currency obtained from exhibitions and sports, cultural, and other similar events abroad is used for expenses of such events, for the duration of the event; (4) when foreign currency is used to offset counterclaims for obligations (a) between resident and nonresident entities that conduct fishing operations abroad and provide services abroad under agency agreements with residents; (b) between resident and nonresident transportation entities performing services abroad for residents under agreements with them; or (c) between resident and nonresident transportation entities if settlement takes place through specialized entities established by international organizations in the area of international transportation and of which such resident transportation entities are members; (d) effective August 11, 2020, in the event that settlements between resident and nonresident transportation entities are performed in accordance with rules adopted by international organizations in the area of international shipments, which establish the procedure for the performance of mutual settlements and related services; (5) when foreign currency is used to offset counterclaims for obligations resulting from reinsurance agreements or service agreements connected with reinsurance agreements between nonresidents and resident insurance entities or insurance brokers; (6) when foreign currency proceeds are credited to the accounts of resident transportation entities with banks abroad to pay for the expenses of such transportation entities abroad in connection with the payment of aerial navigation, airport and port fees and other mandatory fees abroad; expenses associated with the servicing of air, river, and seacraft and other vehicles and their passengers abroad; and expenses connected with branches, representative offices, and other offices abroad; (7) when there is offsetting of counterclaims on obligations arising from agreements concluded between residents engaged in exports of natural gas in the gaseous state and nonresidents that provide for the purchase and sale of natural gas in the gaseous state, and agreements under which nonresidents have obligations to residents in connection with the transit of natural gas in the gaseous state across the territory of foreign states; (8) when counterclaims on obligations arising from agreements on the provision of international telecommunications services, including international roaming services, are offset between a nonresident and a resident that are international telecommunications operators, including situations in which settlements between them are performed through specialized settlement organizations registered within member states of the International Telecommunication Union; and (9) effective August 2, 2019, when crediting foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation to accounts opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation by Russian public higher education institutions and their branches located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts with nonresident individuals that provide for the delivery of educational services outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

The foreign currency credited in accordance with Items (1) and (3) above to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents’ obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts with authorized banks.

Residents fulfill the repatriation requirement if they have arranged for: (1) receipt in their bank account of payment under a contract insuring against a nonresident’s failure to fulfill obligations under a foreign trade contract as specified in Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity, for activities related to insuring export loans and investments against business and/or political risks, provided the ratio in the insurance contract between the insurance amount and the insured value (level of indemnification) equals or exceeds the value established by law; (2) receipt in their bank accounts opened at authorized banks and/or bank accounts that have been opened at authorized banks by a resident who is the beneficiary, of foreign currency or Russian Federation currency under a transaction ensuring the fulfillment of a nonresident’s obligations under a foreign trade agreement (contract) and provided for by the procedure established by the Russian Federation government in accordance with Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for the performance of activities related to insuring and securing export credits and investments against business and/or political risks, on the condition that the monetary amount received is equal to or greater than the value established by said procedure, in line with the procedure and deadlines provided for by the relevant transaction.

Effective October 16, 2019, a resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of the Russian Federation or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian Federation currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident. recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds.
Foreign exchange operations related to settlements in foreign currency within the framework of financing agreements concluded between residents against the assignment of a monetary claim (factoring), under which monetary claims in foreign currency or rubles owed to residents by nonresidents on foreign trade contracts are assigned to residents who are financial agents (factors), are performed without restriction. For the purpose of ensuring compliance with the obligation on the part of residents to repatriate funds when performing foreign trade activity, a resident who has entered into a foreign trade contract with a nonresident and who has assigned the monetary claim under the contract to a resident factor, is required to ensure that funds are received from the nonresident according to the general rule — within the time period specified by the foreign trade contract. Monitoring of residents’ compliance with the repatriation requirement is carried out within the framework of monitoring performed in accordance with BR Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, on the Procedure for the Submission of Supporting Documents and Information by Residents and Nonresidents to Authorized Banks in the Performance of Foreign Exchange Operations, on Standard Accounting and Reporting Forms for Foreign Exchange Operations, and the Procedure and Deadlines for their Submission.
Effective January 1, 2020, the repatriation requirement for export earnings was lifted with respect to foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded between residents and nonresidents, the obligations under which are denominated in the currency of the Russian Federation and the terms of which call for payment in the currency of the Russian Federation, and which provide for the transfer of non-commodity goods by residents to nonresidents, as well as other types of foreign trade contracts.

The foreign currency credited in accordance with Items (1) and (3) above to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents’ obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts opened with authorized banks. Residents fulfill the repatriation requirement if they have arranged for (1) receipt in their bank account of payment under a contract insuring against a nonresident’s failure to fulfill obligations under a foreign trade contract as specified in Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for activities related to insuring export loans and investments against business and/or political risks, provided the ratio in the insurance contract between the insurance amount and the insured value (level of indemnification) equals or exceeds the value established by law; (2) receipt in their bank accounts opened at authorized banks and/or bank accounts that have been opened at authorized banks by a resident who is the beneficiary, of foreign currency or Russian Federation currency under a transaction ensuring the fulfillment of a nonresident’s obligations under a foreign trade agreement (contract) and provided for by the procedure established by the Russian Federation government in accordance with Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for the performance of activities related to insuring and securing export credits and investments against business and/or political risks, on the condition that the monetary amount received is equal to or greater than the value established by said procedure, in line with the procedure and deadlines provided for by the relevant transaction. Effective October 16, 2019, a resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of the Russian Federation or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian Federation currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds.

Foreign exchange operations related to settlements in foreign currency within the framework of financing agreements concluded between these residents against the assignment of a monetary claim (factoring), under which monetary claims in foreign currency or the currency of the Russian Federation owed to residents by nonresidents on foreign trade contracts are assigned to residents who are financial agents (factors), are performed without restriction. For the purpose of ensuring compliance with the obligation on the part of residents to repatriate funds when performing foreign trade activity, a resident who has entered into a foreign trade contract with a nonresident and who has assigned the monetary claim under the contract to a resident factor, is required to ensure that funds are received from the nonresident according to the general rule – within the time period specified by the foreign trade contract. Monitoring of residents’ compliance with the repatriation requirement is carried out within the framework of monitoring in accordance with BR Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, on the Procedure for the Submission of Supporting Documents and Information by Residents and Nonresidents to Authorized Banks in the Performance of Foreign Exchange Operations, on Standard Accounting and Reporting Forms for Foreign Exchange Operations, and the Procedure and Deadlines for their Submission.

Effective January 1, 2020, the repatriation requirement for export earnings was lifted with respect to foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded between residents and nonresidents, the obligations under which are denominated in the currency of the Russian Federation and the terms of which call for payment in the currency of the Russian Federation, and which provide for the transfer of non-commodity goods by residents to nonresidents, as well as other types of foreign trade contracts.

The Federal Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control does not restrict the purchase of shares or other equity-based securities by nonresidents (either from nonresidents or from residents). Special restrictions are in place for the banking and insurance sectors. There is 50% quota for the participation of foreign capital in the Russian banking system (Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, “On Banks and Banking Activities”). The quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies is set at 50% (Article 6 of Russian Federation Law No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

The level of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of foreign investments of nonresidents in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations to the total authorized capital of said credit institutions. The calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations does not include foreign investments:

1. Made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and financed by the profits earned by said credit institutions in the Russian Federation or repatriated to the Russian Federation from abroad;
2. Made by credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that are subsidiaries of foreign banks in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
3. Made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
4. Made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that were privatized after August 22, 2012;
5. Representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations and made after January 1, 2007, provided these shares (equity stakes) have been owned by the investor for 12 years or more, unless the BR has made a decision on expiration of said period to continue including said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption of said decision by the BR and for its publication is established by the BR.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it has established as of January 1 of each year. Information about the level of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and the indicators used to calculate it are published in the Bulletin of the BR, the official publication of the BR, and they are also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year. For the purposes of said federal law, a quota is understood to mean... the maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, which is set at 50%.

When a quota is reached, the BR takes the following steps with respect to foreign investments:

(1) it refuses to register the credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a license to perform banking operations;

(2) it prohibits any increase in the authorized capital of the credit institution with foreign investments at the expense of nonresidents' funds and the transfer of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution to nonresidents if the quota will be exceeded as a result of these actions.

Shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution that are transferred (sold) in violation of such a prohibition are not voting shares and are not taken into consideration when determining a quorum at a general meeting of the credit institution’s shareholders (stakeholders) during the period that the prohibition is in effect. In the event of the performance of a transaction (or transactions) to transfer (purchase) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of said prohibition, the BR files suit to declare the relevant transaction(s) null and void.

The measures provided for under Article 18, part 6, of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking do not apply to foreign investments referred to under paragraphs 1 and 2 of part 2 of said article. The measures provided for under paragraph 2 of part 6 of said article do not apply to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of the Russian Federation.

The BR terminates the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.

The BR is required to publish information about the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article, the reasons for the application of such measures, and termination of the application of such measures in the Bulletin of the BR, the official publication of the BR, and also to post it on the official website of the BR.

The procedure for the application and termination of the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article, and the procedure for the disclosure of information about the application, the reasons for the application, and termination of the application of these measures are established by regulatory acts of the BR.

Unless otherwise provided for by international agreements of the Russian Federation, the BR has the right, in consultation with the Russian Federation government, to establish restrictions on credit institutions with foreign investments with regard to the performance of banking operations, if restrictions are applied to banks with Russian investments and branches of Russian banks in the respective foreign states with regard to their creation and activities.

The BR has the right, following the procedure established in the Federal Law on the Central Bank of the Russian Federation (BR), to establish additional requirements for credit institutions with foreign investments in terms of their reporting procedures, approval of management personnel, and the list of banking operations performed.

The quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies is calculated by the BR as of January 1 following the procedure established by BR Directive No. 3386-U of September 22, 2014, on the Procedure for Calculation of the Level of (Quota for) the Participation of Foreign Capital in the Authorized Capital of Insurance Companies and Lists of Documents Needed to Obtain Approval from the BR for the Transfer of Shares (Equity Stakes in the Authorized Capital) of Insurance Companies to Foreign Investors and/or their Subsidiaries.

Insurance companies are required to obtain prior approval of the insurance supervisory authority for:

1. An increase in the size of their authorized capital at the expense of funds of foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries;
2. A transfer of their shares (equity stakes in their authorized capital) to foreign investors (including their sale to foreign investors), while Russian shareholders (partners) are required to obtain prior approval of the insurance supervisory authority for the transfer of shares (equity stakes in the authorized capital) of an insurance company held by them to foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries.

If the quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%, the insurance supervisory authority refuses to grant prior approval to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49% or would be as a result of such transactions (Russian Federation Law No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

An insurance company that is a subsidiary of a foreign investor (a parent company) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%, which has obtained a license to perform insurance activities after August 22, 2012, has the right to perform insurance activities in the Russian Federation if the foreign investor (parent company) has been an insurance company doing business in accordance with the legislation of the relevant state for at least five years (Article 6 of Russian Federation Law No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities in Russia are performed under requirements set out in the antimonopoly law, the securities market law, and the Federal Law of November 21, 2011, No. 325-FZ, on organized trading.

Transactions resulting in control by a foreign investor or group of persons over business entities that are of strategic significance (that is, defense and state security) are subject to approval by the federal executive body authorized to carry out control functions over foreign investments in Russia.

Securities market law does not provide for special types of control of transactions between nonresidents involving domestic securities. Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is required in the event of the acquisition by a legal entity or individual or group of individuals, defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, through the performance of one or several transactions, including those in the secondary market, of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) (including those acquired previously) in a credit institution, private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) over shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution (private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) that hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in said organization (and also with respect to a person acquiring more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in a credit organization).

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents  Yes.

Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of shares or other equity securities by nonresidents. Specific aspects of the placement and trading of securities of foreign issuers in Russia are governed by the law on the securities market (specifically Article 51.1 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market), according to which: (1) Foreign financial instruments may be traded in Russia as securities of foreign issuers, provided the following conditions are met simultaneously: (a) the foreign financial instruments are assigned an international securities identification code (number) and an international financial instrument classification code and (b) the foreign financial instruments are classified as securities following the procedure established by the BR. (2) Securities of foreign issuers that meet the requirements of Paragraph 1 may be placed and/or publicly traded in Russia if the issuers are: (a) foreign entities established in countries that are OECD members, members or observers of the FATF, and/or members of the Committee of Experts on the Evaluation of Anti-Money-Laundering Measures and the Financing of Terrorism of the Council of Europe (MONEYVAL), and/or members of the Common Economic Space; (b) foreign entities established in countries that have the relevant agencies (relevant organizations) with which the federal executive agency responsible for the securities market has a cooperation agreement; (c) international financial institutions included in a list approved by the Russian government; (d) the foreign governments indicated in (a) and (b) and those countries’ autonomous CBs and administrative-territorial units; and (e) foreign organizations whose securities are listed on a foreign stock exchange that meets the criteria established by the BR in accordance with Paragraph 4, Article 51.1. (3) Foreign issuers’ securities may be placed in Russia by a decision of the BR, provided the prospectus for these securities is registered by the BR. (4) Foreign issuers’ securities that meet the requirements of Paragraphs 1 and 2 of Article 51.1 may be traded publicly in Russia based on a decision by a Russian exchange allowing for their organized trading. Such a decision may be made by a Russian exchange if the securities, other than securities of international financial institutions, are listed on a foreign exchange that meets the criteria established by the BR and no restrictions on the securities have been established by Russian law or international law. (5) International financial institutions’ securities may be publicly placed and/or traded in Russia, provided the conditions for the trading of these securities do not contain any restrictions regarding their trading among an unrestricted group of persons and/or the offering of the securities to an unrestricted group of persons.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes.

The foreign exchange law does not prohibit the purchase abroad of shares or other equity securities by residents. There are certain restrictions: (1) the share of securities of foreign issuers and Russian depositary receipts in the composition of the aggregated investment portfolio consisting of funds intended for housing for military personnel may not exceed 30% (Federal Law No. 117-FZ of August 20, 2004, on the Mortgage Savings System to Provide Housing for Military Personnel); (2) nonstate pension funds that carry out compulsory pension insurance (a) may have assets in foreign currency in their portfolios in an amount not exceeding 30% of the value of the investment portfolio and (b) may have securities of international financial organizations, as well as units (stocks, shares) of foreign index investment funds (including securities receivables and (or) securities to be transferred during the second part of the repo transaction) if the share of such instruments does not exceed 20% of the value of the investment portfolio (BR Regulation No. 580-P of March 1, 2017); and (3) pension reserves intended for fulfilling obligations under voluntary insurance agreements may not have a total share exceeding 30% in sovereign securities of foreign issuers, securities of international financial organizations, shares of foreign joint-stock companies, corporate shares of foreign business entities, and shares of foreign investment funds in pension reserves (Russian Federation Government Resolution No. 63 of February 1, 2007).

The legislation also establishes restrictions on the investment of an insurer’s equity (capital) and insurance reserves. Thus, the total value of assets located outside the Russian Federation in which an insurer’s equity (capital) is invested may not exceed 35% of the regulatory solvency margin or the minimum amount of authorized capital (the larger of the two indicators) (BR Directive No. 4298-U of February 22, 2017).

Furthermore, the proportion of foreign assets in insurance reserves, with the exception of that accounted for by reinsurers who are not residents of the Russian Federation, may not exceed 30% (BR Directive No. 4297-U of February 22, 2017).

In accordance with the banking legislation in force since June 1, 2017, there are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license, and a with transition period for existing banks with equity (capital) of less than 1 billion rubles to obtain a basic license until December 31, 2018.

Article 24 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking states that banks with a basic license have the right to perform operations and transactions, including those involving acquisition, only with securities listed on the first (highest) list of a trading organizer in whose capital the BR holds a stake, and securities that meet the requirements of the BR established in Directive No. 4979-U. Taking into consideration the requirements for the listing of securities on the first (highest) list established by Regulation No. 534-P and the stock exchange, securities of foreign issuers as well as securities denominated in foreign currency may be included in the list.

This law does not impose restrictions on: (1) the composition of counterparties of banks with a basic license in transactions with such securities, including those based on the private law of counterparties (other than transactions in which banks with a basic license act as creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange.

Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision.

Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries within the territory of a foreign state with the permission of the BR and in accordance with its requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary within the territory of a foreign state. General licenses to perform banking operations issued before June 1, 2017, remain in effect until they are replaced following the established procedure. The BR does not issue permits to establish a subsidiary in states (territories) that are classified according to the procedure defined by Russian law as states (territories) that do not participate in international cooperation in combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Yes. The foreign exchange law does not prohibit the sale or issuance abroad of shares or other equity securities by residents. Under the law on the securities market, the placement and trading of securities of Russian issuers abroad require authorization by the BR. Rules similar to the rules governing transactions with shares or other equity securities apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No. There are no restrictions on purchases of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents from nonresidents or residents. Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities must adhere to the requirements of the antimonopoly law and the securities market law.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents. Specific aspects of the placement and trading of securities of foreign issuers in Russia are governed by the law on the securities market (specifically Article 51.1 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market).

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. The foreign exchange law of Russia does not prohibit purchases of bonds or other debt securities by residents abroad. Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market does not impose requirements or restrictions on the acquisition by residents of securities abroad. When transferring securities, which were acquired abroad and are intended for qualified investors under the legislation on the Russian securities market, into Russia for registration, the holder of such securities must have the status of a qualified investor (pursuant to Article 51.1, paragraph 14, of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market (referred to hereinafter as Law No. 39-FZ)), if the securities of foreign issuers have not be admitted for public placement and/or public circulation in the Russian Federation in accordance with this article, then the requirements and restrictions established by this Federal Law for the circulation of securities intended for qualified investors apply to the circulation of such securities. Pursuant to Article 27.6, paragraph 3, of Law No. 39-FZ, the acquisition and conveyance of securities intended for qualified investors, as well as the provision (acceptance) of said securities as collateral to ensure the fulfillment of obligations, may be performed only through brokers. This rule does not apply to investors who are qualified by virtue of federal law when they perform said transactions, or to cases in which a person has acquired said securities as a result of universal legal succession, conversion, including reorganization, distribution of the property of a legal entity being liquidated, as well as other cases established by the BR. Pursuant to Article 3, paragraph 5, of Law No. 39-FZ, a broker has the right to acquire securities intended for qualified investors and to enter into derivatives contracts intended for qualified investors, only if the client on whose behalf the transaction is being performed (the contract is being concluded) is a qualified investor in accordance with Article 51.2, paragraph 2, of this Federal Law (referred to hereinafter as qualified investors by virtue of federal law) or is recognized by the broker as a qualified investor in accordance with this Federal Law.

Article 24 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking states that banks with a basic license have the right to perform operations and transactions, including those involving acquisition, only with securities listed on the first (highest) list of a trading organizer in whose capital the BR holds a stake, and securities that meet the requirements of the BR established in Directive No. 4979-U. Taking into consideration the requirements for the listing of securities on the first (highest) list established by Regulation No. 534-P and the stock exchange, securities of foreign issuers as well as securities denominated in foreign currency may be included in the list. This law does not impose restrictions on: (1) the composition of counterparties of banks with a basic license in transactions with such securities, including those based on the private law of counterparties (other than transactions in which banks with a basic license act as creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. The foreign exchange law of Russia does not prohibit the purchase or issuance of bonds or other debt securities by residents outside of Russia. According to Article 16 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market, organization of the circulation of issue-grade securities of a Russian issuer outside the Russian Federation, including circulation through the placement of securities of foreign issuers certifying rights with respect to issue-grade securities of Russian issuers in accordance with foreign law, requires authorization by the BR.

On money market instruments

Yes. Under the Russian foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on purchases of money market instruments by nonresidents (from nonresidents or residents). Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities in Russia are performed under requirements set out in the antimonopoly law and the securities market law. Pursuant to Article 27.5-1, paragraph 3, of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market, the placement and circulation of BR bonds are performed only among Russian credit institutions.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents. Specific aspects of the placement and trading of securities of foreign issuers in Russia are governed by the law on the securities market (specifically Article 51.1 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market).

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. There are no prohibitions in the foreign exchange legislation against the purchase of money market instruments by residents outside of Russia.

In accordance with the banking legislation in force since June 1, 2017, there are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license, and a with transition period for existing banks with equity (capital) of less than 1 billion rubles to obtain a basic license until December 31, 2018. creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange.

Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision.

Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries within the territory of a foreign state with the permission of the BR and in accordance with its requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary within the territory of a foreign state. General licenses to perform banking operations issued before June 1, 2017, remain in effect until they are replaced following the established procedure. The BR does not issue permits to establish a subsidiary in states (territories) that are classified according to the procedure defined by Russian law as states (territories) that do not participate in international cooperation in combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Direct investments by resident individuals and resident legal entities that are not credit institutions are permitted, provided the requirements of the foreign currency law of Russia are met (for example, those related to investments of pension funds).

There are no restrictions on direct investment by resident credit institutions associated with their acquisition of stocks (equity stakes) of foreign entities except when approval from the BR must be obtained following the established procedure. Such approval must be obtained to establish a subsidiary in a foreign state, and also to acquire the status of a parent company with respect to an existing nonresident organization in which a credit institution would have the ability to determine decisions made by the given organization’s management bodies by virtue of a dominant stake in the authorized capital, in accordance with an agreement that has been concluded, or in some other manner.

In accordance with the banking legislation in force since June 1, 2017, there are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license, and a with transition period for existing banks with equity (capital) of less than 1 billion rubles to obtain a basic license until December 31, 2018. Banks that have a universal license to perform banking operations and that meet the requirements of the BR may have subsidiaries (branches) abroad subject to authorization by the BR. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a subsidiary within the territory of a foreign state. The BR does not issue authorization to establish subsidiaries in countries (in areas) that are included, in the manner specified by the laws of Russia, among those governments (areas) that do not participate in international cooperation in the area of combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Approval from the BR is required for transactions involving the acquisition of shares issued by a Russian credit institution, the placement and/or trading of which outside Russia is carried out through their placement in accordance with the foreign securities law pertaining to foreign issuers and granting rights with regard to issued securities of Russian issuers. The threshold for participation (individually or as part of a group of individuals) in Russian credit institutions without BR approval is 10%. (This restriction also applies with respect to residents of the Russian Federation.) BR approval is also required when operations are performed that result in the establishment of control over shareholders (stakeholders) of a Russian credit institution who hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in the given credit institution. (This restriction also applies with respect to residents of the Russian Federation.)

In accordance with the Treaty between Russia and Belarus on the creation of the Union State, the BR has established through Regulation No. 217-P that transfers of funds in rubles and in foreign currency for participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, as well as the acquisition (disposal) of shares issued by Belarusian banks and stakes in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, are to be carried out by authorized banks in accordance with Russian legislation on banks and banking, subject to notification requirements. Authorized banks are required to notify the BR regarding participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks following the procedure established by regulatory acts of the BR.
Direct investments are subject to certain limitations:
(1) Requirements have been established for foreign investors and groups of persons that include a foreign investor, for their investment in the authorized capital of business entities that are of strategic significance in providing for the national defense and state security, and/or for the completion of transactions resulting in the establishment of control over such business entities. In this connection, transactions carried out by foreign governments or international organizations or organizations under their control that result in acquisition of the right directly or indirectly to control more than 25% of the total number of votes attached to voting shares (equity stakes) constituting the authorized capital of a Russian business entity, or some other ability to block decisions of such a business entity’s governing authorities, are subject to approval in accordance with the procedures specified in Articles 9–12 of the Federal Law on the Procedure for Making Foreign Investments in Business Entities that are of Strategic Significance in Providing for the National Defense and State Security, except transactions in which the participants are international financial organizations established under international treaties to which Russia is a party or international financial organizations with which Russia has entered into international treaties. The list of those international financial organizations is approved by the Russian government (Resolution
No. 119-R of the Russian Federation Government of February 3, 2012).
(2) In accordance with Federal Law No. 372-FZ of December 14, 2015, on Amendments to Articles 16 and 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking, adopted on the basis of the Russian Federation’s commitments in connection with accession to the WTO, the level of participation of foreign capital in the Russian Federation’s banking system is taken into account when considering whether the BR will issue a permit to establish a credit institution with foreign investments. Russian Federation law does not provide for the possibility of opening branches of foreign credit institutions within the territory of the Russian Federation. In accordance with federal laws, the BR performs state accreditation of representative offices of foreign credit institutions, as well as accreditation of foreign nationals who will be working at the representative offices.
The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of nonresidents’ foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions that are licensed to perform banking operations to the aggregate authorized capital of such credit institutions.
The procedure for calculating the level of participation of foreign capital is defined under Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking and BR Directive No. 3948-U of January 28, 2016, on the Procedure for Calculating the Level of Participation of Foreign Capital in the Aggregate Authorized Capital of Credit Institutions Licensed to Perform Banking Operations (referred to hereinafter as Directive No. 3948).
The following foreign investments are not included in the calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations (Article 18, part 2):
(1) investments made in the authorized capital from the earnings of the credit institutions received in the Russian Federation or repatriated to the Russian Federation from abroad;
(2) investments made in the authorized capital by subsidiary credit institutions of foreign banks licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(3) investments made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(4) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, the privatization of which was performed after August 22, 2012;
(5) investments representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations, performed after January 1, 2007, on the condition that said shares (equity stakes) are held by an investor for 12 or more years, unless the BR has adopted a decision before the expiration of this time period to continue to include said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption by the BR of such a decision and for its publication is established by the BR.

The maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is 50%.

When the quota is reached, the BR performs the following measures with respect to foreign investments (Article 18, part 6):
(1) it refuses to register a credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a banking license;
(2) it imposes a ban on an increase in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations using nonresidents’ funds and on the conveyance of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution in favor of nonresidents if such actions mean that the quota will be exceeded. Shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution that have been conveyed (sold) in violation of such a ban are not voting shares and are not taken into account in determining a quorum at a general meeting of shareholders (stakeholders) of the credit institution for the period that such a ban is in effect. In the event that a transaction is performed to convey (acquire) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of the ban, the BR files a petition requesting that the relevant transaction be declared null and void.

The measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments referred to under Items 1 and 2 of the second part of Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking.

The measures provided for under Item 2 of the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of the Russian Federation.

The BR ceases to apply the measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it establishes as of January 1 of each year.

Information about the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and about the indicators used for its calculation is subject to publication in the official publication of the BR, the Bulletin of the BR, and it is also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year.
As of January 1, 2020, the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations was 11.79%.

(3) Restrictions have been established on the use of mineral resources by foreign investors and by legal entities in which foreign investors hold a stake.

(4) Restrictions apply on certain types of activities of insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital of over 49%, other than insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 234-FZ of July 23, 2013, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. As of January 1, 2020, the quota for participation by foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies with an insurance license was 10.83%. A quota of 50% was set on foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies. If the level of (quota for) the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%, the insurance supervisory authority stops issuing insurance licenses to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%. Insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies), or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%, may not provide personal life, health, or property insurance in the Russian Federation at the expense of funds allocated for these purposes from the respective budget to federal executive government authorities (insured parties); insurance related to the procurement of goods, work, and services to meet state and municipal needs; or insurance for the property interests of government and municipal organizations. These restrictions do not apply to insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 204-FZ of November 20, 1999, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. Payment by foreign investors for the shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) of insurance companies held by them is performed exclusively in monetary form in the currency of the Russian Federation.

Insurance companies must obtain authorization for the following: (1) an increase in their authorized capital from funds of foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries and (2) transfers of shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including for sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) must obtain authorization to transfer their shares (equity stakes) to foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries. The insurance supervisory authority refuses to grant prior authorization to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or that have a foreign ownership in their authorized capital exceeding 49% or that attain this status as a result of the transactions indicated if the established quota of 50% is not exceeded when completing such transactions. Prior or subsequent consent (approval) from the BR is required in the event that a legal entity or individual, or a group of individuals defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, acquires more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution, private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company (including those previously acquired) when performing one or several transactions, including transactions in the secondary market.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) from the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) with respect to the shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution (private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) who hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of said institution.

The receipt as a result of a gift (endowment) of more than 10% of the stocks (shares) of a Russian credit institution, insurance company, microfinance company, private pension fund, or investment fund, mutual fund, and private pension fund management company requires the consent of the BR. When more than 10% of the stocks (shares) of a Russian credit institution, insurance company, microfinance company, private pension fund, or investment fund, mutual fund, and private pension fund management company are received through inheritance, the consent of the BR is considered to have been obtained. The heir must confirm that his business reputation meets the requirements established by law. In addition, the heir must meet these requirements on an ongoing basis and in the established cases must confirm compliance with the requirements regarding his financial position on an annual basis.

An insurance company is required to obtain authorization to transfer its shares (stakes in its authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including their sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) are required to obtain authorization to transfer shares (equity stakes) belonging to them to foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries. Insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors in which foreign investors hold a stake in the authorized capital of more than 49% and attain this status as a result of the transactions indicated may not be refused such authorization if the established quota of 50% is not exceeded when completing such transactions.
(shares) of a Russian credit institution, insurance company, microfinance company, private pension fund, or investment fund, mutual fund, and private pension fund management company are received through inheritance, the consent of the BR is considered to have been obtained. Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes.
The term “credit institution” describes participants in the Russian banking sector. According to the Russian legislation, credit institutions include banks and nonbank credit institutions that carry out certain types of banking operations. The terms “nonresident bank,” “foreign bank,” and “foreign credit institution” are used for nonresidents. All credit institutions that perform banking operations in Russia must be residents. There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. For banks with a basic license, there are restrictions with regard to the performance of activities with foreign counterparties: (1) there are restrictions on the performance of certain banking operations and transactions, for example, the issuing of credits to foreigners; (2) there are restrictions on their ability to open correspondent accounts at foreign banks; and (3) there are restrictions on their legal capacity in transactions with financial instruments (securities). At the same time, there are no provisions specific to banks with a basic license in terms of the performance of banking operations and transactions in foreign currency. In addition, there are provisions specific to cooperation by a central counterparty with foreign persons.

Borrowing abroad No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad Yes. Authorized banks may open correspondent accounts with banks abroad in accordance with the conditions determined by federal legislation. There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license is not permitted to open bank (correspondent) accounts at foreign banks, with the exception of the opening of an account at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. A bank with a universal license that has obtained the status of a bank with a basic license or that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, or a bank with a basic license that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, is required to abrogate a bank (correspondent) account agreement with a foreign bank within one year of the date such status is acquired. This restriction does not apply to cases in which an account is opened at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or... commercial credits) with a universal license. A bank with a basic license may not perform the placement of funds attracted for deposit, attract for deposit and place precious metals, open and maintain bank accounts in precious metals and perform transfers with them, issue bank guarantees (the issuing of bank guarantees is not a banking operation, but it remains a bank transaction) to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals who are subject to the private law of a foreign state. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to acquire rights of claim against, to perform leasing operations with, or to issue sureties with respect to said entities.

Lending locally in foreign exchange Yes.

There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license may not perform the placement of funds attracted for deposit, attract for deposit and place precious metals, open and maintain bank accounts in precious metals and perform transfers with them, issue bank guarantees (the issuing of bank guarantees is not a banking operation, but it remains a bank transaction) to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals who are subject to the private law of a foreign state. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to acquire rights of claim against, to perform leasing operations with, or to issue sureties with respect to said entities.

The Federal Law on Banks and Banking does not establish any provisions specific to the performance of operations that involve lending to Russian citizens and legal entities in foreign currency by banks with a basic license.

Banks with a basic license have the right to grant credits to Russian citizens and legal entities in foreign currency if such a right is provided for by the license to perform banking operations.

Higher risk ratios:
Over a number of years, the BR has applied higher risk ratios for operations in foreign currency with both individuals and legal entities.

Specifically, as of April 1, 2017, the risk ratio for new unsecured consumer credits in foreign currency with a total cost of credit (TCC) of 20%–25% was raised to 600%. As of May 1, 2016, the risk ratio was raised to 110% for credits (and investments in securities) in foreign currency to legal entities without a sufficient reserve of foreign currency earnings to service the debt. The risk ratio was also raised to 130% for credits to legal entities in foreign currency intended for the purchase of real estate. As of July 1, 2018, the BR raised the risk ratios for credit claims (and investments in debt securities) in foreign currency on resident legal entities that are exporters to 110%. To encourage a further decline in lending in the riskiest segment, risk ratios on credit claims for the purchase of real estate were raised to 150%. All other claims on legal entities in foreign currency are weighted with a risk ratio that was raised to 130%. There is an exception according to which the new risk ratios are not applied to credit claims with direct or indirect guarantees by the Russian Federation (specifically, credit claims in foreign currency secured by an insurance policy provided by the Russian Export Insurance Agency, or EKSAR).

Macroprudential (sectoral) surcharges:
In connection with the transition to the use of a new macroprudential regulatory mechanism, the BR Board of Directors adopted a decision to apply as of October 8, 2018, risk ratio surcharges for the purpose of calculating the capital adequacy of credit institutions (macroprudential surcharges). Macroprudential surcharges were established with respect to certain types of assets in accordance with...
BR Directive No. 4892-U of August 31, 2018, on Types of Assets, Characteristics of Types of Assets for Which Risk Ratio Surcharges Are Established, and the Methodology for Application of Surcharges to These Types of Assets for the Purpose of the Calculation of Capital Adequacy Ratios by Credit Institutions.

Taking into consideration the introduction of risk ratio surcharges to keep the overall level of capital requirements unchanged, the values of risk ratios for assets subject to surcharges were brought into line with their standard values provided for by Basel III. Thus, the establishment of macroprudential surcharges, including those for operations in foreign currency, did not result in an increase in the overall capital adequacy requirements for credit institutions.

At this time, surcharges established by the BR with respect to the following types of operations in foreign currencies are in effect:

1. credits (loans) provided in foreign currency to borrowers that are individuals and legal entities (for the purpose of supporting the economy in connection with the spread of the novel coronavirus infection. The BR Board of Directors adopted a decision on a temporary basis not to apply surcharges to risk ratios on foreign currency credits provided to companies producing medicines, materials and equipment used for medical purposes, and also on investments made in debt securities of such companies denominated in foreign currency);

2. investments in debt securities denominated in foreign currency (for the purpose of supporting the economy in connection with the spread of the novel coronavirus infection. The BR adopted a number of temporary steps to ease regulatory requirements, which are reflected in the table shown in the link; the measures assume, among other things, a reduction in and a lifting of risk ratio surcharges for a number of liabilities, as well as the ability not to recognize a credit as restructured for purposes of applying risk ratio surcharges when restructuring loan debt).

| Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange | No. |
| Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange | Yes. |
| Reserve requirements | Yes. |
| Reserve requirements are imposed on: (1) liabilities to nonresident legal entities (including nonresident banks) in rubles and/or in foreign currency; (2) liabilities to resident and nonresident individuals in rubles and/or in foreign currency; and (3) other liabilities in rubles and/or foreign currency. Effective July 1, 2019, for banks holding a general license and nonbank credit institutions the reserve requirement is 4.75% (previously 5%) for all categories of liabilities in domestic currency subject to reserve requirements (liabilities to nonresident legal entities and individuals, other liabilities). The reserve requirements for banks holding a basic license are: 4.75% for liabilities to nonresident legal entities and 1% for liabilities to individuals and other liabilities.
The reserve requirement for credit institution’s liabilities in foreign currency is 8% (previously 7%) effective July 1, 2019.

| Liquid asset requirements | No. |
| The BR established the quick (N2), current (N3), and long-term liquidity ratios, which are defined as the ratio of assets to liabilities, taking into consideration maturities, amounts, types of assets and liabilities, and other factors, and are calculated for operations in all currencies, and no requirements have been established for separate compliance with them in rubles and/or other currencies.
Only the current liquidity ratio (N3) is specified for banks with a basic license.
A LCR developed in accordance with Basel III is applicable to systemically important credit institutions (SICIs) on a consolidated basis in the event that an SICI is the main credit institution of a banking group, and on an individual basis when an SICI is not the main credit institution of a banking group as defined for regulatory purposes. The LCR is calculated in accordance with the procedure established by BR Regulation No. 421-P of May 30, 2014, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the LCR (Basel III) (hereinafter referred to as Regulation No. 421-P), taking into account the specific aspects established by BR Regulation No. 510-P of December 3, 2015, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the LCR (Basel III) by SICIs (hereinafter referred to as Regulation No. 510-P).

With the aim of establishing an effective liquidity risk management system, SICIs are required to perform separate calculations and forward information to the BR on the LCR values in rubles and in each significant foreign currency. In addition to deposits in rubles, only funds denominated in US dollars and euros may be treated as stable funds of individuals and small businesses with a lower outflow rate compared to funds classified as unstable, when all of the conditions for stability as defined by Basel III are met.

When determining the amount of highly liquid assets, the procedure for the calculation of the liquidity coverage indicator (LCI/LCR) also provides for limiting the amount of assets denominated in certain foreign currencies to the amount of the net expected outflow of funds in the same foreign currency as established by Basel III, with the outflow calculated in accordance with Regulation No. 421-P/Regulation No. 510-P. At the same time, considering the initial shortage in the Russian banking sector of highly liquid assets defined in accordance with Basel III, Regulation No. 510-P allows for the inclusion of highly liquid assets denominated in US dollars, euros, Japanese yen, pounds sterling, and Swiss francs in the LCR numerator in an amount that exceeds the net expected outflow of funds in the same foreign currency, taking into account the restrictions established by Regulation No. 510-P (alternative option (Alternative Liquidity Approach or ALA) 2).

No separate standards are applied in the Russian banking regulation establishing requirements for coverage by liquid assets of deposits (liabilities) attracted by credit institutions in foreign or domestic currency.

There is a structural liquidity ratio (the Net Stable Funding Ratio or NSFR) developed in accordance with Basel III in effect for SICIs, which is applied on a consolidated basis if an SICI is the main credit institution of a banking group, and on an individual basis when an SICI is not the main credit institution of a banking group as defined for regulatory purposes. The NSFR is calculated according to the procedure established by BR Regulation No. 596-P of July 26, 2017, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the Structural Liquidity Ratio (NSFR) (Basel III) by SICIs.

No separate standards establishing requirements for calculation of the NSFR in foreign or domestic currency are applied in Russian banking regulation.

The classification of funds of individuals and small businesses into stable and unstable, including classification based on the currency, for the purpose of calculating the NSFR, is the same as that applied to the LCR as indicated above.

In accordance with Federal Law No. 353-FZ, the BR calculates and publishes on a quarterly basis the average market value of the total cost of consumer credit (loans) (TCC) in terms of percent per annum by categories of consumer credit (loans) defined by the BR. For credits in foreign currency, the TCC may not exceed the smaller of the following values: (1) 365% per annum or (2) more than one-third of the average market value of the TCC for the corresponding category in the given quarter. There is a similar limit for credits in rubles.

In accordance with the Federal Law on the Insurance of Bank Deposits in the Russian Federation, the BR calculates and discloses to an unrestricted group of persons on a monthly basis the base rate of return on deposits (by types of deposits grouped by one or several conditions of their placement at banks of the Russian Federation). The base rate of return on deposits is used for the identification of banks that pay an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions to the mandatory deposit insurance fund. Pursuant to Federal Law No. 163-FZ, effective October 1, 2020, an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit, respectively:

1. in foreign currency in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1 percentage point but by no more than 1.5 percentage points, or by more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;
2. in rubles in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but by no more than 3 percentage points, or by more than 3 percentage points per annum;
3. in foreign currency, certified by a savings certificate, the conditions of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to receive the deposit on demand, in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but by no more than 3 percentage points, or by more than 3 percentage points per annum;
4. in rubles, certified by a savings certificate, the conditions of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to receive the deposit on demand, in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points but by no more than 4 percentage points, or by more than 4 percentage points per annum.

Previously, if a bank allowed even one deposit in foreign currency to exceed the base rate of return on deposits by between 2 and 3 percentage points or by more than 3 percentage points per annum in any month of a quarter, the bank was considered to meet the criteria for the payment of an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions. There was a similar limit for deposits in rubles.

Credit controls

No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents
No.

Reserve requirements

No.

Reserve requirements are imposed on: (1) liabilities to nonresident legal entities (including nonresident banks) in rubles and/or in foreign currency; (2) liabilities to resident and nonresident individuals in rubles and/or in foreign currency; and (3) other liabilities in rubles and/or foreign currency.

For banks holding a general license and nonbank credit institutions the reserve requirement is 4.75% for all categories of liabilities in domestic currency subject to reserve requirements (liabilities to nonresident legal entities and individuals, other liabilities). The reserve requirements for banks holding a basic license are: effective July 1, 2019, 4.75% (previously 5%) for liabilities to nonresident legal entities and 1% for liabilities to individuals and other liabilities. The reserve requirement for credit institution’s liabilities in foreign currency is 8%. These requirements are in effect starting with the regulation of the size of required reserves for July 2019.
Liquid asset requirements  No.

Interest rate controls  No.  There is no difference in the methods for the regulation and monitoring of interest rates with regard to the accounts of residents and nonresidents.

Credit controls  No.

Investment regulations  Yes.

Abroad by banks  Yes.  In accordance with the banking legislation in force since June 1, 2017, there are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license, and a with transition period for existing banks with equity (capital) of less than 1 billion rubles to obtain a basic license until December 31, 2018.

There are no restrictions on direct investment by resident credit institutions associated with their acquisition of stocks (stakes) of foreign entities except when leading to the establishment of subsidiaries abroad.

At the same time, the BR has established the N6 and N12 ratios, which limit the maximum exposure per borrower (or group of related borrowers) and the use of a bank’s equity (capital) to purchase shares (equity stakes) of other legal entities, including those located abroad. The N6 ratio is defined as the ratio of the aggregate liabilities of a borrower (or group of related borrowers) to a bank and liabilities to third parties to the bank’s equity (capital). The N12 ratio is defined as the maximum ratio of funds invested by a bank in the acquisition of shares (equity stakes) of other legal entities to the bank’s equity (capital).

Banks with a basic license do not calculate the N12 ratio.

Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries (branches) abroad subject to authorization and in accordance with BR requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary in a foreign state. General licenses issued before June 1, 2017, to perform banking operations remain in force until they are replaced in the prescribed manner.

The BR does not authorize subsidiaries in countries (areas) designated by Russian law among those that do not participate in international cooperation to combat money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Approval from the BR is required for transactions involving the acquisition of shares and/or their receipt in trust that are issued by a Russian credit institution, the placement and/or trading of which outside Russia is carried out through their placement in accordance with the foreign securities law pertaining to foreign issuers and granting rights with regard to issued securities of Russian issuers. The threshold for participation (individually or as part of a group of individuals) in a Russian credit institution without BR consent is 10%. (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.)

BR approval is also required when operations are performed that result in the establishment of control over shareholders (equity stakeholders) of a Russian credit institution holding more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution. (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.)

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is required in the event of the acquisition by a legal entity or individual or group of individuals, defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, through the performance of one or several transactions, including those in the secondary market, of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) (including those acquired previously) in a private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company.
Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes
in the secondary market) over shareholders (stakeholders) (of a private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) that hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in said organization.
In accordance with the Treaty between Russia and Belarus on the creation of the Union State, the BR has established that transfers of funds in rubles and in foreign currency for participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, as well as the acquisition (disposal) of shares issued by Belarusian banks, and stakes in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, are to be carried out by authorized banks in accordance with Russian legislation on banks and banking, subject to notification requirements. Authorized banks are required to forward information to the BR regarding participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks following the procedure established by regulatory acts of the BR.

In banks by nonresidents

Yes.

The requirements established by Russian law regarding the acquisition of shares (equity stakes) in credit institutions extend to all investors regardless of their country of origin.

The acquisition and/or receipt in trust (referred to hereinafter as acquisition) of more than 1% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution resulting from the performance of one or more transactions by a single legal entity or individual, or group of persons defined in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, must be reported to the BR (with the exception of cases in which the shares (equity stakes) are acquired when a credit institution is being established). The threshold for participation in a Russian credit institution without BR consent is 10%. (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.) BR consent is also required for the establishment by a legal entity or an individual, as a result of the performance of one or more transactions, of direct or indirect (through third parties) control over shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution holding more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of the credit institution (referred to hereinafter as the establishment of control over the shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution). (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.)

These requirements also apply to the acquisition of more than 1% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, and/or the establishment of control with respect to shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution by a group of persons recognized as such in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition.

The BR has the right to refuse to give its consent for the performance of a transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution if:
(1) the financial condition of the person performing the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, or at the acquisition of 10% or less of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, and that is part of a group of persons acquiring (holding) more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, as well as an individual or legal entity exercising control over said legal entities, and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution, is found to be unsatisfactory;
(2) the antimonopoly authority has not approved a petition for consent to a transaction (or transactions) submitted in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, if the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition is (are) subject to controls in accordance with the antimonopoly legislation;
(3) there is no decision regarding prior consent to a transaction or to the acquisition of control in accordance with Federal Law No. 57-FZ of April 29, 2008, on the Procedure for Making Foreign Investments in Business Entities that are of Strategic Significance in providing for the National Defense and State Security, if the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition is (are) subject to controls in accordance with said federal law;
(4) the person performing the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution or their single-member executive bodies, has an unsatisfactory business reputation as established under Article 16, part 1, paragraph 5, of Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, on Banks and Banking;
(5) there are other grounds provided for under federal laws and BR regulations adopted in accordance with them.
The BR refuses to consent to a transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution if a court previously found the person performing the transaction aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution, guilty of causing losses to any credit institution in the performance of his duties as a member of the credit institution’s board of directors (or supervisory board), as the sole executive officer of the credit institution or a deputy executive officer, and/or as a member of a collegial executive body (executive board, administrative board).
Establishment of a Russian credit institution with the participation of foreign investments requires prior authorization from the BR.
In accordance with Federal Law No. 372-FZ of December 14, 2015, on Amendments to Articles 16 and 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking, adopted on the basis of the Russian Federation’s commitments in connection with accession to the WTO, the level of participation of foreign capital in the Russian Federation’s banking system is taken into account when considering whether the BR will issue a permit to establish a credit institution with foreign investments.
The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of nonresidents’ foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions that are licensed to perform banking operations to the aggregate authorized capital of said credit institutions.
The procedure for calculating the level of participation of foreign capital is defined under Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking and BR Directive No. 3948-U of January 28, 2016, on the Procedure for Calculating the Level of Participation of Foreign Capital in the Aggregate Authorized Capital of Credit Institutions.
Licensed to perform Banking Operations.
The following foreign investments are not included in the calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations:
(1) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that are financed at the expense of earnings of said credit institutions received in the Russian Federation or are repatriated to the Russian Federation from abroad;
(2) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations by subsidiary credit institutions of foreign banks licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(3) investments made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(4) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, the privatization of which was performed after August 22, 2012;
(5) investments representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations, performed after January 1, 2007, on the condition that said shares (equity stakes) are held by an investor for 12 or more years, unless the BR has adopted a decision before the expiration of this time period to continue to include said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption by the BR of such a decision and for its publication is established by the BR.
The maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is 50% (Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, “On Banks and Banking Activities”).
When the maximum level is reached, the BR performs the following measures with respect to foreign investments:
(1) it refuses to register a credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a banking license;
(2) it imposes a ban on an increase in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations using nonresidents’ funds and on the conveyance of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution in favor of nonresidents if such actions mean that the quota will be exceeded.
Shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution that have been conveyed (sold) in violation of such a ban are not voting shares and are not taken into account in determining a quorum at a general meeting of shareholders (stakeholders) of the credit institution for the period that such a ban is in effect. In the event that a transaction is performed to convey (acquire) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of the ban, the BR files a petition requesting that the relevant transaction be declared null and void.
The measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments referred to under Items 1 and 2 of the second part of Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking.
The measures provided for under Item 2 of the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of the Russian Federation.
The BR ceases to apply the measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it establishes as of January 1 of each year.

Information about the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and about the indicators used for its calculation is subject to publication in the official publication of the BR, the Bulletin of the BR, and it is also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year.

As of January 1, 2020, the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations was 11.79%.

BR Regulation No. 626-P of December 28, 2017, established the procedure and criteria for assessing the financial position of individuals who perform a transaction aimed at acquiring more than 10% of shares of a credit institution and/or gaining control of shareholders of the credit institution. BR Regulation No. 625-P establishes the procedure for assessing the compliance by such persons with business reputation requirements.

Open foreign exchange position limits Yes.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes.

The absolute value of open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution for each foreign currency and precious metal individually and the balancing position in rubles for all foreign currencies and precious metals is limited to 10% of the credit institution’s equity (capital). The absolute value of the total of all long (short) open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution is limited to 20% of the credit institution’s equity (capital). The limits are subject to calculation and observance on a daily basis.

The calculation of open foreign exchange positions includes balance-sheet assets and liabilities, as well as off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities of a credit institution, the amount (value) of which depends on changes in the exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble set by the BR and/or the prices for precious metals, if a foreign exchange revaluation thereof has a direct current or deferred impact on the amount of the credit institution’s equity (capital) (regardless of the jurisdiction of the counterparty under such assets (claims) and liabilities).

On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes.

The absolute value of the open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution in each foreign currency and precious metal individually and the balancing position in rubles for all foreign currencies and precious metals is limited to 10% of the credit institution’s equity (capital). The absolute value of the total of all long (short) open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution is limited to 20% of the credit institution’s equity (capital). The limits are subject to calculation and observance on a daily basis. Included in the calculation of open foreign exchange positions are on-balance-sheet assets and liabilities, as well as off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities of the credit institution, the amount (value) of which depends on changes in the exchange rates of foreign currencies with respect to the ruble set by the BR and/or the prices for precious metals if a foreign exchange revaluation thereof has a direct current or deferred impact on the amount of the credit institution’s equity (capital) (regardless of the jurisdiction of the counterparty under such assets (claims) and liabilities).
Foreign exchange assets (claims) and liabilities are included in the calculation of open foreign exchange positions regardless of the jurisdiction of the respective counterparty (on equal terms).

Restrictions apply on certain types of activities of insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital of over 49%, other than insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 234-FZ of July 23, 2013, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. Thus, said insurance companies may not provide personal life, health, or property insurance in the Russian Federation at the expense of funds allocated for these purposes from the respective budget to federal executive government authorities (insured parties); insurance related to the procurement of goods, work, and services to meet state and municipal needs; or insurance for the property interests of government and municipal organizations. A quota of 50% is set on foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies pursuant to Federal Law No. 267-FZ of December 25, 2012. If this percentage is exceeded, the insurance supervisory authority stops issuing licenses for the performance of insurance activities to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital over 49%. As of January 1, 2020, the quota for participation by foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies with an insurance license was 10.83% (the BR calculates and publishes this indicator on its official website on an annual basis in accordance with Article 6, paragraph 3, of Law No. 4015-1).

Insurance companies must obtain authorization for the following: (1) an increase in their authorized capital from funds of foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries; and (2) transfers of shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including for sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) must obtain authorization to transfer their shares (equity stakes) to foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries. The insurance supervisory authority denies prior authorization to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or that have a foreign ownership in their authorized capital exceeding 49% that attain this status as a result of the transactions indicated if the established quota of 50% is exceeded when completing such transactions. In addition, foreign investors pay for the shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) belonging to them exclusively in monetary form in the currency of the Russian Federation.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Free floating 03/09/2020

The Bank of Russia decided to suspend foreign exchange purchases by the fiscal rule for 30 days amid increased financial markets volatility. The decision applied to both regular foreign currency purchases and those postponed in 2018.
The Bank of Russia started open market sales of foreign currency received from the National Wealth Fund as part of the deal to acquire Sberbank shares. The foreign exchange sales for Sberbank deal were pre-announced on February 11, 2020.

The Bank of Russia announced that it would set the official exchange rate on non-business days announced in the Russian Federation (for example, related to quarantine), with the exception of non-business days that are weekends or official holidays.

Resident Accounts

Funds received from operations performed outside the territory of the Russian Federation between resident individuals who have spent a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year outside the Russian Federation and by resident legal entities that are Russian public higher education institutions or branches thereof, located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts may be credited to accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

Allowed credits to resident accounts abroad include funds received under credit facilities and loan agreements with nonresident agents of foreign governments and under credit facilities and loan agreements with residents of Eurasian Economic Union member states or with residents of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information (previously residents of OECD and FATF member countries), for a period exceeding two years.

The following funds may be credited to accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation: funds in the currency of the Russian Federation under foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded by such residents with nonresidents, with respect to which the repatriation requirement has been lifted; those paid by a nonresident pursuant to the requirements of the laws of a foreign state, bypassing accounts at authorized banks, in the form of income from the sale of precious metals recorded on accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

Residents may without restriction open accounts (deposits) in foreign currency and in rubles at other (nonbank) institutions in the financial market, in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on the account of a resident.

Funds received from nonresidents may be credited without restriction to accounts (deposits) of resident individuals opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation on the condition that these banks are located within the territory of an Eurasian Economic Union member state or within the territory of a foreign state (territory) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information. Previously, the following funds received from nonresidents could be credited to accounts of resident individuals opened at banks in OECD or FATF member countries: (1) income from the leasing (or subletting) of the resident individual’s real estate or other property located outside Russia to nonresidents; (2) funds paid in the form of accumulated interest (coupon) income provided for under the terms of an issue of foreign securities belonging to a resident individual, as well as other income on foreign securities (dividends, payments on bonds and bills, and payments when there is a reduction in the authorized capital of an issuer of a foreign security; and (3) funds paid to a resident individual in the form of income earned from the placement of funds and/or securities in trust with a nonresident trust manager.

04/17/2020 The crediting of funds to accounts (deposits) of residents opened at financial market institutions located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on the account of a resident, and the debiting of funds from such accounts (deposits) are performed in all cases without restriction.

08/11/2020 Funds paid in the form of insurance payouts by nonresident insurers may be credited to the accounts of representative offices or branches of resident legal entities opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

08/11/2020 The definition of funds in resident accounts abroad was clarified to include cash and other financial assets.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

08/02/2019 The repatriation requirement does not apply when crediting foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation to accounts opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation by Russian public higher education institutions and their branches located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts with nonresident individuals that provide for the delivery of educational services outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

10/16/2019 A resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of the Russian Federation or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian Federation currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds.

12/02/2019 The repatriation requirement does not apply to foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation credited to accounts of resident legal entities or third parties with banks outside the territory of the Russian Federation to fulfill the obligations of resident legal entities under credit facilities and loan agreements with nonresident agents of foreign governments and under credit facilities and loan agreements with residents of Eurasian Economic Union member states or with residents of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information (previously residents of OECD and FATF member countries), for a period exceeding two years.
01/01/2020 The repatriation requirement for export earnings was lifted with respect to foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded between residents and nonresidents, the obligations under which are denominated in the currency of the Russian Federation and the terms of which call for payment in the currency of the Russian Federation, and which provide for the transfer of non-commodity goods by residents to nonresidents, as well as other types of foreign trade contracts.

08/11/2020 The repatriation requirement does not apply when foreign currency is used to offset counterclaims for obligations in the event that settlements between resident and nonresident transportation entities are performed in accordance with rules adopted by international organizations in the area of international shipments, which establish the procedure for the performance of mutual settlements and related services.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements 08/02/2019 The repatriation requirement does not apply when crediting foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation to accounts opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation by Russian public higher education institutions and their branches located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts with nonresident individuals that provide for the delivery of educational services outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

10/16/2019 A resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of the Russian Federation or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian Federation currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds.

12/02/2019 The repatriation requirement does not apply to foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation credited to accounts of resident legal entities or third parties with banks outside the territory of the Russian Federation to fulfill the obligations of resident legal entities under credit facilities and loan agreements with nonresident agents of foreign governments and under credit facilities and loan agreements with residents of Eurasian Economic Union member states or with residents of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information (previously residents of OECD and FATs member countries), for a period exceeding two years.

01/01/2020 The repatriation requirement for export earnings was lifted with respect to foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded between residents and nonresidents, the obligations under which are denominated in the currency of the Russian Federation and the terms of which call for payment in the currency of the Russian Federation, and which provide for the transfer of non-commodity goods by residents to nonresidents, as well as other types of foreign trade contracts.

The repatriation requirement does not apply when foreign currency is used to offset counterclaims for obligations in the event that settlements between resident and nonresident transportation entities are performed in accordance with rules adopted by international organizations in the area of international shipments, which establish the procedure for the performance of mutual settlements and related services.

| 10/01/2020 | Pursuant to Federal Law No. 163-FZ, an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit, respectively:
(1) in foreign currency in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1 percentage point but by no more than 1.5 percentage points, or by more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;
(2) in rubles in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but by no more than 3 percentage points, or by more than 3 percentage points per annum;
(3) in foreign currency, certified by a savings certificate, the conditions of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to receive the deposit on demand, in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but by no more than 3 percentage points, or by more than 3 percentage points per annum;
(4) in rubles, certified by a savings certificate, the conditions of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to receive the deposit on demand, in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points but by no more than 4 percentage points, or by more than 4 percentage points per annum. |

Previously, if a bank allowed even one deposit in foreign currency to exceed the base rate of return on deposits by between 2 and 3 percentage points or by more than 3 percentage points per annum in any month of a quarter, the bank was considered to meet the criteria for the payment of an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions. There was a similar limit for deposits in rubles.

Exchange Arrangement

- Currency: Yes. The currency of Rwanda is the Rwandan franc.
- Other legal tender: No.

Exchange rate structure

- Unitary: Yes.

Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Conventional peg
- Stabilized arrangement
- Crawling peg
- Crawl-like arrangement: Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The National Bank of Rwanda (BNR) has intervened directly to prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate. Since March 2015, the exchange rate has followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement. The BNR discloses data on its interventions on the same day when there is an intervention.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands
The BNR’s official rate is based on the weighted average of the previous day’s market rates of foreign exchange interbank and BNR intervention transactions, if any. Otherwise, the BNR follows the trend of the previous day’s selling rates of commercial banks to their clients for transfer operations only. This methodology aims to unify the BNR middle rate by shifting to a market-based rate represented by foreign exchange interbank and intervention transactions. The rate is determined every morning and is the basis for financial institutions’ valuation of their financial assets.

Other monetary framework | Yes. | Effective January 1, 2019, the BNR shifted from monetary targeting to price-based monetary policy. The MPC sets the monetary policy stance and announces the Central Bank Rate (CBR). The target is the seven-day interbank rate that must be within a band of ±1% around the CBR.

Exchange tax | No. |
Exchange subsidy | No. |

Foreign exchange market | Yes. | Authorized intermediaries freely set their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market | Yes. | As of December 31, 2019, there were 16 banks, including 11 commercial banks, 3 microfinance banks, and 1 cooperative bank; 20 microfinance institutions; 457 microfinance institutions including savings and credit cooperatives (SACCOs); and 85 foreign exchange bureaus licensed by the BNR. The foreign exchange bureaus do not enter into transactions with the BNR and may not open accounts abroad. They may only purchase and sell banknotes and may not make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. The minimum capital requirement for foreign exchange bureaus is FRW 50 million since February 22, 2017. The BNR placed a moratorium on licensing new foreign exchange bureaus on February 22, 2017.

Operated by the central bank | Yes. |

Foreign exchange standing facility | No. |

Allocation | Yes. | When market assessment indicates undue volatility in the market, the BNR announces to market participants its intention to intervene in the market.

Auction | No. |
Fixing | No. |

Interbank market | Yes. | The interbank market operates on the basis of direct transactions between banks. As of December 31, 2019, there were 11 commercial banks licensed by the BNR to participate in the foreign exchange interbank market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions for market participants. The CB intervenes directly with market participants (commercial banks) at the preannounced intervention rate based on the market rate.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)
On domestic ownership and/or trade Yes. Trading is restricted to dealers approved by the relevant authorities. The approvals are granted by the Ministry of Trade and Industry. There are no controls on domestic ownership of gold (coins and/or bullion). Under anti-money-laundering legislation, gold dealers (dealers in precious stones) are considered reporting entities under the control of the Financial Investigation Unit.

On external trade Yes. Imports and exports of gold must be reported. Gold mining, refining, trade, and export is a regulated business that requires a license which is issued by the Rwanda Mines, Petroleum, and Gas Board (RMB) as the responsible regulatory authority, a requirement of the Mining Law. This requirement is not restricted to gold alone, but rather applicable to all other minerals was well. The RMB has two types of Mineral Export Certificates. The ICGLR Mineral Exports Certificate is governed by the Regional Certification Mechanism (RCM) to support the “Bag & Tag” system established to determine the chain of custody of the 3Ts (Tin, Tantalum, and Tungsten) to fight against illegal exploitation of these minerals in the Great Lakes region. The Rwanda Mineral Export Certificate is the national initiative to ensure proper reporting, demand due diligence, and transparency in non-3T minerals, including gold. It is issued by the RMB, and for gold, it commenced being issued effective July 1, 2020.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes
On exports Yes.

- Domestic currency No. There are no controls with respect to resident and nonresident individuals on domestic currency. The amount of cash or the value of the negotiable instruments that a person may carry leaving the territory of Republic of Rwanda without need to make declaration is US$10,000 or equivalent in other currencies.

- Foreign currency Yes. Commercial banks that need to export banknotes must request approval from the BNR in accordance with Regulation No. 05/2013 of October 21, 2013, Governing Foreign Exchange Operations (Article 37). There are no quantitative limits. The amount of cash or the value of the negotiable instruments that a person may carry leaving the territory of Republic of Rwanda without need to make declaration is US$10,000 or equivalent in other currencies.

On imports No.

- Domestic currency No. There are no controls with respect to resident and nonresident individuals on domestic currency. Residents may freely contract loans in foreign currency from nonresident banks and international financial institutions to finance their activities, but they need to take into consideration the interest rate risks and ensure that the foreign exchange risk is mitigated. For statistical purposes, the loan agreement must be recorded with the BNR together with the following information: (1) contract.
identification number; (2) date of contract; (3) amount of loan; (4) loan currency; (5) reason for the loan; (6) interest rate; (7) commissions; (8) repayment period; (9) grace period; (10) maturity period; (11) frequency of payment; and (12) existence of guarantee. Licensed banks no longer need a certificate of loan registration from the BNR before they may transfer interest and reimburse capital (Regulation No. 05/2013 of October 21, 2013, Governing Foreign Exchange Operations).

Currency board

Conventional peg
Yes.

The CBS Act of 2015 states that the Central Bank of Samoa (CBS) is responsible for setting the exchange rate. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg vis-à-vis a currency composite of currencies of its major trading partners. Currencies included in the Samoan tala basket are the US dollar, New Zealand dollar, Australian dollar, and euro. Annual reviews of the currency weights in the Samoan tala basket reflect the payment pattern of Samoa’s trade in goods and travel receipts in the previous calendar year. The Samoan tala fluctuates based on the movements of the currencies within the basket. The CBS stands ready to maintain the stability of the nominal value of the Samoan tala through a direct adjustment, if necessary and relevant. This is only considered when the authorities identify a significant adverse economic impact on the Samoan economy from any unforeseen major event (externally or domestically).
The Samoan tala continues to be pegged to a basket of the currencies of Samoa’s main trading partners – Australia, New Zealand, USA, and Euro. The currency weights are reviewed on an annual basis, taking into account Samoa’s distribution of trade and travel transactions between Samoa and its main trading partners. The CBS Board of Directors endorses the outcomes of these annual reviews within the first quarter of each year. A review of the 2019 currency basket weights was endorsed by the CBS Board of Directors, effective February 1, 2019. A review of the 2020 currency basket weights was endorsed by the CBS Board of Directors, effective February 7, 2020. Due to COVID-19 developments since March 2020, CBS monitored the impact of exchange rate developments on the Sāmoa Tala. A midyear review was undertaken for the first time, which saw changes to the currency basket weights as endorsed by the CBS Board of Directors June 26, 2020 and became effective July 1, 2020.

The exchange rate may be adjusted within a \( \pm 2\% \) range at the discretion of the governor; however for adjustments greater than \( \pm 2\% \), the approval of the CBS Board is necessary. Only the CBS may decide on a change in the exchange rate arrangement, if it is deemed necessary after extensive study. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes.

The primary monetary policy objective of the CBS is price stability, while ensuring sustained economic growth and adequate level of foreign exchange reserves. Operationally, the CBS targets reserve money (primarily, the commercial banks’ excess reserve level, that is, demand deposit balances of the commercial banks held at CBS, private sector credit growth, and M2), using the level of CBS securities to influence liquidity. Monetary policy is implemented through open-market operations with CBS securities that have tenors ranging from 14 days to 365 days. But the turnover is low. There is no secondary market for CBS securities. Interbank trading on securities and foreign exchange is very limited, and the local money market remains shallow. The CBS monitors inflation (to ensure it does not exceed 3%), private sector credit growth, and foreign exchange reserves, with the exchange rate policy offering a complementary role to ensure imported inflation is contained and to ensure the competitiveness of Samoa’s external sector, where necessary given the small size of the economy.

Exchange tax  No.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.

Authorized banks may freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions, except for the US dollar, with their clients. A bid-ask spread of 170 basis points is set for the US dollar by the CBS, within which commercial banks may determine their spreads and commissions.

Other participants in the foreign exchange market, namely authorized money changers, are allowed to freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions. The CB, however, collects and monitors these data to ensure the exchange rates offered to the general public are consistent with those by authorized banks.

Spot exchange market  Yes.

There are 4 commercial banks and 12 authorized foreign exchange dealers (AFEDs) as of December 31, 2019. Of the 12 AFEDs, 11 are authorized to provide both money exchange and money transfer services for their clients, and 1 is solely an authorized money changer authorized to purchase and sell foreign currency banknotes. In contrast to authorized commercial banks, the operations of authorized money transfer operators (MTOs) and money changers are limited in the types of transactions that can be carried out.

Authorized MTOs may conduct some foreign exchange transactions similar to authorized commercial banks (for example, make payments between Samoa and the rest of the world), while authorized money changers are licensed by the CBS to only buy and sell foreign currency banknotes (in exchange with Samoan tala) in Samoa. The minimum capital requirement placed on authorized money changers is SAT 30,000.

Authorized money exchange businesses may not conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBS. Only the commercial banks may buy and sell US dollars directly with the CBS.

There is no capital market in foreign currencies yet.

Operated by the central bank  Yes.

When dealing with commercial banks, the CBS deals at the spot exchange rate valued two days later.

Foreign exchange standing facility  Yes.

The CBS sells and buys foreign currency, currently US dollars, in the foreign exchange market at the request of commercial banks. The bid-ask spread is 20 basis points around the official midrate. Aside from local commercial banks, the CBS also sells and buys US dollars from World Bank finance institutions (International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) and International Development Association (IDA)). The CBS also transacts with the government, as its bank: the CBS may buy foreign currency funds relating to government and sell the Samoan tala in exchange, and provide payment services for foreign exchange payments abroad.

Allocation  No.

The CBS does not allocate a specific amount of foreign currency to its AD banks; it buys and sells foreign exchange at the banks' request, mainly to cover for any short position in the banking system. For the purpose of foreign exchange reserves management, the CBS generally asks commercial banks the purpose and source of substantial sums of foreign exchange sold or bought. The CBS generally does not verify these major transactions—deemed normal foreign exchange flows for regular clients' large payments for imports, including for oil—according to any particular conditions. However, where a major transaction includes a CBS approved overseas capital payment, verification is made by reference to the Exchange Control approval, if any. Overseas capital payments are sometimes given a set payment date, so the actual timing and occurrence of these flows may be verified. However, most overseas capital payments, including dividend repatriation (to parent companies or headquarters office abroad), may be made anytime within 30 days of CBS approval, so timing and occurrence cannot be verified. Commercial banks are sometimes able to service these flows with their own foreign currency holdings rather than by purchasing US dollars from the CBS. Some flows (for example, forward exchange contracts) are expected to be self-sourced and do not require US dollar purchases from the CBS.

Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign exchange among themselves. If they cannot obtain or sell their foreign exchange in the interbank market, they may buy from or sell (US dollars only) to the CBS. Interbank market participants are the four licensed commercial banks (ANZ Bank, Bank of South Pacific, National Bank of Samoa, and Samoa Commercial Bank). The CBS does not impose limits on the bid-ask spread for foreign exchange trade in the interbank market.

Commercial banks deal directly with each other on the interbank market; there is no broker between the buyer and seller.

The interbank market operates under an arrangement whereby the transacting participants mutually agree to a single exchange rate at which they may trade foreign exchange. For instance, commercial banks might agree to use the CBS midrate for US dollars to buy or sell US dollars among themselves.

Commercial banks are permitted to make forward exchange contracts. The CBS does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency No.

For current transactions and payments No.

For capital transactions No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments No.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments No.

Credit operations No.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. The domestic use of foreign exchange is subject to CBS approval.

Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements No.

Operative No.
Regional arrangements Yes. Samoa participates in PACER plus, PICTA, and the South Pacific Regional Trade and Economic Cooperation Agreement. Samoa is a member of the WTO.

Clearing agreements No.

Barter agreements and open accounts No.

Administration of control Yes. The CBS has overall responsibility for the administration of foreign exchange control: it delegates some authority to AD banks and selected foreign exchange dealers. In principle, all capital payments to nonresidents require CBS approval; however, commercial banks and foreign exchange dealers (MTOs) may approve most current payments without limits, with supporting documentation, usual due diligence, and compliance with anti-money-laundering requirements. There is no limit on money transfer companies’ transfers for current payments. Banks and money transfer companies may transfer unlimited amounts for advance payments and import payments, with documentation. Other current transactions are still subject to specified limits. For example, AFEDs and commercial banks may purchase and sell foreign exchange cash equivalent up to SAT 20,000 an individual for travel purposes. Larger amounts that are to be hand carried during travel abroad require CBS approval.

Payments arrears No.

Payments arrears Official No.

Payments arrears Private No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) No. The CBS is permitted to trade in gold under the CBS Act 2015.

On domestic ownership and/or trade No. The CBS Act 2015 permits the CB to buy, sell, and deal in gold coins and/or bullion, but it does not regulate domestic ownership and/or trading of gold.

On external trade No. The CBS Act 2015 does not regulate external trade in gold.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.

On exports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. CBS Exchange Control approval is required for any amount of domestic currency to be exported.

Foreign currency Yes. Through AFEDs, residents may hand carry the equivalent of SAT 20,000 in foreign currency a person a trip for overseas travel purposes. Exporting amounts exceeding this limit requires prior CBS approval. Nonresidents may export as much foreign currency as they brought into Samoa. Commercial banks and authorized money changers require CBS approval to export excess foreign currency banknotes.

On imports No. Declaration is to be made to Customs if the amount exceeds SAT 20,000.

Domestic currency No.

Foreign currency No. Amounts in excess of the equivalent of SAT 20,000 must be declared at the port of entry.

Subject to CBS approval, residents who earn foreign exchange may open a foreign currency deposit account if there is a need to settle overseas commitments.

Residents who earn foreign exchange in the normal course of their business may open, with CBS approval, foreign currency deposit accounts with one of the four AD banks. CBS approval is granted only, subject to appropriate documentation, to those who are genuine earners of foreign exchange and have a genuine need to settle overseas commitments with foreign exchange.

Prior CBS approval is required for the transfer of funds abroad for capital transactions and some current payments (namely, management fees, dividends to foreign shareholders, and insurance and/or reinsurance premiums of CBS-licensed institutions). A Balance of Payments (BOP) form to be authorized by the CBS is required to be submitted to the commercial banks and/or MTOs for processing of payment. If funds are moved for the purpose of current payments (for example, imports), AD banks and MTOs delegated by the CBS may effect payment and, complete foreign exchange payment details on their respective telegraphic transfer (TT) form, for later submission electronically to the CBS with the appropriate supporting documentation at the beginning of the next month.

CBS approval is required to hold foreign exchange accounts abroad mainly if they relate to investments overseas by residents.

Exports of domestic currency are subject to exchange control regulations. However, there is no specific clause in the regulations indicating that accounts denominated in tala may or may not be held abroad.

CBS approval is required to convert from domestic currency account to foreign currency, only in relation to capital payment transactions. In other cases, funds from a domestic currency account in Samoa may be converted to foreign currency consistent with the delegated authorities granted to AD banks.

Nonresident Accounts

Nonresidents who earn foreign exchange may open a foreign currency deposit account with any of the commercial banks without CBS approval.

Funds from these accounts may be freely transferred abroad for any current international transaction.

Prior CBS approval is required only when foreign exchange accounts of nonresidents held in Samoan banks are closed and funds are requested to be transferred overseas. Transfers up to the equivalent of SAT 50,000 from a closed foreign exchange account of a nonresident may be authorized and processed by the commercial banks. Amounts in excess of SAT 50,000 equivalent require prior CBS approval.

Domestic currency accounts

Yes.

External Accounts are accounts in Samoan tala held by individuals, organizations, or entities that are regarded as nonresident with authorized banks under Exchange Control purposes. Opening domestic currency accounts does not require CBS approval, but there are restrictions on the types of funds in Samoan tala that may be credited to these accounts as follows.

External Accounts may be credited with funds sourced from the following: (1) interest payable on the account; (2) payments from other External Accounts; (3) payments by residents of Samoa for which permissions have been given either under a delegated authority given to the banks in an Exchange Control notice or specifically by the CB; (4) the proceeds of sale of foreign currency by the account holder sourced externally or remaining from travel funds; (5) the proceeds of Samoan currency notes received from the account holder when he is leaving Samoa after a temporary visit, provided the authorized bank maintaining the account is reasonably satisfied that the notes were obtained in Samoa by the sale of foreign currency or by the debit of an External Account or were brought into the country by the traveler; (6) salaries and wages due from employment in Samoa.

External Accounts may be debited with: (1) payments to residents of Samoa; (2) payments to other External Accounts; (3) payments in cash in Samoa; (4) cost of foreign exchange facilities for travel purchased in accordance with EC Notice 9; (5) cost of foreign currency purchased by the account holder in accordance with EC Notice 5; and (6) payment in foreign currency to nonresidents.

Banks are authorized to debit an External Account without any limits within their delegated authority, except for capital transactions, which still requires CBS approval. An Exchange Control BOP2 form is to be completed at all times, as required by the CBS. There is an exemption from these exchange control requirements for official accounts of diplomatic corps (for example, embassies, delegations, consulates, and offices of high commissioners, UN agencies).

There are some restrictions on the importation of meat and meat products from Asia, alcohol, cigarettes, some equipment used with animals/fish/plants, chemicals, and selected fresh/dried fruits. The importation of any pornographic material, drugs and firearms, narcotics, and unlawful weapons is also restricted. The importation of selected types of lights, air-conditioning units, and refrigeration appliances is now in place with the commencement of the Sāmoa Energy Efficiency Act 2017 as of December 21, 2017. The Energy Efficiency Regulation took effect at various times for different products.

Household refrigerators and freezers imported into Samoa must meet Minimum Energy Performance Standards (MEPS) and carry standard energy labels if they were ordered from importers after March 4, 2018. The test standards, MEPS, and energy labeling rules are set out in the Regulations.

Air conditioners imported into Samoa must meet MEPS and carry standard energy labels from September 5, 2018. The test standards, MEPS, and energy labeling rules are set out in the Regulations.

Lighting products (incandescent lamps, fluorescent lamps, and ballasts) imported into Samoa must meet MEPS, effective March 5, 2019. The test standards and MEPS rules are set out in the Regulations.

The importation of some products is prohibited or restricted for reasons of security or health or as a result of trade agreements. Importation of refrigerators that use chlorofluorocarbons is prohibited for environmental reasons. Honey is also prohibited for reasons of biosecurity and the protection of the local industry.

Effective January 30, 2019, single-use plastics have been banned or prohibited from importation.

There are prohibitions on the type of packaging that imported goods need to comply with such as for certain food items (such as tinned/canned fish and tinned/canned corned beef) consistent with government directives from time to time. For example, only boxes/cartons of 12 tinned fish in a box are allowed to be imported, instead of the previous 24 tinned fish a box.

Imports of meat, meat products, livestock, and plants and plant products in commercial consignments are usually covered under Open General Licenses (OGLs). Private consignments are limited, but there is flexibility, depending on the reasons why an applicant requests for amounts more than necessary for private individual consumption.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Yes. Prior CBS approval is required for certain current transaction payments abroad for services. These include payments overseas of management fees, insurance/reinsurance premiums by CBS-licensed institutions (for example, banks, MTOs, and insurance companies), and dividends.

Trade-related payments

Yes. ADs may approve these payments, provided applicants submit relevant documentary proof.

Prior approval

Yes. The remittance of a freight company’s excess receipts/income (from their operations in Sāmoa) to their overseas head office requires a prior CBS approval effective August 1, 2019 for amounts in excess of SAT$1.0 million. Any amounts to be remitted abroad that is less than SAT$1.0 million are delegated to the AFEDs.

Quantitative limits

Yes. Effective August 1, 2019, delegated limits for the remittance of a freight company’s excess receipts/income to their head office are SAT$1.0 million; any amounts in excess of this value require prior CBS approval.

Indicative limits/bona fide test

Prior approval

| Yes. | Prior approval is required only if payment for family support exceeds SAT 100,000 an applicant a year. Family support refers to assisting with daily living expenses for family overseas. It does not cover family alimony/maintenance. Prior approval for medical payments is required only when payments to be paid directly to the medical institutions exceed SATS100,000 per medical treatment, and/or payments to be paid directly to the patient exceed SATS10,000 per applicant per annum. |

Quantitative limits

| Yes. | Effective August 1, 2019, payment for family support up to SAT 100,000 (previously SAT 50,000) an applicant a year does not require CBS approval. CBS approval is required for higher amounts. Family support refers to assisting with daily living expenses for family overseas. It does not cover family alimony/maintenance. Medical payments have been delegated to the AFEDs where payments are to be paid directly to the medical institutions up to SATS100,000 per medical treatment, and payments to be paid directly to the patient are up to SATS10,000 per applicant per annum. Any payments exceeding these limits require prior CBS approval. |

Indicative limits/bona fide test

| Yes. | There is no specific limit on costs for study abroad, but the amount...
Foreign workers' wages  Yes.

Prior approval  Yes.  Expatriate workers with local contracts of one year and longer are considered residents; however, they are not required to obtain CBS approval if they wish to repatriate their net earnings during their contract period. Earnings not repatriated during the contract period may be repatriated at the end of the contract period.

Regulations on nonresident domestic currency accounts apply. Prior CBS approval is required when foreign exchange accounts of nonresidents held in Samoan banks are closed (for example, at the end of a foreign worker’s contract) and funds are requested to be transferred overseas. Transfers up to the equivalent of SAT 50,000 from a closed foreign exchange account of a nonresident may be authorized and processed by the commercial banks. Amounts in excess of SAT 50,000 equivalent require prior CBS approval.

Quantitative limits  No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test  Yes.  Foreign workers who wish to remit wages abroad must confirm to the AD banks that they are expatriates and provide supporting documents, such as an employment permit or visa, confirmation of the salary earned, other employment documents that verify the legitimacy of the source of the income, and documents to support the purpose of the remittance abroad.

Credit card use abroad  No.  The CBS does not regulate the use of credit cards, which is typically up to commercial banks.

Prior approval  No.  In the event that the credit card is used for a foreign capital payment, prior CBS approval would be required. However, because of known limits on credit cards, it would be unlikely that any capital payments would require the use of credit cards.

Quantitative limits  No.  The CBS places no quantitative limits on credit card use abroad. However, because AD banks issue the credit cards, it is their responsibility to ensure that their use complies with the foreign exchange limits on outward transfers under the Exchange Control regulations.

Indicative limits/bona fide test  No.  Verification of the use of credit cards is the responsibility of the commercial banks that issue them.

Other payments  Yes.  These are delegated to AD banks and MTOs to process and do not require prior CBS approval.

Quantitative limits  No.  There are no quantitative limits. However, the applicant must satisfy the CBS’ request for relevant supporting documentation.

Indicative limits/bona fide test  Yes.  There are no specific limits on subscriptions and membership fees; amounts requested must be supported by documentary evidence.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements  Yes.  There is no specific time limit before which proceeds from invisible transactions and transfers are to be repatriated back to Samoa. Generally, the export of services would require the receipt of funds into the Samoan banking system immediately following the service rendered. Otherwise, the same rules apply as in the export of goods. Specifically, export proceeds must be received no later than two months from shipment date if exporting to countries other than...
American Samoa, and within one month of shipment date if going to American Samoa. The CBS allows exporters (individuals or businesses) to credit their foreign currency accounts with export proceeds and to debit them to meet import payments and other business-related commitments as approved by the CB at the time of application for such accounts. The exporters have the discretion to sell to the banks any foreign currency from their accounts in Samoan tala.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
No. No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2019.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Yes. In accordance with EU regulations and the relevant UNSC resolutions, San Marino maintains exchange and/or payment restrictions for the preservation of national or international security.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)
Yes. Law No. 92 of June 17, 2008, and subsequent amendments, adopted, in compliance with the international obligations assumed by San Marino to combat money laundering, terrorism, financing of terrorism, and activities that threaten international peace and security, provides for the adoption of restrictive measures conforming to the resolutions of the UNSC or one of its Committees. The restrictive measures include the following: (1) the freezing of funds and economic resources held or controlled, directly or indirectly, by persons, entities, or groups included in the list drawn up by the appropriate UN Committee; (2) commercial restrictions, including commercial restrictions on imports or exports and arms embargoes; (3) restrictions of a financial nature, including financial restrictions or financial assistance and prohibition against providing financial services; and (4) restrictions of any other nature, including restrictions on technical assistance, flight prohibitions, prohibition against entry or transit, diplomatic sanctions, the suspension of cooperation, and the boycotting of sporting events.

Other security restrictions
Yes. Law No. 92 of June 17, 2008, and subsequent amendments, adopted, in compliance with the international obligations assumed by San Marino to combat money laundering, terrorism, financing of terrorism, and activities that threaten international peace and security, provides for the adoption of restrictive measures conforming to the resolutions of the UNSC or one of its Committees. Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes. The currency of San Marino is the euro.

Other legal tender
Yes. Although the gold scudo is legal tender, it is not used in transactions because its numismatic value exceeds its defined legal value of €37.50 per scudo. Euro collector coins and gold scudi are not used in transactions because their numismatic value exceeds their nominal value.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary
Yes.

Dual

Multiple

Classification
The exchange rate arrangement is an exchange arrangement with no separate legal tender. On March 27, 2012, San Marino signed a monetary agreement with the EU repealing the previous monetary agreement of November 29, 2000. The agreement authorizes San Marino to use the euro as its official currency, grant legal tender status to euro banknotes and coins, and issue limited quantities of euro coins. San Marino is committed to adopting the relevant EU legislation (on euro banknotes and coins; combating fraud and counterfeiting; banking and financial legislation, including the prevention of money-laundering and statistical reporting requirements) within the time specified by that agreement. The list of legal acts to be implemented and the time limits for their transposition are reviewed each year by a “Joint Committee” as provided by Articles 8 and 11 of the Monetary Agreement.

The CBSM is the sole agency entitled to carry out transactions in unrefined gold. The CBSM may authorize operators to buy unrefined gold for manufacturing purposes under the necessary controls. Currently, there is no unrefined gold trade in San Marino.

The CBSM may authorize operators to buy unrefined gold for manufacturing purposes under the necessary controls. Once authorized, operators must report periodically to the CBSM details on the manufacturing activity.

San Marino economic operators may be authorized to purchase unrefined gold only for goods manufacturing purposes. Statistical reporting to the CBSM is requested. No economic operators have yet been authorized.

To combat money laundering, transactions in cash or bearer securities when the value of the transaction, even fractioned, is equal or higher than €10,000 must be made through banks. Moreover, a declaration system applies to the cross-border transportation of cash and similar instruments. Travelers, banks, and other FIs are required to declare the importations or exportations of banknotes or coins in euros or foreign currency in amounts greater than €10,000 or the equivalent value. Import and export control at the borders is generally handled by the police forces in conjunction with routine control operations. Banks must ask for the customers’ declarations of cross-border transportation, if they deem that the cash is of cross-border origins.

Exports exceeding the amount of €10,000 of cash and similar instruments must be declared.

Exports of foreign banknotes or coins or similar instruments when the amount exceeds €10,000 or the equivalent value must be declared.

Imports of cash and similar instruments exceeding the amount of €10,000 must be declared.

Imports of foreign banknotes or coins or similar instruments when the amount exceeds €10,000 or the equivalent value must be declared.

Import taxes and/or tariffs Yes. Customs duties on imports from outside the EU are collected by EU customs authorities on behalf of San Marino. A tax is levied by San Marino on imports at the time of entry. The structure of this tax corresponds closely to the Italian VAT, but the average effective rate is about 5% lower. Taxes levied on imports are rebated when the goods are reexported. Aircrafts registered in San Marino are exempt from import duties or VAT if their maximum takeoff weight exceeds 5,700 kg. Ships over 10 meters long owned by foreign entities and stationed outside the territorial waters of countries with which San Marino has stationing and port usage agreements are not subject to import tax.
Taxes collected through the exchange system No.
State import monopoly Yes. The importation of tobacco, electricity, gas, and water is reserved for the public sector.

Residents and nonresidents may not establish companies in some specific economic sectors without the government’s approval. The Decree No. 176/2018 (December 2018), ratified effective March 26, 2019, by the Decree No. 50/2019, abolished the preliminary nonimpediment (“nulla osta”) of the Congress of State (Government), for any authorization by the supervisory authority, or any change in its authorization, for the exercise of reserved activities relates to activities in Sections A (banking), C (fiduciary activity), D (investment services), E (collective investment services), G (insurance), and H (reinsurance) of Attachment 1 of the Law No. 165/2005. Previously, authorization by the supervisory authority, or any change in its authorization, must be followed by a declaration of nonimpediment by the Congress of State (government) if authorization for the exercise of reserved activities relates to the abovementioned economic sectors.

The following sectors are also regulated and subject to specific authorization by the government or the authorities: (1) gambling (including entrepreneurial activities); (2) socio-health-care; (3) the economic and commodity sectors in accordance with Delegated Decree No. 116 of December 12, 2007, as amended and completed (Delegated Decree No. 17 of February 12, 2009, and Delegated Decree No. 122 of August 31, 2009), whose entrepreneurial activities are subject to government authorization.
Controls on real estate transactions

- Purchase abroad by residents: No.
- Purchase locally by nonresidents: Yes. Effective June 18, 2019, purchases by domestic companies and foreign citizens (residents and nonresidents) no longer require approval of the Council of Twelve, following the Delegated Decree No. 105/2019. Previously, the purchase of real estate by domestic companies and foreign citizens required the approval of the Council of Twelve. Effective October 10, 2019, Law No. 154/2019 (from Articles 21 to 27) containing the same provision substituted Decree No. 105/2019 (which expired September 19, 2019). Currently, the limit of the number of real estate assets that can be purchased without Council of Twelve approval is 2 for physical persons and 10 for companies. Exclusions apply to real estate companies and purchases of properties classified as “monumental value.”
- Sale locally by nonresidents: No.

Controls on personal capital transactions

- Loans: Yes.
  - By residents to nonresidents: Yes. San Marino regulations do not preclude the grant of loans to nonresidents. Sammarinese Banks and Financial Companies are allowed to grant loans to nonresidents. However, San Marino banks and financial companies are allowed to carry out and to offer financial services only within the territory of San Marino. This means that the granting of loan by a San Marino banks or financial companies to a nonresident may occur only in the event of a nonresident on its own initiative come directly to San Marino banks or financial companies requiring a loan. CBSM Regulation No. 2007-07 and CBSM Regulation No. 2011-03 govern, respectively, the collection of savings and banking activities and the financing operation of financial companies.
  - To residents from nonresidents: No.

- Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies: Yes.
  - By residents to nonresidents: Yes. Foreign citizens (residents and nonresidents) in some cases are not allowed to accept real estate by inheritance, endowment, or legacy without approval of the Council of Twelve, according to Article 25 of Law No. 118/2010. However, the liberalization introduced by the Delegated Decree No. 105/2019 also applies in some cases. The approval of Council of Twelve is not necessary in the case of a foreigner, a direct descendant, or a foreign spouse of a San Marino citizen or of a deceased resident alien, that have become heirs by legitimate or testamentary succession, as provided by Article 25 of Law No. 118/2010.
  - To residents from nonresidents: No.

- Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants: No.
- Transfer of assets: No.
- Transfer abroad by emigrants: No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

- Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions: Yes. CBSM Regulation No. 2007-07 governs the collection of savings and banking activities.
  - Delegated Decree No. 74/2009 and its amendments establish the rules for cross-border transportation of cash and other bearer instruments.
  - Decree No. 158/2009 provides for a public guarantee regarding CBSM lending of last resort.
  - Decree No. 162/2009 establishes requirements on liquidity reserves for banks. Operations for the protection of savings and tools to protect savings and banking system stability in case of banks’ compulsory liquidation are established by law. Deposits in banks under suspension of payment are also protected under the law. The Oversight Committee, at the behest of the commissioners and with the approval of the CBSM’s Supervision Committee, may permit banks in extraordinary administration whose payments are suspended to allow depositors to withdraw cash and/or make payment arrangements to satisfy essential and urgent needs.
  - Decree Law No. 111/2011 (issued July 22, 2011) on measures to guarantee the stability of the banking system sets up a guarantee fund for depositors. Decree Law No. 61/2012 on urgent measures to support the economy and various tax provisions introduced (1) tax benefits and credit facilities for banks, as part of the operations authorized by the CBSM, to acquire the liabilities of entities under extraordinary administration and (2) exemption from income tax on capital gains from the sale of investments in San Marino by foreign companies to affiliates to support intragroup reorganization.
  - Decree Law No. 63/2012 on urgent provisions concerning public guarantee of loans granted by the CBSM extended the provisions of Decree Law No. 158/2009 to the end of 2012, allowing the Excellency Room to guarantee loans of last resort paid during 2012.
  - Decree Law No. 67/2012 on urgent measures to support the financial system exempted from income tax capital gains from transfers of assets or businesses or business units to affiliates for San Marino companies. It also allowed deduction from taxable income in the 10 subsequent years of tax losses not yet taken by the operating company and matured over the three years before receipt of the assets or businesses or business units. The measures encourage reorganization, concentration, and aggregation of entities in the financial sector. Banks and FIs must publish on their website their “beneficial owners.” An extraordinary tax of 1.5% applies to the financial industry, calculated on the total accumulated losses of entities that opted to carry forward tax losses incurred in 2009–2012 without time limits, if the option was exercised by March 31, 2013 (Law No. 150/2012 on Financial Forecast of the State and Public Entities for the 2013 financial year and multiyear financial statements 2013/15).
  - Regulation No. 2012-01, titled Regulation No. 2007-07, Update III – Regulation No. 2011-03, Update I, revised certain prudential rules by (1) extending the deadline for the sale of property acquired for debt collection, taking into account the actual date of release of the goods; (2) repealing the risk weight of 200% for nonperforming loans and keeping the weight of 150%, except for leases already weighted at 50%, which, if nonperforming, are weighted at 100%; (3) defining restructured loans for reporting and budget purposes; (4) removing... reference to the constraints of employment, with the secretary of labor; (5) simplifying requirements for periodic review of credit with a regular repayment plan; (6) extending the deadline to comply with the new standards of prudential supervision for companies with limited operating powers to December 21, 2012; and (7) extending the deadline for financial companies to adopt the new prudential supervision provisions when granting credit to December 21, 2012.

Regulation No. 2012-02, titled Regulation No. 2007-07, Update IV – Regulation No. 2011-03, Update II, updated the definition of nonperforming loans to reflect the notion of restructured loans introduced by Regulation No. 2012-01.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Controls on direct investment

Inward direct investment 03/26/2019

The Decree No. 176/2018, ratified by the Decree No. 50/2019, abolished the preliminary nonimpediment (“nulla osta”) of the Congress of State (Government), for any authorization by the supervisory authority, or any change in its authorization, for the exercise of reserved activities relates to activities in Sections A (banking), C (fiduciary activity), D (investment services), E (collective investment services), G (insurance), and H (reinsurance) of Attachment 1. Previously, authorization by the supervisory authority, or any change in its authorization, must be followed by a declaration of nonimpediment by the Congress of State (government) if authorization for the exercise of reserved activities relates to the abovementioned economic sectors.

Controls on real estate transactions

Purchase locally by nonresidents 06/18/2019

Purchases by domestic companies and foreign citizens (residents and nonresidents) no longer require approval of the Council of Twelve, following the Delegated Decree No. 105/2019. Previously, the purchase of real estate by domestic companies and foreign citizens required the approval of the Council of Twelve. Law No. 154/2019 (from Articles 21 to 27) containing the same provision substituted Decree No. 105/2019 (which expired September 19, 2019).

Exchange Measures

The IMF staff report for the Request for a 40-month Arrangement Under the Extended Credit Facility with São Tomé and Príncipe states that, as of September 9, 2019, São Tomé and Príncipe continues to avail itself of the transitional arrangements under Article XIV, but it does not maintain restrictions under Article XIV. However, it maintains restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII. One exchange restriction regarding limitations on the transferability of net income from investment arises from Article 3(g) and Article 18 of the Investment Code (Law No. 19/2016). This restriction results from the requirement that taxes and other obligations to the government have to be paid/fulfilled as a condition for transfer, to the extent the requirement includes the payment of taxes and the fulfillment of obligations unrelated to the net income to be transferred. The second exchange restriction arises from limitations on the availability of foreign exchange through rationing of foreign exchange by the Bank of São Tomé and Príncipe (BCSTP). This exchange restriction also gives rise to a multiple currency practice as the rationing has channeled bona fide current transactions to the parallel market where the exchange rate is at a spread of more than 2% from the exchange rate in the formal market. (Country Report No. 19/315)

Conventional peg Yes. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg against the euro. Beginning February 1, 2009, the focus of the BCSTP switched from the US dollar to the euro, which became the new reference currency for the peg on January 1, 2010. The Organic Law of the BCSTP authorizes it to make decisions regarding exchange rate policy.

Official exchange rate Yes. The official exchange rate is Db 24.50 per euro, and the CB is committed to maintaining the peg of the dobra to the euro. Rates for other currencies are based on cross-rates between the euro and the currencies concerned in international markets (Article 2(2) of NAP No. 05/2017 – Regulations on the Foreign Exchange Coverage). The official euro–US dollar cross-rate is based on the ECB reference rate of the previous day. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation. The official exchange rate of dobra against euro is also used to purchase and sell euro.

When commercial banks purchase and sell euro in transactions with their customers, they must use the fixed exchange rate published by the BCSTP (official exchange rate). In case of euro purchases, the charging of any commission is prohibited, while in case of euro sales, banks are allowed to charge a commission up to 2%. Purchase and sale by banks of other foreign currencies in transactions with their customers may be carried out at the exchange rates set by commercial banks, with the condition that the spread between buying and selling rates does not exceed 4%. In case of euro purchase from the public, exchange bureaus must use the fixed exchange rate published by the BCSTP, with no commission permitted to be charged. The BCSTP regulation does not impose any rule for exchange bureaus with regard to setting of selling exchange rate for euro, as well as buying and selling exchange rates for other foreign currencies, except for the requirement to include all commissions in the exchange rates. In its sale transactions in euro with financial institutions, the BCSTP charges a 1.5% commission, while on its purchases of euros with financial institutions, the BCSTP charges a 0.5% commission.

Spot exchange market: Yes. De jure there is only one foreign exchange bureau authorized to deal in foreign exchange under NAP No. 24/2009, regulating foreign exchange bureaus. In practice, however, there are several foreign exchange bureaus and unregulated agents dealing in foreign exchange in the country without special and prior authorization from the CB, as required under Article 7(1) of Decree-Law No. 32/99, the Foreign Exchange Law. Under the terms of Article 12 of NAP No. 24/2009, foreign exchange bureaus can engage in the following transactions: purchase and sale of foreign exchange; foreign currency trading; purchase and sale of traveler’s checks, purchase and sale of banknotes and coins with the CB for foreign exchange transactions or the transfer of foreign exchange surpluses; and purchase and sale of banknotes and coins with commercial banks. Article 13 of the same NAP prohibits foreign exchange bureaus from transferring foreign exchange abroad and from all other transactions not specified in Article 12.

Operated by the central bank: Yes. Under NAP No. 05/2017 – Regulations on Foreign Exchange Coverage, the BCSTP applies a foreign exchange allocation system. Under Article 18(2) of the Foreign Exchange Law, the BCSTP purchases and sells foreign exchange “to the State” as its financial agent.

Foreign exchange standing facility: No.

Allocation: Yes. Under Article 18 of Decree-Law No. 32/99, the Foreign Exchange Law, the BCSTP may purchase and sell foreign exchange from and to commercial banks indiscriminately, depending on the external situation and need to control money supply, provided the latter cumulatively fulfill the requirements for applying for foreign exchange cover and eligibility specified in Articles 6 and 7 of NAP No. 05/2017 – Regulation on Exchange Coverage. Foreign exchange is made available to commercial banks for customer’s external payments through foreign exchange coverage provided by the BCSTP via two modalities laid down by the BCSTP regulations (1) through selling foreign exchange after customers’ import payments already made and (2) through direct foreign exchange coverage that means selling foreign exchange for making current international payments. The BCSTP finances current international transactions at the official exchange rate only after verification of the bona fide nature of the bank’s request. These include only completed goods’ import transactions fulfilling the specified requirements. Access to foreign exchange is limited to financial institutions whose net position in the transaction currency is less than 12% of their qualified capital and the net position in all foreign currencies is less than 25% of qualified capital. Financial institutions must be in compliance with the CB’s regulations on bank liquidity and capital adequacy. Financial institutions may have access to the CB’s facilities regardless of the above conditions (direct foreign exchange coverage) if the foreign exchange is for importation of goods during a crisis or for the importation of fuel.

Auction: No.

Fixing: No.

Interbank market: Yes. There is currently no legal provision in force governing the interbank foreign exchange market (mercado cambial interbancário – MCI).

There is no regulation on this segment of the capital market in São Tomé and Príncipe.

São Tomé and Príncipe has no official payment arrangement with the CB of any other country at the present time.

There is an inoperative payments agreement with Angola whose balance has been converted to outstanding Angolan debt with São Tomé and Principe and is still pending payment. According to information reported by the Debt Office, this debt was sold to a group and is currently being negotiated through the Angolan government.

Engaging in the securities business must be authorized by the CMA, unless the business is exempted pursuant to the Securities Business Regulations. Under the CMA Authorized Persons Regulations, applicants for authorization to engage in dealing, managing, or custodial business must be established in Saudi Arabia and be either (1) a subsidiary of a local bank, (2) a joint-stock company, (3) a subsidiary of a Saudi joint-stock company engaged in the financial services business, or (4) a subsidiary of a foreign financial institution licensed under the Banking Control Law issued by Royal Decree No. M/5 of 22/2/1386H (of June 11, 1966). Applicants for authorization to engage in advisory or business arrangement services may be of any legal type established in Saudi Arabia.

Purchasing securities locally by nonresidents is subject to the following.

For direct investment in these securities: (1) The Rules for Qualified Foreign Financial Institutions Investment in Listed Securities (Qualified Foreign Investor-QFI Rules) issued by the CMA Board on May 4, 2015, set out the procedures, requirements, and conditions for qualifying foreign investors to invest in listed securities in the Saudi market and specify their obligations and the obligations of authorized persons in this regard. The required minimum for assets under management or custody (AUM) is $500 million (SR 1.87 billion). Affiliates of QFIs or foreign portfolio managers and their managed funds do not need to submit separate applications. The requirements for the CMA’s review and approval of the qualification application and for investor experience have been removed. (2) Nonresident foreign investors may invest directly in the parallel equity market (Nomu).

For non-direct investment in these securities: (1) Nonresident foreigners, either institutions or individuals, may invest in such securities through access products ("swap agreements"), with authorized persons, which transfer economic benefits but not legal title, subject to the conditions and requirements set out in the CMA’s Board Resolution of August 17, 2008. The limit on the percentage of foreign investments via swap agreements in the Saudi capital market is 10% of the shares of the issuer whose shares are listed or convertible debt instruments of the issuer. The 10% limit is not calculated as an aggregate limit on the foreign investor and any affiliates together, that is, an affiliate of a foreign investor may invest to the 10% limit regardless of the investment of the foreign investor. Swap holders may open a QFI account while retaining the swap account for a grace period of one year, providing foreign investor with choice of channel for trading. (2) Nonresident foreigners may also hold units in mutual funds, including exchange-traded funds (ETFs), which may invest in Saudi listed securities. (3) Nonresident GCC citizens are treated equal to residents in Saudi Arabia and allowed to invest directly in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

The CMA Board issued the Investment Accounts Instructions of April 3, 2016, to regulate the opening and operation of investment accounts held by authorized persons licensed by the CMA (dealing, managing, or custody) and to define the related investment accounts.
controls and supervisory rules, such as the requirement to provide copies of identification documents of the owner of the QFI to open an investment account for foreign investors has been removed.

Complementary to the QFI rules, effective June 26, 2019, the CMA approved the “Instructions for the Foreign Strategic Investors’ Ownership in Listed Companies.” They are aimed at foreign legal persons who intend to own a strategic shareholding in listed companies, and for which the aim is to promote the financial or operational performance of the listed companies on the long term. Among the most prominent features of the Instructions is that foreign strategic investors are excluded from all requirements of QFI rules, including the investment limits stipulated in Article 14 of the QFI Rules that the maximum proportion of the shares of any issuer whose shares are listed or convertible debt instrument of the issuer that may be owned by all foreign investors in aggregate is 49%. However, foreign strategic investors may not dispose of any of the shares they own in accordance with the Instructions within a period of two years after the date of ownership of such shares, and limits by other regulators or a company’s own rules still apply. In addition, the procedures for opening accounts and owning shares through authorized persons were eased.

For investments in banks by nonresidents, there is a limit of 60% of capital, and permission of the authorities is required. Effective June 26, 2019, the overall limit was removed for foreign strategic investor ownership in listed companies, and they require SAMA’s approval for acquiring 50% or more of a bank’s capital. However, foreign strategic investors may not dispose of any of the shares they own within a period of two years after the date of ownership of such shares, and limits by other regulators or a company’s own rules still apply. In addition, the procedures for opening accounts and owning shares through authorized persons were eased.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Issuances and offerings of securities are under the CMA’s jurisdiction and require its approval or notification depending on the offer type. Foreign issuers must comply with the Exchange Listing Rules and any foreign listing requirements that the CMA may issue in the future, which will detail the requirements that are imposed on the foreign issuers. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia. Effective October 6, 2019, the CMA Board amended the Rules on the Offer of Securities and Continuing Obligations to allow foreign issuers to cross-list their shares on the Saudi Stock Exchange and specified the listing rules. Foreign issuers may offer securities by way of private placement to selected investors in Saudi Arabia as per Part 3 of the Rules on the Offer of Securities and Continuing Obligations. In this regard, foreign issuers are not required to comply with the Listing Rules if such securities are not to be listed in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. No restrictions apply, except that insurance companies may not invest more than 20% in foreign securities unless approved by the SAMA. In addition, a limit of 10% applies to foreign-currency-denominated investments. However, this limit may be changed according to the investment policy submitted by the insurance company and approved by the SAMA. SAMA approval is required for Saudi Arabian banks to acquire shares in foreign companies. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No. There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities abroad by residents, which are subject to the laws where the sale or issuance takes place. However, pursuant to paragraph a/6 of Article 6 of the Capital Market Law, the CMA has the power to approve, cancel, or suspend the listing of Saudi issuers’ securities traded on the Saudi Stock Exchange on stock exchanges abroad. Only authorized persons may conduct securities business in Saudi Arabia, unless exempt.

Rules on the Offer of Securities and Continuing Obligations (OSCO Rules) describe the requirements for issuance and offering of bonds and other debt securities either through public offering or through private placement. The OSCO Rules also contain provisions regulating the issuance and trading of securities through a special purpose entity. The Rules for Special Purpose Entities issued by the CMA Board regulate the establishment, licensing, and activities of the Special Purpose Entity (SPE) that is responsible for issuing debt instruments.

Yes.

Bonds or other debt securities

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Yes.

Purchasing securities locally by nonresidents is subject to the following.

For direct investment in these securities: (1) The Rules for Qualified Foreign Financial Institutions Investment in Listed Securities (QFI Rules) issued by the CMA Board on May 4, 2015, set out the procedures, requirements, and conditions for qualifying foreign investors to invest in listed securities in the Saudi market and specify their obligations and the obligations of authorized persons in this regard. The QFI Rules include: (a) The required minimum limit of asset under management or custody (AUM) for the financial institution is $500 million (SR 1.87 billion) (b) No requirement for the CMA’s review and approval of the qualification application; (c) No investor experience requirement; (d) Affiliates of QFIs or foreign portfolio managers and their managed funds do not need to submit separate applications. (2) Nonresident foreign investors may invest directly in the parallel equity market (Nomu).

For non-direct investment in these securities: (1) Nonresident foreigners, either institutions or individuals, may invest in such securities through access products (“swap agreements”), with authorized persons, which transfer economic benefits but not legal title, subject to the conditions and requirements set out in the CMA’s Board Resolution of August 17, 2008. The limit on the percentage of foreign investments via swap agreements in the Saudi capital market is 10% of the shares of the issuer whose shares are listed or convertible debt instruments of the issuer. The 10% limit is calculated as an aggregate limit on the foreign investor and any affiliates together, that is, an affiliate of a foreign investor may invest to the 10% limit regardless of the investment of the foreign investor. As of May 3, 2018, the Resolution was amended allowing swap holders to open QFI account while retaining the swap account for grace period of one year, providing foreign investor with choice of channel for trading. (2) Nonresident foreigners may also hold units in mutual funds, including ETFs, which may invest in Saudi listed securities. (3) Nonresident GCC citizens are treated equal to residents in Saudi Arabia and allowed to invest directly in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

The CMA Board issued the Investment Accounts Instructions of April 3, 2016, to regulate the opening and operation of investment accounts held by authorized persons licensed by the CMA (dealing, managing, or custody) and to define the related investment accounts controls and supervisory rules.

There are no controls on portfolio investment in government securities by foreign nationals. There is no minimum holding period requirement for such bonds.

Yes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

The issuance and sale of securities, including debt securities, are under the jurisdiction of the CMA and require its approval or notification depending on the offer type. In all cases, foreign issuers... must comply with the Exchange Listing Rules and any foreign listing requirements that the CMA may issue in the future, which will detail the requirements that are imposed on the foreign issuers. The issuer must be a Saudi joint-stock company, except where the provisions of Article 14 “cross listing” of the listing rules apply. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia.

Effective October 6, 2019, the CMA Board amended the Rules on the Offer of Securities and Continuing Obligations to allow foreign issuers to cross-list their shares on the Saudi Stock Exchange and specified the listing rules.

Foreign issuers may offer securities by way of private placement to selected investors in Saudi Arabia as per Part 3 of the Rules on the Offer of Securities and Continuing Obligations. In this regard, foreign issuers are not required to comply with the Listing Rules if such securities are not to be listed in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes. No restrictions apply, except that insurance companies may not invest more than 20% in foreign securities unless approved by the SAMA. In addition, a limit of 5% applies to foreign government bonds and bonds issued by foreign companies. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.

Sale or issue abroad by residents  No. There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities abroad by residents, which are subject to the laws where the sale or issuance takes place. However, pursuant to paragraph a/6 of Article 6 of the Capital Market Law, the CMA has the power to approve, cancel, or suspend the listing of Saudi securities of Saudi issuers traded on the Saudi Stock Exchange on stock exchanges abroad. Only authorized persons may conduct securities business in Saudi Arabia unless exempt.

On money market instruments  Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents  Yes. Purchasing securities locally by nonresidents is subject to the following.

For direct investment in these securities: (1) The Rules for Qualified Foreign Financial Institutions Investment in Listed Securities (QFI Rules) issued by the CMA Board on May 4, 2015, set out the procedures, requirements, and conditions for qualifying foreign investors to invest in listed securities in the Saudi market and specify their obligations and the obligations of authorized persons in this regard. The QFI Rules include: (a) The required minimum limit of asset under management or custody (AUM) for the financial institution is $500 million (SR 1.87 billion); (b) No requirement for the CMA's review and approval of the qualification application; (c) No investor experience requirement; (d) Affiliates of QFIs or foreign portfolio managers and their managed funds do not need to submit separate applications. (2) Nonresident foreign investors may invest directly in the parallel equity market (Nomu).

to the 10% limit regardless of the investment of the foreign investor. Starting May 3, 2018, the Resolution was amended allowing swap holders to open QFI account while retaining the swap account for grace period of one year, providing foreign investor with choice of channel for trading. (2) Nonresident foreigners may also hold units in mutual funds, including ETFs, which may invest in Saudi listed securities. (3) Nonresident GCC citizens are treated equal to residents in Saudi Arabia and allowed to invest directly in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

The Investment Accounts Instructions regulate the opening and operation of investment accounts held by authorized persons licensed by the CMA (dealing, managing, or custody) and to define the related investment accounts controls and supervisory rules.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. Issuance and sale of securities, including money market instruments, in Saudi Arabia are under the jurisdiction of the CMA and must require its approval or notification depending on the offer type. In all cases, foreign issuers must comply with the Exchange Listing Rules and any foreign listing requirements that the CMA may issue approve in the future, which will detail the requirements that are imposed on the foreign issuers. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia.

Purchase abroad by residents No. There are no restrictions on the purchase of securities abroad by residents. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.

Sale or issue abroad by residents No. There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities abroad by residents, which are subject to the laws where the sale or issuance takes place. However, pursuant to paragraph a/6 of Article 6 of the Capital Market Law, the CMA has the power to approve, cancel, or suspend the listing of any Saudi security of any Saudi issuer traded on the Saudi Stock Exchange on any stock exchange abroad. Only authorized persons may conduct securities business in Saudi Arabia unless exempt.

On collective investment securities Yes. The Capital Market Law defines investment funds as collective investment schemes. There is no distinction between collective investment schemes. Nonresidents may invest in CIS funds, including ETFs. The CMA Board of Commissioners issued the Real-Estate Investment Traded Funds Instructions, covering offering requirements, unitholders’ consent on the fundamental changes, unitholder meetings, disclosure requirements, trading halt and cancelation of listing, and termination of the Real-Estate Investment Traded Fund.

Effective June 30, 2019, the SAMA issued a circular allowing banks operating in the Kingdom to distribute collective investment schemes in accordance with the CMA’s circular that governs the contractual relationship between the bank and the authorized person.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. Public offering of CIS investment is restricted to persons authorized by the CMA to conduct managing activities. However, foreign funds may offer units in foreign funds through a distributor (with a dealing as an agent activity license) as a private offer. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and in accordance with the Investment Funds Regulations issued by the CMA (as amended).

Foreign issuers may offer securities by way of private placement to selected investors in Saudi Arabia as per Part 3 of the Rules on the Offer of Securities and Continuing Obligations. In this regard, foreign issuers are not required to comply with the Listing Rules if such securities are not to be listed in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

There are no restrictions on the purchase of securities abroad by residents. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.

There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities by residents abroad.

The derivative market was launched effective August 30, 2020.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Issuance and sale of securities, including derivatives and other instruments, in Saudi Arabia are under the jurisdiction of the CMA and require its approval or notification depending on the type of offer. In all cases, rules for residents and nonresidents are the same, unless such securities will be listed on the Saudi Stock Exchange, in which case the issuer must be a Saudi joint-stock company, except where the provisions of Article 10 “cross listing” of the Exchange listing rules apply. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia.

There are no restrictions on the purchase of securities abroad by residents. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.

There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities, including derivatives and other instruments, abroad by residents, which are subject to the laws where the sale or issuance takes place. However, pursuant to paragraph a/6 of Article 6 of the Capital Market Law, the CMA has the power to approve, cancel, or suspend the listing of Saudi securities of Saudi issuers traded on the Saudi Stock Exchange on stock exchanges abroad. Only authorized persons may conduct securities business in Saudi Arabia unless exempt.

Commercial credits

Yes.

SAMA permission is required for riyal-denominated loans made through Saudi Arabian banks. SAMA approval is required for banks and finance companies to borrow abroad except for interbank transaction.

Pursuant to Article 68 of the Implementing Regulation of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, a SAMA non-objection letter is required for finance companies to obtain foreign loans or loans in a currency other than the Saudi riyal.

Financial credits

Yes. SAMA permission is required for all financial credit operations.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes.

SAMA permission is required for loans made through Saudi Arabian banks. Saudi Arabian banks and finance companies require a SAMA non-objection letter to lend to nonresidents, except for interbank transactions and commercial credits.

Pursuant to Article 68 of the Implementing Regulation of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, a SAMA non-objection letter is required for banks and finance companies to borrow abroad, except for interbank transactions.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

Yes. Pursuant to Article 12 of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, finance companies may not extend any financing without guarantees, subject to certain exceptions, or finance or grant facilities guaranteed by its shares.

Pursuant to Article 60 of the Implementing Regulation of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, finance companies may grant financing without guarantee when the following conditions are met: (1) The total amount of granted finance does not exceed 100,000 riyals based on the beneficiary’s credit record; (2) The beneficiary does not have any unresolved indebtedness, unresolved dispute, credit standing claim, insolvency, bankruptcy, or liquidation claim, in the previous ten years; and (3) The beneficiary is not a related party.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. SAMA permission is required.

To residents from nonresidents

Yes.

Controls on direct investment

Yes.

Outward direct investment

Yes. Approved foreign investment enjoys the same privileges as domestic capital. The Foreign Investment Law allows foreign investors to invest directly in most economic sectors—with or without local participation, subject to sectoral limits—and imposes a tax rate of 20% on most foreign company profits, with two exceptions: (1) An 85% tax rate applies to profits of investment in the oil and hydrocarbon sector. (2) A basic tax rate of 30% applies to profits of investment in the natural gas sector as long as the internal rate of return of the project does not exceed 8%. For investments with an internal rate of return exceeding 8%, a sliding scale with higher tax rates applies, up to 85% for an internal rate of return exceeding 20%.

There is a list of economic sectors where foreign investors may not invest. The negative list includes the following:

Industrial Sector: (a) Oil exploration, drilling, and production, except the services related to the mining sector listed as CPC 5115+883 in international classification codes; (b) Manufacturing of military equipment, devices, and uniforms; (c) Manufacturing of civilian explosives. (2) Service Sector: (a) Catering to military sectors; (b) Security and detective services; (c) Real estate investment in Makkah and Madinah; (d) Tourist orientation and guidance services related to Hajj and Umrah; (e) Printing and publishing, except the following activities: Pre-printing services (internationally classified as CPC 88442), Printing Presses (CPC 88442), Drawing and calligraphy (CPC 87501), Photography (CPC 875), Radio and Television Broadcasting Studios (CPC 96114), Foreign Media Offices and Correspondents (CPC 962); Promotion and Advertising (CPC 871), Public Relations (CPC 86506), Publication (CPC 88442), Press Services (CPC 88442), Promotion, selling, and renting of computer software (CPC 88), Media consultancies and studies (CPC 853), Typing and copying (CPC 87505 + 87904), Motion picture and video tape distribution services (CPC 96113); (f) Commission agents (CPC 621); (g) Services provided by midwives, nurses, physical therapy services, and quasi-doctoral services (CPC 93191); (h) Fisheries; and (i) Poison centers, blood banks, and health quarantines.

The following sectors are open to foreign investors: (a) Recruitment and employment services; (b) Real estate brokerage; (c) Audiovisual and media services; (d) Commission agents; (e) Land transport... services. To attract FDI, administrative procedures have been simplified including (a) Foreign investment license requirements amounting to two documents; (b) An instant license and renewal system; (c) Automated post services (license renewal, company activities amendment, adding branches), shorter time to issue new licenses (less than 3 hours). The validity of foreign investment licenses is five years.

For investments in banks by nonresidents, there is a limit of 60% of capital, and permission of the authorities is required. Effective June 26, 2019, the overall limit was removed for foreign strategic investor ownership in listed companies, and they require SAMA’s approval for acquiring 50% or more of a bank’s capital. However, foreign strategic investors may not dispose of any of the shares they own within a period of two years after the date of ownership of such shares, and limits by other regulators or a company’s own rules still apply.

| Controls on liquidation of direct investment | No. |
| Controls on real estate transactions | Yes. |

In principle, the purchase of real estate is restricted to Saudi Arabian nationals, corporations, and institutions and nationals and institutions of GCC members. The Regulation of Ownership and Investment in Real Estate by Non-Saudis (Royal Decree No. M/15 of 17/4/1421H) allows foreign investors to purchase real estate as needed for their business, including housing for their staff. Further, with an appropriate foreign investment license, foreign investors may purchase real estate for investment purposes in all cities except Mecca and Medina, provided the investment is at least SRIs 30 million. Investment in Mecca and Medina is restricted to Saudi Arabian nationals, corporations, and institutions. Foreign residents may own real estate.

The conditions for foreign individuals are: (1) Non-Saudi natural persons legally residing in Saudi Arabia are allowed to acquire real estate for their private residence, following permission from the Ministry of Interior (Law of Real Estate Ownership and Investment by Non-Saudis, Article 2); (2) The property must be outside the perimeter of Makkah and Madinah Al-Munawarrah (Law of Real Estate Ownership and Investment by Non-Saudis, Article 5). The conditions for foreign companies are: (1) The approval of the body issuing the license (Law of Real Estate Ownership and Investment by Non-Saudis, Article 1); (2) The property must be outside the perimeter of Makkah and Madinah Al-Munawarrah (Law of Real Estate Ownership and Investment by Non-Saudis, Article 5). The conditions for foreign companies licensed to invest in land and buildings: (1) If the license includes purchasing buildings or land for the purpose of building on it and investing it by means of selling or renting, the total cost of the project, land and construction, may not be less than 30 million riyals. This amount may be amended by the Council of Ministers. Such real estate must be invested within five years from its acquirement (Law of Real Estate Ownership and Investment by Non-Saudis, Articles 1 and 5); (2) The property must be outside the perimeter of Makkah and Madinah Al-Munawarrah (Law of Real Estate Ownership and Investment by Non-Saudis, Article 5); (3) The approval of the body issuing the license (Law of Real Estate Ownership and Investment by Non-Saudis, Article 1).

The SAMA issued the Investment Regulation for Insurance Companies, which requires insurers to submit investment policies outlining, among other things, their objectives and asset allocation. The policy must be approved by the SAMA; limitations in the Implementing Regulation may be waived in light of certain technical standards, such as the company’s size, structure, business complexity, insurance portfolio, and capital structure. The SAMA has set rules of licensing and operation of branches of foreign insurance and reinsurance companies in Saudi Arabia which require the following: (1) The foreign branch must ensure that its liabilities – excluding the reinsurance share – equal its assets in Saudi Arabia. (2) There should be no transfer of money from the branch to the foreign company unless it is under a service provision arrangement between the company and the branch that has been approved by SAMA, or retained profits shown in the annual financial position of the branch after receiving SAMA’s approval, provided the branch is in compliance with the solvency margin requirements.</td>

However, these limits may be changed according to the investment policy submitted by the company and approved by the SAMA. With respect to local investments, the minimum is 80%, which applies to all types of insurance companies. In addition, the minimum for investments in Saudi riyal is 50%. Moreover, unless otherwise approved by the SAMA, general insurance and health insurance companies must keep 20% of their investments in authorized local banks and 20% in Saudi Arabian government bonds. As for protection and saving companies, the limits are 10% of deposits in authorized local banks and 10% in Saudi Arabian government bonds. Furthermore, there are limitations for other assets class, such as equities, real estate, and mutual funds. However, these limits may be changed according to the investment policy submitted by the company and approved by the SAMA.

Capital Transactions

Complementary to the QFI rules, the CMA approved the “Instructions for the Foreign Strategic Investors’ Ownership in Listed Companies.” They are aimed at foreign legal persons who intend to own a strategic shareholding in listed companies, and for which the aim is to promote the financial or operational performance of the listed companies on the long term. Among the most prominent features of the Instructions is that foreign strategic investors were excluded from all requirements of QFI rules, including the investment limits stipulated in Article 14 of the QFI Rules that the maximum proportion of the shares of any issuer whose shares are listed or convertible debt instrument of the issuer that may be owned by all foreign investors in aggregate is 49%. However, foreign strategic investors may not dispose of any of the shares they own in accordance with the Instructions within a period of two years after the date of ownership of such shares, and limits by other regulators or a company’s own rules still apply. In addition, the procedures for opening accounts and owning shares through authorized persons were eased.

Senegal participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAEMU member countries and France was concluded December 4, 1973. It was maintained after the French franc was replaced by the euro by the Council of the European Union decision of November 23, 1998. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility. In exchange for the unlimited convertibility of the CFA franc to euros, the WAEMU members are required to deposit 50% of their reserve holdings to the operations account with the French Treasury in accordance with the Amendment to the Operations Account Convention signed by France and the BCEAO on September 20, 2005.

Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%.

Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU is in force.

Spot exchange market Yes. The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO.
Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor’s identity document. Banks and registered banknote exchange houses are intermediaries authorized by the minister of finance to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. Entities authorized to conduct cash exchange transactions, of which there were 641 on December 31, 2019, are authorized to procure travelers’ checks and foreign banknotes from licensed intermediaries for their customers. They are authorized to accept travelers’ checks denominated in foreign currencies from their customers and to sell them to licensed intermediaries. Licensed exchange dealers are not authorized to make payments or transfers in foreign currencies abroad or to hold accounts abroad.

In their operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957, and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.

Operated by the central bank  Yes. The BCEAO supplies at the official rate the foreign currency that each authorized intermediary needs to make payments abroad.
Foreign exchange standing facility  Yes. The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs on commercial banks’ demand at the rates published on the international markets, without commission, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU Member States on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and (2) the CB purchases foreign exchange in exchange for CFA francs at the daily rate, without a commission, at the request of commercial banks that present such foreign exchange at its windows, for purposes of their payments.
Allocation  No.
Auction  No.
Fixing  No.
Interbank market  Yes. Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. However, there is no regulated interbank foreign exchange market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter  Yes.
Brokerage  No.
Market making  No.
Forward exchange market  Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps.

Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur in respect of derivative instruments traded with their customers.

The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company.

All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Senegal is linked to the French Treasury via the BCEAO through an operations account, through which settlement of transactions with France, Monaco, and other operations account countries (WAEMU and CEMAC members and the Comoros) is made mainly in euros. Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for the payment of current international transactions or capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.

For current transactions and payments Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for the payment of current international transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. However, the CFA franc is guaranteed unlimited convertibility through an open operating account with the French Treasury.

For capital transactions Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments Yes.

Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1)
Forwards, foreign exchange swaps, and options. When the transaction is backed by an operation other than the importation of goods and services, the CFA franc is the counterparty currency of the foreign exchange spot forward, foreign exchange option, or foreign exchange swap operation.

Credit operations

Yes.

Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.

Use of foreign exchange among residents

Yes.

The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.

Payments arrangements

Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements

No.

Operative

No.

Inoperative

No.

Regional arrangements

Yes.

An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies or euros against CFA francs are settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.

Clearing agreements

Yes.

There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, the Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the clearing agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

Barter agreements and open accounts

No.

Administration of control

Yes.

The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO establishes the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. Exchange control is administered jointly by the minister of finance and the BCEAO. Most of the authority to supervise foreign exchange transactions is delegated to authorized banks, which are required to report these operations to the minister of finance. The BCEAO is also authorized to collect – either directly or through banks, financial institutions, the postal administration, or judicial agents – information necessary to compile balance of payments statistics. Customs officers monitor outflows of foreign exchange and confirm imports and exports of goods. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Senegal for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Senegal are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals (that is, from a WAEMU member country) and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc (XOF) banknotes issued by the BCEAO.

Foreign currency

Yes.

Reexports of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers are allowed up to the equivalent of CFA 500,000; reexports of foreign banknotes above this ceiling require documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFA 1 million on exit. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFA 1 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFA 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Amounts in excess of this ceiling may be exported in the form of traveler’s checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler’s checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFA 2 million a person. The issue of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements  Yes. Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary bank all foreign currency income or proceeds collected abroad or remitted by a nonresident. Resident economic operators are required to liquidate and repatriate all proceeds from the sale of merchandise abroad at the bank issuing payment within one month of the payment date.

Surrender requirements  Yes.

Surrender to the central bank  Yes. Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers  Yes. All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Senegal, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more Restrictions on use of funds  No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions  Yes.  Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require minister of finance authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.

Repatriation requirements  Yes.  Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone’s investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.

Surrender requirements  Yes.

Surrender to the central bank  Yes.  Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. However, all foreign exchange assets in excess of these requirements must be immediately surrendered to the BCEAO. Moreover, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers  Yes.  Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone’s investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month through a registered intermediary, except if the resident does have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.

Controls on capital and money market instruments  Yes.  RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

On capital market securities  Yes.  The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature  Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents  No.  Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, nonresidents are required to report these operations for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets), with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the minister of finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to minister of finance authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

Sale or issue abroad by residents No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad must be declared to the minister of finance for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan. Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone, unless otherwise specified by the minister of finance, must be carried out through authorized intermediaries for all cases in which the sums borrowed are made available to the resident. All foreign borrowing must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Bonds or other debt securities Yes. The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents No. These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the minister of finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 8, Rule No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to minister of finance authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM.

Sale or issue abroad by residents No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.

entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments  Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial or financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services by a resident; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using derivatives. They must be backed by the residents of the WAEMU zone’s imports or exports of raw materials and commodities. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities.

Purchase locally by nonresidents  No. The purchase of derivatives by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone on the domestic market is treated as a loan contracted by a resident with a nonresident. As such, it is permitted. The purchase must be executed through an authorized intermediary and must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents  No. These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign exchange derivatives from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes. These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents  Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.

Controls on credit operations  Yes. Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister of finance.

Commercial credits  Yes.

By residents to nonresidents  Yes. There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is agreed to in the contract (in principle no later than 120 days after the date of shipment).

To residents from nonresidents  No. There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits

By residents to nonresidents
Yes. These credits require minister of finance approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to approval of the minister of finance and substantiated by documentation.

To residents from nonresidents
No. There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries’ foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

By residents to nonresidents
Yes. The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to minister of finance approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to minister of finance approval and the submission of supporting documents.

To residents from nonresidents
No. These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on direct investment

Yes. Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.

Outward direct investment

Yes. All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to minister of finance authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

Inward direct investment

No. FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the minister of finance for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

No. The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of liquidation is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes. The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline...
(December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. The National Assembly of Senegal adopted Uniform Act No. 2014-01 on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU, which was enacted January 6, 2014. The Uniform Act No. 2014-12 governing disputes over violations of the regulations on external financial relations of WAEMU Member States was enacted February 28, 2014.

Borrowing abroad

No. Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

Yes. Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients’ outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Yes. Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to minister of finance authorization following BCEAO approval.

Lending locally in foreign exchange

Yes. These operations are properly provided for in the laws and regulations and are subject to the approval of the minister of finance following the approval of the BCEAO.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange

Yes. These purchases require minister of finance authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange

Yes. A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks on March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes the following four items: demand deposits; short-term loans; gross claims abroad, including customer foreign currency deposits; medium- and long-term loans. Reserve requirements are therefore established on a standard and/or settlement and/or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.

Liquid asset requirements

Yes. The Basel II/Basel III liquidity requirements are yet to be transported to the WAEMU. The 75% minimum liquidity standard and the standard for minimum 50% for banks to fund their activities with more stable sources of funding on an ongoing basis are temporarily maintained.

Interest rate controls

Yes. The wear rate in WAEMU member countries is set at 15% for banks and at 24% for decentralized financial systems.

Credit controls

Yes. Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to minister of finance authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents

Yes. Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.

Reserve requirements

No.

Liquid asset requirements

No.

Interest rate controls

No.

Credit controls

Yes. Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires authorization by the minister of finance with the approval of the BCEAO.

Investment regulations

Yes. The regulations governing direct investments apply.

Abroad by banks

Yes. All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPNF.

In banks by nonresidents

Yes. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance. This applies to resident and nonresident investors.

Open foreign exchange position limits

Yes. No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries assets to be allocated to current customer operations, listed as follows: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. Limits apply to residents' foreign currency positions.

On resident assets and liabilities

Yes. No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries assets to be allocated to current customer operations, listed as follows: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.

On nonresident assets and liabilities

Yes. No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries assets to be allocated to current customer operations, listed as follows: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.

Controls are imposed by the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code).

The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.

The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind by foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM.

With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold with RCPSFM authorization in WAEMU member countries, all investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.

floating. The current Decision on the Dinar Exchange Rate Regime stipulates “managed floating.” Since the introduction of this exchange rate regime in 2001 and in accordance with its commitment to liberalization of the foreign exchange market, the NBS has tried to reduce its participation in the foreign exchange market and to adjust the features of the existing exchange rate regime in the direction of soft managed floating. This exchange rate regime enables the NBS to balance, when necessary, foreign exchange demand and supply and moderate excessive daily fluctuation of the exchange rate in either direction (appreciation or depreciation) that may occur under the influence of external or internal shocks to the national economy. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized.

On January 1, 2020, the NBS changed the practice of publishing data on its activities in the interbank foreign exchange market from publishing daily data at the end of the day to publishing aggregated monthly data on the net purchase or net sale. Aggregated monthly data on the NBS net purchase/net sale are published in the regular press release on foreign exchange Reserves and Interbank Foreign Exchange Market Movements, which is published in the first half of the following month (usually between 10th and 15th). The NBS also publishes (1) a spreadsheet once in every quarter when the Inflation Report is published, with aggregated monthly data on the NBS net purchase/net sale in the interbank foreign exchange market, as part of the statistics related to the Inflation Report, and (2) aggregated monthly data on its purchase and sale in the interbank foreign exchange market (purchased plus sold), as part of the statistical set of data, approximately with the three-week time lag (there is a Release Calendar available on the same page).

The official middle exchange rate of the dinar against the euro is calculated at the end of each business day as the weighted average of the exchange rates applied in all individual euro transactions in the interbank spot foreign exchange market and in all individual euro transactions in the interbank foreign exchange market with a settlement date earlier than the spot value date (concluded from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.), including transactions between the NBS and the banks (interventions). To ensure the conditions that the official middle exchange rate of the dinar against the euro reflects, as much as possible, the real trends in foreign exchange market, the NBS has precisely defined time frame – from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. for transactions which will be included in calculation of the official middle exchange rate of the dinar against the euro. The NBS publishes information on the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro by 6:00 p.m. to take effect at 8:00 a.m. on the following business day. Five currencies are included in the list of currencies against which the official middle exchange rates of the dinar are quoted in the NBS list of official exchange rates and with which banks, public postal operators, and exchange bureaux may trade – the Chinese renminbi (since January 2015), Turkish lira (since December
Since the public postal operator was given the authorization to perform exchange operations by the amendments to the legislation that regulates postal services in Serbia, the NBS adopted the new Decision on Terms and Manner of Performing Exchange Operations and the Guidelines Implementing the Decision on Terms and Manner of Performing Exchange Operations. These regulations were adopted to regulate exchange operations not only for banks and authorized exchange dealers, but also for the public postal operator. This was done for the purpose of expanding the scope of money exchange market to include even the territories where no exchange bureaus and banks operate, which may increase the level of competition in this segment of the foreign exchange market and result in more favorable buying/selling rates of exchange for citizens. The official middle exchange rates are used for bookkeeping, statistics, and calculation of customs duty and other import fees, as provided by Article 41 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. Exchange rates of the dinar against, effective September 30, 2019, with the inclusions of the Belorussian ruble, 22 currencies quoted in the NBS list of foreign exchange rates are used in trade between the NBS and residents with foreign exchange accounts at the NBS. According to Article 36 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, resident beneficiaries of budget funds, beneficiaries of funds of mandatory social insurance organizations and local government budgets, and other public funds beneficiaries included in the consolidated treasury account system may have foreign exchange accounts only within the consolidated treasury account system maintained by the NBS, unless otherwise stipulated by a special law or international agreement. The Decision on the manner of performing transactions between the NBS and the Treasury Administration through the consolidated treasury account system for foreign exchange funds has been in force, since February 27, 2017. Exchange rates of the dinar against three currencies quoted in the NBS exchange rate list for foreign cash are used in cash trade between the NBS and banks. The NBS trades only in cash euros, US dollars, and Swiss francs. The NBS does not conduct foreign exchange cash operations with resident and nonresident natural persons or with foreign exchange bureaus. Exchange rates for foreign cash are also used for calculation and payments of foreign cash to residents with foreign exchange accounts with the NBS in connection with official travel. The Decision on Operating Terms and Procedures in the Foreign Exchange Market allows the NBS to publish by 2:00 p.m. each business day information on the indicative exchange rate of the dinar against the euro based on banks’ reported data on direct spot trade and trade with execution dates before spot currency dates of euros with other banks concluded from 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

| Other |

| Yes. | Government and Central Bank |

Inflation targets will be set by the NBS, in cooperation with the government, on the basis of an analysis of current and expected macroeconomic movements and the medium-term plan of changes in prices under direct or indirect regulation of the government. In principle, the NBS has operational freedom to set the target, on consulting the government. The decision within the Executive Board can be taken by majority vote, but in practice, they are reached by consensus.

Inflation target

| Yes. | Target number |

| Yes. | Point target |

| Yes. | Target with tolerance band |

The inflation target is set at 3% with a tolerance band of ±1.5 percentage points (pps). The target is for now set at that level until end-2022.

Band/Range

| Yes. | Target measure |

| Yes. | CPI |

Inflation targets will be set for several years ahead as point targets with a tolerance band and defined in terms of the annual percentage change in the CPI (NBS’s Memorandum on Inflation Targets until 2022 adopted by the NBS Executive Board in 2019).

Core inflation

| Yes. | Target horizon |

The target is continuous, meaning it is set for every month of the monetary policy horizon.

| Yes. | Operating target (policy rate) |

Key policy rate is the main monetary policy instrument applied in the main open market operations which are currently one-week reverse repo transactions (liquidity absorbing operations). Auctions are held once a week by the variable multiple rate method with the key policy rate as a maximum rate which can be offered by banks.

| Yes. | Policy rate |

The policy rate is the interest rate on (reverse) repo transactions with a one-week maturity. The key policy rate is a maximum rate which can be offered by banks on the one-week reverse repo auctions and it has been currently fixed at 1.25% as of June 11, 2020.

| Yes. | Target corridor band |

Lower bound of the band is the rate on (overnight) deposit facilities (currently set at 0.25%: reference rate −1 percentage point). Upper bound of the band is the rate on (overnight) standing facilities (currently set at 2.25%: reference rate +1 percentage point).

Other  Yes.  If the projected inflation deviates from the target, the NBS undertakes measures to bring it back to the target in the medium term. If the departure of inflation from the set target tolerance bands (below 1.5% or above 4.5%) lasts for six consecutive months, the NBS is obliged to notify the government about the reasons for such departure, measures to be taken, and the time needed for inflation to return to the target level.

Transparency  Yes.

Publication of votes  n.a.  Decisions of the Executive Board as a whole are published, without specifying individual votes or number of votes in favor of or against the decision. Typically, decisions are made by consensus.

Publication of minutes  No.  The NBS does not publish minutes.

Publication of inflation forecasts  Yes.  Inflation forecasts are published quarterly in the Inflation Reports. The Inflation Report contains information on the current and expected inflation, analysis of underlying macroeconomic developments, explanation of the reasoning behind the decisions of the Executive Board, and an assessment of the monetary policy efficiency as implemented during the previous quarter. Integral parts of this report are inflation projection for eight quarters ahead, assumptions on which such projection is based, and an analysis of the basic risks involved in the achievement of target inflation.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax  No.  Exchange subsidies have been removed.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.  In the first years of the implementation of the managed floating exchange rate regime (2001–04), the highest volume of trade was performed at the fixing sessions organized by the NBS in which the NBS and banks participated. Banks could also trade among themselves at the fixing session, and the NBS, to reduce its share, encouraged banks to satisfy, as much as possible, their demand for foreign exchange in mutual trade. The interbank foreign exchange market outside the fixing session has been under development in these years. During the following years, the interbank trade outside the fixing session increased and when the total volume of trade at this market segment exceeded the total trade at the fixing session, the NBS decided to eliminate its regular daily fixing sessions (in June 2007). The NBS started to gradually withdraw from the market and participated only when necessary for stabilization. However, with the beginning of the international financial crisis, in October 2008, the NBS was forced again to increase its participation in the interbank foreign exchange market to moderate excessive daily fluctuation of the exchange rate in the direction of the depreciation of the dinar.

As of July 31, 2020, there were 2,487 foreign exchange dealers licensed by the Tax Administration and the NBS, which perform activities at 3550 exchange points, in addition to the currently 28 banks licensed by the NBS and one public postal operator which performs foreign exchange activities based on a separate law governing its activities. The NBS undertakes the activities of supervising exchange offices and issuing and revoking authorizations for the performance of exchange operations as well as the activities of supervising the foreign exchange operations of residents and nonresidents, as stipulated by the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange operations. As of December 31, 2018, there were 27 banks licensed by the NBS. As of July 11, 2019, there are 26 banks licensed by the NBS. As of December 31, 2019, there were 26 banks licensed by the NBS and the same as of June 30, 2020.

Once a day, at the start of each business day, banks freely set and announce their exchange rates for foreign exchange and foreign cash based on cross-currency relations in foreign markets. Banks apply the rates that fall within the range of the quoted buying and selling rates for foreign exchange and/or foreign cash in trade with residents and nonresidents. Public postal operator and licensed foreign exchange dealers also freely set their foreign exchange rate lists at the start of each business day in line with the foreign exchange rate lists applicable to foreign cash of the bank and/or banks with which they entered into an agreement. They purchase and sell foreign cash by applying current buying and selling rates specified in their foreign exchange rate list, but they may not exceed the quoted range.

Effective January 1, 2019, the buying rate per unit of foreign currency – the euro – cannot be lower than the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro applicable on that day by more than 1.25%, and/or selling rate per unit of foreign currency – the euro – cannot be higher than the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro applicable on that day by more than 1.25%. This ±1.25% range around the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro applies only to postal operators and authorized exchange dealers transacting with natural persons, while it is not prescribed for commercial banks.

Effective January 1, 2019, when the public postal operator and authorized exchange dealers purchase foreign cash from natural persons, their commission may not exceed 1% of the value of undamaged banknotes from natural persons, and/or circulating banknotes within the meaning of the provisions of Decision on Terms and Manner of Performing Exchange Operations. Previously, the maximum commission limit was 3%.

Since January 2015, the renminbi is included in the list of foreign exchange and foreign cash that banks may trade with and in the list of foreign cash that licensed exchange dealers may buy and sell. Turkish lira (since December 2017), Bulgarian lev and Romanian leu (since February 2018), and Belarusian ruble (effective September 30, 2019) are included in the list of foreign exchange and foreign cash that banks may trade with and in the list of foreign cash that licensed exchange dealers may buy and sell. The public postal operator was given the authorization to perform exchange operations by the amendments to the legislation that regulates postal services in Serbia. To comply with that, the manner of setting the public postal operator’s exchange rate list for foreign cash was prescribed, as well as the method of applying that exchange rate list. Also, types of foreign cash that could be purchased and sold by the public postal operator were prescribed. Public postal operator has been performing foreign exchange operations based on a separate law governing its activity under conditions similar to the conditions prescribed for foreign exchange dealers. Also, the public postal operator may trade with the renminbi (since July 2015) and Turkish lira (since December 2017). The Decision on the Types of Foreign Exchange and Foreign Cash to be Purchased and Sold in the Foreign Exchange Market added two new currencies in the list of foreign currencies that may be traded in the foreign exchange market in the Republic of Serbia, in the form of foreign exchange and foreign cash – the Bulgarian lev and Romanian leu (since February 2018). In addition, since February 2018, trading in the form of foreign exchange was enabled for those currencies for which until then was allowed to trade only in the form of foreign cash, namely the Hungarian forint, Polish zloty, Czech koruna, convertible mark, and Croatian kuna. Also, the Kuwaiti dinar was introduced in the NBS exchange rate list for foreign exchange.

To improve the bank’s reporting system and raise the efficiency of monitoring the foreign exchange market, banks were obliged to submit data on the nonresidents’ dinar accounts. To further improve the bank’s reporting system, banks were obliged to submit data on payment card transactions impacting the bank’s foreign exchange position (transactions under payment cards issued abroad and used for dinar payments in the country and transactions under payment cards issued in the country and used for foreign exchange payments abroad). To further improve the bank’s reporting system, the NBS obliged banks to submit data on foreign exchange-indexed loans and deposits.

Effective May 8, 2020, in relation to the COVID-19 pandemic, the NBS applies the official middle exchange rate of the dinar as specified in the current exchange rate list when buying and selling foreign exchange and foreign cash from and to residents who have foreign exchange accounts with the NBS. Previously, the provision was limited to specific accounts for disaster assistance and applied to commercial banks as well.

In the spot exchange market, the purchase or sale of foreign currency in exchange for dinars takes place two business days following the day of conclusion of the purchase or sale agreement. As of December 31, 2018, 27 banks and a huge number of nonresidents and residents participate in the spot foreign exchange market. As of July 11, 2019, 26 banks participate in the spot foreign exchange market.

As of December 31, 2019, 26 banks participate in the spot foreign exchange market. The same figure stood as of June 30, 2020.

The spot foreign exchange market involves: transactions between commercial banks (excluding the NBS transactions) and transactions between banks and clients—residents and nonresidents.

As of December 31, 2018, there were 2,619 foreign exchange bureaus and one public postal operator which perform foreign exchange activities based on a separate law governing its activities which may purchase from and sell to natural persons only foreign cash. They may not have accounts abroad or make foreign currency payments or transfers on behalf of their clients. The period during which exchange bureaus must transfer any excess amount of dinars to their current account with a bank is seven working days. Effective January 1, 2019, the threshold that determines the excess amount of dinars exchange bureaus must transfer to their current account with a bank is triple the average daily amount of dinars used for the purchasing of foreign cash in the month with the highest purchase in the preceding 12 months. If the foreign exchange dealer works less than a month, the triple average daily amount of dinars is determined according to the week with the highest purchase. Previously, the threshold was double the average daily amount of dinars used for purchasing foreign cash in the month (week if exchange dealer worked less than a month) with the highest purchase in the preceding 12 months.

Resident humanitarian organizations may receive funds and donations for humanitarian purposes from abroad, which takes place through the electronic money issuer.

The NBS may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market in different ways: by selling and purchasing foreign exchange bilaterally (through Refinitiv foreign exchange Trading) and by organizing spot auction sales and purchases. Also, the NBS organizes, in accordance with its calendar of regular euro/Serbian dinar swaps, auctions of swap sale, and purchase of euros for dinars with maturity of three months and two weeks. Only the banks can participate in these auctions.

With the beginning of the international financial crisis and market disruptions, the NBS introduced spot auctions in December 2009 as a way of participating in the interbank foreign exchange market. Following its commitment to liberalize the foreign exchange market and decrease its market participation, the NBS organizes spot auctions only when necessary to stabilize the foreign exchange market. Spot auctions were organized as variable price auctions with the NBS purchasing/selling foreign exchange at the multiple rate – exchange rates offered by the banks whose bids are accepted at the auction or at the single rate – at the same exchange rate from each bank whose bid was accepted at the auction. The NBS last organized auctions in 2012.

To encourage development of the interbank swap market and support euro and dinar liquidity management of the banks, the NBS organizes weekly swap auction sales and purchases of foreign exchange for dinars with maturity of three months (from March 2011, every Tuesday) and two weeks (from March 2013, every Friday).

The regular swap auctions are organized in the variable method – with multiple swap points. However, effective March, 31, 2020, until the end of May 2020, the NBS organized them in the fixed method with preannounced fixed swap points at favorable rates to give support to the domestic financial system in the conditions of COVID-19.

Banks are free to set their own buying and selling rates for foreign exchange based on supply and demand but must observe the cross-rates prevailing in the international market. Banks may buy and sell foreign exchange on the interbank market at mutually agreed rates. The NBS generally intervenes by selling or purchasing foreign exchange as a price taker, at the best-quoted rate of market participants through the Refinitiv foreign exchange -Trading. There is no brokerage or market-making system. As of December 31, 2018, there were 27 banks that participated in foreign exchange market. As of July 11, 2019, there are 26 banks that participated in foreign exchange market. The interbank foreign exchange market involves transactions between banks (excluding the NBS transactions)—transactions with value date shorter than spot, spot, forward, and swap transactions.

banks rarely conclude forward and swap transactions. The forward and swap foreign exchange market involves: transactions between banks and transactions between banks and clients—residents and nonresidents, excluding the NBS transactions. Banks conclude forward sales to residents (such as importers) in higher amounts than forward purchases from residents (such as exporters) in the forward market. Also, banks have important clients among nonresident banks, and they trade mostly through large numbers of foreign exchange swap transactions. The NBS participates in swap transactions. In early March 2011, the NBS reinstated its three-month foreign exchange swap auctions as a regular instrument for supplying foreign exchange/dinar liquidity. These weekly auctions are conducted under market conditions and without preannounced limits of quantities of liquidity, aim to bolster interbank swap trading and the development of foreign exchange hedging instruments. Further, in March 2013 the NBS started to organize weekly two-week foreign exchange swap auctions to supply additional euro and dinar liquidity.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency  Yes.

For current transactions and payments  Yes. Payments for current international transactions in Serbia may be made and received in dinars under the conditions prescribed by the decision of the NBS on the conditions and manner of conducting international payment transactions.

For capital transactions  Yes. Payments in Serbia may be made and received in dinars for all capital transactions allowed by the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, under the conditions prescribed by the decision of the NBS on the conditions and manner of conducting international payment transactions.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments  Yes.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments  Yes.

Credit operations  Yes. Credits in dinars granted by resident banks to nonresidents and borrowing in dinars by residents from international financial organizations, development banks, and financial institutions founded by foreign states are considered foreign credit transactions and may be carried out as prescribed by the NBS. Banks may grant credits in dinars to nonresident legal entities and natural persons by crediting a payment card account with a bank in Serbia and by crediting the account of a resident seller and/or lessor to whom the nonresident owes payment under current or capital transactions permitted by the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. Banks may also grant credits in dinars to an international financial organization and development bank or a financial institution founded by a foreign state without any limitation on the maturity. Dinar loans by international financial organizations, development banks, and financial institutions founded by foreign states to residents may be granted without a foreign currency clause and with maturity longer than one year; credits for agricultural financing or export financing may have a shorter term (longer than three months). Dinar loans may be granted with a possibility of prepayment and change of currency in accordance with the lending program/business standards of an international financial organization whose articles of agreement or an agreement regulating its activities in Serbia has been ratified. Dinar loans may be granted from the proceeds of current and capital transactions, including the proceeds of the primary sale of long-term dinar debt securities, issued by the foreign creditor.

Payments among residents must be effected in dinars. In exceptional cases, payments may be effected in foreign exchange, according to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations.

Exchange control is carried out by the government authorities and the NBS. The NBS supervises foreign exchange operations of banks, electronic money institutions with their head office in Serbia, and payment institutions—by following a procedure laid down in the law governing their operations as well as international payment transactions carried out by the public postal operator—by following a procedure laid down in the law governing payment services. Effective January 1, 2019, the NBS took over from the Tax Administration the supervision of foreign exchange operations of residents and nonresidents, as well as supervision of exchange operations under the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. Customs authorities control the exportation and importation of foreign and local currency, securities, and gold taken out or brought into Serbia or transmitted by mail or other means. They also control the exportation of foreign exchange by authorized banks.

Only gold producers may engage in domestic trade in unrefined gold. Exports and imports of gold by residents are subject to the regime for goods exports and imports. The ministry in charge of foreign trade issues licenses on the request of legal persons or entrepreneurs. Exports and imports of dinars and foreign currency are allowed under the conditions prescribed by the decision on personal and physical transfer of means of payment to and from abroad. Banks may freely export and import dinars and foreign currency.

On exports

Domestic currency

Yes. Resident and nonresident natural persons may freely take out of Serbia dinars in amounts up to the equivalent of €10,000 a person. In addition, resident natural persons may take out of Serbia up to three sets of dinars for numismatic purposes. Additionally, residents may take out dinars from the Republic of Serbia for the purpose of testing automated teller machines (ATMs) with NBS approval issued on the basis of elaborated request submitted by the evidence of using such machines in the performance of a registered activity and along with the guarantee of foreign company that the dinars so received will be returned after the testing but not later than three months from the day they were received. Exportation of NBS-issued commemorative coins by residents requires written NBS permission, and foreigners may take these commemorative coins out of the Republic based on a certificate issued by an authorized seller certifying that such coins have been purchased in the Republic, or based on a certificate issued by the customs authority certifying that such coins have been brought into the Republic. Banks may freely take dinars out of Serbia for sale to foreign banks on the condition that they submit to the customs authority two copies of the payment order, one of which is retained for supervision purposes.

Foreign currency

Yes. Resident natural persons may freely take abroad foreign currency and checks up to €10,000. Emigrants may freely take abroad foreign cash up to €10,000; for an amount exceeding €10,000, evidence of emigration is required. A nonresident natural person may freely take abroad foreign cash in the amount of up to €10,000. If a nonresident takes dinars and foreign cash abroad at the same time, the sum of these must not exceed €10,000. Nonresident natural persons may take abroad more than €10,000 foreign cash if the amount was declared on entering Serbia, if the amount was withdrawn from a foreign exchange account or foreign exchange passbook in a local bank, or if the amount was acquired by selling dinars obtained through the use of a payment card in Serbia as evidenced by prescribed documents. Authorized banks may freely export foreign currency for replenishing their accounts with foreign correspondent banks. However, the bank must submit to the customs authority two copies of the order for the transfer of foreign currency for certification and must file one certified copy of the order for control purposes.

On imports

Domestic currency

Yes. Residents and nonresidents may freely bring in dinars up to the equivalent of €10,000 a person. In exceptional cases, residents and nonresidents may import domestic banknotes exceeding this amount, provided the banknotes were purchased at a foreign bank and the purchase receipt is presented to the customs office for inspection on entering the country. Banks may import dinars that have not been sold abroad; the customs authority restamps the originally stamped dinar export order.

Foreign currency

No. Resident and nonresident natural persons may freely import foreign cash. However, a resident natural person must declare to the competent customs authority any amount of foreign cash that exceeds the amount specified in the law on the prevention of money laundering, while nonresidents must report amounts exceeding €10,000 to the customs authorities, which issue the respective certificate. Banks may freely import foreign currency.
Foreign exchange accounts permitted  Yes.  Resident natural persons, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities may hold current and deposit foreign exchange accounts freely and perform all kinds of current and permitted capital transactions abroad. In addition to a current and deposit foreign exchange account, a bank may open other foreign exchange accounts for a resident for specific purposes. Additionally, resident legal entities and natural persons may open joint current accounts in terms of the law governing payment services, while natural persons may open joint deposit accounts too. Per the Decision on the Conditions of Opening and Manner of Maintaining Foreign Exchange Accounts of Residents and Dinar and Foreign Exchange Accounts of Nonresidents entered into force, bank after closing the foreign exchange account issues the account closing certificate, including the information that all obligations toward the bank in relation to opening, maintaining, and closing the account were settled.

Banks must submit to the NBS data on foreign exchange accounts of residents’ legal entities, entrepreneurs as well as natural persons. The NBS uses these data for a single register of accounts, which is published on its website, while data on foreign exchange accounts of natural persons are not publicly available. Resident beneficiaries of the budget funds of Serbia, of funds of mandatory social insurance organizations, and of local government budgets, as well as other public funds beneficiaries included in the consolidated treasury account system, must hold their foreign exchange accounts with the Treasury Administration within the consolidated treasury account system maintained by the NBS, unless stipulated otherwise by a separate law or an international agreement, and they may sell to the NBS foreign exchange and foreign cash generated by their operations. As an exception, these residents may open a foreign exchange account with an authorized bank, with MOF approval, for payments that cannot take place through the NBS, or perform individual foreign payment operations through an electronic money issuer or payment institution, provided specific characteristics of the beneficiary’s activities make this necessary. Banks may hold foreign currency only with other authorized banks and the NBS. According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, and the NBS Decision on the Manner of Performing Transactions Between the NBS and the Treasury Administration through the Consolidated Treasury Account System for Foreign Exchange Funds (RS Official Gazette No. 78/2015), the NBS must perform foreign exchange operations, on behalf of the Treasury Administration, through the consolidated Treasury account system for foreign exchange funds—for the public funds beneficiaries of Serbia.

Approval required  No.

Held abroad  Yes.  Banks may, without any restrictions, keep foreign exchange in bank accounts abroad. Other residents may hold foreign currency in accounts with foreign banks freely in certain cases prescribed by the NBS. These residents are: diplomatic, consular, and other representative offices of the Republic of Serbia abroad and domestic nationals employed in these representative offices, persons sent abroad for professional training and education; persons appointed to work in a government mission abroad; persons emigrating from Serbia; and persons selling real estate abroad. In addition, resident Serbians with dual citizenship, resident Serbian citizens who stay abroad no longer than one year (with a work visa, leave to remain, and so on), and those entitled to foreign pensions in countries without an international treaty covering pension payments may hold foreign exchange in accounts with banks abroad.

Subject to the approval of the NBS, residents may maintain foreign exchange in accounts abroad for (1) performing construction work; (2) covering current costs of representative offices and branches of legal entities; (3) financing exploration work; (4) settling tax and other liabilities under public law to a foreign state—concessor, in respect of concession revenue, if the regulations of the foreign state stipulate that these liabilities are to be settled exclusively through a bank account in that state; (5) investments of insurance companies; (6) making guarantee deposits for participation in bidding or tender procedures and/or sending bids for the acquisition of shares; (7) making a guarantee deposit under a guarantee issued by a foreign bank to a resident who performs construction work abroad; the deposit may be up to the amount specified in the bank’s request for guarantee deposit and/or guarantee agreement; (8) using foreign financial credits for payments abroad, if the disbursement of such credits is conditional on holding funds with a foreign bank; (9) purchasing securities abroad in accordance with the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations if the regulations of the foreign state stipulate that this purchase may be performed exclusively through a bank account in that state; (10) collecting payments against court decisions; (11) covering costs of medical treatment abroad as well as the costs of residing abroad for medical treatment; (12) collecting grants and cash donations from abroad for scientific, cultural, and humanitarian purposes; (13) making collections in respect of tax refund in foreign state if a regulation of that state stipulates that refund be effective exclusively via an account with the bank in that state; (14) making collections in respect of the sale of securities purchased abroad and revenue from securities purchased abroad in accordance with the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations if regulations of the foreign state prescribe that holding foreign exchange in a bank account abroad is a condition for such collections. For all the above-mentioned cases, residents must submit to the NBS supporting documents prescribed by the NBS. Insurance companies may deposit and invest up to 25% of prescribed core capital abroad, with the prior NBS approval.

Effective February 22, 2020, residents may hold foreign exchange abroad subject to approval of the NBS on two new grounds: (1) making collections based on the refund of funds invested in a company established abroad (the sale of a company, wind-down of a company, profit from investment in a company, etc.) if regulations of the foreign state prescribe that holding foreign exchange in a bank account abroad is a condition for such collections, and (2) for settlement of liabilities abroad arising in relation to the resident’s balance responsibility as a participant in the energy transport system—based on an excerpt from the regulation of the relevant country envisaging that these liabilities can be settled only through the account with a bank in that country and the document proving this liability.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted  Yes. Nonresident natural persons and legal entities may hold foreign exchange accounts with authorized banks as current, deposit, and other accounts opened for a specific purpose. Nonresident natural persons and legal entities may open joint current accounts, while natural persons may open joint deposit accounts too. Deposit accounts may be demand or time deposit accounts. Deposits may be held in currencies traded on the domestic foreign exchange market. Deposits to foreign exchange accounts of nonresident legal entities may be made by transfers; deposits to foreign exchange accounts of nonresident natural persons may be made by transfers or in cash. Account holders may use the foreign exchange in their accounts to make dinar payments in Serbia, transfer foreign exchange abroad, and make foreign exchange payments abroad or domestically, in accordance with existing regulations. Domestic payments, collections, and transfers in foreign currency involving these accounts are permitted only in cases specified in the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. At the request of a nonresident, banks may purchase dinars from the nonresident’s dinar account and transfer foreign exchange to a nonresident’s foreign exchange account abroad based on proof of competent tax authorities that all tax liabilities to the Republic have been settled, except in case when banks transfer foreign exchange from deposit accounts of nonresidents, natural persons when the proof on the settlement of tax liabilities to the Republic of Serbia is not conditioning for this transfer.

Per the Decision on the Conditions of Opening and Manner of Maintaining Foreign Exchange Accounts of Residents and Dinar and Foreign Exchange Accounts of Nonresidents, bank after closing the foreign exchange account issues the account closing certificate, including the information that all obligations toward the bank in relation to opening, maintaining, and closing the account were settled.

Citizens of Serbia who have resided abroad for more than one year are considered nonresidents.

Approval required  No.

Domestic currency accounts  Yes. Nonresidents may hold domestic currency acquired through authorized transactions in current, deposit, or other accounts with authorized banks. Nonresidents may hold joint current, while nonresident natural persons may hold joint deposit accounts, too. Nonresidents may open accounts based on a written request, a contract with a bank, and prescribed documentation which has been simplified.

Per the Decision on Amendments and Supplements to the Decision on the Conditions of Opening and Manner of Maintaining Foreign Exchange Accounts of Nonresidents, bank after closing the dinar nonresident account issues the account closing certificate, including the information that all obligations toward the bank in relation to opening, maintaining, and closing the account were settled.

Convertible into foreign currency  Yes. Nonresidents may freely convert to foreign currency dinars acquired in accordance with the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations.

Approval required  No.

Annex 2 lists goods licensed by the Ministry of Health for importation, exportation, and transit of narcotics and psychotropic substances, and herbal product (importation and exportation of narcotic and psychotropic substances, and herbal product). Annex 3 lists goods licensed by the Ministry of Environmental Protection, such as substances that deplete the ozone layer, fluorinated gases, and plant and animal species whose importation and exportation are subject to documentation. Annex 4 lists goods (sources of ionizing radiation) whose exportation, importation, and transit are licensed by the Serbian Radiation and Nuclear Safety and Security Directorate. Annex 5A lists goods subject to certificates of conformity on importation. These certificates are issued by the appointed agencies and state administration authorities. Annex 5B of the same decision prescribes certificates of homologation (for imports of vehicles, parts, and equipment thereof). Certificates of homologation are issued by the Road Traffic Safety Agency. Domestic products are also subject to certificates of conformity and certificates of homologation. Annex 6 lists goods whose importation requires a document of compliance issued by the agency for electronic communication or another designated agency. Annex 7 lists chemicals and products whose imports or exports are prohibited. Imports of specific types of hazardous waste, certain poisons, and substances damaging the ozone layer are prohibited. Prescribed documents are required on importation of these items for sanitary, phytosanitary, and veterinary purposes. According to the decision, animals and animal products imported or in transit must comply with the Veterinary Law. All lists of goods comply with relevant international conventions and obligations.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements
Yes. Legal entities operating abroad are not required to repatriate their profits. The repatriation requirement applies to residents holding foreign exchange in accounts abroad in line with the decision governing holding foreign exchange in bank accounts abroad. Residents holding foreign exchange freely in bank accounts abroad must repatriate the remaining funds and close the account within 30 days of cessation of the activity that permitted foreign exchange to be held abroad. Residents holding foreign exchange in bank accounts abroad, on NBS approval, must repatriate the means of payment on completion of the activity for which the NBS approval was issued.
Residents holding foreign exchange in bank accounts abroad, on NBS approval, for collecting tax returns executed in foreign state, collecting payments from the sale of securities abroad and on the basis of income from securities purchased abroad, and collecting payments against court decisions, must after each collection repatriate the means of payment to their bank account in Serbia – within 30 days of this collection, as well as to inform the NBS. Per the Decision on Amendment and the Supplement to the Decision on Terms and Conditions Under Which Residents May Hold Foreign Exchange in Bank Accounts Abroad, these residents may hold foreign exchange in a bank account abroad even after 30 days of the collection on approval from NBS for holding foreign exchange in a bank account abroad on other permitted grounds, up to the amount of foreign exchange and until deadline approved by the NBS, of which residents will inform the NBS.

Financial credits Yes.

By residents to nonresidents Yes.

Resident legal entities other than banks may grant financial loans in foreign currency to nonresidents in accordance with the provision of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, which stipulates the NBS may prescribe conditions and manner of performing these operations which may be subject to limitations justified on grounds of public policy and macrofinancial stability, and the NBS bylaw was adopted which prescribes these limitations in cases where they are assessed as justified (case-by-case assessment principle) and taking into account the fulfillment of the objectives of the limitations (targeting principle) and that limitations are proportional. A resident legal entity other than a bank may grant a financial loan to a nonresident debtor with the seat in an EU member state. A resident legal entity may also grant a financial loan to a nonresident debtor without the seat in an EU member state provided the resident is the majority owner of the nonresident debtor. When granting the financial loan to a nonresident, a resident legal entity contracts and obtains collateral instruments from a nonresident.

Banks may grant financial loans in foreign currency to nonresidents without any restrictions, provided they contract and acquire collateral instruments for the payment from a nonresident. Banks may also grant dinar loans to an international financial organization, a development bank, or a financial institution founded by a foreign state without any limitation. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents (except natural persons), nonresidents, and residents (except natural persons) with state-owned capital require government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign exchange may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities as prescribed by the NBS.

To residents from nonresidents Yes.

Resident banks, legal entities, and entrepreneurs may borrow in foreign currency for purposes other than imports of goods and services and financing construction works abroad (settlement of obligations in the local currency, bank liquidity, etc.) in the manner and under the conditions specified by the NBS. The maturity of such loans to residents other than banks must exceed 12 months (with an obligatory grace period of six months) from each disbursement, except for loans intended for agriculture financing and for export financing, which may have a maturity exceeding three months from each disbursement. Funds from nonresidents may also be borrowed for direct investment abroad. Banks may borrow short-term financial loans in foreign currency from nonresidents. Resident legal entities and entrepreneurs may borrow short-term financial credits and loans from nonresidents with the head office and/or permanent residence in an EU member state. Resident branches of foreign legal entities may borrow from a nonresident founder in foreign currency at maturities longer than a year, provided the loans are disbursed to a foreign exchange account with a domestic bank. Resident branches of foreign legal entities may borrow from a nonresident founder with the head office in an EU member state at maturities shorter than a year, provided the loans are disbursed to a foreign exchange account may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities as prescribed by the NBS. Banks are subject to minimum reserve requirements on foreign borrowing (credits and deposits).

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

By residents to nonresidents

Guarantees and sureties deemed to be foreign credit transactions in line with the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations are reported to the NBS. Resident banks, legal entities, and entrepreneurs may issue warranties and other means of collateral under credits granted by nonresidents to residents without any restrictions. Resident legal entities other than banks may issue warranties and other means of collateral under credit operations between nonresidents abroad in accordance with the provision of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, which stipulates the NBS may prescribe conditions and manner of performing these operations which may be subject to limitations justified on grounds of public policy and macrofinancial stability, and the NBS bylaw was adopted which prescribes these limitations in cases where they are assessed as justified (case-by-case assessment principle) and taking into account the fulfillment of the objectives of the limitations (targeting principle) and that limitations are proportional. A resident legal entity other than a bank may issue warranties and provide other collaterals in favor of a nonresident creditor under credit operations between nonresidents with the seat in an EU member state. A resident legal entity may also issue warranties and provide other collaterals in favor of a nonresident creditor under credit operations between nonresidents without the seat in an EU member state provided the resident is the majority owner of the nonresident debtor. When issuing warranties and providing other collaterals in favor of a nonresident creditor under credit operations between nonresidents, a resident legal entity contracts and obtains collateral instruments from a nonresident. Banks may issue guarantees to nonresidents under credit operations between nonresidents abroad without any restrictions, provided they contract and acquire collateral instruments for the payment from a nonresident. In addition to guarantees and warranties, which are considered foreign credit transactions, banks and resident legal entities are allowed to issue guarantees and warranties not deemed to be foreign credit transactions. In that sense, banks may issue guarantees, sureties, warranties, and other means of collateral in accordance with banking regulations. Resident legal entities founded by the Republic of Serbia by a separate law for export financing purposes may perform guarantee operations in accordance with that separate law. A resident legal entity may issue a guarantee to a nonresident against claims from another resident in connection with imports of goods and services, as well as to a nonresident performing construction work in Serbia. A resident public enterprise and legal entity with government-owned capital or a legal entity in the process of restructuring or privatization may issue a guarantee to a nonresident under these operations only under the terms and conditions prescribed by the government.

To residents from nonresidents

Nonresidents may issue guarantees and sureties to residents under credits granted by residents to nonresidents. Nonresidents may also issue guarantees and sureties to other nonresidents under credits granted by nonresidents to residents. These transactions are deemed to be foreign credit transactions and reported to the NBS. In addition to these guarantees, banks and resident legal entities may obtain guarantees and warranties, which are not deemed to be foreign credit transactions. In that sense, banks may obtain guarantees, sureties, warranties, and other means of collateral in accordance with banking regulations. A resident legal entity may obtain guarantees and warranties from a nonresident against claims from another nonresident in connection with exports of goods and services and construction work abroad, as well as against claims arising from the operations between that resident and another resident legal entity in Serbia.

Per the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations entered into the force, a resident legal entity may obtain guarantees and warranties from a nonresident against imports of goods and services and construction works of the nonresident in the Republic.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

| Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions | Yes. | Bylaws and other regulations in effect include provisions on the classification of balance sheet assets and off-balance-sheet items, capital adequacy, risk management (including a more detailed definition of bank compliance risk), preliminary approvals for bank founding and subsequent issuing of full operating licenses, approvals for acquiring bank shares, bank resolution, details regarding the conditions and manner of conducting bank supervision by the NBS, and regulations on external bank audits. The NBS Executive Board implemented the following decisions (published in the RS Official Gazette No. 103/2016) which introduce Basel III standards in the Republic of Serbia:
| • Decision on Capital Adequacy of Banks.
| • Decision on Disclosure of Data and Information by Banks.
| • Decision on Reporting on Capital Adequacy of Banks.
| • Decision Amending the Decision on Reporting Requirements for Banks.
| • Decision on Liquidity Risk Management by Banks.
| • Decision Amending the Decision on Risk Management by Banks.
| In addition to ensuring alignment with relevant acquis communautaire in the field of banking, implementation of Basel III standards introduced significant and numerous novelties, in terms of both capital adequacy and the liquidity ratio. In accordance with the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-balance Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette Nos. 94/2011, 57/2012, 123/2012, 43/2013, 113/2013, 135/2014, 25/2015, 38/2015, 61/2016, 69/2016, 91/2016, 101/2017, 114/2017, 103/2018, and 8/2019), the requirements on the classification of banks’ balance sheet assets and off-balance-sheet items (1) harmonize the specifications and conditions for the recognition of prime and adequate collateral with the Decision on Capital Adequacy; (2) minimize the prescribed indicators of financial condition as criteria for classification, with a | required commitment to banks’ internal policies and procedures, and define the criteria for assessing the financial condition and method of classification into Categories A through E based on that assessment;
(3) set the percentages for calculation of reserves for Categories B at 2%, C at 15%, D at 30%, and E at 100%; (4) set the materially signficant threshold for determining the delay in settlement of obligations of debtors at 1% of the individual claims of the debtor’s legal entity (the same level as for individuals); and (5) detail the due process of calculating the allowance and provisions for losses.
According to Section 461 of the Decision on Capital Adequacy of Banks (RS Official Gazette No. 103/2016), a bank may assign, until the date of its accession to the EU, the weight of the risk of exposures to the Republic of Serbia and the NBS, including exposures to EU member states and their CBs which are expressed and settled in the currency of any member state, in the same manner as it assigns the weight of the risk of exposures to these persons which are expressed and settled in their national currencies. In this regard, Paragraph 3 of Section 41 of this Decision stipulates that exposures to the Republic of Serbia, the NBS, and central governments and CBs of EU member states denominated and funded in their domestic currency must be assigned a risk weight of zero.
Banks may assign receivables from a legal entity, entrepreneur, and farmer to another bank. Exceptionally, to reduce distressed assets, a bank may assign the following receivables from a legal entity, entrepreneur, and farmer also to another legal entity: – due receivables; – receivables not yet due but considered non-performing within the meaning of the decision governing the classification of bank balance sheet assets and off-balance sheet items, and classified as non-performing exposures on the cutoff classification date which immediately precedes the submission of the notification. Banks may assign receivables from a natural person – financial services consumer in accordance with the law governing the protection of financial services consumers. Banks are required to notify the NBS of a planned receivable assignment at least 30 days before conclusion of the assignment contract and to assess the effects of the planned assignment on the bank’s credit risk-weighted assets, reserves for estimated losses, and capital adequacy ratio; – the amount and structure of the bank’s nonperforming loans (NPLs), within the meaning of the decision on reporting requirements for banks; – the bank’s expenses and financial result; (Decision on Risk Management by Banks (RS Official Gazette Nos. 45/2011, 94/2011, 119/2012, 123/2012, 23/2013 – other decision, 43/2013, 92/2013, 33/2015, and 27/2020)). On August 13, 2015, the government adopted the national NPL Resolution Strategy and on the same day, the NBS Executive Board adopted Decision on the adoption of Action Plan for Implementation of the NPL Resolution Strategy to fulfill strategic objectives. The Decision Amending the Decision on Risk Management by Banks (RS Official Gazette No. 61/2016) was adopted to regulate money laundering and the financing of terrorism risk, as well as to implement Action Plan for Implementation of the NPL Resolution Strategy, by introducing the concept of bad assets and regulation of risk management relating to the management of bad assets, and with the aim of complying with Law on Payment Services. For the purpose of implementing the Action Plan for Implementation of the NPL Resolution Strategy, on June 29, 2016, the NBS Executive Board implemented the Decision Amending the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 61/2016) which has changed the definition and treatment of the restructured receivables, taking into account definitions and treatment of the forborne receivables as envisaged by the European Banking Authority’s implementing technical standard on supervisory reporting on forbearance and non-performing exposures. The Decision envisages the introduction of new definitions of non-performing (NPE), performing, and forborne exposure (in line with technical standards published by the European Banking Authority), prescribes additional requirements for classification for the purpose of additional monitoring of asset quality, so that banks would be obliged in addition to assigning exposures into categories (A, B, C, D, E), to mark the exposures as non-performing, performing, and forborne exposure, with no impact on the calculation of the amount of required reserves for estimated losses, and defines the conditions and the time required for the transition of receivables from one category to another. The Decision Amending the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 69/2016) introduced the model of reducing the amount of required reserve, which is conditional on the level of NPL ratio, earlier than Basel III standards implementation date (applied as of January 1, 2019) to have a longer implementation period for this model and thus to give banks stronger incentive to reduce the level of NPLs and/or increase the lending activity. Given that the adopted amendments to the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items, among others, envisage that banks, which had an NPL ratio of non-state and non-financial sector equal to or lower than 10% on June 30, 2016, and they still have this ratio equal to or lower than 10% on reporting date, can calculate their required reserve, treated as deductible from regulatory capital and credit-risk-weighted assets, to the level of zero. With additional aim to stimulate banks to increase lending activity, the adopted amendments to the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items prescribe possibility for the banks to change the percentage from 2% to 0% applicable to the base for the calculation of reserves for estimated losses for the receivables classified in category B which were created on the basis of contracts signed after September 30, 2016, provided their aim is not refinancing or restructuring. NBS Executive Board implemented the Decision Amending the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 91/2016) to equalize the treatment of bank refinanced exposure to borrower (forborne exposure on earlier valid solution), and the treatment of “refinancing” exposure of another legal entity other than a bank to whom the receivable from that borrower was assigned to (which was not treated as forborne exposure on earlier valid solution). Consequently, the definition of refinancing of exposures has been changed.

The Decision Amending the Decision on Consolidated Supervision of Banking Group (RS Official Gazette No. 58/2017) enabled introduction of Basel III standards on consolidated basis with simultaneous harmonization with Basel III standards implemented on individual level. The minimum prescribed level of capital adequacy ratio of the banking group is reduced from 12% to 8%, which is equal to the requirement for individual banks. Capital requirement for other risks has been introduced (capital requirement for credit valuation adjustment (CVA) risk and a capital requirement for large exposures for each member of the banking group). Obligations for the ultimate parent company to establish a system for liquidity risk management at the level of the banking group are stipulated, as well as the obligation to calculate the LCR and accordingly apply the appropriate restrictions relating to a bank’s exposure to liquidity risk. Guidelines for the identification of default (RS Official Gazette No. 69/2017) were adopted in July 2017. The maturity of the exposures is specified in such a way that, for the purposes of determining that status, the bank considers the exposure to be past due if any amount of the principal amount, interest, or fees was not paid at due date, and that the counting of days past due for exposures with changed terms of repayment is based on the changed repayment schedule. Guidelines also prescribe the manner of calculating a materially significant amount, indications of unlikeliness to pay, conditions for return to a non-defaulted status and the new occurrence of default, application of the definition of default, monitoring of the fulfillment of conditions for classification into non-defaulted status, the risk management process as well as requirements regarding the principles of management for banks applying the internal ratings-based (IRB) approach. Provisions that regulate the manner of calculating a materially significant amount must apply as of January 1, 2019.

Decision on the accounting write-off of bank balance sheet assets (RS Official Gazette No. 77/2017) applies as of September 30, 2017. In accordance with this decision, banks are obliged on direct write-off of NPLs which are fully impaired if the calculated amount of loan impairment recorded by the bank in favor of allowances equals 100% of its gross book value.

In February 2018, the Decision on Guidelines for the Application of the Provisions of the Law on the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing for Obligors Supervised by the NBS (RS Official Gazette No. 13/2018, 103/2018 and 57/2019) is introduced. These Guidelines regulate the manner in which an obligor supervised by the NBS carries out an analysis of the money laundering and terrorism financing risk, the procedure to determine whether the customer or the beneficial owner of the customer is an official, as well as the manner of applying other provisions of the law regulating the prevention of money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Borrowing abroad

Yes.

Credit agreements concluded by banks with nonresidents in foreign currency and dinars must meet the requirements set by the regulations governing banking operations and foreign credit transactions. Banks may borrow short-term financial loans in foreign currency from nonresidents and may also borrow in dinars from international financial organizations, development banks, and financial institutions founded by foreign states under conditions specified by the NBS. Borrowing from nonresidents in dinars and foreign currency is deemed a foreign credit transaction and reported to the NBS. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents (except natural persons), nonresidents, and residents (except natural persons) and nonresidents, while resident public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital require government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign currency may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities as prescribed by the NBS.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

Yes.

Authorized banks may hold foreign currency abroad only in accounts with banks.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Yes.

Banks may grant credits in dinars to nonresidents in the manner and under the conditions specified by the NBS. Banks may grant commercial credits in foreign currency to nonresidents and short-term bank credit facilities as well as short-term bank deposits in Foreign currency to foreign banks without any restrictions and may also grant financial loans in foreign currency to nonresidents, provided they contract and acquire from a nonresident payment collateral instruments. Banks may also grant dinar loans to an international financial organization, a development bank, or a financial institution founded by a foreign state without any limitation; other dinar lending by banks to nonresidents is subject to conditions specified by the NBS. Lending to nonresidents in dinars and foreign currency is deemed a foreign credit transaction and reported to the NBS. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents other than natural persons, nonresidents, and residents other than natural persons and nonresidents, except for resident public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital, which requires government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign currency may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities in the manner prescribed by the NBS.

Lending locally in foreign exchange Yes.

Banks may extend to resident legal entities and entrepreneurs credits in foreign currency for payment for imports of goods and services from abroad and to resident natural persons for the purchase of real estate in the country. Banks may approve loans to natural persons that are indexed to a foreign currency, provided the currency is the euro and the borrower has made a down payment or deposit of at least 30% of the loan amount. Banks may approve a mortgage to a natural person, provided the loan amount does not exceed 80% of the value of the property (reduced by the amount of other receivables secured by the first-rank mortgage on the same property). This requirement does not apply to loans in dinars that are not indexed to foreign currency. Banks were required to treat the amount overcharged by unilateral raising of variable indefinable elements of the interest rate as early loan repayment and notify each borrower with a modified loan repayment schedule within 30 days. With respect to Cooperative Housing Foundation-indexed housing loans, banks were required to offer their borrowers, within 30 days, four sample annex proposals containing modified terms of loan repayment while keeping the existing loan collateral. Borrowers must be given at least three months to decide on the offer and may accept it at any time before the deadline. Banks may not offer conversion, under any of the modalities envisaging such an option for the extension of euro-indexed loans if such terms are less favorable than the terms applied on December 31, 2014, and may not charge any fees for undertaking these measures and carrying out these activities nor obtain compensation for costs related to such measures and activities (NBS Decision on Measures for Preserving Stability of the Financial System in the Context of Foreign Currency-Indexed Loans). The NBS Executive Board adopted the Decision Amending Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 25/2015), with the aim of aligning with the Decision on Measures for Preserving Stability of the Financial System in the Context of Foreign Currency-Indexed Loans, by providing more precise conditions for the calculation of default in accordance with the subsequently agreed maturity date. The Executive Board of the NBS adopted the Decision on Intra-Group Financial Support.

Purchase of locally issued securities Yes.

Purchases of locally issued debt securities are permitted in accordance with the Law on the Capital Market.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts Yes.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange

Yes.
Reserve requirements

Yes.
Banks are subject to a minimum reserve requirement on sources of banking funding. Local currency (dinar) liabilities are treated differently from foreign currency liabilities. There is no reserve requirement for local currency (dinar) liabilities with maturity of more than two years and on banks’ dinar and foreign currency liabilities from international financial institutions, governments, and financial institutions of foreign states through intermediation of the governments as the main debtor and/or owner of these funds or received directly. When banks reinvest these funds, the loan margins must be lower than the average margins on loans approved by the bank from other sources of funds. A 5% reserve ratio applies to local currency liabilities with maturity of up to two years. A 100% reserve requirement ratio applies to the portion of the foreign exchange base composed of liabilities under foreign-exchange-indexed dinar liabilities regardless of the maturity. The mandatory reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities differs according to maturity. The reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities was 20% on liabilities with maturity of up to two years; and it was 13% on liabilities with maturity of more than two years. A portion of the required reserves must be allocated in foreign exchange. The allocation differs according to maturity: for debt with maturity of up to two years effective 62% of the reserve requirement must be allocated in foreign exchange and for debt with maturity of more than two years the ratio is 70%.

Liquid asset requirements

No.
Liquidity ratios are transferred in the Decision on Liquidity Risk Management by Banks (RS Official Gazette No. 103/2016), which must be applied as of that day. The Decision on Liquidity Risk Management by Banks introduced the liquidity coverage ratio. In accordance with this decision, the bank must maintain the LCR ratio at a level of at least 100%. According to provisions of this Decision, the liquid assets are the sum of level 1 liquid assets and level 2 liquid assets whereby level 1 liquid assets mean assets of extremely high liquidity and credit quality and level 2 liquid assets mean assets of high liquidity and credit quality comprising level 2A liquid assets and level 2B liquid assets. Level 1 liquid assets must include assets prescribed in Section 26 of this Decision, assets which could be included in Level 2A liquid assets are stipulated in Section 28 of this Decision and Section 30 determines what Level 2B liquid assets consist of.

Abroad by banks

Yes.
NBS approval is required and issued under the conditions set forth in the decision on the granting of approval for capital investment in banks abroad.

In banks by nonresidents

Yes.
NBS approval is required for the acquisition of 5%–20%, 20%–33%, 33%–50%.
33%–50%, and more than 50% of voting rights. NBS procedures for processing applications for bank founding permits and acquisition of ownership have been simplified. Criteria for the assessment of solvency of a potential founder/acquirer of ownership that is a legal entity with an investment grade credit rating are the same as for banks, and if the potential founder/acquirer is a special-purpose vehicle, the assessment of solvency is made for the persons financing the special-purpose vehicle’s investment in the bank’s capital rather than for the special-purpose vehicle itself.

The NBS must assess the business reputation of the bank founders, the acquirer of participation in the bank, or the persons nominated for membership in the management bodies of the bank when granting licenses or approvals.

Open foreign exchange position limits  Yes. The definition of total net open foreign exchange position is the higher of the absolute value of the total long or total short foreign exchange position. A bank’s total net open foreign exchange position (including the absolute value of its net open position in gold) limit is 20% of its capital. In accordance with the Decision on Bank Capital Adequacy (Section 368 Paragraph 2), foreign exchange assets and liabilities include all foreign exchange assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currency, assets and liabilities denominated in dinars with a currency clause, where the currency clause is a contractual provision indexing the agreed amount to some other currency.

On resident assets and liabilities  Yes. There are no specific open foreign exchange limits on resident assets and liabilities, the only limit is the one described in Point 9 above.

On nonresident assets and liabilities  Yes. There are no specific open foreign exchange limits on resident assets and liabilities, the only limit is the one described in Point 9 above.

Provisions specific to institutional investors  Yes. Securities transactions by institutional investors are regulated in accordance with the Law on the Capital Market, which has been applied since November 2011 and bylaws of the SC.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally
Yes. A pension fund’s assets may be invested without any limitations in debt securities issued by the NBS and Serbia, as well as in debt securities issued by legal entities and accompanied by the guarantee of Serbia. In addition, changes to the Voluntary Pension Fund Law (RS Official Gazette No. 31/11) allow investment in instruments such as (1) short-term debt securities issued or guaranteed by banks headquartered in Serbia, and (2) investment units of open-end investment funds managed by companies headquartered in Serbia and/or EU and OECD member countries. Detailed limits on investments are prescribed in the Decision on More Detailed Conditions and Maximum Amounts of Voluntary Pension Fund Assets Investment and Manner of Investing Such Assets Abroad (RS Official Gazette No. 43/11). Accordingly, the assets of a pension fund may be invested as follows: (1) up to 50% in (a) debt securities issued by autonomous provinces and local government units in Serbia, except securities with the guarantee of Serbia; (b) debt securities issued in Serbia by international financial institutions to which Serbia belongs; (c) mortgage bonds issued in Serbia; (d) debt securities issued by legal entities headquartered in Serbia and traded in the Serbian regulated market, except securities with the guarantee of Serbia; (e) short-term debt securities issued or guaranteed by banks headquartered in Serbia, as prescribed by the law governing the capital market; and (f) securities issued by nonresidents, such as debt securities issued abroad by international financial institutions and debt securities issued by foreign governments or foreign legal entities, provided their credit rating is no less than A from Standard & Poor’s and Fitch IBCA or no less than A2 from Moody’s; (2) up to 40% in (a) shares issued by legal entities headquartered in Serbia, traded in the Serbian regulated market; and (b) securities issued by nonresidents, such as listed shares of foreign legal entities, traded on stock exchanges of EU/OECD member countries; (3) up to 35% in money deposits in banks headquartered in Serbia; (4) up to 5% in investment units of open-end investment funds managed by investment fund management companies headquartered in Serbia and/or EU/OECD member countries; (5) up to 10% in (a) depository receipts of banks headquartered in Serbia, and (b) securities issued by nonresidents, such as depository receipts issued by banks headquartered in EU/OECD member countries, based on deposited securities; and (6) up to 5% in real estate in Serbia. Up to 10% of pension funds’ assets may be invested in securities of a single issuer or of two or more issuers that are related parties, with the exception of securities issued by Serbia or the NBS.

No.

Investment firms and collective investment funds
Yes. Investment firms are regulated by the Capital Market Law, and collective investment funds are regulated by the Law on open-ended investment funds subject to public offering and the Law on alternative investment funds. Limited investment in units has been introduced, and limits on borrowing from investment funds’ assets have been relaxed.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes. All of a fund’s assets may be invested abroad, according to the regulation of the Committee on Securities. All limits are given in accordance with the Law on open-ended investment funds subject to public offering and the Law on alternative investment funds. These securities must be traded on a regulated market in EU member states and third countries, and 50% must be on the official listing.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes. All of a fund’s assets may be invested abroad, according to the regulation of the Committee on Securities. These securities must be traded on a regulated market in EU member states and third countries, and 50% must be on the official listing.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes. In accordance with the Law on open-ended investment funds subject to public offering and the Rulebook on UCITS funds collective investment funds may invest (1) 10% of their assets in securities of a single issuer or more issuers that are related parties; the total value of all individual investments exceeding 5% of the fund assets cannot exceed 40% of the total value of the fund’s assets; (2) 20% of their assets in bank deposits of a single bank or more banks that are related parties; and (3) 35% of their assets in debt securities issued by the NBS and Serbia, as well as in debt securities issued by legal entities and accompanied by the guarantee of Serbia or securities issued or guaranteed by EU member states, third countries, or international organizations to which EU member states belong. Funds may not be invested in mobile assets or in securities issued by the company that manages the fund or by a stockholder of a management company, fund managed by the same management company, or related parties to the above-mentioned persons and entities. A management company and its related parties may invest in shares of its own fund up to 20% of total assets. Borrowing is allowed up to 10% of the assets. Total exposure of a fund to a single person cannot exceed 20% of the fund assets except for the issuers in point (3) where the limit is 35%. No person may acquire shares valued at more than 20% of total assets of an open-end fund. The Law on Alternative Investment Funds is intended primarily for professional and semi-professional investors.

selling rate per unit of foreign currency – the euro – cannot be higher than the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro applicable on that day by more than 1.25%.

01/01/2019 When the public postal operator and authorized exchange dealers purchase foreign cash from natural persons, their commission may not exceed 1% of the value of undamaged banknotes from natural persons, and/or circulating banknotes within the meaning of the provisions of Decision on Terms and Manner of Performing Exchange Operations. Previously, the maximum commission limit was 3%.

09/30/2019 The Belorussian ruble was included in the list of foreign exchange and foreign cash that banks may trade with and in the list of foreign cash that licensed exchange dealers may buy and sell.

05/08/2020 In relation to the COVID-19 pandemic, the National Bank of Serbia (NBS) applies the official middle exchange rate of the dinar as specified in the current exchange rate list when buying and selling foreign exchange and foreign cash from and to residents who have foreign exchange accounts with the NBS. Previously, the provision was limited to specific accounts for disaster assistance and applied to commercial banks as well.

Spot exchange market

01/01/2019 The threshold that determines the excess amount of dinars exchange bureaus must transfer to their current account with a bank is triple the average daily amount of dinars used for the purchasing of foreign cash in the month with the highest purchase in the preceding 12 months. If the foreign exchange dealer works less than a month, the triple average daily amount of dinars is determined according to the week with the highest purchase. Previously, the threshold was double the average daily amount of dinars used for purchasing foreign cash in the month (week if exchange dealer worked less than a month) with the highest purchase in the preceding 12 months.

Operated by the central bank

Auction

03/31/2020 From this date until the end of May 2020, the National Bank of Serbia organized fixed-method swap auctions with preannounced fixed swap points at favorable rates to give support to the domestic financial system in the conditions of COVID-19. The regular swap auctions are organized in the variable method with multiple swap points.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

01/01/2019 The National Bank of Serbia took over from the Tax Administration the supervision of foreign exchange operations of residents and nonresidents, as well as supervision of exchange operations under the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations which entered into the force April 28, 2018.

Resident Accounts

02/22/2020 Residents may hold foreign exchange abroad subject to approval of the NBS on two new grounds: (1) making collections based on the refund of funds invested in a company established abroad (the sale of a company, wind-down of a company, profit from investment in a company, etc.) if regulations of the foreign state prescribe that holding foreign exchange in a bank account abroad is a condition for such collections, and (2) for settlement of liabilities abroad arising in relation to the resident’s balance responsibility as a participant in the energy transport system – based on an excerpt from the regulation of the relevant country envisaging that these liabilities can be settled only through the account with a bank in that country and the document proving this liability.

Floating
Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The rate of the rupee is determined by supply and demand in the market. The CBS intervenes only to smooth excessive exchange rate volatility. The CBS occasionally participates in the foreign exchange market for reserve accumulation. The CBS discloses intervention data to the IMF on a weekly basis. On average, the Seychelles rupee depreciated vis-à-vis the dollar and appreciated with respect to the euro in 2019. A strong tourism performance (both in terms of high arrivals and spending) was observed in 2019. The trade balance worsened because of decreases in tuna and oil reexports. However, the magnitude of the decrease was partially offset by decrease in imports. For the year 2019, there was an increase in supply of foreign exchange, whilst there was a decrease in demand of foreign exchange relative to 2018. During 2019, the Bank intervened in the foreign exchange market for reserves accumulation purposes and purchased a total of US$65 million. The reserves accumulation policy was consistent with the Bank’s policy to boost safeguards against external shocks.

Free floating

Official exchange rate Yes. The reference exchange rate is calculated as a weighted average of all foreign currency buying and selling transactions by ADs (banks and exchange bureaus) and wire transfers and drafts and is used for accounting and conversion of payments in foreign currency.

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework Yes. Effective January 1, 2019, the Monetary Policy Framework transitioned from reserve money targeting to an interest rate-based framework whereby the focus of monetary policy shifted from indirectly influencing the intermediate target of money supply growth to guiding short-term interest rates. This was done through the introduction of a Monetary Policy Rate (MPR). The MPR serves as the key policy variable used for signaling the prevailing monetary policy stance. Previously, the operational target of the monetary policy was reserve money. It was complemented by the overnight interest rate corridor which was used to provide clearer guidance to the financial market for appropriate evolution of short-term interest rates.

Foreign exchange market
Yes. Commercial banks and exchange bureaus are free to set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients. The aforementioned ADs are also free to determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market
Yes. The spot foreign exchange market comprises commercial banks and bureaux de change (BDCs). These financial institutions are licensed and regulated by the CBS. There are two classes of BDCs: (1) Class B may engage only in purchases and sales of foreign currency in the form of banknotes, coins, and traveler’s checks. (2) Class A may also engage in the purchase and sale of foreign currency without the limitation that applies to a Class B BDC. However, Class A BDCs may engage in services of money transmission and remittances subject to having a Payment Service Provider License as per the National Payment System Act of August 18, 2014. As of December 31, 2019, there were 33 institutions licensed under the Financial Institutions Act of 2004, to deal in foreign exchange with the public: 9 commercial banks and 13 Class A and 11 Class B BDCs. Only commercial banks may engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBS. BDCs and commercial banks must comply with the Anti-Money-Laundering Act of 2006 and Prevention of Terrorism Act of 2004 and report transactions to the CBS. BDCs may open local and international bank accounts for themselves.

Operated by the central bank Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility No.
Allocation No.
Auction Yes. The multiple price foreign exchange auction allows the CBS to buy and sell foreign exchange (US dollars, euros, and pounds sterling only) as part of its foreign exchange and monetary operations. Auctions are held as necessary in the context of foreign exchange and monetary policies as well as reserves management. The CBS determines and announces the amount of foreign exchange to be purchased or sold on the day of the auction through its web portal. Financial institutions that are liable to reserve requirements of the CB or as prescribed in the Monetary Policy Framework are eligible to participate in the auction. Successful bidders pay the price they bid. The Monetary Policy Technical Committee/Investment Committee may decide on the bids according to guidelines based on price and amount (buying or selling). Auctions are announced through an online portal with all relevant information (for example, auction date, time frame, reference number, foreign currency to be purchased or sold, amount intended to be purchased or sold by the CBS, and value and settlement date of the rupee equivalent). Auction results are sent via the web portal. If payment is delayed, the CBS imposes a fine as indicated in the Penalty Clause of the Monetary Policy Framework. There are no restrictions on the use of the foreign exchange purchased at the auction. Auction rules are included in the Monetary Policy Framework, Operational Guidelines and Procedures for Foreign Exchange Auction. Bids may not breach the MCP Rule stipulated in the Guidelines.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. The CBS and nine commercial banks licensed under the Financial Institutions Act of 2004, excluding those that do business only with nonresidents, participate in the foreign exchange interbank market. Banks may trade among themselves. Currently, participation in the interbank market is less prominent. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread and commission of market participants. According to the interbank market regulations, the CBS may either intervene directly at the participants’ quoted rates or make its own quote (one-sided). The interbank market in Seychelles has been inactive as most banks are long on their foreign exchange positions.

Over the counter No.
Brokerage No.
Market making Yes. The following policies guide market operations through the Seychelles Interbank Foreign Exchange Market. The nine commercial banks provide two-way quotes (that is, buying and selling rates) at regular intervals through an interbank blog administered and maintained by the CBS. Foreign exchange transactions may be concluded via telephone, but a written confirmation of each deal must always be sent by both parties to the counterparty immediately after conclusion of the transaction. The netting and settlement process is then undertaken by the CBS, and the rupee settlement is executed across the participants’ demand deposit accounts with the CBS on a T+0 basis (same day settlement). The seller undertakes delivery transfer using a correspondent banking arrangement on a T+0 basis.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Monetary policy framework

Inflation-targeting framework 01/01/2019  The Monetary Policy Framework transitioned from reserve money targeting to an interest rate-based framework whereby the focus of monetary policy shifted from indirectly influencing the intermediate target of money supply growth to guiding short-term interest rates. This was done through the introduction of a Monetary Policy Rate (MPR). The MPR serves as the key policy variable used for signaling the prevailing monetary policy stance. Previously, the operational target of the monetary policy was reserve money. It was complemented by the overnight interest rate corridor which was used to provide clearer guidance to the financial market for appropriate evolution of short-term interest rates.

Floating

Free floating

Official exchange rate

Yes. The BSL official exchange rate is market determined. The BSL determines the exchange rate used in official transactions, including transactions for customs valuation purposes. The official exchange rate is based on the weighted average of commercial banks’ and foreign exchange bureaus’ purchase transactions during the preceding five business days. The weighted average exchange rate derived is the BSL mid-rate to which a ±1% spread is applied to determine the selling and buying rates. The daily official BSL exchange rate is published on the Bank’s website and the Thomson Reuters platform.

Foreign exchange market

Yes.

Commercial banks are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients. Commercial banks’ dealings represent the majority of foreign exchange transactions in the foreign exchange market. Foreign exchange bureaus are licensed to undertake retail cash spot transactions only. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market and do not deal directly with the BSL; they may hold foreign exchange accounts with commercial banks used solely for their operations. Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to undertake inward money transfer transactions.

Spot exchange market

Yes.

There are 14 commercial banks licensed as ADs by the BSL to deal in foreign exchange with the public and 62 foreign exchange bureaus licensed to undertake retail cash spot transactions. Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to undertake inward money transfer transactions. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market and do not deal directly with the BSL; they may hold foreign exchange accounts with commercial banks used solely for their operations.

Operated by the central bank

Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility

No.

Allocation

No.

Auction

Yes.

The BSL conducts auctions of foreign exchange with the commercial banks to smooth excess volatility.
The amount put on offer is always announced via the print and electronic media one day before the auction is held. Commercial banks are free to determine the exchange rate they want to bid at and free to sell to their customers for the importation of goods. There is no restriction or limit to the exchange rates banks are to bid at. The maximum amount commercial banks are allowed to bid for is always announced.

The frequency of the foreign exchange auction is based on the monetary policy stance of the BSL and the conduct of the auction is approved by the executives. Foreign exchange auctions are undertaken primarily to smooth out volatility in the market and to mop up excess Leone liquidity.

There are no restrictions for the use of funds obtained at the auction. Auction funds are primarily to support importation of goods. Auction participants, which are commercial banks, have demand deposit accounts with the BSL. Settlement of the Leone leg of the foreign exchange transactions is done on a T+0 basis, same day. The auction results are published in both print and electronic media as well as the BSL’s website. The results are also broadcasted on the Reuters Auction platform.

Fixing

No.

Interbank market

Yes. Commercial banks may trade freely among themselves and with the BSL. There are 14 commercial banks that are participating in the interbank foreign exchange market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread or commissions of market participants. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. Market participants are guided by the Sierra Leone Foreign Exchange Interbank Market Guidelines. As a result of liquidity and other structural constraints, the foreign exchange interbank market was inactive in 2019.

Over the counter

Yes. Licensed commercial banks may deal directly with each other in the foreign exchange market. With the introduction of the Thomson Reuters trading and dealing platform, the interbank foreign exchange market was automated, which enhanced the process to deepen and improve the foreign exchange interbank market. For trading foreign exchange among themselves, banks are required to use the Reuters trading platform and may not trade outside of it.

Brokerage

No.

Market making

No.

Forward exchange market

Yes. Forward transactions are limited to imports and exports undertaken with a commercial bank by an institution dealing in the underlying imports or exports. Forward transactions are capped at US$100,000 a transaction. The BSL may participate in the forward foreign exchange market.

Official cover of forward operations

No.

Pension funds

Yes.

Pension funds and insurance companies invest in government securities, equities, and real estate, but not in derivatives abroad. Large insurance companies, such as the National Insurance Company, have foreign equity investments in Ecobank Group and WAICA Re. There are specific laws and guidelines for investment including local purchase of securities by insurance companies and pension funds. In addition, there are recognized internal controls in place for placement of investment abroad which include the National Social Security and Insurance Trust statement of investment strategy and policy (2015–17). According to Section 8.3.5 on offshore investments, the Trust’s funds may be invested in offshore fixed-income securities or equity that is traded in regulated stock markets. In this regard, the trust will utilize the services of professional fund managers. The Board may periodically review the exposure limits in this area giving due regard to global economic trends. Specific investment limits for pension funds are outlined in the National Social Security and Insurance Trust investment policy.

Dual
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is other managed. The authorities manage the exchange rate as an intermediate target of monetary policy, with the objective of maintaining price stability as a sound basis for sustainable economic growth. The Singapore dollar is allowed to fluctuate within a targeted policy band and is managed against a basket of currencies of the country’s major trading partners. Currencies in the basket are assigned weights in accordance with the importance of the countries in Singapore’s trade relations with the world. The exchange rate policy is announced every six months in the Monetary Policy Statement, typically in terms of changes to the slope, central rate, and width of the policy band. In response to changing macroeconomic conditions, the policy parameters may also be adjusted outside the regular biannual cycle. The US dollar is the intervention currency. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified crawl-like. The MAS intervenes through agents and since April 2020 has published data on its foreign exchange intervention operations. The data comprise MAS’ net purchases of foreign exchange from its intervention operations on a six-month aggregated basis, and with a three-month lag from the end of the period.

The MAS publishes bilateral rates on its website, which are taken directly from Refinitiv.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite.

There is no minimum holding period requirement for debt securities purchased locally by nonresidents. There are no restrictions on sales and issuance locally by nonresidents. However, in practice, nonresident financial entities must convert Singapore dollar proceeds in excess of S$5 million from Singapore dollar loans, equity listings, and bond issuances to foreign currency before using such funds to finance activities outside Singapore. Offers of capital market products as defined under the Securities and Futures Act (Cap. 289) (including shares, debentures, and collective investment schemes) to investors in Singapore require a prospectus, unless exempted. Banks may lend in Singapore dollars to nonresident financial institutions for any purpose in Singapore or elsewhere as long as the aggregate credit facilities do not exceed S$5 million an entity. For larger amounts, the following conditions apply: (1) If the proceeds in Singapore dollars are to be used outside Singapore, banks must ensure that they are swapped or converted to foreign currency on drawdown. (2) Banks may extend temporary overdrafts in any amount to vostro accounts of nonresident financial institutions to prevent settlement failure, but must make a reasonable effort to ensure that overdrafts are covered within two business days. (3) Banks must not extend credit facilities in Singapore dollars to nonresident financial institutions if there is reason to believe that the proceeds will be used for local currency speculation. Banks must report monthly to the MAS their aggregate outstanding lending in Singapore dollars to nonresident financial institutions. This requirement does not apply to lending in Singapore dollars to individuals and nonfinancial institutions (including corporate treasury centers).
landed property and public housing. Foreigners who wish to purchase landed properties must obtain approval from the Singapore Land Authority.

ABSD is imposed on certain categories of residential property purchases as follows: ABSD rate of, effective July 6, 2018, 12% (previously 7%) applies for Singapore citizens buying a second residential property; 15% (previously 10%) for citizens buying a third or subsequent property; 5% for permanent residents buying first residential property; 15% (previously 10%) for permanent residents buying a second or subsequent property; 20% (previously 15%) for foreign individuals buying any residential property; and 25% (previously 15%) for local and foreign nonindividuals (that is, entities) buying any residential property, as well as an additional ABSD of 5% was introduced for developers, which is nonremittable (that is, nonrefundable) and must be paid on purchase of the residential property. Developers who meet certain conditions may qualify for a refund from the government of the ABSD of 25%.

Sale locally by nonresidents: Yes.

There are no specific restrictions for foreigners on the sale of nonlanded private property. However, the seller stamp duty was introduced in February 2010 for all residential property and residential land sold within one year of purchase. Subsequently, the holding period was extended progressively from one to four years as of January 2011. The seller stamp duty rates were also raised to 16%, 12%, 8%, and 4% for residential property sold in the first, second, third, or fourth year of purchase, respectively. Foreigners who buy landed private property with approval may not sell it before five years from the date of purchase—if the property is under construction, before five years from the issuance of the temporary occupation permit or certificate of statutory completion, whichever is earlier. Foreigners may not buy or own public housing.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions: Yes.
Borrowing abroad  No.

Maintenance of accounts abroad  No.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)  Yes.  Singapore dollar credit facilities include loans, contingent credit lines, and foreign exchange swaps involving a sale of Singapore dollars to a nonresident financial institution in the first leg of the transaction. Banks may lend in Singapore dollars to nonresident financial institutions for any purpose in Singapore or elsewhere as long as the aggregate credit facilities do not exceed $5 million an entity. For larger amounts, the following conditions apply: (1) If the proceeds in Singapore dollars are to be used outside Singapore, banks must ensure that they are swapped or converted to foreign currency on drawdown. (2) Banks may extend temporary overdrafts in any amount to vostro accounts of nonresident financial institutions for the purpose of preventing settlement failure. However, banks must make a reasonable effort to ensure that the overdrafts are covered within two business days. (3) Banks must not extend credit facilities in Singapore dollars to nonresident financial institutions if there is reason to believe that the proceeds will be used for local currency speculation. Banks must report monthly to the MAS their aggregate outstanding lending in Singapore dollars to nonresident financial institutions. This requirement does not apply to lending in Singapore dollars to individuals and nonfinancial institutions (including corporate treasury centers).

Lending locally in foreign exchange  No.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange  No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange  Yes.

Reserve requirements  Yes.  Foreign currency deposits accepted by banks in Singapore are not subject to reserve requirements. Banks must maintain in its Current Account and Custody Cash Account, an aggregate minimum cash balance of at least an average of 3% of its average Qualifying Liabilities computed during a computation period.

Liquid asset requirements  Yes.  The liquid asset requirements for banks incorporated and headquartered in Singapore were revised, after January 1, 2015, in line with the global implementation of the LCR rules. For all other banks in Singapore, the requirements came into force January 1, 2016. Banks in Singapore must comply either with the LCR or with the minimum liquid assets (MLA) requirement. Banks complying with the LCR must ensure that they hold sufficient high-quality liquid assets in any currency to meet their expected net cash outflow in any currency. In addition, banks must ensure that they hold sufficient high-quality liquid assets in Singapore dollars to meet their expected net cash outflow in Singapore dollars. The expected net cash outflow also includes outflows expected from deposits.

As of January 1, 2019, banks incorporated and headquartered in Singapore must maintain at all times a Singapore dollar LCR of at least 100% and an all-currency LCR of at least 100%. Any other bank notified by MAS that it is a Domestic—Systemically Important Bank (D-SIB), or a bank that elects to comply with the LCR framework, must maintain at all times a Singapore dollar LCR requirement of 100% and an all-currency LCR requirement of 50%.

Effective October 1, 2019, any bank that has been notified by MAS... that it is an internationally active bank must also maintain at all times a Singapore dollar LCR of at least 100% and an all-currency LCR of at least 100%. In addition, any bank that is not a D-SIB or an internationally active bank may choose to comply with either the MLA or the LCR requirement, regardless of whether the bank is incorporated and headquartered in Singapore.

Banks complying with the MLA requirement must ensure that they hold sufficient liquid assets in any currency to meet their qualifying liabilities (a subset of the bank’s liabilities) in any currency. In addition, banks must ensure that they hold sufficient liquid assets in Singapore dollars to meet their qualifying liabilities in Singapore dollars. Qualifying liabilities include, among others, amounts due to nonbank customers such as deposits.

Such investment is subject to prudential limits and approvals, but the provisions are not exchange related. No person may become a substantial shareholder (that is, 5%), 12% controller, 20% controller or indirect controller of (1) a bank incorporated in Singapore or (2) a financial holding company without approval of the minister. The minister may approve the application, if the authority is satisfied that (1) the person is a fit and proper person; (2) under the likely influence of the person, the designated financial institution will or will continue to conduct its business prudently and comply with the provisions of the law; and (3) if the minister is satisfied that the acquisition is in the national interest. These sections apply to all individuals, regardless of their residency or citizenship status, and to all bodies corporate and unincorporated, whether operating in Singapore or not.

Risk requirements apply. Insurers are required to maintain sufficient financial resources to meet the total risk requirements at adjusted fund level and for the company as a whole. Effective March 31, 2020, the total risk requirement includes a risk requirement of 12% (previously 8%) on the foreign currency mismatch risk, which is calculated as the aggregate of net foreign currency open positions of the insurer minus 10% (or 20%) of the total value of assets in the insurance fund for Singapore policies (or for offshore policies). Foreign currency assets that match foreign currency liabilities are excluded from the calculation of the foreign currency mismatch risk. Insurers are required to fulfill a concentration risk requirement if the foreign currency mismatch exceeds 40% of total assets.

Floating

Free floating

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. The Slovak Republic participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The reference rates are usually updated around 16:00 Central European Time on every working day, except on TARGET (Trans-European Automated Real-time Gross Settlement Express Transfer) closing days. They are based on a regular daily concertation procedure between CBs across Europe, which normally takes place at 14:15 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is commonly defined as inflation rates at levels below, but close to, 2% over the medium term.
Foreign exchange market  Yes. ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market  Yes. As of December 31, 2019, 1112 bureaus had been licensed to provide foreign exchange services (for currency exchange activity, including the purchase and sale of funds in foreign currency for euros in cash) to the public. The EU currently maintains more than 130 tariff quotas, mostly on agricultural products, which allow certain goods to be imported into the EU at a lower level of duty than would usually apply. These quotas are administered through import licenses and apply to imports of certain items under the EU Common Customs Tariff related to beef, sheep, goats, chicken, turkey, fish, milk, eggs, potatoes, fruit and vegetables, wheat, barley, rice, maize, mushrooms, sausages, sugar, fruit juice, chocolate, pasta, and wine. The EU’s common licensing system and quotas apply to imports of textiles from the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea and wood from Russia. Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 498/2012 on the allocation of tariff-rate quotas for imports of wood in the categories spruce or silver fir and pine is in effect (Annex I). The Commission allocates tariff quotas based on whether an importer is “traditional” or “new,” and the allocation of tariff quotas depends on when the importer submitted its application. In general, the sale or purchase of financial instruments in the Slovak Republic falls, if certain conditions are met, under the category of provision of investment services, which is a regulated activity. Nonresidents are allowed to provide investment services in the Slovak Republic, if they are granted a license issued by the NBS or after notification from another EEA member, if they are granted a license in that particular EEA member country. The provision of investment services in another EEA member country, by residents licensed by the NBS, is subject to notification from the NBS to that particular EEA member. The issuance of securities in the Slovak Republic is, as a general rule, regulated, whether this activity is carried out by residents or nonresidents.

Natural and legal persons from EU (including Slovak Republic) or EEA member countries and Switzerland may acquire agricultural land without any limitations, effective February 11, 2019, as the rules regarding the offering the agricultural land established by Act No. 140/2014 Coll. were cancelled by the Constitutional Court of the Slovak Republic. Previously, natural and legal persons from EU (including Slovak Republic) or EEA member countries and Switzerland could acquire agricultural land located outside town limits, provided they had been operating an agricultural production business for at least three years within the municipality where the land was situated. Residents in the Slovak Republic for longer than 10 years who were EU or EEA members and Swiss (natural or legal persons) could acquire agricultural land located outside town limits, provided they had been operating an agricultural production business for at least three years within the area adjacent to the municipality where the land was situated or without any regard to the place of providing agricultural production. If none of these persons acquired ownership of agricultural land, ownership could be acquired by physical or legal persons of the Slovak Republic, an EU or EEA member country, or Switzerland who had not been involved in agricultural production, provided they had been a resident for longer than 10 years. These restrictions did not apply to nonresidents who inherit property. These restrictions did not apply to agricultural land located within town limits, to agricultural land outside town limits where its management was limited by special regulations, to agricultural land outside town limits where its management was limited by the local plan, to agricultural land outside town limits under 2000 m2, to agricultural land outside town limits which was functionally connected with the adjacent building and to the gardens. The prohibition for acquirers from other states is not cancelled and is still in effect. Acquisition of agricultural land by any physical or legal persons who are citizens or residents of other state than Slovak Republic, an EU or EEA member country, or Switzerland, is forbidden, provided the acquisition of agricultural land in this state is forbidden for Slovak citizens or residents. General rules remain against the fragmentation of the agricultural and forest land (prohibition of creating new land or new co-owner’s deal with smaller area than 2000 m² of agricultural land and 5000 m² of forest land; Act. No. 180/1995 Coll.) and the rules regarding the right of first refusal for the co-owners (Civil Code).

These limits do not apply to insurance products whose policyholder bears all the insured risk (for example, unit-linked products).

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad  No. There are no specific limits on investments abroad. Insurance companies are required to invest their technical provisions according to Article 178 of Act No. 39/2015 Coll. on Insurance. Limits for each asset are specified in NBS Decree No. 12/2015. No such limits apply to insurance products whose policyholder bears all the insured risk (for example, unit-linked products).

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally  No. Insurance companies must invest their technical provisions according to Article 178 of Act No. 39/2015 Coll. on Insurance. Limits for each asset are specified in NBS Decree No. 12/2015. No such limits apply to insurance products whose policyholder bears all the insured risk (for example, unit-linked products).

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition  Yes. Currency-matching rules are applied to assets relating to technical provisions, except unit-linked provisions. An insurance company or domestic branches of a foreign insurance company are required to invest a minimum of 80% of their liabilities in the given currency. This requirement does not apply if (1) assets in this currency do not exceed 7% of the assets in other currencies or (2) commitments are payable in a currency other than the currency of one of the EEA members. Reinsurance companies and domestic branches of foreign reinsurance companies must invest their technical provisions by matching assets at a minimum of 70% of their liabilities in a given currency.

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Slovenia participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rates against the euro are the average of the buying and selling rates.

Exchange rate structure

- Unitary: Yes.

Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board

Conventional peg: Yes.

The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg. The Solomon Islands dollar (SBD) is pegged to an invoice-based basket of currencies consisting of the US dollar (with the weight of 58%), the Australian dollar (AUD) (32%), the New Zealand dollar (5%), the Japanese yen (3%), and the British pound (2%). The Central Bank of Solomon Islands (CBSI) sets the exchange rate vis-à-vis the US dollar in such a way as to maintain the value of the basket constant in SBDs given the movements of currencies in the basket relative to each other.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The SBD per US dollar value is the value of the index multiplied by the SBD per US dollar value on the day the basket peg was introduced. The exchange rate (midrate) is expressed in SBDs per US dollar and is determined by the total index of the basket multiplied by the initial base rate expressed in SBDs. The midrate is then announced as the official rate. Commercial banks can exchange the SBD against other currencies and are free to set the bid-ask spread for all currencies, except the US dollar and AUD on which there is a spread limit of ±20 and ±25 basis points (bps), respectively. In addition, the CB maintains a standing facility through which it will buy and sell foreign exchange with commercial banks and the government at spot offer and sell rates. Customs uses a monthly average of commercial banks’ exchange rates for valuation of imports and exports.

Other monetary framework Yes. The monetary aggregate target is mainly domestic price stability with limited monetary policy tools such as liquid asset ratios, CB bills, and the exchange rate policy/regime.

Exchange tax Yes. A tax of SI$3 is levied on sales of foreign exchange exceeding SI$3,000.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Commercial banks may freely determine their bid-ask spread for all currencies (except the US dollar and AUD, for which a spread limit of ±20 and ±25 bps, respectively, around the midpoint applies) and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Currently, 4 commercial banks, 3 money transfer companies, and 9 subagents for money transfer are licensed by the CBSI to deal in foreign exchange with the public. They can effect foreign currency transactions on behalf of their clients. The CBSI has licensed 10 companies as exchange bureaus for banknotes only. The four commercial banks may trade directly with the CBSI. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to maintain accounts abroad, and they do not transact directly with the CBSI. Their operation is limited to purchase and sell of banknotes only. Money transfer companies and their subagents can do foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank Yes. The CBSI’s foreign exchange standing facility allows commercial banks and the government to buy and sell foreign exchange at the spot rate (CBSI offer and sell rates).

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The CBSI provides a standing foreign exchange facility to the commercial banks and the government at official spot buying and selling rates with a margin of ±12 bps around the midpoint. The same spot rate is applied to both the government and the commercial
There is an interbank foreign exchange market in which commercial banks may trade among themselves. Four commercial banks are licensed to participate. These banks may freely set their exchange rates for all foreign currencies except the AUD and the US dollar, for which the CBSI sets limits. The US dollar and AUD spread limit on commercial banks’ foreign exchange transactions is ±20 bps for the US dollar and ±25 bps for the AUD around the midpoint. The spread limit applies to interbank transactions as well as transactions with clients. The interbank market is generally active, and the CBSI can also provide foreign exchange to the commercial banks. As of June 30, 2020, three banks participated actively in the interbank foreign exchange market.

The market operates over the counter on the basis of market makers.

Commercial banks may enter into forward contracts with resident clients in any foreign currency but subject to CBSI approval if the deal is in US dollars and AUDs. The CBSI, however, does not participate nor provide guarantees in foreign exchange in the market for foreign exchange derivatives.

The CBSI does not provide official cover.

This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Contractual commitments in a foreign currency to nonresidents may be met by payments only in the currency specified in the contract. Exports are normally priced in foreign currency as agreed to between exporters and buyers; therefore, export proceeds are bought by commercial banks that deliver the SBD equivalent to the exporter’s local account. However, exporters with approved foreign currency accounts may receive foreign currency payments in their foreign currency account.

SBDs are used for domestic transactions only. The Foreign Exchange Control Regulations restrict the exportation of banknotes except with CBSI approval. Solomon Islands notes and coins may be exported up to SI$250. Domestic currency may be used to buy foreign currency to settle all trade and current transactions and payments. Commercial banks may effect without CBSI approval payments up to SI$30,000 for personal and travel remittances and up to SI$100,000 for trade and services payments. Larger payments require CBSI approval. All capital and financial repayments require CBSI assessment and approval.

Domestic currency may be used to buy foreign currency to settle foreign capital transactions only with CBSI approval. All capital and financial repayments require CBSI assessment and approval.

The use of domestic currency to buy foreign currency requires CBSI approval.
| Transactions in derivatives and other instruments | Yes. | For transactions in derivatives, such as forwards and swaps, CBSI approval is required. |
| Credit operations | Yes. | Borrowing abroad requires CBSI approval. The assessment is based on prudential debt equity requirements for exchange control purposes. |
| Use of foreign exchange among residents | Yes. | Residents may settle transactions in foreign exchange only with CBSI approval. |
| Payments arrangements | Yes. | |
| Bilateral payments arrangements | No. | |
| Operative | No. | |
| Inoperative | No. | |
| Regional arrangements | Yes. | The Solomon Islands participates in the Melanesian Spearhead Group Trade Agreement, PACER, and PICTA. |
| Clearing agreements | No. | |
| Barter agreements and open accounts | No. | |
| Administration of control | Yes. | Exchange Control Act is administered by the CBSI through the foreign exchange (exchange control) regulations. The CBSI delegates extensive power to commercial banks, which are appointed ADs in foreign exchange and may approve certain transactions. Commercial banks may approve applications for trade and service payments of up to SIS100,000 and SIS30,000 for travel and personal remittances. All capital-related payment approvals are not delegated to ADs and must be approved by the CBSI. Other legitimate requests for foreign exchange require CBSI approval. |
| Payments arrears | No. | |
| Official | No. | |
| Private | No. | |
| Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) | Yes. | Only licensed gold dealers and licensed gold producers and exporters are permitted to export and trade in gold. |
| On domestic ownership and/or trade | Yes. | Only Solomon Islands citizens may be granted a license to pan for alluvial gold. The CBSI may buy, sell, and hold gold and has participated in gold investments. A gold holding policy and trading agreement is in effect between the CBSI and the members of the London Bullion Market Association. Commercial mining companies are licensed by the Ministry of Mines, Energy and Rural Electrification to mine gold. Controls relating to domestic ownership of gold are subject to Ministry of Mines and Energy Act and other related laws; however, the CBSI exchange control restricts offshore investment in gold without CBSI approval. |
| On external trade | Yes. | Commercial banks and all other residents are required to obtain a permit issued by the Ministry of Mines, Energy and Rural Electrification to mine, buy, or export gold. Residents are obliged to get CBSI approval if they decided to buy and hold gold abroad. |
| Controls on exports and imports of banknotes | Yes. | |
| On exports | Yes. | |
| Domestic currency | Yes. | Travelers may not take out more than SIS250 without the approval of the CBSI, which is not normally given. The CBSI sells banknotes to collectors abroad. |

The CBSI permits eligible export companies and organizations to operate foreign currency accounts. There are 39 active foreign currency accounts of which 33 accounts are held onshore and 6 offshore, totaling about US$166 million as of June 30, 2020. Each account is approved with a foreign currency benchmark (maximum); it may hold at any one time within a renewable period of one year subject to CBSI approval.

At present, this facility is not available or permitted to individual accounts for both onshore and offshore.

Resident companies may obtain CBSI approval to hold these accounts when there is a genuine need. Exporters are allowed to hold 20% of their export proceeds in foreign exchange accounts. Such accounts may be opened in only one currency, chosen by the exporter. The balance of 80% of export proceeds must be sold to local commercial banks and the SBD equivalent deposited in a local bank account. The remainder may be transferred abroad freely.

Resident individuals are not permitted to hold foreign exchange accounts domestically.

The CBSI gives approval based on its assessment. Opening of accounts abroad by banks does not require CBSI approval.

These accounts are permitted for resident companies, but approval by CBSI is required. Resident individuals are not permitted to hold foreign exchange accounts abroad.

The CBSI gives approval based on its assessment.

These accounts are permitted, but approval is required.

These accounts are permitted, but approval is required. CBSI approval is required for conversion of local currency to foreign currency.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes. While the Somali shilling is the official currency, the de facto currency in use in Somalia is the US dollar. All government transactions are conducted and denominated in US dollars, and most financial transactions are settled in US dollars. Somali shillings are used for small payments between private parties (virtually all counterfeit). Such notes are used as sub-denominations to US dollar banknotes. Also, neighboring countries’ currencies are used in border areas.

To combat the existing counterfeiting, restore confidence in the national currency, and support access to financial instruments, the Central Bank of Somalia (CBS) is in the process of implementing a comprehensive currency reform program.

Other legal tender
Yes. All transactions are converted to US dollars.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary
Yes. The Somalia exchange market is composed of private money traders. The rate is a freely determined, market clearing rate. The CBS publishes a daily average US/SOS exchange rate. The CBS does not set this rate. Depending on local liquidity and demand conditions, exchanges rates can differ between Federal Member States markets. The CBS also does not conduct significant foreign exchange operations nor transactions in Somali shilling.

Floating

Free floating Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is undetermined. Due to the absence of administrative measures controlling the level of the exchange rate, and the inoperative status of the CBS in the foreign exchange market, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a free floating arrangement. The rate is a freely determined, market clearing rate.

The economy is de facto dollarized with no active monetary policy.

There is a foreign exchange market in which the exchange rate is negotiated freely among resident holders of foreign exchange accounts. The rate is a freely determined, market clearing rate. As of December 31, 2019, the CBS has licensed and supervises ten money transfer companies and thirteen commercial banks, including their capital base, liquidity, transparency, and accountability, in accordance with best practices.

There is no interbank foreign exchange market. The CBS is in the process of completing the National Payment Project which will facilitate the domestic interbank market. It consists of three sections: (1) Interbank ITI infrastructure; (2) Automated Transfer System, and (3) National Switch. The three components are expected to be

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: No.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: Yes.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51): No.

Other security restrictions: Yes.

The Financial Intelligence Centre Act (Act No. 38 of 2001, as amended) (FIC Act) imposes certain duties to accountable institutions (including banks, life insurance companies, and authorized dealers in foreign exchange with limited authority (ADLAs)) to provide for the implementation of financial sanctions and to administer measures pursuant to resolutions adopted by the UNSC. Sections 26A, 26B, 26C, and 28A deal with financial sanctions by UNSC. The Prudential Authority and the Financial Surveillance Department (FinSurv) of the South African Reserve Bank (SARB) conducted banks’ and ADLAs’ client screening systems’ examination in 2014 and again in 2017 to ensure that their screening and monitoring systems are capable of identifying persons and property listed in the UNSC lists (for example, UNSC lists 1267/1989/2253). South Africa maintains restrictions on payments and transfers to UNSC-listed persons and countries as well as on the transfer of funds to the Taliban, Al-Qaeda, and ISIL in accordance with UNSC resolutions. The Bank Supervision Department (now the Prudential Authority) issued Guidance Note 8/2008 (of June 17, 2008) regarding Section 6(5) of the Banks Act of 1990 in response to the FATF call for enhanced scrutiny of transactions with certain jurisdictions and to UN sanctions in relation to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Because the FATF list of high-risk and non-cooperative jurisdictions was amended subsequent to Banks Act Guidance Note 8/2008, the Prudential Authority will, in addition to the aforementioned Banks Act Guidance Note, also issue a new Banks Act Guidance Note informing banks and mutual banks of the FATF list of high-risk and non-cooperative jurisdictions. Anti-money-laundering and combating the financing of terrorism on-site inspections by the Prudential Authority assess banks’ compliance with UNSC resolutions to prevent business relationships with sanctioned countries, entities, and individuals and dealing in sanctioned goods, etc. In addition, anti-money-laundering and combating the financing of terrorism on-site inspections by FinSurv assess ADLAs’ compliance with UNSC resolutions.

| Yes. | Floating |

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free-floating. The exchange rate of the rand is determined by market forces (that is, demand and supply) in the foreign exchange market. The SARB has a publicly announced foreign exchange policy of purchasing foreign currency in the local foreign exchange market when market conditions permit. The main objective for conducting spot purchases is to accumulate foreign exchange reserves. However, in certain exceptional cases, the SARB’s involvement in the spot market is aimed at facilitating the smooth functioning of interbank foreign exchange market, for example, when there are relatively large foreign direct inflows into the country. In implementing its foreign exchange policy, the SARB does not seek to influence the level of the exchange rate. The SARB interacts with ADs as the price taker for official and commercial purposes. The market makers and brokers quote prices to other market participants; the SARB does not quote prices for market participants. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating.

Official exchange rate

| Yes. |

The SARB publishes rand exchange rates daily against most traded currencies, such as the US dollar, euro, and pound sterling, at about 10:30 a.m. on its website (www.resbank.co.za). The rates are based on the four big banks’ (Standard Bank, ABSA, FirstRand, and Nedbank) foreign exchange quotes on the Reuters electronic trading system. The SARB also calculates the nominal effective exchange rate (NEER) for the rand and publishes it at 10:30 a.m. daily. The NEER is calculated according to South Africa’s largest international trading partners in manufactured goods. The NEER is currently...

ADLAs. As of June 30, 2019, there are 25 ADs, 3 restricted ADs, and 20 appointed ADLAs. ADLAs are classified as follows: Category one—(one ADLA in the market) authorized to operate as a bureau de change; Category two—(9 ADLAs in the market) authorized to operate as a bureau de change, to transfer gifts and study allowances within the single discretionary allowance (SDA) limit, to transfer earnings of migrant workers and foreign nationals, and to offer money remittance services in partnership with external money transfer operators; Category three—(seven ADLAs in the market) authorized to operate as an independent money transfer operator and/or value transfer service provider; and Category four (three ADLAs), which is a combination of Categories two and three. ADLAs must maintain minimum unimpaired capital in a savings or investment type bank account separate from their business and clients’ funds as follows: Category one: R 2 million; Category two: R 3 million; Category three: R 5 million; and Category four: R 8 million. All transactions undertaken by an AD or an ADLA must be reported to FinSurv. ADLAs may only maintain accounts abroad with approval from FinSurv.

Operated by the central bank
No.  The SARB conducts spot transactions and foreign exchange swaps in the foreign exchange market. The SARB conducts spot purchases to accumulate foreign exchange reserves and service foreign exchange obligations of its clients. In addition, the SARB conducts foreign exchange swaps for the purpose of liquidity management in the money market and to sterilize the money market impact of foreign exchange purchases for the accumulation of reserves.

Yes.  Foreign exchange swaps, options, and outright forwards are the most important foreign exchange derivatives traded over the counter.

Brokerage
Yes.  The foreign exchange market operates based on a system of brokers (via brokers and electronic brokering systems).

Market making
Yes.  There is a market-making agreement between ADs and their clients.

Forward exchange market
Yes.  ADs are permitted to conduct forward exchange operations, including providing cover for transactions by nonresidents (subject to certain limitations). ADs are also permitted to provide forward exchange cover in any foreign currency to residents for firm and ascertained foreign exchange commitments and for accruals due to or from nonresidents arising from authorized trade and nontrade transactions. Forward exchange contracts may cover the entire period of the outstanding commitments or accruals. For the purpose of managing domestic money market liquidity, the SARB may conduct foreign exchange swaps in varying maturities with ADs for up to 12 months.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  Yes. Countries outside the CMA constitute the nonresident area. The rand is legal tender in Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia. Lilangeni banknotes from Eswatini, loti banknotes from Lesotho, and Namibian dollar banknotes from Namibia are convertible to rand at par, but are not legal tender in South Africa.

Controls on the use of domestic currency  Yes. Rand may not be used in foreign exchange transactions; however, settlements between residents of the CMA and the nonresident area may be made in rand to and from a local nonresident account and in any foreign currency (except the currencies of Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia).

For current transactions and payments  Yes. There are no restrictions on current account transactions conducted within the ambit of the Exchange Control Regulations. Rand may be used freely for current transactions and payments inside of the CMA and up to the limit of R 1 million in terms of the SDA via the Vostro system for current account payments.

For capital transactions  Yes. Where parties wish to transact outside of the ambit of ADs, prior approval is required.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments  Yes. Certain types of transactions require FinSurv approval, such as outward direct investment if the total of the new investment exceeds R 1 billion a company a calendar year.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments  Yes. Approval is required where the instruments are issued by nonresident parties.

Credit operations  Yes. Certain types of transactions will require FinSurv approval, for example, entities that are 75% or more nonresident owned who require to borrow funds from an AD for, for example, the purchase and sale of any securities, repurchase agreements, and any derivative transactions on securities and/or the acquisition of residential property in South Africa, where the funds that they wish to borrow exceed the 1:1 ratio.

Use of foreign exchange among residents  Yes. South African residents may invoice each other locally in foreign currency; however, settlement must be in rand.

Payments arrangements  Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements  No.

Operative  No.

Inoperative  No.

Regional arrangements  Yes. South Africa is a member of the CMA. Payments within the CMA are unrestricted.

Clearing agreements  No.

Barter agreements and open accounts  No.

Administration of control  Yes. The Treasury has delegated the administration of exchange controls to FinSurv with the authority to appoint ADs and ADLAs. FinSurv permits ADs to handle most foreign exchange transactions within the prescribed authorities and limits identified in the Currency and Exchanges Manual for ADs and the Currency and Exchanges Manual for ADLAs. The Manuals are available on the SARB website.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) Yes.

- On domestic ownership and/or trade Yes.
  Residents may purchase, hold, and sell gold coins for numismatic purposes as well as minted gold bars in accordance with South African regulations, but only the monetary authorities, ADs, registered gold producers, and authorized parties may purchase, hold, or sell gold in any form other than jewelry. Gold producers may elect to sell their total output to approved buyers, with clearance from the South African Diamond and Precious Metals Regulator. The South African Mint strikes gold coins, such as the Krugerrand, Natura, and Protea, which are legal tender, without face value, and these are available in limited numbers to the local market.

- On external trade Yes.
  Exports of gold are subject to Exchange Control Regulations. Exchange Control Regulations pertaining to the repatriation of export proceeds remain applicable to gold exports. Export proceeds are required to be received not later than six months from the date of shipment. ADs may authorize South African exporters to grant credit up to a total of 12 months to foreign importers, provided the AD is satisfied that it is necessary. ADs are permitted by FinSurv to approve exports of jewelry up to an insurance value of R 200,000 constituting the personal effects of a traveler (with written declaration that it will be brought back on the traveler’s return or within six months). Exports of gold jewelry by manufacturing jewelers require a written declaration that the articles are in fully manufactured form and that the gold content of each does not exceed 85% of the selling price to the ultimate consignee. Export of gold jewelry by manufacturing jewelers should be referred to the Precious Metals Act of 2005 by South African Diamond and Precious Metals Regulator. With FinSurv approval, residents may export currency coins, including certain gold coins, for sale to numismatists.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.

- On exports Yes.
  Visitors and residents may take with them up to R 25,000 a person, a trip, for incidental expenses. The amount is not considered part of the basic travel allowance, which is part of the SDA of R 1 million, an individual a calendar year. Residents who are under the age of 18 years may be accorded a travel allowance not exceeding an amount of R 200,000 a calendar year. This limit does not apply to migrant workers returning to neighboring countries, who are permitted to take with them reasonable amounts in banknotes representing their earnings in South Africa. There are no limits on the exportation of domestic currency to Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia. South African banknotes repatriated from Angola, Botswana, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Madagascar, Malawi, Mauritius, Mozambique, Seychelles, Tanzania, Zambia, and Zimbabwe may be remitted on submission of documentary evidence that they were not exported from South Africa in violation of the Exchange Control Regulations. The consignment of banknotes must be accompanied with confirmation by the repatriating bank that they were acquired from bona fide travelers from South Africa in amounts not exceeding R 25,000 a traveler.

- Domestic currency Yes.
  Residents and contract workers leaving South Africa for destinations outside the CMA may take out their allowance in foreign banknotes.

- Foreign currency Yes.
This allowance forms part of the SDA of R 1 million, an individual, a calendar year. Residents who are under the age of 18 years may be accorded a travel allowance not exceeding an amount of R 200,000 a calendar year. Foreign visitors leaving South Africa may take with them any amount of foreign banknotes brought into the country or obtained through the disposal of instruments of exchange brought into and converted in South Africa. CMA residents in South Africa may be accorded foreign currency at local international airports to cover unforeseen incidental costs while in transit abroad, subject to viewing an air ticket confirming a destination outside the CMA.

On imports

Yes.

Domestic currency

Yes. The maximum amount of rand banknotes that may be imported from countries outside the CMA is R 25,000 an individual. There are no limits on such imports from Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia. FinSurv approval is required to import notes in excess of the prescribed amounts.

Foreign currency

No.

This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Yes.

Held domestically

Yes. Natural persons may hold up to the equivalent of R 11 million a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance in foreign currency deposits with ADs for foreign investment purposes, of which R 1 million a calendar year does not require a Tax Compliance Status (TCS) PIN letter, which replaced the Tax Clearance Certificate effective November 12, 2019). The proceeds of other approved foreign assets may also be held in such accounts. Legal persons involved in international trade may maintain a single customer foreign currency (CFC) account for trade- and services-related payments, as well as for a wider variety of permissible transactions. As temporary measures for the COVID-19 lockdown period, ADs were allowed, effective April 14, 2020, to open CFC accounts for government-related bodies to receive donations from abroad and South Africa and to retain foreign donations in the CFC account for overseas payments of personal protection equipment (PPE). Effective April 20, 2020, the 30-day period for matured forward exchange contracts credited in CFC accounts was temporarily extended to 90 days.

Approval required

Yes. Transfer of funds in excess of R 11 million (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance) by resident individuals requires FinSurv approval.

Held abroad

Yes. Businesses and individuals may hold such accounts abroad for the proceeds of permissible transactions. Only South African companies that have legal/bona fide sources of income abroad are permitted to open foreign bank accounts. All foreign credits to such bank accounts are subject to the provisions of Exchange Control Regulation 6, except in respect of foreign-earned dividends. Funds that accrue in foreign bank accounts must be in respect of transactions permissible in terms of the Manuals or a specific authority granted by FinSurv. Applicants must give written undertakings to ADs that no debits other than transfers to South Africa, debits permissible in terms of a specific authority from FinSurv or bank charges, will be passed over the account.

Approval required

No. South African companies may, without FinSurv approval, open foreign bank accounts for the proceeds of permissible transactions. South African natural persons may keep their R 10 million foreign capital allowance, income earned abroad after July 1, 1997, and authorized foreign assets in a foreign bank account, without FinSurv approval.

ADs do not need FinSurv approval for advance payments of up to 100% of the ex-factory cost of capital goods to be imported—up to R 10 million. Advance payment for imports of capital goods exceeding R 10 million is limited to 50% of the ex-factory cost. Any amount in excess requires FinSurv approval. For advance payments up to R 50,000, ADs are not required to review the South African Revenue Service (SARS) customs declaration with the movement reference number for imports to ensure that the foreign exchange was used for the stated purpose and that the goods were actually imported. As a temporary measure for the COVID-19 lockdown period, the 4-month period for paid imports to be received in South Africa was extended to seven months effective March 30, 2020.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements Yes. Unless otherwise permitted, export proceeds must be remitted to South Africa not later than six months from the date of shipment and must be offered for sale to an AD within 30 days of receipt thereof. Exporters with CFC accounts may retain funds in such accounts without converting them to rand.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank No.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Unless otherwise permitted, export proceeds must be received within six months of the date of shipment and offered for sale within 30 days or according to the rules governing CFC accounts. Except for exports made on a cash-on-delivery basis and those for which the full proceeds are received in advance, ADs may provide exporters forward cover for their export proceeds.

Financing requirements Yes. ADs may permit exporters to grant credit for up to 12 months, provided the credit is necessary in that particular trade or needed to protect an existing export market or capture a new one.

Documentation requirements Yes.

Letters of credit No.

Guarantees No.

Domiciliation No.

Preshipment inspection No.

Other Yes. Only an electronic SARS Customs Export Declaration Form (SAD 500) is required for exports. Exports are monitored through the Electronic Export Monitoring System.

Export licenses Yes.

Export without quotas Yes. Certain agricultural and manufactured goods exported outside the SACU require ITAC export permits. In addition to an ITAC export permit, military equipment, firearms, and ammunition require an export license issued by the Department of Defence. The exportation of certain COVID-19 essential goods, such as medicines, masks, and alcohol-based hand sanitizers, was temporarily put under control by ITAC during the national state of disaster only effective March 27, 2020.

Foreign investors may borrow domestically, without restriction, to finance FDI. Nonresidents who use the funds for financial transactions and/or to acquire residential property in South Africa must adhere to the 1:1 ratio that currently applies to these transactions. Effective October 31, 2019, nonresidents living and working in South Africa may be granted local financial assistance in respect of the acquisition of residential property, in terms of normal lending criteria. Loans to emigrants or for the acquisition of residential property by nonresidents or affected persons and other financial transactions, such as portfolio investments by nonresidents, securities lending, hedging, and repurchase agreements, are limited to 100% of assets brought into South Africa.

Approval is not required for outward FDI, if the total of such new investment does not exceed R 1 billion a company a calendar year. Investment exceeding the limit is subject to approval. Firms’ requests are considered in light of national interest—for example, according to the benefit to South Africa’s international reserves as a result of exports of goods and services. South African companies may make bona fide new outward FDI outside their current line of business and may acquire up to 40% equity and/or voting rights, whichever is the higher, in a foreign target entity that may hold investments and/or make loans to CMA countries. The requirement that South African companies investing outside the CMA must obtain at least 10% of the foreign target entity’s voting rights was abolished during the 2018 Budget Speech, from February 21, 2018. Companies with headquarters in South Africa may also make outward FDI into companies, branches, and offices outside the CMA that are outside... their current line of business if the total cost does not exceed R 1 billion a company in a calendar year. FinSurv approval is required for re-domiciliation, that is, moving its base of operations from South Africa. Effective December 13, 2019, HoldCos were designated Domestic Treasury Management Companies (DTMCs). Entities listed on a South African exchange may authorize transfers from the parent company to the DTMC up to R 3 billion a calendar year (since February 21, 2018, previously R 2 billion). Up to this amount, there is no restriction on transfers in and out of the DTMC, provided such transfers are not undertaken to avoid tax. Additional amounts of up to 25% of the listed company’s market capitalization are considered on application to FinSurv, provided there are demonstrated benefits to South Africa. Unlisted entities may establish one DTMC for African and foreign operations, which is not subject to exchange control restrictions. Effective December 13, 2019, the DTMC dispensation was extended to the financial services sector (that is, registered banks and insurance companies). Unlisted technology, media, telecommunications, exploration, and other research and development companies may apply to FinSurv for approval for primary listing abroad or establishment of an offshore company to raise loans abroad and operating capital. Offshore companies mentioned above may in turn hold investments and/or make loans into South Africa and the intellectual property must remain registered in South Africa but may be assigned offshore, subject to appropriate tax treatment. Companies listed on a South African exchange may have a secondary listing and/or list depository receipt programs on foreign exchanges to facilitate local and FDI expansion. Treasury outsourcing companies (TOCs) and foreign exchange brokers (FEBs) in the domestic foreign exchange market must obtain FinSurv approval to conduct foreign exchange business. Such business must be conducted through an AD. The transfer of South African-owned intellectual property by way of sale, assignment, or cession, and/or the waiver of rights in favor of related nonresident parties in whatever form, directly or indirectly, is not allowed without the prior approval of FinSurv. The above-mentioned dispensation excludes sale and leaseback agreements.

ADs may approve the licensing of intellectual property by South African residents to nonresident parties at an arm’s length and a fair and market-related price for the term of the agreement, provided ADs view the license agreement and an auditor’s letter confirming the basis for calculating the royalty or license fee. IHQ companies may raise and deploy capital abroad without Exchange Control approval, but must register with FinSurv for reporting purposes. The IHQ dispensation applies for nonresident companies. Listed entities on a South African exchange may establish one subsidiary in South Africa for African and offshore operations. This subsidiary is not subject to foreign exchange restrictions. This dispensation is extended to unlisted entities. Entities listed on a South African exchange may authorize transfers from the parent company to the “DTMC” up to R 3 billion a calendar year. Up to this amount, there is no restriction on transfers in and out of the DTMC, provided such transfers are not undertaken to avoid tax.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment | No.
Controls on real estate transactions | Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents | Yes. The individual limit for investments abroad without FinSurv approval is R 11 million an individual a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance) from the proceeds of authorized foreign assets. Applications to transfer more than the current R 10 million foreign capital allowance an individual a calendar year may be submitted to FinSurv. Such an application must be accompanied by a SARS TCS PIN letter.

Purchase locally by nonresidents | No. There are no controls on local purchases by nonresidents if they do not borrow domestically. Since October 27, 2009, foreign investors are allowed to borrow domestically, without restriction, to finance FDI. Affected persons and nonresidents who use the funds for financial transactions and/or to acquire residential property in South Africa are subject to a 1:1 ratio where funds introduced in South Africa by nonresidents, emigrants, and affected companies need to be utilized to pay for 50% of the value of the financial transaction or residential property and the remaining 50% may be raised locally. Local financial assistance to emigrants is also subject to the 1:1 ratio. As of October 31, 2019, nonresidents living and working in South Africa may be granted local financial assistance in respect of the acquisition of residential property in terms of normal lending criteria.
Sale locally by nonresidents
No.

Controls on personal capital transactions
Yes. The individual limit for investments abroad without FinSurv approval is R 11 million an individual a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance). Applications to transfer more than the current R 10 million foreign capital allowance an individual a calendar year may be submitted to FinSurv. Such an application must be accompanied by a SARS TCS PIN letter.

Loans
Yes.

- By residents to nonresidents
  Yes. Residents may lend to nonresidents through ADs within their overall discretionary limit of R 1 million an individual a calendar year. South African corporates may advance shareholders loans to approved subsidiaries within the FDI limits.

- To residents from nonresidents
  Yes. ADs may approve applications by residents to avail of inward foreign loans and foreign trade finance facilities from any nonresident, subject to certain criteria and the reporting of the loans to FinSurv. Any loan application that falls outside of the specific criteria or any amendments to approved loans must be submitted to FinSurv.

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies
Yes.

- By residents to nonresidents
  Yes. ADs may allow the transfer of monetary gifts, including donations to missionaries, maintenance transfers, and travel allowances, within an overall discretionary limit of R 1 million a calendar year to a person 18 years and older. Cash bequests and the cash proceeds of legacies and distributions from resident estates may be remitted abroad subject to the Liquidation and Distribution Account bearing a Master of the High Court reference number. In cases where the total assets of the resident estate are less than R 250,000, cash bequests and the cash proceeds of legacies due to nonresident legatees, including emigrants, may be remitted abroad, provided the Last Will and Testament and Letter of Executorship/Authority have been viewed.

- To residents from nonresidents
  Yes. Any foreign asset received by a resident from a nonresident as a gift or donation is not exempt from the provisions of Regulations 6 and 7 and must be declared and repatriated to South Africa. Alternatively, a fully motivated application to retain the assets abroad must be submitted to FinSurv.

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants
Yes. ADs may provide immigrants with foreign exchange to repay loans received in their previous country of domicile, provided documentary evidence of the debt is available and the immigrant is not in possession of foreign currency to repay the debt.

Transfer of assets
Yes.

- Transfer abroad by emigrants
  Yes. Emigrants may transfer up to the equivalent of R 20 million a family or R 10 million an individual a calendar year, including assets previously transferred abroad, without FinSurv approval. Emigrants may also transfer abroad funds in excess of the aforementioned limits, on application to FinSurv. Emigrants’ remaining assets may be released without an exit levy. ADs may export household and personal effects, motor vehicles, caravans, trailers, motorcycles, stamps, coins, and minted bars (excluding coins that are legal tender in South Africa) for an emigrating family unit or single person, within an overall insured value of R 2 million or its equivalent. FinSurv approval is required for exports of the above items valued at more than R 2 million.

- Transfer into the country by immigrants
  No.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings
Yes.

South African residents may not participate in any gambling activities not authorized by the National Gambling Act of 2004.
Residents may not participate in lotteries organized abroad, which is prohibited by Lotteries Act No. 57 of 1997.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Borrowing abroad

Yes. ADs may approve applications by residents to borrow abroad, subject to specific criteria and provided the loans are reported to FinSurv using the Loan Reporting System. Any application that falls outside of the specific criteria must be referred to FinSurv for approval.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

No. ADs may open nostro accounts at their discretion.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Yes. Foreign investors are allowed to borrow domestically, without restriction, to finance FDI. Affected persons and nonresidents who use the funds for financial transactions and/or to acquire residential property in South Africa are subject to the 1:1 ratio that currently applies to these transactions. Local financial assistance to emigrants remains subject to the 1:1 ratio. Effective October 31, 2019, nonresidents living and working in South Africa may be granted local financial assistance in respect of the acquisition of residential property in terms of normal lending criteria.

Lending locally in foreign exchange

Yes. These transactions are subject to specific FinSurv approval.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange

Yes. There are no securities denominated in foreign exchange in South Africa. As an exception to the rule, nonresidents may, however, apply to issue debt instruments on a South African exchange in foreign currency (for example, Zambian maize).

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents in foreign exchange

Reserve requirements

No. The minimum reserve requirement applies to deposit accounts held by residents and nonresidents denominated in rand or foreign currency. The requirement is 2.5% of total average liabilities, as adjusted for (1) amounts owed by banks, branches, and mutual banks in South Africa (including loans granted in connection with resale agreements); (2) funding received under repurchase agreements with a term of 31 days or less, with government securities, Treasury bills, and reserve bank securities qualifying as level one high-quality liquid assets as underlying security; (3) liabilities related to derivative contracts; and (4) amounts owed by banks rated investment grade or better located abroad in countries rated investment grade or better.

Liquid asset requirements

No. All banks are required to hold 5% of their total average liabilities, adjusted for (1) in the case of branches of foreign institutions for funding received from the head office or from other branches within the same group; and (2) amounts owed by banks, branches, and mutual banks in South Africa (including loans granted in terms of resale agreements), in level one high-quality liquid assets (as defined in the Banks Act, 1990).

No.

Credit controls

No.

Investment regulations

Yes.

A bank that invests money in immovable property or shares of a company—or lends or advances money to its subsidiaries whose principal objective is acquisition and holding or development of immovable property—must manage its transactions in such investments, loans, or advances in such a way that the sum of the amounts does not at any time exceed the bank’s qualifying common equity Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, additional Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, and Tier 2 capital and reserve funds related to risks other than market risk. A bank must manage its business so that the aggregate amount of (1) its investments in debentures or preference shares of its associates, excluding subsidiaries whose main objective is the acquisition and holding or development of immovable property, a bank, or mutual bank whose debentures or preference shares are not convertible to ordinary shares; plus (2) advances to any such associates; plus (3) guarantees and/or other instruments related to its associates’ liabilities or contingent liabilities; minus (4) excess qualifying common equity Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, additional Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, and Tier 2 capital and reserve funds envisaged above does not at any time exceed 10% of the bank’s aggregate deposits, current accounts, and amounts owed to other creditors. Banks and their associates may not, without the Prudential Authority’s written approval, jointly or individually acquire or hold shares in a registered long-term insurer or in a registered short-term insurer as to the extent to which the nominal value exceeds 49% of the nominal value of all the insurer’s issued shares. Bank controlling companies investing money (a) in enterprises other than banks, institutions that conduct business similar to the business of a bank in a country other than South Africa, controlling companies or companies whose main objective is holding or developing property used or intended to be used mainly for the business of a bank or (b) in fixed property not used or intended to be used mainly for the purpose of conducting the business of a bank, providing loans and advances to (a) enterprises other than banks, institutions that conduct business similar to the business of a bank in a country other than South Africa, controlling companies or companies whose main objective is holding or developing property used or intended to be used mainly for the business of a bank or (b) in fixed property not used or not intended to be used mainly for the purpose of conducting the business of a bank, must manage transactions in such investments and loans and advances in such a way that the aggregate amount of such investments and loans and advances does not at any time exceed 40% of the aggregate amount of the share capital and reserve funds of the controlling company, calculated on a consolidated basis as prescribed. Branches of foreign institutions must ensure that the value of their unencumbered assets as defined never amounts to less than 60% of their total reported liabilities in South Africa. “Foreign member funds” are not subject to the macroprudential limit on the amount that may be invested abroad. These funds, however, must be domiciled, managed, and tax compliant in South Africa and are subject to registration with FinSurv as well as with the Financial Sector Conduct Authority. ADs may participate in foreign syndicated loans regardless of whether the borrower is a resident, provided they are within their macroprudential limit.

Abroad by banks Yes. A bank may not, without written approval of the Prudential Authority and as determined by the Prudential Authority (1) establish or acquire a subsidiary within or outside South Africa or enter into an agreement leading to a company becoming its subsidiary within or outside South Africa; (2) invest in a joint venture within or outside South Africa if the investment, or the investment together with one or more previous investments by the bank in that joint venture, results in exposure to more than 5% of its capital and reserves. If a bank is exposed to the aforementioned extent, approval must be obtained whenever it seeks to make a further investment in that joint venture; (3) open or acquire a branch office outside South Africa; (4) acquire an interest in an enterprise whose registered office or principal place of business is outside South Africa; (5) establish or acquire outside of South Africa a trust of which the bank is a major beneficiary or establish or acquire a financial or other business enterprise under its direct or indirect control; (6) establish or acquire a representative office outside South Africa; or (7) establish or acquire a division within or outside South Africa under an arrangement or agreement with a person with the effect that such a person conducts/does business through or by means of that division. In addition to the current macroprudential limit of 25%, ADs may invest 5% of their total liabilities, for expansion in Africa.

In banks by nonresidents Yes. Approval is not required if the investment in shares amounts to less than 15% of the total nominal value or total voting rights with respect to all the bank’s issued shares. ADLAs are classified into four categories; Section III. Exchange Arrangement specifies the four types.

Open foreign exchange position limits Yes.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes. The effective net open foreign currency position of a reporting bank (difference between total foreign currency assets and liabilities and commitments to purchase minus commitments to sell foreign currency in any one foreign currency and in all foreign currencies taken together) may not exceed 10% of the net qualifying capital and reserve funds of the reporting bank.

On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes. The effective net open foreign currency position of a reporting bank (difference between total foreign currency assets and liabilities and commitments to purchase minus commitments to sell foreign currency in any one foreign currency and in all foreign currencies taken together) may not exceed 10% of the net qualifying capital and reserve funds of the reporting bank.

Provisions specific to institutional investors Yes. There is a system of quarterly reporting and monitoring of foreign exposures. South African institutional investors may invest in rand-denominated instruments issued abroad and in instruments issued by South African entities in the foreign market, subject to the respective prudential limits.

Article XIV

Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices

Yes.

The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with South Sudan, states that as of May 15, 2019, South Sudan maintained exchange restrictions and an MCP under the transitional arrangements of Article XIV. The exchange restrictions arise from: imposing absolute ceilings on the availability of foreign exchange for certain invisible transactions (travel, remittances for living expenses of students and families residing abroad, transfers of salaries by foreign workers). The MCP, which also gives rise to an exchange restriction because of extra burden, arises from the spread of more than 2% between the parallel market exchange rate and the formal commercial exchange market rate. South Sudan also maintains the MCPs and exchange restriction subject to Fund’s approval under Article VIII. The MCPs arise from the spread larger than 2% between (1) the official (indicative) rate and commercial banks’ (market) rate and (2) between the official (indicative) rate and the parallel market rate. The exchange restriction arises because of prioritization of foreign exchange allocation by the Bank of South Sudan (BSS) for external government payments and payments for certain essential commodities. (Country Report No. 19/153)

On December 15, 2015, the BSS moved to a de jure flexible exchange rate arrangement, which requires the BSS to adopt a new nominal anchor and redesign its monetary framework. The BSS could adopt price stability as the primary objective and use reserve money as an intermediate target, given the undeveloped nature of the financial system.

There are 31 commercial banks in South Sudan licensed to conduct... foreign exchange transactions. Foreign exchange bureaus are subject to licensing by the BSS. The number of authorized foreign exchange bureaus is 64. Foreign exchange bureaus’ operations involve purchases and sales of banknotes and foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. The minimum required capital to establish an exchange bureau is US$600,000. Licensed foreign exchange bureaus do not participate directly in auction sessions conducted by the BSS. However, they may participate indirectly in auction sessions by submitting their applications through eligible banks.

The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Spain participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Foreign exchange bureaus may operate subject to the authorizations and regime established in Royal Decree No. 2660/1998 as amended by Royal Decree No. 84/2015. The authorization is granted by the Bank of Spain (BOS). Their operations are limited to the “purchase and sale” of foreign currency (or exclusively purchase if they are only authorized to make purchases). They cannot make payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their clients (carrying out these operations requires authorization as a Payment Institution). The possibility of making foreign exchange transactions directly with the central bank is not specified. The number of authorized foreign exchange bureaus is 17 as of September 15, 2020. The number of establishments whose business is exclusively the purchase of foreign currency is 2,835 as of December 31, 2019.

In accordance with EC Regulation No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of EU regulation. Nonetheless, the regulation foresees that member countries may also decide to implement a declaration obligation related to movements of cash within the EU. According to Article 34 of Act 10/2010 on the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing, a declaration must be made in any cross-border movement (both with EU and non-EU countries) of means of payment of €10,000 or more or its equivalent in foreign currency. This declaration is also mandatory for movements within the national territory of means of payment of €100,000 or more. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance, customs authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash is seized. Under Spanish legislation, there are administrative sanctions for those who fail to comply with the obligation to declare the movements of means of payment, under the terms of Article 34. The penalty for non-compliance with the obligation to declare cash movements above specific thresholds ranges from €600 (minimum fine) to 50% of the value of the means of payment. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, the authorities of one member country may exchange information with the authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries.

On exports

Domestic currency

No. In accordance with Article 34 of Act 10/2010 of April 28, 2010, on the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving Spain with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving Spain and carrying €10,000 or more are required to make a declaration to the customs authorities.

Foreign currency

No. In accordance with Article 34 of Act 10/2010 of April 28, 2010, on the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving Spain with a value equivalent in foreign currency of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving Spain and carrying €10,000 or more or its equivalent in foreign currency are required to make a declaration to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Held domestically

Yes. There are no differences between operations allowed in these accounts and in domestic currency accounts.

Approval required

No.

Held abroad Yes.

Collections and payments between residents and nonresidents through credits or debits to these accounts may be made freely. For statistical and administrative purposes, every resident in Spain, other than payment services providers entered in the official register of the BOS, engaged in transactions with nonresidents or maintaining assets or liabilities overseas, is required to report the following if the sum of transactions during the immediately preceding year or stocks of assets and liabilities as of December 31 of the previous year equal or exceed €50 million: (1) any transactions they perform with nonresidents and (2) the balances of assets and liabilities, and any changes in those foreign positions. Furthermore, if the threshold of €50 million is exceeded during the current year, those residents would be required to perform the corresponding declaration of transactions and/or assets and liabilities in the current year. The frequency of reporting can be monthly, quarterly, or annually depending on the volume of transactions or the balances of assets and liabilities. Controls apply to assets at credit entities outside the EU, if these assets form part of the cover of the technical reserves of an insurance company. Pension funds may not have direct exposure to deposits in non-EU banks.

Approval required

Purchase locally by nonresidents  Yes.

Effective April 1, 2020, free direct foreign investment from non-EU residents is suspended and subject to prior authorization in a number of cases. This applies for the list of sectors included in Law No. 19/2003 (art.7bis.2) or if the investor meets certain criteria (for example, foreign government ownership or control). This control is in line with Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, establishing a framework for the screening of foreign direct investments into the Union.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents  No.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes.

Controls apply to the purchase of securities that are not admitted for trading on a regulated market, if these assets form part of the cover of the technical reserves of an insurance company, except (1) securities issued or guaranteed by international organizations to which an EU member country belongs and (2) fixed-income securities, provided they are guaranteed or have unconditional and several surety from a credit or insurance entity authorized to operate through a branch in an EU member country or if the shares of the issuer are traded on a regulated market. For statistical and administrative purposes, every resident in Spain, other than payment services providers entered in the official register of the BOS, engaged in transactions with nonresidents or maintaining assets or liabilities overseas, is required to report the purchasing operations and balances held by residents in all types of securities (issued by residents and nonresidents) deposited in nonresident entities, if the sum of transactions during the immediately preceding year or stocks... of assets and liabilities as of December 31 of the previous year equal or exceed €50 million. Furthermore, if the threshold of €50 million is exceeded during the current year, those residents would be required to perform the corresponding declaration of transactions and/or assets and liabilities in the current year. The frequency of reporting can be monthly, quarterly, or annually depending on the volume of transactions or the balances of assets and liabilities.

Pension funds may not have direct exposure in non-listed assets, only in those cases where the issuer is not based in an OECD country or where the issuer is based in a tax haven.

EU investors—even authorized credit institutions in other EU countries—must give administrative notice. Non-EU institutions may be denied authorization if there is no reciprocity for corporate credit institutions in the investor’s country of origin.

There are no limits on banks’ open foreign exchange positions. Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk. The regulation is directly applicable in Spain.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating since its introduction by the Central Bank of Sri Lanka (CBSL) on January 23, 2001. In 2019, the CBSL resumed foreign exchange purchases to rebuild reserves, having bought US$134 million in net terms by end-April 2019. The exchange rate appreciated against the US dollar during the first quarter of 2019 and stabilized from April 2019, with one realignment in August 2019. However, liquidity conditions in the domestic foreign exchange market improved subsequently, helping to stabilize the exchange rate. Consequently, the rupee recorded an appreciation of 0.6% against the US dollar by end-2019.

Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) to other managed from crawl-like, effective January 02, 2019, and (2) to stabilized from other managed, effective April 01, 2019. Meanwhile, the CB absorbed US dollars 387.0 million on a net basis during the year 2019. The Sri Lankan rupee, which remained broadly stable up to the second week of March 2020, depreciated significantly with the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic during the latter part of March up to mid-April 2020, reaching a peak of Rs. 199.75 per US dollar on April 09, 2020. However, the rupee stabilized thereafter and recorded a significant appreciation during May and June 2020. As a result, the rupee which depreciated by 9.1% against the US dollar up to April 09, 2020, reversed this trend and appreciated significantly, recording a depreciation of 2.47% by end-June 2020.

The CBSL intervention data in the foreign exchange market is published on a monthly basis with a two-week lag.

The CBSL computes the volume-weighted average interbank rate on a daily basis based on the US dollar/LKR spot transactions executed in the interbank market on the previous working day. This official exchange rate is used for legal, accounting, customs purposes, tender processes, etc. Effective June 01, 2020, onward, CBSL interventions in the spot market are also included in the calculation of the volume-weighted average interbank rate.

The official exchange rate for other foreign currencies is determined based on the above calculated rate and the cross-rates obtained from Reuters trading platform at 8.00 a.m. in the morning on each working day.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

U.S. dollar

Euro
In line with the global tendency, the CBSL moved away from monetary targeting framework in 2015 and as an interim arrangement, the CB conducted its monetary policy within an enhanced monetary policy framework with features of both monetary targeting and flexible inflation targeting frameworks and has made a gradual progress since then toward conducting monetary policy in line with a flexible inflation targeting framework.

The CB sets the target range of inflation.

Currently, the inflation target range is 4%–6%.

Colombo Consumer Price Index (CCPI) base: 2013=100 covers consumption expenditure from all urban areas of Colombo District. CCPI basket contains 28.24% weight from food category and 71.76% from non food category. Inflation target is expressed in average change in CCPI.

The target horizon is medium term (1.5–3 years).

Operating target is average weighted call money rate (AWCMR).

The lower bound of the target corridor is the standing deposit facility rate (SDFR) and the upper bound is the standing lending facility rate (SLFR).

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted  Yes.

Held domestically  Yes. The types of foreign exchange accounts are amalgamated and categorized based on the purpose of maintaining such accounts, irrespective of the residential status of the person eligible to open such foreign exchange accounts, for simplification under the new FEA No. 12 of 2017.

Personal Foreign Currency Accounts (PFCAs): Individuals including minors who are Sri Lankan nationals and non-nationals resident in Sri Lanka are eligible to open and maintain PFCAs in the form of current (without check drawing facility), savings, or term deposit accounts in any designated foreign currency. PFCAs maintained by individuals may be held as sole or joint accounts with another eligible person. Holders of PFCAs are allowed for the following debits: (1) to make any outward remittances outside Sri Lanka; (2) to withdraw in foreign currency notes up to effective March 19, 2020, US$5,000 (previously US$10,000) or equivalent for travel purpose; (3) for disbursements in Sri Lanka in Sri Lanka rupees; (4) to transfer funds for any investment permitted to be made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency utilizing funds in PFCAs; (5) to transfer funds to other PFCAs or accounts maintained in the Offshore Banking Unit (OBU); (6) to withdraw foreign currency, where the account holder is a non-national resident outside Sri Lanka who is on temporary visit to Sri Lanka; (7) to transfer funds for uploading Foreign Travel Cards (FTCs); and (8) to transfer funds to an IIA of the same account holder who is a resident outside Sri Lanka.

Effective April 02, 2020, outward remittances (other than for those on current transactions) through PFCAs held by persons resident in Sri Lanka were suspended for three months.

Effective July 02, 2020, any outward remittances through PFCAs held by persons resident in Sri Lanka other than outward remittances on permitted current transactions up to any amount or outward remittances on capital transactions up to a maximum of US$20,000 were suspended for six months.

These accounts may be credited with inward remittances, unutilized foreign currency obtained by the account holder by debiting the PFCAs for travel purpose, foreign currency brought into the country by the account holder on appropriate declaration, funds transferred from other PFCAs, Business Foreign Currency Accounts (BFCAs),...
Diplomatic Foreign Currency Accounts (DFCAs), or accounts maintained in the OBU, where the account holder is a resident outside Sri Lanka or a non-national resident in Sri Lanka—funds transferred from IIA of the same account holder, unutilized balance remaining in the FTC up to the amount that FTC had been loaded from the PFCA, capital, capital gains, and other receipts arising from investments made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency, if the original transfer had been made by debiting the PFCA; transfers from employer’s Sri Lanka rupee account as monthly salary, employment and other related benefits and amounts in Sri Lanka rupees authorized by the CBSL for remittance abroad converted at the rate of exchange obtained on the day of credit and interest payments on the accounts.

PFCA holders who are Sri Lankans employed abroad (other than emigrants) are also permitted to obtain loans and advances denominated in foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees from ADs for any purpose to be utilized in Sri Lanka.

BFCAs: BFCAs may be opened and maintained as current (without check drawing facility), savings, or term deposit accounts in designated foreign currency with ADs by the following persons resident in Sri Lanka who earn foreign exchange: (1) individuals resident in Sri Lanka; (2) sole proprietorships or partnerships registered in Sri Lanka where the proprietor or a majority of partners are resident in Sri Lanka; (3) companies incorporated in Sri Lanka; (4) companies incorporated outside Sri Lanka which are registered as overseas companies under the Companies Act No. 7 of 2007; (5) state institutions with the recommendation of the secretary to the relevant ministry or appropriate authority; and (6) persons authorized to carry on business as a shipping agent or a general sales agent in Sri Lanka on behalf of a foreign shipping line or airline (foreign principal) with a valid license or authorization letter issued by the Director General of Merchant Shipping and Director General of Civil Aviation Authority of Sri Lanka. However, a non-governmental organization is not permitted to open and maintain BFCAs. Further, under no circumstances Sri Lanka rupees may be converted to foreign currency and be credited into a BFCA.

Holders of BFCAs are permitted for the following debits: (1) to make any outward remittances outside Sri Lanka; (2) for disbursements in Sri Lanka in Sri Lanka rupees; (3) to withdraw in foreign currency notes up to, effective March 19, 2020, US$5,000 (previously US$10,000) (or equivalent in any other foreign currency) for travel purpose and up to US$50,000 by gem and jewelry dealers and shipping agents for such specific purposes; (4) to transfer funds for uploading FTCs; (5) to transfer funds in respect of any investment permitted to be made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency utilizing funds in the BFCA; (6) transfer of funds to an Outward Investment Account (OIA) of the same account holder; (7) transfer of funds to an IIA of a resident outside Sri Lanka for the purpose of repayment of a foreign currency loan obtained from such foreign lender by the account holder; (8) transfer funds to other BFCAs, PFCAs, and accounts in the OBUs; (9) transfer funds for any investment permitted to be made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency utilizing funds in BFCAs; and (10) make payments of claims to eligible customers and co-insurers in respect of foreign-currency-denominated policies, premia to local or overseas re-insurers and National Insurance Trust Fund and brokerage by insurance companies registered with the Insurance Board of Sri Lanka.

Effective April 02, 2020, outward remittances (other than for those on current transactions) through BFCAs held by persons resident in...
Sri Lanka were suspended for three months. Effective July 02, 2020, any outward remittances through BFCAs held by persons resident in Sri Lanka other than outward remittances on permitted current transactions up to any amount or outward remittances on capital transactions up to a maximum of US$20,000 were suspended for six months.

Holders of BFCAs are permitted for the following credits: (1) inward remittances in respect of export of goods and services, entrepot trade, overseas projects undertaken by the account holder, investments made outside Sri Lanka, and goods supplied locally to a person resident outside Sri Lanka; (2) foreign currency in the form of traveler’s checks, bank drafts, or currency notes accepted by the account holder in Sri Lanka in respect of goods and services supplied by such person to a person resident outside Sri Lanka; (3) foreign currency brought into Sri Lanka by the account holder on appropriate declaration; (4) proceeds of foreign currency loans and advances obtained by the account holder from the Domestic Banking Unit (DBU) or OBU of an AD; (5) proceeds or any part thereof from sale of any foreign asset of the account holder, where the asset had been acquired by debiting the BFCA; (6) funds transferred from other BFCAs or accounts maintained in the OBU; (7) capital, capital gains, and other receipts arising from investments made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency, if the original transfer had been made by debiting the BFCA; (8) unutilized balance remaining in the FTC of the same account holder, up to the amount such FTC had been loaded from the BFCA; and (9) insurance premia received by the account holder on foreign-currency-denominated policies issued to eligible customers and co-insurers and claims received from re-insurers and National Insurance Trust Fund by insurance companies registered with the Insurance Board of Sri Lanka.

Further, persons’ residents in Sri Lanka who earn foreign exchange and maintain BFCAs are also permitted to obtain loans in foreign currency, to be utilized for any purpose in Sri Lanka, as may be decided by the ADs as part of their business decisions in the course of normal banking business.

OIAs: OIAs may be opened and maintained with an LCB for making payments in respect of permitted capital transactions outside Sri Lanka by persons resident in Sri Lanka (that is, shares and debt securities of companies incorporated outside Sri Lanka, units in regulated unit trusts and mutual funds and sovereign bonds issued by foreign governments rated at or above the sovereign credit rating of Sri Lanka at the time of the investment, branch, liaison, marketing, agency, project, representative, or other similar office in a foreign country (other than by an individual). Companies registered under the Companies Act No. 07 of 2007 other than a company limited by guarantee, partnerships registered in Sri Lanka, and individuals’ resident in Sri Lanka are eligible to open OIAs.

Effective April 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka under general permission were suspended for three months, except for the following:

(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, or
(b) investments to be made to fulfill the regulatory requirement in that country.

Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.
Effective July 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka under general permission were suspended for six months with a view to further preserve the foreign currency reserve position of the country, except for the following:

(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, or
(b) additional investments to be made to fulfill regulatory requirement in the investee’s country,
(c) an additional investment/infusion of funds to be made by eligible resident companies in already established subsidiaries or branch offices in overseas up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of working capital requirements of the investee,
(d) the remittances up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of maintenance of liaison, marketing, agency, project, representative, or any other similar offices already established in overseas.

Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.

Prospective investors and professionals who come to Sri Lanka under the “Resident Guest Scheme” implemented by the Department of Immigration and Emigration are required to maintain the following accounts: (1) Resident Guest Foreign Currency Accounts: Resident Guest Foreign Currency Accounts may be opened by prospective investors. They are required to remit or bring a minimum initial deposit of US$250,000 or its equivalent in other foreign currency for investment in Sri Lanka; (2) Resident Guest Rupee Current Accounts by Investors (RGRCA-Investors): current account with a minimum sum of US$35,000 (and converted to LKR) a person for living expenses in Sri Lanka of the investor and each accompanying dependent; and (3) Resident Guest Rupee Current Accounts by Professionals (RGRCA-Professionals): current account with a minimum sum of US$2,000 a month for the professional intending to reside in Sri Lanka and further US$1,000 a month for each accompanying dependent for living expenses in Sri Lanka.

Senior Foreign Nationals’ Fixed Deposit Accounts: Senior foreign nationals over 55 years of age who wish to obtain resident visas in Sri Lanka under “Sri Lanka—My Dream Home program” implemented by the Department of Immigration and Emigration may open and maintain Senior Foreign Nationals’ Fixed Deposit Accounts with LCBs. Under the said scheme, senior foreign nationals are required to remit into Sri Lanka a minimum of US$15,000 or its equivalent in other foreign currency and deposit the same in a fixed deposit foreign currency account as long as they stay in Sri Lanka.

Special Deposit Account (SDA): Effective April 08, 2020, the Government of Sri Lanka in consultation with the Monetary Board of the CBSL has introduced a SDA with a view to seek assistance for the national effort to overcome the effects of COVID-19 outbreak in the country. Any Sri Lankan individual resident in or outside Sri Lanka including Dual Citizens, Citizens of other States with Sri Lankan origin, and any person resident outside Sri Lanka including funds, corporate bodies, associations incorporated/registered outside Sri Lanka and other well-wishers are eligible to open SDAs with the following special features:

Minimum tenure: Six months.
Type of deposit: Fixed deposits only.
Interest payable: 1 percentage point and 2 percentage points per annum for SDAs with a tenure of 6 months and 12 months, respectively, payable at maturity of the deposit, above the deposit interest rates applicable for normal deposits of similar maturities by the respective bank.

Repatriation of Funds: Freely convertible and repatriable outside Sri Lanka on the maturity of the term deposits.

Source of Funds: (1) inward remittances through banking system during the six-month period from April 08, 2020; (2) fund transfers from IIAs or accounts in the OBU of the account holder during the subject period.

Currency type: in foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees.

Effective July 01, 2020, regulations were issued informing the further measures taken to encourage opening of SDAs as stated below.

(1) Expansion of the sources of funding SDAs:

(a) Any person who has arrived in Sri Lanka from overseas on or after January 01, 2020, can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 07, 2020, out of foreign exchange legitimately acquired and brought into Sri Lanka by such person subject to:
   (i) a declaration made to the Sri Lanka Customs at the port of arrival where the amount of such foreign exchange exceeds US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.
   (ii) a declaration to the relevant AD where the amount of such foreign exchange is equal or less than US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.

(b) Any person in, or resident in, Sri Lanka can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 07, 2020, out of foreign currency notes in his possession up to the limit of US$15,000 and subject to such terms and conditions of the prevailing Regulations and Orders, subject to a declaration on the source of funds to the AD.

(2) SDA holders are permitted to obtain loans from ADs against SDAs (keeping as collateral) as follows:

(a) Residents in Sri Lanka rupees,

(b) Nonresident SDA holders who are eligible to obtain loans as per the prevailing regulations.

Nonresident Accounts

The types of foreign exchange accounts are amalgamated and categorized based on the purpose of maintaining such accounts, irrespective of the residential status of the person eligible to open such foreign exchange accounts, for simplification under the new FEA No. 12 of 2017.

PFCAs: Individuals of Sri Lankan origin including minors who are resident outside Sri Lanka or non-nationals either on temporary visit to Sri Lanka or intending to visit Sri Lanka may open and maintain PFCAs in the form of current (without check drawing facility), savings, or term deposit accounts in any designated foreign currency. PFCAs maintained by individuals may be held as sole or joint accounts with another eligible person.

These accounts may be credited with inward remittances, unutilized foreign currency obtained by the account holder by debiting the PFCA for travel purpose, foreign currency brought into the country by the account holder on appropriate declaration, funds transferred from other PFCAs, BFCAs, DFCAs, or accounts maintained in the OBU, where the account holder is a resident outside Sri Lanka or a non-national resident in Sri Lanka—funds transferred from IIA of the same account holder, unutilized balance remaining in the FTC up to the amount that FTC had been loaded from the PFCA, capital, capital gains, and other receipts arising from investments made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency, if the original transfer had been made by debiting the PFCA; transfers from employer’s Sri Lanka rupee account as monthly salary, employment and other related benefits and amounts in Sri Lanka rupees authorized by the CBSL for remittance abroad converted at the rate of exchange obtained on the day of credit and interest payments on the accounts.

Holders of PFCAs are allowed for the following debits: (1) to make any outward remittances outside Sri Lanka; (2) to withdraw in foreign currency notes up to, effective March 19, 2020, US$5,000 (previously US$10,000) or equivalent for travel purpose; (3) for disbursements in Sri Lanka in Sri Lanka rupees; (4) to transfer funds for uploading FTC; (5) to transfer of funds for any investment permitted to be made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency utilizing funds in PFCAs; (6) to transfer funds to other PFCAs or accounts maintained in the OBU; (7) to withdraw foreign currency, where the account holder is a non-national resident outside Sri Lanka who is on temporary visit to Sri Lanka; and (8) to transfer funds to an IIA of the same account holder who is a resident outside Sri Lanka.

IIAs: Accounts for nonresident Sri Lankan capital investments are titled as IIAs which can be held either in Sri Lanka rupees or in any designated foreign currency in the DBUs of LCBs. IIAs maintained by individuals may be held as sole or joint accounts with another eligible person. The following persons are eligible to open IIAs: (1) non-national residents in or outside Sri Lanka; (2) non-nationals of Sri Lankan origin, who are residents outside Sri Lanka; (3) Sri Lankan citizens, resident outside Sri Lanka; (4) companies incorporated outside Sri Lanka; and (5) country and regional funds, mutual funds, unit trusts, and other institutional investors who are established outside Sri Lanka. IIAs may be used for the following types of permitted investments in Sri Lanka: (1) shares in companies (listed and unlisted); (2) units in unit trusts; (3) government securities (treasury bonds and bills); (4) securities issued by the CBSL or any other statutory body; (5) Sri Lanka Development Bonds; (6) deposits in licensed financial institutions; (7) loans and debt securities; and (8) immovable property.

DFCAs: DFCAs are permitted for foreign diplomatic missions, diplomatic personnel and their family members in Sri Lanka who have been exempted from the requirement of obtaining resident visa issued by the Department of Immigration and Emigration. DFCAs may be opened in designated foreign currency. Holders of DFCAs are permitted to make any outward remittances outside Sri Lanka and to withdraw in foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees for local expenses of the account holder.

SDA: Effective April 08, 2020, the Government of Sri Lanka in consultation with the Monetary Board of the CBSL has introduced a SDA with a view to seek assistance for the national effort to overcome the effects of COVID-19 outbreak in the country. Any Sri Lankan individual resident in or outside Sri Lanka including Dual Citizens, Citizens of other States with Sri Lankan origin, and any person resident outside Sri Lanka including funds, corporate bodies, associations incorporated/registered outside Sri Lanka and other well-wishers are eligible to open SDAs with the following special features:
Minimum tenure: Six months.
Type of deposit: Fixed deposits only.
Interest payable: 1 percentage point and 2 percentage points per annum for SDAs with a tenure of 6 months and 12 months, respectively, payable at maturity of the deposit, above the deposit interest rates applicable for normal deposits of similar maturities by the respective bank.
Repatriation of Funds: Freely convertible and repatriable outside Sri Lanka on the maturity of the term deposits.
Source of Funds: (1) inward remittances through banking system during the six-month period from April 08, 2020; (2) fund transfers from IIAs or accounts in the OBU of the account holder during the subject period.
Currency type: in foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees.

Effective July 01, 2020, regulations were issued informing the further measures taken to encourage opening of SDAs as stated below.

(1) Expansion of the sources of funding SDAs:
(a) Any person who has arrived in Sri Lanka from overseas on or after January 01, 2020, can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 07, 2020, out of foreign exchange legitimately acquired and brought into Sri Lanka by such person subject to:
(i) a declaration made to the Sri Lanka Customs at the port of arrival where the amount of such foreign exchange exceeds US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.
(ii) a declaration to the relevant AD where the amount of such foreign exchange is equal or less than US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.

(b) Any person in, or resident in, Sri Lanka can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 07, 2020, out of foreign currency notes in his possession up to the limit of US$15,000 and subject to such terms and conditions of the prevailing Regulations and Orders, subject to a declaration on the source of funds to the AD.

(2) SDA holders are permitted to obtain loans from ADs against SDAs (keeping as collateral) as follows:
(a) Residents in Sri Lanka rupees,
(b) Nonresident SDA holders who are eligible to obtain loans as per the prevailing regulations.

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts

Yes. The types of accounts are amalgamated and categorized based on the purpose of maintaining such accounts for simplification under the new FEA No. 12 of 2017.

Capital Transactions Rupee Accounts (CTRAs): ADs may open CTRAs for (1) Sri Lankan individuals, permanently residing outside Sri Lanka, (2) non-nationals of Sri Lankan origin, who are residents outside Sri Lanka, (3) Sri Lankan dual citizens, (4) non-nationals resident outside Sri Lanka, (5) Sri Lankan nationals residing outside Sri Lanka, and (6) foreign firms and companies registered outside Sri Lanka. CTRAs may be opened and maintained as current (without check drawing facility), savings, or term deposit accounts in Sri Lanka rupees in the DBU of LCBs and may be held jointly with another eligible person. Interest may be paid on the funds held in these accounts.

Emigrants as stated in (1), (2), (3), and (5) above may transfer their eligible migration allowance through a CTRA as follows: (1) an initial migration allowance of US$200,000 an individual aged 18 years and above; (2) an annual migration allowance of US$30,000 where first such annual allowance is transferable after lapse of 12 months from the full utilization of the initial allowance of US$200,000; and (3) an annual allowance of US$30,000 in respect of foreign nationals as proceeds from sale of inherited property and assets in Sri Lanka.

Effective April 02, 2020, the repatriation of funds under the migration allowance through CTRAs by the emigrants who have already claimed migration allowance under the general permission was suspended for three months.

Effective April 02, 2020, the eligible migration allowance for the emigrants who are claiming the migration allowance for the first time was limited up to a maximum of US$30,000 for the period of three months.

Effective July 02, 2020, eligible migration allowance for the emigrants who are claiming the migration allowance for the first time, up to a maximum of US$30,000 and repatriation of funds under the migration allowance by the emigrants who have already claimed migration allowance up to a maximum of US$20,000 were limited for six months.
Diplomatic Rupee Accounts (DRAs): DRAs can be opened by foreign diplomatic missions and diplomatic personnel and their family members in Sri Lanka who have been exempted from the requirement of obtaining resident visa issued by the Department of Immigration and Emigration in Sri Lanka rupees. Holders of DRAs are permitted (1) to make outward remittances of visa fees, refunds, reimbursements, and sale proceeds of motor vehicles owned by the account holder; (2) to transfer funds to IIA of the same account holder; (3) for disbursements in Sri Lanka in Sri Lanka rupees; (4) to transfer funds to other DFCAs and DRAs; and (5) to make any other transaction approved by the relevant ministry.

Resident Guest Rupee Current Accounts: Resident Guest Rupee Current Accounts may be opened for prospective investors and professionals who come to Sri Lanka under the “Resident Guest Scheme” implemented by the Department of Immigration and Emigration. Investors are required to remit or bring a sum of US$35,000 or its equivalent in other foreign currency a person for the upkeep in Sri Lanka of such investor and dependents. Professionals are required to remit or bring into Sri Lanka a sum of US$2,000 a month and a further sum of US$1,000 a month for each dependent.

Senior Foreign Nationals’ Rupee Accounts: Senior Foreign Nationals’ Rupee Accounts may be opened in the form of savings or current accounts with a minimum deposit of US$1,500 or its equivalent in any other foreign currency brought into the country on appropriate declaration, and converted to Sri Lanka rupees. Inward remittances or foreign currency brought into the country by the account holder on declaration for upkeep (US$1,500 a month) and for the upkeep of dependents (US$750 a dependent a month) must be deposited to Senior Foreign Nationals’ Rupee Accounts.

SDA can be maintained as Sri Lanka Rupee deposits: Effective April 08, 2020, the Government of Sri Lanka in consultation with the Monetary Board of the CBSL has introduced a SDA with a view to seek assistance for the national effort to overcome the effects of COVID-19 outbreak in the country. Any Sri Lankan individual resident in or outside Sri Lanka including Dual Citizens, Citizens of other States with Sri Lankan origin, and any person resident outside Sri Lanka including funds, corporate bodies, associations incorporated/registered outside Sri Lanka and other well-wishers are eligible to open SDAs with the following special features:

- Minimum tenure: Six months.
- Type of deposit: Fixed deposits only.
- Interest payable: 1 percentage point and 2 percentage points per annum for SDAs with a tenure of 6 months and 12 months, respectively, payable at maturity of the deposit, above the deposit interest rates applicable for normal deposits of similar maturities by the respective bank.
- Repatriation of Funds: Freely convertible and repatriable outside Sri Lanka on the maturity of the term deposits.
- Source of Funds: (1) inward remittances through banking system during the six-month period from April 08, 2020; (2) fund transfers from IIA or accounts in the OBU of the account holder during the subject period.
- Currency type: in foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees.

Effective July 01, 2020, regulations were issued informing the further measures taken to encourage opening of SDAs as stated below.
(1) Expansion of the sources of funding SDAs:

(a) Any person who has arrived in Sri Lanka from overseas on or after January 01, 2020, can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 07, 2020, out of foreign exchange legitimately acquired and brought into Sri Lanka by such person subject to:

(i) a declaration made to the Sri Lanka Customs at the port of arrival where the amount of such foreign exchange exceeds US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.

(ii) a declaration to the relevant AD where the amount of such foreign exchange is equal or less than US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.

(b) Any person in, or resident in, Sri Lanka can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 07, 2020, out of foreign currency notes in his possession up to the limit of US$15,000 and subject to such terms and conditions of the prevailing Regulations and Orders, subject to a declaration on the source of funds to the AD.

(2) SDA holders are permitted to obtain loans from ADs against SDAs (keeping as collateral) as follows:

(a) Residents in Sri Lanka rupees,

(b) Nonresident SDA holders who are eligible to obtain loans as per the prevailing regulations.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. These accounts are convertible, but general or special approval in terms of FEA is required.

Approval required Yes. Approval is granted in accordance with the FEA, that is, either the general permission (as Regulations/Directions) with regard to permitted debits and credits or special approval where requested transactions are not covered from the existing general permission granted to same accounts. A nonresident is required a special approval to open a LKR account, if such person is not eligible to open LKR accounts for which a general permission has already granted in terms of FEA.

Blocked accounts No. There are no blocked accounts. However, capital controls in respect of migrant fund transfers are in place through CTRAs introduced under FEA as specified in Paragraph VI.B above.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports Yes.

Minimum financing requirements No. ADs may remit foreign exchange abroad or credit nonresident accounts against applications for the opening of an LC on Documents against Payment (DP) or Documents against Acceptance (DA) terms, Advance payments, Open account, or Consignment account based on the submission of proof of a valid import license, where applicable. These payment term requirements do not apply if the value of a consignment does not exceed the equivalent of US$5,000 (c.i.f.) for the use of the particular importer (for personal use and not for commercial purpose).

ADs may make outward remittances with respect to payment on interest for supplier credit facilities offered to an importer by the supplier of such goods.

Advance payment requirements Yes. The limit on advance payments for imports is US$50,000 if such payments are made from a Sri Lanka rupee account. However, such limit does not apply to payments made from foreign currency accounts.

Effective March 26, 2019, a restriction (introduced in October 2018) to release foreign exchange for making payments for imports of non-essential consumer goods under advance payment (Cash-in-Advance) terms was eliminated.

Following measures were issued as interim measures to ease the pressure on the exchange rate and the stress on financial markets because of the impact of COVID-19.

(1) Effective March 19, 2020, the CBSL requested banks to suspend, for a period of three month, facilitating importation of some motor vehicles under the LCs, as well as some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, and Advance Payment. (This Direction lapsed effective June 19, 2020.)

(2) Effective March 24, 2020, the Import and Export Control Department (IECD) requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. (These regulations were incorporated by the regulations issued on April 16, 2020.)

(3) Effective April 16, 2020, the IECD requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. Items in Schedule II shall be only facilitated with three-month credit facility. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on May 22, 2020.)

(4) Effective May 22, 2020, the IECD confirmed a temporary suspension from April 16, 2020, of importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these for a period of 3 months. It also indicated that Items in Schedule II shall be only imported with three- or six-month credit facilities provided by the supplier from the date of loading. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I and II depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on June 30, 2020.)

(5) Effective June 30, 2020, the IECD further updated the items under temporary suspension and items that require credit arrangements to import until further notice. However, exceptions are allowed for these items depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The update resulted in reducing the number of items under suspension. The update resulted in increasing the number of items under credit requirement. However, such items were previously in the temporary suspension list. Accordingly, overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions.

(6) Effective July 16, 2020, the suspension period was further extended until further notice.

Accordingly, the banks are not allowed to involve in intermediary services (such as opening LCs, making payments, endorsing or releasing documents, etc.) related to the import process of the restricted items unless with a special approval from the direction issuing authority.

Advance import deposits

Effective March 07, 2019, the 100% cash margin required to open LCs for imports of some vehicles and certain non-essential consumer goods was eliminated. Previously, these cash margin requirements were imposed as follows:

(1) for importation of some motor vehicles, 100% cash margin requirement against LCs, from September 19, 2018; subsequently modified, from October 01, 2018, to 200% and from November 26, 2018, to 100% for opening LCs through foreign currency;

(2) for importation of some non-essential consumer goods, 100% cash margin requirement against LCs, from October 01, 2018.

Effective March 13, 2019, the 100% cash margin required for imports on DA terms of some non-essential consumer goods was eliminated. (Previously, this cash margin requirement was introduced from October 11, 2018.)

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Yes.

Imports may be on Advance Payment, Open Accounts, DP, or DA terms or under LCs with original commercial invoices and transport or delivery documents.

Domiciliation requirements

No.

Preshipment inspection

Yes.

Inspection is required for certain consumer goods.

Letters of credit

Yes.

LCs are required for importation of vehicles.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses

No.

Other

Yes.

Effective March 20, 2020, the release of foreign exchange for the importation of non-essential consumer goods as per the Banking Act Direction No. 1 of March 19, 2020, under DPs and Open Account Payment terms was suspended until June 20, 2020.

Regulations issued by IECD have restricted facilitating selected import items by commercial banks under payment terms LCs, DA, DP, Advance Payment, and Open account. Accordingly, to import restricted items documentary evidence may require where applicable.

(1) Effective March 19, 2020, the CBSL requested banks to suspend, for a period of three month, facilitating importation of some motor vehicles under the LCs, as well as some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, and Advance Payment (This Direction lapsed effective June 19, 2020).

(2) Effective March 24, 2020, the IECD requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. (These regulations were incorporated by the regulations issued on April 16, 2020.)

(3) Effective April 16, 2020, the IECD requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. Items in Schedule II shall be only facilitated with three-month credit facility. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on May 22, 2020.)

(4) Effective May 22, 2020, the IECD confirmed the temporary suspension from April 16, 2020, of importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these for a period of three months. It also indicated that Items in Schedule II shall be only imported with three- or six-month credit facilities provided by the supplier from the date of loading. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I and II depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on June 30, 2020.)

(5) Effective June 30, 2020, the IECD further updated the items under temporary suspension and items that require credit arrangements to import until further notice. However, exceptions are allowed for these items depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The update resulted in reducing the number of items under suspension. The update resulted increasing the number of items under credit requirement. However, such items were previously in the temporary suspension list. Accordingly, overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions.

(6) Effective July 16, 2020, the suspension period was further extended until further notice.

Accordingly, the banks are not allowed to involve in intermediary services (such as opening LCs, making payments, endorsing or releasing documents, etc.) related to the import process of the restricted items unless with a special approval from the direction issuing authority.

New licensing requirements were introduced, while several requirements were relaxed. Thus, some foods were subjected to import licenses as follows: effective October 03, 2019—selected food items such as seafood, nuts, tamarind, pepper, cinnamon, nutmeg, and mace; effective December 06, 2019—food items such as gram, cloves, ginger, and other consumables such as incense sticks, kites, and lanterns; effective May 22, 2020—items such as textile articles, beverages, building material, vehicle parts, computer monitors, televisions, selected motor vehicles, and furniture items, and effective June 30, 2020—items such as air conditioners, refrigerators, and washing machines and chemical products. Meanwhile, some other goods were removed from license requirement as follows: effective May 22, 2020—retreated tires and effective June 30, 2020—selected items such as sorghum, facemasks, saws, and asbestos. However, some of these removed items were inserted in to the negative list. As a result, about 1,200 HS line items are subject to import controls because of concerns on public health, public morals, environmental protection, preservation of antiques, or national security. Broadly, these items are categorized as drugs; used vehicles and vehicle parts; chemicals, animal products, alcohol, petroleum, and petroleum products; telecommunication equipment and miscellaneous items; and selected food items. Paddy is also subject to licensing to protect domestic producers from low prices. International quality certificate is required to import petroleum products, an analytical report from manufacturer to import pharmaceutical products. Standards were set to importation of taps, cocks, and valves categorized under HS code 84.81. The number of commodity categories subject to Sri Lanka standards (SLS) certification is 122. From July 13, 2018, lower vehicular exhaust emission limits in compliance with the EURO IV standards, and new safety measures and standards were introduced for selected motor vehicles. Effective January 28, 2019, vehicle emission standards and

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Yes.
safety measures regulations were amended. Accordingly, electric vehicles removed from the requirement of vehicular exhaust emission limits and tightened safety requirements.

Positive list
Yes. These are items that are not on the negative import list.

Negative list
Yes. New banned items were introduced, while several banned items were removed on October 03, 2019, May 22, 2020, and June 30, 2020. As a result, about 73 HS lines including some fish, pharmaceutical waste, and chemicals such as polychlorinated biphenyls, ethylene dichloride, chloropentafluoroethane, used and retreated tires (effective May 22, 2020), clinical waste, chain saws (effective October 03, 2019), asbestos (effective June 30, 2020), etc., may not be imported, under Import and Export Control Act No. 1 of 1969. Glyphosate was removed from the negative list and was added to the list of products requiring an import license.

Effective October 03, 2019, importation of saws was banned. However, effective June 30, 2020, ban on saws import was removed and inserted into the licensed list.

Effective May 22, 2020, importation of salt was banned. However, effective June 30, 2020, ban on salt import was removed and inserted into the licensed list.

Open general licenses
No.

Licenses with quotas
Yes. Importation of hydrochlorofluorocarbon was limited by imposing quotas; import licenses are issued by the IECD to quota holders to import hydrochlorofluorocarbon.

Other nontariff measures
No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs
Yes. There is a three-band tariff structure (0%, 15%, and 30%). Preferential tariffs apply to imports under bilateral and regional trade agreements. In addition to customs duties, some imports are subject to domestic taxes such as export taxes (cess), the Ports and Airports Development Levy (PAL), and excise duty (on alcohol, tobacco products, vehicles, petroleum products, etc.). As a composite levy, a special commodity levy is imposed on selected essential food items, so as to ensure affordable prices for such commodities. In line with the government policy on trade liberalization, cess on 253 items and PAL of about 1,200 items were removed November 28, 2017, as proposed in the Budget 2018. Further, cess on 25 items was removed effective March 06, 2019, as announced in the Budget 2019. Under the economic relief package granted to the tourism industry affected by the Easter Sunday attacks, the importation of handheld metal detectors, walk-through metal detectors, baggage x-ray inspection equipment, and vehicle scanners is exempted from the PAL of 7.5% effective May 07, 2019. Effective December 01, 2019, VAT rate was reduced to 8% from 15% on import and/or supply of goods or services except financial services while National Building Tax (NBT) was removed. Further, effective December 06, 2019, PAL rate was increased to 10% from 7.5%, while concessionary rates and exemptions were granted on the importation of selected items.

Taxes collected through the exchange system
No.

State import monopoly
No.

Exports and Export Proceeds
Repatriation requirements  Yes. Special arrangements apply to exports carried out under trade and payments agreements and to exports to ACU member countries. Effective October, 17 2019, every exporter of goods must repatriate to Sri Lanka payments received for the exportation of goods within 180 days from the date of exportation. (Previously, repatriation deadline was 120 days from the date of exportation. A grace period of 30 days could be granted by the CBSL after the completion of 120 days prior to instituting any action against non-compliance.) Every exporter of goods must submit related documentary evidence on each exportation to the respective AD/RD that receives the payment. These export proceeds may be credited to any Sri Lanka rupee account or to a BFCA or to an account maintained in the OBU of the exporter (where applicable).

Surrender requirements  No.

Surrender to the central bank  No.

Surrender to authorized dealers  No.

Financing requirements  No.

Documentation requirements  Yes.

Letters of credit  No.

Guarantees  No.

Domiciliation  No.

Preshipment inspection  No.

Other  Yes. Pre-export quality assurance is voluntary for most exports. However, Sri Lanka Standards Institution (SLSI) certification is required for export of cinnamon and cinnamon-related products.

Export licenses  Yes.

Without quotas  Yes. Licenses are required for exports about 181 HS lines, including ivory and ivory products, handicraft items of ebony, timber (logs or in plank form), vintage motor vehicles, metal waste, and scrap metals (for example, copper, nickel, aluminum, lead, tin, zinc).

With quotas  No.

Export taxes  Yes.

Collected through the exchange system  No.

Other export taxes  Yes. Cess is levied on exports of primary commodities such as tea, coconut, and rubber, with a view to promoting local value-added and mineral products, wood in rough form, and various types of metal scraps. Effective June 18, 2020, cess for tea has been temporary removed for a period of six months.

Pursuant to Direction No. 2 of December 21, 2018, foreign institutional investors are also permitted to route their investments to Sri Lanka via an account maintained in Sri Lanka by a Nonresident Intermediary (NRI). In the event an NRI is a bank that is incorporated outside Sri Lanka or branch of such bank, such account must be a Vostro account or an IIA, and in the event of any other NRI, such account must be an IIA. Sale or maturity proceeds and returns received on the investments made with the funds received may be repatriated via the Vostro account or an IIA following the same way that the investment was routed.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents  Yes.
Issuance of securities locally by nonresidents is not permitted.
Nonresident investments made through an IIA may be sold in Sri Lanka under the general permission.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes.
Residents may buy shares issued by foreign companies as follows:
listed companies—up to US$2 million a calendar year; unlisted companies—up to US$500,000 a calendar year; partnerships—up to US$300,000 for lifetime; and individuals—up to US$200,000 for lifetime. The funds must be channeled through an OIA.
Any investment exceeding these limits requires a special approval of the Monetary Board in terms of Section 7 of the FEA on applications submitted to the Director—DFE of the CBSL.

Effective April 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka under general permission were suspended for three months, except for the following:
(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, or (b) investments to be made to fulfill the regulatory requirement in that country.
Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.

Effective July 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka under general permission were suspended for six months with a view to further preserve the foreign currency reserve position of the country, except for the following:
(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, (b) additional investments to be made to fulfill regulatory requirement in the investee’s country,
(c) an additional investment/infusion of funds to be made by eligible resident companies in already established subsidiaries or branch offices in overseas up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of working capital requirements of the investee, (d) the remittances up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose
of working capital requirements of the investee.
of maintenance of liaison, marketing, agency, project, representative, or any other similar offices already established in overseas. Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.

Funds available in PFCAs and BFCAs may also be utilized for investment in capital market securities issued outside Sri Lanka. Investments made through PFCAs/BFCAs are not subject to any investment ceiling imposed under the FEA, but are limited up to the foreign currency balances available in such accounts. Effective April 02, 2020, outward remittances (other than for those on current transactions) through BFCAs or PFCAs held by persons resident in Sri Lanka were suspended for three months. Effective July 02, 2020, any outward remittances through PFCAs/BFCAs held by persons resident in Sri Lanka other than outward remittances on permitted current transactions up to any amount or outward remittances on capital transactions up to a maximum of US$20,000 were suspended for six months.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. Approval is not required for sales of shares. However, all income from investments outside Sri Lanka and disposal proceeds (including any subsequent shares devolving on such investor by virtue of a corporate action by the issuer, exercise of a right, entitlement, or conversion) must be brought into Sri Lanka through the same OIA through which the initial investment was made within three months from the date of payment of realization of such investment. Permission has not been granted to issue shares abroad.

Bonds or other debt securities Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. Nonresident Sri Lankans which include foreign country funds, regional funds, mutual funds, entities incorporated outside Sri Lanka, and citizens of foreign countries may invest in any permitted real or financial assets through IIA. The rupee-denominated government treasury bill and bond market is open to foreign investors. Effective January 27, 2019, such foreign investors may hold 5% (previously 10%) of the total value of treasury bills and bonds outstanding at any given time. Companies incorporated in Sri Lanka may issue debentures. There is no ceiling on interest rates on foreign investments in debenture. The minimum term of a debenture issued by a company incorporated in Sri Lanka to foreign investors is one year. Issuance and transfer of convertible, nonconvertible, redeemable, and nonredeemable debentures in rupees of listed or non-listed companies on the Colombo Stock Exchange are permitted for foreign institutional investors, companies incorporated abroad, individuals resident outside Sri Lanka, and Sri Lankans resident abroad, up to 100% of the total. IIAs must be used for the related transactions.

Issuance is not permitted.

Nonresident investments made through an IIA may be sold in Sri Lanka under the general permission.

Residents may invest in sovereign bonds issued by foreign governments and governmental institutions as follows: listed companies—up to US$2 million a calendar year; unlisted companies—up to US$500,000 a calendar year; partnerships—up to US$300,000 for lifetime; and individuals—up to US$200,000 for lifetime. The funds must be channeled through an OIA. Effective April 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka under general permission were suspended for three months, except for the following:
(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, or
(b) investments to be made to fulfill the regulatory requirement in that country.
Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.
Effective July 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka under general permission were suspended for six months with a view to further preserve the foreign currency reserve position of the country, except for the following:
(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka,
(b) additional investments to be made to fulfill regulatory requirement in the investee’s country,
(c) an additional investment/infusion of funds to be made by eligible resident companies in already established subsidiaries or branch offices in overseas up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of working capital requirements of the investee,
(d) the remittances up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of maintenance of liaison, marketing, agency, project, representative, or any other similar offices already established in overseas.
Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.

Funds available in PFCAs and BFCAs may also be utilized for investment in bonds or other debt securities, including corporate bonds, issued outside Sri Lanka. However, investments made through these foreign currency accounts are not subject to any investment ceiling imposed under the FEA and are limited up to the foreign currency balances available in such accounts.

Residents may acquire and hold shares of overseas companies, subject to the following limits: (1) listed companies—up to US$2 million a calendar year; and (2) unlisted companies—up to US$500,000 a calendar year. The funds must be channeled through an OIA opened and maintained by an eligible resident investor with a LCB.

Banks incorporated/registered as Public Limited Companies (PLCs) are subject to the limit applicable to listed companies. Government Banks (Bank of Ceylon & Peoples’ Bank) are not subject to limits. Effective March 19, 2020, the CBSL requested banks to suspend, for the three months, the purchase of Sri Lanka Sovereign Bonds.

Effective June 19, 2020, CBSL with a view to easing the pressure on the exchange rate and the stress on financial markets because of impact of COVID-19 outbreak, required LCBs and NSB to suspend the purchase of Sri Lanka ISBs for a period of three months unless such purchase of ISBs is funded by using new foreign currency inflows to the banks.

Effective April 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka (including resident banks) under general permission were suspended for three months, except for the following:

(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, or (b) investments to be made to fulfill the regulatory requirement in that country.

Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.
Effective July 02, 2020, payments through OIAs for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka (including resident banks) under general permission were suspended for six months with a view to further preserve the foreign currency reserve position of the country, except for the following:

(a) Investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, or
(b) Additional investments to be made to fulfill regulatory requirement in the investee’s country,
(c) An additional investment/infusion of funds to be made by eligible resident companies in already established subsidiaries or branch offices in overseas up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of working capital requirements of the investee,
(d) The remittances up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of maintenance of liaison, marketing, agency, project, representative, or any other similar offices already established in overseas.

Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on a case-by-case basis.

07/02/2020 Eligible migration allowance for the emigrants who are claiming the migration allowance for the first time, up to a maximum of US$30,000 and repatriation of funds under the migration allowance by the emigrants who have already claimed migration allowance up to a maximum of US$20,000 were limited for six months.

Imports and Import Payments

Financing requirements for imports

Advance payment requirements

03/26/2019 The restriction (introduced October 2018) to release foreign exchange for making payments for imports of non-essential consumer goods under advance payment (Cash-in-Advance) terms was eliminated.
03/19/2020 The Central Bank of Sri Lanka requested banks to suspend, for a period of three month, facilitating importation of some motor vehicles under the LCs, as well as some non-essential goods under LCs, Documents Against Acceptance and Advance Payment (This Direction lapsed effective June 19, 2020). Accordingly, the banks are not allowed to involve in intermediary services (such as opening LCs, making payments, endorsing or releasing documents, etc.) related to the import process of the restricted items unless with a special approval from the direction issuing authority.
03/24/2020 The Import and Export Control Department requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of some non-essential goods under LCs, Documents Against Acceptance, Documents against Payment, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. (These regulations were incorporated by the regulations issued on April 16, 2020.)
04/16/2020 The Import and Export Control Department requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of items in Schedule I under LCs, Documents Against Acceptance, Documents against Payment, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. Items in Schedule II shall be only facilitated with three-month credit facility. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on May 22, 2020.)
05/22/2020 The Import and Export Control Department confirmed a temporary suspension from April 16, 2020, of importing items in Schedule I under LCs, Documents Against Acceptance, Documents against Payment, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these for a period of three months. It also indicated that items in Schedule II shall be only imported with three- or six-month credit facilities provided by the supplier from the date of loading. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I and II depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on June 30, 2020.)
06/30/2020 The Import and Export Control Department further updated the items under temporary suspension and items that require credit arrangements to import until further notice. However, exceptions are allowed for these items depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The update resulted in reducing the number of items under suspension. The update resulted in increasing the number of items under credit requirement. However, such items were previously in the temporary suspension list. Accordingly, overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions.

general permission were suspended for six months with a view to further preserve the foreign currency reserve position of the country, except for the following:

(a) investments to be financed out of a foreign currency loan obtained by the investor from a person resident outside Sri Lanka, or
(b) additional investments to be made to fulfill regulatory requirement in the investee’s country,
(c) an additional investment/infusion of funds to be made by eligible resident companies in already established subsidiaries or branch offices in overseas up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of working capital requirements of the investee,
(d) the remittances up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of maintenance of liaison, marketing, agency, project, representative, or any other similar offices already established in overseas.

Investments under (a) and (b) which exceed the limits under the general permission are subject to the Monetary Board approval on case-by-case basis.

07/02/2020

The list of payments through Outward Investment Account for the purpose of making investments in overseas by persons resident in Sri Lanka (including investment firms and collective investment funds) under general permission that are excluded from the suspension is expanded. Thus, the following is included in such list of exemptions:
- an additional investment/infusion of funds to be made by eligible resident companies in already established subsidiaries or branch offices in overseas up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of working capital requirements of the investee,
- the remittances up to a maximum of US$20,000, for the purpose of maintenance of liaison, marketing, agency, project, representative, or any other similar offices already established in overseas.

The regulations governing the sale or issuance of capital market securities by nonresidents apply. Under the Banking Act, investment of a licensed financial institution in another (single) financial institution (including a subsidiary) may not exceed 10% of the capital base. The aggregate amount of such investment, which a licensed financial institution may undertake in other financial institutions (including subsidiaries), may not exceed 25% of its capital base.
As per Section 10 of the Banking Act, financial institutions can no longer acquire or hold shares or ownership interest in a nonfinancial firm (for example, in commercial, agricultural, or industrial company or unincorporated entity).

The ECCB sets an indicative rate for commercial banks. This rate has been EC$2.6882 – EC$2.7169 per US dollar for a long time. Commercial banks may set commissions freely in transactions with their clients (for non-US currency). Commercial banks generally purchase US currency at EC$2.6882 and sell at EC$2.7169.

Banks are allowed to purchase or sell foreign currency from each other as well as to and from the ECCB. The commercial banks are not required to report their daily foreign exchange activity to the ECCB.

Commercial banks are viewed as the exchange bureaus. There are also foreign exchange transfer institutions such as MoneyGram and Western Union. Neither foreign exchange bureaus nor foreign exchange transfer institutions are licensed by the ECCB, and they do not do business with the ECCB.

The ECCB trades US currency with Bank of America.

The ECCB is committed to buying and selling US dollars at a fixed exchange rate of EC$2.7 per US dollar. Actual rates may differ slightly so that the ECCB can cover its administrative expenses. There is no bid-ask spread.

There is no formal interbank foreign exchange market. However, banks may trade with each other.
Official cover of forward operations No.

The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. St. Vincent and the Grenadines participates in a currency union with seven other members of the ECCU and has no separate legal tender. The Eastern Caribbean dollar is pegged to the US dollar under a currency board arrangement at EC$2.70 per US dollar. The ECCB officially covers at least 60% of base money with its foreign reserves. The operational guideline is set at 80%, although in practice the coverage has been close to 100%.

Foreign exchange market

| Yes. | The ECCB sets an indicative rate for commercial banks to follow. This rate has been ECS$2.6882–ECS$2.7169 per US dollar for a long time. Commercial banks may freely set their foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients. The ECCB is committed to selling or buying US dollars at a fixed exchange rate of ECS$2.70 per US dollar. Actual rates may differ slightly so that the ECCB can cover its administrative expenses. There is no bid-ask spread. |

| Spot exchange market | Yes. | Banks may purchase and sell foreign currency from each other as well as to and from the ECCB. Commercial banks are not required to report their daily foreign exchange activity to the ECCB. Commercial banks are viewed as the exchange bureaus. There are also foreign exchange transfer institutions such as MoneyGram and Western Union. Foreign exchange bureaus and foreign exchange transfer institutions are neither licensed by nor conduct business with the ECCB. |

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2017 Article IV Consultation with Sudan states that, as of November 15, 2017, Sudan maintained the following measures subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2 (a) and 3: (1) an exchange restriction arising from the government’s limitations on the availability of foreign exchange and the allocation of foreign exchange to certain priority items; (2) an MCP and exchange restriction arising from the establishment by the government of a system of multiple exchange rates used for official and commercial transactions (that is, the Central Bank of Sudan (CBOS) rate, the wheat rate, and the commercial bank incentive rate), which gives rise to effective exchange rates that deviate by more than 2%; (3) an MCP and exchange restriction arising from large spreads between the CBOS rate and the parallel market exchange rate because of the CBOS’ limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to the parallel market; and (4) an exchange restriction and an MCP arising from the imposition by the government of a cash margin requirement for most imports. (Country Report No. 17/364)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes. The currency of Sudan is the Sudanese Guinea (SDG).

Other legal tender
No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary

Dual

Multiple
Yes. The exchange rate structure is classified as multiple. Sudan’s multiple exchange rate regime includes: (1) a rate that applies for payment of government obligations and customs valuation; (2) a managed floating rate (MFR) used mainly by commercial banks and exchange bureaus; and (3) fuel exchange rate to value fuel products. The MFR applies to all other transactions.
Effective April 24, 2019, the CBOS determines the exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea and publishes it daily through its website. For other convertible currencies, exchange rates are applied in US dollar terms, according to the CBOS’ daily announcement on its website. Banks and exchange companies must apply the exchange rate announced by the CB to all transactions. They are allowed a maximum profit margin of 0.5% on selling over the buying rate for the currency in question. Previously, the indicative exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea was announced by the exchange rate announcement mechanism, and the indicative exchange rate of other convertible currencies was based on the prices of those currencies against the US dollar announced by the CB on its website. Banks and exchange companies were obligated to apply the exchange rate announced by means of the exchange rate announcement mechanism to all transactions, including the valuation of assets and discounts, but they were allowed to deviate from the indicative rate by a range of +/- 4%. In addition, they were allowed a maximum profit margin of 0.5% on selling over the buying rate for the currency in question. Effective January 1, 2020, the CBOS no longer intervenes in determining the gold exchange rate.

Classification

No separate legal tender

Currency board

Conventional peg

Stabilized arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as managed floating. A MFR used by commercial banks is determined in the interbank market, in which participants deal directly with each other. The main objective of the policy is exchange rate stability. Sudan’s multiple exchange rate regime includes: (1) a CB rate that also applies to payment of government obligations and customs valuation. The rate of customs valuation is fixed at SDG18/$ revised daily but not necessarily at CBOS rate; and (2) an MFR used mainly by commercial banks and exchange bureaus. The MFR applies to all other transactions. Effective January 7, 2020, the CBOS devalued the official exchange rate from SDG45/1$ to SDG55/1$. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized. The CBOS does not disclose information on its interventions to the public.

Crawling peg

Free floating

Official exchange rate Yes. The method for determining the official rate is a target gap between the official rate and parallel market rate. Effective April 24, 2019, the CBOS determines the exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea and publishes it daily through its website. For other convertible currencies, exchange rates are applied in US dollar terms, according to the CBOS’ daily announcement.

Other monetary framework Yes. The monetary policy framework is primarily a nominal exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the US dollar. The operational target is the reserve money. The CBOS aims to control broad money as a monetary target and intervenes directly in the market by lending to banks in the event of a liquidity shortage.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. As a temporary arrangement, each client is permitted only one foreign currency check not exceeding US$100,000 in the clearinghouse.

Spot exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange bureaus may sell and buy foreign exchange freely and may set their bid and ask prices within the upper and lower indicative limits. Exchange bureaus operate under a license from the CBOS, which organizes and monitors them. As of April 2020, there were about 13 licensed bureaus. Exchange bureaus may not buy foreign exchange from the CBOS. The maximum allowed bid-ask spread is 0.5% for all currencies. The operations of foreign exchange bureaus are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes. They may maintain accounts abroad with their correspondents, but may not make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBOS.

Operated by the central bank Yes. The CBOS sells foreign exchange to commercial banks in accordance with the importance of the imported commodity, with priority for strategic needs. The CBOS does not deal with government and public entities directly. In rare cases, there may be a direct deal with the government, such as a “clean payment.” Clean payments are unconverted currency payments—for example, profit transfers, transfers meant for embassies abroad and for government travel, airline transfers, etc.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

Yes. Since October 22, 2017, the CBOS encourages banks to deal with their correspondents in all other currencies, including the US dollar, and to expand the network of correspondents by maintaining foreign exchange accounts with all foreign convertible currencies, including the US dollar. Banks must encourage customers to carry out all transactions and contracts in all other currencies, including the US dollar, or in the currency of origin of the goods or service if the currency in question is convertible. It is also permitted to submit customer bills in all currencies in convertible foreign currency, including the US dollar.

Controls on the use of domestic currency

Imports and Import Payments

Letters were circulated to the commercial banks regarding the issuance of commodities specification certificate while importing certain commodities.

Importers must present a valid import registration from the Ministry of Foreign Trade, along with the following documents: (1) bill of lading; (2) final invoice; (3) certificate of origin; (4) packing list; and (5) any other document needed by the importer.
Preshipment inspection  Yes. Certificate of conformity is required for preshipment inspection.

Letters of credit  No. In addition to LCs, other payment methods are also allowed.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses  No.

Other  No.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures  Yes.

Positive list  No.

Negative list  Yes. Imports of some goods, including alcohol, narcotics, gambling instruments, and weapons, are prohibited for religious reasons and in the interest of health and national security. Banks may not engage in any banking arrangements for the importation of goods on the above list. Nil value imports are prohibited except for importation for investment purposes in accordance with the policies and procedures of the National Investment Authority or import for investments established under agreements with the Government of Sudan approved by the Ministry of Finance and Economic Planning.

Open general licenses  Yes.

Licenses with quotas  No.

Other nontariff measures  Yes. Imports from Israel are prohibited. All CBOS import procedures must be followed in the free zone area, and shipping documents for imported commodities from the free zone area must be exchanged through banks inside and outside the free zone area. Local banks may not finance and/or engage in any banking arrangements to import from the free zones, whether on their own behalf or on behalf of customers. All methods of payment are allowed for the importation of all commodities.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements  Yes. Export proceeds must be repatriated. Export proceeds based on sight LCs must be repatriated as soon as the documents are examined by the foreign importer’s correspondent bank but no later than one month from shipment. Pursuant to Circular No. 4/2020, proceeds of cash against documents (CAD) exports must be repatriated as soon as the documents are delivered to the correspondent bank abroad but no later than effective January 1, 2020, 45 days (previously two months) from shipment. Gold exports must be paid in advance. Partial export shipments are allowed, provided a separate export form is approved for each shipment and the export proceeds of the portion shipped are monitored by the relevant bank and repatriated within the period specified by the CBOS. Export proceeds of mining companies that have agreements with the government may be used to meet their business needs.

Surrender requirements  Yes.
Effective February 6, 2019, banks must allocate at least 10% of the export earnings in favor of importing human medicines and raw materials for the manufacture of medicine. Exporters must sell their export proceeds at the exchange rate announced by means of the exchange rate announcement mechanism for the date on which they received the earnings (previously at the commercial bank rate plus commission).

Effective January 1, 2020, the requirement to allocate at least 10% of the export earnings in favor of importing human medicines and raw materials for the manufacture of medicine was removed. Export proceeds may be used as follows: (1) for imports subject to controls; (2) to be sold to any other importer inside or outside the source bank; and (3) to be sold to the issuing bank or any other bank.

All methods of payment may be used for export-related payments, including documentary credits (sight), documentary credits (demand), prepayment, CAD, and documents against acceptance. The export earnings recovery period for transactions carried out by means of documentary credits (sight) or CAD must be on acceptance of the documents, within a maximum of 30 days from the date on which the documents are received by the importer’s bank. Facilities may be granted for the payment of export transactions by means of documentary credits (demand) or documents against acceptance, provided the period of the facilities does not exceed 90 days from the shipment date. This applies to the goods announced by the Ministry of Industry and Trade for the purpose of promoting trade and opening new markets.

<td>The Central Bank of Sudan (CBOS) determines the exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea and publishes it daily through its website. For other convertible currencies, exchange rates are applied in US dollar terms, according to the CBOS’ daily announcement on its website. Banks and exchange companies must apply the exchange rate announced by the CB to all transactions. They are allowed a maximum profit margin of 0.5% on selling over the buying rate for the currency in question. Previously, the indicative exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea was announced by the exchange rate announcement mechanism, and the indicative exchange rate of other convertible currencies was based on the prices of those currencies against the US dollar announced by the CB on its website. Banks and exchange companies were allowed to deviate from the indicative rate by a range of +/- 4%. In addition, they were allowed a maximum profit margin of 0.5% on selling over the buying rate for the currency in question.</td>

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. In accordance with a July 1994 presidential decree, the exchange rate is determined based on the demand and supply of foreign exchange. Pursuant to Resolution of April 15, 2020, the minister of finance made a change to the exchange rate arrangement. The monetary authorities switched to a managed floating exchange rate system, in which the exchange rate will be determined on the basis of the demand and supply mechanism. Within this exchange rate framework, the Centrale Bank van Suriname (CBvS) will periodically assess the developments on the foreign exchange market and can adjust the exchange rate, if the market conditions deem such an adjustment necessary. Because the exchange rate has stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar since February 2017, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.
The CBvS conducts a discretionary foreign exchange intervention policy and as such does not publish intervention data.

Official exchange rate: Yes. The commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus may not freely determine exchange rates effective April 15, 2020. The CBvS sets the indicative exchange rate for the US dollar for the next working day. The exchange rates for other currencies than the US dollar are being derived from this indicative exchange rate, using the international cross-currency rates relative to the US dollar. The indicative exchange rates apply to transactions committed by the bank and serve for the valuation of goods whose value is denominated in foreign currency. The published daily indicative exchange rate provides guidance to the foreign exchange market.

Thirty two money transaction offices and nine commercial banks are licensed to deal in foreign exchange as of end-2019. Commercial banks and money transaction offices are licensed by the CBvS. Money transaction offices comprise currency exchange houses (24) and money remittance offices (6). Operations of exchange houses are limited to spot sales and purchases of banknotes. Both the Money Transaction Offices Supervision Act 2012 and the Banking and Credit Institutions Supervision Act mention the issuance of specific guidelines for the operations of money transaction offices and banking and credit institutions.

The CBvS sells foreign exchange to the government to settle external transactions.
debt obligations and provides foreign exchange to settle fuel import payments and import payments of few basic products and medicines. The CBvS is currently phasing out the provision of foreign exchange for oil imports.

Auction No.
Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions. Banks are encouraged to trade among themselves, but foreign exchange trading between banks is very limited. Nine commercial banks may trade in the interbank foreign exchange market. The CBvS sells foreign exchange to commercial banks when needed (at official rates).

Over the counter Yes. The market operates over the counter. There are no market makers or brokers.
Brokerage No.
Market making No.

Forward exchange market No.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes. Settlements in Surinamese dollars between residents of Suriname and other countries are not permitted. Related payments must be made in specific convertible currencies (Australian dollars, Canadian dollars, Eastern Caribbean dollars, euros, Japanese yen, Norwegian kroner, Swedish kronor, Swiss francs, pounds sterling, and US dollars).

For current transactions and payments Yes. For capital income items, such as interest and dividend payments, Foreign Exchange Commission (FEC) permission is required.

For capital transactions Yes.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments Yes. FEC permission is required.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments Yes. FEC permission is required.
Credit operations Yes. FEC permission is required.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. The Surinamese dollar is the only legal tender; payments in foreign currency between residents are discouraged and only permitted if the parties agree to the terms set among themselves.

Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements No.

Operative No.

Inoperative No.

Regional arrangements Yes. Suriname is a member of CARICOM and participates in the CARICOM Single Market and Economy. So far, there are no payments arrangements with other member countries of CARICOM or with other countries in the region.

Letters of credit
No.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses
No.

Other
Yes. Purchases of foreign exchange to settle import payments must be supported by invoices.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures
Yes. Import licenses are required only for goods on the negative list. Importers must be registered with the national chamber of commerce.

Positive list
No.

Negative list
Yes. Imports of the following are prohibited, unless a license has been obtained from the Ministry of Trade and Industry: wild animals and plants that are not indigenous to Suriname; pesticides (based on the Fund for Special Operations list of the Inter-American Development Bank); used cars and motorcycles more than 8 years old and buses more than 15 years old; collectors’ items more than 20 years old; chemical and radioactive waste; and chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons. Imports of other items, including explosives and narcotics, are prohibited for reasons of public safety or health.

Open general licenses
Yes.

Licenses with quotas
No.

Other nontariff measures
Yes. Imports of certain types of goods require permission from ministries operating under specific acts of parliament, that is, the Ministries of Industry and Trade, Agriculture, and Forestry and Natural Resources. Importers must obtain certificates of importation issued by the relevant ministry for imports of the following: animals and birds or their eggs; brood eggs; animal parts and products; psychotropic products for human medicinal purposes; medicines for human beings and animals; microorganisms for research; waste products; and refrigerators, air conditioners, and equipment containing chlorofluorocarbons.

Import taxes and/or tariffs
Yes. In addition to customs duties, a “statistical and consent duty” of 2% is levied on the c.i.f. value of commercial imports, except for those (1) of the CARICOM region, (2) related to agreements of the government of Suriname, and (3) for which the MOF has granted tax exemption. Suriname applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET; as a result, the maximum external tariff rate is 50%.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

- Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions: Yes. Authorized banks’ external transactions are limited, in principle, to those on behalf of their customers.
- Borrowing abroad: Yes. External borrowing is not allowed without FEC permission.
- Maintenance of accounts abroad: No. Banks do not need approval to open correspondent accounts abroad.
- Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits): Yes. Authorized banks are allowed to invest in short-term financial assets at correspondent banks abroad.
- Lending locally in foreign exchange: Yes. Banks may only provide foreign exchange loans to residents with genuine foreign exchange income.
- Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange: No. Residents are allowed to purchase locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange.
- Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange: Yes. The reserve ratio for foreign currency deposits is determined independently of those for Surinamese dollar balances. The reserve ratio for domestic currency deposits is 35%. However, the effective reserve ratio for domestic currency deposits stood at around 13% at end-July 2020. The gap between the nominal and effective ratio is explained by the following exemptions: Housing loans: commercial banks are permitted to on-lend up to 10% of their Surinamese dollar reserve base for housing loans and had effectively used around 6% of the reserve base as of end-July 2020; (2) T-bills purchase: in July 2014, the banks were allowed a one-off purchase of T-bills, which amount equals around 2% of the reserve base of end-July 2020; (3) COVID-19 support: effective May 20, 2020, banks were allowed to utilize 7.5% of the reserve base to provide credit to households and corporates that are affected by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Budget support: effective June 29, 2020, banks were allowed to utilize up to 6.5% of their reserve base to lend to the government to finance crucial government expenditure for June and July 2020.

The reserve ratio for foreign currency deposits currently stands at 50%.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency Yes. The currency of Sweden is Swedish krona.

Other legal tender No.

Exchange rate structure
The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are free floating. The exchange rate of the krona is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. Foreign exchange interventions are allowed under extraordinary circumstances (for example, participation in concerted interventions with other CBs). In January 2016, the Executive Board adopted a mandate that facilitated rapid intervention on the foreign exchange market for monetary policy purposes. The mandate was extended several times thereafter, but expired on February 12, 2019, without ever having been used. The SR has not intervened in the foreign exchange market since June 14, 2001.

The krona exchange rate is determined in a CB-concerted teleconference managed by the ECB every banking day at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. This ECB reference exchange rate is used, among other purposes, for commercial contracts. The use of the exchange rate is not mandatory in commercial contracts.

The monetary policy framework is flexible inflation targeting.
Central Bank

Yes. As of 1999, the Sveriges Riksbank (SR) Act states that the objective of the Riksbank’s operations is to maintain price stability. The Riksbank has specified this as 2% annual change in the Consumer Price Index with fixed mortgage interest rates (CPIF).

Monetary Policy Committee

Central Bank Board

Yes. The Riksbank is led by an Executive Board consisting of six members. As of 2020, the Board holds five scheduled monetary policy meetings every year. Formerly, there were six regularly scheduled meetings per year. At these meetings, the Executive Board establishes its majority view of what is considered a well-balanced monetary policy. If there is no majority for a decision, the governor of the Riksbank has the casting vote. There is no separate monetary policy committee. The Executive Board of the Riksbank decides on the direction and magnitude of various tools used for monetary policy purposes.

The Riksbank, as well as other CBs with inflation targets, conduct a policy of flexible inflation targeting. This means that, at the same time as trying to attain the inflation target, they strive to achieve sustainable growth and high employment.

Other

Government and Central Bank

Inflation target

Yes.

Target number

Yes.

Point target

Yes. According to the Sveriges Riksbank Act, the objective of monetary policy is to maintain price stability. The Riksbank has interpreted this objective to mean a low, stable rate of inflation. More precisely, the Riksbank’s objective is to keep inflation (CPIF) around 2% a year. As of September 2017, the Riksbank uses a variation band around the inflation target (1%–3%), which is not an inflation target band, but rather a way to highlight the normal variation of inflation around the 2% target.

Target with tolerance band

Band/Range

Target measure

Yes.

CPI

Yes. The Riksbank’s inflation target variable is the consumer price index with a fixed mortgage interest rates (CPIF). The CPIF is calculated using the same data and in the same way as the CPI, excluding the effect of changes to mortgage rates. The weights in the consumption basket are the same in CPI and CPIF, however, the mortgage index is kept fixed in CPIF. The reason for changing the target variable from the CPI to the CPIF in 2017 was that the former has had drawbacks as guidance for monetary policy. One such drawback was that changes to the repo rate affect household mortgage rates, which then has an effect on the CPI, as households’ living costs also change.

Core inflation

Target horizon

Yes. There is no predefined time horizon for when the target of 2% CPIF-inflation is to be achieved. However, The Riksbank’s general ambition has been to adjust monetary policy so that inflation is expected to be fairly close to the target in two years’ time.

Operating target (policy rate)
Policy rate
Yes.
The SR uses the repo rate as its key signaling rate. With this rate, the SR indicates what the overnight rate will be one week ahead. If there is a liquidity deficit in the banking system, the SR supplies funds at this interest rate by buying securities through weekly repos or lending against eligible collateral. In the event of a liquidity surplus, the SR issues Riksbank Certificates to withdraw funds remunerated at the repo rate. The banking system as a whole has a large liquidity surplus at present.

Target corridor band
Yes.
The Riksbank has modified its operational framework for the implementation of monetary policy to make it simpler and more flexible. The changes imply that the Riksbank has introduced a narrow symmetrical interest rate corridor of 0.10 percentage points around the Riksbank’s repo rate. To steer the overnight rate, so that it lies close to the Riksbank’s policy rate, the Riksbank offers its monetary policy counterparties to borrow unlimited amounts of SEK against eligible collateral at an interest rate 0.10 percentage points above the Riksbank’s repo rate and to deposit unlimited amounts of SEK at an interest rate 0.10 percentage points below the Riksbank’s repo rate. As of October 9, 2019, the Riksbank ceased to conduct daily fine-tuning transactions and the deposit rate was increased from 0.75 to 0.10 percentage points below the Riksbank's repo rate while the lending rate remained at 0.75 percentage points above the repo rate. As of July 2, 2020, the interest rate on the Riksbank’s lending facility was lowered to 0.10 from 0.75 percentage points above the repo rate. This change was initially to take place within two years of the change to the deposit rate but was brought forward because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

In addition to the standing facilities, the Riksbank also uses market operations with its monetary policy counterparties to steer the overnight rate. In recent years, the Riksbank has chosen to implement its expansionary monetary policy partly by purchasing securities. As a consequence, the banking system has a large liquidity surplus toward the Riksbank. In order to drain liquidity from the banking system, the Riksbank issues Riksbank certificates with one-week maturity once a week, normally on Tuesdays, at an interest rate equal to the repo rate. If the banking system were to have a liquidity deficit instead, the Riksbank could provide liquidity through monetary policy repos to the repo rate or lend against eligible collateral at the repo rate. Also in the wake of the COVID-19 related pandemic, the Riksbank has ensured that more liquidity remain in the overnight market by limiting the issuance of Riksbank Certificates.

The implementation of the Solvency II Directive has resulted in that Swedish insurance companies, as a main rule, are no longer bound by explicit restrictions on the currency and location of the assets covering technical provisions. The localization of the assets of Swedish insurance companies must be made in a manner which ensures their availability. Moreover, the assets must be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance/reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. Moreover, the assets must be invested in a manner which seeks to avoid excessive reliance on a certain asset, issuer or group of companies, geographical area, and risk accumulation in the portfolio in its entirety. For the part of the businesses of Swedish insurance companies which constitute occupational pension businesses, and Swedish pension funds, there are certain restrictions on the location of the assets covering technical provisions. As a rule, these assets must be located within the EEA or, if the risk is outside the EEA, in Sweden. These assets may be in other jurisdictions if the preferential claim of the policyholders of these assets is not adversely affected. The geographical restrictions do not apply to conditional bonuses or unit-linked insurance for which the policyholder holds the risk. Assets used to cover debt must be invested in a manner which limits the risk for currency exchange losses, but no explicit restrictions on the currency of the assets covering technical provisions apply. If another country within the EEA has provisions that impose restrictions on the location of assets within occupational pension businesses, Swedish insurance companies carrying out occupational pension business in such country must, at the request of such country, also apply such provisions.

Controls apply to the following types of investment: (1) Investments in airlines established in Sweden must be owned by more than 50% and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or nationals of EU countries, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory. (2) A vessel shall be considered to be Swedish and entitled to fly the Swedish flag if owned to the extent of more than one half by Swedish nationals or Swedish legal persons. A ship may fly the Swedish flag even if the holder is not a Swedish national or a Swedish legal person under the following conditions: (a) It is registered with the Swedish Register of Ships. (b) It is part of an economic activity set up in Sweden. (c) Operation of the ship is supervised and managed from Sweden, and the ship is more than 50% owned by a citizen of an EEA country or a legal person established in accordance with the legislation of that country whose registered office, headquarters, or principal place of business is within that area. (3) Natural persons who own periodicals printed in Sweden must reside in Sweden or be citizens of the EEA. Juridical persons who own such periodicals must be established in the EEA. Periodicals, radio programs, and technical recordings must have a responsible editor domiciled in Sweden. (4) Law firms doing business under the title “advokat” must be owned by members of the Swedish Bar Association unless the Bar grants a waiver. Only EEA and Swiss residents may be admitted as members of the Swedish Bar Association. (5) Less than 50% of the votes in a limited auditing company may be held by non-EEA residents. The Supervisory Board of Public Accountants may grant exemptions. (6) A depositary of a UCITS under EU Directive No. 85/611 must either have its registered office in the same EU country as that of the enterprise or be established in the EU country if its registered office is in another EU country.

The implementation of the Solvency II Directive has resulted in that Swedish insurance companies, as a main rule, are no longer bound by explicit restrictions on the currency and location of the assets covering technical provisions. The localization of the assets of Swedish insurance companies must be made in a manner which ensures their availability. Moreover, the assets must be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance/reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. Moreover, the assets must be invested in a manner which seeks to avoid excessive reliance on a certain asset, issuer or group of companies, geographical area, and risk accumulation in the portfolio in its entirety. If another country within the EEA has provisions that impose restrictions on the location of assets within occupational pension businesses, Swedish insurance companies carrying out occupational pension business in such country must, at the request of such country, also apply such provisions. For the part of the businesses of Swedish insurance companies which constitute occupational pension businesses, and Swedish pension funds, there are certain restrictions on the location of the assets covering technical provisions. As a rule, these assets must be located within the EEA or, if the risk is outside the EEA, in Sweden. These assets may be in other jurisdictions if the preferential claim of the policyholders of these assets is not adversely affected. The geographical restrictions do not apply to conditional bonuses or unit-linked insurance for which the policyholder holds the risk. Assets used to cover debt must be invested in a manner which limits the risk for currency exchange losses, but no explicit restrictions on the currency of the assets covering technical provisions apply.

Exchange Measures

No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2019.

Switzerland’s Federal Act on the Implementation of International Sanctions (Emargo Act, EmbA; CC 946.231) is the legal basis for coercive measures (asset freezes, transfer prohibitions) to implement sanctions by the UN, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), or Switzerland’s major trading partners, aiming to restore compliance with international public law, and in particular the respect for human rights. Such measures are adopted in the form of ordinances of the Federal Council (the Swiss government). In implementation of UNSC resolutions and/or in accordance with EU regulations, Switzerland maintains certain restrictions on current international payments and transfers with respect to Belarus, Burundi, the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Myanmar, Nicaragua (effective June 24, 2020), Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, Ukraine/Russia, Venezuela, Yemen, Zimbabwe, and individuals and entities associated with Osama bin Laden, Al-Qaeda, or the Taliban.

Other security restrictions

No.

Classification

No separate legal tender
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of the Swiss franc is determined by market forces in the foreign exchange market. However, the Swiss National Bank (SNB) reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market. All settlements are made at free-market rates. In 2019, the SNB intervened with modest amounts in the foreign exchange market to counter an undesired tightening of monetary conditions. These interventions occurred mainly at times of heightened uncertainty, when the Swiss franc was particularly sought after as a safe investment. As such, after trading in a volatile manner in early 2019, the trade-weighted Swiss franc appreciated since May against the backdrop of the escalating trade dispute between the US and China and rising global economic uncertainty. In the first half of 2020 the Swiss franc appreciated further amid the market turmoil related to the COVID-19 crisis and uncertainties regarding the cohesion of the Eurozone. From October 2018, the Swiss franc followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the euro, with one realignment in April 2019, and then increased its flexibility from September 2019. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) retroactively to crawl-like from floating, effective October 12, 2018, and (2) to floating from crawl-like, effective September 4, 2019. The de facto methodology for classification of exchange rate regimes is based on a backward-looking statistical approach that relies on past exchange rate movement and historical data. Therefore, this reclassification does not imply a corresponding policy commitment on the part of the country authorities nor does it imply statements or views on future or intended policies. The SNB publishes information regarding its foreign exchange transactions quarterly.

There is no official or reference exchange rate.
The monetary policy implementation is based on an explicit definition of price stability—an annual consumer price index (CPI) inflation rate of less than 2%—as a long-term anchor. Policy decisions are guided by an inflation forecast over a three-year horizon. For taking and communicating monetary policy decisions, the SNB uses the SNB policy rate. The SNB seeks to keep secured short-term Swiss franc money market rates, of which the Swiss Average Rate Overnight (SARON) is the most representative, close to the policy rate. A key communication device is an inflation forecast chart, which indicates the SNB’s policy bias.

In the framework of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) Uruguay Round, all quantitative restrictions and measures with equivalent effects concerning agricultural products have been converted to tariffs. To maintain the market access opportunities prevailing during 1986–1988, 28 tariff rate quotas were set for specific agricultural and livestock goods (fruits, vegetables, meats, wines, etc.). Inward direct investment Yes. Controls apply to the (1) establishment of companies for the distribution and exhibition of films; (2) acquisition of real estate, which is subject to authorization by the relevant cantonal authority if the acquirer does not use the property to operate a permanent establishment; (3) registration of a ship in Switzerland serving two points on the Rhine or of a vessel intended to offer commercial maritime transport services; (4) registration of an aircraft in Switzerland and investment in an airline under majority Swiss control, unless other provisions of international agreements to which Switzerland is a party apply; (5) investment in the sectors of hydroelectricity, oil and gas pipelines, and nuclear energy; and (6) investment in a broadcasting company, bringing foreign ownership above 49% of the company’s share capital.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment No.

Controls on real estate transactions Yes.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. According to the FINMA Circular No. 2016/5, real estate investments outside Switzerland are not permitted for the purposes of tied assets of an insurance company. For occupational pension funds, there is a limit of 10% of total assets for the investment in real estate located outside Switzerland derived as follows: There is a limit for the investment in real estate of 30% of total assets, and real estate located outside Switzerland is not permitted to exceed one-third of all investment in real estate. There is also a limit of 30% of total assets for the investment in foreign currency without hedge. All these limits are non-binding for occupational pension funds that demonstrate to have prudential portfolio management practices.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. Purchases by foreigners who are not permanent residents in Switzerland and by enterprises with headquarters abroad or under foreign control are subject to authorization. The reservation applies only to the acquisition of real estate, which is subject to authorization by the competent cantonal authority when the acquirer does not use the property to operate a permanent establishment. However, no authorization is required for the acquisition of premises for professional use and business activities and of principal residences for the purpose of personal housing needs by foreigners who are domiciled in Switzerland. For the acquisition of holiday residences and secondary residences for the purpose of personal housing needs, authorization is subject to quotas and is granted on verification of the purpose. Restrictions were imposed with respect to Nicaragua.

Exchange Arrangement

2020 ANNUAL REPORT ON EXCHANGE ARRANGEMENTS AND EXCHANGE RESTRICTIONS

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution
Crawl-like arrangement 01/01/2019  The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to crawl-like from floating, effective October 12, 2018. The change is reflected as of January 1, 2019, corresponding to the first day of the period covered in this year’s Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.

Floating 09/04/2019  From October 2018, the Swiss franc followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the euro, with one realignment in April 2019, and then increased its flexibility from September 2019. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) retroactively to crawl-like from floating, effective October 12, 2018, and (2) to floating from crawl-like, effective September 4, 2019.

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs 04/10/2020  As a contribution to the fight against coronavirus, the Federal Council decided to temporarily set customs duties on imports of certain medical goods at zero until October 9, 2020.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Controls on capital and money market instruments

On collective investment securities

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents 01/01/2020  The issuer of foreign collective investment securities distributed to non-qualified investors (previously, all foreign collective investment securities) has to mandate a representative and a paying agent in Switzerland.

01/01/2020  Client advisers of domestic or foreign distributors have to sign up to an adviser register if the distributor is not subject to prudential supervision.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2009 Article IV Consultation with Syria states that, as of February 12, 2010, Syria continued to maintain, under Article XIV, restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, including administrative allocation of foreign exchange. Syria also maintained exchange measures that are subject to IMF approval under Article VIII: (1) prohibition against purchases by private parties of foreign exchange from the banking system for some current international transactions; (2) an MCP resulting from divergences of more than 2% between the official exchange rate and officially recognized market exchange rates; (3) a non-interest-bearing advance import deposit requirement of 75%–100% for public sector imports; and (4) an exchange restriction arising from the net debt under inoperative bilateral payments arrangements with the Islamic Republic of Iran and Sri Lanka. (Country Report No. 10/86)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)
No.

Other security restrictions
No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes. The currency of Syria is the Syrian pound.

Other legal tender
No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary

Dual
Yes. The exchange rate system is dual because it consists of two rates: (1) the official rate of LS 11.20/11.25 per US dollar, which applies to interest arising from former bilateral payments agreements, pending agreements on their rescheduling and (2) the exchange rate for all other transactions (foreign exchange market exchange rate), which unifies the other exchange rates and is announced by the Central Bank of Syria (CBS) daily.

Multiple

Classification

http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands. Given the developments in the official rate, the emergence of the parallel market, and the intervention rate, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as other managed arrangement.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the SDR.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

Yes. Controls apply to gold coin and bullion transactions.

On domestic ownership and/or trade

Yes. Imports of gold are subject to import licensing; gold exports are allowed as long as an equal weight of gold is imported within three months (MOET Decision No. 2366-2006).

On external trade

Yes. Imports of gold are subject to import licensing; gold exports are allowed as long as an equal weight of gold is imported within three months (MOET Decision No. 2366-2006).

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

Yes. Residents traveling abroad may take with them up to LS 2,000 a trip unless they are traveling to Jordan or Lebanon. Travelers to Jordan and Lebanon who are not eligible for a foreign exchange allowance may take with them up to LS 7,500 a trip. Nonresidents leaving Syria may reconvert up to the equivalent of LS 25,000 to foreign exchange, provided the amount is less than the amount initially exchanged through authorized banks within two months of departure.

Domestic currency

Yes. Residents traveling abroad may purchase foreign currency from banks, exchange bureaus, and exchange companies on presentation of their passport, visa, and airline ticket and take with them foreign exchange up to the equivalent of US$3,000 a trip. Travelers to Jordan and Lebanon may buy US$1,000 at the border each time they cross. The foreign currency amount is recorded in the traveler’s passport to prevent circumvention. Nonresidents may take abroad any amount of foreign exchange declared when they entered the country; without a declaration, they may take out US$5,000.

Importers must have a “commercial record,” which may be acquired based on a domiciliation document.

Private importers may choose to import products not included on the negative list by opening LCs at authorized banks.

Importers must obtain written approval from the MOET to import certain items.

Some imports require licenses.

There is a general list of goods that may not be imported. The negative list for imports includes items prohibited for security, health, or religious reasons.

Imports from Syrian free zones are allowed for certain industrial goods and for goods imported directly from the country of origin. Imports of commodities originating in Israel are prohibited. There is a restricted list of products whose importation is a public sector monopoly.

An import surcharge of 1% is applied to all imports; government imports and imports of certain essential items are exempt. Imports for customs duty purposes are valued at the quarterly exchange rate published by the CBS and calculated based on the previous month’s average exchange rate between the pound and the US dollar. Import tariffs range up to 100%. All previous special levies on imports have been replaced with a unified import surcharge system with rates ranging from 6% to 35%.

Many basic commodities (for example, paper, salt, tobacco, wheat, certain agricultural machinery) are imported only by state trading agencies or, for their account, by certain private sector importers.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
n.a. Information is not publicly available.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Yes. Because of security considerations, the National Bank of Tajikistan (NBT) sent lending institutions Letter No. 27.03-274/3494 of October 9, 2015, which is of an advisory nature, recommending that all lending institutions exercise particular care when engaging in banking relations and performing transactions with the following banks, which have been included on the Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) Special Designated Nationals list: ZAO (Closed Joint-Stock Company) Kont; ZAO Kafolatbank; and a branch of Tijorat bank of the Islamic Republic of Iran.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)
Yes. Exchange restrictions have been imposed in accordance with UNSC resolutions. Certain measures have been taken to freeze financial assets or other property of individuals and organizations included in the list of persons involved in terrorism (consolidated (UNSC lists), international, and national lists).

Other security restrictions
Yes. Certain measures have been taken to freeze financial assets or other property of individuals and organizations included on the list of persons involved in terrorism (consolidated (UNSC lists), international, and national lists).

Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes. The currency of Tajikistan is the Tajik somoni.

Other legal tender
No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary

Dual

Multiple
Yes. Effective December 27, 2019, the exchange rate structure is reclassified from unitary to multiple because of the potential deviation of more than 2%:
(1) between (a) the prevailing market exchange rate and (b) the official exchange rate, which is required to be used for converting domestic currency (somoni) to foreign currency, and vice-versa, between accounts of individuals and legal entities opened within the same commercial bank;
(2) between (a) the somoni-Russian ruble exchange rate (calculated as a cross-rate using the official exchange rate of the USD to somoni), which is required to be used for mandatory ruble surrender transactions and (with a maximum variation of 0.5%) for the purchase/sale in the interbank market of rubles derived from the mandatory surrender and (b) the market exchange rate banks may use for purchase/sale of Russian rubles derived from other sources.

Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Conventional peg
- Stabilized arrangement: Yes.
- Crawling peg
- Crawl-like arrangement
- Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands
- Other managed arrangement
- Floating
- Free floating

Official exchange rate

- Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating, with no predetermined path, but in practice the exchange rate is stabilized. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized.

Information about the overall volume of foreign currency purchased and sold in the domestic exchange market (in the dollar equivalent) is published on a monthly basis in the NBT’s statistical bulletin.

The official exchange rate of the US dollar is calculated on the basis of the weighted average exchange rates in transactions involving the purchase and sale of the US dollar for somoni in the interbank and intrabank foreign exchange markets as of 4:00 p.m. of the current day. The NBT has the right to adjust the calculated base weighted average exchange rate within a range of ±1.5%, but has not done so in 2018.

A decision to make an adjustment is made by the NBT working group on exchange rate policy.

The official exchange rates of other foreign currencies are calculated according to the rules for determining cross-rates using the ratio of the official exchange rate of the US dollar against the somoni and the exchange rates of the US dollar against other foreign currencies as established by their CBs or in international foreign exchange markets on that day.

The official exchange rate is used for accounting purposes and for recording foreign exchange funds in somoni on the balance sheets of economic entities, for recalculation into somoni of mandatory state payments expressed in foreign currency, for calculating main macroeconomic indicators, and for analyzing the results of foreign economic activity.

In accordance with the NBT Executive Board Resolution No. 127 of September 29, 2017, the exchange rate in somoni for the purchase and sale of foreign currency for clients of the NBT is set by the NBT by agreement between the parties, taking into consideration the following conditions:

- the exchange rate in somoni for the purchase of foreign currency must be no higher than the official exchange rate in effect on the day the transaction is performed;

– the sale of foreign currency for somoni to the MOF must be performed at the official exchange rate in effect on the day the transaction is performed;

– the sale of foreign currency for somoni to other public enterprises and organizations serviced by the Main Central Treasury Administration of the MOF must be performed at the official exchange rate in effect on the day the transaction is performed, plus a margin of 1.5%.

In the event that the difference between the official and market exchange rates of the US dollar is greater than 2%, buying and selling transactions with the MOF and other institutions supported by the budget should be performed at the weighted average selling rate in the interbank and intrabank markets in effect at the time the transaction is performed.

When setting the purchase and sale exchange rate for foreign currency, lending institutions proceed from market principles and determine the rate independently based on the foreign currency supply and demand in the domestic market.

Target measure
The Monetary and Exchange Policy Strategy for 2016–2020 states that the mechanism of monetary policy of the NBT is officially implemented under the reserve money targeting regime and its regulation is carried out to ensure stable money supply growth in the economy, maintaining a stable level of demand and inflation. The NBT is carrying out a number of reforms to make a gradual transition from a reserve money targeting regime to a new framework for the implementation of monetary policy – inflation targeting. Accordingly, at this time the NBT performs monitoring of reserve money as an operational objective of the monetary targeting regime, as well as the short-term interest rate in the interbank credit market.

The main focus of monetary and exchange policy is on the development of institutional reforms, instruments and on increasing their impact on short-term interest rates in the money market, the level of aggregate demand and inflation, and its aim is to create a favorable climate and reliable foundation for making a gradual transition from a reserve money framework (quantity) to a new inflation-targeting framework (quality) for the implementation of monetary policy.

Monetary policy targets are specified in the document “Projection of the main directions of the Monetary Policy of the Republic of Tajikistan for 2020 and the Medium Term. This document is reviewed by the NBT Executive Board and approved by the Republic of Tajikistan Parliament.

To identify the maintenance of price stability as a top priority, a quantitative medium-term inflation target of 6.0% (+/−2 percentage points) at end 2020 is published on the NBT’s official website. The inflation target in Tajikistan is defined in the form of the inflation rate at the end of the year.

During the transition from reserve money to short-term interbank operations, a corridor for fluctuations in interbank operations was set.
at the refinancing rate +/−2 percentage points. The upper limit of the corridor is overnight credits (refinancing rate +2 percentage points), and the lower limit of the corridor is overnight deposits (refinancing rate −2 percentage points).

The target corridor band for reserve money is set at +/−5% of the established target.

With the aim of ensuring transparency and raising the financial literacy of the population, the NBT developed the NBT Monetary Policy Communication Strategy for 2019–2021, according to which the NBT regularly publishes all necessary information on the NBT website.

The NBT is accountable to the Lower Chamber of the Supreme Assembly (Parliament) of the Republic of Tajikistan. The NBT submits to the Parliament the NBT’s annual report and auditor’s report as well as the Monetary Policy Projections of the Republic of Tajikistan and a report on their implementation.

Exchange tax
No.

Exchange subsidy
No.

Foreign exchange market
Yes. Participants in this market include the NBT and all lending institutions (banks and microfinance organizations) licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange.
ADs are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients, except for the RUB interbank auctions where the variation is set at 0.5% from the rate at which banks purchased RUB from individuals. This limit was eliminated after the launch of the National Processing Center (NPC).

Spot exchange market
Yes. Participants in this market include the NBT and all lending institutions (banks and microfinance organizations) licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange.

Customers of lending institutions (individuals and legal entities) may perform currency exchange operations in both cash and non-cash form at cash offices of banking institutions (head office, branch and bank service centers). Microfinance organizations licensed to perform banking operations in foreign currency have the right to perform foreign exchange operations in both cash and noncash form.

The foreign exchange market consists of the OTC interbank market and the market for intrabank client transactions, including conducting exchange transactions with cash foreign currency.

Currency exchange transactions are performed exclusively through cash offices of banking institutions (head office, branch, and bank service centers).

As of August 1, 2020, there were 25 lending institutions (13 banks and 12 microfinance institutions) participating in the interbank market.

As of August 1, 2020, there were a total of 1,316 cash offices entitled to perform currency exchange transactions in lending institutions, of which 918 belonged to authorized banks and 398 to authorized microcredit organizations.

Operated by the central bank
Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility
No.

Allocation
No.

Auction
Yes. The interbank market was created to provide to all market participants access to liquidity, given that the only principal players in providing foreign funds in Tajikistan are a couple of large market... participants. This mechanism promotes the intensive strengthening of relationships among financial players and provides access to foreign currency for those lending institutions that account for an insignificant share of operations with money transfers compared to those lending institutions that have a monopoly in that market.

Auctions are held on the basis of regulations. All auctions are conducted without any limits. The amount of funds put up for auction is not announced in advance, but on receiving an automatic mailing concerning the start of an auction, the participants have time to learn in the system the amount before the auction begins. The automatic message is sent to the e-mail addresses of each registered participant in the auction system.

In the history of the auctions, there has never been a single case of default by a market participant, since the bid amounts always match the requirements and capabilities of the participants. Accordingly, no measures involving the imposition of monetary sanctions have been provided for.

The auction system as an effective tool on the interbank market does not imply any limitations, including criteria for the participants themselves and acquired funds. Market participants themselves dispose of acquired funds.

In accordance with the NBT Directive No. 07.03-99/366 of February 2, 2016, the requirement on the conversion of Russian rubles transferred by individuals without opening a bank account, and their disbursement in somoni, was introduced. Fifty percent of these funds acquired by banks for their own position in Russian rubles by 4 p.m. on any day must be offered for sale in the interbank market (rubles purchase and sale auctions) at a variation of 0.5% of the rate at which they purchased them.

Effective December 3, 2019, the National Processing Center, which provides for money transfers without opening a bank account with the NBT, began operation. In connection with this, all cross-border transfers without the opening of an account within the Republic of Tajikistan are performed through the NPC, and on the basis of this 50% of the amount of the transfers is automatically transferred to a commercial bank, and the rest is offered for sale in the interbank foreign exchange market at the exchange rate for money transfers at the time the auction is held.

Auction participants are the NBT and all lending institutions (banks and microfinance organizations) licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange. The NBT acts as a temporary intermediary for these transactions, and a volume-based auction is conducted to distribute the rubles to banks. The portion of funds in Russian rubles not purchased by other auction participants remains at the disposal at the NBT.

Interbank market

Yes.

Participants in this market include the NBT and all lending institutions (banks and microfinance organizations) licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread and commission of market participants, except for the RUB interbank auctions where the variation is set at 0.5% from the rate at which banks purchased RUB from individuals. This limit was eliminated after the launch of the NPC.

The NBT is not a market maker and does not quote buying and selling prices to other market participants.

As of August 1, 2020, there were 25 lending institutions (13 banks and 12 microfinance institutions) participating in the interbank market.

Legal entities and individuals may acquire foreign currency in the foreign exchange market without restriction and without the presentation of documents confirming the purpose and intended use of this foreign currency.

To make a payment abroad, a contract, agreement, or shipping documents must be presented.

The value of all imported goods must be equal to the amount paid for them. If goods are not delivered, the importer must return the funds transferred earlier within the time period stipulated in the contract.

According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control, authorized banks performing residents’ foreign exchange operations must require specification by residents of the deadline for the transfer of foreign currency to their bank accounts according to the foreign exchange contract (transaction) for exports or imports of goods (work and services). If the deadline changes or circumstances affect the transfer of foreign currency to the account within the established deadline, residents must notify the authorized bank and provide supporting documentation.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

Foreign exchange proceeds from exports must be credited to residents’ accounts with lending institutions or to their accounts abroad. Foreign exchange export proceeds must be received in full and in a timely fashion, within the period stipulated in the contract.

According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control, residents are required, within the time specified in the contract, to take the necessary steps for receipt to their accounts in authorized banks domestic or foreign currency deposited by nonresidents for the purpose of payment for the exportation of goods (work and services).

Residents may, with respect to mutual settlements for exports and imports of goods (work and services), choose not to deposit domestic or foreign currency in their accounts in authorized banks in the following cases: (1) transfer of domestic or foreign currency to their account with an authorized bank or account of a third person on fulfillment of obligations according to foreign exchange contracts; (2) transfer of domestic or foreign currency to their account with a foreign bank to finance their subsidiaries abroad; (3) termination of a nonresident’s obligations in the offsetting of mutual claims; (4) replacement of a nonresident’s original obligations by new obligations or fulfillment by another arrangement between the same persons; (5) assignment to a third party of the right of claim on obligations; and (6) receipt of insurance payments when an insured event occurs under a risk insurance contract in connection with a failure by the nonresident to fulfill its obligations.

Authorized banks engaged in residents’ foreign exchange operations must require residents to specify or clarify the time of deposit of foreign currency in their bank accounts, according to the exchange agreement (the transaction) for the exportation of goods (work and services).

In case of a change in the terms for fulfillment of obligations, or a situation affecting the deposit of foreign currency to the account within a specified time limit, residents are obliged to notify the authorized bank and to provide supporting evidence and substantiated facts.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Yes. Instruction No. 223 on the Procedure for the Notification of a Foreign Exchange Operation Involving the Movement of Capital (approved by NBT Executive Board Resolution No. 64 of June 2, 2017) aligned all legal standards and procedures related to the performance of foreign exchange operations involving the movement of capital under the notification regime. Pursuant to NBT Instruction No. 223, residents of Tajikistan are required to provide all supporting documents, reports, data, and other necessary information about foreign exchange operations involving the movement of capital to the authorized bank servicing the operation before payments and mutual settlements related to the given operation. In addition, notification must be sent to the NBT no later than five business days from the date the operation begins; in the event that a bank account is opened at a foreign bank, they must provide notification no later than 10 business days from the date the account is opened. The following foreign exchange operations by residents are subject to the notification requirement: (1) direct investments by residents in foreign countries; (2) the purchase of securities and shares of investment funds; (3) participation in the creation of authorized capital and other operations with derivative securities; (4) receipt or extension of commercial credits with maturity of more than one year; (5) the opening of bank accounts by residents at foreign banks; and (6) other operations recognized as foreign exchange operations involving the movement of capital according to international standards.

Pursuant to Instruction No. 176, the limit on investments for lending institutions is set at 10% of regulatory capital.

In accordance with Instruction No. 239, a lending institution may not make investments in securities and stakes of foreign legal entities (nonresidents) without prior approval by the NBT.

The exchange rate structure is re-classified from unitary to multiple because of the potential deviation of more than 2%:

1. between (a) the prevailing market exchange rate and (b) the official exchange rate, which is required to be used for converting domestic currency (somoni) to foreign currency, and vice-versa, between accounts of individuals and legal entities opened within the same commercial bank;

2. between (a) the somoni-Russian ruble exchange rate (calculated as a cross-rate using the official exchange rate of the USD to somoni), which is required to be used for mandatory ruble surrender transactions and (with a maximum variation of 0.5%) for the purchase/sale in the interbank market of rubles derived from the mandatory surrender and (b) the market exchange rate banks may use for purchase/sale of Russian rubles derived from other sources.

The National Processing Center (NPC), which provides for money transfers without opening a bank account with the National Bank of Tajikistan, began operation. In connection with this, all cross-border transfers without the opening of an account within the Republic of Tajikistan are performed through the NPC, and on the basis of this 50% of the amount of the transfers is automatically transferred to a commercial bank, and the rest is offered for sale in the interbank foreign exchange market at the exchange rate for money transfers at the time the auction is held. (Previously, the requirement on the conversion of Russian rubles transferred by individuals without opening a bank account, and their disbursement in somoni, was introduced. Fifty percent of these funds acquired by banks for their own position in Russian rubles by 4 p.m. on any day had to be offered for sale in the interbank market (rubles purchase and sale auctions) at a variation of 0.5% of the rate at which they purchased them.

Stabilized arrangement

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. Exchange rate arrangement is floating. The BOT participates in the interbank foreign exchange market (IFEM) for liquidity management purposes and intervenes occasionally to smooth out short-term volatility in the exchange rate. In carrying out these operations, the Bank remains mindful of the need to maintain adequate level of international reserves within the statutory requirement. Trading in the IFEM is conducted using the Reuters trading platform in a two-way quote system. The BOT is not required to indicate two-way quotes when it participates in the interbank market. From February 2019, the shilling stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to stabilized from crawl-like, effective February 27, 2019. The BOT
The official exchange rate is market determined and is weighted by the volume traded in the respective foreign currency. The official rate is published on the BOT website and is used for foreign exchange transactions by the BOT. Commercial banks use the official exchange rate as a reference rate in determining their trading rates.

The monetary policy aims to control monthly average reserve money as the operational target, which affects the extended broad money (intermediate target), to contain inflation, which is the ultimate target of monetary policy. The medium-term target for headline inflation is 5% with an upper bound of 8% agreed at EAC level. The CPI measures the change over time in the cost of a fixed basket of goods and services that are purchased by a representative sample of households. The basket includes a list of 278 goods and services of which 97 are food and nonalcoholic beverages and 181 are nonfood items.
Commercial banks use the official exchange rate as a reference rate, and the commissions charged by commercial banks are mainly based on the transaction costs, among other considerations. The BOT licenses banks and foreign exchange bureaus to carry out foreign exchange transactions. As of June 30, 2020, there were 37 fully fledged commercial banks (currently, the active IFEM members), 9 non-bank financial institutions, and 3 foreign exchange bureaus operating in Tanzania. There is no parallel market. Foreign exchange bureaus do not do business directly with the BOT. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to operate accounts abroad. The bureaus are required to maintain local and foreign currency accounts with a commercial bank or a nonbank financial institution for their day-to-day transactions. The bureaus transact only on spot basis. The BOT sells and purchases foreign exchange at the bank’s quotes when participating in the interbank market.
The exchange rate is market determined. Commercial banks participating in the IFEM use the Reuters trading platform. Currently, 37 banks participate in the IFEM. The spread for the bid-ask is ± T Sh 10. Quotes are good for US$250,000. The BOT sells and purchases foreign exchange from banks at their quoted rates. All licensed banks by the BOT qualify to be members in the IFEM. As of June 30, 2020, the banking sector was composed of the BOT as the regulatory authority and 54 banking institutions consisting of 37 commercial banks, 6 community banks, 3 financial institutions, 2 development finance institutions, 5 deposit taking microfinance banks, and 1 mortgage refinancing company.

Few banks perform forward and swap contracts with other banks and their customers, especially those engaged in export and import transactions. The BOT does not conduct forward contracts with banks but may engage in swap transactions with them. Some banks trade foreign exchange derivatives products on a small scale.

The BOT does not offer forward cover against exchange rate risk arising from forward operations of banks.

Floating

The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as... floating. Under the inflation-targeting monetary policy framework, the value of the baht is allowed to be determined by market forces, reflecting demand and supply in the foreign exchange market. In the case that the resulting movements in THB are deemed excessive and unjustified by fundamentals, foreign exchange intervention can be undertaken to avoid disorderly market conditions. The data on interventions is not publicly available. However, the weekly and monthly data on gross international reserve is published on the CB’s website, where international reserve assets comprise monetary gold, SDRs, reserve position in the fund, and foreign currency assets. During 2019, the real effective exchange rate (REER) appreciated, resulting in 5.28% real effective appreciation and 3.93% nominal appreciation versus the US dollar. The large current account surplus was the main drivers, only partially offset by net outflows in FDI and other investment.

In 2020, the baht exhibited volatile movement. At the beginning of the year, the baht depreciated against trading partner currencies and US dollar because of concerning over the outlook of Thai economy caused by the COVID-19 outbreak and the reduced current account surplus. Later, the baht appreciated because of the weakening of the US dollar pressured by several factors including a growing number of COVID-19 cases in the US, a more accommodative monetary policy by the Federal Reserve System and the unprecedented US economic contraction in the second quarter. In addition, there was an idiosyncratic factor in Thailand such as gold flows, which became increasingly active as gold price rose amid heightened uncertainties in the global financial markets.

Free floating

Official exchange rate

Yes. The baht–US dollar reference exchange rate is announced daily, based on the weighted average exchange rate of the previous day. The baht–US dollar reference exchange rate is widely used as a benchmark for marking to market the US dollars held by funds and corporations and for calculating profit and loss as a result of foreign exchange transactions for accounting purposes. The Bank of Thailand (BOT) also uses the baht–US dollar reference exchange rate to mark to market its foreign exchange reserves.

Monetary policy framework

- Exchange rate anchor
  - U.S. dollar
  - Euro
  - Composite
  - Other

- Monetary aggregate target

- Inflation-targeting framework

Yes. The BOT adopted flexible inflation targeting as its monetary policy framework since May 2000. The framework allows the BOT to pursue its primary mandate of price stability while also accounting for economic growth and financial stability.

- Target setting body

Yes.

Government
Central Bank
By December each year, the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) makes a consensus decision regarding the monetary policy target for the following year and then proposes to the minister of finance. The MPC, with a cooperative agreement with the minister of finance, then determines targets of monetary policy for the following year which is regarded as the guideline for the State and the BOT for the purpose of implementing any measures to maintain price stability. The minister of finance proposes the agreed targets of monetary policy to the Cabinet for approval. On approval, the target must be published in the Government Gazette. In the case where it is appropriate or necessary, the MPC may edit, change, or add targets of monetary policy, provided those stated in the above paragraph are complied with.

Inflation target

- Yes.

Target number

- Yes.

Point target

- Yes.

Target with tolerance band

Band/Range

- Yes. Effective January 1, 2020, the headline inflation is targeted to reside within the range of 1.0%–3.0% for the medium-term horizon and for the year 2020. Previously, since 2015, an annual average headline inflation target of 2.5% with a tolerance band of ±1.5% was in place.

Target measure

- Yes. The headline inflation target is reviewed annually, although the target is set for the medium term.

CPI

- Yes. Headline inflation is defined as the year-on-year (y-o-y) change in consumer price index (CPI) (all commodities) published monthly by the Ministry of Commerce.

Core inflation

- Yes. The target is intended for the medium-term horizon. However, the law requires the target to be reviewed annually.

Operating target (policy rate)

- Yes. The one-day bilateral repurchase transaction rate is employed as the policy rate to signal the monetary policy stance. At the end of June 2020, the interest rate target stands at 0.50%.

Target corridor band

- n.a.

Other

- n.a.

Accountability

- Yes. Effective January 1, 2020, the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) may send an open letter to the minister of finance, should average headline inflation in the past 12 months or a forecast of average headline inflation over 12 months ahead breach the target range. The open letter elaborates on underlying reasons and remedial actions, both taken and planned by the MPC, as well as the period within which headline inflation is expected to return to target. The MPC will also write an additional open letter every 6 months if average headline inflation based on the above criteria remains outside the target range. Previously, the MPC would issue an open letter whenever headline inflation averaged over the calendar year remained outside the inflation target.

The Bank of Thailand has been making collaborative efforts with other central banks in ASEAN countries to establish cross-border linkages to facilitate Quick response (QR) code payment and innovative remittance. The initiatives that are in operation are as follows:

–Lao PDR: Effective April 4, 2019, Thai and Lao banks have launched cross-border QR payments and remittance between the two countries.

–Cambodia: Effective February 18, 2020, Thai and Cambodian banks have launched cross-border QR payments between the two countries. Cambodian tourists visiting Thailand can use their mobile banking applications to scan the Thai QR Codes of merchants in Thailand. Thai tourists will be able to use their Thai mobile banking applications to scan Cambodian QR Codes to pay for goods and services at merchants in Cambodia starting from the third quarter of 2020.

–Singapore: –A Thai payment service provider has launched a mobile wallet application that allows Thai e-wallet customers to make QR payments overseas through a Singaporean cross-border mobile payment provider (Q4 2018). Effective April 4, 2019, Thai and Singaporean banks have launched the remittance service via sponsoring bank model between Thailand and Singapore.

--Japan: Thai and Japanese commercial banks have launched cross-border QR payments between the two countries in 2018.

Thailand and Hong Kong Monetary Authority (HKMA) developed the cross-border Payment versus Payment linkage between BAHTNET and US Dollar Clearing House Automated Transfer System (USD CHATS) to facilitate THB/USD settlement to reduce foreign exchange settlement risk arising from different time zone. USD CHATS was in operation since July 17, 2014. Currently, BOT has included OTC foreign exchange swap transaction into Payment versus Payment system since January 2017.

Thailand and Malaysia launched the local currency settlement framework in 14 March 2016 and its scope was expanded in January 2, 2018. Likewise, Thailand and Indonesia launched similar framework in January 2, 2018. These frameworks aim to promote the settlement of trade and direct investment in local currencies. Banks which fulfill key qualifications to facilitate bilateral trade are appointed to facilitate the frameworks.

Issuance of equity and debt securities requires Securities Exchange Commission (SEC) approval as follows: (1) by a Thai-incorporated company for an offering in Thailand and abroad; and (2) by a foreign-incorporated company for an offering in Thailand.

Institutional investors—that is, BOT, commercial banks, financial institutions established under a specific law, securities companies, derivatives intermediary, life insurance companies, non-life insurance companies, mutual funds, private funds, provident funds, government pension fund, social security fund, and the following investors, that is, listed companies on the Stock Exchange of Thailand (SET), juristic persons incorporated under the law of Thailand with the assets of at least B 5 billion.

| On capital market securities | Yes. |
| Shares or other securities of a participating nature | Yes. |
| Purchase locally by nonresidents | Yes. |

Nonresidents may purchase shares; however, foreign equity participation may be limited if a company engaged in business is subject to the provisions of the Foreign Business Act or other laws. Investment exceeding the limit may be made by holding nonvoting depository receipts. Financial institutions’ foreign equity participation is limited to 25% of total shares in locally incorporated banks, finance companies, and credit finance companies. The combined holdings of individuals and their family members may not exceed 5% of a bank’s total shares and 10% of those of finance companies and land banks. Foreign investors may hold more than 49% of total shares in local financial institutions for up to 10 years, after which the number of shares is grandfathered and nonresidents may not purchase new shares until their percentage falls to 49%. Foreign equity participation is limited to 49% in other Thai corporations. Larger holdings are subject to BOT approval. For securities companies and derivatives business operators, there is no limit of foreign equity participation. Person who hold share of any securities companies or derivatives business operator exceeding 10% shall be major shareholder who must obtain the approval by SEC office to ensure that such shareholders are appropriately fit and proper and must not have prescribed disqualified characters.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents
Yes.
Foreign-incorporated companies must obtain approval from the SEC to make an equity offering in Thailand.

Purchase abroad by residents
Yes.
Institutional investors are allowed to invest in foreign securities without limit. Such investment must not exceed the limit set by the supervisory authority, directors or managements of each institutional investor.

Thai juristic persons or Thai natural persons having deposits or investments in securities or derivatives of at least B 50 million Baht but less than B 100 million and at least B 100 million (Qualified Investor) can invest in foreign securities without the need to go through investment intermediaries in an aggregate amount not exceeding US$1 million and US$5 million a person a year, respectively.

Effective November 8, 2019, retail investors, regardless of their financial assets sizes, are allowed to invest in foreign securities without the need to go through local intermediaries for up to US$200,000 a investor a calendar year, previously any individuals and corporate investors may invest in foreign securities through private funds or securities companies or commercial banks holding relevant securities business licenses.

Sale or issue abroad by residents
Yes.
Thai-incorporated companies must obtain approval from the SEC to make a public offering of equity in other countries.

Bonds or other debt securities
Yes.
Nonresidents may invest in baht-denominated debt securities without a minimum holding period requirement. However, investment in baht-denominated bonds issued by domestic financial institutions is subject to the overall outstanding baht borrowing limit of B 10 million a financial institution a nonresident group (as a consolidated entity).

Effective July 12, 2019, the reporting requirements for non-resident holdings of Thai debt securities (issued in Thailand) were enhanced to strengthen the BOT’s surveillance of non-residents’ investment behavior. The information in the report of Nonresident Ultimate Beneficiary Owner (NR UBO) Debt Security Holdings consists of end beneficiary: (1) Institutional Sector (2) country (3) Legal Id (4) Legal Unique Id Type and (5) Full Legal Name. Item number (3)-(5) was previously optional and now become mandatory. This data displays outstanding that were settled both in terms of volume and amount in original currency at par/face value. Custodians in Thailand that safe keep Thai debt securities owned by nonresident customers are required to report the data on monthly basis.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents
Yes.
For baht-denominated debt securities issuances, these transactions may be made with the approval of the MOF, BOT, and SEC. The MOF allows foreign entities to issue baht-denominated bonds domestically with a minimum maturity of three years. Foreign-currency-denominated debt securities of foreign issuers require SEC approval.

Purchase abroad by residents
Yes.
Institutional investors are allowed to invest in foreign securities without limit. Such investment must not exceed the limit set by the supervisory authority, directors or managements of each institutional investor.

Thai juristic persons or Thai natural persons having deposits or investments in securities or derivatives of at least B 50 million Baht but less than B 100 million and at least B 100 million (Qualified Investor) can invest in foreign securities without the need to go through investment intermediaries in an aggregate amount not exceeding US$ 1 million and US$ 5 million a person a year, respectively.

Effective November 8, 2019, retail investors, regardless of their financial assets sizes, are allowed to invest in foreign securities without the need to go through local intermediaries for up to US$ 200,000 a investor a calendar year, previously any individuals and corporate investors may invest in foreign securities through private funds or securities companies or commercial banks holding relevant securities business licenses.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. Issuers of newly issued bonds must submit an application for approval to the SEC and demonstrate that an offer for sale/resale of such bonds will be made to investors in foreign countries. In addition, the denomination and settlement of these bonds must be made in foreign currencies. Only finance companies are allowed to issue negotiable certificates of deposit (NCDs) in foreign currency with more than a one-year maturity for sale to the public abroad or for sale to institutions that are authorized to deal in foreign exchange.

On money market instruments Yes. Nonresidents may freely invest in baht-denominated money market instruments without a minimum holding period requirement. However, investment in such instruments issued by domestic financial institutions is subject to the overall outstanding baht borrowing limit of B 10 million for a domestic financial institution from a nonresident group (as a consolidated entity). Domestic financial institutions may not issue or sell bills of exchange denominated in baht to nonresidents.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. These transactions may be made with MOF, BOT, and SEC approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. Institutional investors are allowed to invest in foreign securities without limit. Such investment must not exceed the limit set by the supervisory authority, directors or managements of each institutional investor.

Thiatric persons or Thai natural persons having deposits or investments in securities or derivatives of at least B 50 million Baht but less than B 100 million and at least B 100 million (Qualified Investor) can invest in foreign securities without the need to go through investment intermediaries in an aggregate amount not exceeding US$ 1 million and US$ 5 million a person a year, respectively.

Effective November 8, 2019, retail investors, regardless of their financial assets sizes, are allowed to invest in foreign securities without the need to go through local intermediaries for up to US$ 200,000 a investor a calendar year, previously any individuals and corporate investors may invest in foreign securities through private funds or securities companies or commercial banks holding relevant securities business licenses.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. Only finance companies are allowed to issue NCDs in foreign currency with more than a one-year maturity for sale to the public abroad or for sale to institutions that are authorized to deal in foreign exchange.

On collective investment securities Yes. ASEAN Collective Investment Schemes (ASEAN CIS) and Asia Region Funds Passport (ARFP) may be offered to investors in the signatory countries. The fund offerings of ASEAN CISs and ARFP (only plain vanilla products) in Thailand must comply with SEC regulations.

Purchase locally by nonresidents No. Nonresidents may invest freely in CISs.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. CISs issued by nonresidents may be offered locally only as units of exchange-traded funds, ASEAN CISs, or ARFP CISs. Such fund offerings must comply with SEC regulations.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Institutional investors are allowed to invest in foreign securities without limit. Such investment must not exceed the limit set by the supervisory authority, directors or managements of each institutional investor.

Thai juristic persons or Thai natural persons having deposits or investments in securities or derivatives of at least B 50 million Baht but less than B 100 million and at least B 100 million (Qualified Investor) can invest in foreign securities without the need to go through investment intermediaries in an aggregate amount not exceeding US$ 1 million and US$ 5 million a person a year, respectively.

Effective November 8, 2019, retail investors, regardless of their financial assets sizes, are allowed to invest in foreign securities without the need to go through local intermediaries for up to US$ 200,000 a investor a calendar year, previously any individuals and corporate investors may invest in foreign securities through private funds or securities companies or commercial banks holding relevant securities business licenses.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. SEC regulations do not restrict cross-border offering of CISs issued by residents. Entering into a host economy will however be subjected to the authorization of the host regulator.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments

Yes. Nonresidents may hedge foreign exchange risk from domestic trade or investment activities using derivatives instruments. Without domestic trade or investment, the overall outstanding limit on baht liquidity provided by a domestic financial institution to a nonresident group (as a consolidated entity) is B 600 million, while the limit on baht borrowing by a domestic financial institution from a nonresident group is B 10 million. Nonresidents may deal in derivatives instruments traded on the Thailand Futures Exchange, except US dollar–baht futures. Also, pursuant to list 3 of the Foreign Business Act B.E. 2542 (1999), nonresidents who trades agricultural derivatives in TFEX are prohibited from making onshore physical delivery.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Only foreign-incorporated companies which have been granted an approval from the SEC for a public offering of newly issued shares can make a public offering of warrants. In this case such issuer must be approved by the SEC on full compliance the regulation on dual listing of securities.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Remittance of funds by residents for settlement of derivatives transactions requires BOT approval. However, institutional investors and qualified investors may engage with foreign counterparties in derivatives linked to foreign variables not involving foreign exchange and baht to hedge risk exposure and enhance return on investment. Effective November 8, 2019, Thai investors may engage in such transactions up to the total limit on portfolio investment abroad of US$200,000.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. Remittance of funds for settlement of derivatives transactions requires BOT approval.

Conventional peg
Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Togo participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAEMU member countries and France was concluded December 4, 1973. It was maintained after the French franc was replaced by the euro by the Council of the European Union decision of November 23, 1998. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility. In exchange for the unlimited convertibility of the CFA franc to euros, the WAEMU members are required to deposit 50% of their reserve holdings to the operations account with the French Treasury in accordance with the Amendment to the Operations Account Convention signed by France and the BCEAO on September 20, 2005.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed exchange rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are derived from the rates for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange tax

Yes. Authorized intermediaries apply a 0.6% commission on transfers to countries outside the WAEMU. This commission is transferred in full to the National Treasury and makes up part of its tax revenue.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded against CFAF at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU is in effect.

Spot exchange market

Yes. Entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized by order of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. As of December 31, 2019, there were 36 institutions, consisting of 13 banks and 23 licensed exchange dealers, currently authorized to trade on the foreign exchange market. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions for nonelectronic exchange operations with euro banknotes and issue a receipt for all operations with customers. In addition, authorized intermediaries must (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor’s identity document. As of December 31, 2019, there were 36 institutions licensed to deal in the foreign exchange market. The minister of finance issues approvals, after consulting the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions involving foreign currency and issue a receipt for all transactions with clients. Banks and registered banknote exchange houses are intermediaries authorized by the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) to carry out foreign exchange transactions with the public. The exchange houses may perform transactions in foreign currencies other than euros with the BCEAO. Registered banknote exchange houses may not make transfers or payment in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad.

In operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.

Operated by the central bank

Yes. The BCEAO deals directly with the government and other public entities, and the official rate is used for valuation.

Foreign exchange standing facility

Yes. The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published in the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and on payments made by banks and financial institutions.

Interbank market

Yes. Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. At December 31, 2019, there were 13 commercial banks in Togo that participate in the domestic currency interbank market. There is no foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.

Over the counter

Yes.

Brokerage

No.

Market making

No.

Forward exchange market

Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps.

Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAEMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAEMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers.

The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or FDI in a resident company.

All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations

- No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

- Yes.

Togo is linked to the French Treasury via the BCEAO through an operations account, through which settlements with France, Monaco, the Comoros, and the CEMAC member countries are made, mainly in euros. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.

Controls on the use of domestic currency

- Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions and for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.

For current transactions and payments

- Yes.

CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU. However, the CFA franc is guaranteed unlimited convertibility through an open operating account with the French Treasury.

For capital transactions

- Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments

- Yes.

Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments

- Yes.

Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Credit operations

- Yes.

Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the Ministry of Finance, after BCEAO approval.

Use of foreign exchange among residents

Yes. The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.

Payments arrangements

Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements

No.

Clearing agreements

Yes. There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the clearing agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

Regional arrangements

Yes. An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currency and euros against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.

Administration of control

Yes. The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. Exchange control is administered jointly by the MOF and the BCEAO. Most of the authority to supervise foreign exchange transactions is delegated to authorized banks, which are required to report these operations to the MOF. The BCEAO is also authorized to collect—either directly or through banks, financial institutions, the postal administration, or judicial agents—information necessary to compile balance of payments statistics. Customs officers monitor outflows of foreign exchange and confirm importation and exportation of goods. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Togo for the purposes of calculating the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and the material exportation of means of payment and of securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Togo are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfer transactions with other countries must be made through the registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or)

Yes.
bullion)

On domestic ownership and/or trade No.

On external trade Yes. Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.

On exports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. Travelers may freely export CFA franc banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals (from a WAEMU member country) and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.

Foreign currency Yes. The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers (that is, residing outside of a WAEMU member country) is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 1 million on exit. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Amounts in excess of this ceiling may be exported in the form of traveler’s checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler’s checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issue of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. Resident and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency. However, WAEMU resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.

Foreign currency No. There are no restrictions on resident and nonresident travelers’ importation of foreign-currency-denominated means of payment, which must be declared to customs authorities if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. Resident travelers must surrender foreign banknotes and other foreign-currency-denominated means of payment exceeding CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of arrival in any WAEMU member country.

Resident Accounts
Foreign exchange accounts permitted: Yes.
Held domestically: Yes.
Approval required: Yes.
Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Held abroad: Yes.
Approval required: Yes.
Individuals who are resident of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad: No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency: No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted: Yes.
Approval required: Yes.
Nonresident accounts denominated in euros may be freely opened by intermediaries accredited in the WAEMU on justification by the beneficiaries of their status and residence outside of the WAEMU. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.

Domestic currency accounts: Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency: Yes.
Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and effective residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.

Approval required: No.
Blocked accounts: No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions  Yes.

Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.

Repatriation requirements
Yes.
Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone’s investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.

Surrender requirements
Yes.
Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to the central bank
Yes.
The proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone’s investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization, within one month through an authorized intermediary. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.

Surrender to authorized dealers
Yes.
The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Controls on capital and money market instruments
Yes.
RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Nonresident entities that solicit the public of the WAEMU must obtain BCEAO authorization as the entity in charge of regulating the external financial relations of the WAEMU countries. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

On capital market securities

Shares or other securities of a participating nature
Yes.
Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents
No.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents
Yes.
The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Purchase abroad by residents
Yes.
The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue abroad by residents

No.
Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of Togolese entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan.

Bonds or other debt securities

Yes.
The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No.
These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes.
The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization from the MOF and supporting documentation.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes.
The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No.
Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. Issuance of securities abroad constituting a loan to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized intermediary bank and must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes.

On money market instruments

Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents
- Residents of the WAEMU zone do not require prior authorization to purchase foreign currency put options in the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.

Controls on credit operations
- Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MOF.

Commercial credits
- There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods, provided the date on which payment falls due is not more than 120 days after the date of shipment.

Financial credits
- These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MOF and substantiated by documentation.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

Controls on direct investment | Yes. Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.

Outward direct investment | Yes. All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

Inward direct investment | No. FDI, including by resident companies directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment | No. The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the proceeds from the liquidation must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on real estate transactions | Yes.

Purchase abroad by residents | Yes. These purchases require MOF authorization.

Purchase locally by nonresidents | No. Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company do not require prior authorization. They require declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Sale locally by nonresidents | No. Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary handling the settlement and must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on personal capital transactions | Yes. Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal administration, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless MOF authorization is obtained.

Loans | Yes. The regulations governing securities and investments apply.

By residents to nonresidents | Yes. These transactions require MOF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation unless they are licensed and included on the list of financial institutions.

To residents from nonresidents | No. These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies | Yes. Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents

No. These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants

Yes. Immigrants with resident status must obtain MOF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.

Transfer of assets

Yes.

Transfer abroad by emigrants

Yes. These transactions are subject to MOF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.

Transfer into the country by immigrants

Yes. Foreign accounts (in foreign currency or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these residents of the WAEMU zone may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MOF approval.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings

Yes. These transfers are conducted freely via authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes. The Uniform Act concerning dormant accounts on the books of financial institutions of WAMU member countries, adopted by the WAMU Council of Ministers, took effect September 28, 2012. WAMU Council of Ministers Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/12/2012 of December 14, 2012, establishes the deadline (December 31, 2013) for insertion of the uniform act into the WAMU members' national legal systems. The relevant provisions were adopted by the Togolese National Assembly on June 12, 2014, and formally enacted by the President of the Republic on June 16, 2014.

Borrowing abroad

No. Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

No. Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions on their own behalf or on behalf of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients’ outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Yes. Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization following BCEAO approval.

Lending locally in foreign exchange

Yes. There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange  Yes. These purchases require MOF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange  Yes.

Reserve requirements  Yes. A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.

Liquid asset requirements  Yes. According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.

Interest rate controls  No.

Credit controls  Yes. Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents  Yes. Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.

Reserve requirements  No.

Liquid asset requirements  No.

Interest rate controls  No.

Credit controls  Yes. Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MOF authorization and BCEAO approval.

Investment regulations  Yes. The regulations governing direct investment apply.

Abroad by banks  Yes. All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

In banks by nonresidents  Yes. These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to MOF authorization. According to the banking law, investment in a bank by any person that would change the blocking minority and/or the majority of voting rights requires authorization of the MOF.

Open foreign exchange position limits  Yes. No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.

On resident assets and liabilities  Yes. No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands: Yes.
Other managed arrangement

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands. The external value of the pa'anga is determined on the basis of a weighted currency basket comprising the US dollar, Australian dollar, New Zealand dollar, and Fijian dollar. The basket weights are determined based on the proportions... of trade with trading partners. The exchange rate of the pa’anga in terms of the US dollar, the intervention currency, is fixed daily by the NRBT within a band of ±5% a month. The NRBT does not publish intervention data. Under Section 34 of the NRBT Act, the external value of the pa’anga is determined from time to time in a manner approved by the NRBT board, after consultation with the Ministry of Finance and National Planning, in view of Tonga’s obligations connected with international monetary agreements in which it takes part. Section 35(1) of the NRBT Act empowers the NRBT to set the exchange rate. Because the composite weights cannot be confirmed, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “other managed” from “pegged exchange rate with horizontal bands,” effective January 1, 2019.

<th>The monetary policy framework includes an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite comprising the US dollar, Australian dollar, New Zealand dollar, and Fijian dollar. The exchange rate basket is intended to reduce exchange rate variability, maintain external competitiveness, and minimize imported inflation. The monetary policy framework also includes monitoring the monetary aggregates but no targets are set. A policy rate is also set which is equivalent to the interest rate paid on commercial banks’ exchange settlement account with the CB. The policy rate floor system is currently set at zero. The CB board determines the monetary policy settings, and the board’s decision is published on a monthly basis following the board’s monthly meetings.</th>

Exchange tax

| Yes. | A levy is imposed on foreign exchange transactions. It is assessed and paid at a rate of one half of a cent imposed as part of the spread of the pa’anga value of every purchase and sale of foreign currency. Levy only applies if the spread is more than one half of a cent. |

Exchange subsidy

Foreign exchange market

| Yes. | Commercial banks and the authorized foreign exchange dealers (FEDs) may freely set their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients, with the exception of banks’ spreads on telegraphic transfers in US dollar, Australian dollar, and New Zealand dollar which are limited to 220 basis points, 300 basis points, and 350 basis points , respectively. |

Spot exchange market

| Yes. | The NRBT has licensed four commercial banks and fourteen FEDs. Only licensed banks may make spot foreign exchange transactions | directly with the NRBT, while FEDs transact only with the commercial banks. FEDs can conduct money conversion (conversion of foreign currency notes to/from Tongan pa’anga) and/or remittances business (inward and outward remittances). Eight of the FEDs hold license Type A, five hold license Type B, and only one holds license Type C. FEDs with Type A are authorized to conduct money conversion, make foreign currency payments on behalf of their clients, and receive fund from overseas (both inward and outward remittances). FEDs with license Type B are authorized to receive funds from overseas only (inward remittances), and license Type C is for money conversion only. Licensed banks are authorized under their banking license to conduct foreign exchange business. Licensed banks and FEDs can maintain accounts abroad.

Operated by the central bank: Yes. The NRBT operates a foreign exchange fixing arrangement.

Foreign exchange standing facility: Yes. The NRBT sets the US dollar–pa’anga rate on a daily basis and buys and sells foreign exchange at these exchange rates with commercial banks. The NRBT deals with commercial banks and the government, public enterprises, and international agencies on demand. For the commercial banks’ transactions, they are required to list all the underlying customers. All foreign currency payments from Tongan pa’anga accounts, through either the commercial banks or the NRBT, are subject to the Exchange Control requirements, so supporting documents are provided accordingly which would verify whether the transactions are bona fide.

Allocation: No.

Auction: No.

Fixing: No.

Interbank market: Yes. There are four commercial banks, which are licensed by the NRBT, and they may trade among themselves. The NRBT does not intervene directly with market participants at their quoted rates. The NRBT sets the US dollar–Tongan pa’anga exchange rate which is used for the NRBT’s daily foreign currency transactions with the commercial banks, and these deals are at the commercial banks’ initiative. Commercial banks also maintain nostro accounts, and their total balances must not exceed T$1 million daily, with the exception of one commercial bank with a temporary limit of T$2.5 million which was necessary to allow this bank to meet the minimum requirements for a US dollar correspondent bank account in Australia. Excess foreign exchange must be sold to the NRBT within two business days. The NRBT imposes limits on commercial banks’ spread on telegraphic transfers in US dollar, Australian dollar, and New Zealand dollar of 220 bp, 300 bp, and 350 bp, respectively. There are no limits on the spreads for the interbank foreign currency transactions (among commercial banks only).

Over the counter: No.

Brokerage: No.

Market making: Yes. The foreign exchange market operations (commercial banks and their own customers) are based on a market-making agreement.

Forward exchange market: Yes. Commercial banks may provide forward exchange cover for their own customers up to the equivalent of each bank’s current capital position (in force since October 30, 2013). The NRBT does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

The following are prohibited under the Customs and Excise Management Act Order 2007: (1) Base or counterfeit or imitation currency or banknote or fictitious postage or revenue stamps of any country and any dye, plate, instrument, or materials capable of making any such coin, currency, or banknote or any such revenue or postage stamps. (2) Counterfeit goods. (3) Indecent or obscene books, paintings, drawings, cards, lithographic or other engravings, photographs, prints, films, or other indecent products which depict child pornography. (4) Goods bearing the Royal Arms of the Kingdom or arms so closely resembling such arms as to be calculated to deceive unless the importer of such goods holds His Majesty’s written authority to use them in connection with his trade, business, calling, or profession. (5) All books, written or printed matter, and sounds and visual recordings which the chief commissioner by notice declares to be prohibited imports on account of any copyright or intellectual property right laws which apply in the Kingdom. (6) All books and any written or printed matter and sound and visual recordings which the chief commissioner by notice declares to be seditious or which advocate violence, lawlessness, or disorder. (7) All toxic or hazardous wastes. (8) Goods the importation of which is prohibited by any other law in force in the Kingdom. (9) Effective July 1, 2020, all meat of mutton and lamb breast.

Open general licenses

No.

Licenses with quotas

Yes. Imports of certain items are restricted for cultural, environmental, health, or security reasons. Imports of ozone-depleting substances and imports of firearms and ammunition have predetermined quotas.

Other nontariff measures

No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. Ad valorem import tariffs on most goods range up to 20%. Some items (including petroleum, tobacco, vehicles, alcoholic beverages) are subject to specific excise tax rates effective July 1, 2019: petroleum, T$0.75 a liter (previously T$0.65); petroleum gases, $300 per metric ton; tobacco, T$750 (previously T$600) for 1,000 sticks/1 kg (imported) and T$580 (previously T$500) for 1,000 sticks/1 kg; cigarettes made from imported tobacco – locally manufactured, $100 for 1,000 sticks/1 kg cigarettes made from locally grown tobacco – locally manufactured, $750 per kg for other tobacco products – imported, $200 per kg local tobacco (Tapaka Tonga); vehicles, effective July 1, 2020, reduced to T$0.35–T$0.75 a cc of engine capacity; and alcohol, T$65 per lal (lal stands for liters of alcohol contained in a mixture) for imports, T$25 per lal for locally produced beer, and T$35 for locally produced spirits. Effective July 1, 2020, Excise taxes were imposed on importation of animal fats ($2/kg), flavors in powdered and ready to drink form ($4/kg), confectionery sugar ($5/kg), chocolate in blocks, slabs $5/kg, instant noodles (imported $2/kg), ice cream, sausages (locally manufactured $0.50/kg, imported $1/kg), sweet biscuits ($1.50/kg), fruit juices containing sugar exceeding 5g/100ml but less than 20g/ltr ($1.50/ltr), fruit juices containing sugar exceeding 20g/100ml ($4/ltr), other sugar sweetened beverages with sugar not exceeding 5g/100ml (locally manufactured $0.05/ltr), other sugar sweetened beverages with sugar exceeding 5g/100ml but not exceeding 20g/ltr (locally manufactured $0.75/ltr, imported $1.50/ltr), other sugar sweetened beverages with sugar exceeding 20g/ltr (locally manufactured $1.50/ltr, imported $4/ltr), mayonnaise ($2/kg), ice cream (imported $1.50/ltr, locally manufactured $0.25/ltr), and turkey tail (manufactured $0.50/kg, imported $2/kg). The government is not exempt from duty or taxes. Imports are also subject to a 15% consumption tax, which registered businesses may claim back as input tax. Imports by public international organizations, foreign governments, participants in agreements with the government of Tonga, and charitable organizations do not pay consumption tax (provided such exemptions are specifically stipulated in the agreement with the Government of Tonga), and the rate is zero on fuel, aircraft, and vessel parts for use in public domestic air and shipping services. Imports by diplomatic missions, international organizations, officers under technical assistance agreements, charitable organizations, and returning residents (absent for two years) are exempt from tariffs and taxes. Electricity is zero rated for consumption tax, and there are exemptions from duty and consumption tax for agricultural and fishing sector inputs. Some manufacturing inputs are also duty-free.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
Yes.

The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Trinidad and Tobago states that, as of August 6, 2018, Trinidad and Tobago maintained an exchange restriction and two MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) and Section 3. The exchange restriction arises from the authorities’ restriction of the exchange rate (that is, by restricting the maximum market buying and selling rates, and prohibiting foreign exchange transactions beyond the maximum rates), while not providing enough foreign exchange (that is, through the Central Bank of Trinidad and Tobago (CBTT)'s foreign exchange interventions) to meet all demand for current transactions at that rate. The CBTT also limits sales of its foreign exchange intervention funds to meeting only “trade-related” demand, which do not include non-trade transactions that are, however, current international transactions as defined under Article XXX(d) of the IMF’s Articles of Agreement, and encourages ADs to similarly prioritize sales of foreign exchange obtained from other sources. Further, the authorities prioritize provision of foreign exchange to certain manufacturers through a special foreign exchange facility using the Export–Import Bank of Trinidad and Tobago (EximBank). These actions result in undue delays in access to foreign exchange to make payments or transfers for current international transactions and external payment arrears. The two MCPs arise from the absence of a mechanism to prevent the potential deviation of more than 2% at any given time among several effective exchange rates regulated by the authorities, for spot exchange transactions, namely: (1) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the CBTT’s intervention rate and the ADs’ selling rates (the maximum of which is anchored on the intervention rate plus fixed margins), and (b) on the other hand, the ADs’ buying rates (the maximum of which is limited at the previous day’s mid-rate); (2) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the buying and selling rates for foreign exchange transactions between the CBTT and the government, and (b) on the other hand, the ADs’ selling rates. (Country Report No. 18/285)

Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes.

The currency of Trinidad and Tobago is the Trinidad and Tobago...
The system is multiple as the authorities’ actions give rise to several exchange rates for spot exchange transactions, resulting in MCPs. The exchange rates for spot transactions in effect include: (1) the CBTT’s intervention rate, (2) the ADs’ selling rates, the ceiling of which is set by the CBTT based on fixed margins over the latest intervention rate, (3) the ADs’ buying rates for purchases from the market, the ceiling of which is established at the prior day’s mid-rate as guided and monitored by the CBTT, (4) the CBTT to government’s selling rate, which is set at the prior day’s average selling rate, and (5) the CBTT from government’s buying rate, which is set at the prior day’s mid-rate. The two MCPs arise from the absence of a mechanism to prevent the potential deviation of more than 2% at any given time among these multiple effective exchange rates regulated by the authorities, for spot exchange transactions, namely: (1) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the CBTT’s intervention rate and the ADs’ selling rates (the maximum of which is anchored on the intervention rate plus fixed margins), and (b) on the other hand, the ADs’ buying rates (the maximum of which is limited at the previous day’s mid-rate); (2) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the buying and selling rates for foreign exchange transactions between the CBTT and the government, and (b) on the other hand, the ADs’ selling rates.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The CBTT intervenes regularly, and with no significant developments in the domestic foreign exchange market, the exchange rate has remained relatively stable. Because the Trinidad and Tobago dollar stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized. The CBTT publishes daily and monthly purchases and sales by the CB and ADs, with a one-day lag.
average exchange rate for the US dollar of all transactions settled during a business day by commercial banks and other ADs. The selling and buying rates have a ceiling that is defined by a fixed margin over the latest intervention rate, and the prior day’s mid-rate as guided and monitored by the CB. The intervention rate is not published.

Commercial banks and nonbank financial institutions may conduct foreign exchange transactions, both spot and forward, with the public without limitation. ADs determine their trading rates to maintain a maximum spread of 1% above the CB intervention rate on the intervention settlement date with fixed margins thereafter for all spot transactions. (Please refer to Section III.D.)

As of December 31, 2019, there were 13 institutions: 8 commercial banks and 5 nonbank financial institutions, licensed by the CBTT to deal in foreign exchange with the public. These institutions constitute the group of ADs. Since 2018, the EximBank holds a limited-scope AD license to conduct specific foreign exchange transactions. The terms and conditions of this license are in accordance with the existing laws and regulations. Through the EximBank, the authorities prioritize provision of foreign exchange to certain manufacturers. Through the US$100-million EximBank Facility, eligible small and medium exporters are able to obtain foreign exchange to finance inputs for export operations. Foreign exchange bureaus are also licensed by the CBTT, but they may only buy currency notes, coins, and traveler’s checks and sell currency notes and coins (Clause 1 of the Terms and Conditions agreed to by all operators on the issuance of a license from the CBTT). As of June 30, 2020, there were six authorized foreign exchange bureau operators with 61 locations; they do not conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBTT.

Until May 2012, the CBTT intervened in the foreign exchange market solely through a predetermined allocation system. In May 2012, the CBTT introduced an auction system that operated alongside its usual fixed allocation system for a portion of its intervention. The last auction held under this system was in June 2014.

The CBTT also provides a Foreign Exchange Liquidity Guarantee Facility to the ADs. The facility provides a source of liquidity that ADs can draw upon if needed to quickly reduce an extended open position during times when there is a paucity of supply, as happens seasonally in the domestic market. The last Foreign Exchange Liquidity Guarantee Facility expired December 31, 2019. The current Foreign Exchange Liquidity Guarantee Facility commenced June 1, 2020. During 2019, the ADs accessed US$54.0 million from the facility.

<th>Allocation</th>
<th>Yes. The CBTT allocates some foreign exchange as part of its intervention. This system is based, among other things, on ADs’ market share, asset base, and distribution network. Based on these criteria, dealers and their allocations are assessed annually. Intervention funds are to be used to settle trade-related requests for foreign exchange from the public. The CBTT encourages ADs to prioritize foreign exchange interventions to meet trade-related demand.</th>

All institutions licensed under the FIA, 2008, must comply with the limits on credit exposures under Section 42(1) of the FIA, whether lending is in local and/or foreign currency (lending is limited to 25% of capital base, except for exposures which are exempted under Section 42(1)(a)–(g)).

The FIA defines “credit exposures” as amount at risk arising through the extension of credit or funds by a licensee and includes, inter alia “… investments including equities, participations, guarantees and acceptance.”

All institutions licensed under the FIA, 2008, must comply with the limits on credit exposures under Section 42(1) of the FIA, whether securities are purchased locally and/or abroad/ if denominated in local and/or foreign currency (lending is limited to 25% of capital base, except for exposures which are exempted under Section 42(1)(a)–(g)).

Foreign currency deposits are not covered by deposit insurance.

The reserve requirement applicable to domestic currency deposits in banks was reduced by 3% to 14% from 17%, effective March 17, 2020.
From time to time, the CB may also request licensed bank and nonbank financial institutions to hold a certain percentage of their prescribed liabilities in a secondary reserve, usually on a remunerated basis. A secondary (remunerated) reserve requirement of 2% was removed August 2, 2018.

In addition to the primary and secondary reserve requirements, the CB has from time to time, requested that commercial banks deposit some proportion of their prescribed liabilities in an interest-bearing facility at the CB for an agreed timeframe.

A reserve requirement of 9% applies to nonbank institutions. There are no reserve requirements on foreign currency deposits.

The second schedule (SS) of the Insurance Act imposes controls and lists assets approved for pledging to the statutory fund. Allowable investment assets include: (1) bonds, debentures, and other evidence of indebtedness by issuers approved by the Act; (2) guaranteed investment certificates issued by a trust company in approved countries; (3) ordinary or preferred shares of a company incorporated in Trinidad and Tobago and approved by the CBTT; (4) ordinary or preferred shares of a company incorporated in any country approved by the CBTT; (5) units, certificates, and other evidence of... participation in an indebtedness program of the Unit Trust Corporation of Trinidad and Tobago; (6) unit certificates and other evidence of participation in financial assets not exceeding 10% of the statutory fund requirement and whose portfolio is regulated by approved countries; (7) mortgages and real estate in Trinidad and Tobago; and (8) cash deposits in any bank or other financial institution licensed under the FIA.

Restrictions under the SS are as follows: (1) Investments in ordinary shares may not exceed 50% of the statutory fund requirement in Trinidad and Tobago. (2) Investments in real estate or leaseholds may not exceed 20% of the value or assets required to satisfy the statutory fund requirement of a company engaged in long-term insurance business. (3) No single mortgage may exceed 10% of the total assets of the company. (4) Investment is not allowed in trust bonds, debentures, or other evidence of indebtedness on which payment of principal or interest is in default. (5) Investments in a single corporation may not exceed 30% of the ordinary shares of the corporation. (6) Life insurance companies may not, with respect to that business, purchase the shares of a company incorporated in Trinidad and Tobago and engaged in such business.

| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | No. |
| Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad | Yes. |
| Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally | Yes. |
| Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition | Yes. |
| Pension funds | Yes. |

Securities issued by nonresidents approved to be pledged to the statutory fund must be issued by companies incorporated in any Commonwealth country or dependency of Ireland, any member country of the OECD, the USA, the country in which the head office of the company is situated or a country specifically approved by the CB.

The Insurance Act stipulates that foreign assets held in the statutory fund are limited to 20% of the statutory fund liability.

Insurance companies are required to hold at least 80% of their investment assets locally (that is, investments denominated in Trinidad and Tobago dollars).

The Insurance Act stipulates that the value of assets in the statutory fund that are denominated in a currency other than the denomination of the statutory fund liability cannot exceed 20% of that liability.

The SS of the Insurance Act (the Act) also applies to pension plans with one additional amendment. The SS imposes controls and lists assets approved for the pension funds. Allowable investment assets include: (1) bonds, debentures, and other evidence of indebtedness by issuers approved by the Act; (2) guaranteed investment certificates issued by a trust company in approved countries; (3) ordinary or preferred shares of a company incorporated in Trinidad and Tobago and approved by the CBTT; (4) ordinary or preferred shares of a company incorporated in any country approved by the CBTT; (5) units, certificates, and other evidence of participation in an indebtedness program of the Unit Trust Corporation of Trinidad and Tobago; (6) mortgages and real estate in Trinidad and Tobago; and (7) cash deposits in any bank or other financial institution licensed under the FIA.

Restrictions under the SS are as follows: (1) Investments in ordinary shares may not exceed 50% of the assets in Trinidad and Tobago except for a well-funded pension plan (with a funding ratio in excess of 150%) for which the limit is 70%. (2) Investments in real estate or leaseholds may not exceed 20% of the total value or assets. (3) No single mortgage may exceed 10% of the total assets. (4) Investment is not allowed in trust bonds, debentures, or other evidence of indebtedness on which payment of principal or interest is in default. (5) Investments in a single corporation may not exceed 30% of the ordinary shares of the corporation.

| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | No. |
The Insurance (Pension Fund Plan Investments) Regulations of the Insurance Act state that at least 80% of a registered plan’s total assets must originate in Trinidad and Tobago; hence, a pension plan’s assets abroad are limited to 20%.

Collective investment fund certificates of participation are limited to 10% and may not include securities issued by the Unit Trust.

Crawl-like arrangement | Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating, as indicated on the Central Bank of Tunisia (BCT—Banque Centrale de Tunisie) website. The BCT intervenes in the foreign exchange market mostly to cover banks’ short net open positions in foreign exchange. Effective January 1, 2019, the foreign exchange auctions became more frequent and the BCT ceased interventions outside the auction mechanism, and calls for tender (appel d’offre) became the sole intervention method. Previously, the BCT intervened in the foreign exchange market when market rates differed substantially from the day’s fixing rates, to smooth excessive fluctuations in the exchange rate for the dinar. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Official exchange rate

Yes. Effective January 1, 2019, the BCT’s reference exchange rate is based on the results of foreign exchange auctions to allow for price discovery. Previously, a fixing arrangement (that is, the average of market participants’ quotes) determined the reference exchange rate published by the BCT. At the start of the business day, the most active banks in the market were consulted to get their dinar–US dollar quotes. The BCT calculated the average of these quotes and used the average rate obtained as the daily reference exchange rate. At the close of the business day, banks reported a second quote to the BCT. The BCT’s reference exchange rates are used for transactions between the BCT and the government. Customs also uses the BCT’s reference rates for valuation. August 1, 2018, the BCT began resorting to competitive foreign exchange auctions to support price discovery in the foreign exchange market but maintained bilateral transactions. Effective January 1, 2019, the foreign exchange auctions became more frequent and the BCT ceased interventions outside the auction mechanism, and calls for tender (appel d’offre) became the sole intervention method. August 1, 2018, the BCT introduced competitive foreign exchange auctions but maintained bilateral transactions. Effective January 1, 2019, the foreign exchange auctions became more frequent and the BCT ceased interventions outside the auction mechanism, and calls for tender (appel d’offre) became the sole intervention method. Previously, the BCT intervened in the foreign exchange market via bilateral transactions when market rates differed substantially from the day’s fixing rates, to smooth excessive fluctuations in the exchange rate for the dinar and to cover a share of banks’ short net open positions in foreign exchange with a prorated allocation. The Central Bank Board was instituted pursuant to Law No. 2016-35 of April 25, 2016, Establishing the Charter of the BCT. Pursuant to Article 7, the main objective of the BCT is to ensure price stability. The MPC was instituted pursuant to Regulatory Decision No. 743 of November 5, 2012. This advisory body is responsible for providing the BCT Board with information and analysis necessary for monetary policy decision making. Significantly, the Committee may propose to the Board measures related in particular to changing the policy rate, modifying the reserve ratio, and modifying the rules governing monetary policy operations. It is chaired by the governor and has, in addition, eight members of which two are members of the Board. The Board is a decision-making body vested with the powers defined in Article 63 and comprised of members according to Article 57 of Law No. 2016-35.

Despite progress made in developing macro-forecasting models and establishing an interest rate corridor system, the BCT is still working on a number of prerequisites for the move to an inflation-targeting framework (macroeconomic stabilization, exchange rate flexibility, markets deepening, and monetary policy communication).

Under the current monetary policy framework, the interest rate is BCT’s preferred monetary policy instrument, while inflation projections constitute the intermediate target. The regulatory framework for conducting monetary policy was overhauled in 2017. Circular No. 2017-02 on the Implementation of Monetary Policy by the BCT defines the monetary policy instruments, the money market participants, and eligible collateral. The BCT aims to keep the overnight interbank rate close to its policy rate (taux directeur). To contain inflationary pressures, the BCT has increased its policy rate by a cumulative 275 basis points since March 2018, bringing it to the level of 7.75% in February 2019. The overnight standing deposit and lending facilities have been in place since February 2009 and established a firm floor and ceiling for the interest rate corridor system.

On the operational front, the BCT follows developments in autonomous liquidity factors and provides banks with refinancing on the basis of its forecasts of their weekly liquidity requirements and its monetary policy objectives. The obligation, under the IMF-supported Extended Fund Facility (EFF) arrangement, to comply with quantitative criteria for net domestic assets (NDA) pushed the BCT to cap its primary refinancing operations at TD 7 billion since July 12, 2017; however, the total volume of refinancing has increased since then, in particular as a result of the dinar liquidities injected in connection with foreign currency swaps, structural open market operations, and the overnight lending facility. Foreign exchange swaps are carried out through auctions at the initiative of the BCT. The further tightening of monetary policy (in terms of both prices and quantities), the introduction of, since November 1, 2018, a Credit/deposit ratio, and the introduction of heightened consistency in monetary policy instruments (reduction in the outstanding volume of foreign exchange swaps) have made it possible to put the overall volume of refinancing on a gradually declining trend.

Authorized intermediaries are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission with their clients, except for marker makers.

Transactions in the foreign exchange market are conducted at exchange rates freely negotiated by banks. Regarding OTC activity, authorized intermediary banks may perform OTC operations through specialized agencies referred to as exchange bureaus. Exchange bureaus publish buying and selling exchange rates in dinars and transact with clients for foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This activity is carried out via simple declaration to the BCT and is subject to Circular No. 2008-04. Exchange bureau operations are limited to buying and selling foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. Banks carry out transactions with the BCT and open accounts with foreign correspondents. On the functioning of the foreign exchange market, all resident and nonresident authorized intermediaries may act as counterparties in transactions carried out in the foreign exchange market. There are about 20 active participants in the foreign exchange market. Twenty-three banks participate actively in the exchange market.

Currency swaps are carried out through auctions at the initiative of the BCT, which consist of spot buying or selling of dinars in exchange for foreign currency and simultaneously undertaking to resell or repurchase the amount in the future at a predetermined rate. On August 1, 2018, the BCT began resorting to competitive foreign exchange auctions to support price discovery in the foreign exchange market but maintained bilateral transactions. The results of the auctions are published daily after each auction on the BCT contribution pages on Reuters. Effective January 1, 2019, the foreign exchange auctions became more frequent to support price discovery in the foreign exchange market and the BCT ceased interventions outside the auction mechanism, and calls for tender (appel d’offre) became the sole intervention method. Previously, the BCT intervened in the foreign exchange market when market rates differed substantially from the day’s fixing rates, to smooth excessive fluctuations in the exchange rate for the dinar.

Commercial banks, including offshore banks acting on behalf of their resident customers, conduct transactions at freely negotiated rates. There is no limit on the spread between the buying and selling rates or on commissions of market participants, except for market makers. Market makers must present a firm two-way spot rate of (euro–dinar and dinar–euro), 15 percentage in points (pips) between buying and selling rates for a minimum amount of 0.5 million and maximum amount of 3 million euros or US dollars. Resident banks trade freely in foreign currencies in the spot market among themselves, with their...

Over the counter | Yes.
Brokerage | No.
Market making | Yes.
Forward exchange market | Yes.

Most of the transactions in the foreign exchange market occur over the counter.

There is an electronic bank interlinking platform which was established to compile and monitor in real time the transactions conducted on the foreign exchange market. Ten banks are currently classified as market makers. Market makers are required to post a spread of 15 pips between their buying and selling rates for a minimum amount of 0.5 million and maximum amount of 3 million euros or US dollars.

Importers, exporters, and persons who provide services are authorized to obtain forward exchange cover on the interbank market as of the date a contract is signed or the date on which foreign commercial paper is domiciled, depending on the arrangements for the product concerned. Forward rates are freely negotiated by the authorized counterparty bank.

The maturity of the forward exchange contract must coincide with the date of contractual settlement of the underlying operation. For financial operations involving the repatriation or transfer of capital or income, the maximum term of cover is set at 12 months. Persons who provided services were eligible for exchange cover for up to 12 months, to be provided within 30 days of the date on which the claim originated. Resident enterprises may purchase, in the forward market, futures maturing in up to 12 months to hedge against exchange rate risk related to the repayment of their foreign currency loans. They may also sell foreign currency drawn on external loans or foreign currency investments.

Nonresidents may enter into contracts with resident authorized intermediaries for forward purchases of convertible dinars where the maturity of the forward exchange contract must coincide with the date of contractual settlement of the underlying transaction. Authorized intermediaries are authorized to engage in foreign exchange–dinar forward exchange transactions among themselves, in the context of their efforts to manage their foreign exchange positions.

Resident authorized intermediaries may engage, among themselves or with resident enterprises, in foreign currency and convertible dinar swaps where the maturity of cover must correspond to the term of the lending or borrowing agreement. They may also engage in foreign currency and convertible dinar swaps with nonresident banks in Tunisia, their foreign correspondent banks, and nonresident enterprises operating in Tunisia to make spot purchases and forward sales of convertible dinars. For the purpose of hedging against foreign currency interest rate risk, forward rate agreements are permitted between resident banks and foreign correspondent banks and by resident enterprises with resident banks and nonresident enterprises.
banks operating in Tunisia. The term of cover must correspond to the term of the lending or borrowing agreement. Authorized intermediaries may list foreign currency and dinar exchange options for their resident customers to allow them to hedge against exchange rate risk of their commercial operations involving goods and services and financial transactions. In the context of one particular commercial or financial operation, authorized intermediaries may propose to their customers a buying or selling exchange option or a mix of foreign exchange operations. They may engage among themselves in foreign currency and dinar exchange options to hedge against the exchange risk associated with their customers’ transactions. Prices for the option and the premium are freely negotiated between the authorized intermediaries and the customer. The maturity of the foreign exchange option must coincide with the contractual settlement date of the underlying transaction. For transactions to repatriate or transfer capital and revenue, the maximum term of the foreign exchange options is 12 months. The BCT does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

Official cover of forward operations Yes. The national reinsurance company manages the exchange cover mechanism for banks and financial institutions with respect to their borrowing abroad.

| Nonresident travelers wishing to reexport the foreign exchange equivalent of amounts equal to or exceeding TD 5,000 must declare to customs the foreign currencies they are importing on arrival. The reconversion of Tunisian banknotes (dinars) to foreign currency by nonresident travelers for reexportation occurs on presentation of a foreign exchange voucher or receipt if the amount is less than TD 5,000 or if the foreign exchange used in the purchase of the dinars was received abroad in the form of a check, draft, money order, or any other evidence of a claim or by debiting a foreign account in foreign currency or in convertible dinars. A foreign exchange import declaration of foreign currency in foreign banknotes approved by customs is also required if the amount of foreign exchange from dinar reconversion equals or exceeds the equivalent of TD 5,000 and if the dinars were derived from the surrender of foreign currencies physically imported from abroad. The reexport of foreign banknotes from Tunisia cannot exceed a ceiling of 30,000 dinars a person a trip. The export of foreign banknotes not converted to dinars on entry into Tunisia is subject to the customs declaration, when the amount to be reexported is equal to or exceeds 20,000 dinars.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Yes. Pursuant to Circular No. 2017-04 of June 23, 2017, the following resident individuals may open Resident Physical Person (PPR) accounts in foreign exchange: (1) Tunisian nationals transferring their normal residence and/or assets legitimately acquired abroad to Tunisia; (2) foreign nationals resident in Tunisia; (3) individuals holding capital stakes in resident legal entities that export goods or services; (4) individuals having status as foreign exchange subagents or those holding capital stakes in resident legal entities having status as foreign exchange subagents; (5) service providers targeting nonresidents established outside of Tunisia as defined in Annex 1 to this Circular; (6) diplomatic staff and public sector officers seconded abroad; and (7) individuals hired by resident employers to carry out missions having a minimum duration of six months in connection with contracts that can be executed abroad. The same individual cannot simultaneously hold a Resident Physical Person (PPR) account in foreign exchange or in convertible dinars and a business travel allowance.

PPR accounts in foreign exchange or in convertible dinars may be freely credited with revenue or proceeds from assets legitimately acquired abroad or funds deriving from the closing of one of the account holder’s foreign accounts in foreign exchange or convertible dinars; 20% of the earnings distributed in connection with the previous fiscal year and paid in dinars to persons holding capital stakes in resident legal entities that export goods or services; the account will be funded in proportion with the holder’s capital stakes in the company; 5% of the amount of foreign exchange surrendered during the previous year in connection with subagency foreign exchange activities carried out by the account holder or by a company in which the account holder owns capital stakes; in this case, the account is funded proportionally with the holder’s capital stakes in the company; remuneration for service providers for their services to nonresidents outside of Tunisia; wage savings of diplomatic staff and public officers seconded abroad; remuneration in dinars accrued to persons hired by resident employers under a contract that can be executed abroad in connection with an expatriation indemnity; proceeds from the surrender and/or transfer of revenue deriving from assets acquired abroad by debiting this account; interest accrued on funds deposited to the PPR account calculated as provided under the current regulatory texts. All account credit operations are subject to prior authorization from the BCT. Credits to PPR accounts through the deposit of foreign banknotes require a valid foreign exchange import declaration in the name of the account holder and approved by the customs authorities. PPR accounts in foreign exchange or in convertible dinars may be freely debited with the surrender of foreign exchange on the foreign exchange market and any payments in dinars; any outward payments for duly justified personal expenses on behalf of the account holder, his or her spouse, parents, or children resident for purposes of foreign exchange; any transfers for the acquisition directly by the account holder of real and movable property located abroad, outward rights and claims, and to execute any act of management in connection with assets legitimately held abroad. However, the account holder is not permitted to place assets in bank accounts abroad; any transfers involving final payments in connection with the final departure of the foreign national who is the account holder, justified with a certificate of change of residence issued by the competent authorities, along with a certificate that the interested party’s tax situation has been regularized, or a certificate of exemption. Any other debits to the account are subject to prior authorization from the BCT. Transfers by debiting PPR accounts may take place by credit transfer, check drawn on the authorized intermediary with which the account is opened, by international payment card, or in cash, exclusively to cover subsistence expenses. PPR account holders are subject to the obligations incumbent on residents under the regulatory texts governing foreign exchange and foreign trade, and particularly to the requirement to declare foreign assets provided under the foreign exchange code.
