Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Exchange tax

06/10/2019 | Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%
(previously 0.5%), excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax.

Foreign exchange market

- Spot exchange market

Interbank market

06/10/2019

A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

On exports

- Domestic currency
  - 03/01/2019
  - Departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

- Foreign currency
  - 03/01/2019
  - Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

On imports

- Domestic currency
  - 03/01/2019
  - Arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

- Foreign currency
  - 03/01/2019
  - Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, and instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

- Held domestically
  - Approval required
  - 03/01/2019
  - The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.

- Held abroad
  - 03/01/2019
  - Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.

- Accounts in domestic currency held abroad
  - 03/01/2019
  - Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

Imports and Import Payments

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

- Other
  - 03/01/2019
  - Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

03/01/2019
Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019
Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Payments for travel

Indicative limits/bona fide test 03/01/2019
A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business, CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission).

Personal payments

Indicative limits/bona fide test 03/01/2019
A single indicative limit of CFAF 5 million is established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business, CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission).

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

03/01/2019
Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019
Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of receipt.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Repatriation requirements 03/01/2019
Foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements
Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019
Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days (previously 30 days) after receipt.

On capital market securities

Shares or other securities of a participating nature

Purchase locally by nonresidents 03/01/2019
Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF approval. The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million (previously CFAF 10 million).

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
No.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Yes. No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2019.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)
Yes. The Gambia maintains exchange restrictions in accordance with UNSC resolutions. These include restrictions on financial transactions, listing and freezing of accounts of individuals and all financial and non-financial institutions and designated non-financial businesses and persons (DNFBPs) in support of (1) UNSC Resolutions Nos. 1267 (1999) and 1373 (2001); and (2) the US State Department’s updated list of organizations associated with terrorism. In addition, pursuant to UNSC resolutions, The Gambia enacted the Anti-Terrorism Act of 2012 and the Money Laundering Act of 2012.

Other security restrictions
No.

Stabilized arrangement

Crawling peg

Crawl-like arrangement
Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands
Other managed arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate is determined in the foreign exchange market. The Gambia participates in the W-ERM II of the WAMZ, which requires that the spot exchange rate between the dalasi and the US dollar be maintained within ±15% of the central rate; however, the authorities have not yet implemented these measures. The Central Bank of The Gambia (CBG) periodically intervenes in the foreign exchange market by selling and buying foreign exchange to augment international reserves and ensure market orderliness.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as other managed. The CBG does not publish intervention data, but informs market makers on the results of each auction including prices.

Floating
Free floating

Official exchange rate Yes. The daily interbank exchange rates are computed after the close of each business day. The CBG collects actual buying and selling rates of all participants in the foreign exchange market (between banks, microfinance institutions, and foreign exchange bureaus, and their respective customers) for each traded currency and calculates the average midmarket rate. The exchange rate for government transactions is the average of the midmarket interbank rates of the previous week. The CBG conducts a foreign exchange market review session on the last business day of each week with the participation of the commercial banks, microfinance institutions, and foreign exchange bureaus. During this session, the average market rate of the week is announced as the rate to be applied to government transactions and customs valuations the following week.

Foreign exchange market Yes. All ADs are allowed to determine their rates in line with market fundamentals. Foreign exchange bureaus are subject to annual license renewal by the CBG. As of June 2020, there were 116 licensed bureaus. Because of their involvement in international money transfer operations, licensed foreign exchange bureaus may choose to open accounts abroad; however, they shall not open accounts for their customers. The CBG has been authorized to deal with microfinance institutions and foreign exchange bureaus, as stipulated in the Reserve Management Guidelines. Currently, the CBG deals only with commercial banks because the volumes involved in the intervention are not available to foreign exchange bureaus.

Spot exchange market Yes.

Operated by the central bank Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility
No.

Allocation
No.

Auction
Yes.
CBG auctions (purchase/sale) are conducted by written invitations/solicitation through email to all banks (only banks can participate because of volume) and requesting bids to be submitted in writing. The auction preannounces the foreign exchange amount, currency, bid submission deadline, and the requirement to submit bids in sealed envelopes to the CBG. The most competitive bid, that is, the best rate (lowest buying, highest selling rate), is selected in these auctions. While the cutoff rate is determined by the best bid rate, it is subject to the rate range set by the CBG intervention policy, which limits awarding rates within intervention trading limits of the policy as at trade date. The auctions are sanctioned by the Intervention Committee. Winning bids are limited to 20% of the amount floated. Bids must be settled by T+2. The CBG only settled the Dalasi component when swift confirmations are received to mitigate credit risk.

Fixing
No.

Interbank market
Yes.
Commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus are free to engage in transactions among themselves or with customers at exchange rates agreed on by the parties to these transactions. The daily interbank exchange rates are computed after the close of each business day. The CBG collates actual buying and selling exchange rates of all participants in the foreign exchange interbank (banks, finance companies, and foreign exchange bureaus) for each traded currency and calculates the average midmarket rate. Hence, the interbank exchange rates only include rates between banks, finance companies, and foreign exchange bureaus, and their respective customers. All 12 commercial banks and licensed foreign exchange bureaus and microfinance institutions take part in the interbank foreign exchange market. There is no restriction on the market trading spread. The spread continues to be determined by the fundamentals of demand and supply.

Floating
Yes.  The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements of Georgia are floating. The National Bank of Georgia (NBG) intervenes in the foreign exchange market through foreign exchange auctions, but does not make any explicit or implicit commitment with respect to an exchange rate target or path. Considering the market conditions, interventions are aimed at filling international reserves or smoothing excessive volatility to avoid inflationary expectations. The amount bought/sold at NBG’s foreign exchange auctions and the average exchange rates are posted on the NBG website the same day, shortly after each auction.

Effective January 31, 2019, the NBG introduced a new instrument—foreign exchange options. The main goal of using foreign exchange options is filling the international reserves. Foreign exchange option is a financial instrument, which gives the right to a holder (but not obligation) to buy national currency in exchange for foreign exchange (US dollar or EUR) during the predetermined period at the official exchange rate. The condition of using the options is that the lari exchange rate should be stronger than the average of the previous 20 days. However, this foreign exchange option instrument has not been used since July 2019, given the market conditions.

Effective March 1, 2020, the NBG introduced a new foreign exchange trading system—Bloomberg’s BMatch. This foreign exchange trading platform is based on the principle of automatic “matching” of transactions. Market participants will place foreign currency buying and selling applications on the BMatch platform, and if the exchange rates between the buyer and seller of the currency coincide, then the currency transactions between the parties will be concluded automatically. At the first stage, only commercial banks will participate in the BMatch platform. Companies are expected to participate at a later stage (from October 1, 2020) and will be able to access the BMatch platform in two ways: directly through Bloomberg terminal and indirectly through a commercial bank.

In the first half of 2019, the economic improvement in trading partner countries resulted in increased demand on Georgian exports and led to significant improvement in current account deficit. Exports of goods and services (especially tourism) increased substantially, as well as money transfers grew significantly. Such developments gave the NBG the possibility to purchase US$216.3 million on foreign exchange market. However, the Russian embargo on air travel to Georgia (since July 2019) alleviated the negative expectations and put the pressure on the exchange rate. To limit excessive foreign exchange volatility, the NBG sold US$92.8 million in the second half of 2019. Overall, the net purchases by the NBG amounted US$123.5 million in 2019. During the year, the nominal effective exchange rate depreciated annually by 7.9%, while the real effective exchange rate depreciated by 5.3%.

In the first half of 2020, the COVID-19 prevention measures and deteriorated global economic conditions negatively affected Georgia’s trade balance and business sentiments, which induced upward pressure on exchange rate depreciation. To counter excessive volatility on exchange rate market, the NBG sold US$221.0 million (as of June 30, 2020). Overall, the nominal effective exchange rate depreciated by 4.3%, while the real effective exchange rate depreciated by 2.1% in June 2020, annually.

The press release about the foreign exchange interventions is published on the day of the auction and also in the statistics section.
Free floating

Official exchange rate

| Yes. |

The official exchange rate for the US dollar is determined daily and may be used (not mandatory) for state budget and tax accounting and for payments between the government and businesses and other legal entities. The official exchange rates for other currencies are based on the cross-rates for the dollar and other currencies in the international market. (1) The calculation period for the official exchange rate of the lari against the US dollar is from 4:30 p.m. of the previous business day to 4:30 p.m. of the calculation day within the Bloomberg trading platform (“trade platform”), taking into account all registered foreign exchange spot trades. The official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis the US dollar is calculated as the average weighted exchange rate on the interbank market during the calculation period within the trade platform for registered trades. Trades concluded with the NBG as counterparty are considered interbank trades. (2) The following instances are not considered in the determination of the official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis the US dollar: (a) trades at rates significantly different from other registered trades: A rate is considered significantly different if it is either 2.5% higher or lower than the average weighted exchange rate of all the other registered trades within the calculation period (in practice, since the introduction of the new system in 2009, there have been only a few cases for excluding outliers) and (b) opposite trades between two counterparties with similar rates and amounts. (3) Trades used in the calculation of the official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis the US dollar for the previous day may be used in the calculation of the official exchange rate during the calculation period if (a) the number of registered trades within the trade platform during the calculation period that may be used in the calculation of the official exchange rate is three or fewer than three or (b) the total amount of the trades within the trade platform during the calculation period that may be used in the calculation of the official exchange rate is less than US$1.5 million. (4) The official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis other foreign currencies is determined according to the rate in international markets or the issuer country’s domestic interbank currency market on the basis of cross-currency exchange rates. (5) The list of market segments for foreign currencies (interbank or CB rate) used in the determination of the cross-currency exchange rate is determined by the NBG. (6) The sources for exchange rates are the Reuters and Bloomberg Information systems and CBs’ websites. (7) In the determination of cross-currency exchange rates, the latest available exchange rates are used. (8) Cross-currency exchange rates, the rates of foreign currencies (other than the lari) vis-à-vis the US dollar, are determined by the CB each business day from 2:45 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. In case of technical difficulties, a delay in the determination of exchange rates is permitted until the problems are resolved. Official exchange rate calculation is automated, using in-house software.

Auction: Yes.

The main goal of foreign exchange auctions is to build international reserves, eliminate the pressure on the exchange rate because of high temporary inflows/outflows of foreign capital, and/or balance a private or government financing gap. The multiple price foreign exchange auction (introduced in 2009) is held occasionally at the discretion of the NBG in US dollars. The NBG defines the type of intervention (sale/purchase), the amount of currency to be sold/purchased, and minimum and/or maximum acceptable exchange rates for bidding. The amount is announced using the Bloomberg system, at least one hour in advance of the auction. Participants may bid within a corridor around the official exchange rate. Corridor is defined by NBG for each auction, and it depends on current market condition. There are no limits on bid amounts; each bank may place only one bid. The settlement of currency exchange operations with successful bidders takes place on $t + 1$—that is, on the first business day following the trade date in Georgia and in the country whose currency was traded. The volume sold/purchased at the auction and the average exchange rates are posted on the NBG website immediately after the auction. In case of default, the NBG applies a fine. In case of a foreign currency sale auction, if a winning bank does not have sufficient funds in its national currency settlement account before the second cutoff of the real-time gross settlement on the auction settlement date, settlement will take place on the following business day. In case of foreign currency purchase auction, if a winning bank is unable to transfer sufficient foreign currency to its foreign currency correspondent account at the NBG before the end of business day of the issuer country of the foreign currency, the bank must pay a surcharge equal to 2% of the nominal value of purchased foreign currency. The value date of this transaction is the same as the foreign exchange auction settlement date. If a bank does not have sufficient funds in its settlement account at the NBG before the second cutoff of the real-time gross settlement on the business day following the auction settlement date, the winning bids of the bank are annulled. There is a surcharge on the national currency settlement account of a bank: If a bank does not have sufficient funds in its national currency settlement account, the surcharge is taken from the bank’s US dollar correspondent account and/or another foreign currency correspondent account at the NBG. The surcharge is calculated and charged using the official foreign exchange rates on the day of the transaction. Auction participants are not required to finance specific international transactions. Auctions are conducted in the interbank foreign exchange market in the Bloomberg system. All commercial banks licensed in Georgia may participate in this auction after receiving participating bank status from the NBG at their request.

Effective January 31, 2019, the NBG introduced a new instrument—foreign exchange options. Foreign exchange options are sold via auctions in exchange for a fee. The auction mechanism for options is based on multiple price auction. Foreign exchange option is a financial instrument, which gives the right to a holder (but not obligation) to buy national currency in exchange for foreign exchange (US dollar or EUR) during the predetermined period (usually the following month) at the official exchange rate. The condition of using the options is that the lari exchange rate should be stronger than the average of the previous 20 days. The strike price of the option is the official exchange rate of the day when an option is exercised, that is, average exchange rate of the previous day. The foreign exchange option instrument is not used since July 2019.
Fixing

No.

Interbank market

Yes.

The interbank spot exchange market, part of the foreign exchange spot market in Georgia, is based on the Bloomberg trading platform and is not operated by the CB. Any institution (financial and non-financial) that has the Bloomberg system can participate. There are no limits on bid-ask spread and commissions of market participants. As of June 30, 2020, 15 commercial banks and 4 microfinance organizations are participating in interbank foreign exchange market. There are also non-financial organizations that have Bloomberg terminals and can trade between themselves and with financial institutions, but they are not much active. Non-financial institutions are not part of interbank foreign exchange market.

Effective March 1, 2020, the NBG introduced a new foreign exchange trading system—BMatch. BMatch is Bloomberg’s foreign exchange trading platform that is based on the principle of automatic “matching” of transactions. Market participants will place foreign currency buying and selling applications on the BMatch platform, and if the exchange rates between the buyer and seller of the currency coincide, then the currency transactions between the parties will be concluded automatically. At the first stage, only commercial banks will participate in the BMatch platform. Companies are expected to participate at a later stage (from October 1, 2020) and will be able to access the BMatch platform in two ways: directly through Bloomberg terminal and indirectly through a commercial bank.

Over the counter

Yes. Any organization (financial and non-financial) may trade over the counter at freely determined rates.

Brokerage

No. There is no restriction for brokers, but in practice there are no foreign exchange brokers; banks and other participants use the Bloomberg trading platform and participate in the foreign exchange market directly.

Market making

Yes. The market operates on the basis of market makers. Participants are not obligated to serve as market makers.

Forward exchange market

Yes. This market is not active. The NBG does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. Foreign exchange turnover in outright forward and swap transactions is very shallow.

Effective January 31, 2019, the NBG introduced one-month put options that give banks the right to purchase the Georgian lari in exchange for US dollars or euros. Banks would exercise the option when the Georgian lari rate is above its average during the previous 20 working days. The foreign exchange option instrument is not used since July 2019, given the market conditions.

Under the Law of Georgia on Licenses and Permits, there are no nontariff limits on exports (licenses, quotas, prohibitions, and other), except regulations that are necessary for health, security, or environmental protection. In these later cases, licenses and permits are issued by the relevant ministries, such as the Ministry of Internal Affairs, Ministry of Environmental Protection and Agriculture, Ministry of Defense, Ministry of Health Care, Ministry of Education, Science, Culture and Sport, and State Security Service. Exports of goods of cultural value, which are on a list prepared by the Ministry of Culture and Monument Protection, are prohibited.

Different customs clearance fees (revenue service fees) are applied based on various services.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Yes. The NBG has set limits on (1) credits issued by commercial banks to individual borrowers, groups of borrowers, insider borrowers, and all large borrowers and (2) unsecured credits.

- Borrowing abroad
  No.

- Maintenance of accounts abroad
  No.

- Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)
  No.

Lending locally in foreign exchange
Yes. Higher capital is required for loans issued in foreign exchange. Effective January 23, 2019, banks are allowed to lend in foreign currency only if the loan amount is equivalent to more than 200,000 lari. (Previously, this limit was 100,000 lari.) This rule is applicable to resident debtors.

- Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange
  No.

- Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange
  Yes.

Reserve requirements
Yes. The reserve requirements on funds borrowed in the national currency amount to 5%. Borrowed funds with a remaining maturity of over one year in the national currency are exempt from reserve requirements. Effective May 16, 2019, the reserve requirements on funds borrowed... in the foreign currency were increased to:
- 30% from 25% for the borrowed funds with the remaining maturity up to one year and
- 15% from 10% for the borrowed funds with the remaining maturity between 1 and 2 years. Effective October 17, 2019, the reserve requirements on funds borrowed in the foreign currency with the remaining maturity up to one year were decreased to 25% from 30%.

Borrowed funds with a remaining maturity of over 2 years in the foreign currency are exempt from reserve requirements. Capital and funds equalized to capital are exempt from the required reserve norms.

There is also differentiation in remuneration. The interest rate remunerated on national currency required reserves is equal to the monetary policy rate. Effective October 3, 2019, the required reserves denominated in US dollar are remunerated at a rate equal to the US Federal Reserve System policy rate minus 0.5 percentage points (pps). The interest rates on euro reserves are 0.2 pps lower than the policy rate on deposit of the ECB. (Previously, the required reserves denominated in US dollar were remunerated at a rate equal to the US Federal Reserve System policy rate minus 2 pps but not less than 0%. The interest rates on euro reserves were 2 pps lower (but not less than 0.6%) than the policy rate on deposit of the ECB.)

Liquid asset requirements
Yes.

Effective January 1, 2020, liquid asset requirement was abolished. (Previously, the minimum average monthly liquid asset ratio was 30% of average monthly liabilities with maturities of less than six months. The requirement applied to the total amount of deposits in lari and foreign exchange.)

According to the LCR regulation, banks should maintain 100% LCR in foreign currency, while local currency LCR can be as low as 75%, given that LCR in all currencies in total exceeds 100%.

Interest rate controls
No.

Credit controls
No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents
Yes.

Reserve requirements
No.

Liquid asset requirements
Yes.

Effective January 1, 2020, liquid assets requirement including for nonresident deposits was abolished. (Previously, nonresidents’ deposits exceeding 10% of their share of total deposits are subtracted from average liquid assets, which must equal at least 30% of average monthly liabilities.)

According to the LCR regulation, banks should maintain 100% LCR in foreign currency, while local currency LCR can be as low as 75%, given that LCR in all currencies in total exceeds 100%. Outflow rates for nonresident deposits are higher than for deposits of residents, on average, by about 20 pps.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Classification

Floating

The National Bank of Georgia introduced a new instrument—foreign exchange options. The main goal of using foreign exchange options is filling the international reserves. Foreign exchange option is a financial instrument, which gives the right to a holder (but not obligation) to buy national currency in exchange for foreign exchange (US dollar or EUR) during the predetermined period at the official exchange rate. The condition of using the options is that the lari exchange rate should be stronger than the average of the previous 20 days.

The National Bank of Georgia introduced a new foreign exchange trading system—Bloomberg’s BMatch. This foreign exchange trading platform is based on the principle of automatic “matching” of transactions. Market participants will place foreign currency buying and selling applications on the BMatch platform, and if the exchange rates between the buyer and seller of the currency coincide, then the currency transactions between the parties will be concluded automatically. At the first stage, only commercial banks will participate in the BMatch platform. Companies are expected to participate at a later stage (from October 1, 2020) and will be able to access the BMatch platform in two ways: directly through Bloomberg terminal and indirectly through a commercial bank.

Auction

The National Bank of Georgia introduced a new instrument—foreign exchange options. Foreign exchange options are sold via auctions in exchange for a fee. The auction mechanism for options is based on multiple price auction. Foreign exchange option is a financial instrument, which gives the right to a holder (but not obligation) to buy national currency in exchange for foreign exchange (US dollar or EUR) during the predetermined period (usually the following month) at the official exchange rate. The condition of using the options is that the lari exchange rate should be stronger than the average of the previous 20 days. The strike price of the option is the official exchange rate of the day when an option is exercised, that is, average exchange rate of the previous day.

The National Bank of Georgia introduced a new foreign exchange trading system—BMatch. BMatch is Bloomberg’s foreign exchange trading platform that is based on the principle of automatic “matching” of transactions. Market participants will place foreign currency buying and selling applications on the BMatch platform, and if the exchange rates between the buyer and seller of the currency coincide, then the currency transactions between the parties will be... concluded automatically. At the first stage, only commercial banks will participate in the BMatch platform. Companies are expected to participate at a later stage (from October 1, 2020) and will be able to access the BMatch platform in two ways: directly through Bloomberg terminal and indirectly through a commercial bank.

The National Bank of Georgia introduced one-month put options that give banks the right to purchase the Georgian lari in exchange for US dollars or euros. Banks would exercise the option when the Georgian lari rate is above its average during the previous 20 working days.

Capital Transactions

Nonresidents are allowed to purchase agricultural land on the ground of investment plan approved by the government. (Previously, selling agricultural land to foreigners was prohibited.)

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

The loan amount banks are allowed to lend in foreign currency to a resident was increased to the equivalent of more than 200,000 lari from the previous 100,000 lari.

The reserve requirements on funds borrowed in the foreign currency were increased to:
- 30% from 25% for the borrowed funds with the remaining maturity up to one year and
- 15% from 10% for the borrowed funds with the remaining maturity between 1 and 2 years.

The required reserves denominated in US dollar were remunerated at a rate equal to the US Federal Reserve System policy rate minus 0.5 percentage points (pps). The interest rates on euro reserves are 0.2 pps lower than the policy rate on deposit of the European Central Bank (ECB). (Previously, the required reserves denominated in US dollar were remunerated at a rate equal to the US Federal Reserve System policy rate minus 2 pps but not less than 0%. The interest rates on euro reserves were 2 pps lower (but not less than 0.6%) than the policy rate on deposit of the ECB.)

The reserve requirements on funds borrowed in the foreign currency with the remaining maturity up to one year were decreased to 25% from 30%.

Liquid assets requirement was abolished. (Previously, the minimum average monthly liquid asset ratio was 30% of average monthly liabilities with maturities of less than six months. The requirement applied to the total amount of deposits in lari and foreign exchange.)

Liquid assets requirement including for nonresident deposits was abolished. (Previously, nonresidents’ deposits exceeding 10% of their share of total deposits are subtracted from average liquid assets, which must equal at least 30% of average monthly liabilities.)

Stabilized arrangement
The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Germany participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is commonly defined as inflation rates at levels below, but close to, 2% over the medium term.

Conducting banking business and providing financial services require a license from the ECB (see Article 4 (1)(a) Regulation No. 1024/2013). Providing financial services requires a license from the Federal Financial Supervisory Authority (Section 32 of the Banking Act). Dealing in foreign notes and coins requires a license because of the risk of money laundering. This refers primarily to exchange bureaus as specialized financial institutions: a license to conduct the overall banking business already includes permission to deal in foreign currency. Hotels, travel agencies, and department stores dealing in foreign currency only as a secondary business do not need a license. As of June 30, 2020, about 1,401 deposit-taking credit institutions and 11 financial services institutions (non-microfinance institutions), and 5 other non-microfinance institutions were... permitted to deal in foreign currency.

Controls apply (1) to investment in air transportation enterprises, which (in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1008/2008) must be more than 50% owned directly or indirectly through one or more intermediate companies by members and/or nationals of EU members; an enterprise must notify its licensing authority within 14 days of any change in ownership of a single shareholding that represents 10% or more of the total; (2) to the acquisition of a German flag vessel, except through an enterprise incorporated in Germany or in another member of the EU; (3) to investment in the broadcasting (radio and television) sector, except through a subsidiary incorporated in Germany, as required for both residents and nonresidents; (4) to the use of depository banks for investment funds of capital investment companies, which is (in accordance with Directive No. 2009/65/EC) not permitted for branches of nonresident financial institutions whose head office is outside the EU, except for funds not covered under Directive No. 2009/65/EC and not sold in other EU-member countries; (5) to a depository of a UCITS, which (under EC Directive No. 2009/65) must have its registered office either in the same EU country as that of the company or be established in the EU country if its registered office is in another EU country; (6) to investments in certain arms or cryptographic systems manufacturers, which (under Section 60 et seq. of the German Foreign Trade Ordinance) require notification if the transaction will give a foreign investor at least, from December 29, 2018, 10% (previously 25%) of the voting rights; restrictions may be imposed to secure the “material security interests” of Germany; and (7) under Section 55 et seq. of the German Foreign Trade Ordinance, which may, to secure “public order or security,” restrict investments in any other German enterprise by an investor from outside the EU or EFTA that will give the investor at least 25% of the voting rights and, from December 29, 2018, at least 10% of the voting rights in case of an enterprise of a sensitive civil sector (that is, critical infrastructure). Effective June 3, 2020, the following products and services were brought under the regime of critical infrastructure: (1) in healthcare sector, personal protective equipment, essential drugs, in vitro diagnostics in the field of infectious diseases and medical devices, and (2) in the media sector, services necessary to ensure the freedom from interference and functionality of state communications infrastructures of the Federal Agency for Digital Radio Safety. The government also clarified that asset deals are in the scope of the FDI screening regime and that the review may take into account whether an acquirer is directly or indirectly controlled by foreign government or its agencies.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices

Yes.  The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Ghana states that, as of November 21, 2019, Ghana maintained one exchange restriction and an MCP subject to IMF approval. The exchange restriction arises from the limitation/prohibition in purchasing and transferring foreign exchange for import transactions by importers who have not submitted to the commercial bank customs entry forms for any past foreign exchange transactions related to imports, and which are unrelated to the underlying transaction. An MCP also arises, because the Bank of Ghana (BOG) requires the use of its internal rate (that is, the previous day’s weighted average interbank exchange rate) for government transactions and the surrender of foreign exchange proceeds from cocoa exports funded through the cocoa syndicated loan without having a mechanism in place to ensure that, at the time of the transaction, this exchange rate does not differ from the rate prevailing in the market rate (that is, the interbank exchange rate) and the rates used by banks in their transactions with their customers by more than 2%. (Country Report No. 19/367)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

Exchange Arrangement

Currency

Yes.  The currency of Ghana is the Ghanaian cedi (GHC).

Other legal tender

No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary

Dual

Yes.  The BOG uses a reference rate for certain official transactions. This rate does not involve a mechanism to ensure that it does not differ from the prevailing market rate by more than 2%, thus giving rise to an MCP. The BOG publishes daily reference foreign exchange rates against cedis. The US dollar–cedi reference midrate is the weighted average of all the daily spot foreign exchange market transactions of at least US$10,000 reported by all banks until 2:30 p.m. to the BOG, excluding transactions where the BOG was a counterparty. The other currencies’ reference rate to cedis is based on the current cross-rates in the international foreign exchange market from Reuters.

Multiple

Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Conventional peg
- Stabilized arrangement
- Crawling peg
- Crawl-like arrangement
- Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands
- Other managed arrangement

Floating Yes. The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. The exchange rate of the cedi is determined by market forces. Ghana joined the W-ERM II of the WAMZ, which requires that the spot exchange rate between the cedi and the US dollar be maintained within a margin of ±15% around the central rate. However, the authorities are yet to implement these measures. The BOG does not publish information on its interventions.

During 2019, the following factors impacted the exchange rate:

1. Market uncertainties surrounding Ghana’s successful completion of the IMF Emergency Credit Facility (ECF) program during the first quarter of 2019.

2. Relatively high energy-related foreign exchange demand combined with demand for foreign exchange to cover nonresident bond investor coupons and bond maturities’ repatriation.

Free floating

Official exchange rate Yes. The BOG publishes daily reference foreign exchange rates against the cedi. The US dollar–cedi reference midrate is the weighted average of all the daily spot foreign exchange market transactions of at least US$10,000 reported by all banks until 2:30 p.m. to the BOG excluding, effective January 18, 2019, transactions where the BOG was a counterparty. All bank-bank and bigger size (above US $10,000) bank-customer deals concluded and reported are included. The other currencies’ reference rate to the cedi is based on the current cross-rates in the international foreign exchange market from Reuters. The previous day’s reference rate as computed is used for all transactions involving the BOG, except market intervention.

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework

Yes. The Inflation-Targeting Framework was formally adopted for the conduct of the Bank’s monetary policy in 2007 and remains the monetary policy framework.

Target setting body

Government

Central Bank

Monetary Policy Committee

Central Bank Board

Other

Yes. The inflation target is set by consensus between the Central Bank and the Government (Ministry of Finance), taking into consideration prevailing macroeconomic conditions and policy consistency, and the need to provide certainty in the outlook. The current target of 8% was set in 2014 and has not been revised since. Prior to that, annual targets were set, given the prevalence of high inflation rates in the country.

Inflation target

Target number

Yes.

Point target

Yes.

Target with tolerance band

Yes. For 2020, the medium-term inflation target remains 8±2% with a forecast horizon over four quarters ahead.

Band/Range

Target measure

Yes.

CPI

Yes. The CB targets inflation, which is defined as the year-on-year (y-o-y) change in the CPI. The CPI measures the change in the general price level of goods and services with August 2018 as the revised base year.

Core inflation

Target horizon

Yes. The target horizon is four quarters ahead.

Operating target (policy rate)

Policy rate

Yes. The policy rate was used in fixed-rate full allotment auctions of 14-day BOG bills. The monetary policy rate is currently at 14.5% (August 2020). The interest rate corridor is the monetary policy rate ±1%.

The Bank is accountable to the legislature and is required to submit monetary and financial stability reports that provide extensive details on the monetary policy course of action to parliament in February and August each year. As conditions determine, the legislature may issue summons to the governor to appear before its Finance Committee to address specific issues bordering on the conduct of monetary policy and financial stability.

Transparency

Yes.

Publication of votes

No. The BOG does not publish the votes.

Publication of minutes

No. The BOG does not publish policy meeting minutes but after each policy meeting the BOG publishes a Monetary Policy Committee statement and transcript of the press conference.

Publication of inflation forecasts

Yes. The BOG publishes the inflation forecasts six times a year in the Inflation Outlook and Analysis Report after Monetary Policy Committee meetings.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax

No.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. Commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients; however, for funds sourced from the BOG, a 25 basis point (bp) cap on banks' subsequent trades with customers is expected. Offshore foreign exchange deals by resident and nonresident companies, including exporters, are strictly prohibited (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/03).

Spot exchange market

Yes. Foreign exchange bureaus may operate and must be licensed by the BOG. As of December 31, 2019, there were 419 authorized foreign exchange bureaus. They do not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the BOG. However, foreign exchange bureaus may deposit and withdraw foreign exchange from their foreign exchange account with their commercial banks. They may make spot transactions but may not hold accounts abroad or accept deposits in cedis or foreign exchange from any person or corporate body with the intent of obtaining or supplying foreign exchange or the cedi equivalent either wholly or in part at a future date, and their operations are limited to purchases and sales of banknotes. ADs may quote spot interbank exchange rates for trades settled within two business days or as agreed by counterparties. Foreign exchange bureaus quote rates for the same-day settlement. Foreign exchange bureaus may not sell or buy more than US$10,000 or its equivalent a transaction (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/01).

Operated by the central bank

Yes. The BOG buys and sells foreign exchange at the interbank market average rates based on its annual cash flow projection.

Foreign exchange standing facility

No.

Allocation

Yes. The BOG has since July 2015 ceased to provide support to local banks to meet LC requirements for crude oil imports.

Auction

No.

Fixing

No.

Interbank market

Yes. A formal interbank foreign exchange market has been developing since 2006. Banks may trade among themselves at freely determined rates, and the market operates over the counter. As of December 31, 2018, there were 24 major banks participating in the market. There is a limit of 25 pips between the bid-ask exchange rate. ADs must show two-way quotes with a maximum spread of 25 basis points (bps). The BOG buys and sells foreign currency to the banks at the interbank exchange rates.

Over the counter: Yes. A formal interbank foreign exchange market has been developing since 2006. Banks may trade among themselves at freely determined rates on the interbank Reuters dealing platform.

Brokerage: No.

Market making: No.

Forward exchange market: Yes. ADs may engage in forward foreign exchange transactions. The BOG has conducted a number of swaps with AD banks as a means of promoting and developing foreign exchange products on the market.

Official cover of forward operations: No.

References to legal instruments and hyperlinks: This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements: Yes. Settlements related to transactions covered by bilateral payments agreements are made through government nostro accounts maintained at the BOG and other countries’ CBs and commercial banks. All convertible currencies are accepted for all transactions.

Controls on the use of domestic currency: Yes. Local currency may not be used in international current and capital transactions. All transactions in Ghana must be conducted in cedis, which is the sole legal tender (BOG/GOV/SEC/2012/12).

For current transactions and payments: Yes.

For capital transactions: Yes.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments: Yes.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments: Yes.

Credit operations: Yes.

Use of foreign exchange among residents: Yes. Cash withdrawals over the counter from Foreign Exchange Accounts (FEAs) and Foreign Currency Accounts (FCAs) are permitted. For travel outside Ghana, cash withdrawals may not exceed US$10,000 or its equivalent in convertible foreign currency, a person, a trip (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/09 and BOG Press Release of August 8, 2014).

Transactions among residents in foreign currency are prohibited, unless the BOG gives prior authorization to do so.

Payments arrangements: Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements: Yes.

Operative: No.

Inoperative: Yes. Ghana has bilateral payments agreements with Bulgaria, China, Cuba, the Czech Republic, Poland, Romania, and the Slovak Republic. There have been delays in the settlement of clearing balances on these agreements.

Regional arrangements: Yes. Ghana is a member of the WAMA, WAMZ, and ECOWAS.
Barter agreements and open accounts No.

Administration of control Yes. The BOG records and confirms foreign capital inflows and administers foreign exchange for official payments and travel. All other foreign exchange transactions by the private sector are approved and effected by ADs without reference to the BOG.

Payments arrears No.
Official No.
Private No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) No.
On domestic ownership and/or trade No. Residents may purchase, sell, and hold gold in all forms.
On external trade No. Gold bullion exports must be reported to the BOG.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.
On exports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. The exportation of Ghanaian banknotes is permitted up to GHC500.

Foreign currency Yes. Residents and nonresidents traveling abroad are permitted to carry up to the equivalent of US$10,000 in cash, traveler’s checks, or bank drafts for direct purchases. Nonresident travelers may reexport foreign currency in excess of US$10,000, provided the amount was declared on entry. ADs may freely export foreign currency but must provide documentation. Any person arriving in or departing from Ghana is permitted to carry up to US$10,000.00 or its equivalent in any monetary instruments without declaration. Any amount in excess of US$10,000.00 must be declared indicating the source and purpose for carrying such an amount.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. Travelers may reimport up to GHC500 they initially exported.

Foreign currency No. Commercial banks are allowed to import foreign currency with notice to the BOG indicating the amount and currencies, for monitoring purposes only. Any person arriving in or departing from Ghana is permitted to carry up to US$10,000.00 or its equivalent in any monetary instruments without declaration. Any amount in excess of US$10,000.00 must be declared indicating the source and purpose for carrying such an amount.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.
Held domestically Yes. Residents and nonresidents may open FEAs and FCAs. Balances in these accounts are held in foreign currency.

FEAs may be opened by Ghana residents and nonresidents with any AD bank in Ghana. FEAs can be credited with foreign exchange generated from activities in Ghana such as proceeds from exports of goods and services and any other foreign exchange earnings not subject to surrender requirements. Balances on these accounts cannot be freely transferred without the necessary supporting documentation to back the underlying transaction. Holders of the account can transfer up to US$10,000.00 per annum from these accounts to meet payment obligations abroad without documentation. The thresholds for transfers abroad by importers without initially submitting documentation to their bankers are US$50,000.00.

FCAs may be opened by residents, nonresidents, and non-Ghanaians with any AD bank in Ghana. These accounts can be credited only with unrequited transfers such as transfers from abroad for investment or embassy transfers. Balances are freely transferrable in Ghana and abroad in convertible currencies. These accounts may be debited for payment, for transfers to other foreign accounts, and for purchases of external currencies. These accounts are free from any restrictions, besides being fed only with unrequited transfers. Documentation for transfers from FCAs is the regular form used by the banks, which also indicates the purpose of the transfer.

Transfers from FEAs and FCAs to cedi accounts are permitted. Except for transfers from FEA to FCA which are prohibited, all other transfers between accounts are permitted. Checks and checkbooks may be issued by banks to holders of FEAs and FCAs (BOG Press Release of August 8, 2014).

External transfers from FEAs and FCAs and electronic card payments by importers up to US$50,000 are permitted without initial documentation. Where documentation in respect of a transfer remains outstanding, any subsequent import transaction by the importer, irrespective of value, can only be made on prior provision of documentation required for the current import transaction. Importers were allowed to continue to use the margin account (managed by banks on their behalf) to build up foreign exchange to be used exclusively for the purpose for which the account was opened (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/09).

FEAs may be opened by Ghana residents and nonresidents with any AD bank in Ghana. FEAs can be credited with foreign exchange generated from activities in Ghana such as proceeds from exports of goods and services and any other foreign exchange earnings not subject to surrender requirements. Balances on these accounts cannot be freely transferred without the... necessary supporting documentation to back the underlying transaction. Holders of the account can transfer up to US$10,000.00 per annum from these accounts to meet payment obligations abroad without documentation. The thresholds for transfers abroad by importers without initially submitting documentation to their bankers are US$50,000.00.

FCAs may be opened by residents, nonresidents, and non-Ghanaians with any AD bank in Ghana. These accounts can be credited only with unrequited transfers such as transfers from abroad for investment or embassy transfers. Balances are freely transferrable in Ghana and abroad in convertible currencies. These accounts may be debited for payment, for transfers to other foreign accounts, and for purchases of external currencies. These accounts are free from any restrictions, besides being fed only with unrequited transfers. Documentation for transfers from FCAs is the regular form used by the banks, which also indicates the purpose of the transfer.

Transfers from FEAs and FCAs to cedi accounts are permitted. Except for transfers from FEA to FCA which are prohibited, all other transfers between accounts are permitted. Checks and checkbooks may be issued by banks to holders of FEAs and FCAs (BOG Press Release of August 8, 2014). External transfers from FEAs and FCAs and electronic card payments by importers up to US$50,000 are permitted without initial documentation (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/09).

Other monetary framework Yes. To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2%.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Credit institutions are authorized to carry out activities in the spot exchange markets, and they are the major participants in this market, either on their own account or on behalf of their customers. In addition to credit institutions, foreign exchange bureaus are legal entities also authorized to carry out OTC spot activities with any natural person, keeping up with the general and specific money-laundering legal and regulatory framework. They are supervised by the BOG. The volume of their activities is insignificant. There is no parallel market. The requirements for the establishment and operation of exchange bureaus as sociétés anonymes (public limited companies) other than credit institutions are stipulated in Law No. 2515/1997, BOG Governor’s Act No. 2541/27 of February 2004, as amended by BOG Governor’s Act No. 2641/20 of April 2011. Pursuant to Article 15 of Law No. 2515/1997, as amended, the BOG is responsible for authorizing the establishment, operation, and supervision of exchange bureaus. As of June 30, 2020, there were 10 foreign exchange bureaus authorized to engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the BOG. They engage in purchasing and selling foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks, money transfer intermediation, promotion of and intermediation in the supply of bank products and services (excluding commitments on behalf of credit institutions and the execution of payments or receipts on behalf of such institutions), advance payments to credit card holders, payment of bills issued by noncredit institutions, and so on. Subject to certain conditions, such companies may cooperate with credit institutions in the transfer of funds that (1) are credited to deposit accounts of the principals or beneficiaries; (2) maintained with the cooperating credit institution, either directly or through deposit accounts maintained by these companies with the cooperating credit institutions; or (3) concern the payment of bills/liabilities of the principals to credit institutions. Some of these conditions do not apply to cooperation with a parent credit institution based in Greece or another EEA country.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Yes. All remaining limits on the use of funds deposited in Greek bank accounts and the opening of accounts in Greek banks, which were first introduced on June 28, 2015, and July 18, 2015, were lifted on September 1, 2019.

Effective September 1, 2019, all restrictions on fund transfers abroad were lifted. Previously, transfers by individuals abroad were subject to Bank Transactions Approval Committee (BTAC) approval with some exceptions: Individuals could transfer the cost of medical treatment and tuition fees for study abroad without limit—€5,000 a quarter for living expenses (€8,000 if transferred directly to the educational institution)—and withdraw in cash or transfer €2,000 for the expenses of the person escorting the person undergoing medical treatment abroad, subject to documentation. From July 1, 2018, the acceptance and execution by credit institutions of orders of fund transfers abroad was allowed up to €4,000 a customer ID a calendar two-month period without documentation up to an aggregate monthly ceiling in euro to be determined and allocated among credit institutions by decision of the BTAC. Depositors could use their deposits to buy domestic financial instruments without limit. Credit and debit cards issued by Greek banks could be used for payments abroad with specific limits granted to banks from the BTAC.

Effective September 1, 2019, all restrictions on cash withdrawals abroad were lifted. Previously, there was a monthly limit of €5,000 either from a debit, credit, or prepaid card. Effective September 1, 2019, all restrictions on transfers of funds of businesses (legal persons and entrepreneurs) abroad were lifted. Previously, such transfers were subject to approval by the subcommittees of the banks established for that purpose based on documentary evidence and declaration that the documents were original and had not been submitted to another bank for processing. From October 1, 2018, transfers of businesses (legal persons and entrepreneurs) abroad exceeding €1,000,000 (previously €700,000 from November 27, 2017) a depositor a day in a bank and transfers for purposes other than imports of goods had to be approved by the BTAC. Amounts below this limit could be approved by the bank’s subcommittee, while amounts below, from October 1, 2018, €100,000 a day (previously €40,000, from May 31, 2018, and €20,000, from November 27, 2017) could be executed by branches without prior approval by the bank’s subcommittee and did not require fulfillment of the so-called past historical data criteria (see below). transfers by depositors (legal persons and entrepreneurs) approved by the bank’s subcommittee were also subject to monthly limits based on the previous years’ monthly imports (48 months). Total monthly transfers approved by the bank’s subcommittee for a depositor (legal persons, entrepreneurs) could not exceed the maximum monthly imports plus 60% of those of the previous 48 months. The past historical data import requirement did not apply to transfers for the acquisition of fixed assets and subscriptions and transfers by businesses established after October 1, 2014. Approvals by the BTAC and the subcommittees for transfers abroad were valid for 12 business days. Banks had to prioritize the transfers according to the due date of payment and types of goods imported and to safeguard public and social interest.

Effective September 1, 2019, all restrictions on banks’ transfers abroad on their own behalf and on behalf of their customers were lifted. Previously, banks were subject to weekly limits on the total amount of their transfers abroad on their own behalf and on behalf of their customers. Banks’ payments and transfers abroad for their own liquidity and risk management were exempt from the overall daily/weekly limit allocated to them by the BTAC. Exempt from the limit were the following transfers: (1) individuals’ tuition fee, student living expenses, and medical expenses and (2) interbank transactions of domestic banks, including with foreign banks—exempt from their overall BTAC limits. The weekly limit on transfers abroad for the banking system was gradually increased from €352 million to €1,060 million.

Effective September 1, 2019, all restrictions on resident insurance companies’ transfer abroad were lifted (in the same way as other (noninsurance) companies). Previously, resident insurance companies could transfer abroad periodic payments related to unit-linked investments based on contractual obligations as of June 28, 2015. Capital transfers were subject to BTAC approval. Early termination of deposits, early repayment of loans, and early redemption of time deposits were allowed.

| Approval required | No. | There are no restrictions on opening of new accounts, adding of coholders, or revival of dormant accounts. |
| Held abroad       | Yes. | According to Law No. 4364/2016, the distinction between assets that form part of the technical reserves and those that do not was eliminated. Effective September 1, 2019, all restrictions on the investment of the assets of insurance companies were lifted (in the same way as other (noninsurance) companies). Previously, there were temporary capital controls in place. |

Effective September 1, 2019, restrictions on transfer abroad of securities held by custodian and acquired after the start of the bank holiday or traded in regulated markets or multilateral trading platforms in Greece or abroad were lifted. Previously, they were prohibited. Controls apply to the purchase of shares and other securities of a participating nature in the broadcasting and maritime sectors that may be affected by the laws on inward direct investment and establishment. Effective September 1, 2019, all restrictions on transfers abroad of proceeds from nonresident investments in Greek financial instruments were lifted. Previously, an exception to the ban on transfers abroad, allowed nonresident depositors to transfer abroad proceeds from their investments in Greek financial instruments, including income if the investment was made through a nonresident’s investment account before June 28, 2015, or by transferring funds from abroad.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

No.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes.

According to Article 104 (prudent person principle) of Law No. 4364/2016 (Transposition of Directive No. 2009/138/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 25 November 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of insurance and reinsurance (Solvency II) into Greek legislation), the following apply: Insurance and reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the prudent person principle, as specified in Paragraphs 2, 3, and 4 of this article. With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must invest only in assets and instruments whose risks the investor can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs in accordance with Article 33 Paragraph 1 (a). All assets, in particular those covering the Minimum Capital Requirement and the Solvency Capital Requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries, taking into account any disclosed policy objective. In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity that manages their asset portfolio, must ensure that the investment is made in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries. Without prejudice to Paragraph 2, with respect to assets held with respect to life insurance contracts where the investment risk is borne by the policyholders, the second, third, and fourth subparagraphs of this paragraph apply. Where the benefits provided by a contract are directly linked to the value of units in a UCITS as defined in l. 4099/2012 (Government Gazette A 250) or in Directive No. 2009/65/EC, or to the value of assets contained in an internal fund held by the insurance companies, usually divided into units, the technical provisions with respect to those benefits must be represented as closely as possible by those units or, if units are not established, by those assets. Where the benefits provided by a contract are directly linked to a share index or some other reference value other than those referred to in the second subparagraph, the technical provisions with respect to those benefits must be represented as closely as possible either by the units deemed to represent the reference value or, if units are not established, by assets of appropriate security and marketability that correspond as closely as possible with those on which the particular reference value is based. Where the benefits referred to in the second and third subparagraphs include a guarantee of investment performance or some other guaranteed benefit, the assets held to cover the corresponding additional technical provisions are subject to Paragraph 4. Without prejudice to Paragraph 2, with respect to assets other than those covered by Paragraph 3, the second to fifth subparagraphs of this paragraph apply. The use of derivative instruments is possible insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management. Investment and assets that are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market must be kept to prudent levels. Assets must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, must not expose the insurance companies to excessive risk concentration.

No. According to Article 105 (freedom of investment) of Law No. 4364/2016, insurance and reinsurance companies must invest in accordance with this law without any other restriction, and their investment decisions must not be subject to the prior approval or systematic notification the Supervisory Authority. Effective September 1, 2019, temporary capital controls were lifted and no longer affect the investments of the assets of the insurance companies, which were previously affected in the same way as other (noninsurance) companies.

Pension funds

Yes.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes. Special controls apply to second-pillar OPFs in accordance with Law No. 3586/2007 in the form of portfolio diversification limits. These funds are allowed to invest in shares, bonds, and corporate bonds listed on regulated markets and issued in Greece or in another member of the EU or the EEA; shares in mutual funds and UCITS that fall under Directive No. 2009/65/EC, as amended, and operate in any EU or EEA member country; and government securities, bank deposits, and real estate. OPFs, as long-term institutional investors, may invest in the above-mentioned financial instruments within prudential limits, according to Law No. 3586/2007 and the associated ministerial decrees. Effective September 1, 2019, the need for BTAC approval for capital transfers was lifted. Changes during 2019 and 2020

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Administration of control

- 09/01/2019

There are no exchange controls from this date. Previously, from July 20, 2015, temporary controls were implemented on certain cross-border and domestic payments and transfers.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

- Held domestically

09/01/2019

All restrictions on cash withdrawals abroad were lifted. Previously, there was a monthly limit of €5,000 either from a debit, credit, or prepaid card.

09/01/2019

All restrictions on resident insurance companies’ transfer abroad were lifted (in the same way as other (noninsurance) companies). Previously, resident insurance companies could transfer abroad periodic payments related to unit-linked investments based on contractual obligations as of June 28, 2015. Capital transfers were subject to Bank Transactions Approval Committee approval. Early termination of deposits, early repayment of loans, and early redemption of time deposits were allowed.

All restrictions on fund transfers abroad were lifted. Previously, transfers by individuals abroad were subject to Bank Transactions Approval Committee (BTAC) approval with some exceptions: individuals could transfer the cost of medical treatment and tuition fees for study abroad without limit—€5,000 a quarter for living expenses (€8,000 if transferred directly to the educational institution)—and withdraw in cash or transfer €2,000 for the expenses of the person escorting the person undergoing medical treatment abroad, subject to documentation. From July 1, 2018, the acceptance and execution by credit institutions of orders of fund transfers abroad was allowed up to €4,000 a customer ID a calendar two-month period without documentation up to an aggregate monthly ceiling in euro to be determined and allocated among credit institutions by decision of the BTAC. Before, the limit was increased to €2,000 a calendar two-month period from €1,000 a month, from March 1, 2018.

Depositors could use their deposits to buy domestic financial instruments without limit. Credit and debit cards issued by Greek banks could be used for payments abroad with specific limits granted to banks from the BTAC.

All restrictions on transfers of funds of businesses (legal persons and entrepreneurs) abroad were lifted. Previously, such transfers were subject to approval by the subcommittees of the banks established for that purpose based on documentary evidence and declaration that the documents were original and had not been submitted to another bank for processing. From October 1, 2018, transfers of businesses (legal persons and entrepreneurs) abroad exceeding €1,000,000 (previously €700,000 from November 27, 2017) a depositor a day in a bank and transfers for purposes other than imports of goods had to be approved by the Bank Transactions Approval Committee (BTAC). Amounts below this limit could be approved by the bank’s subcommittee, while amounts below, from October 1, 2018, €100,000 a day (previously €40,000, from May 31, 2018, and €20,000, from November 27, 2017) could be executed by branches without prior approval by the bank’s subcommittee and did not require fulfillment of the so-called past historical data criteria (see below). Daily transfers by depositors (legal persons and entrepreneurs) approved by the bank’s subcommittee were also subject to monthly limits based on the previous years’ monthly imports (48 months). Total monthly transfers approved by the bank’s subcommittee for a depositor (legal persons, entrepreneurs) could not exceed the maximum monthly imports plus 60% of those of the previous 48 months. The past historical data import requirement did not apply to transfers for the acquisition of fixed assets and subscriptions and transfers by businesses established after October 1, 2014. Approvals by the BTAC and the subcommittees for transfers abroad were valid for 12 business days. Banks had to prioritize the transfers according to the due date of payment and types of goods imported and to safeguard public and social interest.

All restrictions on banks’ transfers abroad on their own behalf and on behalf of their customers were lifted. Previously, banks were subject to weekly limits on the total amount of their transfers abroad on their own behalf and on behalf of their customers. Banks’ payments and transfers abroad for their own liquidity and risk management were exempt from the overall daily/weekly limit allocated to them by the Bank Transactions Approval Committee (BTAC). Exempt from the limit were the following transfers: (1) individuals’ tuition fee, student living expenses, and medical expenses and (2) interbank transactions of domestic banks, including with foreign banks—exempt from their overall BTAC limits. The weekly limit on transfers abroad for the banking system was gradually increased from €352 million to €1,060 million.

Held abroad 09/01/2019 All restrictions on the investment of the assets of insurance companies were lifted (in the same way as other (noninsurance) companies). Previously, there were temporary capital controls in place.

All other transfers related to the sale or issues of foreign securities in Greece were subject to Bank Transactions Approval Committee approval.

Restrictions on transfers abroad of funds for the acquisition of financial instruments and of securities held by custodian if acquired after June 28, 2015, were lifted. Previously, they were prohibited, and depositors were not permitted to use their deposits with Greek banks to purchase foreign financial instruments, except (1) with cash or new funds transferred from abroad and (2) for the reinvestment of the proceeds from the sale or liquidation of foreign investments in foreign instruments or domestic stocks and bonds.

Temporary capital controls were lifted and no longer affect the investment of the assets of the insurance companies (in the same way as other (noninsurance) companies). Previously, resident insurance companies could transfer abroad periodic payments related to unit-linked investments based on contractual obligations as existed June 28, 2015.

All restrictions on fund transfers abroad were lifted. Previously, from July 1, 2018, the acceptance and execution by credit institutions of orders of fund transfers abroad was allowed up to €4,000 a customer ID a calendar two-month period without documentation up to an aggregate monthly ceiling in euro to be determined and allocated among credit institutions by decision of the Bank Transactions Approval Committee. Before, the limit was increased to €2,000 a calendar two-month period from €1,000 a month, from March 1, 2018.

The need for Bank Transactions Approval Committee approval for capital transfers was abolished.

Import taxes and/or tariffs  Yes. Grenada applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET. Imports from non-CARICOM countries are subject to the following CET rates: 40% for most agricultural imports and 5%–20% for most other items. Most imports are subject to a 6% customs service charge. Imports not exempt from customs duties are subject to a VAT regime with a standard rate of 15%, a reduced rate for hotel accommodation and dive activity of 10%, and a rate of 0% for certain goods and services. There are environmental levies of EC$0.25 on each imported glass bottle and EC$0.50 on each plastic bottle containing liquid (including carbonated and noncarbonated beverages and syrups). Other levies include a 1% charge on the c.i.f. value of certain durable consumer items, a 2% charge on the c.i.f. value of imported used cars less than five years old, a 30% charge on the c.i.f. value of imported cars five years old or older, and a 5%–20% charge on the c.i.f. value of imported used trucks. Imports of capital equipment are subject to a minimum charge of 5% under the CET and 15% under the VAT. However, most capital imports are granted exemptions from import duties, and all capital imports by domestic commodity boards involved in the growing or packaging of bananas, cocoa, or nutmeg are exempt from import duties, provided the imports are used for improvements in these industries.

Taxes collected through the exchange system  No.

State import monopoly  Yes. The Marketing and National Importing Board is the sole authorized importer of bulk purchases of whole milk, white and brown sugar, and brown rice.

Derivatives are not allowed in Grenada under the Securities Act.

Local currency financing requires the MOF approval and is not usually permitted.

Cabinet approval via the Grenada Industrial Development Corporation is usually required for nonresidents to engage in manufacturing and hotel operations, and an alien landholding license is required for nonresidents to hold financial and physical property. Nonresident labor services are usually allowed with work permits, which are issued by the Ministry of Labor.

Remittances of proceeds are permitted, provided all related liabilities have been discharged and the original investment has been registered with the MOF.

An alien landholding license must be issued by the office of the prime minister.

Borrowing abroad by nationals to finance their domestic operations generally requires the MOF approval.

The de jure exchange arrangement is floating. In accordance with the Monetary Law and the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law, Guatemala has a flexible exchange rate arrangement under which the rate is determined in the foreign exchange market by supply and demand. However, the Bank of Guatemala (BOG) may intervene in the foreign exchange market to limit volatility in the nominal exchange rate, without affecting its trend. The BOG intervenes through foreign exchange auctions based on a transparent rule, which limits daily volatility. The fluctuation band (added to or subtracted from the moving average exchange rate from the past five days) used to determine whether the BOG can participate in the foreign exchange market is 0.80%. The maximum amount of daily currency purchases or sales is US$50.0 million, which has served to adjust the amounts auctioned to the increased volumes traded on the foreign exchange market. The BOG may also intervene when the nominal exchange rate shows unusual volatility, but this instrument has only been used once (during the international financial crisis). The BOG’s intervention on the foreign exchange market during 2019 led to net foreign exchange purchases of US$1,328.9 million under the intervention rule, whereas in 2020 (with data as on June 30) this generated net foreign exchange purchases of US$755.00 million under the international reserve accumulation mechanism. The mechanism for the accumulation of international monetary reserves and foreign exchange purchases was not used during 2019; however, during the first half of 2020 this mechanism recorded purchases in the amount of US$258.0 million. While the international monetary reserve accumulation mechanism has been part of foreign exchange policy since 2014, it had not been used until 2018 (during the first five months of the year and between August 17 and October 31). This mechanism was incorporated into monetary policy to reduce the surplus of foreign exchange on the foreign exchange market and to strengthen the country’s external position, when feasible, and specifically to address any challenges that may arise from adverse international economic cycles in which the BOG might be required to use its foreign exchange reserves to dampen excessive exchange rate volatility to prevent the adverse effects of this volatility from being transmitted into economic activity and prices. Data on each intervention are available on the BOG’s website on a daily basis, at the time of each intervention.

The nominal exchange rate on December 31, 2019, recorded an appreciation of 0.49% year on year, as indicated, in connection with the shift in the fundamentals. In fact, in 2019, the flow of household remittances remained substantial, showing a rate of growth slightly lower than the previous year, which put pressure on appreciation. In addition, the observed increase in the value of imports and exports contributed to the fact that the nominal exchange rate behaved in relatively stable fashion throughout 2019. On June 30, 2020, the nominal exchange rate showed a year on year of 0.16% (cumulative depreciation of 0.02%); the rate’s behavior was associated with its fundamentals. Although for most of the first half of the year, the exchange rate continued to perform in accordance with its seasonal behavior and fundamentals, in the third week of March, the exchange rate over-reacted in response to the high levels of uncertainty associated with the global spread of COVID-19 and concerns regarding the latter’s potential impact on health and the economy. Against this backdrop, economic agents reacted by displaying excessive demand for foreign currency on the institutional foreign exchange market (IFEM) on March 24 and 25, generating exceptionally high levels of volatility. Accordingly, the BOG’s Execution Committee found that although the criteria governing the foreign exchange rules for participation in sales had been complied with, on that occasion it was appropriate to use the intervention authority on an exceptional basis to be able to offer a quantity that exceeded the amount specified under the intervention rule in cases of unusually high levels of volatility. In fact, the total amount offered on March 25 was US$230.0 million, and with that intervention, the BOG successfully mitigated the excess volatility observed in the nominal exchange rate, albeit without changing the long-term trend in that variable associated with its fundamentals (decline in household remittances, imports, and exports). The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

Official exchange rate  Yes.  The BOG calculates and publishes the reference exchange rate, which is equal to the weighted average of the exchange rates corresponding to all the foreign exchange buying and selling operations engaged in by the institutions in the IFEM. The reference exchange rate is applicable to, among other things, the settlement of tax and other obligations entailing payments to or from the government and its entities and the resolution of administrative and/or legal disputes.

Central Bank Board  Yes.  The target setting body is the Monetary Board (Junta Monetaria). Since 2005, the implementation of monetary, exchange rate, and credit policies in Guatemala has been based on the explicit inflation-targeting framework, which consists, in general terms, of a monetary policy strategy based on a commitment by the monetary authority and the CB to set an explicit target for inflation, taking into account one or more time frames to reach the said target. Against this background, as a result of the inflation-targeting framework consolidation process, the Monetary Board (Junta Monetaria) set a medium-term inflation target, as of 2013, of 4.0% ±1 percentage point, with the aim of achieving the inflation convergence process to reach the said target by anchoring the inflationary expectations of economic agents. The decisions taken by the Monetary Board are adopted by a majority vote of those members present. In practice, the majority of Monetary Board decisions are taken by consensus (Organic Law of the BOG, Article 21).

CPI | Yes. The BOG’s mission is to promote general price stability, measured with year-on-year changes in the CPI at the end of each year. The main monetary policy tool is the lead rate, which is determined through the comprehensive analysis of the balance of medium-term inflation risks. According to the 2009–2010 National Survey of Household Income and Expenditure, the CPI is defined as the measurement of the weighted average of prices of a basket of consumer goods and services corresponding to the largest items of final consumption expenditure. The base month for this index is December 2010.

On June 30, 2020, the monetary policy rate was 1.75%. The Monetary Board decided to reduce the monetary policy lead rate by 75 basis points in March 2020 and by 25 basis points in June 2020, to maintain an accommodating stance for that policy, which should help to moderate the economic impact connected with the public health measures aimed at curbing the COVID-19 pandemic and which should foster more rapid economic recovery through reduced credit costs.

Exchange tax  No.
Exchange subsidy  No.
Foreign exchange market  Yes.  In accordance with Article 1 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law, commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate and commissions for transactions with their customers.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  In accordance with Article 1 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law (Libre Negociación de Divisas), foreign exchange availability, holding, contracting, remittance, transfer, purchase and sale, and collection and payment are unrestricted. Holding and managing deposits and accounts and financial intermediation operations in foreign currency are unrestricted both in domestic banks and in banks abroad. The issuance of credit instruments or securities denominated in foreign currency requires authorization by the Monetary Board. Article 2 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law stipulates that the IFEM comprises the BOG, banks, private financial companies, stock exchanges, and foreign exchange bureaus. Currently, there are 16 banking institutions, 12 private financial companies, and 3 foreign exchange bureaus. Article 3 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law defines foreign exchange bureaus as nonbank institutions authorized by the Monetary Board to operate in the IFEM. In accordance with the Annex to Resolution No. JM-131-2001, foreign exchange bureaus may buy foreign currency in the form of banknotes, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, electronic fund transfers, postal orders, and in other forms of payment denominated in foreign currency as well as in the form of documents drawn against their own accounts; such transactions are executed at prices freely agreed by the individuals and legal entities concerned.

Operated by the central bank  Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility  No.  Pursuant to Article 54 of the Organic Law of the BOG, the Executive Branch, autonomous and decentralized institutions and, in general, government entities and dependencies, unless otherwise specified by law, must conduct their financial transactions in domestic or foreign currencies, both within and outside of the country, through the CB.

Allocation  No.

Auction  Yes.  The BOG can intervene on the foreign exchange market if the reference exchange rate reaches or exceeds the fluctuation band of ±0.80% around the moving average of the reference exchange rates from the past five business days (Resolution No. JM-128-2019). In such cases, effective January 1, 2020, the BOG initiates an auction to buy or sell up to US$10 million in foreign currency (previously US$8 million). No more than five auctions a day are allowed (previously four auctions a day), and the maximum daily intervention is US$50 million (previously US$40 million). The BOG may also intervene in the foreign exchange market by buying or selling foreign currency whenever the nominal exchange rate shows unusual volatility. Auction participants are not required to finance specific international transactions. The IFEM is made up of the BOG, other banks, private finance companies, securities exchanges, and foreign exchange bureaus referred to in Article 3 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law, as well as any other institutions designated by the Monetary Board. Noncompliance by any of the parties is deemed a serious sanctionable violation by the National Securities Exchange of Guatemala (Bolsa de Valores Nacional de Guatemala, S.A.). The sanction consists in a suspension for eleven to twenty trading days, plus a fine equivalent to 150 “fine units” for each trading day of suspension.

The results of public auctions are disclosed to the public by publication on the website of the BOG and through print mass media.

Interbank market

Yes. The IFEM comprises the BOG, banks, private financial companies, stock exchanges, and foreign exchange bureaus (mentioned in Article 3 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law), and other institutions designated by the Monetary Board. Currently, there are 32 such institutions. As of December 31, 2019, 16 banks participated in the interbank market. For statistical control purposes, they are required to report all foreign exchange operations to the BOG daily, in a manner established by the Monetary Board. The Superintendency of Banks supervises and inspects the institutions with regard to their foreign exchange operations, and they must comply with all pertinent Monetary Board rules. No limits are set on the spreads between buying and selling prices. The BOG is not directly involved in the exchange rates quoted between market participants. Authorization to operate on this market is granted by the Monetary Board.

Imports of most goods are unrestricted and require neither registration nor a license. However, imports of some agricultural commodities and animal products are subject to nontariff restrictions.

The list includes goods considered dangerous to society, such as weapons and certain chemicals and drugs. Weapons may be imported only with the approval of the appropriate agency.

In this regard, and in accordance with the provisions of Annex A of the General Treaty on Central American Economic Integration, the common regime for the five countries’ trade in unroasted coffee is subject to import tariffs. Refined and unrefined sugarcane, flavorings and dyes, and other items are subject to import controls. Under the bilateral arrangements concerning Guatemala, trade in roasted coffee between Guatemala and Costa Rica is subject to import duties.

Guatemala’s tariff structure exempts certain manufactured products. The tariff on imports of most footwear and textile products is 15%, and rates on tires range from 5% to 15%. In addition, safeguard provisions apply to certain agricultural products, which are subject to tariff rate quotas under WTO rules that allow for tariffs above the maximum rate for imports in excess of quota. Yellow corn is subject to a quota of 200,000 metric tons a year, with a tariff of 0% for imports within quota and 15% in excess of quota. Rice is subject to a quota of 19,000 metric tons a year, with a tariff of 0% for imports within quota and 23.7% in excess of quota. White corn is subject to a quota of 200,000 metric tons a year, with a tariff of 0% for imports within quota and 15% in excess of quota. These quotas are adjusted annually after discussions between the private sector and the government. Within the framework of commitments under the WTO, Guatemala has a consolidated ad valorem tariff ceiling of 40% for agricultural products and 45% for other products (50% for the categories indicated in Chapters 50–64 of the Central American Tariff System); both ceilings are subject to the exceptions mentioned in List No. LXXXVIII. There are also separate bilateral trade agreements with Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Panama, and Taiwan Province of China. Under the CAFTA, among Central American countries, the Dominican Republic, and the United States (CAFTA-DR), which took effect in 2006, import duties are imposed on 6,307 items in 10 categories, among which the following relate to goods traded between Guatemala and the United States: (1) Category B contains products such as chicken breasts, fish, and vegetables that are being phased in over a five-year period and that are not subject to duty. (2) Category C contains 788 items for which duty will be eliminated in 10 equal annual phases, starting January 1 of year 1 of the treaty. (3) Category D contains products such as dairy products, green and decaffeinated coffee, and alcoholic beverages that will be phased in over 15 years, for which the duties are 6%, 9%, and 24%, respectively. (4) Category F contains products such as milk and yogurt, for which duties will remain the same for the first 10 years of the treaty; they will then be reduced in 10 equal annual phases and be duty free in year 20 of the treaty. (5) Category N contains products such as rum, precooked sausages, and wheat flour, for which duties will be reduced gradually until they are eliminated in 12 equal annual phases, starting on the date CAFTA-DR went into effect; duties applicable to rum, precooked sausages, and wheat flour are 20.0%, 6%, and 0%, respectively. (6) Category O contains black beans, for which duty will remain at its initial rate throughout the first six years of the treaty; on January 1 of year 7, the duty will be reduced by 8% of the base rate every year thereafter through year 11 of the treaty; on January 1 of year 12, the duty will be reduced further by 15% of the base rate and by an additional 15% of the base rate through year 14 of the treaty, and the goods will be duty free, on January 1 of year 15. (7) In addition, pursuant to the trade agreements, the following quotas are in force for 2016: vegetable oil (palm, sunflower, and soybean oil) 1,050 metric tons, dog and cat food 1,368 metric tons, chicken wings 12 metric tons, rice 96,100 metric tons, tuna 500 metric tons, beef 2,383 metric tons, pork 6,265 metric tons, preserved pig meat 1,035 units, white onions 351 metric tons, chicken leg quarters 9,970 metric tons, black beans 1,006.5, ice cream 261 metric tons, cured hams and bacon 1,035 units, condensed milk 625 metric tons, long-life milk 200,000 liters, powdered milk 1,744.5 metric tons, yellow corn 173,000 metric tons, white corn 24,400 metric tons, Manjar caramel spread 46 metric tons, butter 278 metric tons, cream 115 metric tons, other prepared or canned tomatoes 40 metric tons, potatoes 216 metric tons, cheeses 2,330.3 metric tons, and tomato sauce 143.8 metric tons.

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market

Spot exchange market

Auction 01/01/2020

The Bank of Guatemala can intervene on the foreign exchange market if the reference exchange rate reaches or exceeds the fluctuation band of ±0.80% around the moving average of the reference exchange rates from the past five business days. In such cases, the BOG initiates an auction to buy or sell up to US$10 million (previously US$8 million) in foreign currency. No more than five auctions a day are allowed (previously four auctions a day), and the maximum daily intervention is US$50 million (previously US$40 million).

Other legal tender: No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary

Dual

Multiple: Yes. The exchange rate structure is classified as multiple, because the official exchange rate may differ from the market rate by more than 2%. Guinea maintains a MCP as the value of the official rate lags the weighted average commercial bank rate on which it is based by one day.

Crawl-like arrangement | Yes.
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating. Guinea announced its participation in the exchange rate mechanisms (ERM and ERM II) of the WAMZ, which formally limits the fluctuation of the franc to ±15% around a central rate vis-à-vis the US dollar, but this has yet to be implemented. The BCRG replaced the previous weekly foreign exchange allocation with a biweekly competitive auction, reflecting market demand for foreign currency. The BCRG’s intervention policy is based on a budget of foreign exchange sales. Banks are allowed to negotiate freely foreign exchange sales and purchases with their clients. Since June 2018, the Guinean franc has followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to crawl-like from stabilized, effective June 14, 2018. While the exchange rate has stabilized since November 2019, more observations are necessary to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Official exchange rate | Yes.
The official or reference exchange rate since July 2012 is calculated as the volume-weighted average of the previous day’s rates applied by the commercial banks with their customers. These rates are determined on the basis of supply and demand. The BCRG adopted a competitive foreign exchange auction. Banks may purchase and sell foreign exchange with their customers at freely negotiated rates. Effective January 1, 2019, the limit to ensure that one counterparty does not purchase more than 20% of the total allocated amount was eliminated. The rates of other currencies are calculated on the basis of their previous day’s rate vis-à-vis the SDR, as published by the IMF. The official rate is used by the government in its transactions.

There are 15 active commercial banks licensed to deal in foreign exchange and 39 foreign exchange bureaus in operation. The BCRG is the only institution authorized to grant licenses. Foreign exchange bureaus may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCRG; their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes. Exchange bureaus are prohibited from engaging in the following operations: (1) taking deposits on account for their clients; (2) forward buying and selling of foreign currency banknotes or traveler’s checks in exchange for national currency; (3) forward buying and selling of foreign currency banknotes and checks in exchange for other foreign currencies; (4) making money transfers of any amount, either abroad or domestically; (5) importing or exporting banknotes; and (6) extending loans to clients. Foreign exchange bureaus may not maintain accounts abroad. The BCRG introduced Instruction No. 068/DGCC/DCH/16, which limits transactions conducted through licensed exchange bureaus to retail transactions up to a ceiling of US$100,000 a day.

The BCRG transacts with commercial banks only through biweekly preannounced foreign exchange auctions.

The BCRG has a biweekly competitive foreign exchange auction system. Banks may purchase and sell foreign exchange with their customers at freely negotiated rates. On the business day preceding the day on which an operation is scheduled, the BCRG communicates the details of the given operation to all eligible participants in two-sided foreign exchange auctions by means of a public announcement, through the press, or by any other means (letter, e-mail). The foreign exchange is allocated to the best bidders at the price they bid, up to a limit of 20% of the auction for a given counterparty. The minimum volume of an offer to purchase or sell foreign exchange is US$50,000. The BCRG reserves the right to cancel an auction session or to reject unrealistic offers. Immediately after an auction session, the participating banks must be notified of the results pertaining to their respective transactions. The aggregated results of an auction session must be published at the same time on the BCRG website. A bank that does not honor its commitments arising from the two-sided foreign exchange auction market must be subject to sanctions provided for in the regulations, in addition to a suspension between one and four auction sessions. In certain exceptional cases, the BCRG may announce in advance that an auction will be a one-sided auction at which the BCRG will be selling US dollars. In these circumstances, no single participant may acquire more than 20% of the amount being sold by the BCRG.

Fifteen commercial banks licensed by the BCRG trade foreign currency among themselves. Banks can trade with each other through the two-way auction system operated by the BCRG.

The licensing commission is statutorily empowered to grant licenses to credit institutions.

These transactions are used for official missions abroad.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

- Classification: Crawl-like arrangement
Since June 2018, the Guinean franc has followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to crawl-like from stabilized, effective June 14, 2018. The change is reflected as of January 1, 2019, corresponding to the first day of the period covered in this year’s Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.

The limit to ensure that one counterparty does not purchase more than 20% of the total allocated amount was eliminated.

The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the anchor currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are cross-rates derived from the rate for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes.

The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAEMU member countries and France.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

U.S. dollar

Euro

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The operational target of price stability is defined as an annual inflation rate in the WAEMU that falls within a band of ±1% around a central rate of 2%. The Harmonized Consumer Price Index is the benchmark rate to measure inflation.

Target number
The commission rate charged on transfers to all countries that are not members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.

Authorized intermediaries may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients, except for the euro, which must be traded against the CFA franc at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. However, they can charge a commission of up to 2% of the transaction amount.

Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU went into force.

Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation... of the requestor’s identity document.

Banks and registered banknote exchange houses are intermediaries authorized by the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. As of December 31, 2017, there were 13 authorized banknote exchanges. Exchange houses are authorized to conduct operations with the BCEAO in any currency except the euro. Authorized exchange houses are not authorized to make transfers or payments in foreign currency to other countries or to hold accounts abroad.

Authorized intermediaries may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients, except for the euro, which must be traded against the CFA franc at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro and may charge a commission of up to 2% of the transaction amount.

Operated by the central bank  Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility  Yes. The BCEAO supplies, at the official rate, the foreign currency that each authorized intermediary needs to make payments abroad. The CB only purchases foreign exchange on request from the commercial banks, but does not sell foreign exchange to them.

Allocation  No.

Auction  No.

Fixing  No.

Interbank market  Yes. Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2019, 4 banks were licensed for the domestic currency interbank market. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.

Over the counter  Yes.

Brokerage  No.

Market making  No.

Forward exchange market  Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps.

Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, and options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks must simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers.

The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company.

All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations  No.

Prescription of currency requirements

Yes. Guinea-Bissau is linked to the French Treasury through an operations account, through which settlements with France, Monaco, and other operations account countries (WAEMU and CEMAC member countries and the Comoros) are made in euros or in the currency of any other operations account country. Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies.

Controls on the use of domestic currency

Yes. The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions or capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.

For current transactions and payments

Yes. There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) in the WAMA framework. Payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMU members may be made under the clearing arrangement.

For capital transactions

Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments

Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments

Yes.

Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operation on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Credit operations

Yes.

Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.

Use of foreign exchange among residents

Yes.

The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.

Payments arrangements

Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements

No.

Operative

No.

Inoperative

No.

Regional arrangements

Yes.

An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros against CFA francs are settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.
Clearing agreements  Yes.  There is a multilateral clearing agreement in the context of the WAMA among the WAEMU countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Mauritania, Nigeria, Sierra Leone). Payments for current transactions between the member countries may be effected under the clearing arrangement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

Barter agreements and open accounts  No.

Administration of control  Yes.  The institutional reform of the WAEMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Guinea-Bissau for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Guinea-Bissau are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through authorized intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Payments arrears  No.

Official  No.

Private  No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)  Yes.

On domestic ownership and/or trade  No.

On external trade  Yes.  Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes  Yes.

On exports  Yes.

Domestic currency  Yes.  Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.

Foreign currency  Yes.  The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in... banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler’s checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler’s checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

Domestic currency

Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import domestic currency (CFA Franc XOF) banknotes. However, individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving banknotes in domestic currency. BCEAO redemption of banknotes exported outside its area of issuance has been suspended. Pursuant to this measure, registered intermediary banks are not authorized to receive shipments of CFA Franc XOF banknotes from their correspondents located outside the WAEMU area.

Foreign currency

Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import means of payment denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 1 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 1 million on entry and exit.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Residents may open foreign exchange accounts with MOF authorization, after BCEAO consent.

Held domestically

Yes.

Approval required

Yes.

Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the Euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Held abroad

Yes.

Approval required

Yes.

Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements Yes. Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank Yes. Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the due date of payment. On their return to Guinea-Bissau, resident travelers must file a customs declaration for all means of payment greater than CFAF 300,000 and surrender them to a registered bank or to the BCEAO no later than one week after their return.

Restrictions on use of funds No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions Yes. Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except in the case of (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans granted to finance industrial and commercial operations; (2) payments for the purchase of options; and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries, however, are generally permitted.

Repatriation requirements Yes. Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of investments of a resident abroad must be repatriated, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization, within one month through an authorized intermediary.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank Yes. Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of investments of a resident abroad must be repatriated and surrendered to an AD within one month, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.

Controls on capital and money market instruments Yes. RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country.
may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Financial credits

| By residents to nonresidents | Yes. | These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to approval by the BCEAO acting on behalf of the MOF and substantiated by documentation. |
| To residents from nonresidents | No. | There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries’ foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted. |

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

| By residents to nonresidents | Yes. | The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to MOF approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MOF approval, and the submission of supporting documents. |
| To residents from nonresidents | No. | These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. |

Controls on direct investment

| Yes. | Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company whose shares are quoted on a stock exchange. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization. |

Outward direct investment

| Yes. | All investment abroad by residents is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. |

Inward direct investment

| Yes. | FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. An equity holding is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of the company in question. |

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

| No. | The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes. |

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions | Yes. The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. It remains to be confirmed that Borrowing abroad | No. | Loans abroad are unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MOF when they are granted and when they are repaid.

Maintenance of accounts abroad | Yes. | Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. A bank’s current requirement is calculated in relation to its equity and takes account of its history of fund movements abroad. The amount is used to meet the bank’s short-term cash needs.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) | Yes. | Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval.

Lending locally in foreign exchange | Yes. | There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization and BCEAO approval are required.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange | Yes. | These purchases require RCPSFM authorization, after MOF approval.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange | Yes. | A reserve requirement of 3% (previously 5%) applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.

Reserve requirements | No. | Banking regulations make no distinction among resident accounts, nonresident accounts, and foreign currency deposit accounts.

Liquid asset requirements | No. |

Interest rate controls | No. |

Credit controls | Yes. | Overdrafts and advances granted to nonresidents require MOF authorization and BCEAO approval.

Investment regulations | Yes. | The regulations governing direct investment apply.

Abroad by banks | Yes. | All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

In banks by nonresidents | Yes. | These transactions may require MOF authorization, depending on their volume. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires MOF authorization.

Open foreign exchange position limits | No. | No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.

On resident assets and liabilities  No.
On nonresident assets and liabilities  No.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Insurance companies

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the Guyanese dollar is determined in the foreign exchange market. The Bank of Guyana (BOG) periodically purchases foreign currency from foreign exchange dealers to maintain international reserves at acceptable levels. In accordance with bilateral agreements with the CARICOM CBs, the BOG quotes weekly rates for certain CARICOM currencies. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement. The CB publishes interventions on a monthly basis on the BOG website – “Statistical Abstract Reports Table 2.16 (a).” This data is published on a one month lag.

In addition to transactions between ADs and their clients, a significant share of foreign exchange transactions takes place between the BOG and public entities with large export earnings. To reduce segmentation and facilitate price discovery, the authorities recently moved some official transactions to the foreign exchange market. Transactions between foreign exchange dealers and their customers represent a smaller share of the foreign exchange market and include conversion of remittances to people without bank accounts. All commercial banks have cambios; however, not all nonbank financial institutions are cambios. As of December 31, 2019, 13 nonbank financial institutions and 6 commercial banks were licensed to deal in foreign currency. The BOG grants licenses after consultation with the minister of finance. Nonbank foreign exchange dealers may sell specified CARICOM currencies to the CB; their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes and traveler’s checks. These institutions may have accounts abroad. There is a cap on the bid-ask spread of G$1.50 for wires and G$3.00 for cash. This is applicable to all transactions conducted by both the bank and nonbank cambios with their customers.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The BOG conducts its transactions on the basis of the foreign exchange market.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.
Held domestically Yes. Exporters are allowed to maintain and operate foreign exchange accounts. These accounts are approved on merit but are generally granted to bona fide exporters who require imported inputs for production and/or have external loan obligations. These accounts may be credited with all or a portion of retained export proceeds and proceeds of foreign currency loans. They may be debited freely for payments at the discretion of the account holder.

Approval required Yes.
Held abroad Yes.
Approval required No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad  No.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency  Yes. The Foreign Exchange (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act No. 8 of 1996 specifies that “Except with the permission of the Minister, no person resident in Guyana, other than an AD, must in Guyana operate a foreign currency account.”

References to legal instruments and hyperlinks  This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted  Yes. External accounts may be opened by commercial banks, without CB approval, for citizens of Guyana residing permanently abroad, citizens of other countries temporarily residing in Guyana, nonresidents attached to diplomatic missions or international organizations, branches of companies incorporated outside Guyana, and companies incorporated in Guyana but controlled by nonresidents abroad. These accounts may be maintained in US dollars, pounds sterling, Canadian dollars, or euros and may be credited with noncash instruments of convertible foreign currencies transferred through the banking system. These accounts may also be credited freely with all authorized payments by residents of Guyana to nonresidents; other credits require approval. They may be debited freely for payments for any purpose to residents of any country, transfers to other external accounts, withdrawals by the account holder in Guyana, and transfers to nonresident accounts.

Approval required  No.

Domestic currency accounts  Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency  Yes. Domestic currency accounts can only be converted to foreign currency accounts with approval by the MOF through the CB. With effect June 02, 2017, “applications for foreign currency accounts are determined on their merit but generally granted to: Bona fide exporters who require imported inputs for production, or with external loan obligations; certain service providers, including travel agents, hotels, shipping agents and airlines; large importers of essential goods and services.”

Approval required  Yes.

Blocked accounts  No.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The Bank of the Republic of Haiti (BRH) intervenes in the foreign exchange market to avoid excessive volatility. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement. The BRH publishes information on foreign exchange interventions monthly on its website after two months.

Official exchange rate: Yes. The reference rate is officially used by banks to convert US dollar amounts to gourdes on their books and in their financial statements and other reports. The CB does this to prevent banks from using different rates for the same date. As a result, financial and nonfinancial institutions have used this rate for their exchange transactions. The reference rate is published on the BRH website.

Although base money is an indicative target for monetary policy, the CB looks at exchange rate movements (given the high pass-through to inflation), liquidity conditions, and growth.

The Haitian foreign exchange market is divided into a formal and an informal sector. According to an estimate by the CB, the global volume of transactions is divided up as follows: 60% is traded in the formal sector and 40% in the informal sector. Thus, the average rate used in the banking system and the average rate in the informal market are weighted by their sector weights to calculate the reference rate. ADs are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

The BRH operates a US dollar clearinghouse mainly for checks drawn on local banks. Commercial banks quote buying and selling rates for certain other currencies based on the buying and selling rates of the US dollar for those currencies in exchange markets abroad. The market is dominated by banks, followed by money changers. According to the monetary authorities, all banks and certain nonbank financial institutions may conduct foreign exchange transactions. Foreign exchange bureaus must obtain licenses, following a process coordinated by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry (MCI), CB, and the Ministry of Economy and Finance. Authorized foreign exchange bureaus may conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB. These bureaus may not hold accounts abroad and may not make foreign currency payments or transfers on behalf of their clients.

The CB buys and sells foreign exchange. Interventions are made in an effort to contain exchange rate fluctuations, to supply the market and build up reserves.

The CB does not allocate foreign exchange to finance-specific transactions.
Banks trade among themselves on a small scale; the interbank market is not well developed. The CB may intervene directly with banks. In case of sales of foreign currency, the CB proposes its own quotes, and there are limits on the bid-ask spreads. For procurement operations, however, the CB negotiates the quotes with banks. The CB does not intervene via market makers. The CB has issued licenses to eight commercial banks, all of which are active in the foreign exchange market.

HONDURAS

(Position as of June 30, 2020)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership
December 27, 1945.

Article VIII
Yes. Date of acceptance: July 1, 1950.

Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
Yes. The IMF Staff Report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation and Request for a Stand-By Arrangement and an Arrangement under the Standby Credit Facility, states that, as of June 21, 2019, maintained two multiple currency practices subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3: One MCP arises because there is no mechanism to prevent a potential deviation of more than 2% between the Reference Exchange Rate (TCR) of the day at which certain transactions take place and the exchange rates at which foreign exchange is sold at the foreign exchange auction or the foreign exchange interbank market at that day. A second MCP arises from the possible use of previous days’ official exchange rates (TCR) in certain exchange rate transactions (e.g. in foreign exchange sales by authorized dealers to the Central Bank of Honduras (BCH) of amounts bought from customers or amounts that exceed the limits set by the BCH for such dealers) which rates may potentially deviate by more than 2% from the TCR and the interbank market rate on the day when foreign exchange rate transactions take place. (Country Report No. 19/236)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

Exchange Arrangement

Currency
Yes. The currency of Honduras is the Honduran lempira.

Other legal tender
No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary
Yes.

Dual

Multiple

Classification
No separate legal tender
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawling band. The exchange rate for the lempira is determined with the weighted average (by amounts) of the prices from the last foreign exchange auction and the last interbank foreign exchange market (MID) event, and the TCR of the day of the foreign currencies held by the banks, for the payment of their own expenses and direct sales to private sector clients. The BCH requires bids for the purchase of foreign exchange at auction to be within a band of 1% above and below the average base rate prevailing at the seven previous auctions. (Resolution No. 531-12/2019 of the BCH.) In addition, in accordance with Resolution No. 140-3/2019, which stipulates the guidelines for selecting successful bids in BCH foreign exchange auctions, only bids greater than or equal to the TCR from the previous day will be eligible for selection, and when this value exceeds the foreign exchange band ceiling, only bids submitted at the ceiling of the foreign exchange band will be eligible for selection. The base price is calculated on a weekly basis, in accordance with a procedure established by the Board of Directors of the BCH for that purpose, which includes the following variables: (1) the differential between the domestic and external inflation rate; the external inflation rate is defined as the weighted average estimated inflation rates of Honduras’s key trading partners; and domestic inflation will be measured with the consumer price index (CPI). The inflation differential will be determined by comparing the year-on-year change in the CPI recorded during the past month with external inflation weighted to reflect the external trade structure, to be subject to periodic review; (2) the nominal effective exchange rate index, that is, changes in the exchange rate of the key trading partners against the US dollar; and (3) international reserve coverage, number of months of imports covered by the official reserve assets of the BCH. The BCH publishes the results of the foreign exchange trading carried out in the foreign exchange auction and on the MID on a daily basis at its website. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is a crawling peg arrangement.

The official or reference exchange rate is the TCR, which is defined as the weighted average (by amounts) of the prices from the last foreign exchange auction and from the last interbank foreign exchange market (MID) event, and effective January 6, 2020, the Reference Exchange Rate (TCR) of the day of the foreign currencies held by the banks, for the payment of their own expenses and direct sales to private sector clients. The TCR is used for foreign exchange transactions. Previously, the prices registered in the Electronic Foreign Exchange Trading System (SENDI) were part of the calculation of the TCR.
Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

Yes.

U.S. dollar

Yes. The monetary policy framework is primarily an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the US dollar. The BCH uses an internationally accepted indicator to determine its adequate minimum reserve targets as part of its wider monetary programming framework.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange buying and selling operations carried out by foreign exchange dealers authorized by the BCH and by public sector institutions are conducted at the TCR. Commissions for buying and selling are set by the BCH board of directors.

ADs may determine the foreign exchange commission within the limits stipulated in Resolution No. 531-12/2019, supplementary to the Regulations on the Trading of Foreign Currency in the Organized Market, Numeral 7.2: foreign exchange dealers (1) may collect a foreign exchange commission from their private sector clients for the sale of foreign exchange, which may not exceed 0.7%; (2) may collect a foreign exchange commission of 0.3% for foreign exchange sold on the interbank foreign exchange market (MID); (3) may not collect a commission for the purchase of foreign exchange from their private sector clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Any individual or legal entity that is not a foreign exchange dealer may hold foreign exchange assets but may sell them only to the BCH or ADs. The BCH and ADs must buy foreign exchange at the TCR. The only institutions eligible to participate in electronic foreign exchange auctions are banks in the financial system (15), savings and loan associations (none), and exchange bureaus (2), this number of exchange agents remains accurate. Under the law and regulations, exchange bureaus may purchase the foreign exchange received by the private sector from any source, except what by law or resolution of the BCH board of directors must be traded in the domestic financial system. Exchange bureaus may sell foreign exchange for outward payments. To that end, they may manage deposit accounts abroad with first-class institutions. The BCH may establish maximum and minimum limits on their foreign exchange holdings. There is also one state bank. Under the Regulations, all banks can trade foreign currencies, including state-owned banks, as long as they meet the operational requirements to act as a foreign exchange broker.

Operated by the central bank Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility No.
Allocation No.
Auction Yes. The sale of foreign exchange by the BCH to authorized foreign exchange dealers must be conducted via public auction through the SENDI. Daily foreign exchange auctions are held weekdays, excluding holidays. Only dealers authorized by the BCH may participate in the SENDI. Individuals and legal entities participating in foreign exchange auctions within the amounts and limits... established by the BCH board of directors must do so through an authorized foreign exchange dealer. Effective July 3, 2019, the prices of bids for the purchase of foreign exchange must be within a range of 1% above or below the average base price prevailing in the last seven (7) Auctions. Previously, the bid prices to purchase foreign exchange were within a band of 7% above or below the established base price, provided the bid was not greater than 1% of the average base price of the auctions held over the previous seven business days. The amount of foreign exchange offered by the BCH at each auction must be at least 60% of the average BCH foreign exchange purchases from foreign exchange dealers during the past five business days. The minimum amount of foreign exchange to be offered and the base exchange rate price are announced in advance. The base exchange rate is calculated every five business days, in accordance with a procedure established by the Board of Directors of the BCH for that purpose, which includes the following variables: (1) the differential between the domestic and external inflation rate; the external inflation rate will be defined as the weighted average estimated inflation rates of Honduras’s key trading partners; and domestic inflation will be measured with the CPI. The inflation differential will be determined by comparing the year-on-year change in the CPI recorded during the past month with external inflation weighted to reflect the external trade structure, to be subject to periodic review; (2) the nominal effective exchange rate index, that is, changes in the exchange rates for the key trading partners against the US dollar; and (3) international reserve coverage, number of months of imports covered by the official reserve assets of the BCH. The maximum daily amounts that can be purchased in the auctions are US$3,00,000 for individuals, only through exchange bureaus, and US$1.2 million for legal entities, including both banks and exchange bureaus. Nonresidents may not participate, either directly or through authorized foreign exchange dealers, in BCH foreign exchange auctions. Foreign individuals and legal entities participating in foreign exchange auctions through an AD must present a valid residence card issued by the Ministry of Governance and Justice. Foreign exchange dealers may charge a commission of up to 0.7% on sales to the public. Only foreign exchange dealers may participate in the auction. In practice, this includes all commercial banks and exchange bureaus. Foreign exchange is allocated at the bid price. Bids will be rejected if the price is below the minimum limit determined by the BCH. Auction notices and results are announced at the BCH website. BCH management must report noncompliance with the Regulation on the trading on the organized foreign exchange market to the National Banking and Insurance Commission (CNBS), which will impose the penalties provided under current law. The currencies auctioned can be used for any purpose as determined by the applicant in its bid submitted to the exchange agent, so there are no restrictions in that regard within the Regulations.

Fixing

No.

Interbank market

Yes.

In 2018 and 2019, 15 banks participated in the interbank foreign exchange market (MID). Fifteen exchange agents were authorized by the BCH. The MID does not operate according to a system of dealers; banks participate directly using a price for foreign exchange buying and selling bids within an exchange band of 1% above or below the average base price prevailing during the past seven auctions. The average weighted exchange rate (TCPP) of the bids registered in the MID is part of the calculations to determine the TCR, and the maximum commission collected for purchases is 0.4% of the TCR (0.1% for the BCH and 0.3% for the selling bank. Only the BCH itself can grant authorization to exchange agents; however, during 2019 there were no new exchange agent authorizations.

The exchange market operates directly between individuals and legal entities and the exchange agents; there are no intermediary companies between the participants, and the market maker role is not entirely identified, although some banks, because of their trading volume in the market, become highly prominent.

The purchase price of foreign currency is established by the TCR in force for the day and the sale price for amounts less than or equal to US$520,000 is given by the TCR of the day plus an exchange commission of up to 0.7%; on the other hand, the sale price of the transactions carried out at the Foreign Currency Auction is determined by the prices of the awarded foreign currency presented by the bidders plus a commission of up to 0.7%.

All payment obligations to be made in Honduras must be settled in lempiras, except payments that fall within the category of cross-border payments from or to Honduras because they relate to international transactions (Articles 3 and 4 of the Monetary Law). Remittances can be paid in US dollars, only by crediting a foreign currency deposit account. (or in lempiras at the choice of those who receive the funds). If the remittances’ original contract in the source country does not specify the currency in which the funds should be paid, they are paid out in the equivalent of the amount of the remittance sent multiplied by the TCR of the day the remittance is collected by the beneficiary; effective January 6, 2020, in cases where the contract stipulates the exchange rate, the remittance must be paid out in lempiras for the equivalent of the remittance sent multiplied by the TCR of the day the sender posted the remittance.

Payments arrangements Yes.

The Reciprocal Clearing and Credit Agreement between Honduras and Costa Rica, El Salvador, and Guatemala was in effect until 1995. Honduras has signed the following treaties: (1) CAFTA-DR (Central America-Dominican Republic) Free Trade Agreement, (2) CACM, (3) CA-Mexico, CA3-Colombia, and CA-Panama, (4) Free Trade Agreement between the Republic of El Salvador, the Republic of Honduras, and the Taiwan Province of China, and (5) Central America-Chile. It has also signed an association agreement with the EU (CA-EU).

The CA4 Treaty with Canada, the Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras, and Peru; the Central America-Korea; and the EFTA treaties are currently under negotiation. Import tariff quotas in metric tons for 2014 under the free trade treaty between Central America, the Dominican Republic, and the United States were as follows: pork, 3,350; powdered milk, 443; butter, 148; cheese, 606; granza rice, 1,06,200; yellow corn, 2,54,012; white corn, 26,680; milled rice, 11,900; ice cream, 141; other dairy products, 197; and chicken (thighs, legs), 3,206. There are also import quotas in other treaties, including for such products as beef, palm oil, stockings and socks, dog and cat food, textiles and garments, sugar, and cured ham.

Individuals entering or leaving Honduras are required to declare under the anti-money-laundering law amounts exceeding US$10,000.

Pursuant to the provisions of Articles 1, 8, and 10 of the Law on the Entry of Foreign Exchange derived from Exports, individuals and legal entities that export goods must declare to the BCH, before exportation for each export operation, the quality, value, and destination of the goods to be exported, as well as the probable date of exportation and the currency in which payment will be received. Under Resolution No. 406-7/94, the BCH board may allow exporters to retain up to 30% of their foreign exchange proceeds for priority purchases abroad of inputs, machinery, and parts used in production of their exports and to pay authorized external debt obligations.

Effective January 6, 2020, pursuant to Resolution No. 531-12/2019 of December 5, 2019, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 40% of it to the BCH (previously 60%) no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 60% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients for amounts less than or equal to five hundred twenty thousand US dollars (US$520,000.00); and (3) sale in the MID.

Previously, effective July 1, 2019, pursuant to Resolution No. 293-6/2019 of June 20, 2019, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 60% of it to the BCH no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 40% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used for (1) payment of their own expenditure; (2) sales to private sector clients in amounts less than or equal to US$140,000; and (3) for sale on the MID. Previously, effective April 1, 2019, pursuant to Resolution No. 139-3/2019 of March 21, 2019, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, foreign exchange dealers that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers were required to transfer 70% of said foreign exchange to the BCH no later than the business day following the purchase, and 30% of the foreign exchange purchased and not transferred to the BCH by the foreign exchange dealers had to be used for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients in amounts smaller than US$90,000; and (3) for sale in the MID. Previously, pursuant to Resolution No. 20-1/2018 of January 24, 2018, Paragraph 1, Numeral 1.2, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 80% of it to the BCH no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 20% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used by the following business day for (1) payment of their own expenses and (2) sale on the interbank market. However, exchange bureaus must transfer 100% of their purchases to the BCH. According to Paragraph 5, Numeral 5.1, they may also use foreign exchange earnings for non-exchange activities and for banking sector capital and financial transactions.

Under Article 5 of the Regulation of the Law on Foreign Exchange from Exports, deadlines ranging from 20 to 85 business days have been set for the surrender of foreign exchange, depending on the product.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Yes. There are no controls on these payments, but all buyers of foreign exchange are required to fill out a form under the anti-money-laundering law for amounts exceeding US$10,000. In addition, enterprises remitting cash to or from Honduras must register and report to the CNBS the amounts transferred. Remittances in cash to or from Honduras are limited to US$2,000 or its equivalent in other foreign currency or in lempiras.

To define the scope of the Special Anti-Money-Laundering Law, covered entities (institutions supervised by the CNBS) must generate the corresponding records and reports in the following instances: (1) cash transactions in foreign currency performed by their clients in the amount of US$4,000 or equivalent in foreign currency; (2) cash transactions in national currency by their clients in the amount of L 2,00,000; (3) non-cash transactions with their clients in the amount of L 2,00,000 or equivalent in foreign currency; (4) remittance transactions of US$2,000 in foreign currency or national currency; multiple cash transactions in legal tender or foreign currency made on behalf of a single individual or legal entity during one calendar month must be considered as a single transaction. Moreover, the maximum amount receivable from non-clients during one calendar month is US$4,000.

Capital Transactions

All transactions involving an exchange of foreign currency from US dollars to Lempiras by the foreign exchange dealers' private sector clients are subject to the foreign exchange surrender requirements imposed on foreign exchange dealers by the BCH, including capital flows. However, capital flows from the banking sector are not subject to the foreign exchange surrender requirements, but if they are required to be converted from US dollars to Lempiras, they can only be traded on the interbank foreign exchange market (MID).

Effective January 6, 2020, pursuant to Resolution No. 531-12/2019 of December 5, 2019, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 40% of it to the BCH no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 60% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients for amounts less than or equal to five hundred twenty thousand US dollars (US$520,000.00); and (3) for sale in the MID.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes. The BCH board of directors determines the currencies (US dollars, yen, euros, Swiss francs, yuan, sterling, Canadian dollars) in which institutions in the domestic financial system may accept deposits from the public; the supranational institutions in which they may invest; and the minimum requirements for the first-class foreign financial instruments and institutions in which national institutions may invest their resources in foreign currency deposit accounts.

The interest rate for permanent investment facilities is the monetary policy rate (TPM) minus 5.25 percentage points; the interest rate for permanent credit facilities is the TPM plus 1 percentage point (Resolution No. 333-7/2015).

Borrowing abroad Yes. Article 46 of the Law on the Financial System stipulates that financial institutions may contract loans and obligations with institutions in financial systems abroad.

Maintenance of accounts abroad Yes. The Regulation on management of foreign exchange deposit accounts stipulates that, to meet any additional reserve requirements that the BCH may establish, or to make investments with surplus resources from deposit accounts, depository institutions may open special accounts or make investments with first-tier foreign banks.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) Yes. BCH authorization is required for lending to individuals or legal entities domiciled abroad, except in the case of loans granted to Honduran citizens for the purchase of land, construction, and the purchase or improvement of housing in Honduras.

Lending locally in foreign exchange Yes. Prudential norms are applied by financial system institutions when lending in foreign currency. To that end, they classify borrowers in the following categories: generators and nongenerators of foreign exchange. Institutions authorized to grant foreign currency loans must have policies and procedures in place for evaluating the credit and liquidity risk of borrowers classified in the aforementioned categories.

The Regulation on Trading in Government Securities authorized the BCH to issue foreign-currency-denominated securities (foreign-currency-denominated paper), which may be purchased by financial system institutions.

For authorized financial institutions the reserve requirement, which must be held in demand deposits in the BCH, for foreign currency and mandatory investment of all their foreign currency liabilities is 12%. Resources that financial system institutions obtain through international loans or in the form of loans or deposits from other institutions subject to the reserve requirement are exempt from this requirement. Financial system institutions may also issue foreign currency treasury bills, which are subject to the reserve requirement. Institutions in the financial system may not offset deficits in their reserve requirements, as established by the BCH board of directors. Likewise, no offsetting is allowed in case of noncompliance with the mandatory investment requirement. The foreign currency reserve requirement is composed entirely of demand deposits at the BCH and must be maintained at a minimum daily amount equivalent to 80%.

The additional reserve requirement for liquid investments in first-class foreign financial institutions is set at 0%. Similarly, domestic depository institutions that are Bladex shareholders may maintain investments there up to 5% of their total foreign currency investments.

The interest rates applied by financial system institutions in their transactions are determined on the basis of prevailing market conditions. However, the BCH may regulate them if necessary. Mandatory foreign currency investments must be deposited in the BCH; the balances on these investment accounts are remunerated at the annual equivalent of the fortnightly (catorcenal) average of the one-month London Interbank Bid Rate (LIBID). In accordance with the Law on Credit Cards, credit card interest rates are established and regulated by the BCH, if there is no guarantee of free competition in the sector, on the basis of a report issued by the Commission for the Defense and Promotion of Competition.

Investments abroad by depository institutions pursuant to the Regulation on the management of deposit accounts in foreign exchange may only be held only in (1) demand, overnight, and term deposits; CDs; bankers’ acceptances, and other instruments issued by foreign first-tier foreign banks or financial institutions; (2) bills, notes, and bonds and other instruments issued and guaranteed by a government; (3) negotiable instruments of government agencies and other public entities or financial institutions guaranteed by governments or government institutions; (4) deposits, notes, and fixed-income bonds issued by supranational financial institutions; and (5) money market MFs, having maturities not exceeding one year. Specified investments must meet the requirements and exposure limits authorized by the BCH. Investments in the “other instruments” mentioned in item (1) may not exceed 5% of the depository institution’s total foreign currency deposits.

Article 128 of the Law on the Stock Market states that these investment funds may hold deposits in banks abroad as well as in self-issued instruments of such banks issued abroad, in keeping with the provisions established by the CNBS.

Investment funds must hold at least 50% of their investments in securities guaranteed by the government, the BCH, or authorized financial system institutions and must not hold more than 15% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of any one company or more than 25% of the issued securities guaranteed by the same economic grouping (Article 106 of the Law on the Stock Market).

The Law on the Stock Market and the Regulation on Fund Management Companies do not contain any articles on this issue. This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

- Official exchange rate
  - 01/06/2020
  - The official or reference exchange rate is the TCR, which is defined as the weighted average (by amounts) of the prices from the last foreign exchange auction, from the last interbank foreign exchange market (MID) event, and the Reference Exchange Rate (TCR) of the day of the foreign currencies held by the banks, for the payment of their own expenses and direct sales to private sector clients.
  - Previously, the prices registered in the Electronic Foreign Exchange Trading System (SENDI) were part of the calculation of the TCR.

- Foreign exchange market
  - Spot exchange market
    - Operated by the central bank
      - Auction
        - 07/13/2019
        - The prices of bids for the purchase of foreign exchange must be within a range of 1% above or below the average base price prevailing in the last seven auctions. Previously, the bid prices to purchase foreign exchange were within a band of 7% above or below the established base price, provided the bid was not greater than 1% of the average base price of the auctions held over the previous seven business days.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

- Prescription of currency requirements
  - Use of foreign exchange among residents
    - 01/06/2020
    - In cases where the remittances’ original contract in the source country stipulates the exchange rate, the remittance must be paid out in lempiras for the equivalent of the remittance sent multiplied by the TCR of the day the sender posted the remittance.

Exports and Export Proceeds

- Repatriation requirements
  - Surrender requirements
    - Surrender to the central bank
      - 04/01/2019
      - Foreign exchange dealers that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers were required to transfer 70% of said foreign exchange to the Central Bank of Honduras (BCH) no later than the business day following the purchase, and 30% of the foreign exchange purchased and not transferred to the BCH by the foreign exchange dealers had to be used for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients for amounts smaller than US$90,000; and (3) for sale in the MID. Previously, pursuant to Resolution No. 20-1/2018 of January 24, 2018, Paragraph 1, Numeral 1.2, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 80% of it to the BCH no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 20% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used by the following business day for (1) payment of their own expenses and (2) sale on the interbank market. Pursuant to Resolution No. 293-6/2019 of June 20, 2019, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 60% of it (previously 70%) to the Central Bank of Honduras (BCH) no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 40% (previously 30%) of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used by the following business day for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients for smaller amounts to one hundred forty thousand dollars from the United States (US$140,000.00); and (3) for sale in the MID.

Pursuant to Resolution No. 531-12/2019 of December 5, 2019, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 40% of it to the Central Bank of Honduras (BCH) (previously 60%) no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 60% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients for amounts less than or equal to five hundred twenty thousand US dollars (US$520,000.00); and (3) for sale in the MID.

Currency board
Yes.

The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The currency board system in Hong Kong SAR, adopted October 17, 1983, requires that the monetary base be backed at least 100% by, and that changes in it be matched 100% by corresponding changes in, the reserve currency (US dollar) at a fixed exchange rate of HK$7.80 per US dollar. A symmetric convertibility zone of HK$7.75–HK$7.85—within which the Hong Kong Monetary Authority (HKMA) may choose to conduct market operations consistent with currency board principles—has been in place since May 18, 2005. The monetary base includes issued notes and coins, the balance at the HKMA of banks’ clearing accounts (that is, the aggregate balance), and outstanding Exchange Fund Bills and Notes. Consistent with... currency board principles, the HKMA may adjust the issuance sizes of Exchange Fund paper, and the program may expand along with the interest payments on such paper. The issuance and redemption of certificates of indebtedness, which back banknotes issued by note-issuing banks (NIBs), must be made against US dollars at a fixed exchange rate of HK$7.80 per US dollar. The issuance and withdrawal of government-issued notes and coins are settled against US dollars at the same fixed rate. The legal documents that establish the currency board include the Basic Law (Chapter V, Section 1, Articles 110 and 111); the Exchange Fund Ordinance (Chapter 66); and an exchange of letters between the Financial Secretary and the Monetary Authority specifying the monetary policy objective and the structure of the monetary system under the Exchange Fund Ordinance. The letters specify that the Financial Secretary is responsible for determining the monetary policy objective and the structure of the monetary system, including the linked exchange rate. Section 3(1) of the ordinance, as amended, specifies that the Exchange Fund “must be under the control of the Financial Secretary and must be used primarily for such purposes as the financial secretary thinks fit affecting, either directly or indirectly, the exchange value of the currency of Hong Kong SAR and for other purposes incidental thereto.” The HKMA is responsible for achieving the monetary policy objective, including determining the strategy, instruments, and operational means for doing so, and for maintaining the stability and integrity of the monetary system. The HKMA makes prompt announcements of the impact on the aggregate balance arising from purchases or sales of US dollars by the currency board via various information vendors, including Reuters and Bloomberg. The information is also available on the HKMA website.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Commercial banks are free to set their exchange rates, including bid-ask spreads, and commissions in transactions with their clients. Apart from commercial banks, money service operators (namely remittance agents and money changers) may also conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public.

Spot exchange market Yes. Authorized institutions (AIs) are not required to obtain a separate license to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. They may enter into foreign exchange transactions in the interbank market on their own account or on behalf of their clients. AIs, which maintain a Hong Kong dollar clearing account within the real-time gross settlement system, are eligible for transactions with the HKMA under the currency board arrangement. Money service operators (formerly known as remittance agents and money changers) must obtain a license from the commissioner of customs and excise. As of the end of June 2020, there were 1,266 licensed money service operators in Hong Kong SAR. They are subject to regulatory requirements under the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing (Financial Institutions) Ordinance.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The HKMA redeems certificates of indebtedness acquired by NIBs in compensation for banknotes on demand and at a fixed exchange rate of HK$7.80 per US dollar. The spot exchange rate has fluctuated within the convertibility zone of HK$7.75–HK$7.85 since May 18, 2005. The HKMA operates convertibility commitments on both the strong side and the weak side of the linked rate of HK$7.80. Under the strong-side convertibility commitment, the HKMA buys US dollars from licensed banks at HK$7.75; under the weak-side convertibility commitment, it sells US dollars at HK$7.85.

Allocation No.
Auction No.
Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. There are no official limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants. No separate licenses are required for AIs to participate in the foreign exchange market. In addition to AIs, other financial institutions operating in Hong Kong SAR or overseas may participate in the interbank market. As of June 30, 2020, there were 193 AIs in Hong Kong SAR, including 163 licensed banks, 17 restricted license banks, and 13 deposit-taking companies. The HKMA may conduct discretionary foreign exchange operations consistent with currency board principles within the convertibility zone. These are normal foreign exchange transactions consistent with the currency board principles. The HKMA makes prompt announcements of the impact on the aggregate balance arising from these transactions via various information vendors, including Reuters and Bloomberg. The information is also available on the HKMA website. The interbank foreign exchange market operates on an over-the-counter basis as well as a brokerage system. The HKMA does not AIs enter into foreign exchange transactions in the interbank market by phone or some other electronic trading means. They deal with each other based on credit lines that these AIs extend among themselves. Such deals may be done on their own account or on behalf of their clients, such as major corporations, hedge funds, CBs, and high net worth individuals. There is no centralized system to regulate such trades.

Brokerage | Yes.
The brokerage systems in Hong Kong SAR operate on private sector initiatives. Deals are done via phone or electronic networks (such as Electronic Broking Services, Reuters Matching). Money brokers operating in Hong Kong SAR must acquire approval from the HKMA. As of end-June 2020, there were 30 approved money brokers in Hong Kong SAR.

Unless otherwise specified in the Stamp Duty Ordinance (Cap 117), residential properties acquired on or after October 27, 2012, by any person except a Hong Kong Permanent Resident (HKPR) acting on his or her own behalf are subject to Buyer’s Stamp Duty at a flat rate of 15%.

Unless otherwise specified in the Stamp Duty Ordinance, properties (both residential and nonresidential) acquired from February 23, 2013, to November 4, 2016, are subject to Doubled Ad Valorem Stamp Duty (that is, ad valorem stamp duty at the then Scale 1
(which was later rearranged as Part 2 of Scale 1 following the introduction of New Residential Stamp Duty) of the First Schedule to the Stamp Duty Ordinance, except for those residential properties acquired by a HKPR acting on his or her own behalf and does not own any other residential property in Hong Kong SAR at the time of acquisition. For the latter scenario, ad valorem stamp duty at Scale 2 of the First Schedule to the Stamp Duty Ordinance (that is, the original stamp duty rate before the introduction of Doubled Ad Valorem Stamp Duty) will apply.

Unless otherwise specified in the Stamp Duty Ordinance, residential properties acquired on or after November 5, 2016, are subject to the New Residential Stamp Duty at a flat rate of 15%, except for those residential properties acquired by a HKPR acting on his or her own behalf and does not own any other residential property in Hong Kong SAR at the time of acquisition. For the latter scenario, ad valorem stamp duty at Scale 2 of the First Schedule to the Stamp Duty Ordinance will continue to apply. Nonresidential properties acquired on or after November 5, 2016, are not affected and continue to be subject to Doubled Ad Valorem Stamp Duty.

Non-HKPRs may continue to purchase residential properties in Hong Kong SAR without restriction on payment of the Buyer’s Stamp Duty and the New Residential Stamp Duty.

effective October 1, 2019, purchase or hold an interest in foreign or domestic land of an aggregate value exceeding 50% of the adjusted Tier 1 capital of the institution (a new limit) and purchase or hold interest in foreign or domestic land, other than for self-use, of an aggregate value exceeding 25% of the Tier 1 capital (previously 25% of capital base) of the institution (these restrictions do not apply to (a) interest in land that was mortgaged to the institution to secure a debt or (b) interest in land that accrues after the institution has come into possession of the land, provided the interest is disposed of as soon as possible, but no later than 18 months after acquisition).

In banks by nonresidents

No person may become a majority shareholder controller, minority shareholder controller, or indirect controller of an AI incorporated in Hong Kong SAR without the HKMA approval. Any person who becomes such a controller must notify the HKMA within 14 days. Note-issuing activity is subject to review, and the license may be withdrawn if a foreign government or foreign-government-controlled entity holds 20% or more of the shares in a bank. This requirement is intended to prevent close association between NIBs and foreign sovereign controllers, which is a unique concern, because in Hong Kong SAR notes are issued by commercial banks rather than the CB. In most other countries, foreign investment is not allowed in this activity because the issuance of banknotes is the responsibility of the monetary authority. This condition affects only the issuance of notes and does not affect banks’ other activities.

Open foreign exchange position limits

AIs are expected to set internal limits on their open position in each foreign currency and their aggregate open position in all foreign currencies. No regulatory foreign exchange position limits have been set by the HKMA. However, the HKMA will review AIs’ internal limits as part of its ongoing supervision. Locally incorporated AIs must provide justification to the HKMA if their aggregate open foreign exchange position limits are very large (for example, higher than 25% of their capital base). Foreign exchange limits of foreign banks’ branches in Hong Kong SAR are monitored by their head offices centrally and home supervisory authorities centrally. However, a foreign bank’s branches in Hong Kong SAR may be required to demonstrate the effectiveness of its risk management systems if its aggregate open foreign exchange position limit is higher than 5% of the bank’s capital base. All AIs are required to report their foreign exchange positions as well as any breach of relevant internal limits to the HKMA on a monthly basis.

The above benchmark thresholds are intended to facilitate the HKMA supervisory monitoring of AIs’ foreign exchange risk and are not a general restriction.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes. There is no minimum amount that insurers must hold in investments in locally issued securities. However, insurers carrying out general (or non-life) insurance business locally, other than as professional reinsurers or captive insurers, are required to maintain assets in Hong Kong SAR to match their liabilities from such insurance business. The eligible assets are not limited to local securities and may be in the form of cash, bank deposits, or landed properties.

Insurers carrying on long-term business (life insurers) are required to have their assets matched with the insurance liabilities as regards currency. Where there is currency mismatch in the assets and liabilities, life insurers are required to set aside prudent provision against the effects of changes in exchange rates on the adequacy of assets.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices

No.

No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2019.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

Yes.

Hungary maintains certain exchange restrictions related to the freezing of funds and economic resources of the following: (1) certain officials of Belarus; (2) certain individuals and entities in the Democratic Republic of the Congo; (3) certain individuals and entities in Lebanon, Myanmar, Sudan, and Syria; (4) certain individuals and entities in the Islamic Republic of Iran and Libya; (5) certain individuals, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Ukraine; and (6) certain individuals undermining or threatening the territorial integrity, sovereignty, and independence of Ukraine.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

Yes.

Other security restrictions

Yes.

Within the framework of the CFSP, the EU applies restrictive measures either autonomously or implementing binding resolutions of the UNSC with regard to the Treaty on European Union (in particular, Article 29) and the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (in particular, Article 75 or 215). Restrictive measures imposed by the EU may target governments of third countries, entities, and individuals. They may comprise specific or general trade restrictions (import and export bans), financial restrictions, restrictions on admission (visa or travel bans), and other measures. EU Council regulations imposing sanctions and related Council decisions and Commission regulations are part of the EU law and take precedence over conflicting legislation of Hungary as a member of the EU. Such regulations are directly applicable and have direct effect in all member states.

Exchange restrictions are in place in accordance with EU regulations with respect to Afghanistan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Egypt, Guinea (Conakry), Guinea-Bissau, the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, Libya, Mali, Myanmar/Burma, Somalia, Sudan, South Sudan, Syria, groups associated with terrorism (Al-Qaida, Taliban, ISIL), Tunisia, Ukraine/Russia (concerning restrictive measures following Russia’s actions destabilizing the situation in Ukraine), Ukraine (concerning restrictive measures in respect of actions undermining the territorial integrity and independence of Ukraine), Yemen, Venezuela, and Zimbabwe.

According to Act No. LII of 2017 on the implementation of financial and asset-related restrictive measures ordered by the EU and the UNSC, the Hungarian authorities implement directly, completely, and without delay the UNSC Resolution decisions about targeted financial sanctions. The method does not require the transposition of UNSC Resolution decisions at the EU level; at the same time, it includes the implementing rules for the relevant EU regulations as well.

<th>Floating</th>
<th>Yes.</th>
<th>The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating because of discretionary intervention by the Magyar Nemzeti Bank (MNB) in the foreign exchange market. The general aim is to avoid disruptive market fluctuations and exchange rate overshooting. However, the MNB emphasizes that the Bank generally refrains from intervening in the foreign exchange market. The MNB converts foreign currency for the government and net current and capital transfers from the EU at market rates. These transactions change the foreign exchange reserve position of the MNB. If the resulting reserve dynamics are not in line with the MNB’s reserve management objectives, the Bank will take the necessary measures. The MNB does not publish intervention data.</th> holidays. These rates are valid until publication of the next day’s rates and are fixed at 11:00 a.m. The official euro–forint fixing rate is the simple arithmetic average of the euro–forint quotes of the 10 most active domestic banks in the forint foreign exchange market, after the two highest and two lowest quotes are eliminated. The US dollar–forint fixing rate is calculated using the euro–forint fixing rate and the euro–US dollar market rate at 11:00 a.m. The forint exchange rates against other currencies are derived from the US dollar–forint fixing and the foreign exchange cross-rates at 11:00 a.m.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

U.S. dollar

Composite

Other

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework
Yes.
The MNB began implementing an inflation-targeting framework in the summer of 2001.

Target setting body
Yes.

Government

Central Bank

Monetary Policy Committee
Yes.
The Monetary Council adopts its resolutions by a simple majority of the votes of the members present. In the event of a tied vote, the chairman of the Monetary Council, or in the absence of the chairman the deputy chairman must have the casting vote. Operational independence is ensured regarding decisions on the inflation target.

Central Bank Board

Other

Government and Central Bank

Inflation target
Yes.

Target number
Yes.

Point target

Target with tolerance band
Yes.
The current medium-term target for inflation is 3% increase (±1 percentage point (pp)) in consumer prices as measured by the CPI regularly published by the Hungarian Central Statistical Office. The tolerance band was introduced in 2015.

Band/Range

Target measure
Yes.
In August 2005, the Bank adopted an explicit medium-term (“continuous”) inflation target for the period starting in 2007, after year-end targets between 2001 and 2006. The time horizon relevant for the Monetary Council is 1.5–2 years.

CPI
Yes.
The CPI is the measure of the price changes of goods and services intended for household consumption and is calculated on the basis of the same month of the previous year. It is published monthly by the Hungarian Central Statistical Office.

Core inflation

Target horizon
Yes. The time horizon relevant for the Monetary Council is 1.5–2 years.

Operating target (policy rate)
Yes.

Policy rate
Yes. The MNB’s base rate (rate on required reserves) is the policy rate. Given the excess liquidity in the banking system, the MNB overnight deposit rate (−15 basis points since September 2017, which was increased to −5 basis points on March 27, 2019) provides a floor.

Target corridor band
Yes. The MNB maintains an asymmetric overnight interest rate corridor to prevent extreme fluctuations in interbank rates. The interest rate paid on overnight CB deposits equals the base rate minus 95 basis points, and the interest to be paid on overnight collateralized loans equals the base rate (currently, 0.60%).

Other
Yes. The Bank continues to rely on liquidity providing foreign exchange swaps to manage the liquidity in the banking system. A monetary policy interest rate swap (IRS) is in place, with a annual maximum stock limit of HUF [1,100 billion] set by the Council for 2019. On January 1, 2019, Funding for Growth Scheme Fix to encourage longer interest rate fixation periods for lending to small and medium enterprises (SMEs) was introduced, and on July 1, 2019, a purchase program for corporate bonds began. The liquidity effect of both these programs is sterilized.

Accountability
Yes.

Open letter
No.

Parliamentary hearings
Yes. The governor of the MNB reports to the parliament’s Standing Committee for Economic Affairs in writing semiannually on the MNB’s semiannual activity. On request, the governor must be obliged to attend in person and supplement the report orally. On request, the governor of the MNB must provide information to the competent committee of the parliament.

Other
No.

Transparency
Yes.

Publication of votes
Yes. The MNB has been publishing individual voting records since 2005. The voting records of the Monetary Council published in the minutes are also available in time series format.

Publication of minutes
Yes. Abridged minutes of the Council’s rate-setting meetings are released regularly after two weeks, before the next policy meeting takes place. The minutes present the decision-makers’ assessment of current economic conditions and the factors they consider when deciding on the base rate, including votes cast by individual members of the Council. To provide more detailed information, background materials appear as a separate publication with enhanced content under the title “Macroeconomic and financial market developments,” at the same time as the abridged minutes.

Publication of inflation forecasts
Yes. Inflation forecasts are published quarterly in the Inflation Report.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax
No.

Exchange subsidy
No.

Foreign exchange market
Yes. Commercial banks may set the exchange rate freely in transactions.
The Act on Credit Institutions and Financial Enterprises states that currency exchange activities are subject to authorization by the MNB. According to the law, authorization to engage in currency exchange activities is granted to credit institutions and their agents. On December 31, 2019, there were 146 foreign exchange bureaus in Hungary and 40 credit institutions. Licensing requires the fulfillment of several technical and personnel criteria. The MNB website provides more detailed information, including a list of authorized agents. Agents may only purchase and sell banknotes, but credit institutions may also make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. Foreign exchange bureaus may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the MNB.

Interbank market Yes. The foreign exchange market operates based on broker systems (Reuters D-3000 Spot Matching and Electronic Broking Services) and on the OTC bilateral market. There are market makers in both markets. Because there are no controls on foreign exchange transactions, financial institutions do not need a license to trade. All banks and financial institutions are free to participate in the interbank market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. As of end-December 2019, according to the data provided by domestic credit institutions, 160 credit institutions dealt in the forint/foreign exchange spot market, of which 58 were domestic credit institutions.

Over the counter Yes. The foreign exchange market is an OTC bilateral market.

Brokerage Yes. The foreign exchange market is based in part on broker systems (Reuters D-3000 Spot Matching and Electronic Broking Services).

Market making Yes. Market makers are present in the OTC and brokerage markets.

Forward exchange market Yes. All banks may engage in forward transactions at exchange rates negotiated freely with their customers. As part of its monetary policy operations, the MNB has a euro liquidity arrangement that provides foreign exchange swap instruments with maturities up to and including 12 months.

Official cover of forward operations No.

In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and in case of suspicion of money laundering report it to their national FIU. The Hungarian FIU maintains statistics of suspicious transaction reports by Customs, including all relevant information. According to the EC regulation, an incorrect or incomplete declaration does not fulfill the obligation. To check compliance with the regulation, national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only... harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders. To better enforce the EU legislation, Act No. XLVIII of 2007 on the Implementation of Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 of the European Parliament and of the Council of October 26, 2005, on controls of cash entering or leaving the Community (“Cash Control Act”) was adopted. The evaluators regarded the EU Cash Control Regulation and the Cash Control Act as the legal basis for the cross-border declaration system in Hungary. An amendment to the Cash Control Act introduced effective, proportionate, and dissuasive sanctions for failure to declare or false declaration of cash. The relevant article of the Cash Control Act now includes an administrative fine of up to 50% of the undeclared amount, to be paid on the spot for failure to declare or false declaration of cash. (The highest level of the fine was reduced to 50% because of the European Court Decision in case number C-255/2014, which stated that a 60% fine was not proportionate.) The customs authority may retain the object of the procedure (the amount of cash equal to the fine) if there is a risk of nonpayment of the fine. The Act has also been amended with equity regulations; in case of non- or false declaration, on request the fine may be reduced by 50%, if the delinquent presents substantive proof of the origin of the cash in question. Furthermore, in case of false declaration, the basis of the imposed fine is the amount of cash exceeding the declared amount.

Controls apply to deposits of funds with non-EU financial institutions by a small domestic insurance company if such assets are to form part of its technical reserves. The controls mean that these small insurance companies, which do not provide cross-border services, need to keep its technical reserves in assets which are not outside of the OECD.
| Negative list | Yes. | In accordance with EU regulations, no import licenses are required, except for certain products that are subject to quantitative restrictions, safeguard measures, or import surveillance. For agricultural products, the import licensing system is automatic and used only for statistical purposes. Imports of certain products are subject to licensing (for example, explosives and firearms; ammunition; military equipment; dual-use goods; certain goods that could be used for capital punishment, torture, or other cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment; and certain drugs). |
| Open general licenses | No. |
| Licenses with quotas | Yes. | In accordance with EU regulations, licenses are required for a number of products in the agricultural sector subject to tariff quotas. In addition, licenses are required for certain imports subject to quantitative restrictions. |
| Other nontariff measures | No. |
| Import taxes and/or tariffs | Yes. | Goods for personal use brought in by returning Hungarian travelers are subject to import duties above a duty-free value limit in accordance with the EU customs legislation based on the invoice price. Relief from import duties is granted in Article 41 of EU Regulation No. 1186/2009/EC in case of duty-free allowance under EU Directive No. 2007/74/EC which is €430 for air passengers, €300 for other passengers, and €150 for passengers younger than 15. For tobacco products and alcoholic beverages, quantitative limits apply. |

Controls apply to credits and loans granted to nonresidents if the asset is a mortgage loan with real estate collateral outside the EU and is to form part of the technical reserves of a small domestic insurance company.

With respect to nonresidents, controls apply to (1) airlines established in the country that must be majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or nationals of EU countries, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (2) acquisition of a shipping license to operate in international waters, which is reserved for companies established in Hungary and operating shipping vessels registered in EU member countries (however, there are no restrictions preventing the establishment by nonresidents of a company in Hungary through which a shipping license is available); (3) asset management services by branches of nonresident investors located outside the EU for domestic mandatory and voluntary private pension funds; (4) the extent that under EU Directive No. 2009/65/EC, a depositary of a UCITS must either have its registered office or be established in the UCITS home member state; and (5) nonresident investors located outside the EU through acquiring or establishing directly or indirectly more than 25% of the shares of companies (or more than 10% of shares of publicly listed company) established in Hungary which engaged in activities described by the Act No. LVII of 2018.
Effective June 18, 2020, controls apply to (1) acquire (directly or indirectly) a majority influence in a strategic company and (2) acquire 15%, 20%, or 50% in a strategic company or if the joint shareholding of all the foreign investors would exceed 25% in a strategic company. If the transaction involves a Hungarian strategic company, but that Hungarian strategic company was already foreign-owned, then the indirect change of that foreign ownership falls outside of the Interim Measures Act (Interim Measures Act, Section 277). This provision expires on December 31, 2020.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector
The Foreign Exchange Funding Adequacy Ratio (FFAR) is calculated as the ratio of the available amount of stable foreign currency funding divided by weighted foreign-currency-denominated assets outstanding. The FFAR regulation based on the NSFR methodology is in force since July 1, 2012, and has been amended three times to comply with evolving international standards and market developments. The measure aims to reduce the maturity mismatch of the banking sector’s foreign exchange position. The required level of the FFAR is 100%.

To further reduce denomination mismatches in the balance sheet of credit institutions and to assist the regulatory objectives of the FFAR, the MNB as macroprudential authority also introduced the Foreign Exchange Coverage Ratio (FECR), which limits the on-balance-sheet denomination mismatch of credit institutions to 10% of the balance sheet total.

Since July 1, 2018, the interbank funding ratio (IFR) was introduced to prevent excessive reliance on funding originated from financial corporations. Wholesale funding from financial corporations—weighted according to currency and maturity with some exemptions not to hamper normal banking operations—must not exceed 30% of total liabilities excluding own funds.

The MNB took a comprehensive package of financial measures to mitigate the impacts of the emergency situation related to the coronavirus outbreak on the financial intermediary system. This package modified the FFAR and the FECR. Effective March 24, 2020, for the FFAR, foreign exchange liabilities from financial customers with a residual maturity of over one year are subdivided into groups according to residual maturity, with higher (more favorable) weights for longer maturities. This is to strengthen the banking system. Previously, the FFAR regulation accepted foreign exchange funds with a residual maturity over one year as 100% stable funds, regardless of the funding partner or fund type.

Elements to be included in the calculation in case of foreign currency deposits and foreign currency liabilities with a remaining maturity of 1 year or more are (1) foreign currency bonds with a remaining maturity of 1 year or more (weight=100%), (2) foreign currency deposits and liabilities of households, non-financial corporations (SMEs included), and other sectors with a remaining maturity of 1 year or more (weight=100%), (3) foreign currency deposits and liabilities of financial corporations with a remaining maturity of 1–2 years, including deposits of money market funds (weight =70%), (4) foreign currency deposits and liabilities of financial corporations with a remaining maturity of 2–5 years, including deposits of money market funds (weight=90%), and (5) foreign currency deposits and liabilities of financial corporations with a remaining maturity of 5 years or more (weight=100%).

Effective March 24, 2020, the FECR determining a limit on the foreign exchange mismatches between assets and liabilities relative to the balance sheet total is narrowed from 15% to 10%, thus constraining bank’s on-balance-sheet currency mismatch.

Borrowing abroad
No.

Maintenance of accounts abroad
No.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)
No.

Lending locally in foreign exchange
Yes.

Notification is required pursuant to EU Directive No. 2013/36/EC in case of cross-border services.

MNB Decree No. 32/2014 (IX. 10) (modified by MNB Decree No. 29/2018 (VIII. 21)) on the regulation of DSTI and LTV ratios.
introduced new DSTI and LTV limits. The Decree requires that the earnings of the borrower be properly documented, regardless of the currency. The following stricter LTV restrictions differentiate according to the type and the currency of loans: (1) real-estate-backed mortgage loans: 50% for loans in euros, 35% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 80% for loans in Hungarian forint (HUF); (2) financial real estate leasing: 55% for loans in euros, 40% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 85% for loans in HUF; (3) vehicle financing: 45% for loans in euros, 30% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 75% for loans in HUF; and (4) vehicle leasing: 50% for loans in euros, 35% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 80% for loans in HUF. These restrictions do not affect loan conversions in the same foreign currency (for example, a Swiss franc loan may be converted to another Swiss franc loan). The MNB Decree differentiates the DSTI limits for new mortgage loans denominated in HUF with over 5 years of maturity based on the length of the interest rate fixation period and the net monthly income of the borrower. From July 1, 2019, the limits are as follows: For borrowers with net income below HUF 5,00,000 (previously HUF 4,00,000), the limit for (1) floating or fixed interest rates for less than 5 years is 25%; (2) for interest rates fixed for at least 5 years but less than 10 years, the limit is 35%; and (3) for interest rates fixed for at least 10 years or for the whole term, it is 50%. For borrowers with net income of HUF 5,00,000 (previously HUF 4,00,000) or above, the limit for (1) floating or fixed interest rates for less than 5 years is 30%; (2) for interest rates fixed for at least 5 years but less than 10 years, the limit is 40%; and (3) for interest rates fixed for at least 10 years or for the whole term, it is 60%. EUR limits for the relevant income categories: for below-5-years interest fixation period 15/20% and for 5 years or longer interest fixation period 25/30%. Limits for mortgage loans denominated in other foreign currencies for below-5-years interest fixation period 5/10% and for 5 years or longer interest fixation period 10/15%.

The applicable DSTI limits for uncovered loans or mortgage loans with a maturity of up to 5 years depending on the verified net monthly income of the borrower and the currency of the loan: (1) 50% for net income less than HUF 5,00,000, 25% for loans in euros, and 10% for loans in other foreign currencies; (2) 60% for net income higher than HUF 5,00,000, 30% for loans in euros, and 15% for loans in other foreign currencies.

Open foreign exchange position limits

Yes.

There is no specific limit on net open foreign exchange positions; however, banks must calculate their own funds requirements according to Article 351 of the CRR (Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013), which applies to all EU members. “If the sum of an institution’s overall net foreign exchange position and its net gold position, calculated in accordance with the procedure set out in Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk. The own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk must be the sum of its overall net foreign exchange position and its net gold position in the reporting currency, multiplied by 8%.”

On resident assets and liabilities

Yes.

There is no specific limit on net open foreign exchange positions; however, banks must calculate their own funds requirements according to Article 351 of the CRR (Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013), which applies to all EU members. “If the sum of an institution’s overall net foreign exchange position and its net gold position, calculated in accordance with the procedure set out in Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk. The own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk must be the sum of its overall net foreign exchange position and its net gold position in the reporting currency, multiplied by 8%.”

On nonresident assets and liabilities

Yes.

There is no specific limit on net open foreign exchange positions; however, banks must calculate their own funds requirements according to Article 351 of the CRR (Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013), which applies to all EU members. “If the sum of an institution’s overall net foreign exchange position and its net gold position, calculated in accordance with the procedure set out in Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk. ### Provisions specific to institutional investors

Yes.

Insurance companies

Yes.

Act No. LXXXVIII of 2014 on Insurance Activities (published December 22, 2014) implementing Solvency II Directives is in effect.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes.

Controls apply to the purchase of securities issued by nonresidents if such assets are to form part of the cover of the technical provisions of a small domestic insurance company, unless the assets (1) are kept in... the territory of EU members or (2) were issued by (a) an OECD or EEA member country, (b) local or regional authorities of OECD or EEA member countries, (c) business operations established in an OECD or EEA member country, or (d) an international organization to which one or more OECD or EEA member countries belong.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes.

Controls apply to (1) real estate investment that forms part of the technical provisions of a small domestic insurance company, unless the real estate is located in EU countries; and (2) foreign assets constituting cover for the technical provisions of an insurance company, unless the assets are kept in EU member countries or were issued by (a) an OECD or EEA member country, (b) local or regional authorities of OECD or EEA member countries, (c) business operations established in an OECD or EEA member country, or (d) an international organization to which one or more OECD or EEA member countries belong.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes.

Branch offices of third country insurance companies must (1) have sufficient liquid assets to cover the minimum security capital and must deposit one-quarter of these assets as security and (2) keep the liquid assets covering the minimum security capital in Hungary and keep the remainder in the EU.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Yes.

Small domestic insurance companies are subject to currency-matching regulations as follows: (1) If coverage is expressed in a contract in a specific currency, the insurance company’s liabilities are deemed to be in that currency. (2) The assets of technical provisions must be placed in assets expressed in the type of currency defined above. (3) For non-life insurance, if the contract does not stipulate the currency, the insurance company's commitment is deemed to be in the currency of the country where the risk is located (Annex 8 of the Act).

Pension funds

Yes.

The type of currency in which a pension fund is required to keep reserves set aside to cover payments of pension benefits under its own plan to participating fund members must be specified in accordance with the foreign exchange regulations in effect and with the following provisions: (1) If the fund’s benefit payment obligation is denominated in a specific currency, then, for the purposes of compliance with foreign exchange regulations, the fund’s liabilities must be in that currency. (2) The provisions set aside to cover the fund’s benefit plan must be placed in receivables denominated in the currency defined in Paragraph (1). (3) A fund may place up to 30% of its liabilities denominated in a specific currency in assets other than what is defined in Paragraph (2); however, the value of the assets kept in various currencies may not be less than the value of all liabilities kept in various currencies (Section 67(7) of Act No. LXXXII of 1997 on Private Pensions and Private Pension Funds).

Floating Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. Central bank of Iceland (CBI) intervention in the foreign exchange market has preserved exchange rate flexibility and maintained reserve adequacy while countering disorderly market conditions. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a floating arrangement. The CBI publishes monthly data on its interventions in the foreign exchange market. Developments in the trade balance and the foreign exchange market are covered in CBI publications, including the Monetary Bulletin and Financial Stability.

Free floating

Official exchange rate  Yes. Every trading day at 14:15 hrs. Central European Time (CET), the CBI determines the official exchange rate of the króna against other currencies, which is used as the rate for official agreements, court cases, and other agreements between parties when no other rate is specified (Article 19 of Central Bank Act No. 36/2001). The reference exchange rate is published on the CBI’s website each business day at 4:00 p.m. Icelandic time. The official rate is based on the price of the euro against the króna, as quoted in the domestic foreign exchange market, and price developments in the market. The fixing is a snapshot of the position in the foreign exchange market.

Government and Central Bank  Yes. Decisions on the application of the CB’s monetary policy instruments are taken by the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC). These monetary policy instruments are its interest rate decisions, transactions with credit institutions other than loans of last resort, decisions on reserve requirements, and foreign exchange market transactions aimed at affecting the exchange rate of the króna. Members of the MPC are the Governor, the Deputy Governor for Monetary Policy, the Deputy Governor for Financial Stability, and two external experts in the fields of economics and monetary policy who are appointed by the prime minister for a term of five years.

The Act on the Central Bank of Iceland requires that the Bank’s MPC meet at least six times a year, make public the minutes of its meetings, and explain its decisions and the rationale behind them.
Each monetary policy decision is published in a statement released by the MPC before the market opens on the day the decision is announced. The MPC publishes the minutes of its meetings two weeks after each interest rate decision. The minutes contain the Committee’s assessment of economic and monetary developments and prospects and MPC members’ reasons for their votes. Further information can be found in the Monetary Policy Committee Rules of Procedure which are approved by the CBI’s Supervisory Board.

By law, the CBI may declare a quantitative target for inflation, with the approval of the minister. According to the joint declaration made by the CBI and the government in 2001, Iceland’s inflation target is defined as an inflation rate of 2½%. If inflation deviates by more than ±1½ percentage points from the target, the CBI is obliged to submit a report to the government explaining the reasons for the deviations from the target, how the CBI intends to react, and how long it will take to reach the inflation target again in the CBI’s assessment. The report must be made public.

Commercial banks may set freely their exchange rates in transactions with their customers.

In accordance with the Foreign Exchange Act No. 87/1992, only the CBI and those parties that either (1) are authorized by law or in accordance with the provisions of international agreements to which Iceland is a party, or (2) have been granted specific authorization by the CBI, may act as intermediaries in foreign exchange transactions.

The former category includes commercial banks (there are currently four commercial banks operating in Iceland), savings banks (currently four), and other financial companies that provide foreign exchange services in connection with their services. It also includes other currency exchange providers (foreign exchange bureaus) that may offer foreign exchange services, provided they register with the CBI’s Financial Supervisory Authority (FME) in accordance with Article 35 of the Act on Measures against Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing No. 140/2018. Currently, one currency exchange provider is operating in Iceland.
As of December 31, 2019, three banks, Arion banki hf., Íslandsbanki hf., and Landsbankinn hf., which act as market makers, may participate in the organized interbank foreign exchange market, along with the CBI (Article 20, Paragraph 1, Section 7, of the Act on Financial Undertakings No. 161/2002). Eligibility to participate in the organized interbank foreign exchange market is governed by CBI regulations. The price of the króna against the euro is determined in the foreign exchange market by market makers that undertake to give indicative quotes for the buying and selling rates for €1 million. Quotes are entered and communicated on a Reuters page and are accessible only to market makers and the CBI. The CBI oversees the market and may trade there (intervene) at any time at the market makers’ quoted rates.

Three banks, which act as market makers, are entitled to participate in the foreign exchange market, together with the CBI. The market makers undertake to give indicative quotes for the buying and selling rates for €1 million. Quotes are entered and communicated on a Reuters page and are accessible only to market makers.

There is no official market in outright forward or swap transactions. Such transactions are conducted by the banks over the counter. The CBI has only rarely participated in foreign exchange derivatives markets (forward and swap) since January 2009 to reduce banks’ foreign exchange imbalances.

There are no restrictions on cross-border movement of króna-denominated assets other than those that fall under the scope of Act No. 37/2016 on the Treatment of Króna-Denominated Assets Subject to Special Restrictions. They may be used for capital transactions within the set of offshore assets and investment in designated government-issued bills and CDs issued by the CBI. Effective March 5, 2019, offshore króna owners’ authorizations to withdraw funds from accounts subject to special restrictions were expanded and all offshore króna owners were given a chance to release their offshore króna assets. These expanded authorizations are of three types: First is a general authorization for all offshore króna owners to release their offshore króna assets to purchase foreign currency and export it to an account abroad. Second is an authorization for offshore króna owners that have owned offshore króna continuously since November 28, 2008, to release those offshore króna assets from the legal restrictions. Third is an authorization for individuals to withdraw up to ISK 100 million from accounts subject to special restrictions.
Derivatives contracts involving Icelandic Króna (ISK) against a foreign currency, whether they are contracts involving currencies, securities, a combination of currencies and securities, or other comparable financial instruments, are prohibited by Article 13(i), Paragraph 1 of the Foreign Exchange Act. By Article 13(i), Paragraph 2, this prohibition does not apply to contracts that are related solely to trade in goods and services.

Derivatives transactions with financial enterprises in Iceland for the purpose of hedging against exchange rate risk are exempt from these restrictions, on confirmation from the CBI. This permission does not apply to assets that fall under the scope of Act No. 37/2016 on the Treatment of Króna-Denominated Assets Subject to Special Restrictions or to hedging in connection with bonds issued abroad in domestic currency (glacier bonds).

Parties willing to engage in derivatives transactions must provide the CBI with a short explanation of the nature of the foreign exchange imbalance to be hedged, with supporting documentation such as annual reports, statements of positions in securities, or information about historical foreign exchange imbalances on an income statement. In addition, they must provide information about the form, extent, and maturities of the planned derivative contracts. The CBI then confirms that they constitute a bona fide hedge.

There are no restrictions on cross-border movement of króna-denominated assets other than those that fall under the scope of Act No. 37/2016 on the Treatment of Króna-Denominated Assets Subject to Special Restrictions.

Loans denominated in foreign currency or krónur may be repaid in krónur and foreign currency, respectively. However, this permission does not apply to assets that fall under the scope of Act No. 37/2016 on the Treatment of Króna-Denominated Assets Subject to Special Restrictions.

The Ministry of Finance and Economic Affairs (MOF) has the ultimate responsibility for imports and, in consultation with the CBI, for capital movements and foreign exchange regulation. The MOF implements controls on inward FDI. The CBI licenses commercial foreign exchange dealers, grants exemptions from capital controls, and sets reporting requirements for statistical purposes. The CBI may issue foreign exchange and capital transactions regulations in accordance with the Foreign Exchange Act and grants exemptions from that law. The Customs Authority monitors compliance with the requirement that export payments be denominated in foreign currency.

The use of foreign exchange among residents is prohibited.

Payments arrangements, bilateral payments arrangements, operative and inoperative bilateral payments arrangements, regional arrangements, clearing agreements, and barter agreements and open accounts are all prohibited.

Administration of control is under the responsibility of the MOF, with consultation with the CBI.

Payments arrears are covered by the MOF.

Investment with new inflows of foreign currency that is converted to domestic currency at a finance company in Iceland is subject to notification to the CBI within three weeks from the conversion of foreign currency to ISK.
Offshore króna assets may be used for capital transactions within the set of offshore assets and investment in designated government-issued bills and CDs issued by the CBI. Funds deriving from contractual instalments on the principal of loan obligation other than bullet loan obligations, and indexation of such contractual instalments of assets falling under the scope of Act No. 37/2016 on the Treatment of Króna-Denominated Assets Subject to Special Restrictions, are convertible and transferable. On receiving confirmation from the CBI, individuals are permitted to withdraw a maximum of ISK 100 million a calendar year from offshore króna accounts, provided the offshore króna assets have been continuously owned by the beneficial owner since November 28, 2008. Effective March 5, 2019, offshore króna owners’ authorizations to withdraw funds from accounts subject to special restrictions were expanded and all offshore króna owners were given a chance to release their offshore króna assets. These expanded authorizations are of three types. First is a general authorization for all offshore króna owners to release their offshore króna assets to purchase foreign currency and export it to an account abroad. Second is an authorization for offshore króna owners that have owned offshore króna continuously since November 28, 2008, to release those offshore króna assets from the legal restrictions. Third is an authorization for individuals to withdraw up to ISK 100 million from accounts subject to special restrictions.

Purchases of shares and other equity capital may be subject to laws on foreign investment. Purchases by nonresidents of shares or other securities of a participating nature may be affected by laws on inward direct investment and establishment. Previously, certain restrictions applied. Effective March 06, 2019, the special reserve ratio was lowered from 20% to 0%.

Effective April 3, 2019, the following restrictions on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna were lifted. First, the restriction on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna when they were related to specified measures involving payment remitted, directly or indirectly, by withdrawal from an account owned by a foreign financial enterprise (Vostro account), was lifted. Second, the restriction on settlement of transactions with further specified financial instruments comparable to those falling under Article 2 of the Rules on Special Reserve Requirements for New Foreign Currency Inflows, No. 490/2016. Third, the restriction on exportation of specified securities, when investment in them had not fallen under the special reserve base described in Article 2 of the Rules on Special Reserve Requirement for New Foreign Currency Inflows.

There are some sector-based restrictions that apply to all nonresidents (including EEA residents) and some requirements are made regarding investments of residents outside EEA.

Controls apply to (1) investment by foreign countries or their government-owned enterprises, unless authorized; (2) investment in fishing and primary fish processing (that is, excluding retail packaging and later stages of the preparation of fish products for distribution and consumption); (3) investment in an air transport company exceeding 49% of share capital; (4) acquisition of rights to natural resources or energy exploitation and investment in energy production or distribution.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents No. Krónur may be used to invest in domestic currency financial instruments whether the funds are from an account with a financial institution in Iceland or an account owned by a foreign financial institution. Cross-currency settlement of sale or issuance of securities does not require that proceeds in krónur be deposited to a króna-denominated account, in the issuer’s name within a domestic bank. Effective April 3, 2019, the following restrictions on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna were lifted. First, the restriction on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna when they were related to specified measures involving payment remitted, directly or indirectly, by withdrawal from an account owned by a foreign financial enterprise (Vostro account), was lifted. Second, the restriction on settlement of transactions with further specified financial instruments comparable to those falling under Article 2 of the Rules on Special Reserve Requirements for New Foreign Currency Inflows, No. 490/2016. Third, the restriction on exportation of specified securities, when investment in them had not fallen under the special reserve base described in Article 2 of the Rules on Special Reserve Requirement for New Foreign Currency Inflows.

Purchase abroad by residents No. There are no restrictions on investment in securities, mutual fund and investment fund units, money market instruments, other negotiable financial instruments, and monetary claims and other comparable claims in foreign currency.

Sale or issue abroad by residents No. Residents may issue or sell securities abroad without repatriation requirements. Cross-currency settlement of sale or issuance of securities is permitted without the requirement that the proceeds in krónur be deposited to a króna-denominated account, in the issuer’s name with a domestic bank. Effective April 3, 2019, the following restrictions on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna were lifted. First, the restriction on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna when they were related to specified measures involving payment remitted, directly or indirectly, by withdrawal from an account owned by a foreign financial enterprise (Vostro account), was lifted. Third, the restriction on exportation of specified securities, when investment in them had not fallen under the special reserve base described in Article 2 of the Rules on Special Reserve Requirement for New Foreign Currency Inflows.

Bonds or other debt securities No. The proceeds of investments in Iceland are freely convertible and transferable. The cross-border transfer of capital in krónur is no longer restricted by the Act on Foreign Exchange No. 87/1992 (Article 13(b), Paragraph 3), except for transfers of domestic currency deriving from transactions with offshore króna assets falling under the scope of Act
No. 37/2016 on the Treatment of Króna-Denominated Assets Subject to Special Restrictions. Thus, investments in Iceland in capital, money market, and other transferable financial instruments and direct investment are free of controls and are not limited to investments with foreign currency from abroad converted to domestic currency and registered with the CBI. However, investment with new inflows of foreign currency that is converted to domestic currency at a financial enterprise in Iceland is still subject to notification to the CBI within three weeks of the conversion of foreign currency to ISK. Effective March 6, 2019, the special reserve ratio was lowered from 20% to 0%. Previously, effective November 2, 2018, the special reserve ratio was changed from 40% to 20%. Selected capital inflows were subject to the special reserve requirement with the resulting reserve amount being deposited, for a holding period of 12 months, in a deposit institution in Iceland. The deposit institution, in turn, deposited such amount in a reserve (“capital flow”) account at the CBI with the interest rate on the reserve accounts at the CBI being zero. The settlement currency was Icelandic króna. The reserve base included deposits that were used to invest in bonds or bills in domestic currency, and deposits that were used to invest in funds or equity of companies that either invest in domestic currency bonds or bills, or own domestic currency deposits (if cash and deposits bearing an annual interest of 3% or more constitute 10% or more of the funds’ assets). Inflows from individuals not exceeding ISK 100 million were exempt from the reserve requirement.

Effective April 3, 2019, the following restrictions on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna were lifted. First, the restriction on cross-border movement of Icelandic króna when they were related to specified measures involving payment remitted, directly or indirectly, by withdrawal from an account owned by a foreign financial enterprise (Vostro account), was lifted. Third, the restriction on exportation of specified securities, when investment in them had not fallen under the special reserve base described in Article 2 of the Rules on Special Reserve Requirement for New Foreign Currency Inflows.

Restrictions on cross-border movement of domestic currency have largely been lifted. The use of krónur for investments in financial instruments issued in domestic currency, whether or not payment is made from an account with a financial enterprise in Iceland or from an account owned by a foreign financial enterprise, is permitted. Cross-currency settlement of sale or issuance of securities does not require that the proceeds be deposited to a króna-denominated account, in the issuer’s name, with a domestic bank. Controls on derivatives and other instruments

Yes. Derivatives contracts involving ISK against a foreign currency, whether they are contracts involving currencies, securities, a combination of currencies and securities, or other comparable financial instruments, are prohibited by Article 13(i), Paragraph 1 of the Foreign Exchange Act. By Article 13(i), Paragraph 2, this prohibition does not apply to contracts that are related solely to trade in goods and services. Derivatives transactions with financial enterprises in Iceland for the purpose of hedging against exchange rate risk are exempt from these restrictions, on confirmation from the CBI. This permission does not apply to assets that fall under the scope of Act No. 37/2016 on the Treatment of Króna-Denominated Assets Subject to Special Restrictions or to hedging in connection with bonds issued abroad in domestic currency (glacier bonds). Parties willing to engage in derivatives transactions must provide the CBI with a short explanation of the nature of the foreign exchange imbalance to be hedged, with supporting documentation such as annual reports, statements of positions in securities, or information about historical foreign exchange imbalances on an income statement. In addition, they must provide information about the form, extent, and maturities of the planned derivative contracts. The CBI then confirms that they constitute a bona fide hedge.

FDI is welcomed in Iceland and as Iceland is part of the common European market, via the European Economic Area Agreement, all residents and entities within the EU and EFTA enjoy in most cases the same rights to invest as Icelanders do. There are some sector-based restrictions that apply to all nonresidents (including EEA residents) and some requirements are made regarding investments of residents outside EEA. Controls apply to (1) investment by foreign countries or their government-owned enterprises, unless authorized; (2) investment in fishing and primary fish processing (that is, excluding retail... packaging and later stages of the preparation of fish products for distribution and consumption); (3) investment in an air transport company exceeding 49% of share capital; (4) acquisition of rights to natural resources or energy exploitation and investment in energy production or distribution.

Residents and legal entities, domiciled outside EEA or EFTA, are subject to restrictions on real property purchases in Iceland, as explained below. Large-scale investment projects are generally exempted from these restrictions via standard clauses in an investment agreement with the Ministry of Industries and Innovation (see chapter on Incentives). The Minister of Justice can also grant exemptions, to those that are permitted to run a business in Iceland (EEA and OECD entities and those having received a permission as described in the chapter on Business Enterprises), when the property is to be used as business premises or a permanent residence, or when other reasons apply.

For others, the basic restrictions are that private individuals may purchase real property if they are either Icelandic citizens or have their legal residence in Iceland. Partners of legal entities or businesses, who have unlimited liability for the debts of the entity or business concerned, must be Icelandic citizens, or individuals domiciled in Iceland for at least five years, to purchase a real property. In the case of a limited liability company or an institution, the company, or the institution, must be domiciled and have its venue in Iceland. Furthermore, the members of the board and directors must be Icelandic citizens or domiciled in Iceland for at least five years. In the case of corporations, 4/5 of the share capital must be owned by Icelandic citizens and Icelandic citizens must exercise the majority of the votes at shareholder meetings.

Sale locally by nonresidents                      | No.     |

Nonresidents may sell real estate locally without restrictions, and proceeds from the sale of real estate in Iceland by nonresidents are convertible and transferable.

Official exchange rate

Yes. Financial Benchmarks India Private Limited (FBIL) has the responsibility of computation and dissemination of reference rate for USD/INR and exchange rate of other major currencies.

The FBIL reference rate for spot US dollar against the Indian rupee is computed on the basis of the volume-weighted average of the actual market transactions that have taken place during a randomly selected 15-minute window between 1130 hours and 1230 hours every weekday. A +/- 3 standard deviation rule is applied to the transaction data, as above, to remove outliers. For calculation of EURO/INR, GBP/INR, and JPY/INR reference rates, the closing prices of each cross-currency pair, that is, EURO/USD, GBP/USD, and USD/JPY as depicted in the one-minute charts over the 15-minute time period, are obtained from any electronic platform. All the cross-currency rates are taken from the same randomly selected time period of 15 minutes between 1130 hours and 1230 hours that is used for the calculation of USD/INR reference rate. The mean of the closing prices (closing price of each minute during the 15-minute window), so obtained, is crossed with the USD/INR reference rate to calculate the EURO/INR, GBP/INR, and JPY/INR reference rates.

The reference rates are used for the settlement of exchange-traded currency futures and options. The foreign exchange transactions of the Government of India (GOI) undertaken through RBI take place at the reference rate. The RBI's foreign currency assets and liabilities are revalued at weekly and monthly intervals using the reference rate. The IMF also uses the rate for revaluation of SDRs.

As stated by the Notification RBI/2018-19/34 of August 2, 2018, banks are advised to use the conversion rate announced by FBIL for the purpose of converting foreign assets/liabilities for reporting in Form “A” return and Form VIII return. As regards conversion of assets/liabilities in other currencies, for which reference rate is not available from FBIL, banks may use New York closing rate pertaining to the day end of the Reporting Friday, for converting such currencies to USD. Banks may use the reference rate of FBIL for USD/INR of the same day for conversion to INR.

- Monetary Policy Committee
- Central Bank Board
- Other

- Government and Central Bank | Yes. | The RBI Act provides for the inflation target to be set by the GOI, in consultation with the RBI, once in every five years. The RBI Act, 1934, also provides for a six-member MPC to determine the policy interest rate required to achieve the inflation target. The MPC was constituted on September 29, 2016, and it held its first meeting on October 3 and 4, 2016.

Inflation target

- Target number | Yes. | Inflation target for the period beginning from August 5, 2016, and ending on March 31, 2021, is as follows:
  - Inflation target: 4%.
  - Upper tolerance level: 6%.
  - Lower tolerance level: 2%.
- Target measure | Yes. | CPI combined inflation rate.
- CPI | Yes. | CPI inflation (defined as year-wise change in monthly CPI expressed in terms of percentage).
- Core inflation

- Target horizon | Yes. | The 4% CPI inflation target is for the period from August 5, 2016, to March 31, 2021.

Operating target (policy rate)

- Policy rate | Yes. | The policy repo rate is the (fixed) interest rate at which the RBI provides overnight liquidity to banks against the collateral of government and other approved securities under the liquidity adjustment facility.
  - The policy repo rate was changed to 4.0% on May 22, 2020.
- Target corridor band | Yes. | The weighted average call rate (WACR) is the operating target of monetary policy. The reverse repo rate, at which the RBI absorbs liquidity, on an overnight basis, from banks against the collateral of eligible Government securities (G-Secs), constitutes the lower band, and the marginal standing facility rate, at which scheduled commercial banks can borrow additional amount of overnight money from the RBI, constitutes the upper band of the target corridor. The reverse repo rate under the liquidity adjustment facility stands at 3.35% and the marginal standing facility at 4.25% as on May 22, 2020.
The marginal standing facility rate and the reverse repo rate determine the corridor for the movement in the weighted average call money rate.

ADs may freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions and margin with their clients. The RBI issues licenses to “authorized persons” (which include Category-I, Category-II, Category-III ADs and full-fledged money changers, etc.) for foreign exchange transactions, depending on the scope and type of activities allowed to be undertaken. Full-fledged money changers numbering about 2000 may purchase foreign exchange.
exchange from residents as well as nonresidents and may sell foreign exchange for private and business travel purposes only up to the prescribed ceiling. A few select entities which include (1) upgraded full-fledged money changers, (2) select Regional Rural Banks (RRBs); (3) select Urban Cooperative Banks (UCBs); and (4) select Small Finance Banks have been issued Category-II AD licenses and may undertake transactions as specified in A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 25 of March 6, 2006.

Effective April 16, 2019, Systemically Important Non-Deroll Deposit taking Investment and Credit Companies can also apply for AD Category-II license. ADs may freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions and margin with their clients.

There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants. ADs are authorized by the RBI to deal in foreign exchange. There are currently 99 licensed AD Category-I banks. For its intervention operations, the RBI deals with selected AD banks.

The foreign exchange market is largely an OTC market. In addition, exchange-traded currency futures and options (including cross-currency futures) are permitted. The Legal Entity Identifier (LEI) system is applied to all participants in the OTC markets for rupee interest rate derivatives, foreign currency derivatives, and credit derivatives in India. Entities without an LEI code are not eligible to participate in the OTC derivative markets. The LEI code was conceived as a key measure to improve the quality and accuracy of financial data systems for better risk management. The LEI is a 20-character unique identity code assigned to entities who are parties to a financial transaction.

Effective September 1, 2020, the directions have been revised (announced April 07, 2020) to make it easier for users, both residents and nonresidents, to access the domestic foreign exchange derivative markets, through (1) merging facilities for residents and nonresidents into a single unified facility for all users; (2) allowing users having valid exposures to hedge the same by using any available instrument; (3) introducing facility to hedge anticipated exposures; (4) no restriction on rebooking of cancelled contracts; and (5) simplifying procedures for ADs to offer foreign exchange derivatives. According to these directions, AD banks must classify the user either as a retail user or as a non-retail user. Retail user can only enter into Forwards, purchase of call and put options (only European options), purchase of call and put spreads, swaps. Non-retail users can be offered any derivative contract including covered options.

Banks are allowed to undertake foreign exchange transactions through brokers. Such brokers are accredited by the Foreign Exchange Dealers Association of India, a self-regulated organization, to operate in the market.

All AD banks may function as market makers. There are no market-making agreements or other similar agreements.

ADs may deal forward in any permitted currency. The RBI may enter... into swap transactions with ADs, under which it buys and sells US dollars spot and forward at maturities available in the market. Effective September 1, 2020, residents and nonresidents may enter into derivative contracts as per their classification as retail or non-retail with the ADs to hedge anticipated or contracted exposure. Users can freely cancel and rebook the derivative contracts.

Currency futures and options are traded on the National Stock Exchange (NSE), Bombay Stock Exchange (BSE), and Metropolitan Stock Exchange of India (MSEI). Foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) eligible to invest in Indian debt and equity assets under Foreign Exchange Management Act (FEMA), 1999, may access the domestic exchange-traded currency derivatives market to hedge currency risk arising from the market value of their exposure to Indian debt and equity securities.

Residents as well as FPIs can take positions (long or short), without having to establish existence of underlying exposure, up to a single limit of US$100 million equivalent across all currency pairs involving INR, put together, and combined across all exchanges. A long position exceeding these limits in any exchange requires an underlying exposure.

Official cover of forward operations Yes.
The Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India Ltd. insures against exchange rate fluctuation for deferred receivables from the date of a bid up to 15 years after a contract is awarded. Exchange rate cover is offered in Australian dollars, euros, Japanese yen, pounds sterling, Swiss francs, U.A.E. dirhams, and US dollars. For payments specified in other convertible currencies, cover is provided at the discretion of the Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India Ltd.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

For prescription of currency purposes, countries are divided into two groups: (1) ACU members and (2) the external group (all other countries). For the first group, except Bhutan and Nepal, payments for eligible current international transactions must be settled through the ACU. For Nepal and Bhutan, these are settled in Indian rupees. In other cases, payments may be settled in any permitted currency. Payment for imports of oil and gas is permitted outside the ACU mechanism, and all eligible current account transactions, including trade transactions with the Islamic Republic of Iran, must be settled in any permitted currency outside the ACU mechanism.

Trade settlements can be made through ACU dollar or ACU euro accounts or ACU yen accounts (ACU yen inserted vide Notification No. FEMA 14(R)/(2)/2020-RB of March 4, 2020, effective March 6, 2020), which are replenished through the RBI. Members of ACU can use nostro accounts of the commercial banks of ACU countries, that is, ACU dollar or ACU euro accounts or ACU yen accounts, for settling the payments of both exports and imports. Operations in ACU euro are, however, temporarily suspended since July 1, 2016. Payments to countries in the second group may be made in rupees to the account of a resident of any of these countries or in any permitted currency, and receipts from these countries may be obtained in rupees from banks in any of these countries or in any permitted currency. However, special rules may apply to exports under lines of credit extended by the GOI to the governments of certain foreign countries.

Regional arrangements | Yes.
Clearing agreements | Yes.

AMU is the common unit of the ACU account. AMU is denominated as ACU dollar, ACU euro, and ACU yen which is equivalent in value to US$1, €1, and ¥1, respectively.

Although Bhutan and Nepal are members of the ACU, trade with these countries is settled outside the ACU. At present, trade with the Islamic Republic of Iran is also settled outside the ACU mechanism. Transactions with Nepal and Bhutan are settled in Indian rupees. Transactions with Nepal and Bhutan may also be settled in any freely convertible currency if permitted by the Nepal Rastra Bank. Transactions with all other ACU members are currently being settled through ACU dollar and ACU yen.

Effective July 1, 2016, all eligible current account transactions... including trade transactions in euro are permitted to be settled outside the ACU mechanism until further notice.

Barter agreements and open accounts | No. Presently, there are no barter trade agreements with any country. All trade transactions with Myanmar can be settled in any freely convertible currency in addition to the ACU mechanism. It was decided, in consultation with GOI, to do away with the barter system of trade at the Indo-Myanmar border and switch over completely to normal trade from December 1, 2015.

Administration of control | Yes. Exchange management is administered by the RBI in accordance with the FEMA, 1999, and the general policy established by the government, in consultation with the RBI. Much of the routine work of exchange control is delegated to authorized persons. Import and export licenses, where necessary, are issued by the director general of foreign trade.

Payments arrears | No.
Official | No.
Private | No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) | Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade | Yes. Domestic gold sales must be made against up-front payments. Banks may grant gold metal loans. While imports of gold coins and medallions are no longer prohibited, pending further review, the restrictions on banks regarding selling gold coins and medallions have not been removed.

On external trade | Yes. Guidelines related to restrictions/control regarding exports and imports of gold are mentioned in the FTP issued by the Directorate General of Foreign Trade (DGFT), GOI. RBI guidelines in respect of import of gold are as given below:
The 20:80 scheme of import of gold was withdrawn on November 28, 2014. However, the obligation to export under the 20:80 scheme would apply to the unutilized gold imported before November 28, 2014.
Nominated banks and nominated agencies, as notified by the DGFT, are permitted to import gold on consignment basis. All sale of gold domestically will, however, be against up-front payment. Nominated banks are free to grant gold metal loans.
The status holder exporters must adhere to the guidelines contained in extant FTP, as amended from time to time.
The import of gold coins and medallions is permitted. However, prohibition on sale of gold coins and medallions by banks continues pending further review.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes | Yes.
On exports | Yes.

Domestic currency | Yes. Any person resident in India: (1) may take outside India (other than to Nepal and Bhutan) currency notes of GOI and RBI notes up to an amount not exceeding Rs 25,000 a person or such amount and subject to such conditions as notified by the RBI from time to time and (2) may take or send outside India (other than to Nepal and Bhutan) commemorative coins not exceeding two coins each.

In case of travel to Nepal and Bhutan, a person may take or send out of India to Nepal or Bhutan, currency notes of GOI and RBI notes up to the denomination of Rs.100 without any limit.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted: Yes.
FCNR accounts (Banks-Scheme B) in freely convertible foreign currency are permitted for nonresident Indians (NRIs) and people of Indian origin (PIOs). These must be in the form of term deposits of one- to five-year maturity in any foreign currency that is freely convertible.
Diplomatic missions and their staff and nondiplomatic staff with official passports may open foreign exchange accounts with ADs without RBI approval, subject to certain conditions. Accounts related to countries other than Bhutan and Nepal are treated as nonresident accounts. NRIs in Nepal and Bhutan may open foreign exchange accounts, provided they are funded with permitted foreign exchange. FDI proceeds may be credited to an FCNR (B) account, provided the original acquisition was from inward remittance or funds in an NRE/FCNR (B) account. Balances may be repatriated at any time without RBI approval. NRIs may use new remittances or funds in FCNR accounts for (1) portfolio investment with repatriation benefits of up to 5% of the paid-up capital, provided total holdings of shares and convertible debentures under the Portfolio Investment Scheme (PIS) do not exceed 10% (24% with a special board resolution passed at a general meeting of the company) of the paid-up capital of the company or of the total paid-in value of each series of its convertible debentures; (2) existing JV companies to raise the ratio of foreign equity shares to prescribed percentages of their capital through expansion of their capital base or through preferential allocation of shares to foreign investors; and (3) investment (only NRIs) on a non-repatriation basis in money market mutual funds (MFs).
The interest rate ceiling on FCNR (B) deposits of maturities between one and three years is LIBOR/swap rates plus 200 basis points (bps), and for maturities between three and five years, it was decreased from LIBOR/swap rates plus 400 bps to LIBOR/swap rates plus 300 bps.
Banks may grant loans, in rupees and foreign exchange, against FCNR (B) fixed deposits to the depositors or to third parties without limit, subject to margin requirements.
Residents may be joint holders in FCNR accounts. NRIs and PIOs may open FCNR (B) accounts with a resident close relative(s) as joint holder(s) on a “former or survivor” basis.
Borrowing not exceeding US$250,000 or its equivalent by residents from close relatives outside India of the borrower is permitted by the RBI, provided the loan is interest-free and the minimum maturity is one year, subject to certain conditions. AD Category-I banks may allow repayment of such loans to the NRE/FCNR (B) account of the lender concerned, subject to conditions.

Approval required: No.
Domestic currency accounts: Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency: Yes. Diplomatic missions and their personnel and family members may open rupee accounts with ADs. Foreign companies may not open new NRE accounts. NRIs and PIOs may maintain NRE rupee accounts with a resident close relative(s) as joint holder(s) on a “former or survivor” basis.

The interest rates offered by banks on NRE deposits may not exceed those offered by them on comparable domestic rupee deposits. FDI proceeds may be credited to an NRE account, provided the original acquisition was from inward remittance or funds held in an NRE/FCNR (B) account. Balances may be repatriated at any time without RBI approval. NRIs may use funds from new remittances or in their NRE accounts for (1) portfolio investments with repatriation benefits of up to 5% of the paid-up capital, provided their total holdings of shares and convertible debentures under the PIS do not exceed 10% (24% with a special board resolution passed at a general meeting of the company) of the paid-up capital of the company or of the total paid-in value of each series of its convertible debentures; (2) existing JV companies to raise the ratio of foreign equity shares to prescribed percentages of their capital through expansion of their capital base or preferential allocation of shares to foreign investors; and (3) investment on a non-repatriation basis in money market MFs (only NRIs).

Balances in such accounts are freely convertible. Banks may freely set their interest rates on savings deposits and term deposits with maturities of one year or more. However, interest rates may not exceed those offered on comparable domestic rupee deposits. Gifts to NRIs may be credited to nonresident ordinary (NRO) accounts in rupees. Residents may make rupee gifts up to US$250,000 a financial year, as permitted under the LRS to an NRI or PIO who is a close relative through a cross-checked/electronic transfer to an NRO account. NRIs may transfer funds from NRO accounts within the overall ceiling of US$1 million a financial year subject to payment of applicable taxes (that is, when the funds are remitted abroad).

Any person resident outside India, having a business interest in India, may open a special nonresident rupee account (SNRR account) with an AD for the purpose of putting through bona fide transactions in rupees, not involving any violation of the provisions of the Act, rules and regulations made thereunder. Effective November 13, 2019, scope of “SNRR” has been enhanced by allowing persons residing outside India to open such accounts for purposes like ECBs in INR; Trade Credits in INR; Trade (Export/Import) Invoicing in INR; and Business-related transactions outside International Financial Service Centre (IFSC) by IFSC units at GIFT city.

Approval required: No. These accounts require RBI approval if they are in the name of Pakistan or Bangladesh nationals – even those of Indian origin.

Blocked accounts: No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget: No.

Financing requirements for imports: Yes. The RBI allows requests from exporters through their AD Category-I banks to offset export receivables against import payables of the same foreign buyer and supplier, subject to certain terms and conditions.
Minimum financing requirements  No.  There are no minimum financing requirements for imports. AD Category-I banks may, however, need to obtain information from importers and verify the bona fide of the transactions before remittance.

Advance payment requirements  Yes.  ADs may allow unlimited advance remittances against imports of goods, but importers must provide a standby LC or bank guarantee for amounts over US$200,000. ADs, at their discretion, may allow advance remittance up to US$5 million without a bank guarantee or standby LC if the importer is legitimate and has a satisfactory track record. ADs may make advance remittances without a bank guarantee or standby LC for the import of rough diamonds from certain mining companies and for aircraft, helicopter, or other aviation-related purchases up to US$50 million. ADs may allow unlimited advance remittances against imports of services, though importers must provide a bank guarantee if the amount exceeds US$500,000. Government and public sector companies require a specific waiver of the bank guarantee from the MOF for advance payments above US$100,000 for imports of both goods and services. In case of merchanting trade transactions, merchanting traders may make advance payment for the import leg if required by the overseas seller. However, effective January 23, 2020, for making advance beyond US$500,000, a bank guarantee/standby letter of credit (SBLC) from a reputable international bank is required. Previously, if inward remittance from the overseas buyer was not received before the outward remittance to the overseas supplier, the AD bank could handle such transactions by providing a facility based on commercial judgment. It must, however, have been assured that any such advance payment for the import leg beyond US$200,000 a transaction will be paid against a bank guarantee/LC from a reputable international bank, except in cases and to the extent payment for the export leg was received in advance.

Advance import deposits  No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports  Yes.

Domiciliation requirements  No.  These may be required by the terms of an LC.

Preshipment inspection  No.  These may be required by the terms of an LC.

Letters of credit  Yes.  These may be required where applicable.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses  Yes.  As per FTP.

Other  Yes.  AD Category-I banks need to obtain information from importers and verify the bona fide of the transactions before remittance documentary evidence is required to be submitted for all the imports. If the amount of the transaction is less than US$1 million, ADs may accept either (1) the exchange control copy of the bill of entry for home consumption or (2) a certificate from the chief executive officer or an auditor (in lieu of Exchange Control Copy of Bill of Entry for home consumption) of the importing company stating that the goods for which payment was made were imported into India, if the importing company is listed on a stock exchange in India and had a net worth of at least Rs 1 billion on the date of the most recent audited balance sheet or is an entity of the GOI or a public sector company or entity whose accounts are audited by the comptroller and auditor general of India. A credit report on the overseas supplier (when import documents are received directly) is not necessary if the invoice value does not exceed US$300,000, provided the ADs are satisfied as to the bona fide nature of the transaction and track record of the importer.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

Yes. The period of realization and repatriation of export proceeds is nine months from the date of export, and it includes all exporters, including units in SEZs, status holder exporters, Export Oriented Units (EOUs), units in electronic hardware technology parks (EHTPs), software technology parks (STPs), and biotechnology parks (BTPs). Exporters must obtain permission from an AD if the export proceeds are not collected within the prescribed period. ADs may extend the period of realization of export proceeds beyond the stipulated period of realization from the date of export up to six months at a time, regardless of the invoice value of the export, subject to conditions. In case of goods exported to Indian-owned warehouses established outside India, the proceeds must be realized within 15 months from the date of shipment of goods. The RBI also administers a program referred to as “Project Exports” under which engineering goods may be exported under deferred payment terms. Project Export also includes execution of turnkey projects and civil construction contracts aboard. Indian exporters are required to obtain the approval of AD Category-I banks/EXIM Bank (Export–Import Bank of India) at post-award stage before undertaking execution of such contracts.

Effective April 01, 2020, in view of COVID outbreak, the period of realization and repatriation to India of the amount representing the full export value of goods or software or services exported was extended from nine months to fifteen months from the date of export, for the exports made up to or on July 31, 2020.

Surrender requirements

Yes.

Surrender to the central bank

No.

Surrender to authorized dealers

Yes. Exporters may credit 100% of their foreign exchange earnings to an EEFC account; total accruals in the account during a calendar month must be converted to rupees on or before the last day of the subsequent calendar month after adjusting for approved purposes and forward commitments. Status holder exporters may write off outstanding export proceeds up to 10% (5% for other than status holder exporters) of their total export proceeds realized during the previous calendar year. ADs may allow reduction in the export invoice value in case of normal exporters, provided the reduction does not exceed 25% of the invoice value, subject to regulatory conditions. In case of exporters who have been in the export business or more than three years, reduction in invoice value may be allowed, without any percentage ceiling, subject to regulatory conditions.

Yes. These may be required where applicable.
Domiciliation

No. This may be required by the terms of LC.

Preshipment inspection

No. This may be required by the terms of LC.

Other

Yes. Under the Export Data Processing and Monitoring System, exports of goods and services must be declared, irrespective of the invoice value. To facilitate e-commerce, guidelines for facilitating export receivables and import payables are made through online payment gateway service providers.

For third-party payments, with a view to further liberalizing the procedure relating to payments for exports/imports and taking into account evolving international trade practices, according to A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 70 of November 08, 2013, AD banks may allow payments for export of goods/software to be received from a third party (a party other than the buyer) subject to the following conditions: (1) The firm irrevocable order must be backed by a tripartite agreement. (2) Third-party payment must be through the banking channel after taking into consideration the FATF statement of the country. (3) The exporter must declare the third-party remittance on the export declaration form. (4) It is the responsibility of the exporter to realize and repatriate the export proceeds from the third party named in the export declaration form. (5) Reported outstanding amounts, if any, in the export outstanding statement must continue to be shown in the name of the exporter. However, instead of the name of the overseas buyer, the name of the declared third party must appear in the export outstanding statement. (6) Payments for shipments to a country in Group II of restricted cover countries (for example, Somalia, Sudan) may be received from an open cover country.

AD Category-I banks may allow exporters with at least a three-year satisfactory track record to receive long-term export advances up to a tenor of 10 years for execution of long-term supply contracts for exports of goods, subject to certain conditions mentioned therein. Further, the condition that exporters and importers must have a “firm irrevocable order backed by a tripartite agreement” is not applicable if there is documentary evidence of third-party payments/name of the third party mentioned in the irrevocable order/invoice. The following conditions apply: (1) The AD bank must be satisfied with the bona fides of the transaction and export documents, such as invoice/foreign inward remittance certificate (FIRC), and (2) the AD bank must consider the FATF statements while handling such a transaction.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Yes. Residents may obtain foreign exchange for bona fide permissible current account transactions.
Trade-related payments  Yes.

For prescription of currency purposes, countries are divided into two groups: (1) ACU members and (2) the external group (all other countries). For the first group, except Bhutan and Nepal, payments for eligible current international transactions must be settled through the ACU. For Nepal and Bhutan, these are settled in Indian rupees. In other cases, payments may be settled in any permitted currency. Payment for imports of oil and gas is permitted outside the ACU mechanism, and all eligible current account transactions, including trade transactions with the Islamic Republic of Iran, must be settled in any permitted currency outside the ACU mechanism.

Trade settlements are permitted through ACU dollar or ACU euro or ACU JPY account, which are replenished through the RBI. Members of ACU are now permitted to use nostro accounts of the commercial banks of ACU countries, that is, ACU dollar or ACU euro accounts or ACU yen accounts, for settling the payments of both exports and imports. Effective March 06, 2020, to facilitate transactions/settlements, participants in the Asian Clearing Union will have the option to settle their transactions either in ACU dollar or ACU euro or in ACU Japanese yen. It was decided by the board of directors of ACU to permit Japanese yen for settlement of transactions. Operations in ACU euro are, however, temporarily suspended since July 1, 2016. Payments to countries in the second group may be made in rupees to the account of a resident of any of these countries or in any permitted currency, and receipts from these countries may be obtained in rupees from banks in any of these countries or in any permitted currency. However, special rules may apply to exports under lines of credit extended by the GOI to the governments of certain foreign countries.

(1) Receipt for exports from third party (party other than buyer) is allowed subject to RBI guidelines, which were introduced vide A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 70 of November 8, 2013.

(2) Receipt for export may also be made in form of bank draft, check, pay order, foreign currency notes/traveler’s check from buyer during visit to India, provided the foreign currency is surrendered within the specified period to AD bank. Receipt for exports may be made by debit to FCNR/NRE/SNRR account, maintained by overseas buyer in India in rupees from credit card servicing bank in India subject to regulatory conditions, from a rupee account held in the name of exchange house subject to regulatory condition, in accordance with RBI directions in case of arrangement between the Central Government and foreign government/credit arrangement by EXIM Bank with financial institution in foreign state, in form of precious metals in certain cases subject to regulatory conditions. Any receipt for other than exports may be received by means of postal order issued by a post office outside India or by a postal money order issued by such post office. These guidelines are specified under Notification No. FEMA 14(R)/2016-RB of May 2, 2016.

(3) A payment in foreign exchange by an AD, whether by way of remittance from India or by way of reimbursement to his branch or correspondent outside India against payment for import into India, or against any other payment, must be in the following manner: (a) For ACU countries (other than Nepal, Bhutan, and Iran), payment for import of goods and services by credit to ACU dollar account and/or ACU euro account and/or ACU yen account in India of a bank of the member country in which the other party to the transaction is resident or by debit to the ACU dollar account and/or ACU euro account and/or ACU yen account of the AD maintained with the correspondent bank in that member country; payment in any freely convertible currency in all other cases; payment may be in freely convertible currency or through ACU mechanism for imports from...
Myanmar; in case of Nepal and Bhutan, payment may be in rupees. In case of Iran, payment for import in any freely convertible currency and/or in accordance with RBI directions; in all other cases as per RBI directions. (b) For all other countries (other than ACU countries), payment in rupees from account of a bank situated in any country other than a member country of the ACU or payment in any freely convertible currency. (c) Payment for import to be made to third party is permitted as per RBI guidelines as per A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 70 of November 8, 2013. (d) Payment for import may be made through international card in rupees from international credit card (ICC)/debit card through the credit/debit card servicing bank in India against the charge slip signed by the importer as prescribed by Reserve Bank from time to time subject to regulatory conditions. Payment for import may also be made by credit to SNRR account maintained by the overseas seller in India. These guidelines are specified under Notification No. FEMA 14(R)/2016-RB of May 2, 2016.

(4) Settlement of export and import transactions where the invoicing is in a freely convertible currency and the settlement takes place in the currency of the beneficiary, which though convertible does not have a direct exchange rate, is permitted subject to regulatory requirements. These guidelines are specified in A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 42 of February 4, 2016.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions
Yes. The Foreign Exchange Management (Non-debt Instruments) Rules, 2019, of October 17, 2019, issued by the Central Government, regulate investments in India by person resident outside India. Foreign Exchange Management (Mode of Payment and Reporting of Non-debt Instruments) Regulations, 2019, of October 17, 2019, issued by the RBI regulates mode of payment and reporting requirements for investment in India by a person resident outside India. Effective October 17, 2019, the Foreign Exchange Management (transfer or issue of security by a person resident outside India) Regulations, 2017, has been superseded by the Foreign Exchange Management (Non-debt Instruments) Rules, 2019. Resident individuals may remit abroad within the limit equivalent of US$250,000 a financial year for all permissible capital transactions under the LRS.

Repatriation requirements

Purchase locally by nonresidents
Yes.

A person resident outside India may purchase equity instruments (equity shares; compulsory convertible debentures (CCDs); compulsorily convertible preference shares; share warrants; and partly paid-up shares) issued by an Indian company in permitted sectors subject to entry route, sectoral cap/regulatory limits, and other attendant conditionalities. (The term “capital instruments” have been replaced with “equity instruments” in Non-debt Instruments Rules, 2019.)

FPIs must register with the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) before they invest in the Indian capital market. (Since January 2014, all categories of foreign institutional investors (FIIs) and subaccounts were merged into a single investor type FPI.)

Registered FPIs may invest in permissible equity and/or debt securities issued by an Indian company whose equity and/or debt is listed on recognized stock exchanges in India. (Effective October 17, 2019, Non-debt Instruments Rules and Debt Instruments Regulations have been issued separately.)

There is no cap on the total amount of investment by FPIs in the equity shares of an Indian company, but there are caps on the FPIs percentage of paid-up capital in individual Indian companies. The holdings of a single FPI or FPI group in an Indian company must be less than 10% of total paid-up capital on fully diluted basis. Effective April 01, 2020, the aggregate limit for foreign investment by FPIs is the sectoral cap applicable to the investee company as laid out in sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph 3 of Schedule I of the Non-debt Rules. However, the aggregate limit may be decreased by the Indian company to a lower threshold limit of 24% or 49% or 74% as deemed fit, with the approval of its Board of Directors and its General Body through a resolution and a special resolution, respectively, before March 31, 2020.

Provided further that, the Indian company which has decreased its aggregate limit to 24% or 49% or 74% may increase such aggregate limit to 49% or 74% or the sectoral cap or statutory ceiling, respectively, as deemed fit, with the approval of its Board of Directors or its General Body through a resolution and a special resolution, respectively. Previously, the aggregate limit for investment by all FPIs may not exceed 24% of the total paid-up capital on fully diluted basis of the Indian company. The overall ceiling of 24% may be raised to the sectoral cap by a company through a special resolution passed by the Board of Directors and special resolution passed in the meeting of shareholders.

NRI and Overseas Citizens of India (OCIs) may invest in equity instruments. Individual NRIs and OCIs may purchase equity instruments of Indian companies listed on the stock exchange, up to 5% of the paid-up capital on fully diluted basis of the Indian company. The aggregate limit for investment by all NRIs and OCIs may not exceed 10% of the paid-up capital on fully convertible basis of the Indian company. This limit may be raised to 24% through a special resolution passed by the Board of Directors followed by an extraordinary general meeting.

Nonresidents, including NRIs and OCIs, may invest in equity instruments of a listed Indian company on the stock exchange through a registered broker under the FDI scheme, provided they have already acquired and continue to hold control in accordance with SEBI (Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeover) regulations. Pricing norms for transfer of equity instruments between residents and nonresidents for listed companies must comply with SEBI’s guidelines and for unlisted companies internationally accepted pricing methodology for valuation of shares done on arm’s length basis.

A person resident outside India (other than a citizen of Pakistan or Bangladesh) or an entity incorporated outside India (other than an entity in Pakistan or Bangladesh), not being a FPI or Foreign Venture Capital Investor registered in accordance with SEBI guidelines, may contribute foreign capital either by way of capital contribution or by way of acquisition/transfer of profit shares in the capital structure of a Limited Liability Partnership, subject to the terms and conditions as specified in Schedule VI of the Foreign Exchange Management (Non-debt Instruments) Rules, 2019.

Equity instruments of Indian companies held by nonresidents under an FDI arrangement may be sold on the stock exchange. Transfers to residents under private arrangements (off market) do not require RBI permission and may be handled by authorized banks in accordance with the requirements in the regulations, including pricing and reporting requirements. Transfers of sale proceeds are permitted, subject to payment of applicable tax, provided no controls were imposed on the repatriation of sale proceeds at the time of the original investment. Transfers between two nonresidents generally do not require any approval, except for the sector where the investment is under Government route.

| Sale or issue locally by nonresidents | Yes. |
|Purchase abroad by residents          | Yes. |

Resident individuals may remit abroad up to the equivalent of US$250,000 a financial year for any permissible capital transaction under the LRS of 2015–2016.

General permission has been granted by the RBI to residents to hold, own, transfer, or invest in foreign currency or foreign securities outside India, if the currency or security was acquired or held by the person while residing outside India or received through inheritance from a person residing outside India.

SEBI-registered venture capital funds and alternative investment funds may invest in equity and equity-linked instruments of foreign venture capital undertaking, subject to an overall limit of US$750 million and SEBI regulations. Individual venture capital fund/alternative investment fund limits are set by the SEBI, subject to its terms and conditions. Residents may invest in companies listed or otherwise abroad on recognized stock exchanges up to an overall limit of US$250,000 in a financial year under the LRS. A listed Indian company may invest in (1) shares of an overseas company listed on a recognized stock exchange and (2) rated bonds/fixed-income securities issued by companies in up to 50% of its net worth on the date of its latest audited balance sheet.

ADs may allow remittances by resident employees of foreign companies and their JVs or wholly owned subsidiaries (WOS) in which the foreign company holds equity, either directly or indirectly, for acquisition of shares of the foreign company under an employee stock option plan, subject to certain conditions. ADs may also allow remittances from resident individuals for acquisition of qualified shares for the position of director in the overseas company according to the laws of the host country. The limit of these remittances is within the overall ceiling prescribed for resident individuals under the LRS in effect at the time of acquisition. Resident individuals may acquire shares of a foreign entity in part/full consideration of professional services rendered to the foreign company or in lieu of director’s remuneration within the overall ceiling under the LRS in effect at the time of acquisition.

An Indian company may raise capital by issue of American Depository Receipts (ADRs)/global depositary receipts (GDRs) with the underlying of an eligible instrument under Schedule IX of FEM (Non-debt Instruments) Rules, 2019, notified on October 17, 2019.

_Bonds or other debt securities_ Yes.

Investment by FPIs in government and corporate securities is subject to the following limits:

1. The overall limit for FPI investment in Central G-Secs was 5.5% of outstanding stock of securities in fiscal year 2018–2019, and effective April 1, 2019, it was increased to 6% in fiscal year 2019–2020.

2. The overall limit for FPI investment in corporate bonds which was set at 9% of outstanding stock of corporate bonds from fiscal year 2018–2019 was increased to 15% in fiscal year 2020–2021 (effective April 1, 2020). All the sub-categories under the category of corporate bonds were discontinued and replaced with a single limit for FPI investment in all types of corporate bonds in the fiscal year 2018–2019.

3. The limit for FPI investment in State Development Loans (SDLs) is 2% of outstanding stock of securities.

4. Effective April 25, 2019, FPIs are now permitted to invest in municipal bonds within the limits set for FPI investment in SDLs.

5. The cap on aggregate FPI investments in any Central Government security is 30% of the outstanding stock of that security.

6. Effective April 1, 2020, certain specified categories of Central G-Secs were opened fully for nonresidents investors without any restrictions, apart from being available to domestic investors as well, under the Fully Accessible Route (FAR). Additionally, all new issuances of Central G-Secs of 5-, 10-, and 30-year tenors from the financial year 2020–2021 will be eligible for investments under the FAR as “specified securities.”

FPIs are permitted to invest in (1) Central G-Secs, including in T-Bills and SDLs without any minimum residual maturity requirement, subject to the condition that short-term (maturity up to one year) investments by an FPI under either category may not exceed 30% of the total investment of that FPI in that category. Effective January 23, 2020, this short-term investment limit was increased from 20% to 50%.
FPIs are permitted to invest in corporate bonds with minimum residual maturity of above one year, subject to the condition that short-term investments in corporate bonds by an FPI may not exceed 20% of the total investment of that FPI in corporate bonds. Effective January 23, 2020, this short-term investment limit was increased from 20% to 30%. These stipulations would not apply to investments in “Exempted Securities” by FPIs.

FPIs investments in debt instruments in India – Central G-Secs, SDLs, and corporate debt securities, are also subject to the following concentration limits:

1. Long-term FPIs: 15% of prevailing investment limit for that category.
2. Other FPIs: 10% of prevailing investment limit for that category.

FPI investment in corporate bonds is also subject to the following requirements:

1. Investment by any FPI, including investments by related FPIs, may not exceed 50% of any issue of a corporate bond.
2. Effective February 15, 2019, the limit that an FPI could not have an exposure of more than 20% of its corporate bond portfolio to a single corporate (including exposure to entities related to the corporate) was removed.

FPIs are also allowed to invest in Indian debt instruments through a separate channel called the Voluntary Retention Route (VRR), effective March 1, 2019. Broadly, investments under VRR are exempt from macroprudential controls; however, FPIs are required to stay invested for at least 75% of their committed portfolio for a minimum period of three years. Revisions to VRR introduced effective May 24, 2019, included, inter alia, the introduction of a separate category, viz. VRR-Combined; the removal of the requirement to invest at least 25% of the Committed Portfolio Size within one month of allotment; and an additional option provided to FPI at the end of the retention period, viz. continue to hold their investment until the date of maturity or the date of sale, whichever is earlier. Further, the amendment to VRR was done effective January 23, 2020, for introducing additional relaxations and increasing of investment limit from Rs 75,000 crores to Rs 1,50,000 crores.

Effective October 17, 2019, the following provisions came into force:

1. NRI or an OCI may, without limit, purchase the following instruments on repatriation basis,
   (a) Government dated securities (other than bearer securities) or treasury bills or units of domestic MFs or exchange-traded funds (ETFs) which invest less than or equal to 50% in equity or National Plan/Savings Certificates;
   (b) Bonds issued by a Public Sector Undertaking in India;
   (c) Bonds issued by Infrastructure Debt Funds;
   (d) Listed non-convertible/redeemable preference shares or debentures issued in terms of Regulation 6 (merger or demerger or amalgamation of Indian companies) of Foreign Exchange Management (Debt Instruments) Regulations;

2. An NRI or an OCI may purchase on repatriation basis debt instruments issued by banks, eligible for inclusion in regulatory capital.
B.

(1) An NRI or an OCI may, without limit, purchase on non-repatriation basis, dated G-Secs (other than bearer securities), treasury bills, units of domestic MFs or ETFs which invest less than or equal to 50% in equity.

(2) An NRI or an OCI may, without limit, purchase on non-repatriation basis, listed non-convertible/redeemable preference shares or debentures issued in terms of Regulation 6 (Merger or demerger or amalgamation of Indian companies) of Foreign Exchange Management (Debt Instruments) Regulations. These changes were carried out through Foreign Exchange Management (Debt Instruments) Regulations, 2019, of October 17, 2019.

OTC trades in Corporate Bonds are required to be reported only on any one of the reporting platform provided in the debt segment of stock exchanges within 15 minutes of the trade as prescribed in Securities and Exchange Board of India guidelines.

Indian entities can raise funds from abroad by issuance of bonds abroad under the ECB framework in any freely convertible currency or Indian rupees. Such bonds can be issued by all entities eligible to receive FDI and some other entities, viz. Port Trusts, Units in SEZ, Small Industries Development Bank of India (SIDBI), EXIM Bank of India, and registered entities engaged in microfinance activities (only in INR). The lenders have to be residents of FATF- or IOSCO-compliant country. There is a cost ceiling of 6-month LIBOR plus 450 bps. The minimum average maturity for permitted end-uses is 3 years. However, for end-uses of repayment of rupee loans, working capital and general corporate purposes, only foreign equity holders are eligible lenders and the maturity has to be 5 years or above. However, effective July 30, 2019, ECB for these end-uses can now be availed from all ECB lenders (except overseas branches/subsidiaries of Indian banks) with a higher maturity of 7/10 years.

Effective October 17, 2019, NRIs/OCIs may purchase on repatriation and non-repatriation basis without limit (1) treasury bills and (2) units of domestic MFs or ETFs that invest less than or equal to 50% in equity.

NRIs may invest without limit on a non-repatriation basis in money market MFs floated by commercial banks and public or private sector financial institutions with authorization from the SEBI. NRIs... may also invest without limit on a repatriation and non-repatriation basis in T-Bills.

The aggregate limit prescribed for investment by FPIs in G-Secs (currently Rs 3 trillion) is exclusively available for investment in G-Secs and is not fungible between G-Secs and interest rate futures (IRF) instruments.

FPIs are permitted to invest in (1) Central G-Secs, including in T-Bills and SDLs, without any minimum residual maturity requirement, subject to the condition that short-term (maturity up to one year) investments by an FPI under either category may not exceed 20% of the total investment of that FPI in that category. Effective January 23, 2020, this short-term investment limit was increased from 20% to 30%.

FPIs are permitted to invest in corporate bonds with minimum residual maturity of above one year, subject to the condition that short-term investments in corporate bonds by an FPI may not exceed 20% of the total investment of that FPI in corporate bonds. Effective January 23, 2020, this short-term investment limit was increased from 20% to 30%. These stipulations would not apply to investments in “Exempted Securities” by FPIs.

As per Foreign Exchange Management (Debt Instruments) Regulations, 2019, of October 17, 2019, a person resident outside India who has purchased instruments in accordance with Schedule 1 of Foreign Exchange Management (Debt Instruments) Regulations may sell/redeem the instruments subject to such terms and conditions as may be specified by the Reserve Bank and the SEBI.

AD Category-I banks can invest in prescribed money market instruments in overseas markets up to the limits approved by their board. Such investments may be made in overseas money market instruments and/or debt instruments issued by a foreign state with a residual maturity of less than one year and rated at least as AA (-) by Standard & Poor/FITCH IBCA or Aa3 by Moody’s. The Reserve Bank has not prescribed any separate limits for the residents to invest in money market instruments. However, as per Notification No. FEMA.120/RB-2004 of July 7, 2004, as amended from time to time, a person resident in India, being a listed Indian company, may invest in (1) the shares of an overseas company which is listed on a recognized stock exchange and (2) the rated bonds/fixed-income securities issued by companies at (1) above, provided investment by a listed Indian company may not exceed 50% of its net worth as on the date of its last audited balance sheet.

Further, MFs and alternative investment funds registered with SEBI may invest within the specified limits, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed by SEBI. Approvals are given by SEBI, within the overall limits decided from time to time in consultation with the RBI.

Further, under LRS, a resident individual can remit funds overseas to invest in money market securities up to the overall limit specified under LRS of US$250,000 in a financial year. For remittance beyond this amount, RBI permission is required.

Controls on credit operations Yes.

Commercial credits Yes. Save as otherwise provided in the Act, Rules, or Regulations made thereunder, no person resident in India must borrow or lend in foreign exchange from or to a person resident in or outside India and no person resident in India must borrow in rupees from, or lend in rupees to, a person resident outside India:

Provided the Reserve Bank may, for sufficient reasons, permit a person resident in India to borrow or lend in foreign exchange from or to a person resident in or outside India and/or permit a person resident in India to borrow in rupees from, or lend in rupees to, a person resident outside India.

By residents to nonresidents Yes. A commercial credit of up to six months is allowed for exports on documents-against-acceptance terms. Contracts for exports involving payments to be realized beyond the usual period of six months or one year are treated as deferred payment exports. Such exports are permitted, depending on the credit terms offered, the commodity to be exported, and other related considerations. This applies to turnkey, construction, and service contracts by Indian exporters on credit terms. Under the Buyer Credit Scheme, the EXIM Bank offers credit to foreign buyers in connection with the exportation of capital goods and turnkey projects in India in participation with commercial banks in India. An Indian exporter may lend without restriction from the funds held in an EEFC account for trade-related purposes to an overseas importing customer against a bank guarantee. Other transactions require RBI permission.

To residents from nonresidents Yes. Effective March 13, 2019, trade credit can be availed for: (1) import of non-capital goods for a maximum period of up to one year and linked with the operating cycle, or for a period as per the guidelines issued by the RBI from time to time for any import of any goods/for import by any specific sector and (2) import of capital goods for a maximum period of three years or for a period as per the guidelines issued by the RBI from time to time.

Effective March 13, 2019, importers can raise trade credit up to US$50 million equivalent per import transaction for import of capital or non-capital goods or any other amount as decided by the RBI in consultation with the GOI. For trade credits in foreign exchange, maximum spread of the all-in-cost over the benchmark of 6-month LIBOR or applicable benchmark for the respective currency will be 250 bps per annum or as prescribed by the Reserve Bank in consultation with the GOI. The list of lenders that could provide trade credits includes supplier of goods located outside India, Banks, financial institutions located outside India, foreign equity holders and financial institutions in International Financial Services Centers located in India. Bank guarantees may be given by the ADs, on behalf of the importer, in favor of overseas lender of trade credits not exceeding the amount of trade credit. Period of such guarantee cannot be beyond the maximum permissible period for trade credit. Trade credit may also be secured by overseas guarantee issued by foreign banks/overseas branches of Indian banks. Trade credits may be raised by entities in SEZs, free trade warehousing zones, and domestic tariff area.

Under FEMA 3R of December 17, 2018:

(1) An AD in India or its branch outside India or any other eligible entity may extend foreign-currency-denominated External Commercial Lending to a borrower outside India in accordance with the provisions contained in Schedule III.
(2) An AD may grant loans to its constituents in India for meeting their foreign exchange requirements or for their rupee working capital requirements or capital expenditure subject to compliance with prudential norms, interest rate directives and guidelines, if any, issued by Reserve Bank in this regard.
(3) Branches outside India of AD banks may extend foreign exchange loans against the security of funds held in NRE/FCNR deposit accounts or any other account as specified by the Reserve Bank from time to time, maintained in accordance with the Foreign Exchange Management (Deposit) Regulations, 2016, notified vide Notification No. FEMA 5(R)/2016-RB of April 1, 2016, as amended from time to time.
(4) An AD in India may grant loan to a NRI/OCI Cardholder for meeting the borrower’s personal requirements/own business purposes/acquisition of a residential accommodation in India/acquisition of motor vehicle in India/or for any purpose as per the loan policy laid down by the Board of Directors of the AD and in compliance with prudential guidelines of RBI. The AD bank should ensure that the borrowed funds are not used for restricted end-uses.
(5) Overdraft in rupee account maintained with AD in India: An AD may permit a temporary overdraft, for value not exceeding Rs 5 billion or any other amount as prescribed by the Reserve Bank from time to time, in rupee accounts maintained with it by its overseas branch or correspondent or Head Office outside India, subject to such terms and conditions as the Reserve Bank may direct from time to time.
(6) A registered nonbanking financial company in India or a registered housing finance institution in India or any other financial institution as may be specified by the Reserve Bank from time to time, may provide housing loan or vehicle loan, as the case may be, to a NRI/OCI Cardholder subject to such terms and conditions as prescribed by the Reserve Bank from time to time. The borrower should ensure that the borrowed funds are not used for restricted end-uses.
(7) An Indian entity may grant loan in Indian Rupees to its employee who is a NRI/OCI Cardholder in accordance with the Staff Welfare Scheme subject to such terms and conditions as prescribed by the Reserve Bank from time to time. The borrower should ensure that the borrowed funds are not used for restricted end-uses.

To residents from nonresidents Yes.

From December 17, 2018, borrowing from outside India in foreign exchange by a person resident in India:

(1) An AD may borrow from its Head Office or branch or correspondent outside India or any other entity up to limit specified and subject to terms and conditions as specified by the Reserve Bank from time to time, in consultation with GOI.
(2) A branch outside India of an AD being a bank incorporated or constituted in India may borrow in foreign exchange in the normal course of its banking business from outside India, subject to the directions or guidelines issued by the Reserve Bank from time to time, and the Regulatory Authority of the country where the branch is located.

(3) Financial Institutions, set up under an Act of the Indian Parliament, may raise foreign exchange borrowings with the prior approval of the GOI for the purpose of onward lending.

(4) An AD may raise ECB from outside India in accordance with the provisions contained in Schedule I of Notification No. FEMA.3(R)/2018-RB.

(5) Eligible resident entities (other than ADs) may raise ECB from outside India in accordance with the provisions contained in Schedule I of Notification No. FEMA.3(R)/2018-RB.

From December 17, 2018, borrowing in Indian rupees by a person resident in India:

(1) An AD may raise rupee-denominated ECB from outside India in accordance with the provisions contained in Schedule I of Notification No. FEMA.3(R)/2018-RB.

(2) Borrowing by persons other than AD:

(a) Eligible resident entities may raise rupee-denominated ECB from outside India in accordance with the provisions contained in Schedule I of Notification No. FEMA.3(R)/2018-RB.

(b) Eligible resident entities, as defined by the GOI, may borrow from overseas Multilateral Financial Institutions/International Development Financial Institutions, where the source of funds of such institutions is rupee-denominated bonds issued overseas or resources raised domestically, or any other source as approved by the GOI.

(c) Any foreign investment in the nature of debt arising out of transfer or issue of security, not covered under the above sub-regulations, should be in compliance with Foreign Exchange Management (Transfer or Issue of Security by a Person Resident Outside India) Regulations, 2017, notified vide Notification No. FEMA 20(R)/2017-RB of November 07, 2017, as amended from time to time.

(d) Any person resident in India accepting any deposit from, or making any deposit with, a person resident outside India, including loans/overdrafts against security of funds held in such accounts, should be in compliance with Foreign Exchange Management (Deposit) Regulations, 2016, notified vide Notification No. FEMA 5(R)/2016-RB of April 1, 2016, as amended from time to time.

(e) Financial Institutions, set up under an Act of the Indian Parliament, may raise rupee-denominated borrowings from outside India with the prior approval of the GOI for the purpose of onward lending.

Under the ECB framework, Indian entities can raise funds from abroad in the form of loans and bonds in any freely convertible currency or Indian rupees. ECB can be raised by all entities eligible to receive FDI and some other entities, viz. Port Trusts, Units in SEZ, SIDBI, EXIM Bank of India, and registered entities engaged in microfinance activities (only in INR). The lenders have to be residents of FATF- or IOSCO-compliant country. There is a cost ceiling of 6-month LIBOR plus 450 bps. The minimum average maturity for permitted end-uses is 3 years. However, for end-uses of repayment of rupee loans, working capital and general corporate purposes, only foreign equity holders are eligible lenders and the maturity has to be 5 years or above. However, effective July 30, 2019, ECB for these end-uses can now be availed from all ECB lenders (except overseas branches/subsidiaries of Indian banks) with a higher maturity of 7/10 years.

Banks can issue guarantees/SBLCs for trade credits. However, they cannot issue the same for ECBs availed by residents.

The RBI allows ADs to grant rupee loans to residents against guarantees from nonresidents under the general permission. Borrowing and lending between two residents are not affected by any provisions of the FEMA, 1999. If a rupee loan is granted against a guarantee by a nonresident, there is no transaction involving foreign exchange until the guarantee is invoked and the nonresident guarantor is required to meet the liability under the guarantee. Nonresident guarantees under the general permission are allowed for non-fund-based facilities (such as LCs and guarantees) between two residents. Credit enhancement by eligible nonresident entities has been extended to domestic debt raised through issues of capital market instruments, such as debentures and bonds, by Indian companies in all sectors.

Outward direct investment

Yes.

An IP (a company incorporated in India, or a body created under Act of Parliament, or a partnership firm registered under the Indian Partnership Act, 1932, or a Limited Liability Partnership) may invest ODI by undertaking financial commitment in the form of equity. To support business operations, financial commitment extended to/issued on behalf of JV/WOS may also take the form of loan, guarantee, and any other non-fund-based commitment. The limit of financial commitment undertaken by IPs under the automatic route is 400% of the net worth of the IP on the date of the last audited balance sheet or the equivalent of US$1 billion in a financial year (clarification), whichever of the two is lower. Resident individuals may set up/acquire JV/WOS abroad within the limit of the LRS, subject to conditions including that the investment can only be made in equity of the JV/WOS and no multi-layered structure is incorporated/acquired. Overseas investments by unregistered partnership and proprietorship firms, trusts, and societies, are subject to prior RBI approval and are not eligible for automatic route. IPs may fund ODI in JVs or WOS with remittances in freely convertible currency through market purchases, capitalization of exports/other receivables, balances held in EEFC accounts, ECB, and ADR/GDR proceeds, swap of shares, etc. No IP can make any direct investment in a foreign entity engaged in real estate business or banking business. The ODI in Pakistan and those jurisdictions which are identified by the FATF as high risk and non-cooperative is under the approval route. ODI in Nepal is allowed only in Indian rupees; ODI in Bhutan is allowed in rupees and freely convertible currencies. The following criteria need to be met to be eligible for auto route: The person should not be (1) on the export caution list; (2) under investigation by any investigation/enforcement agency or regulatory body; and (3) a defaulter to the banking system in India. The other procedural requirements for ODI under auto route include:
transactions which are made through a designated AD bank. (2) Submission of Form ODI Part I. (3) Submission of all annual performance reports (APRs) for existing JV/WOS. (4) Loan/Guarantee to/on behalf of an overseas entity which can be extended by the IP if IP has equity/compulsorily convertible preference shares participation in such overseas entity. There are additional compliance requirements for overseas investment in the financial services sector such as the net profit track record of IP during the preceding three financial years; IP being registered with the Regulatory Authority in India for conducting the financial services activities; approval from the concerned regulatory authorities both in India and abroad, and the IP fulfilling the prudential norms relating to capital adequacy as prescribed by the concerned Regulatory Authority in India.

The IP must receive share certificates or other document as evidence of investment within six months, repatriate dues receivable to India within 60 days of falling due, submit APR for the financial year to AD latest by December 31, and report all post-investment changes in capital structure of JV/WOS.

Disinvestment by the IP from its JV/WOS abroad may be undertaken by way of transfer/sale of equity shares to a nonresident/resident or by way of liquidation/merger/amalgamation of the JV/WOS/IP. Such disinvestment can be undertaken under auto route or approval route. The conditions for auto route are as follows: (1) The sale is effected through a stock exchange or by a private arrangement at a price not less than the fair value of the JV/WOS; (2) the IP does not have any outstanding dues from the JV or WOS and is not under any investigation; (3) the overseas JV/WOS has been in operation for at least one full year from the date of first investment; and (4) the write off of the investment, if any, is within the prescribed limit.

Other methods of acquisition of foreign entity’s shares include: (1) gift from a person resident outside India; (2) cashless employee stock option scheme; (3) inheritance from a person resident in or outside India; (4) individual who resident in India, being an employee or a director of Indian office, may acquire shares under employee stock ownership (ESOP) by an overseas parent; (5) acquisition of qualification shares to become a director of overseas company subject to LRS limit; and (6) acquisition of right shares/bonus shares of overseas company.

IP must make no direct investment in an overseas entity (set up or acquired abroad directly as JV/WOS or indirectly as step down subsidiary) located in the countries identified by the FATF as “non-co-operative countries and territories” as per list available on FATF website www.fatf-gafi.org or as notified by the RBI from time to time. Clarification was issued by way of frequently asked questions (FAQ) that it is applicable only on countries identified by FATF as “call for action.”

Inward direct investment Yes. The FDI in India is subject to policy guidelines framed by the GOI from time to time and implemented through Foreign Exchange Management (Non-debt Instruments) Rules, 2019, as amended. Persons resident outside India are permitted to invest in India, subject to the FDI Policy except in those sectors/activities which are prohibited. However, effective April 22, 2020, government approval is required for investment by an entity of a country, which shares land border with India or where the beneficial owner of an investment into India is situated in or is a citizen of any such country (previously the approval requirement applied only to citizens or entities incorporated in Bangladesh or Pakistan). Further, an Indian company receiving FDI from Pakistan may not engage in sectors or activities pertaining to defense, space, and atomic energy or sectors...
Foreign investment is permitted under two routes: the government route and the automatic route, subject to sector-specific caps and guidelines, except for prohibited activities, viz. (1) lottery business; (2) gambling and betting; (3) chit funds; (4) nidhi companies; (5) trading in transferable development rights; (6) real estate business or construction of farmhouses; (7) manufacturing of cigars, cheroots, cigarillos, and cigarettes of tobacco or tobacco substitutes; (8) activities/sectors not open to private sector investment, for example, (a) atomic energy and (b) railway operations (other than permitted activities mentioned in paragraph (3) of Schedule I of Non-debt Instruments Rules, 2019); and (9) foreign technology collaboration in any form including licensing for franchise, trademark, brand name, and management contract is also prohibited for lottery business and gambling and betting activities.

Further, there are other sectors where foreign investment is permitted with certain terms and conditions as stated in paragraph (3) of Schedule I of Non-debt Instruments Rules, 2019. If the activity is not stated in paragraph (3) of Schedule I and not under financial services specifically indicated in the Rules, foreign investment up to 100% is permitted under the automatic route. Foreign investment in financial services not specifically indicated in the Rules requires prior approval of GOI.

FDI is permitted in following sectors with prior approval of the government:

(1) Defense, air transport service (scheduled and regional air transport), telecom services, up to 49% under automatic route; (2) brownfield pharmaceuticals up to 74% under automatic route and beyond 74% under government route; (3) private sector banking up to 49% under government route; (4) private security agencies up to 49% under government route; (5) mining and mineral separation of titanium-bearing minerals and ores, food product retail trading, publishing and printing of scientific and technical magazines, publication of facsimile edition of foreign newspapers, and establishment and operation of satellite, capped at 100%; (6) multi-brand retail trading, capped at 51% under government route; (7) investment by foreign airlines and broadcasting content service, capped at 49% under government route; (8) publication of newspapers and periodicals dealing with news and current affairs and publication of Indian editions of foreign magazines dealing with news and current affairs, capped at 26% under government route; and (9) public sector banking, capped at 20% under government route.

Under the automatic route, there are only six sectors in which investments are subject to a cap of 49%: petroleum refining by public sector companies, infrastructure company in the securities market, commodity spot exchanges, insurance companies, pension sector, and power exchanges.

Foreign investment is allowed up to 100% through the automatic route in the following sectors: (1) agricultural activities such as floriculture and horticulture; (2) pisciculture; (3) plantation sector; (4) mining of metals and non-metal ores, coal, and lignite; (5) manufacturing; (6) broadcasting carriage and content service; (7) airports (greenfield and brownfield), airport transport service (non-scheduled flights and helicopter services), ground handling services and maintenance and repair and flying training organizations; (8) construction development; (9) new and existing industrial parks; (10) wholesale and B2B e-commerce trading, and duty-free shops; (11) railway infrastructure (though proposals involving FDI beyond 49% may be considered on a case-to-case basis); (12) asset reconstruction companies, credit information companies, other financial services regulated by financial sector regulators; (13) pharmaceuticals (greenfield); (14) exploration activities of oil and natural gas fields; (15) single-brand product retail trading; (16) real estate broking service; and (17) investing companies if it is registered with the RBI and accordingly regulated.

The following criteria are mentioned under the automatic route subject to certain terms and conditions: (1) creation of charge over shares of JV/WOS/SDS in favor of domestic/overseas lenders; (2) creation of charge over the domestic assets in favor of overseas lenders to the JV/WOS/SDS; and (3) creation of charge over overseas assets in favor of domestic lenders.

NRI s and OCIs may use funds derived from new remittances or held in their NRE or FCNR accounts (1) to make portfolio investments with repatriation benefits of up to 5% of the paid-up capital, provided their total holdings of shares and convertible debentures held under the PIS do not exceed 10% (extendable to 24% if the general meeting of the investing company passes a special board resolution) of the paid-up capital of the company or of the total paid-in value of each series of its convertible debentures issued by the company; (2) for existing JV companies to raise the ratio of foreign equity shares to prescribed percentages of their capital through expansion of their capital base or through preferential allocation of shares to foreign investors; and (3) to invest on a non-repatriation basis in money market MFs (only NRIs).

Any funds payable by the Indian company to a person resident outside India, the remittance of which is permitted under the Act or the rules and regulations framed or directions issued thereunder or does not require prior permission of the Central Government or the Reserve Bank under the Act or the rules and regulations framed or directions issued thereunder or has been permitted by the Reserve Bank under the Act or the rules and regulations framed or directions issued thereunder, may be converted to equity subject to specified conditions (Res. No. 3. Notification No. FEMA 315/2014-RB of July 10, 2014). Indian companies may issue capital instruments against swap of capital instruments; imports of capital goods, machinery, equipment (excluding second-hand machinery), and preoperative/pre-incorporation expenses up to a limit of 5% of its authorized capital or US$500,000 whichever is less (including payments of rent, etc.), subject to specified conditions.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment
Yes.

Shares may be sold freely on the stock exchange and the sale proceeds may be repatriated. Other sales of shares, securities, and immovable property may be allowed by authorized banks after complying with conditions prescribed by the RBI. RBI approval is required only for sales of shares when preconditions and norms have not been fulfilled. Repatriation of after-tax sales proceeds is generally permitted. Investment on a non-repatriation basis is permitted only for NRIs and OCIs where for investment on non-repatriation basis, the sale proceeds cannot be repatriated outside and have to be credited only to the NRO account of the investor.

Controls on real estate transactions

Borrowing abroad | Yes.

LEI system for all borrowers of banks having total (fund-based and non-fund-based) exposure of 500 million rupees and above has been introduced in a phased manner vide RBI circular of November 2, 2017.

ECB is subject to the policy framed by the RBI in consultation with the MOF. Financial institutions which are eligible to receive FDI are permitted borrow ECB. Further, All India Financial Institutions – Export–Import Bank of India (EXIM Bank) and SIDBI – are also permitted to borrow ECB. All such borrowings by financial institutions are subject to the prudential guidelines issued by the sectoral regulator. All ECBs have to be availed under the ECB framework as summarized under Section XLA.4.b.2. Further, the following borrowing from abroad is also enabled for financial institutions under FEMA 3R:

1. An AD may borrow from its Head Office or branch or correspondent outside India or any other entity up to limit specified and subject to terms and conditions as specified by the Reserve Bank from time to time, in consultation with GOI.
2. A branch outside India of an AD being a bank incorporated or constituted in India may borrow in foreign exchange in the normal course of its banking business from outside India, subject to the directions or guidelines issued by the Reserve Bank from time to time, and the Regulatory Authority of the country where the branch is located.
3. Financial institutions, set up under an Act of the Indian Parliament, may raise foreign exchange borrowings with the prior approval of the GOI for the purpose of onward lending.

Maintenance of accounts abroad | No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) | Yes.

Lending in foreign exchange or in Indian rupees by a person resident in India to nonresident is prohibited unless in cases specified by the RBI or on RBI approval.

ADs may manage surplus balances in their exchange accounts through overnight placement and investment with their overseas branches or correspondent banks, subject to limits imposed by RBI.

Stand-alone primary dealers (SPDs) are allowed to offer foreign exchange products to their FPI clients under certain conditions, as permitted by the RBI from time to time. Such activities must be part of their non-core activities.

An AD in India may extend foreign-currency-denominated External Commercial Lending to a borrower outside India in accordance with the provisions contained in Schedule III of Notification No. FEMA.3(R)/2018-RB.

An AD in India may lend in Indian rupees to a NRI/OCI cardholder for meeting the borrower’s personal requirements/own business purposes/acquisition of a residential accommodation in India/acquisition of motor vehicle in India or for any purpose as per the loan policy laid down by the Board of Directors of the AD and in compliance with prudential guidelines of RBI. The AD bank should ensure that the borrowed funds are not used for restricted end-uses.

Overdraft in rupee account maintained with AD in India by a bank outside India: An AD may permit a temporary overdraft, for value not exceeding Rs 5 billion or any other amount as prescribed by the RBI from time to time, in rupee accounts maintained with it by its overseas branch or correspondent or Head Office outside India, subject to such terms and conditions as the RBI may direct from time to time.

Effective January 16, 2019, under the revised ECB framework, lending and borrowing by Indian banks and their branches/subsidiaries outside India will be subject to prudential guidelines issued by the Department of Banking Regulation of the Reserve Bank. Further, other entities raising ECB are required to follow the guidelines issued, if any, by the concerned sectoral or prudential regulator.

Lending locally in foreign exchange  Yes.  ADs may grant loans to clients in India for meeting their foreign exchange requirements, for their rupee working capital requirements, or for capital expenditure subject to compliance with prudential norms, interest rate directives, and guidelines, if any, issued by RBI in this regard. ADs can also extend loans to clients maintaining RFC account, against the security of funds held in such account; and to other ADs subject to the directions or guidelines issued by the RBI from time to time. ADs can also borrow from financial institutions outside India for the purpose of granting pre-shipment or post-shipment credit to their exporter clients in India. Select institutions, other than ADs, may extend loans to their clients in India for the purpose of onward lending, on the condition that these loans are out of the foreign currency borrowings raised by these institutions and subject to the approval of the Central Government.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange  n.a.

Reserve requirements  No.

There is no differential treatment of foreign exchange deposits. The CRR is set at 3% (previously 4%) of the net demand and time liabilities (NDTL) of scheduled commercial banks (effective March 28, 2020). Credit balances in ACU dollar accounts, net interbank liabilities, and liabilities of banks' offshore banking units are exempt. Effective February 14, 2020, currently, deduction of an amount equivalent to the incremental loans extended in specific sectors (that is, retail loans to automobiles, residential housing, and loans to micro, small, and medium enterprises) during February 2020 to July 2020 has been allowed. This dispensation for the reservable liabilities (NDTL) is available for a maximum period of 5 years, that is, up to the fortnight ending January 24, 2025, or the tenure of the loan, whichever is earlier. Banks can claim the first such deduction from the NDTL of February 14, 2020, for the amount equivalent to the incremental credit extended to the sectors indicated above over the outstanding level of credit as at the end of the fortnight ended January 31, 2020.

“Scheduled bank” is defined as a bank included in the Second Schedule of the RBI Act, 1934. Scheduled banks must keep a CRR with the RBI under Section 42 of that law. Other banks must maintain a prescribed CRR under the Banking Regulation Act, 1949. The daily minimum CRR maintenance is 90% of requirement. However, this was reduced to 80% effective March 28, 2020. This dispensation is available for a period up to September 2020.

Insurance companies
Yes.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents
Yes. Section 27E of the Insurance Act, 1938, prohibits insurers investing directly or indirectly outside India the funds of the policyholders. Hence, insurers are not permitted to subscribe to securities issued by nonresidents.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad
Yes. Insurance companies are free to invest any of the funds generated from the business promoted outside India. However, any investment from Indian operations requires IRDAI approval. Further, such investments are only to be made from shareholder’s fund beyond solvency margin. These provisions have been applied since the inception of IRDAI.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally
Yes. Life insurance companies must invest (other than funds relating to pension, annuity, and group business and unit-linked business) not less than 50% of total investments in Central, State, and Other Approved Securities, with at least 25% of investments in Central G-Secs. Insurance companies must invest 40% of pension, annuity, and group fund in Central G-Secs, State G-Secs, or Other Approved Securities, with at least 20% in Central G-Secs. Not more than 50% of life fund must be invested in “approved investments,” including corporate bonds or debentures rated AA or above; short-term corporate securities rated A1 or above; all-India financial institutions rated at least AA (or at least A+, subject to lack of available higher-rated investments and Investment Committee’s approval). Instruments must be rated with Rating Agency, registered with SEBI. Housing and infrastructure investments across all securities must be a minimum of 15% of life fund for life insurers. Not less than 75% of investment in debt instruments (including Central G-Secs, State G-Secs, or Other Approved Securities) in case of life insurer and not less than 65% of investment in debt instruments (including Central G-Secs, State G-Secs, or Other Approved Securities) in case of general insurer must be in sovereign debt, AAA or equivalent rating for long-term and A1+ or equivalent for short-term instruments. General insurance companies must invest not less than 30% of total investments in Central G-Secs, State G-Secs, or Other Approved Securities, with at least 20% in Central G-Secs. Not more than 70% of total investments must be in “approved investments.” Housing and infrastructure investments across all securities must be a minimum of 15% of total investments for general insurers.
Not more than 5% of life fund and unit-linked fund in debt instruments (including Central G-Secs, State G-Secs, or Other Approved Securities) in case of life insurer and not more than 8% of investment in debt instruments (including Central G-Secs, State G-Secs, or Other Approved Securities) in case of general insurers must have a rating of A or below or equivalent rating for long-term instruments.

Insurers are allowed to issue foreign-currency-denominated policies to nonresidents or to resident persons of Indian nationality or origin who have returned to India after being nonresidents through their offices (in India or abroad), provided the premia are collected in foreign currency from abroad or out of NRE/FCNR accounts of the insured or his relatives held in India.
Insurance companies can make investments abroad only out of funds held abroad.

Overseas investments are not allowed. As per Section 25 of Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority Act, 2013, there is prohibition on offshore investments by pension funds.
Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority is regulating National Pension System (NPS) and also administers Atal Pension Yojana (APY); accordingly, the comments pertain only to the pension products handled by the Authority.

The caps on the Contributory Pension Scheme, namely NPS, implemented in India for Government sector employees effective April 1, 2019, are as follows for Scheme Central Government (Default Scheme), Scheme State Government, Corporate Central Government and NPS Lite Schemes and APY:

MFs registered with SEBI are permitted to invest abroad (subject to an overall cap of US$7 billion) in: (1) ADRs/GDRs of Indian and foreign companies; (2) equities of overseas companies listed on recognized overseas stock exchanges, including initial and follow-up public; (3) foreign investment-grade debt securities in countries with fully convertible currencies; (4) money market investment-grade investments, including repos with investment-grade counterparties; (5) G-Secs of countries rated at investment grade; (6) derivatives traded on recognized overseas stock exchanges, but only for hedging and portfolio balancing purposes; (7) short-term deposits with overseas investment-grade banks; and (8) units/securities issued by overseas MFs or unit trusts registered with overseas regulators.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes. MFs registered with SEBI are permitted to invest abroad (subject to an aggregate cap of US$7 billion and individual MF cap of US$300 million) in: (1) ADRs/GDRs of Indian and foreign companies; (2) equities of overseas companies listed on recognized overseas stock exchanges, including initial and follow-up public; (3) foreign investment-grade debt securities in countries with fully convertible currencies; (4) money market investment-grade investments, including repos with investment-grade counterparties; (5) G-Secs of countries rated at investment grade; (6) derivatives traded on recognized overseas stock exchanges, but only for hedging and portfolio balancing purposes; (7) short-term deposits with overseas investment-grade banks; and (8) units/securities issued by overseas MFs or unit trusts registered with overseas regulators. MFs are also subject to an aggregate investment ceiling on exposures to overseas ETF(s) that invest in securities of US$1 billion, subject to a maximum of US$50 million a MF.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes. MFs are subject to investment concentration limits as provided in the SEBI (MFs) Regulations, 1996, and circulars issued thereunder. Excerpts of the broad provisions in this regard are as under:

A MF scheme may not invest in unlisted debt instruments including commercial papers, except G-Secs and other money market instruments. However, effective September 23, 2019, MF schemes may invest in unlisted non-convertible debentures up to a maximum of 10% of the debt portfolio of the scheme subject to certain conditions.

Effective September 23, 2019, all investments by a MF scheme in equity shares and equity related instruments must only be made, provided such securities are listed or to be listed.

Effective May 1, 2020, investment in unrated debt and money market instruments, other than government securities, treasury bills, and derivative products such as interest rate swaps and IRF by MF schemes is capped at 5%.

Effective January 1, 2020, restrictions have been specified on Investment in debt instruments having Structured Obligations/Credit Enhancements.

A MF scheme may not invest more than 10% of its NAV in debt instruments comprising money market instruments and non-money market instruments issued by a single issuer which are rated not below investment grade by a credit rating agency authorized to carry out such activity. The limit may be raised to 12%, subject to prior approval by the AMC’s Board of Trustees and the Board of Directors of the AMC.

A MF under all its schemes should not own more than 10% of units issued by a single issuer of REIT and InvIT, and an individual MF scheme may not invest more than 10% of its NAV in the units of REIT and InvIT, and more than 5% of its NAV in the units of REIT and InvIT issued by a single issuer.

MF schemes are also subject to a limit on exposures to a single sector in debt-oriented MF schemes (excluding investments in bank certificates of deposits (CDs), collateralized borrowing and lending obligation (CBLO), G-Secs, T-Bills, and AAA-rated securities issued by Public Financial Institutions, Public Sector Banks, and short-term deposits of scheduled commercial banks) set at 20% of NAV effective April 1, 2020, for existing schemes and October 1, 2019, for new schemes and fresh exposures by existing schemes (previously 25%). A further exposure to the financial services sector (over the 20% limit), but not exceeding 10% of the scheme’s NAV, is allowed only via an increase in exposure to Housing Finance Companies (HFCs), provided the HFCs are rated at AA or above and are registered with National Housing Bank.

The following changes take place effective April 1, 2020, for existing schemes and October 1, 2019, for new schemes and fresh exposures by existing schemes: The aggregate investment exposure to HFCs cannot exceed 20% (previously 25%). The additional exposure limits provided for HFCs in financial services sector have been capped at 10% (previously 15%). In addition to 10% exposure to HFC, an additional exposure of 5% of the net assets of the scheme has been allowed for investments in securitized debt instruments based on retail housing loan portfolio and/or affordable housing loan portfolio.

A MF scheme should not park more than 10% of NAV in short-term deposits at a single scheduled commercial bank including its subsidiaries. No MF scheme must park more than 15% of their net assets in short-term deposits of all scheduled commercial banks put together. This limit, however, may be raised to 20% with prior approval of the Trustees.

No MF under all its schemes should own more than 10% of any company’s paid-up capital carrying voting rights.

No MF scheme must make any investment in:
(1) any unlisted security of an associate or group company of the sponsor or
(2) any security issued by way of private placement by an associate or group company of the sponsor or
(3) the listed securities of group companies of the sponsor which is in excess of 25% of the net assets.

No MF scheme must invest more than 10% of its NAV in the equity shares or equity-related instruments of any company.

Effective October 30, 2019, the investments by debt MF schemes in debt and money market instruments of group companies of both the sponsor and the asset management company may not exceed 10% of the net assets of the scheme. Such investment limit may be extended to 15% of the net assets of the scheme with the prior approval of the Board of Trustees.

A MF scheme’s exposure to repo transactions in corporate debt securities is capped at 10% of the scheme’s NAV. The cumulative exposure through repo transactions in corporate debt securities, equity, debt, and derivatives should not exceed 100% of the scheme’s NAV.

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market

Spot exchange market 04/16/2019 Systemically Important Non-Derive taking Investment and Credit Companies can also apply for AD Category-II license for foreign exchange transactions.

Interbank market

Over the counter 09/01/2020 The directions were revised (announced April 07, 2020) to make it easier for users, both residents and nonresidents, to access the domestic foreign exchange derivative markets, through (1) merging facilities for residents and nonresidents into a single unified facility for all users; (2) allowing users having valid exposures to hedge the same by using any available instrument; (3) introducing facility to hedge anticipated exposures; (4) no restriction on rebooking of cancelled contracts; and (5) simplifying procedures for ADs to offer foreign exchange derivatives. According to these directions, AD banks must classify the user either as a retail user or as a non-retail user. Retail user can only enter into Forwards, purchase of call and put options (only European options), purchase of call and put spreads, swaps. Non-retail users can be offered any derivative contract including covered options.

Forward exchange market 09/01/2020 Residents and nonresidents may enter into derivative contracts as per their classification as retail or non-retail with the ADs to hedge anticipated or contracted exposure. Users can freely cancel and rebook the derivative contracts.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements 03/06/2020 Trade settlements can be made through ACU yen accounts, in addition to ACU dollar and ACU euro accounts. Trade settlements for members of ACU are permitted through nostro accounts of the commercial banks of ACU countries, that is, ACU dollar or ACU euro accounts or ACU yen accounts. Operations in ACU euro are, however, temporarily suspended since July 1, 2016.

Controls on the use of domestic currency

For current transactions and payments 03/06/2020 Trade settlements for members of ACU are permitted through nostro accounts of the commercial banks of ACU countries, that is, ACU yen accounts, in addition to ACU dollar and ACU euro accounts. Operations in ACU euro are, however, temporarily suspended since July 1, 2016.
On exports

Domestic currency

02/26/2019

By Amendment Notification No. FEMA 6(R)/(1)/2019-RB of February 26, 2019, an individual traveling from India to Nepal or Bhutan can carry Reserve Bank of India (RBI) notes of Mahatma Gandhi (new) Series of denominations Rs 200 and/or Rs 500 up to a total limit of Rs 25,000. Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

02/27/2019

An AD in India may, subject to the directions as may be issued by the Reserve Bank of India, allow ship-manning/crew managing agencies in India and re-insurance and composite insurance brokers registered with Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India to open and maintain non-interest-bearing foreign currency accounts in India for the purpose of undertaking transactions in the ordinary course of their business.

Nonresident Accounts

Domestic currency accounts

Convertible into foreign currency

11/13/2019

Scope of “special nonresident rupee” has been enhanced by allowing persons residing outside India to open such accounts for purposes like External Commercial Borrowings in INR; Trade Credits in INR; Trade (Export/Import) Invoicing in INR; and Business-related transactions outside International Financial Service Centre (IFSC) by IFSC units at GIFT city.

Imports and Import Payments

Financing requirements for imports

Advance payment requirements

01/23/2020

For making advance beyond US$500,000, a bank guarantee/SBLC from a reputable international bank is required. Previously, if inward remittance from the overseas buyer was not received before the outward remittance to the overseas supplier, the AD bank could handle such transactions by providing a facility based on commercial judgment. It must, however, have been assured that any such advance payment for the import leg beyond US$200,000 a transaction will be paid against a bank guarantee/LC from a reputable international bank, except in cases and to the extent payment for the export leg was received in advance.

from Rs 75,000 crores to Rs 1,50,000 crores.

01/23/2020 Short-term investment limit by foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) in Central Government securities and in corporate bonds was increased from 20% to 30%. Further, these stipulations would not apply to investments in “Exempted Securities” by FPIs.

04/01/2020 The overall limit for foreign portfolio investor investment in corporate bonds which was set at 9% of outstanding stock of corporate bonds from fiscal year 2018–2019 was increased to 15% in 04/01/2020 Certain specified categories of Central Government securities (G-Secs) were opened fully for nonresident investors without any restrictions, apart from being available to domestic investors as well, under the Fully Accessible Route (FAR). Additionally, all new issuances of Central G-Secs of 5-, 10-, and 30-year tenors from the financial year 2020–2021 will be eligible for investments under the FAR as “specified securities.”

Sale or issue abroad by residents

07/30/2019 External Commercial Borrowing (ECB) for end-uses of repayment of Rupee loans, working capital and general corporate purposes can now be availed from all ECB lenders (except overseas branches/subsidiaries of Indian banks) with a higher maturity of 7/10 years. Previously, ECB for these end-uses could only be availed from foreign equity holders with a minimum maturity of 5 years.

On money market instruments

Purchase locally by nonresidents

10/17/2019 Nonresident Indians/Overseas Citizens of India may purchase on repatriation and non-repatriation basis without limit (1) treasury bills and (2) units of domestic mutual funds or exchange-traded funds that invest less than or equal to 50% in equity.

01/23/2020 Short-term investment limit by foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) in Government securities and corporate bonds was increased from 20% to 30%. Further, these stipulations would not apply to investments in “Exempted Securities” by FPIs.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments

06/01/2020 All residents and nonresidents are permitted to participate in foreign exchange derivative markets for the purpose of hedging their foreign exchange exposure, that is, notional of derivatives cannot exceed the notional of underlying exposure.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

03/27/2019 Nonresidents were allowed to participate in the rupee interest rate derivatives markets subject to certain limitations.

01/06/2020 ADs may undertake customer transactions (residents and nonresidents) beyond onshore market hours including through their foreign branches and subsidiaries.

06/01/2020 ADs were permitted to offer non-deliverable derivative contracts in Rupee or otherwise to persons not resident in India.

Controls on credit operations

Commercial credits

To residents from nonresidents

03/13/2019 Importers can raise trade credit up to US$50 million equivalent per import transaction for import of capital or non-capital goods or any other amount as decided by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) in consultation with the Government of India. The list of lenders that could provide trade credits was expanded by including foreign equity holders and financial institutions in International Financial Services Centres located in India. Bank guarantees may be given by the ADs, on behalf of the importer, in favor of overseas lender of trade credits not exceeding the amount of trade credit. Trade credit may also be secured by overseas guarantee issued by foreign banks/overseas branches of Indian banks. Trade credits may be raised by entities in special economic zones, free trade warehousing zones, and domestic tariff area.

Previously, trade credit of up to one year for imports of non-capital goods and up to five years for capital goods may be permitted by ADs, up to US$20 million an import transaction. ADs may also guarantee trade credits for up to three-year average maturity. Trade credit exceeding US$20 million (buyer credit and supplier credit) to finance imports of non-capital and capital goods required RBI permission, subject to certain conditions.

Trade credit can be availed for import of capital goods for a maximum period of three years or for a period as per the guidelines issued by the Reserve Bank of India from time to time. (Previously, trade credit of up to one year for imports of non-capital goods and up to five years for capital goods may be permitted by ADs, up to US$20 million an import transaction.)

For trade credits in foreign exchange, maximum spread of the all-in-cost over the benchmark of 6-month LIBOR or applicable benchmark for the respective currency will be 250 basis points (bps) per annum or as prescribed by the Reserve Bank in consultation with the Government of India. Previously, the all-in-cost ceiling for trade credit was LIBOR plus 350 bps for all maturities.

The External Commercial Borrowing (ECB) framework was revised and included the following modifications to improve the ease of doing business:

(1) Merging of Tracks: Merging of Tracks I and II as “Foreign-Currency-Denominated ECB” and merging of Track III and Rupee-Denominated Bonds framework as “Rupee-Denominated ECB”; (2) Eligible Borrowers: This has been expanded to include all entities eligible to receive FDI. Additionally, Port Trusts, Units in SEZ, Small Industries Development Bank of India, EXIM Bank, registered entities engaged in microfinance activities, viz. registered not for profit companies, registered societies/trusts/cooperatives and non-government organizations can also borrow under this framework; (3) Recognized Lender: The lender should be resident of FATF- or IOSCO-compliant country. Multilateral and Regional Financial Institutions, Individuals and Foreign branches/subsidiaries of Indian banks can also be lenders as detailed in Annex of Notification; (4) Minimum Average Maturity Period (MAMP): MAMP will be 3 years for all ECBs. However, for ECB raised from foreign equity holder and utilized for specific purposes, as detailed in the Annex of Notification, the MAMP would be 5 years. Similarly, for ECB up to US$50 million a financial year raised by manufacturing sector, which has been given a special dispensation, the MAMP would be 1 year as given in the Annex of Notification; and (5) Late Submission Fee for delay in Reporting: Any borrower, who is otherwise in compliance of ECB guidelines, except for delay in reporting drawdown of ECB proceeds before obtaining Loan Registration Number (LRN) or Form ECB 2 returns, can regularize the delay by payment of LSF as per the laid down procedure.
However, External Commercial Borrowing (ECB) for these end-uses can now be availed from all ECB lenders (except overseas branches/subsidiaries of Indian banks) with a higher maturity of 7/10 years.

Government approval is required for investment by an entity of a country, which shares land border with India or where the beneficial owner of an investment into India is situated in or is a citizen of any such country (previously the approval requirement applied only to citizens or entities incorporated in Bangladesh or Pakistan).

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Under the revised External Commercial Borrowing (ECB) framework, lending and borrowing by Indian banks and their branches/subsidiaries outside India will be subject to prudential guidelines issued by the Department of Banking Regulation of the Reserve Bank. Further, other entities raising ECB are required to follow the guidelines issued, if any, by the concerned sectoral or prudential regulator.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Reserve requirements

Deduction of an amount equivalent to the incremental loans extended in specific sectors (that is, retail loans to automobiles, residential housing, and loans to micro, small and medium enterprises) during February 2020 to July 2020 has been allowed. This dispensation for the reservable liabilities (net demand and time liabilities (NDTL)) is available for a maximum period of 5 years, that is, up to the fortnight ending January 24, 2025, or the tenure of the loan, whichever is earlier. Banks can claim the first such deduction from the NDTL of February 14, 2020, for the amount equivalent to the incremental credit extended to the sectors indicated above over the outstanding level of credit as at the end of the fortnight ended January 31, 2020.

The CRR is set at 3% (previously 4%) of the net demand and time liabilities of scheduled commercial banks. The daily minimum CRR maintenance is 90% of requirement. However, this was reduced to 80%. This dispensation is available for a period up to September 2020.

The caps on the Contributory Pension Scheme, namely National Pension System (NPS), implemented in India for Government sector employees are as follows for Scheme CG, Scheme SG, Corporate CG and NPS Lite Schemes and Atal Pension Yojana:

For assets class: Government securities and related investments were increased up to 55% (previously 50%) and for short-term debt instrument and related investment, increased up to 10% (previously 5%).

For investment firms and collective investment funds:

All investments by a mutual fund scheme in equity shares and equity related instruments must only be made provided such securities are...
Mutual fund schemes may invest in unlisted non-convertible debentures up to a maximum of 10% of the debt portfolio of the scheme subject to certain conditions.

The following changes take place for new schemes and fresh exposures by existing schemes:

Mutual fund schemes are also subject to a limit on exposures to a single sector in debt-oriented mutual fund schemes (excluding investments in bank certificates of deposits, collateralized borrowing and lending obligation, Government securities, T-Bills, and AAA-rated securities issued by Public Financial Institutions, Public Sector Banks, and short-term deposits of scheduled commercial banks) set at 20% of NAV for new schemes and fresh exposures by existing schemes (previously 25%).

The aggregate investment exposure to Housing Finance Companies (HFCs) cannot exceed 20% (previously 25%). The additional exposure limits provided for HFCs in financial services sector has been capped at 10% (previously 15%). In addition to 10% exposure to HFC, an additional exposure of 5% of the net assets of the scheme has been allowed for investments in securitized debt instruments based on retail housing loan portfolio and/or affordable housing loan portfolio.

The investments by debt mutual fund schemes in debt and money market instruments of group companies of both the sponsor and the asset management company may not exceed 10% of the net assets of the scheme. Such investment limit may be extended to 15% of the net assets of the scheme with the prior approval of the Board of Trustees.

Restrictions have been specified on Investment in debt instruments having Structured Obligations/Credit Enhancements.

Existing open-ended mutual fund (MF) schemes must comply with the revised limits for sector exposure:

MF schemes are subject to a limit on exposures to a single sector in debt-oriented MF schemes (excluding investments in bank certificates of deposits, collateralized borrowing and lending obligation, Government securities, T-Bills, and AAA-rated securities issued by Public Financial Institutions, Public Sector Banks, and short-term deposits of scheduled commercial banks) set at 20% of NAV for existing schemes (previously 25%).

The aggregate investment exposure to Housing Finance Companies (HFCs) cannot exceed 20% (previously 25%). The additional exposure limits provided for HFCs in financial services sector have been capped at 10% (previously 15%). In addition to 10% exposure to HFC, an additional exposure of 5% of the net assets of the scheme has been allowed for investments in securitized debt instruments based on retail housing loan portfolio and/or affordable housing loan portfolio.

Investment in unrated debt and money market instruments, other than government securities, treasury bills, and derivative products such as interest rate swaps and interest rate futures by MF schemes is capped at 5%.

Floating: Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating (adopted...
August 14, 1997). The exchange rate is determined by supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. BI, however, may intervene—as part of a policy mix—whenever necessary to achieve the inflation target and to maintain macroeconomic stability. As a small open economy, global economic moderation impaired export performance in 2019. However, economic growth in Indonesia propped up by domestic demand had attracted higher foreign capital inflows in 2019, which supported a US$4.7 billion surplus in the Balance of Payments (BoP). These conditions contributed to exchange rate appreciation and controlled inflation during 2019. The COVID-19 pandemic that began to spread worldwide at the beginning of 2020 has impacted global financial market uncertainty spiked in March 2020. After that, the global policy response has eased global financial market uncertainty and reduced the intensity of capital outflows from developing countries, accompanied by milder pressures on exchange rates in developing economies, including Indonesia. In the second quarter of 2020, the BOP surplus stood at US$9.2 billion, influenced by a narrower current account deficit from 1.4% of GDP in the first quarter of 2020 to 1.2% in the second quarter of 2020, along with larger capital and financial account surplus. The smaller current account deficit primarily stemmed from lower imports on weaker domestic demand. Besides, the primary income account deficit has narrowed because of declining yield payments to foreign investors in line with the domestic economy contracting in the second quarter of 2020, as reflected by deteriorating corporate performance and investment. Meanwhile, Foreign capital inflows have been maintained on abundant global liquidity, attractive domestic financial instruments, and strong investor confidences in the domestic economic outlook have boosted the capital and financial account surplus. The capital and financial account recorded a surplus of US$10.5 billion in the second quarter of 2020 originated from net inflows of portfolio investment and direct investment after recording a US$3.0 billion deficit in the previous quarter. Congruently, reserve assets position increased to US$131.7 billion recorded at the end of June 2020, equivalent to 8.1 months of imports and servicing the government's external debt.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The BI does not disclose data on its interventions.

Official exchange rate

Rates are as follows: The official foreign exchange reference rate is the Jakarta interbank spot dollar rate (JISDOR) for US dollars. The JISDOR represents the weighted average of US dollar–rupiah spot transactions in the interbank market within a specific window, captured in real time through the BI monitoring system. The JISDOR has been published since May 20, 2013, and is intended to be a market reference for US dollar–rupiah spot transactions in the domestic market. The JISDOR is published on every Indonesian business day. The official foreign exchange reference rate for non-US dollar currencies is the midrate of other BI foreign exchange transaction rates. The JISDOR and other foreign exchange midrates are used for BI’s accounting purposes. The BI foreign exchange transaction rates represent the bid-ask prices of foreign exchange rates against rupiah used for BI transactions with the government and other parties. The BI announces these rates every Indonesian business day. Since May 20, 2013, the calculation of BI foreign exchange transaction rates has been based on the JISDOR. The BI does not publish banknote rates since banknote transactions with Inflation-targeting framework Yes. The BI’s monetary policy framework continues to adhere to an inflation target as the overriding objective (Inflation Targeting Framework/ITF). The ITF is implemented by applying policy interest rates as monetary policy stance and Interbank Money Market (PUAB) rates as operational targets. The experience of the 2008/2009 global financial crisis made the central bank require sufficient flexibility to respond to the complexities of economic development and the strengthening role of the financial sector in influencing macroeconomic stability. Considering the lesson learnt from the global financial crises, BI strengthened the ITF framework to become Flexible ITF that remained based on important ITF elements such as public announcement of inflation target and forward looking monetary policy. The embodiment of Flexible ITF is the flexibility to integrate monetary and financial system stability frameworks through policy mix instruments, including monetary, macroprudential, exchange rates, capital flows and institutional strengthening as well as optimizing the role of policy coordination and communication. Effective January 1, 2020, the government, in coordination with the BI, set the annual inflation target for 2020 at 3.0% ± 1%, lower than 2018–2019’s target at 3.5% ± 1%. Specifically, the inflation target is the year-over-year headline consumer price index (CPI) inflation at the end of the year. The BI announces the accountability of inflation target accomplishment through the BI Annual Report, which can be accessed publicly. If the inflation target is not achieved during any given year, BI must issue an explanation to the government as material for open explanations presented jointly by the government and BI to the Indonesian Parliament and the public.

Monetary aggregate target

Target setting body Yes. The inflation target is set by the government (Ministry of Finance) in coordination with the BI. The inflation target is preceded by a discussion at the high-level meeting, attended by the governor of BI and the government, represented by the Ministry of Finance, the Coordinating Minister for Economic Affairs, and other relevant ministries and institutions. The target is based on the consensus decision in the High-Level Meeting forum discussing current inflation conditions, the risk of inflation pressure in the future, and the long-term inflation target. Furthermore, BI submitted an official letter to the Ministry of Finance for the issuance of Regulation of the minister of finance for setting the inflation target. If the inflation target is not achieved during any given year, BI must issue an explanation to the government as material for open explanations presented jointly by the government and BI to the Indonesian Parliament and the public. There is no operational freedom to decide the target but if extraordinary conditions occur so that the inflation target that has been set becomes unrealistic, the government can change the inflation target after coordinating with BI.

Target measure

Yes.

CPI

Yes. Inflation is measured in the CPI and expressed in terms of year-over-year inflation at the end of the year. The CPI is officially released monthly by the Indonesia Statistics Agency (Statistics Indonesia or Badan Pusat Statistik). It is calculated based on the Cost of Living Survey conducted in 90 major cities across Indonesia.

Core inflation

No. There is no explicit term horizon.

Operating target (policy rate)

Yes. To achieve the overriding monetary policy objective, BI has implemented an interest-based monetary policy framework. The monetary policy stance is reflected by setting the policy interest rate (BI 7DDR). At the operational level, BI 7DDR is reflected in short-term money market interest rates which are the operational targets of monetary policy. Starting June 9, 2008, BI used the overnight interbank money market (PUAB O/N) interest rate as the operational target of monetary policy.

Policy rate

Yes. The policy rate is the BI 7-Day Reverse Repo Rate (BI7DRR).

Accountability

Yes. BI regularly submits Policy Accountability Report on quarterly basis to the House of Representatives (DPR) as a form of accountability of BI in carrying out the duties and authorities set out in the Act. Accountability of monetary policy is carried out through written submissions and verbal explanations of the implementation of monetary policy each quarter and of specific aspects of monetary policy as may be deemed necessary. In addition, the Policy Accountability Report was also submitted to the government and made available to the public for the purposes of transparency and coordination. The BI also publishes the annual reports to the public that provides information related to performance and governance. BI communicates its monetary policy through various channels/publication, including press releases and press conferences after board meetings; publication of the Monetary Policy Review/Report presenting the background to decisions made; Economic Report on Indonesia; and explanations provided directly to the public, the media, economic actors, market analysts, and academics.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.  Commercial banks may freely set their exchange rates and commissions for transactions with clients. The BI regulates foreign exchange transactions against rupiah between commercial banks with domestic and foreign parties to strengthen and increase the governance of the foreign exchange market without restricting the use of the acquired foreign currency. Foreign exchange transactions above a certain threshold must be supported by documents on the underlying trade or investment transactions, with certain exemptions. Spot transactions must be settled in full delivery payment. Derivatives transactions may be settled in full or by netting for the purpose of rollover, early termination, and unwinding of the initial derivative transaction, but only if the client provides underlying documents.

Spot exchange market  Yes.  As of the end of December 2019, there were 76 commercial banks licensed for foreign exchange activity. Through BI Regulations No. 18/18/PBI/2016 and No. 18/19/PBI/2016, the purchases of foreign currency against rupiah by domestic and foreign party clients through spot transactions exceeding a certain threshold are subject to verification of supporting documents on the underlying transaction. Spot transactions must be settled in full; derivatives transactions may be settled in full or by netting for the purpose of rollover, early termination, and unwinding of the initial derivative transaction as long as supported by underlying documents. The number of money changers as of December 2019 was 1,164 for nonbank money exchange activities.

Operated by the central bank  No.  The BI revoked the facility for foreign exchange liquidity to domestic companies by conducting spot transactions through commercial banks in connection with economic activities in Indonesia.

Foreign exchange standing facility  No.

Interbank market  Yes.  As of December 31, 2019, there were 76 commercial banks with foreign exchange activity licenses. Interbank spot transactions against rupiah can be done without underlying transactions.

Over the counter  Yes.  The foreign exchange market operates directly among market participants (interbank) or indirectly through brokers in the OTC market.

Brokerage  Yes.  The foreign exchange market operates directly among market participants (interbank) or indirectly through brokers in the OTC market. There are eight money brokers available in the foreign exchange market, with a total share of 40% from the total interbank spot market.

Market making  No.  The foreign exchange market does not operate based on a market-making mechanism.

Forward exchange market  Yes.  The domestic forward exchange market is regulated by BI Regulation No. 18/18/PBI/2016 and No. 18/19/PBI/2016. Forward transactions (buying and selling) above a certain threshold must be supported by underlying documents. To promote foreign exchange supply through forward transactions, the threshold amount for forward sale is the equivalent of US$5 million a transaction without an underlying transaction. Above US$5 million a transaction of forward sale must be supported by underlying documents.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes. Rupiah may not be used or transferred to any party outside Indonesia.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes. As of Article 18 under BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016 forbids rupiah from being transferred to any party outside Indonesia. As of Article 19 under BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016 allows the rupiah to be transferred to a foreign party’s rupiah account (in domestic banks) without underlying documents in the event, the transaction is below or equal to US$1 million (or its equivalent) a day. As a result, rupiah transfer to a foreign party’s rupiah account (in domestic banks) above US$1 million (or equivalent) a day must be followed by underlying of trade (current) and investment (capital). According to BI Regulation No.17/3/PBI/2015 concerning Mandatory Use of Rupiah within Territory of Republic of Indonesia, all transactions within the territory of the Republic of Indonesia should be conducted in rupiah currency, with several exceptions including international trade-related settlements.

For current transactions and payments Yes.

For capital transactions Yes.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments Yes.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments Yes.

Credit operations Yes.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. The use of foreign exchange among residents is not allowed in Indonesian territory, as stated in Article 21 of Act No. 7, 2011, concerning the Indonesian currency and Article 2 and Article 4 of BI Regulation No. 17/3/PBI/2015 on the obligation to use rupiah in Indonesia. However, certain transactions are exempt: (1) certain transactions within the framework of budget revenue and expenditure implementation, (2) disbursement of grants from/to overseas entities, (3) international trade transactions, (4) bank deposits in foreign currency, and (5) international financing transactions.

Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements No.

Operative No.

Inoperative No.

Regional arrangements Yes. Indonesia is a member of ASEAN.

Clearing agreements No.

Barter agreements and open accounts Yes. There are barter arrangements as part of bids for government-sponsored construction or procurement projects whose import components are valued at more than Rp 500 million.

Administration of control Yes. Under Act No. 24 of 1999 on the Foreign Exchange Activities and Exchange Rate System, residents must submit information and data on foreign exchange activities, directly or through another party stipulated by the BI. The implementation of the provision is prescribed in BI regulations: On June 30, 2016, the BI released BI Regulation No. 18/10/PBI/2016 concerning the Monitoring of Foreign Exchange Flow of Banks and Customers. This regulation replaced BI Regulation No. 13/21/PBI/2011. As stipulated in the previous regulation, banks must submit complete, accurate, and timely information and data on foreign exchange flows to the BI. There is an additional rule in the new regulation, that is, a bank’s customer must submit supporting documents to the bank for outgoing transfer in foreign currency amounting to more than US$100,000 or its equivalent. Circular Letter No. 18/23/DSta (previously Circular Letter of BI No. 13/33/DSM) gives more detailed provisions for fulfilling BI Regulation No. 18/10/PBI/2016. The revised regulation covers rules on how banks must report customer compliance in submitting supporting documents for outgoing transfer in foreign currency amounting to more than US$100,000 or its equivalent.

BI Regulation No. 16/22/PBI/2014 requires reporters to provide complete, accurate, and timely reports to the BI. This regulation updated BI Regulation No. 14/21/PBI/2012, which was adopted as the legal basis for integration of the reporting system for activity in foreign exchange flows with the reporting system for external debt to improve effectiveness and efficiency in monitoring activity in foreign exchange flows by residents. The new regulation requires banks and nonbank corporate entities (including state-owned and private enterprises) to report all offshore commercial borrowing; and individuals are required to report commercial offshore borrowing equivalent to US$200,000 or more. The regulation also requires nonbank corporations that have external debt in foreign currency to implement prudential principles in addition to their reports on foreign exchange flows. Circular Letter of BI No. 17/26/DSta (earlier Circular Letter of BI No. 15/5/DSM) and Circular Letter of BI No. 15/16/DInt provide further provisions for implementing BI Regulation No. 16/22/PBI/2012 (earlier No. 14/21/PBI/2012). The revised regulation provides updated technical guidelines on issues such as reporting subject, coverage, and period and sanction procedures.

BI Regulation No.21/2/PBI/2019 concerning the Reporting of Foreign Exchange Activities revokes and replaces BI Regulation No. 16/22/PBI/2014, specifically on parts of the reporting of foreign exchange activities. The new regulation also seeks to strengthen the implementation of offshore loans and banks’ other foreign exchange obligations.

Cement and asbestos sheets, dry batteries, steel slabs, low-voltage electric cords, and electric light bulbs are subject to quality control. BI regulations stipulate that release of foreign exchange is subject to underlying documentation of import transactions. The Ministry of Trade (MOT) regulates import licensing (Minister of Trade Regulation No. 40/M-DAG/PER/8/2013).

Imports from countries against which the UN has imposed a trade embargo are prohibited, as are imports from all sources of most secondhand goods and of certain other products. However, secondhand engines, their parts, and other capital goods may be imported by industrial firms for their own use or for reconditioning, in accordance with the guidelines of the MOT. Certain categories of agricultural imports, including foodstuffs, beverages, and fruits, may be imported only by registered importers designated by the MOT. The procurement policies of companies approved for the importation of fruit, alcoholic beverages, and chicken are evaluated annually by the government, although explicit quantitative restrictions are not placed on these products. There is an import ban on rice. The MOT defines the requirements for importers. Companies that meet the requirements must apply and are designated registered importers. These requirements aim to make import administration more orderly. Only the government-owned Bulog (Indonesian Bureau of Logistics, in Indonesian: Badan Urusan Logistik/Bulog) may import medium-grade rice. Premium rice may be imported by licensed importers.

There is a registry of authorized importers that includes only Indonesian nationals, although foreign investors are permitted to import the items required for their own projects. Although imports are subject to licensing requirements, most of them are classified under the general importer license.

Certain products receive preferential treatment within the framework of AFTA and the WTO. Import tariff is based on Harmonized System (HS) 2012. Certain products are granted preferential duties within the framework of the free trade area (FTA), Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA), and WTO. Generally, import tariff ranges from 0% to 5%. Changes in import tariff regulation are (1) Minister of Finance Regulation No. 97 of 2015 related to changes in import tariff for iron and steel, (2) Minister of Finance Regulation No. 132 of 2015 related to changes in import tariff for consumer goods and aircraft components, and (3) Minister of Finance Regulation No. 35 of 2016 related to changes in import tariff for aircraft components as the continuation of last MOF regulation.

Effective, January 25, 2020, the government has lowered the limit on the value of imported goods subject to import duties from US$ 75 per shipment to US$ 3 per shipment.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions  Yes.

As of September 7, 2016, according to BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016, banks are prohibited from making certain transactions with foreign parties, including (1) lending or financing in rupiah and/or foreign currencies, except for noncash credit or guarantees pertaining to investment activities in Indonesia with certain requirements; (2) placement of funds in rupiah; (3) purchase of securities in rupiah issued by foreign parties, except securities related to export or import activities and bank drafts issued by overseas banks for the account of Indonesian workers overseas; (4) interoffice claims in rupiah; (5) interoffice claims in foreign currencies for provision of credit overseas; (6) equity participation in rupiah; (7) interoffice billings in rupiah; (8) interoffice billing in foreign currencies in the context of lending or financing overseas; and (9) capital investment in rupiah.

The regulation provides an exception for banks to lend to foreign parties in the form of a noncash credit or guarantee pertaining to investment activities in Indonesia, and to purchase securities in rupiah issued by foreign parties related to export and import activities and bank drafts issued by overseas banks for the account of Indonesian workers overseas.

In addition, with regard to Indonesian depository receipt (IDR) accounts held by foreign parties in domestic banks, since the implementation of Article 19 BI Regulation No.18/19/PBI/2016 (previously BI Regulation No.16/17/PBI/2014), rupiah transfers to accounts held by foreign parties or joint accounts held by a foreign party and a non-foreign party at a domestic bank above US$1 million or equivalent a day must be supported by underlying documents, except for:
transfer between rupiah accounts owned by the same foreign party;
Rupiah as part of derivative transactions settlement.
Article 18 of BI Regulation No.18/19/PBI/2016 stated that rupiah transfers to any party outside Indonesia are prohibited.

| Foreign companies are permitted to issue IDR through custodian banks in Indonesia. IDRs are instruments that facilitate the trading of shares of foreign companies in the Indonesian capital market. Custodian banks, in turn, issue IDRs based on the shares that the foreign companies have in the custodian bank. Elucidation of Article 1 Paragraph 15 of Law No. 8 Year 1995 Concerning the Capital Market states that “An ‘Offering’ within the territory of the Republic of Indonesia includes both domestic or foreign issuers, as well as offerings to both domestic and foreign investors, in compliance with the disclosure principle.” According to this condition, a public offering must use supporting professionals registered in the capital market as regulated in Article 64 of the Capital Market Law and other provisions in the capital market regulations, among others: Rule No. IX.A.1 concerning General Provisions of Registration Statement, Rule No. IX.A.2 concerning Registration Procedures for Public Offering, Otoritas Jasa Keuangan (OJK) Regulation No. 7/POJK.04/2017 concerning Registration Statement Documents for Public Offering of Equity and Debt Securities, and OJK Regulation No. 8/POJK.04/2017 concerning Form and Content of a Prospectus for Public Offering of Equity Securities. 15% of their net asset value (NAV). Protected mutual funds and guaranteed mutual funds may invest up to 30% of their NAV abroad.

No controls apply as long as the shares are not listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange (IDX). Securities listed on the IDX must comply with the Capital Market Law and with the requirement concerning the maximum percentage of foreign ownership of shares. Effective February 17, 2020, OJK Regulation No. 8/POJK.04/2020 concerning Issuance of Foreign Depositary Receipts (FDRs) requires Issuers or Public Companies wishing to issue FDRs to submit to OJK disclosure of information relating to the FDRs issuance plan. The information must include the involvement of the Issuers or Public Companies in the FDRs issuance and the requirements that the Issuers or Public Companies must fulfil for the purpose of the FDRs issuance. Examples of FDRs are American Depositary Receipts (ADRs), Singapore Depositary Receipts (SDRs), dan Global Depositary Receipts (GDRs). Obligation to disclose material information is also regulated in OJK Regulation No. 31/POJK.04/2015 concerning Disclosure of Information or Material Facts by Issuers or Public Companies. If the FDRs issuance meets the criteria of Public Offering as stipulated in the Capital Market Law, the Issuers must follow the provisions of the Public Offering as set forth in, among others, Rule Number IX.A.1 concerning General Provisions of Registration Statement, Rule Number IX.A.2 concerning Registration Procedures for Public Offering, OJK Regulation No. 7/POJK.04/2017 concerning Registration Statement Documents for Public Offering of Equity and Debt Securities, and OJK Regulation No. 8/POJK.04/2017 concerning Form and Content of a Prospectus for Public Offering of Equity Securities.

In general, government bonds are issued in the primary market only through predetermined primary dealers. Nonresidents may purchase government bonds issued in the primary market through local primary dealers without limitation. However, government bonds issued specifically for individual and retail investors, called ORIs (Indonesian Retail Bonds, in Indonesian: Obligasi Negara Ritel Indonesia), may be purchased in the primary market only by Indonesian investors, who make their purchases through a predetermined selling agent. In the secondary market, all investors, both resident and nonresident, may purchase all categories of government bonds freely. There is no regulation that explicitly limits the purchase of corporate bonds locally by nonresidents. Investment in other domestic bond markets and debt securities (that is, corporate bonds, commercial paper (CP), and certificates of deposit (CDs)) is not clearly regulated in the context of nonresident transactions—thus, such transactions are carried out in practice and are considered free of capital controls.

There are no regulations concerning the sale of bonds and other debt securities locally by nonresidents, and thus this type of activity is considered to be free of capital controls. The regulations on the issuance of bonds do not differentiate between residents and nonresidents and, therefore, this type of activity is also considered to be free of capital controls. Elucidation of Article 1 Paragraph 15 of Law No. 8 Year 1995 Concerning the Capital Market states that “An ‘Offering’ within the territory of the Republic of Indonesia includes both domestic or foreign issuers, as well as offerings to both domestic and foreign investors, in compliance with the disclosure principle.” According to this condition, the public offering must use supporting professionals registered on the capital market as regulated in Article 64 of the Capital Market Law and other provisions in the capital market regulations, among others: Rule No. IX.A.1 concerning General Provisions of Registration Statement. Rule No. IX.A.2 concerning Registration Procedures for Public Offering, OJK Regulation No. 7/POJK.04/2017 concerning Registration Statement Documents for Public Offering of Equity and Debt Securities, and OJK Regulation No. 9/POJK.04/2017 concerning Form and Content of a Prospectus for Public Offering of Debt Securities. An alternative to direct public offering is publication of IDRs as stipulated in Rule No. IX.A.10 of Public Offerings of Indonesian Depositary Receipts.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Purchases of bonds and other debt securities abroad are regulated only for pension funds, which may not invest in securities abroad, and domestic mutual fund companies as follows: CIS mutual funds may invest abroad up to 15% of their NAV, and protected mutual funds and guaranteed mutual funds may invest up to 30% of their NAV abroad, for prudential purposes. No regulations explicitly limit purchases abroad by other resident investors.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. The sale of bonds or other debt securities abroad by residents is not clearly regulated and is considered to be free of capital controls. The issuance of bonds or other debt securities abroad is subject to the same regulations that apply to resident investors who issue these securities locally, and in this respect, this activity is considered to be free of capital controls, with the exception of issuance of securities with maturities of more than one year, which is subject to BI approval. However, the issuer under the supervision of Indonesia FSA must fulfill the principles of disclosure, which are regulated by the FSA, among others, informing of a public offering abroad as stipulated in FSA Regulation No. 31/POJK.04/2015 concerning Disclosure of Information or Material Facts by Issuer or Public Company. Furthermore, if the issuance of securities is in the form of a public offering, the issuer must follow the provisions of the public offering as set forth in, among others, Rule No. IX.A.1 concerning General Provisions of Registration Statement, Rule No. IX.A.2 concerning Registration Procedures for Public Offering, OJK Regulation No. 7/POJK.04/2017 concerning Registration Statement Documents for Public Offering of Equity and Debt Securities, and OJK Regulation No. 9/POJK.04/2017 concerning Form and Content of a Prospectus for Public Offering of Debt Securities.

On money market instruments

Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Yes. BI Regulation No.18/11/PBI/2016 Article 3 stated that nonresidents are allowed to do money market transactions domestically including sale and purchase of money market instruments such as negotiable certificate of deposit (NCD), CP, etc. This provision applies to onshore money market instruments both in IDR denomination and foreign currency denomination. However, regarding instrument NCD, BI Regulation No. 19/7/PADG/2017 Article 15 implies that while nonresidents can buy NCD in primary market, nonresidents can only buy NCD in secondary market from other nonresidents.

In terms of money market instruments in IDR denomination, nonresidents may purchase BI certificates (tradable BI certificates, Sertifikat Bank Indonesia (SBIs)) in the secondary market. However, the minimum holding period for all investors (domestic and foreign) for purchases of SBIs in the primary and secondary markets is one week (Press Release No. 17/71/DKom of September 30, 2015).

In addition, according to Article 4 BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016, purchase of IDR against foreign currency and transfer of IDR by nonresidents above $1 million must be followed by underlying of trade and investments except for current account, savings account, time deposits, and NCDs.
Regarding issuance of domestic market instruments, BI Regulation No. 18/11/PBI/2016 Article 8 stated that only residents can issue domestic money market instruments. Residents as issuers should be registered in the BI to be able to issue domestic money market instruments. However, for lending and borrowing transactions such as unsecured call money and repo transactions, nonresidents are allowed to do transactions domestically.

Based on Article 4 BI Regulation No. 18/18/PBI/2016, residents are not allowed to purchase foreign currency against IDR above certain threshold for investing in offshore money market instruments, that is, current account, savings account, time deposits, and NCD. Pension funds may not invest in securities abroad, and mutual funds may invest abroad only up to 15% of their NAV.

The absence of regulations concerning the sale or issuance of money market instruments abroad indicates that the activity is free of capital controls, with the exception of those issued by nonbank corporate entities, which must fulfill prudential requirements and must report the activity to the BI.

No person may purchase more than 1% of any fund.

According to BI Regulation No. 7/31/PBI/2005, banks may conduct derivatives transactions derived from foreign exchange or interest rate. In performing foreign exchange transactions, banks must enter into a written agreement with their clients and explain the risks of these transactions. In addition, banks must have written internal guidelines and must report their foreign exchange transactions against rupiah through an online daily reporting system to the BI.

Banks must ensure that their customers submit the underlying and supporting documents of the derivatives transactions and administer those documents. Banks may not incur losses from derivatives transactions exceeding 10% of their capital, engage in margin trading on foreign currency against rupiah, or maintain derivative exposure of their branches or subsidiaries. BI Regulation No. 18/18/PBI/2016 and BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016 regulate that derivatives transactions against rupiah, which can be conducted by domestic banks, are limited to forward, swap, option, cross-currency swap, and call spread option. From September 28, 2018, based on BI Regulation No.20/10/PBI/2018, banks can also conduct Domestic Non-Deliverable Forward Transactions against rupiah with foreign parties.

Transactions involving sales to and/or purchases from foreign parties of derivative foreign currency against rupiah are limited to the equivalent of US$1 million a customer and a position (outstanding) of the respective sale and purchase of derivatives transactions a bank. Derivatives contracts of foreign currency against rupiah offered by domestic banks to nonresidents with nominal value exceeding US$1 million must be supported by underlying transactions. Underlying transactions include transactions related to trade of goods and services, both domestic and foreign, and/or investments in the form of FDI, portfolio investment, loans, and capital and other investments, both domestic and foreign. Derivatives transactions may be settled fully or by netting for the purpose of rollover, early termination, or unwinding of the initial derivative transaction. Netting is for transactions with a nominal value not exceeding US$1 million and is permitted if supported by underlying transactions from the initial derivatives transactions. There are no restrictions for Non-IDR Derivative transactions (foreign exchange and interest rate).

From June 26, 2018, BI Regulation No. 20/13/PBI/2018 allows banks to do interest rate derivative transactions (IDR denomination) with residents under certain requirement, and with nonresidents.

Purchase locally by nonresidents  Yes. Underlying documents are required for derivatives transactions over US$1 million a transaction a foreign party or a position. For call spread options and Domestic Non-Deliverable Forward (DNDF), all transactions are required to have underlying documents. Effective March 19, 2020, foreign investors may remain conducting hedging through DNDF while awaiting market to be stable for re-investment. It is accommodated through the use of foreign investor’s rupiah accounts as an underlying transaction for purchasing DNDF in US$/IDR.

From June 26, 2018, BI Regulation No. 20/13/PBI/2018 allows nonresidents to do interest rate derivative transactions (IDR denomination) locally with banks without underlying documents requirement.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents  Yes. Underlying documents are required for derivatives transactions over US$1 million a transaction a foreign party or a position. For foreign exchange Forward and DNDF over US$5 million a transaction required to have underlying documents. For call spread options, all transactions are required to have underlying documents. From June 26, 2018, BI Regulation No. 20/13/PBI/2018 allows nonresidents to do interest rate derivative transactions (IDR denomination) locally with banks without underlying documents requirement.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes. Purchases of derivatives abroad by residents are not regulated as long as they are a non-IDR/non-foreign exchange transaction. However, banks are regulated, and above a certain threshold must have underlying transactions.

According to Article 6 BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016, sale derivative transactions by banks to foreign parties and purchase derivative transactions by banks to foreign parties exceeding US$1 million or its equivalent both a transaction a foreign party and a position (outstanding) of the respective sale and purchase of derivative transactions a bank must have underlying documents. Specifically for purchase forward transaction by banks to foreign parties, the threshold is on US$5 million or its equivalent. The nominal amount of sale and purchase of derivative transactions between banks and foreign parties may not exceed the nominal value of the underlying transactions. This regulation was implemented September 5, 2016, as an amendment to BI Regulation No. 16/17/PBI/2014, which was implemented in November 2014.

Sale or issue abroad by residents  Yes. Sales of foreign exchange derivative instruments are not regulated as long as they are a non-IDR/non-foreign exchange transaction. However, banks are regulated, and above a certain threshold must have underlying transactions.

According to Article 6 BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016, sale derivative transactions by banks to foreign parties and purchase derivative transactions by banks to foreign parties exceeding US$1 million or its equivalent both a transaction a foreign party and a position (outstanding) of the respective sale and purchase of derivative transactions a bank must have underlying documents.
Specifically, for purchase forward transaction by banks to foreign parties (sell forward by foreign parties) the threshold is on US$5 million or its equivalent. The nominal amount of sale and purchase of derivative transactions between banks and foreign parties may not exceed the nominal value of the underlying transactions.

This regulation was implemented September 5, 2016, as an amendment to BI Regulation No. 16/17/PBI/2014, which was implemented in November 2014.

Controls on direct investment

Yes.

Outward direct investment

No.

Inward direct investment

Yes. Several sectors on the negative investment list (DNI, in Indonesian: Daftar Negatif Investasi) are subject to controls: (1) Foreign companies investing in infrastructure projects, such as seaports and airports, land transportation facilities, small capacity electricity generation, shipping, airlines, potable water supply, and nuclear electric power generation, do not have to be established as public-private partnerships. However, public-private partnerships are permitted a higher foreign shareholding. (2) Maximum foreign shareholding, varying from 30% to 95%, is also imposed on other sectors, such as agriculture, telecommunications, distribution and storage, finance, mining, education, and health. (3) In all sectors not listed on the DNI, a foreign investment company may be established as a straight investment; that is, 100% of the shares may be owned by a foreign citizen and/or entity. However, some shares must be sold to Indonesian citizens and/or entities through direct placement and/or indirectly through the domestic capital market no later than 15 years after the commencement of commercial operations. Foreign ownership of direct investments must begin to be divested within the time stipulated by Law No. 25 of 2007. Foreign enterprises are eligible for the following:

Facility for the exemption from import duty on the import of machines, goods, and materials:

Enterprises are eligible to receive preferential customs duty treatment for imports of required raw materials and machines subject to certain conditions as prescribed in various government regulations. The procedures and mechanism for facility on the exemption from import duty on the imports of machines, goods, and materials are stipulated under Indonesian Investment Coordinating Board (BKPM) Regulation No. 6 Year of 2018 on Guidelines and Procedures for Investment Licensing and Facilities.

(2) Tax Allowance:

Enterprises are also eligible to receive an income tax facility, stipulated in regulations.

(3) Tax Holiday:

Income tax waivers may be granted to newly established corporations pursuant to the requirements set within government regulations. BKPM Regulation No. 5 Year of 2018 contains details of business fields and pioneer industry products that can be granted corporate income tax reduction and procedures for granting the reduction.

According to PMK 35, reduction of corporate income tax (tax holiday) may be granted to newly established corporations for no less than 5 years and for up to 20 years, depending on its investment value.

(4) Foreign Workers:

Hiring of foreign workers must comply with Presidential Regulation.
No. 20 Year of 2018 on the Use of Foreign Workers, which stipulates the procedure for use of foreign workers. Moreover, it also stipulates certain positions that foreign workers may not fill, as stipulated by the minister of manpower.

(5) Divestment Provisions:
Divestment provisions, in which some shares must be sold to Indonesian citizens and/or entities through direct placement, must begin to be divested within the time stipulated by prevailing laws and regulations depending on its sector.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Article 15 of BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016 prohibits banks from performing transactions with foreign parties, including (1) lending or financing in rupiah and/or foreign currencies, except (a) noncash credit or financing or guarantees related to investment activities in Indonesia with a counter guarantee from a prime bank or a security deposit of 100% of the value of guarantees given; (b) credit or financing in the form of syndication; (c) credit cards; (d) domestic consumer credit or financing; (e) intraday overdrafts in...
rupiah and foreign currencies supported by authenticated documents confirming inflow of funds to the relevant account on the same day; (f) overdrafts in rupiah and foreign currencies for administrative costs; and (g) assumption of bills from a government-appointed body designated to manage the concerned bank’s assets in the context of restructuring Indonesia’s banking by foreign parties whose payments are guaranteed by prime banks; (2) placements in rupiah; (3) purchases of securities in rupiah issued by foreign parties, excluding (a) purchases of securities related to goods exports and imports as well as domestic trade; and (b) purchases of bank drafts in rupiah issued by banks overseas for Indonesian workers in foreign countries; (4) interoffice claims in rupiah; (5) interoffice claims in foreign currencies for provision of credit overseas; (6) equity participation in rupiah; and (7) foreign exchange transactions against rupiah related to structured products. Banks are prohibited from owning assets in the form of stocks or securities with an underlying reference stock. Banks are required to consolidate risk management in exercising control over subsidiary companies. The regulation provides an exception for banks to lend to foreign parties in the form of a noncash credit or guarantee pertaining to investment activities in Indonesia, and to purchase securities in rupiah issued by foreign parties related to export and import activities and bank drafts issued by overseas banks for the account of Indonesian workers overseas.

The threshold amounts for rupiah transfers to accounts held by foreign parties or joint accounts held by a foreign party and a non-foreign party at a domestic bank are as follows:

1. Banks may perform rupiah transfers to accounts owned by foreign parties and/or to joint accounts between foreign parties and non-foreign parties in a domestic bank if
   a. the nominal value of the rupiah transfer is up to the equivalent of US$1 million a day a foreign party; or
   b. the transfer is performed between rupiah accounts owned by the same foreign party.

2. With regard to rupiah transfers to accounts owned by foreign parties derived from other than derivative transactions with nominal value exceeding US$1 million or its equivalent a day a foreign party, banks receiving the rupiah transfer must ensure that the foreign parties have underlying transactions.

Rupiah transfers to any party outside Indonesia are prohibited.

Borrowing abroad Yes.

According to BI Regulation No.7/1/PBI/2005, banks’ long-term foreign debt (maturities of more than one year) requires BI approval. Banks’ short-term foreign debt balance is limited to 30% of capital with some exemptions. PBI No. 15/6/PBI/2013 and PBI No. 16/7/PBI/2014 extend exemptions for short-term foreign debt to include rupiah demand deposits for nonresident holdings of SBIs for minority shareholders for real sector and infrastructure financing, supranational bodies holding proceeds from global bond issuance for real sector and infrastructure financing, and banks’ liabilities to nonresidents arising from hedging activities.

Effective March 7, 2019, banks’ foreign debt is being regulated by PBI No. 21/1/PBI/2019 which extends the scope of the regulation to include Master Risk Participation Agreement (MRPA). In addition, this ruling also expands scope of short term debt exempted, which includes shareholder loan drawn to solve bank’s problem as well as intermediation to real sector. Under Financial Services Authority (Otoritas Jasa Keuangan—OJK), OJK has amended OJK Regulation No.29/POJK.05/2014 with OJK Regulation No.35/POJK.05/2018 Regarding Business Operation Of Multifinance Company. The new regulation regulates hedging on foreign currency loan received by multifinance company. The types of loan that can be received are as follows:
regular loans;
subordinated loans;
securities issued through public offering; and debt securities that are not issued through public offering.
Also, multifinance company must apply full hedge for principal debt, loan interest rate, and/or period of payment...

| Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) | Yes. |
| Banks may lend locally in foreign exchange subject to BI approval. BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016 prohibits banks from performing transactions with foreign parties, including (1) lending or financing in rupiah and/or foreign currencies, except (a) noncash credit or financing or guarantees related to investment activities in Indonesia with a counter guarantee from a prime bank or a security deposit of 100% of the value of guarantees given; (b) credit or financing in the form of syndication; (c) credit cards; (d) domestic consumer credit or financing; (e) intraday overdrafts in rupiah and foreign currencies supported by authenticated documents confirming inflow of funds to the relevant account on the same day; (f) overdrafts in rupiah and foreign currencies for administrative costs; and (g) assumption of bills from a government-appointed body designated to manage the concerned bank’s assets in the context of restructuring Indonesia’s banking by foreign parties whose payments are guaranteed by prime banks; (2) interoffice claims in rupiah; (3) interoffice claims in foreign currencies for provision of credit overseas; and (4) foreign exchange transactions against rupiah related to structured products. |
| Lending locally in foreign exchange | Yes. |
| Banks must take into account the regulation on the net open position (NOP, in Indonesian: Posisi Devisa Netto) aimed at prudential control, which states that banks must take into account every exposure in foreign exchange for calculating the NOP. |
| Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange | Yes. |
| Banks may purchase locally issued bonds denominated in foreign exchange subject to BI approval for foreign exchange transactions. Banks must also take into account the regulation on the NOP aimed at prudential control, which states that banks must include every exposure in foreign exchange in calculating the NOP. Specifically, the CP must have an investment grade and may not be issued by a bank’s own group. Banks may not purchase any CP issued by firms with nonperforming loans classified as “doubtful” or “loss.” |

Abroad by banks

Yes.

Banks may invest, within certain limits, only in financial institutions, including businesses that operate in financial services, such as leasing, venture capital, securities company, insurance, and clearinghouse settlement institutions.

Only banks under the BUKU 3 (Tier 1 Capital between IDR 5 Trillion – IDR 30 Trillion) and BUKU 4 categories (Tier 1 capital of IDR 30 Trillion or more) are allowed to conduct equity participation to foreign financial institutions. This should be done in foreign currency. BUKU 3 banks are only allowed to conduct equity participation to financial institutions in Asia while BUKU 4 banks are not subject to any geographical limitation on where they can conduct equity participation and are allowed to inject a higher amount of equity compared to BUKU 3 banks

BI Regulation No. 18/19/PBI/2016 prohibits banks from performing transactions with foreign parties, including (1) interoffice claims in foreign currencies for provision of credit overseas and (2) foreign exchange transactions against rupiah related to structured products. Banks are prohibited from owning assets in the form of stocks or securities with an underlying reference stock. Banks are required to consolidate risk management in exercising control over subsidiary companies.

In banks by nonresidents

Yes.

Equity participation of a foreign shareholder in a commercial bank may reach 99%. Foreign bank branches are not allowed to conduct temporary equity participation. In addition, foreign and domestic shareholders are subject to a cap on their shares ownership in an Indonesian bank based on their category (banks, non-bank financial institutions, non-financial institutions, and individuals). All prospective controlling shareholders must pass the fit and proper requirement. To support this requirement, foreign legal entities must obtain a recommendation from the monetary authorities and/or bank supervisor of their country of origin. The recommendation must state at a minimum that the foreign legal entity has a good reputation and sound financial ability and has never committed an unethical act in the banking business. In addition, foreign shareholders must also have a commitment to take necessary measures if the Bank faces capital and liquidity difficulties in carrying out its business activities.

Open foreign exchange position limits

Banks must maintain a maximum overall (on- and off-balance-sheet) NOP of 20% of capital at the end of the working day. The capital charge to incorporate foreign exchange risk (under the market risk capital requirement) is based on 8% of the overall NOP.

The NOP regulation is applied only for domestic banks.

On resident assets and liabilities

There is a limit on the NOP (Posisi Devisa Netto/PDN) of 20% of capital, based on BI Regulation No. 17/5/PBI/2015 concerning the fourth amendment to BI Regulation No. 5/13/PBI/2003 on NOP for Commercial Banks. As per Article 2, banks should manage and maintain the overall NOP at the end of the working day with a provisions maximum of 20% of capital.

On nonresident assets and liabilities

Banks should manage and maintain the overall NOP at the end of the working day with a provisions maximum of 20% of capital, which applies to assets and liabilities whether from residents or nonresidents.

In accordance with BI Regulation No. 7/37/PBI/2005 Article 2 Paragraphs (4) and (5), calculation of the NOP includes the difference between net assets and liabilities, taking into account the assets and liabilities of residents and nonresidents, so the restriction on the NOP also applies to the assets and liabilities of nonresidents.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Insurance companies

Insurance and reinsurance companies may hold securities issued by nonresidents. In Article 9 OJK Regulation No. 71/POJK.05/2016 investment that is issued by nonresidents is considered to be investment allocated overseas. Article 10 of the regulation states that the sum of investments allocated overseas may not exceed 20% of total investments.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes.

Insurance and reinsurance companies may hold investments abroad. Permitted investments are shares listed on the stock exchange, corporate bonds listed on the stock exchange, securities issued by countries other than Indonesia, securities issued by multinational organizations of which Indonesia is a member or shareholder, mutual funds, and/or private placements/direct investments (not listed on the stock exchange). For solvency measures, the prudential limits on investments held abroad are as follows: (1) For shares listed on the stock exchange: Investments in a single issuer may not exceed 10% of total investments, and the sum of investments in all issuers may not exceed 40% of total investments. (2) For corporate bonds listed on the stock exchange and securities (issued by multinational organizations of which Indonesia is a member or shareholder): Investments in a single issuer may not exceed, 20% of total investments, and the sum of investments in all issuers may not exceed 50% of total investments. (3) For securities issued by countries other than Indonesia: Investments in a single issuer may not exceed 10% of total investments. (4) For general mutual funds: Investments with a single investment manager may not exceed, 10% of total investment, and in all issuers may not exceed, 20% of total investments, and the sum of investments with all investment managers may not exceed 50% of total investments. For mutual funds in the form of a collective investment contract in limited participation or private equity fund: Investments with a single investment manager may not exceed 10% of total investments, and the sum of investments with all investment managers may not exceed 20% of total investments. (5) For private placements/direct investments (not listed on the stock exchange): The sum of all investments may not exceed 10% of total investments. (6) The sum of investments allocated overseas may not exceed 20% of total.

Although not explicit in the regulations, because the total of investments allocated overseas is limited to 20%, the investment portfolio held locally has a minimum of 80%.

For solvency measures, insurance and reinsurance companies must provide additional funds to cover currency mismatches. The amounts required to cover foreign currency mismatch risk for a single foreign currency are: (1) 30% of the sum of foreign currency liabilities minus admitted assets if the sum of admitted assets minus foreign currency liabilities is less than or equal to zero; (2) zero if the sum of admitted assets minus foreign currency liabilities is between 0% and 20% of total liabilities; and (3) 10% of the sum of admitted assets minus 120% of foreign currency liabilities if the sum of admitted assets minus foreign currency liabilities is more than 20% of total liabilities (OJK Circular Letter No. 24/SEOJK.05/2017, on July 1, 2017).

Pension funds in Indonesia are not allowed to invest in securities issued by nonresidents (OJK Regulation No. 3/POJK.05/2015). Based on OJK Regulation No.29/POJK.05/2018, OJK no longer allows Pension funds in Indonesia to invest abroad for private placement investments.. OJK Regulation No.29/POJK.05/2018 not only prohibits Pension Funds from private placements abroad, but also places percentage limitations in private placement investments, limited investment mutual funds, medium term notes, or repurchase agreements..

The maximum limits on investment portfolios held abroad include the following: (1) CIS mutual funds may invest abroad up to 15% of NAV (OJK Rule No. IV.B.1); (2) the protected mutual fund and guaranteed mutual fund may invest abroad up to 30% of NAV (OJK Rule No. IV.C.4).
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally  Yes.  The minimum limits on investment portfolios held locally include the following: (1) At least 85% of CIS mutual fund NAV must be invested in locally issued, offered, or traded securities or debt securities issued abroad by the Indonesian government or an Indonesian company (OJK Rule No. IV.B.1); (2) at least 70% of protected mutual fund and guaranteed mutual fund NAV must be invested in locally issued, offered, or traded securities or debt securities issued abroad by the Indonesian government or an Indonesian company (OJK Rule No. IV.C.4).

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition  No.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Islamic Republic of Iran states that, as of March 7, 2018, Iran maintained MCPs and an exchange restriction subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3: (1) An MCP and an exchange restriction arise from the establishment of an official exchange rate for use in some exchange transactions, which in practice differs by more than 2% from the rate used by foreign exchange bureaus. (2) An MCP arises from the differences of more than 2% between the current official and exchange bureaus rates and the preferential rates for certain imports for which foreign exchange commitments were made through LCs opened prior to March 21, 2002, under the previous multiple exchange rate system. (3) An MCP arises from the differences of more than 2% between the current official and exchange bureaus rates and the preferential rates for certain imports for which foreign exchange payment commitments were made through LCs or bank drafts prior to July 24, 2012. (Country Report No. 18/93)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Yes. Credit and financial institutions and banks have been instructed by the Bank Markazi Jomhouri Islami Iran (Central Bank of Iran—CBI) to freeze suspected accounts, based on an official list. These measures were taken in accordance with UNSC resolutions.

Stabilized arrangement | Yes. |
The de jure exchange rate arrangement has been a managed floating arrangement against a basket of currencies since 2002. All foreign exchange transactions are to be conducted via banks and money exchanges (bureaus) using CBI’s electronic trading system. Transactions occurring at rates other than the unified rate will be subject to penalties under the Anti-Smuggling Law.

The New Integrated Foreign Exchange Transactions System “NIMA” was launched on April 11, 2018, aiming to facilitate the currency trades for market participants. CBI’s NIMA platform operates to regulate foreign exchange transactions by enabling exporters to sell foreign currencies to exchange houses who must then on-sell the currency to importers of goods and services with a valid import/services registration order in place. The price of each transaction is agreed between importer and exporter as well as banks and bureaus since August 5, 2018. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

The CBI quotes the official exchange rate. This rate must be used in transactions on priority goods operated by the banking system. It is also used to buy the revenue from oil and gas exports from the government and for imports of priority goods and services. The CBI announces the official exchange rate on a daily basis and sells foreign exchange in the domestic interbank market at that rate.

The official and parallel exchange rates were unified on April 10, 2018. The CBI also quotes market exchange rate on daily basis for the transactions on the secondary market (NIMA) for trade and projects finance other than priority goods and services. The importing oil proceeds and priority goods and services, including medical goods, are financed at a fixed rate of 42,000 IRR.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor | Yes. |
---|---|

U.S. dollar | Yes. |
The monetary policy framework uses an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the US dollar. Under Iran’s Five-Year Development Plan, Article 81, the CBI bases the exchange rate on relevant economic variables directly connected to the implementation of monetary policy—that is, the difference between internal and international inflation, the internal demand for and supply of foreign exchange, and the exchange value of major foreign currencies against each other, particularly in the SDR portfolio. However, 4 years after the 6th National Development Plan started, many policy directives are not yet implemented. Policy orientations may vary from the National Development Plan. In addition to the exchange rate anchor, the CBI objective is to maintain inflation in single digits by trying to control base money growth. Legally, the CBI does not have an inflation objective or target (see Article 10 of the CBI law).

IRAQ

(Position as of June 30, 2020)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

- Date of membership: December 27, 1945.
- Article VIII: Yes.
- Article XIV: Yes.

Exchange Measures

- Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: Yes.

  The IMF staff report for 2019 Article IV Consultation with Iraq states that, as of July 3, 2019, Iraq continues to avail itself of the transitional arrangements under Article XIV, Section 2, but no longer maintains any exchange restrictions or MCPs subject to Article XIV, Section 2, and currently maintains one MCP subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3. The MCP arises from the lack of a mechanism to ensure that the exchange rate at the Central Bank of Iraq (CBI) foreign exchange window and the market rates (retail exchange rates of commercial banks and exchange bureaus for the sale of foreign currency from sources other than the CBI foreign exchange window) do not deviate from each other by more than 2%. A previously identified exchange restriction arising from an Iraqi balance owed to Jordan under an inoperative bilateral payment agreement has been eliminated. (Country Report No. 19/248)

- Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: No.
- In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51): No.
- Other security restrictions: No.

Exchange Arrangement

- Currency: Yes. The currency of Iraq is the Iraqi dinar.
- Other legal tender: No.

Exchange rate structure

- Unitary: Yes. The exchange rate system comprises two rates: the exchange rate at the CBI foreign exchange window and the market rates (retail exchange rates of commercial banks and exchange bureaus).
- Multiple: Yes. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg arrangement.
The Central Bank Law gives the Board of the CBI the authority to formulate exchange rate policy. On May 24, 2018, the official exchange rate was set at ID 1,190 per US dollar including CBI commission which represent the cash and transfer selling price in the window for buying and selling foreign currency. Banks are allowed to deal at a maximum exchange rate of ID 1,200.

Foreign exchange standing facility  No.
Currency selling window is held daily; eligible bidders may buy and sell foreign exchange at the official exchange rate including a commission determined by the CBI (cash and transfer exchange rates). Banks may buy foreign exchange on their behalf and on behalf of their clients but have to ensure that foreign exchange purchase requests they intermediate are for legitimate purposes (to finance legally permitted transactions in foreign currency) by checking clients’ documents. Effective October 7, 2019, the requirement for individuals and companies of having at least one foreign exchange account for a period of more than six months to buy from banks foreign exchange derived from the CBI currency selling window was eliminated. Banks are subject to an advance deposit requirement which requires depositing the local currency unit (LCU) equivalent of their cash and noncash purchase requests 7 days before the auction. There are no limits on the bids. In case of default, the auction participant may not participate in future auctions and fines are imposed. The CBI monitors these transactions for anti-money-laundering purposes and sells foreign currency for transactions that are not considered suspect. Because the CBI has been pursuing a policy of fulfilling every bid at a single settlement price, bids are submitted without indication of price. Volume is not preannounced. There are no limits for noncash sales. Weekly limits on the amount banks may buy in cash foreign exchange from the CBI currency sales window are US$70,000 for money exchange bureaus and effective March 1, 2020, US$100,000 for all participating banks. Previously, effective June 2, 2019, the weekly cash limits for banks were decreased to US$120,000 from US$200,000. US dollars sold for documentary credits are transferred after the bank confirms receipt of the required documents.

All banks operating in Iraq (except banks included in the CBI and Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) blacklists) are allowed to trade among themselves; however, there is no specific legal framework for interbank transactions, and there is no official organized interbank market for buying and selling foreign currency.

There is a US$10,000 limit on the amount in banknotes a traveler may take out of Iraq. Expenditures of government agency delegates are allowed as per defined entitlement.

The CBI allows individuals to buy foreign exchange banknotes up to US$3,000 a month for travel purpose on proof of airline ticket with a passport. The CBI provides additional amounts when required by Iraqi citizens. Indicative limits are imposed in accordance with the anti-money-laundering law.

Transfers of tuition fees require proof of current enrollment. Transfers for medical treatment require a medical report certified by a competent medical authority. Transfers to cover the household living expenses of Iraqis residing permanently abroad, on submission of a statement verifying their residency status, the relationship, and the source of the funds, not to exceed US$5,000 a month are allowed. The CBI addresses the additional requests of Iraqi citizens for lawful purposes, as they arise.

The Iraqi retail payment infrastructure and the National Switch were implemented enabling use of credit cards issued by banks abroad and settlement within the payment system.

- Floating: Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Ireland participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
- Official exchange rate: Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). Section 6A of the Central Bank Act 1942 notes that in discharging its functions and exercising its powers as part of the European System of Central Banks, the primary objective of the CBI is to maintain price stability. “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and noninflationary growth.” Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Banks are free to provide spot and forward exchange rate facilities. ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients. Certain foreign-exchange-related operations may be subject to a regulatory authorization regime or certain restrictions reflecting obligations in European legislation. For example, with regard to investment firms for the purposes of Directive 2014/65/EU (Markets in Financial Instruments Directive, or MiFID II), “spots” which meet the requirements in Article 10(2) of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2017/56 are not considered “financial instruments under MiFID II, and accordingly, the performance of certain activities/services in relation to these “spots” may not require a firm to be authorized in Ireland in accordance with the regime provided for in MiFID II. Investment firms for the purposes of MiFID II may require an authorization in Ireland to perform activities or services in relation to foreign exchange forwards. UCITS management companies authorized in Ireland are permitted to use foreign exchange derivatives on behalf of UCITS funds in line with Directive 2009/65/EU, subject to certain restrictions. Alternative Investment Fund (AIF) managers authorized in Ireland are also permitted to use foreign exchange derivatives on behalf of AIFs under management.

Euro foreign exchange policy is the responsibility of the ECB. There were 25 credit institutions authorized by the CBI as of December 31, 2019, all of which may deal in foreign exchange. Credit institutions are authorized and supervised under the provisions of, inter alia, the Central Bank Act 1971, Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013/Directive 2013/36/EU (CRDIV/CRR), and Council Regulation (EU) No. 1024/2013 (The Single Supervisory Mechanism (SSM) Regulation). As of December 31, 2019, 10 firms were authorized as exchange bureaus by the CBI under Part V of the Central Bank Act 1997. These firms do not have a counterparty relationship with the CBI. Most firms authorized as exchange bureaus only provide OTC services to the public.

The provision of foreign exchange services in addition to the provision of payment services by a payment institution is recognized in Regulation No. 29(1) of the EU (Payment Services) Regulations 2018, which implemented Directive 2015/2366/EU – Payment Services Directive (PSD2). A payment institution authorized to provide payment services may, in addition, provide foreign exchange services.

Foreign exchange swaps and forwards are used by credit institutions to facilitate client-driven transactions and to manage internal foreign exchange asset exposures. Institutional investors use outright forwards and foreign exchange swaps owing to their needs to hedge international asset portfolios and future foreign exchange cash flows. The CBI participates in the forward exchange market to hedge investment activities and the swaps market to hedge certain foreign exchange exposures.

Foreign exchange balances may be freely transferred: all exchange control legislation in Ireland expired December 31, 1992. Since January 1, 1993, no laws or restrictions prevent the free movement of capital or current payments to or from Ireland by individuals or corporate entities for any purpose whatsoever. This liberalization applies equally to EU and non-EU countries. However, in any such foreign exchange transactions the Irish resident parties, including financial institutions, must ensure conformity with (1) financial sanctions under various EU Council regulations enforced under domestic law, which affect transfers, including economic resources, to and from jurisdictions, entities, and individuals that are subject to sanctions; and (2) anti-money-laundering legislation to ensure that effective measures are taken to combat the laundering of the proceeds of criminal activity or the financing of terrorism. All credit and financial institutions providing services (including foreign-exchange-related services) must adopt policies and procedures to prevent money-laundering and terrorism financing. The procedures must specify “measures to be taken (by them in their businesses) to prevent the use, for money laundering or terrorism financing, of transactions or products that could favor or facilitate anonymity.” The CBI is specified in the Criminal Justice (Money-Laundering and Terrorism Financing) Act 2010 (the “Act”) as the appropriate authority for credit and financial institutions. The CBI, pursuant to Section 63 of the Act, is responsible for monitoring credit and financial institutions’ compliance with the AML/CFT obligations contained in the Act. If a credit or financial institution fails to establish procedures to guard against the use of its foreign exchange services for money-laundering or the financing of terrorism, it commit an offense under Section 54(15) of the Act and is also subject to regulatory action by the CBI, including an administrative sanction.

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

05/17/2019  Restrictive measures against cyberattacks threatening the EU or its member states were imposed.

10/14/2019  Restrictive measures against persons, entities, or bodies responsible for serious human rights violations and for undermining democracy and the rule of law in the Republic of Nicaragua, as well as persons associated with them were implemented.

11/11/2019  Restrictive measures in view of Turkey’s unauthorized drilling activities in the Eastern Mediterranean, in particular, certain natural persons or entities responsible for, involved in, or assisting drilling activities, which have not been authorized by the Republic of Cyprus, within its territorial sea or in its exclusive economic zone or on its continental shelf were implemented.

Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices

No. No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2019.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

Yes. Under Prevention of Terrorism Ordinance No. 33, 5708-1948, money and other assets may not benefit an organization associated with terrorism. The Prohibition on Terrorism Financing Law, No. 5765-2004, prohibits transactions in property for purposes of terrorism and prohibits transactions in terrorist’s property. Israel maintains a licensing mechanism on imports from eight non-WTO members that have no diplomatic relations with Israel or prohibit imports from Israel—namely, Afghanistan, Algeria, Iraq, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, Libya, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, and Yemen. Licenses are granted for imports from these countries on an ad hoc basis, under exceptional circumstances (for example, economic necessity) and with authorization from the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Labor. Imports and exports of rough diamonds are controlled to avoid trade with countries that do not participate in the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme. Imports of goods that are clearly identified with organizations associated with terrorism (for example, flags) are prohibited. Trading is prohibited with the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, and Syria; however, because of the US presence in Iraq, trade in Iraqi dinars was authorized temporarily.

Economic activity is prohibited with a foreign entity that has been identified by a ministerial committee as assisting Iran in the advancement of its nuclear program or in obtaining weapons of mass destruction or the means of delivery of weapons of mass destruction, unless the ministerial committee has permitted economic activity with that foreign entity. In addition, financial institutions are prohibited from investing in a corporation that has been identified by a ministerial committee as maintaining a substantial business relationship with Iran, unless the ministerial committee has permitted it.

Other security restrictions

No.

Floating: Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. However, the Bank of Israel (BOI) may intervene in the foreign exchange market in the event of unusual movements in the exchange rate that are inconsistent with underlying economic conditions or when conditions in the foreign exchange market are disorderly. The BOI purchased US$3.9 billion in the foreign exchange market during 2019 (US$3.3 billion in 2018). The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a floating arrangement. The BOI publishes monthly purchase information.

Free floating

Official exchange rate: Yes. The representative rate of the new shekel against the US dollar for a specific day is the average rate of new shekels in bilateral interbank quotes during a predetermined sampling period. Deviations from the sample average of more than 2 standard deviations are excluded from the calculation. In exceptional cases, if the calculated exchange rate does not reflect actual rates in the market, discretion may be exercised in determining the representative rate. The representative rates of the new shekel against other currencies are based on the representative rate of the US dollar and the exchange rates of the relevant currencies in the international money markets at the time the rates are determined. Therefore, the representative rate of any currency against the new shekel is an indicator of the exchange rate in the foreign exchange market, is based on an average of banks’ published buying and selling prices, and does not necessarily reflect actual transaction rates. The rates have no official or legal standing and are not published in the Official Gazette. They are used mainly for valuations and in contracts. Parties to a foreign-currency-indexed business transaction may use any mutually acceptable rate. The representative rate is binding on such transactions only if explicitly stipulated in advance.

Core inflation

Target horizon Yes. The target is set in terms of the headline CPI and is evaluated continuously referring to the CPI inflation rate in the past 12 months.

Operating target (policy rate) Yes. The BOI is independent in setting the short-term rate of interest and in using the monetary instruments to achieve its goals. The BOI’s interest rate serves as the basis according to which a range of interest rates are set in the economy, including the rates of interest that the public (households and businesses) pays the banks on short-term loans and the rates of interest that it receives from the banks on its short-term deposits.

The BOI publishes the minutes of the discussions regarding the determination of the interest rate. The minutes are published about two weeks after the announcement of the interest rate. The publication of the minutes of the interest-rate discussions, in the format adopted by the CBs of the advanced economies throughout the world, is intended to increase the transparency of the BOI’s interest-rate policy, and together with other of the BOI’s publications will enable the public, the Knesset (Israel’s unicameral parliament), and the government to deepen their understanding of that policy.

The Monetary Committee presents the government and the Knesset Finance Committee no less than twice annually a report on the monetary policy. The report includes a survey of developments in the field of price stability and economic developments in the time period covered by the report, and the policy that the Committee believes necessary for the maintenance of price stability within the range determined by the government and for the attainment of the BOI’s other objectives. The reports are issued about a month after the end of each half-year. Appendices to the report contain tables with updated figures, which are used by policymakers. The BOI generally published this report before the Committee’s appointment as well.

Commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients.

The spot exchange market is unregulated and operates in an identical manner to developed country markets. Foreign exchange bureaus are licensed by the MOF; their activities are generally unrestricted, and several hundred bureaus are in operation. Foreign exchange bureaus may not make foreign exchange transactions directly with the BOI. They may maintain accounts abroad and make foreign currency transfers on behalf of their clients. They are subject to the Money-Laundering and Terrorism Financing Prohibition.

The interbank market operates freely with no formal framework. As of December 31, 2019, there were between 5 and 7 local market-maker banks and between 30 and 40 foreign financial institutions that were also active at times, as well as a few brokers. The BOI monitors the foreign exchange market (daily volume, volatility, bid-offer spreads, and so on) to ensure its orderly functioning.

| Floating | Yes. | The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Italy participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers. |

Official exchange rate

| Yes. | The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 16:00 Central European Time on every working day, except on TARGET closing days. Reference rates will continue to be determined using the current methodology, which is based on a point-in-time snapshot at 14:15 Central European Time. The new publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the reference rates that are published for information purposes only. The reference rates are used by the Italian public administration for administrative and fiscal purposes. |

Imports are governed by EU regulations, under which most imports are free of licensing and quantitative restrictions, except licensing for textiles (from the DPRK), licensing for agricultural products and licensing for dual-use items from Iran, according to Regulation (EU) No. 267/2012 and its amendments, included in the scope of the implementing measures of the CAP. Imports of certain iron and steel products originating in certain third countries are governed by EU regulation and are subject to presentation of a surveillance document. Imports of endangered wild fauna and flora (under CITES) are governed by EU regulations and are subject to ministerial authorization.

Surveillance documents are required for certain iron and steel products originating in certain third countries.

With respect to nonresidents, controls apply to (1) majority participation or controlling interest in companies that publish daily newspapers and periodicals; (2) licenses for audiovisual communications firms headquartered in a non-EU country; (3) majority participation by non-EU residents in companies licensed for television and sound-radio broadcasting and participation by non-EU residents in companies that are not legal persons and are licensed for television and sound-radio broadcasting; (4) acquisition of aircraft in Italy by foreigners and foreign ownership exceeding one-third of the capital of companies possessing such aircraft; (5) airlines established in the country, which must be majority owned and effectively controlled by EU states and/or nationals of EU states, unless otherwise indicated through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (6) purchases by foreigners other than EU residents of a majority interest in Italian flag vessels or of a controlling interest in ship-owning companies headquartered in Italy; (7) purchases of Italian flag vessels used to fish in Italian territorial waters; and (8) establishment of branches, agencies, etc., of securities investment companies. In accordance with EU legislation, whatever the potential acquirer’s nationality (resident or nonresident), acquisition of holdings in the financial sector requires prior authorization by the relevant supervisor (for banks, by the ECB, with a preliminary investigation by the BOI; for investment firms and asset management companies, the BOI; for insurance companies, the Institute for the Supervision of Insurance Companies) if the holding (a) equals or exceeds 10%, 20%, 30%, or 50% of the target entity’s capital or voting rights; or (b) confers the power to exert significant influence over the target entity. Authorization is also needed if control is gained as a result of acquisition of holdings or contracts or through other bylaw provisions.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes.

Commercial banks and other credit institutions are subject to EU and national prudential regulations in accordance with the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision core principles for effective banking supervision and the Basel Accord (International Convergence of Capital Measurement and Capital Standards). The Consolidated Law on Banking “CLB” (Legislative Decree No. 385/1993, TUB), as well as BOI Circular No. 285 of December 17, 2013 (as amended), and Circular No. 286 on prudential reporting transpose into the national regulatory framework the provisions in Capital Requirements Directive IV (CRD IV—Directive 2013/36/EU) concerning authorization of credit institutions, acquisition of qualified holdings in a credit institution, cross-border activities, internal capital and liquidity adequacy assessment processes, corporate governance, risk management and control, remuneration policies and practices, capital buffers, prudential supervision, supervisory review and evaluation processes, and sanctions. The present framework is under revision to implement the new CRD V requirements. Moreover, provisions concerning own funds, own funds requirements, liquidity requirements, leverage, large exposures, and public disclosure obligations are laid out in the Capital Requirements Regulation (CRR — EU Capital Requirements Regulation No. 575/2013).
(1) A reform of “Banche Popolari” (a particular form of nonprevalent mutual cooperative bank) was approved by the parliament (Decree-Law No. 3/2015 converted to Law No. 33/2015); in December 2016, in particular, the reform introduced an obligation for Banche Popolari with consolidated assets exceeding €8 billion to become joint-stock companies. Following the enactment of primary legislation, the BOI’s implementing provisions went into effect, completing the legal framework by providing the necessary prudential rules and guidelines for the banks concerned.

(2) Decree-Law No. 18 of February 14, 2016, converted by Law No. 49 of April 8, 2016, introduced significant innovations in the Italian cooperative banking sector fostering the consolidation of the “Banche di Credito Cooperativo” (BCCs) and providing for the establishment of cooperative banking groups. According to the regulatory framework, each Italian BCC must either join a cooperative banking group to hold a banking license, become a joint-stock company, or liquidate. The parent company of the cooperative banking group must be a joint-stock company, with a banking license and net capital not less than €1 billion. The provisions of BOI Circular No. 285, as amended, aligned the rules applicable to cooperative banks on an individual basis to the reform of cooperative banking groups. Decree-Law No. 119 of October 23, 2018, amended the reform and allowed BCCs established in the Italian Region of Trentino Alto-Adige to create an institutional protection scheme (IPS) instead of joining a cooperative banking group to take into account particular features of the mutual banks located in that region.

(3) Directive 2014/92/EU on the comparability of fees related to payment accounts, payment account switching, and access to payment accounts with basic features (Payment Accounts Directive—PAD) was implemented in Legislative Decree No. 37 of March 15, 2017, which aims to enhance customer protection and financial inclusion.

On August 3, 2017, the BOI adopted implementing provisions (amending its provisions for banks and financial intermediaries on transparency and correct customer relations, originally issued July 29, 2009) to (a) enhance customer protection by ensuring continuity of payment services in the event of divestment of branches of business and (b) clarify the discipline of basic payment accounts, also regulated by Ministerial Decree No. 70 of May 3, 2018, which introduced detailed provisions regarding consumer access to a payment account with basic features. Effective June 18, 2019, the BOI adopted implementing provisions (amending its provisions for banks and financial intermediaries on transparency and correct relations with customers, originally issued July 29, 2009) to ensure that adequate information is delivered to consumers on payment account fees.

(4) Directive (EU) 2015/2366 on payment services in the internal market (Revised Payment Service Directive—PSD2), complemented by Regulation (EU) 2015/751, was transposed into Legislative Decree No. 218 of December 15, 2017. In particular, the regime (a) regulates the new payment services set out in the Directive; (b) aligns the electronic money distribution regime applicable to banks with those already applicable to electronic money institutions; (c) imposes EU payment institutions operating on an EU member state territory through agents under the right of establishment to appoint a central contact point, under certain conditions, to ensure adequate communication and information reporting; (d) strengthens customer protection in the event of unilateral changes to contract terms; and (e) prohibits additional fees for specified payment methods. Effective March 19, 2019, the BOI adopted implementing provisions (amending its provisions for banks and financial intermediaries on transparency and correct relations with customers, originally issued July 29, 2009) to ensure that customers receive adequate information regarding payment services.

Effective July 24, 2019, the BOI issued a regulation amending supervisory provisions for payment institutions and electronic money institutions and updated Circular No. 285 on supervisory provisions for banks to implement the PDS2 provisions applicable to banks.

(5) The Banking Recovery and Resolution Directive (BRRD) was transposed (Legislative Decree Nos. 180 and 181). In particular, Decree No. 180/2015 (a) requires banks to meet at all times a prudential requirement on their own funds and liabilities to ensure resolution actions’ effectiveness; (b) empowers resolution authorities to assess banks’ resolvability and impose a wide range of measures to remove any impediment to their resolvability (for example, requirement to divest specific assets; restrict or prevent the development of business lines or products; require changes to legal or operational structures); and (c) provides that banks must contribute annually to the National Resolution Fund. The Deposit Guarantee Scheme Directive (Legislative Decree No. 30) requires banks to contribute annually to a deposit guarantee scheme; if a bank fails to do so, the ECB may, as a last resort, withdraw its banking license.

Directive (EU) 2017/2399 of the European Parliament and of the Council of December 12, 2017, amended Directive 2014/59/EU as regards the ranking of unsecured debt instruments in the insolvency hierarchy. The directive promotes the harmonization of the creditors’ hierarchy across national insolvency laws, introducing a new layer of unsecured debt instruments that ranks senior to subordinated debt and junior to senior preferred notes and any claims benefiting from legal or statutory preferences. The directive was transposed into Article 12-bis of the TUB by Law No. 205 of December 27, 2017, which created a new class of nonpreferred senior debt (“strumenti di debito chirografario di secondo livello”) ranked in insolvency proceedings above own funds instruments and subordinated liabilities that do not qualify as own funds instruments, but below other senior liabilities.

(6) Following the transposition of the Mortgage Credit Directive (MCD) relating to residential immovable property (Legislative Decree No. 72), an updated version of the regulation on transparency in banking services and conduct rules between intermediaries and clients entered into force. In particular, such amendments enhanced consumer protection by requiring banks to provide consumers with personalized information about mortgage credit agreements by means of a standardized document (according to the template attached to the MCD) and granting the consumer a seven-day reflection period before the conclusion of the agreement. Also, BOI Circular No. 285/2013 (Supervisory Provisions for Banks) and Circular No. 288/2015 (Supervisory Provisions for Financial Institutions) were updated and provide for the MCD rules on creditworthiness assessment and on the valuation of immovable property for mortgage lending purposes.

(7) Regarding the provision of investment services, the MiFIR/MiFID package on market in financial instruments (Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014 and Directive 2014/65/EU) was transposed into national law by Legislative Decree No. 129 of August 3, 2017, which amended the TUF and entered into force on January 3, 2018. Effective December 5, 2019, a BOI implementing regulation, which introduces organizational rules for intermediaries providing investment services (banks included) was issued. Circular
No. 285 on supervisory provisions for banks was also updated. (8) Directive (EU) 2018/843 on anti–money laundering and counter-terrorism financing was transposed into AML Law No. 231/2007, as amended by Legislative Decree No. 125 of October 4, 2019, and effective November 10, 2019. The implementation process of the previous directive (Directive EU (2015/849)—with regard to sanctioning procedures, customer due diligence, internal controls, and record-keeping—was finalized. The BOI has adopted the following implementing provisions: (a) Regulation of the BOI of March 26, 2019, effective March 26, 2019, on organization, procedures and internal control in the field of anti–money laundering, which introduces organizational rules for obligated entities and (b) BOI regulation of January 15, 2019, effective January 15, 2019, on sanctions and administrative sanctioning procedures; (c) BOI regulation of July 30, 2019, effective July 30, 2019, on customer due diligence; and (d) BOI regulation of March 24, 2020, effective March 24, 2020, on record-keeping.

The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. The rate of the Jamaican dollar is determined in the domestic foreign exchange market, in which the Bank of Jamaica (BOJ) intervenes occasionally with sales and purchases of foreign currency. The BOJ intervenes occasionally via market auctions. Intervention may be done on both sides of the market.

The BOJ announces the auction on the day of the auction by 9:30 a.m. and the results are published on the day by 10:45 a.m. The results are also published in its Annual Report and Quarterly Monetary Policy Report, with a two-month lag. The Bank also publishes, on each intervention date, a list of the foreign exchange intermediaries that participated in the auction, the amounts that each was allotted, and the respective weighted average prices of these allotments. To improve the transparency of the market, the BOJ, since mid-2019, has published all transactions over US$100,000 and the rate at which these transactions were consummated.

During 2019, the depreciation of the local currency was mainly due to periodic episodes of increased end-user demand to fund real sector activities and planned portfolio-related transactions. More specifically, the foreign exchange market was affected by increased demand impulses which emanated from: (1) efforts by some foreign exchange intermediaries to consolidate US dollar (USD) liquidity positions and (2) firms that opted to raise and/or restructure foreign exchange debt to capitalize on the low Jamaican dollar (JMD) interest rate. Further, intermittent demand pressures were, however, tempered by 16 BOJ Foreign Exchange Intervention Trading Tool (B-FXITT) flash sale operations in 2019.

For the period January to June 2020, the exchange market was affected by the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. This was mainly reflected in a sharp reduction in year-on-year earner inflows, in particular tourism. The impact of the pandemic was mitigated by a number of initiatives by the BOJ to provide liquidity, including but not limited to foreign exchange intervention sale auctions, to maintain orderly functioning of financial markets.

The weighted-average selling rate of ADs and cambios is the official rate for customs duty valuation and tax purposes, legal transactions, accounting and foreign exchange transactions with the government. The official rate is calculated daily for use the following business day or until the day after the next calculation and publication of an exchange rate by the BOJ. This information is published via various media and on the BOJ website.

The mandate of monetary policy is the maintenance of price stability or low inflation. The BOJ conducts monetary policy with the aim of... achieving an inflation target of 4%–6% a year. The Bank uses monetary policy tools to meet this target objective. Jamaica’s monetary policy framework is referred to as Inflation Targeting Lite. This framework is viewed as a transitional regime that countries utilize prior to obtaining the legal mandate to operate a full-fledged inflation-targeting regime.

The target horizon is four years.

Operating target (policy rate)

Yes.

The BOJ uses a variety of tools to achieve its inflation target. Since March 1, 2019, the main one is the interest rate on the overnight balances in the current accounts of deposit-taking institutions at the BOJ. Changes in the Bank’s policy rate signal the Bank’s policy stance toward achieving its inflation objective.

Policy rate

Yes.

As announced February 22, 2019, effective March 1, 2019, the overnight deposit facility for deposit-taking institutions was no longer available. Interest is paid on overnight balances in the current accounts of deposit-taking institutions at the BOJ. The applicable interest rate is the BOJ policy rate. At end-August 2020, the policy rate was 0.5%.

Target corridor band

Yes.

The floor of the corridor is set as the Bank’s policy rate while the ceiling, the interest rate on the standing overnight lending facility, is determined as a spread over the policy rate. As of August 31, 2019, the ceiling of the interest rate corridor was 200 basis points (bps) over the overnight deposit rate.

<td>The market is operated by ADs, cambios, exchange bureaus (bureaux de change), and the BOJ. As of December 31, 2019, 11 ADs and 54 cambios were licensed by the BOJ. ADs include all commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies. ADs are authorized to buy, sell, borrow, or lend foreign currency or foreign currency instruments. Cambios are licensed to buy and sell foreign currency. Starting in September 2015, commercial banks have stopped accepting as deposits or purchasing cash from cambios because of Anti-Money-Laundering and Combating the Financing of Terrorism (AML/CFT) concerns. Proceeds from official loans, divestment of government assets, and taxes on the bauxite sector payable in foreign currency are sold or payable directly to the BOJ. Exchange bureau operations are limited to the exchange of foreign currency notes (for Jamaican dollars) held by hotel guests. As of December 31, 2019, there were 131 exchange bureaus, whose purpose was to facilitate foreign exchange transactions in the hotel sector. Exchange bureaus which operate in hotels may purchase only up to US$8,000 or its equivalent in other currencies, in any one transaction. The sale of foreign exchange is limited to reconversion of unused Jamaican dollars acquired from guests. The BOJ operates a foreign exchange facility for public sector entities (PSEs) where foreign exchange is sold to meet their demand, thereby minimizing volatility in the market. The surrender requirement for ADs under the PSE facility is 15% of ADs’ US dollar purchases from commercial clients, and the surrender requirement for cambios is 10% of their daily foreign exchange purchases from commercial clients. The regular surrender arrangement for ADs is 5%. The total surrender obligation for ADs to the BOJ therefore is 20% of daily foreign currency purchases from commercial clients, and 15% for cambios. Under the surrender arrangement, the BOJ purchases US dollars, Canadian dollars, pounds sterling, and euros at the applicable mid-day rates.</td>

Auction

Yes. The BOJ purchases from and sells foreign exchange to ADs and cambios under the specified terms. The BOJ launched the B-FXITT in July 2017. Transactions are done via an auction mechanism that determines the price, while the BOJ only determines the volume. The rules of the B-FXITT stipulate, inter alia, that each bid must be no more than 10% of the auction size and no entity’s total bid may exceed 20% of the auction size. The BOJ will sell or purchase preannounced amounts of foreign exchange to ADs and cambios on a weekly basis. The amount of the intervention sale will be partly determined by BOJ’s assessment of the market’s foreign exchange liquidity needs, which may be zero on occasion. The BOJ also conducts an auction at short notice, in the event of abnormal or disorderly market conditions. The intermediaries may submit bids to buy or sell foreign exchange from or to the BOJ at a rate determined by the participants. While the framework allows for both the sale and purchase of foreign exchange to and from the market, in the initial stages, the BOJ used the framework for the sale of foreign exchange only. The BOJ started using the framework for the purchase of foreign exchange in April 2018. The BOJ has not used the framework for the purchase of foreign exchange since December 2018. Effective May 7, 2020, the BOJ introduced a reserve price in the B-FXITT auction to eliminate extreme pricing/bidding, aiming to maintain a rules-based, competitive, multiple price intervention system while eliminating outliers. The reserve price is calculated as a reference rate ± a predetermined spread where bids/offers above and below the highest and lowest reserve price, respectively, are not accepted.

There are no restrictions on residents’ use of foreign currency to settle their foreign-currency-denominated debts or any other obligation.

The former clearing arrangements under CARICOM are no longer in effect since September 25, 1991. The BOJ no longer intervenes in CARICOM private sector commercial transactions; settlements for such transactions take place in the commercial banking sector in convertible currencies. Exporters and importers from CARICOM members make their own settlement arrangements. The BOJ operates the Systemically Important Payment Systems in Jamaica, including the JamClear systems—Real-Time Gross Settlement (RTGS) and Central Securities Depository. The BOJ provides operational support to the Automated Clearing House (ACH)—another Systemically Important Payment System owned and operated by Automated Payments Limited, a company owned by participating commercial banks. The JamClear RTGS is specifically designed to clear large-value, time-critical payments by financial market participants on accounts held at the BOJ in real time throughout the business day. Payments settled in JamClear RTGS are final and irrevocable. The JamClear systems are fully integrated, facilitating settlement on a delivery versus payment basis of all securities traded in the domestic market. With regard to the ACH, the BOJ acts as (1) participant—negotiating checks drawn on commercial banks, sending and receiving electronic files with check data, and handling direct debits and credits to and from the ACH operator; (2) settlement bank—effecting the settlement of clearing balances on the accounts of commercial banks; (3) overseer—providing oversight to ensure the efficient operations of the clearing system; and (4) supervisor of the manual clearing process—facilitating processing of items that do not qualify for the ACH and for foreign currency checks that qualify for domestic clearing—that is, checks drawn on local commercial banks or their correspondent overseas banks in the four major currencies: US dollars, Canadian dollars, pounds sterling, and euros.

While all residents are free to conduct transactions in foreign currency, only ADs, cambios, and exchange bureaus may undertake the business of trading in foreign exchange. The minister of finance may issue directions to specified classes of persons regarding the acquisition of foreign assets and may exempt persons from one or more of the prohibitions outlined in Section 22A(2) of the BOJ Act. Trading in foreign currency by residents and nonresidents must be authorized in their capacity as ADs, cambios, or exchange bureaus. Persons whose acquisition of foreign assets is restricted may acquire them (including foreign securities) only as directed by the minister of finance or the BOJ acting under delegated authority from the minister of finance. This delegated authority has been exercised for cambios and exchange bureaus.

As with the operation of domestic currency accounts, institutions must fulfill know-your-customer (KYC) requirements before accepting foreign currency deposits (Section V of the BOJ’s AML/CFT/PF Guidance Notes – Know Your Customer (KYC) Know the Transaction Counterparty Policy and Procedures). In addition, minimum operational standards are determined by the institutions’ internal policy.

The BOJ AML/CFT/PF Guidance Notes were substantially updated, effective March 1, 2019, to, inter alia, incorporate discussions on a risk-based approach and risk assessments and regulatory expectations and licensees’ obligations in these regards, and provide guidance on proliferation financing, KYC and CDD requirements, AML/CFT obligations of the Boards of Licensees, PEPs, correspondent banking and virtual assets, and nominated officer regime.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions Yes.
Repatriation requirements No.
Surrender requirements Yes.
Surrender to the central bank Yes.
The surrender requirement for ADs under the PSE facility is 20% to 15% of ADs’ US dollar purchases from commercial clients, and the surrender requirement for cambios is 10% of their daily foreign exchange purchases from commercial clients. The regular surrender
Surrender to authorized dealers No.

Controls on capital and money market instruments Yes. Residents and nonresidents who intend to make a public offering of securities in Jamaica must register with the Financial Services Commission (FSC). Issuers must provide detailed information about themselves to the FSC and to the public. Persons dealing in such instruments should comply with the Securities Act and, where applicable, the Exempt Distribution Guidelines issued by the FSC. If the issue of debt is undertaken in foreign currency, it is subject to the foreign exchange regime under the BOJ Act.

On capital market securities Yes. Residents and nonresidents who intend to make a public offering of securities in Jamaica must register with the FSC. Issuers must provide detailed information about themselves to the FSC and to the public. Persons dealing in such instruments should comply with the Securities Act, unless exempt. Deposit-taking financial institutions are prohibited from investing on behalf of clients. This business is conducted by separate corporate entities.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature Yes. Persons issuing shares to the public must comply with the Securities Act, Guidelines and the Companies Act and, if the shares are to be listed, the Jamaica Stock Exchange rules. Persons dealing in such instruments should comply with the Securities Act, unless exempt. An offer must be made to other shareholders of the same class if any person acquires, at once or over a period of time, shares that (taken together with shares held or acquired by persons acting in concert with that person) convey 50% or more of the voting rights of a company or control of the company. Additional requirements apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. There are no limitations on the acquisition of shares in a company by nonresidents, except shares in locally incorporated commercial banks and licensed deposit-taking institutions, no more than 5% of which may be held by a foreign government or an agency of a foreign government without the written approval of the Supervisory Committee. Pursuant to the Banking Services Act (BSA), the Supervisory Committee replaces the minister of finance as the supervisory decision-making authority.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. There are no limitations on the sale or issue of securities by a nonresident, except for the general rules that apply to all issuers of securities pursuant to the Securities Act and its regulations. The sale or issue of debt and equity is a regulated activity. Issuers may also be required to prepare a prospectus pursuant to the Companies Act and comply with the Jamaica Stock Exchange listing rules (if listing on the exchange).

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions on the purchase of bonds and other debt securities abroad. ADs, insurance companies, credit unions, cambios and exchange bureaus, unit trusts, and pension fund managers may not acquire foreign assets, except in accordance with directives from the MOFP. Commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies are ADs and have the widest remit to undertake dealings in relation to foreign currency and foreign currency instruments. According to Ministerial directives from the MOF, securities dealers, insurance companies, pension funds, unit trusts, and other collective investment plans may acquire securities issued by the Government of Jamaica (GOJ) and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States. Foreign assets may not exceed 5% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds. The cap on foreign assets in collective investment...
The permissible acquisition of foreign assets has been expanded to include investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. Otherwise, the standard minimum requirements apply and may change. Accordingly, the foreign asset acquisition activities of insurance companies and pension funds remain restricted to securities issued by the GOJ and issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and foreign asset acquisition activities may not exceed 5% of the total assets. No directives have been issued to authorize the acquisition of foreign assets by credit unions. Parties not in these categories are not limited in their acquisition of foreign assets but may otherwise be subject to the exemption requirements to proceed with a contemplated transaction once the activity fits the description of an activity under Section 22A (2) and (3) of the BOJ Act.

Sale or issue abroad by residents No.

Bonds or other debt securities Yes. These transactions are subject to the Securities laws.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. In the case of bonds issued via exempt distribution, both residents and nonresidents must meet the criteria to be eligible to purchase the bonds or debt securities. Otherwise, the Securities Act and the attendant regulations do not impose any restrictions on the purchase of local bonds or debt securities by nonresidents. There is no minimum holding period.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. As in the case of residents, nonresidents have to comply with the laws applicable to the sale or issue of bonds or debt securities. For example, the Securities Act requires the issuer to be registered with the FSC and the Disclosure of Interest Regulations mandates the filing of information and the periodicity of such filings, and that the issuer provides an information memorandum. Where the sale or issue of debt instruments involves debt denominated in foreign currency, such issues are subject to the foreign currency dealings framework under the BOJ Act. Payments must occur through ADs; instruments must be issued with or by persons licensed under the Securities Act as a securities dealer and must comprise instruments in respect of which securities dealers have obtained the requisite exemption to deal in.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions on the purchase of bonds and other debt securities abroad. ADs, insurance companies, credit unions, cambios and exchange bureaus, unit trusts, and pension fund managers may not acquire foreign assets, except in accordance with directives from the MOFP. ADs are authorized to act as an authorized dealer in relation to foreign currency and foreign currency instruments. According to Ministerial directives from the MOF, securities dealers, insurance companies, pension funds, unit trusts, and other collective investment schemes may acquire securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States. Foreign assets may not exceed 5% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds. The cap on foreign assets in collective investment schemes is 25%. The permissible acquisition of foreign assets has been expanded to include investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. Otherwise, the standard minimum requirements apply and may change. Accordingly, the foreign asset acquisition activities of insurance companies and pension funds remain restricted to securities issued by the GOJ and issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and foreign securities acquisition activities may not exceed 5% of the total assets. No directives have been issued to authorize the acquisition of foreign assets by credit unions. Parties not in these categories are not limited in their acquisition of foreign assets.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. The Securities Act and its attendant regulations apply to residents.

On money market instruments Yes. These transactions fall under the regulatory oversight of the Securities Regulator (that is, the FSC).

Purchase locally by nonresidents No. There are no regulations which specifically address the purchase of money market instruments by nonresidents.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. Sale or issue of debt and equity locally is governed by the Securities Act. Issuers may also be required to prepare a prospectus pursuant to the Companies Act or comply with the Jamaica Stock Exchange rules (if listing on the exchange). If the issue of debt is to be conducted in foreign currency, it is subject to the foreign exchange regime as stipulated in Part IVA of the BOJ Act Sections 22A, 22B, and 22C of the BOJ Act.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions in the purchase of money market instruments abroad. ADs, insurance companies, credit unions, cambios and exchange bureaus, unit trusts, and pension fund managers may not acquire foreign assets, except in accordance with Ministerial directives from the MOF. ADs are authorized to act as an authorized dealer in relation to foreign currency and foreign currency instruments. According to Ministerial directives from the MOF, securities dealers, insurance companies, pension funds, unit trusts, and other collective investment plans may acquire securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States. Foreign assets may not exceed 5% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds, while a limit of 25% applies to collective investment plans. The permissible acquisition of foreign assets has been expanded to include investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. Otherwise, the standard minimum requirements apply and may change. Accordingly, the foreign asset acquisition activities of insurance companies and pension funds remain restricted to securities issued by the GOJ and issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and foreign asset acquisition activities may not exceed 5% of the total assets. No directives have been issued to authorize the acquisition of foreign assets by credit unions. Parties not in these categories are not limited in their acquisition of foreign assets.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. The Securities Act and its attendant regulations apply. The residents must comply with Sections 7 and 26, unless except exempt under subsection 7(2)(a).

On collective investment securities Yes. Unit trusts, mutual funds, and other forms of collective investment schemes (CISs) are governed by regulations under the Securities Act. The Securities Act has established a comprehensive legal framework for the regulation of CISs facilitating various forms of CISs by removing obstacles that impede the growth and diversity of the CIS industry, while granting greater protection for users of these products. The investments are managed by an investment company, whereas trust assets are held by a trustee independent of the management company. The law seeks to ensure full disclosure to investors and proper licensing of sellers. The law requires (1) registration of CIS with the FSC; (2) fit and proper requirements of trustees and managers; and (3) proper record keeping and accounting. The law also prohibits (1) failure to file returns with the FSC; (2) false statements or falsification or destruction of documents required under the law; (3) fraudulent or misleading inducements to acquire units; (4) distribution of circulars pertaining to unregistered unit trusts; and (5) failure to keep records required by law. Authorization from the minister of finance in relation to the foreign currency component of collective investment securities is required. Banks and other licensed deposit-taking institutions cannot directly undertake investment activities on behalf of third parties (or customers), but such activities may be accommodated through separate legal entities (that is, subsidiaries) with appropriate authorization. ADs have the broadest authorization to acquire foreign assets on their own behalf subject their respective prudential requirements.

Purchase locally by nonresidents No. There are no limitations.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. Part III of the CIS Regulations states the requirements for overseas CIS to be registered to issue its securities in Jamaica. An example of the requirements is the submission of information and documents (including but not limited to financial statements, organizational documents, and a profile of directors and officers) to satisfy the FSC, including: (1) the overseas CIS which is from a jurisdiction where the laws and regulatory oversight for CIS are sufficient to ensure investor protection and market integrity; and (2) the CIS which is in good standing in the foreign jurisdiction. The FSC has the power to request any other information to assess the application of the overseas CIS.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions in the purchase of collective investment securities abroad. ADs, insurance companies, credit unions, cambios and exchange bureaus, collective investment schemes, and pension fund managers may not acquire foreign assets, except in accordance with Ministerial directives from the MOF. ADs are authorized to act as an authorized dealer in relation to foreign currency and foreign currency instruments. According to Ministerial directives from the MOF, securities dealers, insurance companies, pension funds, unit trusts, and other collective investment plans may acquire securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States. Foreign assets may not exceed 5% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds, while a limit of 25% applies to collective investment plans. The permissible acquisition of foreign assets has been expanded to include investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. Otherwise, the standard minimum requirements apply and may change. Accordingly, the foreign asset acquisition activities of insurance companies and pension funds remain restricted to securities issued by the GOJ and issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and foreign asset acquisition activities may not exceed 5% of the total assets. No directives have been issued to authorize the acquisition of foreign assets by credit unions. Parties not in these categories are not limited in their acquisition of foreign assets but are subject to the restriction against dealings in foreign currency or foreign currency instruments as a business in Jamaica.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. The Securities Act and its attendant regulations apply to residents.
Controls on derivatives and other Yes. These are governed by securities under the Securities Act. The instruments definition does not contemplate any financial commodity, contract, or instrument that may be gazetted from time to time. There is none gazetted at this time.

Purchase locally by nonresidents No. There are no limitations.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. These transactions are subject to the Securities Act and the attendant requirements apply to nonresidents.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions in the purchase of derivative instruments abroad. Foreign asset acquisition activities of insurance companies and pension funds are restricted to securities issued by the GOJ and issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and foreign asset acquisition activities may not exceed 5% of the total assets. The cap on foreign assets in collective investment scheme investments is 25%.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. The Securities Act and its attendant regulations apply to residents.

Controls on credit operations Yes. The Money Lending framework imposes certain requirements on non-financial institutions wishing to undertake lending activities in Jamaican dollars. The law sets forth, among other things, the prescribed maximum rate of interest (that is, rate beyond which interest cannot be charged and is periodically prescribed by the Ministerial order), the form of the lending agreement, and how moneylenders may advertise. Commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies, nonbank financial institutions governed by the Insurance Act, and Securities Act, Industrial and Provident Societies and Friendly Societies; and statutory bodies incorporated for the purposes of lending money are exempt from the requirements of this law. The business of money lending in foreign currency is subject to the provisions of the BOJ Act. Licensed deposit takers under the BSA (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a deposit-taking institution’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base (10% for a building society). (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit.

Commercial credits Yes. The Money Lending Act governs transactions involving persons who do not undertake the business of extending credit.

By residents to nonresidents Yes. In relation to private persons, such transactions are subject to the laws of the overseas jurisdiction. Licensed deposit takers (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a deposit-taking institution’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base (10% for a building society). (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit.

To residents from nonresidents Yes. While all residents are free to conduct transactions in foreign currency, only ADs may undertake the business of lending in foreign currency. Otherwise persons (such as nonresidents) wishing to undertake the business of lending in Jamaica must obtain the requisite exemption by Ministerial order to proceed.

Financial credits

Yes.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. Lending activities in Jamaica involving foreign currency are subject to the foreign currency dealings provisions of the BOJ Act. Licensed deposit takers under the BSA (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a deposit-taking institution’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base. (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit.

To residents from nonresidents

Yes. The provisions of the Money Lending Act and the BOJ Act apply, if the financing is offered and/or executed in Jamaica. Money lending in foreign currency to persons resident in Jamaica is subject to the provisions of the BOJ Act, and this extends to cases in which an overseas-based person conducts financing activities in foreign currency, or through foreign currency instruments, with a Jamaica-based person, regardless of whether negotiations take place and related contracts are executed outside Jamaica.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

Yes.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes. In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions. Licensed deposit takers under the BSA (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a deposit-taking institution’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base. (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank’s capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the deposit-taking institution’s capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit.

To residents from nonresidents

Yes. The provisions of the Money Lending Act and possibly the BOJ Act apply, if the financing is offered and/or executed in Jamaica. The business of money lending in foreign currency to persons resident in Jamaica is subject to the provisions of the BOJ Act, and this extends to cases in which an overseas-based person conducts financing activities in foreign currency or through foreign currency instruments with a Jamaica-based person, regardless of whether negotiations take place and related contracts are executed outside Jamaica.

Controls on direct investment

Yes.

Outward direct investment

Yes. The Exchange Control (Removal of Restrictions) Order of 1991 eliminated controls on outward direct investment. There are limits on investments by deposit-taking institutions (DTI) that apply to equity investments. Aggregate shareholdings by a DTI may not exceed 50% of the DTI’s capital base, and in any one company or enterprise may

Inward direct investment

Yes. There are no limitations on the acquisition of shares in a company by nonresidents, except shares in locally incorporated licensed deposit-taking institutions under the BSA, no more than 5% of which may be held by a foreign government or an agency of a foreign government without the written approval of the Supervisory Committee. The Supervisory Committee is the supervisory decision-making authority.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

No. To the extent that the liquidation of direct investment in locally incorporated licensed deposit-taking institutions under the BSA amounts to divestment/transfers or disposal of shares, these are subject to the approval of the Supervisory Committee where the disposal involves 20% or more of the voting shares of the DTI. If the liquidation equates to a voluntary liquidation, this requires the approval of the supervisor of banks. To the extent that the liquidation of direct investment in a corporate securities dealer amounts to a divestment/transfer or a disposal of shares that amounts to a change in ownership, the Securities Act mandates that corporate securities dealers and advisers be owned, controlled, or supervised by persons who are citizens of and habitually resident in Jamaica or a CARICOM member.

Controls on real estate transactions

No. No controls are in place in relation to transactions between private persons. However, persons in the real estate business (that is, valuators, dealers, developers) are subject to the Real Estate Dealers and Developers Act and oversight by the Real Estate Board. Under the BOJ Act, foreign assets include real estate situated outside of Jamaica and the foreign asset acquisition restriction that applies to certain local financial firms includes real estate located outside of Jamaica.

Purchase abroad by residents

No. No restrictions are in place in relation to transactions between private persons. However, persons listed in Section 22B(1) of the BOJ Act are subject to restrictions, because this activity amounts to the acquisition of a foreign asset. Although licensed deposit takers under the BSA, who are also ADs, have the broadest permit to acquire foreign assets, they are also subject to prudent and statutory limits regarding the nature and quality of investments and fixed asset holdings, which may not exceed an amount equivalent to their capital base without the approval of the supervisor.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No.

Sale locally by nonresidents

No. No restrictions are in place in relation to transactions between private persons. However, transactions involving commercial enterprises in the real estate business are subject to the requirements of the Real Estate Dealers and Developers Act and the Real Estate Board.

Controls on personal capital transactions

Yes. The Money Lending Act is applicable to transactions undertaken by persons who are not involved in the business of extending credit. Otherwise, if such transactions involve commercial enterprises, the BOJ Act may apply. In addition, the Companies Act specifically prohibits private companies from soliciting capital from the public. Any activities indicative of deposit-taking or securities business are expressly prohibited under the BSA and the Securities Act.

Loans

Yes. The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply. In addition, the provisions of the Money Lending Act and possibly the BOJ Act apply, if the financing is offered and/or executed in Jamaica.

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies

Yes. Depending on the circumstances, these matters may be subject to the existing succession laws (that is, the Probate of Deeds Act, the <td>Deposit-taking financial institutions may not invest on behalf of clients. This business is conducted by separate corporate entities. The BOJ operates a foreign exchange facility for PSEs, which consolidates the foreign exchange demand of PSEs where foreign exchange is sold to meet their demand, thereby minimizing volatility in the market. The surrender requirement for ADs under the PSE facility is 15% of ADs’ US dollar purchases from commercial clients, and the surrender requirement for cambios is 10% of their daily foreign exchange purchases from commercial clients. The regular surrender arrangement for ADs remains at 5%. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit. In relation to the deposit-taking institutions, the BSA 2014 repealed Banking Act (BA) and Financial Institutions Act (FIA), which governed these entities and substantially amended the Building Societies Act. The BSA came into force September 30, 2015, by Appointed Day Notice signed by the minister of finance. However, notwithstanding the repeal of the BA and FIA and amendment of the Building Societies Act, regulations (including notices and notifications) under the repealed enactments remain in effect with such changes as may be necessary, as if made under the BSA (Section 139). Securities dealers are subject to margin and capital requirements and may not engage in credit operations that would result in a breach of margin and/or capital requirements.

Lending locally in foreign exchange Yes. Currently, lending in foreign currency may be carried out only by ADs. Other commercial lenders may apply for exemptions issued by the MOF.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange Yes. Any person may purchase instruments denominated in foreign currency. ADs have the broadest permit to carry out transactions with securities issued in foreign currency. Other specific categories of companies are allowed to acquire foreign securities only in accordance with the directives issued by the MOF. By Ministerial order of exemption from the foreign currency dealings restrictions under the BOJ Act, securities dealers may currently invest in instruments denominated in foreign exchange issued by the GOJ or issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, or the United States. The permissible acquisition of foreign assets includes investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. However, the foreign asset acquisition activities of insurance companies and pension funds remain restricted to securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States. The MOF may exempt other parties from such prohibitions. Deposit takers must hold capital on a risk-weighted basis that depends on the classes of assets held. Limits are communicated by the BOJ on a case-by-case basis and on request.

Reserve requirements Yes. The minimum cash reserve requirements for domestic-currency-denominated liabilities were reduced to 9% from 12% effective March 1, 2019, to 7% effective June 3, 2019, and then to 5% effective May 15, 2020. The requirement on foreign currency liabilities was reduced to 13% from 15% effective May 15, 2020. The cash reserve and liquid assets requirements are differentially... applied to building societies not meeting a prescribed threshold of qualifying assets (residential mortgage lending) in relation to savings funds.

For building societies, domestic and foreign currency reserve requirements are based on building societies meeting the 40% threshold for domestic-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to domestic currency deposits and withdrawable shares and for foreign-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to foreign currency deposits and withdrawable shares. Societies that meet the qualifying assets threshold have lower requirements of 1% and 5% for the cash reserve and liquid assets ratios (LARs), respectively. Higher requirements apply to societies that fail to meet the prescribed thresholds. The BSA came into effect September 30, 2015, by Appointed Day Notice signed by the minister of finance. The BSA repealed and replaced the BA and FIA and substantially amended the Building Societies Act. However, notwithstanding the repeal of the BA and FIA and amendment of the Building Societies Act, regulations (including notices and notifications) under the repealed enactments remain in effect with such changes as may be necessary, as if made under the BSA (Section 139), unless expressly revoked.

Liquid asset requirements

Yes.

The LAR for domestic currency liabilities of commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies was reduced from 26% to 23% effective March 1, 2019, to 21% effective June 3, 2019, and then to 19% effective May 15, 2020. The LAR for foreign currency liabilities of commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies, which was increased to 29% from 26% in May 2018, was then reduced to 27% effective May 15, 2020. The cash reserve and liquid assets requirements are differentially applied to building societies not meeting a prescribed threshold of qualifying assets (residential mortgage lending) in relation to savings funds. For building societies, domestic and foreign currency reserve requirements are based on building societies meeting the 40% threshold for domestic-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to domestic currency deposits and withdrawable shares and for foreign-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to foreign currency deposits and withdrawable shares. Societies that meet the qualifying assets threshold have lower requirements of 1% and 5% for the cash reserve and LARs, respectively. Higher requirements apply to societies that fail to meet the prescribed thresholds. Debt securities and instruments issued by the GOJ, whether denominated in Jamaican dollars or in foreign currency and regardless of original maturity, are designated liquid assets within nine months of maturity. The BSA came into force September 30, 2015, by Appointed Day Notice signed by the minister of finance. The BSA repealed and replaced the BA and FIA and substantially amended the Building Societies Act. However, notwithstanding the repeal of the BA and FIA and amendment of the Building Societies Act, regulations (including notices and notifications) under the repealed enactments remain in effect with such changes as may be necessary, as if made under the BSA (Section 139) unless expressly revoked.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes. Insurance companies may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States. Foreign assets may not exceed 5% of the total assets of the insurance company. Pursuant to Regulation No. 59 of the Insurance Regulations, an insurer that is authorized to transact business on a branch basis in a foreign country may hold foreign securities of that country not exceeding its deposit and reserve obligations incurred in that country.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes. Insurance companies may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States. Foreign assets may not exceed 5% of the total assets of the insurance company. Matching assets must be held in relation to liabilities.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes. The Insurance Regulations recognize the credit risk implications of an overexposure to one type of investment. For this reason, the regulations specify certain limits for various types of investments. These limits are generally specified as a percentage of the total assets of the insurance company and not the total amount of liabilities. For example, Insurance Regulation 42 restricts any combination of investment in one counterparty to 5% of the insurer’s assets.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Yes. Insurance companies must ensure that matching assets are held against liabilities incurred. Insurance companies are expected to apply an asset liability management program that is appropriate to the nature, scale, and complexity of the risk and its business. The insurance act was amended to expand the powers of the FSC to prescribe regulations for insurers to establish risk management procedures based on international standards, allowing the Commission to introduce new regulations which will require insurers to carry out annual stress testing and implement asset liability management policies and procedures to assess and mitigate the risk to which these entities are exposed in their daily business activities.

Pension funds

Yes. The Pensions (Superannuation Funds and Retirement Schemes) Act and regulations and directions from the BOJ in relation to the acquisition of foreign assets apply. The Pensions (Superannuation Funds and Retirement Schemes) (Investment) regulations governed the pension plans’ investment. Investment in ordinary shares must be from a recognized stock exchange of a recognized jurisdiction. Recognized jurisdiction is defined as Canada, United Kingdom, or United States. Limits are communicated by the BOJ on a case-by-case basis or on request.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes. For pension funds that acquire foreign assets as part of their business activities, purchases must be in accordance with directions issued by the MOF. Accordingly, pension funds may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, or the United States, and their foreign assets may not exceed 5% of their total assets. These requirements are the standard minimum requirements and may change.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes. For pension funds that acquire foreign assets as part of their business activities, purchases must be in accordance with directives issued by the MOF and the BOJ Act Section 22B(1). Pension funds may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and their foreign assets may not generally exceed 5% of their total assets. These requirements are the standard minimum requirements and may change.
| Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally | Yes. | No specific regulation requires a minimum on local portfolio holdings. However, directives include maximums for institutions’ foreign investment (that is, no more than 5% of total assets in foreign assets). |
| Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition | No. | While pension legislation does not explicitly require currency matching, it is a criterion considered in evaluating the maturity profile of the assets and liabilities of a pension plan. |
| Investment firms and collective investment funds | Yes. | Securities dealers (investment firms) must be incorporated in Jamaica or CARICOM member countries. For CIS, the CIS Regulations – Parts II and III provide for the registration for both local and overseas CIS, respectively. Part III of the CIS Regulations states the requirements for overseas CIS to be registered to issue its securities in Jamaica. An example of the requirements is the submission of information and documents (including but is not limited to financial statements, organizational documents, and a profile of directors and officers) to satisfy the FSC, including: (1) the overseas CIS which is from a jurisdiction where the laws and regulatory oversight for CIS are sufficient to ensure investor protection and market integrity; and (2) the CIS which is in good standing in the foreign jurisdiction. |
| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | Yes. | CIS Regulation 33 mandates investment restrictions for CIS. For example, (1) no more than 15% of the scheme’s net assets may be invested in illiquid assets and (2) no more than 10% of the scheme’s net assets may consist of securities from one issuer, except in the case of securities that are (1) issued or guaranteed by the GOJ and the BOJ and issued by any government where those securities have received an investment grade credit rating. For the SDs, there are concentration limits and large exposure limits. For the purchase of foreign securities, the cap on foreign assets for SDs and collective investment schemes’ investments is 25%. The permissible acquisition of foreign assets also includes investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside of Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. |
| Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad | Yes. | Foreign securities investments are subject to Ministerial order under the BOJ Act, which limits such activities to securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, or the United States. In relation to investments in foreign currency instruments for own accounts, securities dealers, unit trusts, and other collective investment schemes may only acquire (1) exempt instruments (securities issued or guaranteed by the GOJ or the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, or the United States); (2) investment grade sovereign foreign currency instruments (other than the sovereigns included in the category of exempt instruments); (3) investment grade corporate instruments issued by corporate entities outside Jamaica; and (4) shares of corporate entities incorporated outside of Jamaica whose debt is rated investment grade. With the exception of dealer investments in exempt instruments, foreign asset investments may not exceed a specified percentage of a securities dealer’s or collective investment fund’s total assets. The cap on foreign assets in collective investment scheme investments is 25%. |
| Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally | Yes. | No regulation specifies a minimum on local portfolio holdings. This is a requirement under the BOJ Act directives to insurance companies, pension funds, and collective investment schemes, which are among those specified in Section 22B of the BOJ Act. CIS Regulation 33 mandates investment restrictions for CIS. For example, (1) no more than 15% of the scheme’s net assets may be invested in illiquid assets and (2) no more than 10% of the scheme’s net assets may consist of securities from one issuer, except in the... | case of securities that are (1) issued or guaranteed by the GOJ and the BOJ and (2) issued by the BOJ and any government where those securities have received an investment grade credit rating. For the SDs, there are concentration limits and large exposure limits. Although securities legislation does not explicitly state that a securities dealer must match the currency composition of assets against liabilities, in calculating the capital adequacy ratio, a dealer must measure its exposure in each foreign currency position by deducting all liability amounts from all asset amounts in each currency. The overall net position is added to the total of the dealer’s risk-weighted assets in determining the capital adequacy ratio. Implicitly, it is in a dealer’s best interest to match the foreign currency asset and liability positions or to hold additional capital against this specific exposure.

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of the yen is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. However, the authorities intervene when necessary to counter disorderly conditions in the market. The principal intervention currency is the US dollar. Interventions fall within the mandate of the MOF, which publishes daily purchases and sales amounts as well as intervention currencies on its website. The BOJ, acting as agent of the Minister of Finance, intervenes in the market through financial institutions and/or brokers. The last time the MOF intervened in the foreign exchange market was from October 31 through November 4, 2011 (¥9,091.6 billion), to address excess volatility and disorderly exchange rate movement. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as free floating. The MOF publishes monthly data on foreign exchange interventions in its monthly press release.

In 2013, the BOJ set the “price stability target” at 2% in terms of the year-on-year rate of change in the consumer price index (CPI), and has made a commitment to achieving this target at the earliest possible time.

In January 2013, the BOJ decided to set the “price stability target” under the framework for the conduct of monetary policy by majority vote. The “price stability target” is also stated in the joint statement of the government and the BOJ on Overcoming Deflation and Achieving Sustainable Economic Growth, released at the same time. The “price stability target” is set by the Board of the BOJ.

The BOJ set the target at 2% in terms of the year-on-year rate of change in the CPI. In 2016, the BOJ introduced an inflation-overshooting commitment, under which it continues expanding the monetary base until the year-on-year rate of increase in the observed CPI (all items less fresh food) exceeds 2% and stays above the target in a stable manner.

CPI headline inflation, year-on-year rate of change, is used for the target measure.

The headline inflation is CPI based.

The BOJ aims to achieve the price stability target of 2% at the earliest possible time (Joint statement of the Government and the
A negative interest rate of minus 0.1% to the Policy-Rate Balances in current accounts held by financial institutions at the BOJ is the short-term policy interest rate. The BOJ also targets the 10-year Japanese Government Bond (JGB) yield at around 0%. In 2018, with a view to persistently continuing with powerful monetary easing, the BOJ decided to strengthen its commitment to achieving the price stability target by introducing forward guidance for policy rates. Effective April 27, 2020, the BOJ lifted the quantitative target for the annual JGB purchases of ¥80 trillion and will purchase a necessary amount of JGBs without setting an upper limit on its guidance on JGB purchases to maintain 10-year JGB yields at around 0%.

The BOJ prepares and submits the Semiannual Report on Currency and Monetary Control to the Diet, twice a year.

The BOJ releases the Outlook for Economic Activity and Prices (Outlook Report) quarterly (usually January, April, July, and October). The Outlook Report presents the BOJ’s outlook for developments in economic activity and prices, assesses upside and downside risks, and outlines its views on the future course of monetary policy. The Monetary Policy Meetings are held eight times a year, and the Statement on Monetary Policy is released immediately after the meeting. The Summary of Opinions is published about a week after the meeting.

Votes are published in the Statement on Monetary Policy.

The minutes of each Monetary Policy Meeting are published after the following meeting. The transcript of each Monetary Policy Meeting is published ten years after the Monetary Policy Meeting (available only in Japanese).

Each Board member’s forecasts for the economy and prices are released in the Outlook Report quarterly.

Dealers are allowed to freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Licenses are not required from any authority, including the BOJ, for financial institutions to deal in foreign exchange with the public. Other than interbank market participants, those conducting foreign exchange businesses who deal in foreign exchange transactions of more than ¥1 million a month must submit the report on transacted information to the authority; about 400 financial institutions reported to the MOF in 2016.
Participation in the foreign exchange market in Japan does not require a license, and there are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. Financial institutions also transact directly with each other. Brokers play a major role in the market. The participants in the interbank foreign exchange market must adhere to the Code of Conduct published by the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market Committee. There are no officially set rates in the forward exchange market, and forward exchange transactions are based on free-market rates. The BOJ does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

Imports of certain illicit goods, including drugs, guns, and counterfeit goods, are prohibited under the Customs Law.

The Japanese tariff system is stipulated by the Customs Law, Customs Tariff Law, and Temporary Tariff Measures Law. The harmonized classification schedule annexed in the Customs Tariff Law sets out both the classification and the corresponding customs duty rate (called the general rate) of particular products. The rate actually applied, however, is not necessarily the general rate. The Temporary Tariff Measures Law sets out the temporary rate for certain products, which in these cases prevails over the general rate. In addition, when the customs duty rate in the WTO Concession Schedule (so-called WTO rate) is lower than the general rate (or the temporary rate, if applicable), the WTO rate or Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA) rate is applied. For designated developing countries and areas, the Temporary Tariff Measures Law also provides a preferential rate, which is applicable to certain products and lower than the above rates. The EPA rate is applicable to the originating goods of the party.

Controls apply to the extent that the purchase of shares is affected by laws on inward direct investment. Effective May 8, 2020, the amended Foreign Exchange and Foreign Trade Act (FEFTA) passed in November 2019 and its subsequent regulations introduced the exemption scheme for prior notification for stock purchases and lowered the threshold of inward direct investment in designated industries that require prior notification to 1% from 10%. The prior notification of stock purchases is exempted for investors that comply with the following conditions: (1) Investors or their closely-related persons do not become board members of the investee company (2) Investors do not propose to the general shareholders’ meeting transfer or disposition of investee company’s business activities in the designated business sectors; (3) Investors do not access non-public information about the investee company’s technology in relation with business activities in the designated business sectors.

Outward direct investment by residents in the following industries requires prior notification: (1) fisheries and (2) manufacture of (a) leather or leather products, (b) weapons, (c) equipment related to weapons manufacturing, and (d) narcotics. Controls apply to investment in a company engaged in fishing regulated by international treaties to which Japan is a party or fishing operations under the Japanese Fisheries Act.

Inward direct investment by foreign investors in the following industries requires prior notification: (1) aircraft, armaments, nuclear power, space technology, and explosives production, cyber security (effective August 1, 2019), for national security; (2) electricity, gas, heat supply, telecommunications, broadcasting, water, railroad, and passenger transport, for public order; (3) biological and security industries, for public safety; (4) oil, leather and leather products, agriculture, forestry and fisheries, air transport, and maritime industries, to ensure smooth operation of the economy; and (5) investment by investors from countries with which Japan does not have a treaty or other international agreement on inward direct investment, for reciprocity reasons. Effective May 8, 2020, the amended Foreign Exchange and Foreign Trade Act (FEFTA) passed in November 2019 and its subsequent regulations introduced the exemption scheme for prior notification for stock purchases and lowered the threshold of inward direct investment in designated industries that require prior notification to 1% from 10%.

Under the Law Concerning Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corporation, etc., direct and indirect foreign capital participation in the Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corporation must be less than one-third. Under the Radio Law and Broadcast Law, foreigners and foreign-controlled firms may not hold licenses to operate broadcasting stations nor be approved as broadcasters. Firms are considered foreign controlled if any of their executive directors are foreigners or if foreigners hold at least one-fifth (for territorial broadcasting stations, including indirect investment) or one-third (for facility-supplying broadcasters) of voting rights. Under the Civil Aeronautics Law, only firms with less than one-third of voting rights held by foreigners and in which none of the representatives and less than one-third of the board of directors are foreigners may hold a license to operate an air transport business.

Policy rate
The rates on foreign currencies (especially the rates for the US dollar) are monitored by the CBJ on a daily basis, to ensure that they are within the range of buying and selling boundaries announced by the CBJ.

Foreign exchange bureaus (including those jointly owned by Jordanians and foreigners) may operate in Jordan and must be licensed by the CBJ. There are 22 foreign exchange bureaus. Pursuant to Article 16 of Money Exchange Business Law No. 44 of 2015, they may practice buying, selling, and exchanging foreign currency notes and coins, and any of the following activities according to the license granted by the Board: (1) buying and selling checks denominated in foreign currency; (2) buying and selling precious metals; (3) importing and exporting foreign banknotes, coins, and precious metals; (4) sending and receiving of financial transfers; and (5) carrying out any other activities or services approved by the Board.

Foreign exchange bureaus cannot make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB.

The CBJ buys and sells foreign exchange at the official rate. The difference between the CBJ’s buying and selling rates is JD 0.002.

Money changers operate according to supply and demand for foreign currency in the local market, and the buying and selling prices of foreign currency are quoted by the international market; therefore, money changers do not operate either as brokers or as market makers.

Effective May 16, 2019, nonresident investments are limited to less than 50% of the subscribed shares of the capital of a number of economic activities, most notably, retail and wholesale trade, construction services and related services, restaurants and cafes, commercial and insurance brokerage, and passengers transport services.

Other economic activities are open to non-Jordanians with no restrictions on the percentage of ownership. In addition, any non-Jordanian investor is allowed to own a business with no restrictions on the percentage of ownership in any of the following cases: (1) the investor intends to own an existing Jordanian company, (2) the project is located outside the capital, or (3) the project is of special economic importance according to specific conditions. Previously, nonresident investments were limited to 49% ownership or 50% subscription in shares in the following major sectors: commerce and trade services, contracting, and transportation. Nonresidents could not invest in the following sectors: investigation and security firms, quarries for natural sand and rocks, and bakeries of all types.

Floating

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. Throughout 2019 and the first half of 2020, the exchange rate of the tenge has been influenced by internal and external factors. External factors include the price of oil and the dynamics of trading partners’ currencies. Internal factors include the inflation rate, the status of the balance of payments, interest rates, performance of tax payments by large exporters, the rate of spending of budget funds, dollarization, as well as internal seasonal factors. In 2019 political events – the resignation of the First President and presidential elections – were also an internal factor.

In 2019 external factors moved in different directions during the year, there was volatility in oil prices because of trade disputes between the United States and China and the risk of a slowdown in global economic growth. After strengthening in the first two months of 2019, starting in late February 2019, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend against the US dollar. The drop in oil prices, in addition to political events in Kazakhstan, had the greatest impact on the weakening of the tenge during this period. In the third quarter of 2019, against the backdrop of a continuing decline in oil prices because of unsuccessful talks between the United States and China and the announcement of new reciprocal duties, the exchange rate of the domestic currency continued its moderate weakening. In the fourth quarter, the weakening trend in the tenge was interrupted against a backdrop of favorable external factors – progress that was made in trade talks between the United States and China, which had a positive impact on oil quotations, and also higher demand by investors for risk assets. Furthermore, in November–December large sales by exporters of foreign exchange earnings to pay tax liabilities had an impact on the strengthening of the domestic currency.

From 2019 through June 30, 2020, the exchange rate of the tenge fluctuated widely between 373.56 and 448.52 tenge to the US dollar.

The National Bank of Kazakhstan (NBK) publishes monthly data on foreign exchange interventions on a regular basis, with time series available from January 1996. Data are usually published within two weeks from the end of the reporting period. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating.

Free floating

Official exchange rate

Yes.

The National Bank sets the official exchange rate of the domestic currency with respect to foreign currencies on a daily basis on business days on which the stock exchange holds foreign currency trading.

The weighted average market exchange rate of the domestic currency against the US dollar as of 3:30 p.m. Nur-Sultan time, based on the results of two stock exchange sessions – the morning (main) session and the afternoon (additional) session – is set as the official exchange rate of the domestic currency against the US dollar for the business day following the trading day.

For other foreign currencies, the market exchange rate of the domestic currency with respect to a foreign currency is calculated by the National Bank using the cross-rate against the US dollar, arrived at in accordance with the demand quotes received through news agency channels as of 4:00 p.m. Nur-Sultan time on a stock exchange trading day and it is set as the official exchange rate for the next business day.
On non-business days, the exchange rates set by the National Bank on the business day preceding the non-business day are in effect. The NBK publishes daily exchange rates of certain currencies against the tenge for accounting and computation of customs and other mandatory payments to the budget.

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework

Yes. Since August 20, 2015, the monetary policy is based on an inflation-targeting framework. The annual inflation rate at the end of the year is compared to the target inflation range. There are no provisions addressing the consequences of a failure to meet the inflation target. The consequences if inflation misses its target have not been specified.

Target setting body

Yes.

Government

Yes.

Central Bank

Yes.

Monetary Policy Committee

Yes. The inflation target is set by the NBK Executive Board. The Executive Board consists of five representatives of the National Bank, as well as one representative each from the Presidential Administration of the Republic of Kazakhstan, the Ministry of National Economy, and the MOF. The NBK Executive Board approves the government’s monetary policy, within the framework of which targets are set.

Decisions at meetings of the Executive Board are adopted by a majority vote of the Executive Board members who are present. In the event of a tie, the Chairman of the National Bank casts the deciding vote.

Meetings of the Executive Board are legally valid if the number of members present is sufficient for a quorum, which is defined as the attendance of at least two-thirds of the total number of Executive Board members, which must include the Chairman of the National Bank or a person serving in his place. There are no legal provisions regarding an adjustment of the target; however, the NBK adheres to the position that a target that has already been set is not subject to change.

currency in the Republic of Kazakhstan exclusively with authorized banks that have the right to organize exchange operations with foreign currency, through foreign exchange bureaus of such authorized banks, as well as foreign exchange bureaus of authorized institutions following the procedure established by the NBK. Licenses to conduct foreign exchange transactions (as part of a general banking license) are issued to authorized banks by the NBK. Banks authorized to conduct transactions in foreign currency in accordance with their licenses or under the law may freely purchase and sell foreign currency both in the Republic of Kazakhstan and abroad. As of June 1, 2019, there were 28 institutions that held licenses to perform banking and other operations.

The NBK also issues licenses for foreign exchange transactions to nonbank exchange bureaus, which have the right to perform exclusively activities related to the organization of foreign exchange transactions with the public involving the exchange of foreign currency in cash. Nonbank exchange bureaus do not have the right to conduct foreign exchange operations directly with the NBK. Nonbank exchange bureaus may not perform payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their customers. Nonbank exchange bureaus have the right to open accounts abroad. Nonbank exchange bureaus may purchase foreign currency from and sell foreign currency to authorized banks and the public. As of January 1, 2020, there were 2,637 bank and nonbank foreign exchange bureaus performing operations with foreign exchange cash.

Banks, authorized institutions, and nonbank foreign exchange bureaus set their exchange rates independently.

Operative January 1, 2019, pursuant to NBK Resolution No. 296 of November 29, 2018, the limits on the margin between the buying and selling rates of cash in US dollars and euros for tenge cash transactions conducted with the public through exchange bureaus were eliminated. (Previously, the NBK placed a limit of 6 tenge and 7 tenge for the US dollar and the euro, respectively.) However, effective March 20, 2020, by the Resolution No.33 of March 19, 2020, the NBK re-established the limits on the margin between the buying and selling rates on cash foreign exchange transactions against tenge conducted by individuals through exchange offices of authorized banks and authorized nonbanking organizations as follows: 6 tenge for the US dollars and 7 tenge for the euro. The resolution is adopted in the context of COVID-19. On July 14, 2020, considering the lack of a definite consensus with regard to the outlook for an end to the negative impact of external economic factors related to the COVID-19 pandemic on the country’s economy and the domestic foreign exchange market, by way of National Bank of the Republic of Kazakhstan Executive Board Resolution No. 86 of July 14, 2020, on the Establishment of Limits on the Margin between Buying and Selling Rates for Foreign Exchange Transactions against the Tenge Performed through Exchange Offices, the decision was made to extend the margin limits of 6 tenge for the US dollar and 7 tenge for the euro until January 1, 2021.

There are no provisions with regard to the charging of a commission for the sale and purchase of foreign exchange cash through exchange bureaus.

Interbank market

Yes.

Banks conduct transactions in the KASE and in the OTC interbank market at freely negotiated rates. Daily online trading is carried out using an electronic trading system, through which participants submit their bids. The NBK monitors the trading sessions and if necessary participates in trading. The NBK participates in trading sessions via a remote terminal or sends a trader to the trading floor if the remote connection is not available. Internal regulations of the KASE govern trade execution and settlement. Banks set their own exchange rates. There are no limits on the commissions charged by market participants. As of July 1, 2019, there were 28 banks licensed to perform banking and other operations and to operate in the securities market.

The NBK intervenes directly with market participants at their quoted rates and proposes its own quotes.

Yes.

Foreign exchange control is administered by the government, the NBK, and other foreign exchange control bodies and agents in accordance with the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control and the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan. The NBK and other government bodies (the MOF, the Public Revenue Committee under the MOF) serve as foreign exchange control agents in accordance with the scope of authority established by the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan. Authorized banks, nonbank exchange bureaus, as well as professional participants in the securities market who perform foreign exchange transactions on instructions from clients serve as foreign exchange control agents.

The NBK monitors compliance by residents and nonresidents with the requirements of foreign exchange legislation and performance of the functions of foreign exchange control agents by authorized banks and nonbank exchange bureaus.

The NBK licenses banks and financial institutions to engage in banking operations in foreign exchange and supervises the activities of banks and other financial institutions. The Republic of Kazakhstan Agency for the Regulation and Development of the Financial Market and the NBK also license nonbank exchange bureaus and supervise their activities.

The MOF monitors and supervises government loans and government-guaranteed loans. Public revenue authorities (the Public Revenue Committee of the MOF) participate in foreign exchange control related to exports and imports. At the time of the customs clearance of goods, an authorized official of a territorial subdivision of the public revenue body, when there is an export or import foreign exchange contract which requires the assignment of a record number in accordance with the Rules for Export–Import Foreign Exchange Control in the Republic of Kazakhstan, checks the record number of the export or import foreign exchange contract entered in the declaration of the goods against the information received regarding the export or import foreign exchange contract with a record number. If there is a discrepancy between the declaration and the actual information, the exporter or importer makes the relevant corrections to the declaration of goods following the procedure established by the customs legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan. Government agencies that issue export and import licenses also monitor compliance with eligibility criteria and licensing rules.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) Yes. Refined gold bullion is classified as a foreign exchange asset, and transactions with it for domestic currency are classified as foreign exchange transactions and are subject to the same regulation as other foreign exchange transactions. Refined gold and gold for minting coins are classified as commodities subject to export restrictions under Decision No. 30 of the Board of the Eurasian Economic Commission (EAEC) of April 21, 2015, on Nontariff Regulatory Measures. (This restriction does not extend to the CBs of EAEU member states.)

On domestic ownership and/or trade No. Large transactions (for the purpose of reporting transactions with precious metals and precious stones to the Financial Monitoring Committee of the MOF in accordance with the legislation on combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism) are defined as those of more than the equivalent of 10 million tenge. This is not a control measure. Information is provided by subjects of financial monitoring to the Financial Monitoring Committee under the Republic of Kazakhstan MOF to allow for the analysis of large transactions.

On external trade Yes. The Ministry of Industry and Infrastructure Development administers government control of imports and exports of precious metals and commodities containing precious metals. EAEU member states apply identical controls on external trade in gold. Refined gold bullion is classified as a foreign exchange asset, and transactions with it are classified as foreign exchange transactions and are subject to the same regulation as other foreign exchange transactions. Refined gold and gold for minting coins are classified as commodities subject to export restrictions under Decision No. 30 of the Board of the EAEC of April 21, 2015, on Nontariff Regulatory Measures, and specifically, a license is issued in accordance with the Instruction on the Preparation of an Application for a License to Export and/or Import Certain Types of Goods and on the Preparation of Such a License, approved by Decision No. 199 of the Board of the EAEC of November 6, 2014, along with a government control document. (This restriction does not extend to CBs of EAEU member states.) Exports of precious metals, including refined gold bullion, from the EAEU, require a license from the pertinent government authority of the EAEU member where the exporter is registered. Exports of precious metal coins from the EAEU require a government control document. Exports from the EAEU of precious metal coins that are the legal tender of an EAEU member are handled by that country’s CB and commercial banks.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes No. Within the EAEU, individuals may move cash and/or monetary instruments in an unlimited amount and without declaration. A declaration is required in the case of imports by individuals from third countries (countries that are not EAEU members) or exports by individuals to third countries of cash and/or traveler’s checks exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 and of monetary instruments denominated in domestic and foreign currency (for example, bills of exchange, bank checks, certified bearer securities). Banks are permitted to freely import and export domestic and foreign currency, provided they comply with the requirements of the customs legislation.

On exports No.

Domestic currency No. For individuals:
Cash and/or traveler’s checks are subject to customs declaration if the total amount of cash and/or traveler’s checks being imported into or exported from the customs territory of the EAEU at one time is in excess of the equivalent of US$10,000 at the exchange rate in effect on the day the passenger customs declaration is presented to a customs authority.

For legal entities:
Domestic currency banknotes are subject to customs declaration as goods.

Foreign currency

For individuals:
Cash and/or traveler’s checks are subject to customs declaration if the total amount of cash and/or traveler’s checks being imported into or exported from the customs territory of the EAEU at one time is in excess of the equivalent of US$10,000 at the exchange rate in effect on the day the passenger customs declaration is presented to a customs authority.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

EAUE member states apply uniform nontariff regulatory measures with respect to third countries. There is a Uniform List of Goods Subject to Nontariff Regulatory Measures in Trade with Third Countries, as established by EAEC Board Decision No. 134 of August 16, 2012, and No. 30 of April 21, 2015. In accordance with this list, prohibitions are established on imports or exports of goods into and from the customs territory of the EAEU and exports of goods from the customs territory of the EAEU are performed on the basis of a permitting document. Licenses to import ozone-depleting substances and products containing ozone-depleting substances and hazardous waste are issued by the Ministry of Energy; licenses to import means of plant protection (pesticides), poisonous substances that are not precursors of narcotics and psychotropic substances, special technical devices, and encryption (cryptographic) means for secret information acquisition are issued by the Ministry of Industry and Infrastructure Development; licenses to import radioelectronic equipment and high-frequency devices for civilian use, including those built into or part of other goods, are issued by the Ministry of Information and Communications; licenses to import human organs tissue, blood, and blood components are issued by the Ministry of Health; licenses to import certain kinds of meat, raw cane sugar without flavoring, aromatic, or dye additives are issued by the Ministry of Trade and Integration; licenses to import narcotics, psychotropic substances, and their precursors are issued by the Ministry of Internal Affairs.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Residents (with the exception of a branch office (representative office) of a foreign organization) must ensure that domestic and foreign currency received in payment for exports of goods (work, services) is credited to accounts at authorized banks within the time period stipulated by the terms of the contract.

The repatriation requirement is considered to have been met in full or in part if:

1. proceeds in domestic and/or foreign currency are credited to a resident’s accounts at foreign banks in fulfillment of the resident’s liabilities under the terms of a financial loan from a nonresident or for the use of the resident’s overseas branches (representative offices);
2. effective July 1, 2019, foreign currency received by residents from holding exhibitions or sporting, cultural, and other similar events outside Kazakhstan is used to cover expenses during the time that the events are under way;
3. effective July 1, 2019, foreign exchange earnings are posted to accounts at foreign banks held by resident transportation organizations for the purpose of covering expenses related to the payment of port and other fees in foreign states and the servicing of transportation equipment owned by such transportation organizations and their passengers while they are located outside the Republic of Kazakhstan, and expenses to support the operations of branch offices (representative offices) of such transportation organizations located... outside the Republic of Kazakhstan;
(4) a nonresident’s obligation is offset by a counterclaim under foreign exchange export or import contracts;
(5) a nonresident’s obligation is met by replacing the original obligation between a resident and nonresident with a different obligation between the same parties that provides for a different object or means of fulfillment;
(6) an insurance payment is received when an insured event occurs, under insurance contracts covering the risk of default on obligations by a nonresident.

Effective July 1, 2019, a single procedure has been in place for the registration of contracts on the movement of capital and settlements at foreign banks. When a payment is made and/or money is transferred under a contract for which an account number needs to be obtained, or when an account at a foreign bank to which an account number has been assigned is used, an authorized bank (or a branch thereof) checks the presence of an account number and in the payment document, the presence of the details of the foreign exchange contract.

The registration requirement applies to agreements on the movement of capital, the parties to which are residents (other than authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations). The resident party to an agreement asks the NBK to assign an account number before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. The registration procedure does not constitute a permitting process.

Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all of the foreign exchange operations performed, including those performed on behalf of customers, the amount of which is equal to or greater than the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.

Up until July 1, 2019, registration or notification of operations with foreign currency was required. Foreign exchange operations requiring registration were performed only with a certificate of registration. If a resident did not have a document confirming notification, an authorized bank performed the operations after notifying the resident in any manner of the need to obtain a document confirming notification.

The notification requirement did not apply to direct investment transactions subject to registration with the NBK.

The registration and notification procedures did not constitute permitting processes. Authorized banks notified the NBK as part of their reporting on foreign exchange operations performed in accordance with an established list, including those performed on behalf of customers.

Effective July 1, 2019, a single procedure has been in place for the registration of contracts on the movement of capital and settlements at foreign banks. When a payment is made and/or money is transferred under a contract for which an account number needs to be obtained, or when an account at a foreign bank to which an account number has been assigned is used, an authorized bank (or a branch thereof) checks the presence of an account number and in the payment document, the presence of the details of the foreign exchange contract.

The registration requirement applies to agreements on the movement of capital, the parties to which are residents (other than authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations).
The resident party to an agreement asks the NBK to assign an account number before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. The registration procedure does not constitute a permitting process.

Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all of the foreign exchange operations performed, including those performed on behalf of customers, the amount of which is equal to or greater than the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.

Up until July 1, 2019, registration or notification of operations with foreign currency was required. Foreign exchange operations requiring registration were performed only with a certificate of registration. If a resident did not have a document confirming notification, an authorized bank performed the operations after notifying the resident in any manner of the need to obtain a document confirming notification.

The notification requirement did not apply to direct investment transactions subject to registration with the NBK.

The registration and notification procedures did not constitute permitting processes. Authorized banks notified the NBK as part of their reporting on foreign exchange operations performed in accordance with an established list, including those performed on behalf of customers.

Issuance of securities locally by nonresidents must be registered with the Agency for the Regulation and Development of the Financial Market for trade in the organized securities market.

The state registration of a bond issue (bond program) of a nonresident issuer is performed on the condition that the given nonresident issuer meets the following requirements:

1. it has a minimum credit rating of at least B under the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating assigned by one of the other rating agencies;

2. a foreign supervisory body of the given legal entity’s country of origin has signed the Multilateral Memorandum of Understanding Concerning Consultation and Cooperation and the Exchange of Information of the International Organization of Securities Commissions;

3. the nonresident issuer meets the requirements for the official listing of the debt securities of a nonresident issuer by a stock exchange and for trading on a stock exchange;

4. permission from the relevant supervisory body of a foreign state for the issuing of bonds in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan or a letter from said body that such permission is not required under the laws of the country in which the nonresident issuer is located;

(5) compliance with prudential ratios and other standards and limits established by the relevant supervisory body for the three months prior to the date an application for state registration of the bond issue (bond program) is filed (if the nonresident issuer is a financial institution).

State registration of a nonresident issuer’s bond issue, in which the bonds are denominated in foreign currency, is performed, provided the issue prospectus for the nonresident issuer’s bonds contains a mandatory condition that the interest and principal on the given bonds will be paid in the currency in which they are issued.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes.

A resident organization of the Republic of Kazakhstan has the right to issue and/or place derivative securities, the underlying asset of which is shares of the given resident organization with the relevant permission from the authorized body.

A decision by an authorized body of an issuer of shares that is a resident organization of the Republic of Kazakhstan, or by the relevant shareholder selling the shares of the given issuer that is performing the initial placement of derivative securities, must contain a condition that at least 20% of the total number of the given shares must be offered for purchase through the organized securities market of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Effective July 1, 2019, a single procedure has been in place for the registration of contracts on the movement of capital and settlements at foreign banks. When a payment is made and/or money is transferred under a contract for which an account number needs to be obtained, or when an account at a foreign bank to which an account number has been assigned is used, an authorized bank (or a branch thereof) checks the presence of an account number and in the payment document, the presence of the details of the foreign exchange contract.

The registration requirement applies to agreements on the movement of capital, the parties to which are residents (other than authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations). The resident party to an agreement asks the NBK to assign an account number before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. The registration procedure does not constitute a permitting process.

Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all of the foreign exchange operations performed, including those performed on behalf of customers, the amount of which is equal to or greater than the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.

Up until July 1, 2019, registration or notification of operations with foreign currency was required. Foreign exchange operations requiring registration were performed only with a certificate of registration. If a resident did not have a document confirming notification, an authorized bank performed the operations after notifying the resident in any manner of the need to obtain a document confirming notification.
The notification requirement did not apply to direct investment transactions subject to registration with the NBK.

The registration and notification procedures did not constitute permitting processes. Authorized banks notified the NBK as part of their reporting on foreign exchange operations performed in accordance with an established list, including those performed on behalf of customers.

Effective July 1, 2019, for statistical purposes residents must apply to the NBK for registration of transactions with derivative financial instruments, if the amount of the payment and/or transfer by a nonresident to a resident exceeds the equivalent of US$500,000 (previously US$100,000).

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes. Banks must comply with the following ratio of liabilities to nonresidents to equity capital: The ratio of total short-term liabilities to nonresidents to the bank’s equity capital (coefficient k-7) may not exceed 1. The amount of obligations to nonresidents of the Republic of Kazakhstan includes: (1) demand liabilities, including liabilities for which no settlement period has been set; (2) term liabilities to nonresidents with initial maturity up to 1 year inclusive; and (3) term obligations to nonresidents with the unconditional right of the creditor to demand early repayment of obligations, including term and conditional deposits of banks, except for term and conditional deposits of individuals and legal entities.

Maintenance of accounts abroad
No.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)
Yes.

Lending locally in foreign exchange
Yes.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange
Yes.

The securities banks may purchase are specified in the Law on Banks and Banking. Specifically, there is a requirement that banks have the right to perform transactions with debt securities that have a minimum required rating. The rating for bonds of foreign issuers and issuers of the Republic of Kazakhstan must be at least B (based on the classification of the Standard & Poor’s and/or Fitch rating agencies) or at least B2 (based on the Moody’s Investors Service classification). The rating for foreign government bonds must be at least BBB- (based on the Standard & Poor’s and/or Fitch classification) or at least Baa3 (based on the Moody’s Investors Service classification). There are no restrictions regarding the currency in which a debt security is issued.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange
Yes.

Reserve requirements
Yes.

Foreign exchange deposits are included in the liability base for which banks must meet minimum reserve requirements (MRRs). For the purpose of calculating the MRRs, liabilities in domestic and foreign currencies are differentiated according to the principle of maturity (short term and long term). The ratios for liabilities in foreign currency are 3% for short-term and 1% for long-term liabilities, while in national currency they are 2% for short-term and 0% for long-term liabilities.

Liquid asset requirements
Yes.

For the purpose of monitoring liquidity of commercial banks, the NBK sets limits (minimum values) for coefficients of the bank’s current, quick, and quick foreign exchange liquidity. The liquidity coefficients are calculated as the ratio of the average monthly amount of a bank’s assets to the average monthly amount of its liabilities, taking into account the accrued fees, types of assets and liabilities, and other factors.

The limit for the current liquidity ratio (k-4), calculated as the ratio of the average monthly amount of a bank’s highly liquid assets to the average monthly amount of its demand liabilities, including accrued fees, is 0.3.

The quick liquidity ratio k4-1, calculated as the ratio of a bank’s average monthly highly liquid assets to average monthly term liabilities with remaining maturity up to and including seven days, may not be less than 1. Limits are set at 0.9 and 0.8, respectively, for quick asset ratios k4-2 and k4-3, which are calculated as the ratio of a bank’s average monthly liquid assets to average monthly term liabilities with remaining maturity up to one month (k4-2) and up to three months (k4-3).

The foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-4, calculated as the ratio of average monthly highly liquid foreign currency assets to average monthly term liabilities in the same foreign currency with remaining maturity up to and including seven days, may not be less than 1. When calculating the foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-4, a bank’s term liabilities with a remaining maturity up to seven days, multiplied by a conversion coefficient equal to 100%, are included in the amount of liabilities in foreign currency with a remaining maturity up to seven days. Accordingly, there are limits of 0.9 and 0.8 for foreign exchange liquidity ratios k4-5 and k4-6, which are calculated similarly for term liabilities with maturities up to one month and three months. When calculating the foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-5, a bank’s term liabilities with a remaining maturity up to one month, multiplied by a conversion coefficient equal to 90%, are included in the amount of liabilities in foreign currency with a remaining maturity up to one month; when calculating the foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-6, a bank’s term liabilities with a remaining maturity up to three months, multiplied by a conversion coefficient equal to 80%, are included in the amount of liabilities in foreign currency with a remaining maturity up to three months.

Interest rate controls

No. The Kazakhstan Deposit Guarantee Fund (KDGF) determines the amount and procedure for the payment of banks’ contributions, which are calculated through a methodology developed by the KDGF, taking into account the compliance of interest rates on new personal deposits with those recommended by the KDGF for deposits in foreign currency and deposits in domestic currency.

Credit controls

No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents

No.

Reserve requirements

No. Deposits in foreign currency are included in the liability base for which banks must comply with MRRs. For the purpose of calculating the MRRs, liabilities in domestic and foreign currencies are differentiated according to the principle of maturity (short term and long term). The ratios for liabilities in foreign currency are 3% for short-term liabilities and 1% for long-term liabilities, while the ratios for liabilities in domestic currency are 2% for short-term liabilities and 0% for long-term liabilities.

Liquid asset requirements

No. The calculation of liquid assets includes all financial assets, including highly liquid assets, minus (1) specially formed provisions and (2) claims on nonresidents that are legal entities registered abroad or their citizens or legal entities registered in countries on the list of countries that have not accepted OECD information exchange obligations or their citizens or organizations that are subsidiaries of legal entities registered in the aforementioned countries. Loans are included on the redemption schedule in accordance with loan agreements.

The following securities, which are not included in the calculation of highly liquid assets, are included in the calculation of liquid assets, provided the given securities are serving as collateral for liabilities that are included in the calculation of liabilities: (1) government securities of the Republic of Kazakhstan issued by the government and the NBK; (2) securities issued by the Samruk-Kazyna National Welfare Fund and the Baiterek Management Holding Company Joint-Stock companies; (3) government securities of countries with a sovereign debt rating in foreign currency no lower than the level established by the NBK; and (4) bonds of foreign issuers with a minimum required rating assigned by one of the rating agencies and conforming to the requirements of the NBK. When calculating liquid assets, the time remaining to maturity for securities is considered to be the time remaining to maturity for the liabilities for which the given securities are serving as collateral. There is no difference in the liquid asset requirement for deposits of/liabilities to nonresidents and residents.

In addition to the average monthly indicator, banks must adhere to a daily limit, which is equal to 95% of internal assets for each day based on the average monthly volume of internal liabilities for the previous month. In addition, the relevant credit risk weights are established for banks’ assets placed with nonresident institutions when calculating capital adequacy coefficients (k1, k1-2, and k-2), which are calculated as follows: k-1 is calculated as the ratio of core capital to the sum of assets and contingent liabilities weighted by the degree of credit risk, and assets and contingent claims and liabilities calculated taking into account market risk and operational risk. Provisions specific to institutional investors

Yes.

Insurance companies

Yes.

Nonresident insurance companies and brokers may not establish branches in Kazakhstan. Legal entities that are registered in offshore zones listed by the NBK may not directly or indirectly control, use, or dispose of the voting shares of resident insurance (reinsurance) companies. This restriction does not apply to insurance (reinsurance) companies that are subsidiaries of insurance (reinsurance) companies that are nonresidents of the Republic of Kazakhstan with a minimum required rating from one of the rating agencies.

Only a nonresident financial institution under consolidated supervision in its home country may be a nonresident insurance holding company that directly controls 25% or more of the outstanding shares of an insurance (reinsurance) company (net of preferred shares and those repurchased by the insurance/reinsurance company) or with 25% or more of the voting shares.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes.

An insurance (reinsurance) company may not acquire stakes in the authorized capital or shares of nonresident legal entities, with the exception of the acquisition of stakes or shares of nonresident legal entities that have the status of a bank, insurance (reinsurance) company, pension fund, or professional participant in the securities market, or shares of nonresident legal entities on a list established in accordance with a regulatory legal act of the authorized body.

The acquisition by an insurance (reinsurance) company of stakes in the authorized capital or shares of legal entities must not exceed 10% of the insurance (reinsurance) company’s equity capital for each legal entity.
This restriction applies to an insurance (reinsurance) company’s ownership of stakes in the authorized capital or shares of said legal entities, including cases in which they participate in the establishment of the legal entities.

The aggregate value of an insurance (reinsurance) company’s stakes in the authorized capital of legal entities or shares must not exceed 50% of the insurance (reinsurance) company’s equity capital.

Insurance (reinsurance) companies are prohibited from performing transactions with financial derivatives, with the exception of transactions performed for the purposes of hedging risks.

Insurance (reinsurance) companies are permitted to acquire the following financial instruments issued by nonresidents of the Republic of Kazakhstan:

1. Shares of legal entities that are nonresidents of the Republic of Kazakhstan, with price quotes on the active market that are necessary for measuring fair value, and depositary receipts for which these shares serve as underlying assets;
2. Shares that have been issued in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan and meet the requirements of the “share” sector in the official stock exchange list as provided for by NBK Resolution No. 189 of October 22, 2014, on Approval of the Requirements for Issuers and their Securities Put into Circulation in the Stock Exchange, and also for Certain Categories in the Stock Exchange List, entered in the Register for State Registration of Regulatory Legal Acts under No. 9871, and depositary receipts for which these shares serve as underlying assets;
3. Shares of legal entities that are on the stock exchange index’s representative list and depositary receipts for which these shares serve as underlying assets;
4. Debt securities issued by the following IFIs:
   - Asian Development Bank;
   - Inter-American Development Bank;
   - African Development Bank;
   - Eurasian Development Bank;
   - European Investment Bank;
   - European Bank for Reconstruction and Development;
   - Islamic Development Bank;
   - Bank for International Settlements;
   - International Bank for Reconstruction and Development;
   - International Finance Corporation;
5. Securities with the status of government securities which have been issued by the central governments of foreign states with a sovereign rating of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies;
6. Nongovernment securities issued by foreign companies:
   a. Shares of issuers with a rating of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies;
   b. Debt securities with a rating of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies;
7. Debt securities included in the official stock exchange list;
8. Shares in exchange-traded funds, the pricing for which is linked to the following estimated indicators (indices):
   - CAC 40 (Compagnie des Agents de Change 40 Index);
   - DAX (Deutscher Aktienindex);
   - DJIA (Dow Jones Industrial Average);

   - TOPIX (Tokyo Price Index);
   - HSI (Hang Seng Index);
9. Shares in exchange-traded funds, exchange-traded commodities (ETCs), and exchange-traded notes (ETNs) that have a rating of at least four stars by the Morningstar credit rating agency;
(10) Islamic financing instruments with a rating assigned to the security and/or the issuer of at least B on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies;

(11) Islamic financing instruments of an Islamic bank, provided the following conditions are met:
(a) the parent company of the Islamic bank has a rating of at least BB on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies;
(b) the requirements regarding compliance with prudential standards established for an Islamic bank in accordance with the banking legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan are met.

An insurance (reinsurance) company must meet the following standards for the diversification of its assets (including investments abroad):

1. Overall investment in securities (including reverse repo operations) and cash (less the reserve for doubtful debts) at a single legal entity that is not a second-tier bank, and affiliates of the given legal entity – not more than 10% of total assets;
2. Overall investment in securities (including reverse repo operations) that have the status of government securities issued by the central government of a foreign state, less the reserve for doubtful debts – not more than 10% of total assets;
3. Overall investment in securities (including reverse repo operations) of an international financial institution included on the list established under Paragraph 39 of Resolution No. 304, less the reserve for doubtful debts – not more than 10% of total assets;
4. Overall investments in the units of the exchange-traded funds – not more than 10% of total assets;
5. Overall investments in Islamic financing instruments that meet the requirements under Paragraph 38, subparagraphs (15) and (16), of Resolution No. 304, less the reserve for doubtful debts – not more than 10% of total assets.

Total assets are calculated in accordance with Paragraph 34 of Resolution No. 304.

As of January 1, 2019, the only organization engaged in the attraction of mandatory pension contributions, mandatory professional pension contributions, and voluntary pension contributions which is operating in Kazakhstan is the Single Pension Savings Fund (SPSF) Joint-Stock Company.

In accordance with Article 35 of the Republic of Kazakhstan Law on Pension Security in the Republic of Kazakhstan, the NBK manages the pension assets of the SPSF on the basis of a trust management agreement.

The pension assets of the SPSF are invested in instruments determined by the Council for the Management of the National Fund of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

The NBK invests the pension assets of the SPSF in accordance with a list of financial instruments approved by a resolution of the Republic of Kazakhstan government and the requirements and limitations of the SPSF Investment Declaration, which was approved by a resolution of the NBK Executive Board and was compiled...
Taking the given list into account, the activities of voluntary pension funds are governed by the NBK Resolution No. 236 of August 27, 2013; however, at present, no one voluntary pension fund has been registered.

The following is applicable to SPSF with respect to investment in securities issued by nonresidents. The SPSF Investment Declaration provides for the following investment limits in financial instruments of foreign issuers. Investments in financial instruments of foreign issuers – not more than 50% of pension assets, including:

1. Government and agency securities and securities of IFIs – not more than 50%:
   (a) with a rating of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 50%;
   (b) with a rating between BB+ and BB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 20%;

2. Corporate debt securities – not more than 30% of pension assets:
   (a) with a rating assigned to the security and/or issuer of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 30%;
   (b) with a rating assigned to the security and/or issuer between BB+ and BB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 15%;

3. Mortgage-backed securities (MBS) and asset-backed securities (ABS) with a rating assigned to the security and/or issuer of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 20%;

4. Shares, depositary receipts for shares – not more than 20%;

5. Structured products issued by organizations with a rating of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 10%;

6. Islamic financing instruments – not more than 10%:
   (a) with a rating assigned to the security and/or issuer of at least BBB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 10%;
   (b) with a rating assigned to the security and/or issuer between BB+ and BB- on the Standard & Poor’s international scale or an equivalent rating by one of the other rating agencies – not more than 5%;

The proportion of debt securities of a single issue of an issuer, who is a nonresident of the Republic of Kazakhstan, purchased at the expense of pension assets must not exceed 25% of the total volume of the given issue.

The proportion of equity securities issued by a single issuer purchased at the expense of pension assets must not exceed 10% of the total number of shares of the given issuer that have been placed. According to the NBK Executive Board Resolution No. 236 of August 27, 2013, for voluntary pension funds, the amount of a fund’s investments in financial instruments issued (offered) by a Republic of Kazakhstan nonresident issuer are as follows:

(a) using its own assets – less than 10% of the fund’s own assets;
(b) using the pension and own assets in the aggregate, or using either pension assets or its own assets alone – less than 25% of the own capital of the given issuer or its parent entity, if the parent entity has provided a guarantee for the issuer’s nongovernmental debt securities, the amount of which guarantee equals the full amount of

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market

Spot exchange market

Pursuant to National Bank of Kazakhstan (NBK) Resolution No. 296 of November 29, 2018, the limits on the margin between the buying and selling rates of cash in US dollars and euros for tenge cash transactions conducted with the public through exchange bureaus were eliminated. Previously, the NBK placed a limit of 6 tenge and 7 tenge for the US dollar and the euro, respectively.

The National Bank of Kazakhstan re-established the limits on the margin between the buying and selling rates on cash foreign exchange transactions against tenge conducted by individuals through exchange offices of authorized banks and authorized nonbanking organizations as follows: 6 tenge for the US dollars and 7 tenge for euro. The resolution is adopted in the context of COVID-19. On July 14, 2020, considering the lack of a definite consensus with regard to the outlook for an end to the negative impact of external economic factors related to the COVID-19 pandemic on the country’s economy and the domestic foreign exchange market, by way of National Bank of the Republic of Kazakhstan Executive Board Resolution No. 86 of July 14, 2020, on the Establishment of Limits on the Margin between Buying and Selling Rates for Foreign Exchange Transactions against the Tenge Performed through Exchange Offices, the decision was made to extend the margin limits of 6 tenge for the US dollar and 7 tenge for the euro until January 1, 2021.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

Use of foreign exchange among residents

The following were added to the list of permitted foreign exchange transactions: transactions in which one of the parties is a resident who has the right to perform foreign exchange transactions with residents pursuant to the laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan or acts of the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan adopted prior to the entry into force of the Law; transactions between branch offices (representative offices) of foreign organizations; transactions between securities market professionals who perform foreign exchange transactions on instructions from clients, and between individuals or legal entities, related to the transfer of money and financial instruments from (to) accounts for the recording and safekeeping of money and financial instruments belonging to clients within the context of the execution and termination of brokerage service agreements; transactions of a party serving as a recipient of minerals on behalf of the state, which are transferred to said party in accordance with the Tax Code for in-kind fulfillment by a mineral resources operator of its tax obligations related to the transport, storage, and sale of such minerals.

Branch offices (representative offices) of foreign organizations that form a permanent establishment for tax purposes in the Republic of Kazakhstan were classified as residents and may no longer transact with other residents in foreign currency.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held abroad

A resident legal entity (with the exception of banks and branch offices (representative office) of a foreign organization) must notify the National Bank of Kazakhstan of accounts opened with a foreign bank by applying for the assignment of a record number to the account prior to the performance of transactions using such account. Previously, the deadline for notification was 30 days after the date of entry into an agreement with a foreign bank. The purchase of foreign currency by resident legal entities (other than banks) on the same business day through a single bank is limited to the equivalent of US$50,000. Previously, the limit was US$100,000.

Controls on capital transactions

A single procedure has been in place for the registration of contracts on the movement of capital and settlements at foreign banks. When a payment is made and/or money is transferred under a contract for which an account number needs to be obtained, or when an account at a foreign bank to which an account number has been assigned is used, an authorized bank (or a branch thereof) checks the presence of an account number and in the payment document, the presence of the details of the foreign exchange contract.

The registration requirement applies to agreements on the movement of capital, the parties to which are residents (other than authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations). The resident party to an agreement asks the National Bank of Kazakhstan (NBK) to assign an account number before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. The registration procedure does not constitute a permitting process.

Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all of the foreign exchange operations performed, including those performed on behalf of customers, the amount of which is equal to or greater than the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.

Up until July 1, 2019, registration or notification of operations with foreign currency was required. Foreign exchange operations requiring registration were performed only with a certificate of registration. If a resident did not have a document confirming notification, an authorized bank performed the operations after notifying the resident in any manner of the need to obtain a document confirming notification.

The notification requirement did not apply to direct investment transactions subject to registration with the NBK.

The registration and notification procedures did not constitute permitting processes. Authorized banks notified the NBK as part of their reporting on foreign exchange operations performed in accordance with an established list, including those performed on behalf of customers.

The registration and notification procedures did not constitute permitting processes. Authorized banks notified the NBK as part of their reporting on foreign exchange operations performed in accordance with an established list, including those performed on behalf of customers.

For statistical purposes residents must apply to the National Bank of Kazakhstan for registration of contracts involving the purchase from nonresidents of equity securities issued by residents or nonresidents in an amount in excess of the equivalent of US$500,000 (previously US$100,000).

A single procedure has been in place for the registration of contracts on the movement of capital and settlements at foreign banks. When a payment is made and/or money is transferred under a contract for which an account number needs to be obtained, or when an account at a foreign bank to which an account number has been assigned is used, an authorized bank (or a branch thereof) checks the presence of an account number and in the payment document, the presence of the details of the foreign exchange contract.

The registration requirement applies to agreements on the movement of capital, the parties to which are residents (other than authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations). The resident party to an agreement asks the National Bank of Kazakhstan (NBK) to assign an account number before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. The registration procedure does not constitute a permitting process. Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all of the foreign exchange operations performed, including those performed on behalf of customers, the amount of which is equal to or greater than the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.

Previously, for statistical purposes, commercial credits of residents that were associated with exports (imports) of goods and were extended for a term of over 180 days and in amounts exceeding US$500,000 were subject to registration with the NBK. The registration requirement did not apply to:
- commercial credits associated with the delivery of goods or services, if contract registration numbers have been obtained for them (up to January 5, 2012, if transaction passports have been prepared);
- commercial credits of resident banks received from nonresidents.

Financial credits

By residents to nonresidents 07/01/2019
Financial credits (financial loans) in amounts exceeding US$500,000 (previously US$100,000) that are extended by residents (that are not banks) regardless of the term are subject to informational registration with the National Bank of Kazakhstan.

To residents from nonresidents 07/01/2019
Financial credits (financial loans) in amounts exceeding US$500,000 that are extended by residents (that are not banks) regardless of the term (previously if the term was over 180 days) are subject to informational registration with the National Bank of Kazakhstan.

Controls on direct investment

Outward direct investment 07/01/2019
For statistical purposes, direct investment abroad in excess of US$500,000 is subject to informational registration with the National Bank of Kazakhstan (NBK).

A resident party to a foreign exchange contract applies to the NBK for the assignment of a record number prior to the fulfillment of obligations under the foreign exchange contract by any of its parties. Previously, for statistical purposes, registration with the NBK was required for direct investment in excess of US$100,000, except by resident banks, which were required to notify the NBK of such transactions.

Inward direct investment 07/01/2019
Direct investment abroad in excess of US$500,000 (previously US$100,000) is subject to informational registration with the NBK.

For statistical purposes, direct investment in the Republic of Kazakhstan in excess of US$500,000 is subject to informational registration with the National Bank of Kazakhstan (NBK).

A resident party to a foreign exchange contract applies to the NBK for the assignment of a record number prior to the fulfillment of obligations under the foreign exchange contract by any of its parties. Previously, for statistical purposes, registration with the NBK was required for direct investment in excess of US$500,000, except in resident banks, which were required to notify the NBK of such transactions.

Controls on real estate transactions

Purchase abroad by residents 07/01/2019
For statistical purposes, resident legal entities apply to the National Bank of Kazakhstan (NBK) for informational registration of... transactions with residents and nonresidents in amounts in excess of US$500,000 which involve the acquisition by residents of title to real property abroad.

Previously, for statistical purposes, resident legal entities were required to notify the NBK of completed transactions involving the acquisition of title to real property from nonresidents if the amount of the acquisition exceeded the equivalent of US$100,000. Resident legal entities apply to the National Bank of Kazakhstan for informational registration of transactions with residents and nonresidents in amounts in excess of US$500,000 (previously US$100,000) which involve the acquisition by residents of title to real property abroad.

Other managed arrangement

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. Kenya pursues a flexible exchange rate regime, and the value of the Kenyan shilling is determined by the market according to the demand and supply of foreign exchange. Official foreign exchange market interventions aim to moderate the rate of change and prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate, rather than to establish a particular level. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as other managed. Data on interventions are not published.

Other monetary framework Yes. The CBK is in transition from targeting monetary aggregates toward an inflation-targeting framework. The cabinet secretary for the national treasury specifies the price stability target at the beginning of every financial year. The inflation target is specified as a range in order to provide for adverse shocks. The inflation target for fiscal year 2020/21 is 5.0%, with a flexible margin of 2.5% on either side. Section 4 (Subsection 5) of the CBK Act indicates that the minister shall specify at least once every 12 months the price stability target in consultation with the central bank and government economic policies.

The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) is responsible for the formulation of monetary policy. The MPC meets at least every two months. The cabinet secretary for the national treasury receives two reports from the MPC every six months. The CBK does not publish the minutes of the MPC meetings but publishes a press release and holds press and banking sector briefings after every MPC meeting.

The inflation target is measured by the 12-month change in the consumer price index (CPI) as published by the Kenya National Bureau of Statistics. The inflation measure is indicated in the notice by the cabinet secretary to the CBK on the price stability target at the beginning of the financial year.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Authorized commercial and microfinance banks are licensed to buy, sell, borrow, and lend in foreign currency and transact any other business involving foreign currency. Foreign exchange bureaus may deal in spot foreign currency transactions involving cash and other instruments approved by the CBK; conduct money transfers as agents of mobile phone companies and as subagents of international money transfer agencies subject to approval by the CBK; transact telegraphic transfers through a bank in amounts not exceeding the equivalent of US$100,000 a customer a day, subject to CBK conditions; sell foreign currency drafts to their customers; engage in traveler’s check transactions; purchase foreign currency drafts from customers up to US$1,000 or its equivalent in any currency; and conduct any other business approved by the CBK. ADs freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients. In addition to transactions by foreign exchange bureaus, money remittance providers may also handle money transfers in and out of Kenya.

As of December 31, 2019, there were 38 commercial banks, 1 mortgage finance company, 69 foreign exchange bureaus, and 19 money remittance providers licensed by the CBK to deal in foreign exchange with the public. Foreign exchange bureaus and money remittance providers conduct exchange transactions, including sales and purchases of currency, traveler’s checks, and similar instruments.

The CBK deals with authorized commercial bank dealers either through foreign exchange auctions or direct purchases and sales.

The CBK may conduct auctions for foreign exchange transactions based on prevailing market conditions.

The interbank market is based on a market-making arrangement. There were 38 commercial banks, 1 mortgage finance company, 69 foreign exchange bureaus, and 19 money remittance providers licensed by the CBK to operate in the foreign exchange market. ADs freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.

Commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus deal in foreign exchange with their customers on an over-the-counter basis.

ADs may carry out interbank transactions via approved brokers.

The interbank market is based on a market-making arrangement.

Commercial banks may conduct forward foreign exchange transactions with their customers at market-determined exchange rates.

Kenya is a member of COMESA, the EAC, the East African Payment System Harmonization Committee, and the Association of African Central Banks.

Kenya operates through the Local Foreign Currency Clearing System and the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunications (SWIFT).

The CBK Act gives the CBK power to license and regulate foreign exchange dealers.

Rescheduling with Paris Club creditors ended in December 2006, paving the way for repayment of foreign loans that henceforth fall due.

Private sector external obligations are paid mainly with foreign exchange reserves held by commercial banks, over which the CBK has no control.

For statistical purposes, people leaving or entering Kenya must declare amounts exceeding K Sh 1 million in domestic currency or the equivalent of US$10,000 in foreign currency.

This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Residents and nonresidents may hold foreign exchange accounts domestically and may freely transfer funds abroad. Banks must document and report to the CBK the purpose of account inflows and outflows.

Residents and nonresidents may hold foreign exchange accounts abroad and may freely transfer funds back to Kenya. Banks must document and report to the CBK the purpose of inflows and outflows.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad

Yes. Kenyan residents abroad open accounts only in foreign currency. The Kenyan shilling is an exotic currency not easily tradable outside the East African region. Opening a Kenyan shilling account abroad is thus a moot question.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency

Yes. Residents may convert their balances in domestic currency accounts to foreign currency without limit.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
No.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Yes.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)
Yes.

In accordance with UNSC resolutions, Korea maintains certain exchange restrictions against the following individuals and entities: certain individuals and entities associated with the Taliban, the Al-Qaeda network, terrorists in general, and the former regime of Saddam Hussein; certain individuals and entities posing a threat to international peace and security in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Côte d’Ivoire, and Sudan; certain individuals and entities threatening peace and security in Eritrea and Somalia; certain individuals and entities involved in the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea’s nuclear, ballistic missile, or other weapons of mass destruction (WMD) and related programs; certain individuals and entities threatening peace and security in Liberia; certain individuals and entities associated with Muammar Qadafi’s regime; and certain individuals and entities threatening peace and security in Central African Republic, Republic of South Sudan, and Yemen.
Korea maintains certain exchange restrictions against certain individuals named by the Guidance of the MOEF.
Also, certain individuals and entities related to the Islamic Republic of Iran (Iranian residents or groups located in Iran) were eliminated from certain exchange restrictions list because of the MOEF revised notice.

Other security restrictions
No.

Floating

Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of the won is freely determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. As such, the system is managed in accordance with the principles defined by the free floating system, and the government’s role is very limited to remain within the range allowed by the free floating system. However, because of the lack of information on the authorities’ interventions, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The Bank of Korea (BOK) may intervene in the market with the funds of the BOK and the Foreign Exchange Equalization Fund when it is deemed necessary for the stability of the market. Interventions in the spot market or through derivatives in the forward market are not announced, but quarterly aggregate intervention data in net terms are published. The Korean government and the BOK (the foreign exchange authorities) are implementing their disclosure in two stages. In the first stage, information is disclosed on a semiannual basis, no later than three months after the end of each six-month period. Specifically, information for the period of July to December in 2018 was disclosed March 29, 2019, and information for the period of January to June in 2019 was disclosed September 30, 2019. In the second stage, from July 2019 onward, information is disclosed on a quarterly basis, no later than three months after the end of the respective quarter. Specifically, information for the period of July to September in 2019 was disclosed December 31, 2019, information for the period of September to December in 2019 was disclosed March 31, 2020, and information for the period of January to March in 2020 was disclosed June 30, 2020. Henceforth, information will be disclosed on an identical period and time basis on the website of the BOK.

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework  Yes.  Inflation targeting was officially adopted in accordance with the revised BOK Act, which came into effect April 1, 1998.

Target setting body  Yes.

Government
Central Bank
Monetary Policy Committee
Central Bank Board

Other

Government and Central Bank  Yes.  The BOK sets the operational framework of the inflation targeting in consultation with the government (MOEF). The operational framework includes the numerical inflation target, the inflation target measure, and the target horizon.

Inflation target  Yes.
Target number  Yes.

Point target  Yes.  Effective January 1, 2019, the inflation target for 2019 onward has been set at 2%. The BOK will review the inflation target framework in consultation with the government every two years and explain the review to the public. If adjustment of the inflation target becomes inevitable, due for instance to unexpected domestic or global economic shocks or to changes in economic conditions, the BOK will adjust the target in consultation with the government. Previously, the inflation target of 2% was set for a three-year period (2016–2018).

Target with tolerance band

Band/Range

Target measure  Yes.

CPI  Yes.  The target measure is the monthly year-on-year (y-o-y) CPI inflation published by the Statistics Korea.

Core inflation

Target horizon  Yes.  The BOK conducts monetary policy to maintain the annual rate of CPI inflation near the target over a midterm horizon.

Operating target (policy rate)  Yes.

Policy rate  Yes.  The Monetary Policy Board of the BOK meets eight times a year to determine the base rate. As of July 31, 2020, the policy rate was 0.5%.

Target corridor band  Yes.  The BOK uses the base rate as a fixed bid rate for its sales of 7-day repurchase agreements and as the minimum bid rate for its purchases of 7-day repurchase agreements. The interest rates of liquidity adjustment deposits and loans are 100 basis points (bps) below and above the base rate, respectively. If the base rate falls below 1%, then the interest rate of liquidity adjustment loans is equal to two times the base rate, and the rate for liquidity adjustment deposit is 0%.

Other  n.a.
Accountability

Yes.

Open letter

No.

Parliamentary hearings

Yes. If there is a request from the national assembly, the governor will attend the meeting and answer questions.

Other

Yes. The BOK publishes its “Monetary Policy Report” four times a year to explain how it is implementing the inflation target monetary policy. Effective January 1, 2019, the BOK publishes twice a year an inflation assessment, which includes price developments, future inflation forecasts and risks, and the monetary policy stance for achieving price stability, and provides explanations of the assessment to the public through various means (or channels), such as by holding governor’s press conferences. Previously, if the inflation deviated from the target by more than 0.5 percentage points in either direction for six consecutive months, the BOK would explain the reasons for the deviation, the prospect for inflation, the monetary policy strategy toward returning inflation to the target, etc., through a governor’s press conference. If the inflation subsequently deviates continuously, the BOK provided further explanations every three months.

Transparency

Yes.

Publication of votes

Yes. Right after a committee meeting, the governor holds a press conference to announce the policy decision. In the press conference, the governor also informs who were minor voters.

Publication of minutes

Yes. The committee meeting minutes are published on the first Tuesday falling after two weeks from the meeting by posting it in the website of the BOK. The names of committee members are concealed in the minutes.

Publication of inflation forecasts

Yes. The inflation forecast is published through a quarterly economic forecast (Economic Outlook) by the BOK. A fan-chart type forecasting is provided with two-year horizon.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax

No.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. The Korean foreign exchange market consists of OTC markets and exchanges. The OTC markets comprise a customer market in which foreign exchange banks deal with customers, including importers, exporters, travelers, and nonresidents, and an interbank market, in which foreign exchange banks deal among themselves. Standardized products are traded on the exchanges. Residents may buy and sell financial futures on internationally recognized futures exchanges or on the domestic exchange, the Korea Exchange. Commercial banks may set exchange rates and commissions freely in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market

Yes. Financial institutions trade foreign exchange either via brokers or directly among themselves. As of December 31, 2019, 64 institutions, including 55 foreign exchange banks, participated in the spot foreign exchange market through brokers. Financial institutions are required to register with the MOEF to deal in foreign exchange. Foreign exchange bureaus, such as hotels, department stores, and travel agencies, need to register with Korea Customs Service. As of December 31, 2019, there were 1,493 foreign exchange bureaus. They may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the BOK and are limited to purchasing and selling banknotes.
denominated in foreign currency and purchasing traveler’s checks issued in a foreign country. Foreign Exchange Transaction Regulation Article 2-16, which regulates the tasks and duty of foreign exchange bureaus, was moved to Article 3-2.2. Foreign exchange bureaus can pay by domestic payment means to buy foreign currency or traveler’s check from residents or nonresidents. They are responsible for preparing exchange books, which contain exchange date, name of buyer (seller), personal information such as ID card number, exchange amount, applied exchange rate, and other transaction information and report the exchange books to Korea Customs Service. Spot foreign exchange transactions are allowed between security brokerages. The won–yuan spot foreign exchange market operates based on a market-making agreement with 11 designated market makers as of December 31, 2019.

Operated by the central bank No.
Foreign exchange standing facility No.
Allocation No.
Auction No.
Fixing No.
Interbank market Yes. Foreign exchange banks participate in the interbank market mainly to dispose of open foreign exchange positions arising from transactions with nonfinancial customers such as companies and nonresidents. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. Financial institutions participating in the interbank foreign exchange market have formed an autonomous committee, the Seoul Foreign Exchange Market Committee. Foreign exchange brokers, the BOK, and the government also participate in this committee. Ten institutions have been licensed as foreign exchange brokers, with licenses granted by the MOEF.

Over the counter Yes. Financial institutions transact directly among themselves.

Brokerage Yes. Most interbank transactions are handled through brokers who intervene between foreign exchange banks without holding a position. MOEF authorization is required to operate a foreign exchange brokerage business.

Market making Yes. Eleven foreign exchange banks are designated as market makers in the won–yuan spot foreign exchange market.

Forward exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange banks may freely carry out forward transactions between foreign currencies, as well as between won and foreign currencies in the interbank and customer markets. Effective March 19, 2020, the limits on banks’ foreign exchange derivatives contracts were increased to 50% from 40% of bank capital for domestic banks and to 250% from 200% for foreign bank branches, to prepare for a sudden volatility in the foreign exchange swap market as part of the COVID-19 pandemic response effort.

Official cover of forward operations No.

The reserve requirements on foreign currency deposit accounts are (1) 1% for nonresident/emigrant accounts and resident accounts opened by foreign exchange banks; (2) 2% for time deposits for maturities of more than one month and installment savings deposits for maturities of more than six months and certificates of deposit for maturities of more than 30 days; and (3) 7% for foreign currency deposits, including demand deposits, except those indicated above.

Effective April 16, 2020, as part of the pandemic response, the ratio that foreign exchange banks must maintain of the stock of high-quality liquid assets denominated in foreign currency to total net cash outflows denominated in foreign currency over the next 30 calendar days was temporarily eased to 70% from 80% for commercial banks and specialized banks (except Korea Development Bank). The ratio for Korea Development Bank remained unchanged at 60%.

Previously, effective January 1, 2019, foreign exchange banks had to maintain the following ratios of the stock of high-quality liquid assets denominated in foreign currency to total net cash outflows denominated in foreign currency over the next 30 calendar days: 80% or more (for commercial banks (previously 70%) and specialized banks (previously 60%) except Korea Development Bank) and 60% or more for Korea Development Bank (previously 50%).

In addition, foreign exchange banks must maintain a ratio of foreign currency funds borrowed with maturities of more than one year to foreign currency loans with maturities of one year or longer of 100/100 or more.

Nonfinancial business operators may acquire up to 4% of a bank’s total stock that have voting rights without restriction; acquisitions exceeding 4% require FSC approval.

Monetary policy framework

Inflation-targeting framework

Inflation target

Target number

Point target

01/01/2019

The inflation target for 2019 onward has been set at 2%. The Bank of Korea (BOK) will review the inflation target in consultation with the government every two years and explain the review to the public. If adjustment of the inflation target becomes inevitable, due for instance to unexpected domestic or global economic shocks or to changes in economic conditions, the BOK will adjust the target in consultation with the government. Previously, the inflation target of 2% was set for a three-year period (2016–2018).

Accountability

Other

01/01/2019

The Bank of Korea (BOK) publishes twice a year an inflation assessment, which includes price developments, future inflation forecasts and risks, and the monetary policy stance for achieving price stability, and provides explanations of the assessment to the public through various means (or channels), such as by holding governor’s press conferences. Previously, if the inflation deviated from the target by more than 0.5 percentage points in either direction for six consecutive months, the BOK would explain the reasons for the deviation, the prospect for inflation, the monetary policy strategy toward returning inflation to the target, etc., through a governor’s press conference. If the inflation subsequently deviates continuously, the BOK provided further explanations every three months.

UNMIK Regulation No. 1999/4 of September 2, 1999, “On the currency permitted to be used in Kosovo” specifies in Section 1 that “Parties to a contract or any voluntary transaction may denominate such transaction in any currency agreed on by the parties. Unless proven otherwise, such an agreement must be deemed to exist with regard to any foreign currency that is widely accepted in the Territory of Kosovo.”

Administrative Direction No. 1999/2 of October 4, 1999, “Implementing UNMIK Regulation No. 1999/4 of 2 September 1999, On the Currency Permitted to be used in Kosovo” designated Deutschmark (DEM) as the only currency to formulate accounts and to perform compulsory payments. Later, because of the changeover of DEM into euro, Administrative Direction No. 2001/24 of December 21, 2001, “Amending Administrative Direction No. 1999/2 implementing UNMIK Regulation No. 1999/4 on the currency permitted to be used in Kosovo” replaced DEM by euro (1 euro = 1.95583 DEM).

Foreign exchange market  Yes. Banks and other financial institutions may trade in foreign exchange among themselves at freely determined exchange rates.

Spot exchange market  Yes. Commercial banks and other financial institutions in Kosovo may purchase and sell euros for other currencies. There were 10 commercial banks and 44 foreign exchange bureaus participating in the foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2019. The foreign exchange market in Kosovo is limited because most international payments and transfers are done in euro. Foreign exchange bureaus must be licensed and operate under the CBK regulation. The number of authorized foreign exchange bureaus is not limited. Foreign exchange bureaus may not do business directly with the CBK, and their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of foreign exchange banknotes.

Interbank market
There were 10 commercial banks participating in the foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2019. The euro foreign exchange market operates according to a market-making agreement. The volume of interbank market is low as Kosovo does not have its own currency, and the euro is treated as a local currency.

Over the counter
Foreign exchange transactions continue to take place over the counter.

Market making
Banks are free to set their bid-ask rates in the interbank foreign exchange market. Ten banks and 46 foreign exchange bureaus are market participants who continuously quote buy and sell prices.

Forward exchange market
There is no forward exchange market in Kosovo, but there are no restrictions on forward deals by residents abroad. Some banks may offer a forward exchange rate contract, but there is no demand for such contracts.

Companies wishing to engage in foreign trade must register with the relevant ministry (however, this is not for the purpose for release of foreign exchange). Commercial banks may require documents verifying the purpose of the transaction before payment.

Imports are free of licensing requirements, except for certain products, consistent with international conventions (for example, arms, gold, diamonds, drugs, narcotics, hazardous waste). Some products, such as pharmaceuticals, fuel, and some agricultural products, require licenses, which are issued on a case-by-case basis. Imports are not limited according to quantity or value. There are statistical and security reporting requirements for residents’ external payments. Imports require only a commercial invoice, import customs declaration, and certificate of origin. From January 1, 2012, through December 31, 2015, Kosovo benefited from a preferential trade agreement with the EU. The Stabilisation and Association Agreement in force since April 1, 2016, extended the preferential trade agreement with the EU.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes. There are no minimum limits on investment portfolio held locally, except the insurer’s guarantee fund and properties as stated below:

Insurers operating in the Republic of Kosovo, with a prior approval from CBK, may invest their charter capital (guarantee fund) in the following investment categories:

1. Treasury bonds and other securities issued by the Government of Kosovo;
2. Deposits in euro currency into escrow account with commercial banks licensed in Kosovo, no more than 30% of the deposited amount in a single bank, and
3. Insurers are required to deposit and maintain at all time, 10% of their charter capital in cash in CBK.

Investment in real estate is admissible if the property is equipped with necessary documentation, including registration in the cadaster records in the name of the insurer or evidence that the purchase contract (or a pre-contract) has been notarized and the property has construction permit from the competent authorities.

There is a prior approval requirement for the investments of the insurer's guarantee fund.

Foreign exchange market

Yes. Commercial banks are free to determine the exchange rate in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market

Yes. The CBK provides foreign exchange to 23 authorized Islamic and conventional banking counterparties and 39 exchange companies. The local and foreign banks (Islamic and conventional) are subject to licensing by the CBK. All foreign exchange transactions must process through a bank or licensed exchange companies. The CBK does not normally disclose information concerning the volume of exchange transactions conducted with institutions at the declared rate. The exchange companies are subject to licensing by the CBK. They may make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBK, maintain accounts abroad, purchase and sell banknotes, and make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank

Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility

Yes. The CBK provides foreign exchange to authorized counterparties at the declared US dollar–Kuwaiti dinar rate versus verification of the underlying transactions’ bona fide nature. Dinars are quoted by the CBK against the US dollars on a total bid-ask spread of 10 basis points to authorized counterparties on the date of customer transactions. The CBK deals directly with the government and governmental entities.

Open general licenses: Yes.

Imports of industrial equipment and machinery and their spare parts require industrial licenses, which are valid for one-time use. Licenses are issued to registered and licensed industrial establishments with the approval of the Industrial Development Commission at the MCI. Private imports of personal objects may be permitted under individual or specific licenses. Registered importers handling a variety of commodities may obtain a general license valid for one year. Other importers must obtain specific licenses for individual commodities, which are also valid for one year.

Licenses with quotas: No.

Other nontariff measures: Yes.

Government procurement policies give preference to Kuwaiti-produced goods up to a price margin of 5% over goods produced in other GCC countries and 10% over goods produced in non-GCC countries.

Import taxes and/or tariffs: Yes.

In accordance with the GCC Customs Union, a minimum tariff of 5% applies to non-GCC imports; there are no tariffs on imports from other GCC members with at least 40% local value added. Imports of foodstuffs and some machinery and equipment, spare parts, and raw materials are exempt from import duties. Kuwait applies higher tariffs in industries with domestic producers that supply at least 40% of the local market. Tariff rates differ depending on the domestic-value-added content of the products in question. If domestically produced goods contain at least 20%, 30%, or 40% of domestic value added, protective duties of 15%, 20%, and 25%, respectively, may be applied to competing imports. The degree of protection is reduced by 5% in the case of consumer goods. The maximum duty imposed on products that compete with locally manufactured goods is 100%. Duties on goods imported from GAFTA member countries are being gradually reduced.

Taxes collected through the exchange system: No.

State import monopoly: No.

<td>Local banks are allowed to extend credit facilities in KD to nonresidents, without the need of seeking the CBK’s prior consent, for financing contracts whose value may not exceed KD 40 million, provided such facilities do not exceed 70% of the total value of each contract. As for other contracts or credit facilities exceeding such limits, they must require the prior consent of the CBK. The following conditions must be satisfied in respect of all KD credit facilities extended by the local banks to their nonresident customers: The credit facilities extended in KD to nonresidents must be limited to financing the contracts denominated in KD, and awarded by government bodies in the State of Kuwait. The financing bank must verify that the contracts to be financed are in fact real contracts, and must retain copies thereof. (2) Finance extended for such cases must be limited for each separate contract, and may not be concluded through general credit lines extended to the borrowing customers. (3) A Letter of Assignment over all the financed contract payments must be signed in favor of the lending bank. Such payments must be utilized for repayment of the granted credit facilities in compliance with such facilities' conditions.</td>

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) | Yes.
Credit facilities local banks may extend in dinars to nonresidents are limited to those that finance dinar-denominated contracts awarded by government entities in Kuwait, in accordance with the terms and controls in the CBK instructions of May 2, 1995. When extending credit facilities to their resident and nonresident customers for work and projects outside Kuwait, local banks must comply with the minimum limits under CBK Instruction No. BSB/105/1993 concerning the Rationalization and Organization of Banks' Credit Policy and the relevant circulars. The following are relevant in this regard: (1) Credit must be extended on a sound basis, particularly regarding the purpose of the credit; the consistency of the credit type, size, and currency with the actual needs of the customer and within the limits of the financed contract; and use of the credit for the purpose for which it was extended. In general, an integrated credit study is required on the feasibility of the requested credit, taking into account the soundness of the customer’s financial position, the availability of repayment sources, and the collateral submitted, among other considerations. (2) Banks should minimize their exposure to credit risk by distributing risk across a wide customer base, diversifying their credit facilities portfolio and distributing it across various sectors of the economy, and establishing limits for risk associated with foreign credit, taking into account the nature of country risks. Banks must periodically review their credit policies and introduce appropriate amendments, particularly in regard to applied limits and delegated authority, all within the strategic direction of the bank and current developments.

Lending locally in foreign exchange | Yes.
Banks are also required to follow up the customer’s observance of the purpose for which these facilities were extended, whereby that review should encompass assessing the customer’s need for the requested foreign currencies to finance his activities, and the real utilization of such currencies within the request for credit. Additionally, banks must verify the availability of sources of repayment in the same currencies.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices

Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Kyrgyz Republic states that, as of May 23, 2019, Kyrgyz Republic maintained an MCP arising from the use of the official exchange rate for government transactions. The official rate may differ by more than 2% from market rates because it is based on the average transaction-weighted rate of the preceding day. In practice, the official and market exchange rates have stayed within a 2% band since early 2018. The authorities intend to continue to use the official exchange rate for government transactions. (Country Report No. 19/208)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

Yes. In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

Other security restrictions

Yes. Measures have been adopted that restrict financial transactions and freeze the accounts of certain individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to UNSC resolutions, the current FATF list of organizations associated with terrorism, and a list of individuals and entities involved in terrorism and/or extremist activities, or in the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, compiled by the State Financial Intelligence Service under the Government of the Kyrgyz Republic (GKR).

The NBKR’s goal is to achieve and maintain price stability, as specified in the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking. In accordance with the Medium-Term Monetary Policy Guidelines (approved by Executive Board Resolution No. 2017-P-07/51-1-(DKP) of December 13, 2017), the intermediate target of monetary policy is an inflation forecast based on a comprehensive analysis of the macroeconomic situation in the Kyrgyz Republic and in the external environment. The National Bank’s discount rate as the main monetary policy instrument is a benchmark for the cost of funds in the money market. Short-term money market interest rates serve as an operational monetary policy benchmark.

The National Bank defines the procedure and conditions for the performance of transactions in the interbank foreign exchange market, and it develops and implements a single foreign exchange policy and regulation in the Kyrgyz Republic. Transactions involving the purchase and sale (exchange) of cash and noncash domestic and/or foreign currency within the Kyrgyz Republic are not restricted and are performed at banks, specialized financial and financial and lending institutions, microfinance companies, microcredit companies, credit unions, and exchange bureaus with the relevant license from the National Bank.

Transactions involving the purchase and sale (exchange) of cash and noncash domestic and/or foreign currency, as well as requirements imposed on authorized persons, are determined by the National Bank (Article 36 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking). As of June 30, 2020, there were 23 licensed commercial banks (including one branch of a foreign bank), 396 foreign currency exchange bureaus, 9 microfinance companies licensed to perform certain banking operations in foreign currency, and 2 microcredit companies licensed to perform the purchase and sale of foreign currency on their own behalf.

In accordance with Article 11 of Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 206 of December 16, 2016, on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking, commission fees and rates for the performance of banking services are set independently by the persons performing the banking services, in accordance with the requirements of the banking legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic.

In accordance with Article 35 of the same law, the official exchange rate is determined and announced by the National Bank on the basis of the market spot exchange rate and other market rates. The official exchange rate is determined and announced by the National Bank with an obligation on the part of the National Bank to purchase and sell foreign currency at the announced exchange rates, and at the same time, pursuant to paragraph 2 of the same article, the spot exchange rate and other market rates are freely determined between the seller and the buyer, unless otherwise established by the National Bank.

In accordance with Article 2-1 of Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 116 of...
July 22, 2011, on Competition, anti-monopoly regulation in the banking services market is performed by the NBKR in accordance with regulatory legal acts, compliance with which is mandatory for commercial banks and other financial and lending institutions licensed and regulated by the NBKR.

The sale and purchase of cash and noncash foreign exchange through clearing transactions, payment of traveler’s checks, and payments in foreign currency are limited to NBKR-licensed banks. Licenses to perform the activity of a foreign currency exchange bureau are issued only to legal entities. The activities of foreign currency exchange bureaus are licensed and regulated by the NBKR. Foreign currency exchange bureaus may conduct only transactions specified in their licenses. They may not perform foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB. Legal entities that open exchange bureaus and have a license to perform exchange transactions with foreign exchange cash may without restriction purchase and sell using their own resources (within the limits of their reported working capital) and on their own behalf only foreign exchange cash, and only in exchange for cash domestic currency. Exchange bureaus must provide information on the sources of their working capital (NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 53/10 of November 27, 2014). If a legal entity opens an account abroad, this does not mean that this is an account of the foreign currency exchange bureau. A foreign currency exchange bureau itself may not open an account abroad. To engage in the purchase and sale of foreign currency on its own behalf, credit union and microcredit company have to obtain an additional license from the NBKR. A microfinance company has to obtain a license to perform certain banking operations in foreign currency. A specialized financial and lending institution has to obtain licenses to perform exchange operations with foreign currency.

Operated by the central bank: Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility: Yes. The NBKR participates in the foreign exchange market for the purpose of smoothing out excessive fluctuations in the exchange rate. The NBKR deals directly with market participants. Foreign currency interventions have not been performed on an ongoing basis but have been isolated events.

Allocation: No.

Auction: No.

Fixing: No.

Interbank market: Yes. The foreign exchange market operates within the framework of the ATS. Electronic trading is carried out daily from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. except on weekends. To become a participant in the interbank foreign exchange market, a financial institution must obtain a license for foreign exchange transactions and sign the Agreement on Participation in ATS. The NBKR grants licenses for foreign exchange transactions. Twenty-three commercial banks (including one branch of a foreign bank) have been licensed and have signed agreements on participation in the ATS as of June 30, 2020. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads, nor are there any commissions. The NBKR performs transactions directly with market participants at their quoted rates.

Over the counter: No.

Brokerage: No.

Market making: Yes. Market participants continuously report buying and selling prices and volumes to other market participants. The minimum allowable volume of an ATS bid for US dollars is US$50,000. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads, and no commission is charged by market participants. The foreign exchange market operates on the basis of market-making agreements.

Forward exchange market No.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments No. The Civil Code of the Kyrgyz Republic states that the som is legal tender throughout the entire territory of the Kyrgyz Republic, and it must be accepted at face value. Law No. 206 of December 16, 2016, on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking also stipulates that the som is the sole legal tender within the Kyrgyz Republic and legal entities and individuals are required to accept it without restriction.

Credit operations No. The Civil Code of the Kyrgyz Republic states that the som is legal tender throughout the entire territory of the Kyrgyz Republic, and it must be accepted at face value. The Law on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking also stipulates that the som is the sole legal tender within the Kyrgyz Republic and legal entities and individuals are required to accept it without restriction.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. Legal tender is the domestic currency, but foreign currency may be used for deposit and loan operations. However, pursuant to National Bank Executive Board Resolution No. 7/3 of February 10, 2016, amendments and additions were made to regulatory legal acts of the NBKR, according to which financial and lending institutions are prohibited from providing consumer and mortgage loans in foreign currency to individual borrowers. Pursuant to Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 135 of March 18, 2016, monetary obligations on price tags and labels for goods (products), articles made of precious metals and precious stones, and price lists for services provided must be expressed in the domestic currency of the Kyrgyz Republic.

Yes.

Technical indebtedness to official bilateral creditors is allowed as a result of discussions with Paris Club creditors in March 2005 on restructuring the Kyrgyz Republic’s external debt. Within the framework of agreements with the Paris Club, debt consolidation and restructuring agreements have been signed with Denmark, France, Germany, Japan, Russia, and Turkey. In addition, the Kyrgyz Republic has negotiated and entered into agreements on settling debt to Uzbekistan and the Kuwaiti Arab Economic Development Fund and on writing off debt to China, India, and Pakistan. In 2011, an agreement was entered into writing off a debt to Turkey (US$49.2 million). In 2012, an agreement was signed for settling the Kyrgyz Republic’s debt to Russia (US$488.9 million). In 2013, the ratification procedure was completed on an agreement between the Kyrgyz Republic and Russia on settling debt to Russia for credits previously provided, signed May 22, 2013, and a debt of US$188.9 million received a one-time write-off. Debt in the amount of US$300 million will be written off in stages from 2016 through 2025, in annual installments of US$30 million. In accordance with the Agreement on the Settlement of Debt to Russia, debt in the amount of US$30 million was written off in March 2016. On June 20, 2017, a Protocol was signed to the Agreement between the GKR and the Government of Russia on the settlement of the debt of the Kyrgyz Republic to Russia on previously granted loans, signed September 20, 2012, providing for a one-time write-off on the date of the entry into force of the Protocol of 100% of the amount of the debt (US$240 million). The Protocol took effect on February 22, 2018; thus, there is no state debt of the Kyrgyz Republic to Russia.

In 2014, the Agreement on the Restructuring of the Kyrgyz Republic’s Debt to the Export–Import Bank of Korea was ratified. In 2014, an agreement on a second amendment to the Agreement on the Modernization of the Telecommunications Network Between the Kyrgyz Republic Government and the Export–Import Bank of Korea Project took effect, according to which the Kyrgyz Republic’s debt to the Republic of Korea was restructured. The Debt Restructuring Agreement of November 19, 2013, makes it possible to reduce annual payments from 1.2 billion Korean won (about US$1.1 million) to 0.4 billion Korean won (US$0.3 million). The deadlines for repayment of the principal have been extended to Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) Yes.

Legal entities and individuals may participate in the precious metals market in transactions in minted, standard, and nonstandard bullion. Pursuant to Article 7(2) of the Kyrgyz Republic on Law of Precious Metals and Precious Stones, the Kyrgyz Republic Government and the National Bank have priority in the purchase of refined precious metals. Pursuant to Article 7(3), precious metals sold in primary trading may subsequently be traded freely in the secondary market.

On domestic ownership and/or trade Yes. Relations involving the purchase and sale of precious metals in the form of measured, standard, and nonstandard bullion in primary trading within the Kyrgyz Republic are governed by the Regulation on the Performance of Transactions Involving the Purchase and Sale of Precious Metals in the Form of Measured, Standard, and Nonstandard Bullion, pursuant to Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 834 of December 9, 2002. The legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic does not provide for restrictions on domestic ownership of gold or trading domestically in gold.

The Department of Precious Metals within the MOF of the Kyrgyz Republic performs assay supervision to ensure compliance by legal entities and individuals with the requirements of the law and approved standards for the production, processing, and use of precious metals and precious stones, and for the manufacture of jewelry and other items thereof, regardless of the form of ownership.

On external trade Yes.

In accordance with the regulation on the import and export of precious metals and raw materials containing precious metals into and from the customs territory of the EAEU, approved by Decision No. 30 of the Eurasian Economic Commission (EAEC) Board of April 21, 2015, imports and exports of unprocessed gold or silver (only refined gold or silver in the form of ingots, plates, powder, and granules, as well as gold used for the minting of coins) into and from the customs territory of the EAEU are subject to licensing.

2045, with payments scheduled to begin in 2018. This will substantially reduce the burden on the expenditure side of the Kyrgyz Republic budget with regard to the servicing of external public debt over the medium and long term. In March 2016, on the basis of the Agreement of March 31, 2010, and the Agreement of December 11, 2012, debt to the KfW bank (Germany) in the amount of 13.5 million euros was written off.
The import and export of precious metals and precious stones in any form, with the exception of those subject to a state monopoly in accordance with Article 4 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on Precious Metals and Precious Stones, into and from the territory of the Kyrgyz Republic, are performed by legal entities and individuals in accordance with decisions of the EAEC and the legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic, accompanied by mandatory declaration at customs control posts.

The Kyrgyz Republic Government’s State Financial Market Regulation and Supervision Service (Gosfinnadzor) is the authorized government body implementing a unified government policy in the area of supervision and regulation of the securities market. Controls on securities are enforced by Gosfinnadzor, except for controls on the following securities: government securities, municipal securities, and securities of the NBKR (according to Article 1(2) of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the Securities Market).

Regulation of the market in government securities (government treasury bills, government treasury bonds) of the GKR is administered by the MOF of the Kyrgyz Republic pursuant to its legal regulatory acts.

The NBKR acts as the agent for placement and servicing of issues of GKR securities. The parallel placement and trading of government securities are performed through the NBKR and the Kyrgyz Stock Exchange closed joint-stock company; the main depository of government securities is the NBKR, while the sub-depository, which is authorized to carry out functions related to the performance of depository activity of its depositors with respect to operations with government securities, executed through the Kyrgyz Stock Exchange closed joint-stock company, is the Central Depository closed joint-stock company.

The process of placing and servicing issues of Kyrgyz Republic Government securities is connected with the holding of placement auctions, the maintenance of a depository account, the organization of secondary trading, and the performance of redemption, which are regulated by the following regulatory acts: Regulation No. 556 of October 2, 2008, on the Issue, Placement, Circulation, and Redemption of Kyrgyz Republic Government Securities; Regulation No. 20/1 of June 26, 2013, on the Procedures for the Placement, Reoffering, Additional Placement and Repurchase of and Performance of Settlements with Securities of the GKR through the NBKR; Regulation No. 10/9 of March 28, 2013, on the Depository Account of Government Securities placed through the NBKR.

- redemption of the issuer’s securities;
- other events (facts) provided for by regulatory legal acts of the Kyrgyz Republic (according to Article 31, paragraphs 1 and 3, of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the Securities Market).

Under Article 85 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking (2017), any individual or legal entity is required to obtain written permission from the National Bank if intending, singly or jointly with other parties, regardless of the method of acquisition of ownership of shares, including inheritance or reinstatement of ownership, to acquire a threshold stake in the capital of a bank, including a significant stake and control, which may be achieved through an additional acquisition of shares. A threshold stake in a bank’s capital refers to direct or indirect ownership or management, singly or jointly with other parties, of 10% or more, 20% or more, 33% or more, 50% or more, and 67% or more of a bank’s voting shares.

Legal entities that are not engaged in banking or financial activity may not, singly or jointly with other persons: exercise direct or indirect ownership or management of more than 20% of the voting shares of any type of a bank; individuals and legal entities residing and/or registered in offshore zones or that have as stakeholders affiliated persons registered in offshore zones, a list of which is established by the National Bank, individuals and legal entities subject to international sanctions adopted by the UNSC, as well as... individuals and legal entities registered in states subject to international sanctions adopted by the UNSC that prohibit legal relationships with said persons and are binding on the Kyrgyz Republic may not be bank shareholders. In the event of a change in the stakeholders in microcredit companies and microcredit agencies, written approval from the NBKR is required. Acquisition of more than 20% of the shares of microfinance companies requires NBKR approval. Pursuant to Article 85 of Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 206 of December 16, 2016, on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking: (1) A significant stake refers to direct or indirect ownership or management, singly or jointly with other persons, of 10% or more of the voting shares of a joint-stock company or 10% or more of the authorized capital of a legal entity that is not a joint-stock company; (2) indirect ownership refers to the ability to exert a substantial influence, through a third party, on the adoption of decisions by a bank’s management bodies, significant stakeholders of a bank, persons who exercise control over a bank, or participants in a banking group.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Securities of foreign issuers may be offered publicly in the Kyrgyz Republic following the procedure established under the Law on the Securities Market and other regulatory legal acts of the Kyrgyz Republic. In the event of a securities issue, a public offering of the securities is prohibited if the issuer has not registered the terms of the public offering and a prospectus. Nonresidents may buy and sell shares in accordance with current regulations. No later than three business days from the date of announcement, issuers must, in the prescribed manner, notify the authorized government body for the regulation of the securities market. Material facts include an event (fact) that could have an impact on the issuer’s financial and commercial activity and/or on the price of securities, including:
- changes in the list of persons serving on the issuer’s governing bodies (with the exception of a general shareholders’ meeting);
- changes in the size of participation of persons serving on elected bodies for the management of the issuer in the capital of the issuer, as well as its subsidiary and dependent companies;
- changes in the list of persons holding 5% or more of the securities (equity stakes), as well as changes in the equity stakes of persons holding 5% or more of the securities (equity stakes);
- changes in the list of legal entities in which the issuer holds 20% or more of the authorized capital;
- the appearance in the issuer’s registry of a person who holds more than 5% of the issuer’s voting shares (equity stakes, equity interest);
- one-time transactions of the issuer the amount of which or the value of property of which constitutes 10% or more of the assets of the issuer on the date of the transaction;
- a fact (or facts) resulting in a one-time increase or decrease in the value of the issuer’s assets by more than 10%;
- a fact (or facts) resulting in a one-time increase in the issuer’s net profit or net loss by more than 10%;
- reorganization of the issuer, its subsidiaries or dependent companies;
- income accrued and/or payable (paid) on the issuer’s securities;
- decisions of general meetings;
- redemption of the issuer’s securities;
- other events (facts) provided for by regulatory legal acts of the Kyrgyz Republic. These provisions of the Kyrgyz Republic legislation are mandatory for residents and nonresidents under the same general terms.

Purchase abroad by residents: Yes. These transactions are governed by the law of the country on whose territory the securities issue is registered. Insurance companies may not invest abroad more than 20% of insurance reserves. For banks, no single investment, including any financial contributions and credits in each nonbank organization – and including during the establishment and/or acquisition of a subsidiary or affiliated company – may exceed 15% of the bank’s equity (regulatory) capital; total investments may not exceed 60% of the bank’s equity (regulatory) capital.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No.

Shares to be offered by a resident for sale and/or circulation abroad must be registered in advance in accordance with legislation. Registration may be denied if the requirements of the Kyrgyz Republic legislation on the securities market are not met. For the purpose of the state registration of the terms of a public offering and a prospectus, the following documents are submitted to the authorized government agency responsible for regulation of the securities market: an application; the terms of the public securities offering, which meet the requirements of the legislation on the securities market; a prospectus, which meets the requirements of the legislation on the securities market; a copy of a document confirming the registration of the issuer as a legal entity (unless the issuer has previously submitted the given documents); a copy of the legal entity’s charter, including any amendments and additions to it (unless the issuer has previously submitted the given document); a copy of a document confirming the adoption of a decision by the issuer regarding the public securities offering; a document confirming payment of the fee for the registration of the terms of the public securities offering and prospectus.

The authorized government agency responsible for regulation of the securities market makes a decision regarding the state registration of the terms of a public securities offering and prospectus within 15 business days of the date they are submitted to the authorized government agency responsible for regulation of the securities market.

The NBKR licenses and carries out prudential regulation of the lending activities of financial and lending institutions. Commercial banks operate under a license to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Commercial banks may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses to perform banking operations based on Islamic financing principles in domestic and foreign currencies.

Nonbank financial and lending institutions operate under a license/certificate of registration to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Nonbank financial and lending institutions may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses to perform banking operations based on these principles in domestic and foreign currencies. Within the context of implementing the Kyrgyz Republic Government Affordable Housing Program for 2015–2020, amendments have been made to the Kyrgyz Republic Laws on the Licensing and Permitting System in the Kyrgyz Republic and on Collateral, to the Civil Code of the Kyrgyz Republic, and also to the Law on the Protection of Bank Deposits to set up a mechanism for contractual savings for housing. Thus, to ensure the functioning of this mechanism, the National Bank drafted and adopted the Regulation on the Licensing of Housing Savings Credit Companies and the Rules for Regulation of the Activities of Housing Savings Credit Companies, and amendments and additions have also been made to current regulatory legal acts of the National Bank with regard to regulating the activities of housing savings credit companies. These regulatory legal acts are posted on the official website of the National Bank. To date, the NBKR, based on the results of its review of [sic] submitted by the AkBosogo Housing Savings Credit Open Joint-Stock Company, granted approval on April 29, 2020, for state registration of the AkBosogo Housing Savings Credit Open Joint-Stock Company.

With a view to bringing regulatory legal acts of the National Bank into line with the Kyrgyz Republic Law on Guarantee Funds in the Kyrgyz Republic, the Kyrgyz Republic National Bank Executive Board adopted regulatory legal acts on licensing and on the regulation and supervision of activities of guarantee funds. These regulatory legal acts are posted on the official website of the National Bank.

With the aim of providing support to businesses and promoting further development of their activities by increasing access to financial resources, given the need to mitigate the negative consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic, and bearing in mind the Fund’s goals and objectives, the National Bank is providing for capitalization of the Fund in the amount of 1.0 billion soms. At a special general meeting of the Fund’s shareholders on May 15,
The shareholders adopted a decision to increase the Fund’s capital by 1.0 billion soms at the expense of National Bank resources. These resources will be used by the Fund to offer additional guarantees for the obligations of borrower businesses, and also for placement as deposits with commercial banks, which will provide banks with additional resources for lending.

Commercial banks operate under a license to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Commercial banks may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses to perform banking operations based on Islamic financing principles in domestic and foreign currencies. For the purpose of minimizing indirect foreign exchange risks in lending in foreign currency, amendments and additions were made to certain regulatory legal acts of the NBKR. Thus, NBKR Executive Board Resolutions Nos. 22/6 and 22/7 of April 15, 2015, lowered the requirements for loan loss provisions in national currency to 0% and increased them for loans in foreign currency to 2.5%, or 5%, or 7.5% depending on the client’s income structure in national and foreign currency. NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 53/11 of September 16, 2015, introduced amendments concerning the requirement to (1) conduct an annual internal audit of the internal control system of credit risk because of foreign currency risk, including the classification of loans/assets; (2) include in the internal regulations of the bank policies, procedures, and a comprehensive system of permanent identification, assessment, monitoring, and control for the identification and measurement of credit risk, including the credit risk because of foreign exchange risk; (3) assess the ability of the customer to service the foreign currency loan during the following 12 months if revenues are mainly in the national currency, taking into account the credit risk because of adverse changes in the exchange rate; (4) analyze at least once a month (or immediately if the official exchange rate changes by 5% or more) the impact of exchange rate changes and identify possible losses from fluctuations in exchange rates and their impact on borrower solvency. NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 78/23 of December 23, 2015, increased from 7.5% to 10% the loan loss provisions on foreign currency loans for borrowers whose income in foreign currency is less than 50%. National Bank Executive Board Resolution No. 73/ of February 10, 2016, on Amendments and Additions to Certain Resolutions of the NBKR Executive Board, prohibited financial and lending institutions from providing consumer and mortgage loans in foreign currency to individual borrowers.

Nonbank financial and lending institutions operate under a license/certificate of registration to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Nonbank financial and lending institutions may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses/certificates of registration to perform banking operations based on these principles in domestic and foreign currencies. With a view to minimizing indirect foreign exchange risks when lending in foreign currency, amendments and additions were made to certain regulatory legal acts of the NBKR. Thus, the requirements regarding reserves to cover losses in domestic currency...
were changed pursuant to NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 2020-P-33/35-(NFKU) of June 17, 2020.
In accordance with Articles 20 and 68 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking, the aforementioned resolution of the National Bank Executive Board made amendments to various resolutions of the NBKR Executive Board.
In accordance with the Regulation on the Issue, Placement, Circulation, and Redemption of Kyrgyz Republic Government Securities, approved by Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 556 of October 2, 2008, the Kyrgyz Republic Government has the right to issue government treasury bonds in the domestic currency of the Kyrgyz Republic and in foreign currency.
The purpose of issuing government securities is to provide financing for the current national budget deficit and refinancing of government debt that is coming due. The specific terms and reasons for issuing government treasury bonds denominated in foreign exchange are not provided for in regulatory legal acts on government securities.
Commercial banks that have entered into an agreement on participation in auctions with the NBKR have direct access to auctions for the placement of government securities, as do institutional investors. Other interested parties may participate in auctions for the placement of government securities through commercial banks or the Kyrgyz Stock Exchange closed joint-stock company.

Differential reserve requirements for commercial banks apply. The NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 78/7 of December 23, 2015, on establishing reserve requirements amounts for liabilities included in the calculation base:
(1) for liabilities in the domestic currency in the amount of 4.0% of total liabilities in domestic currency, included in the calculation base;
(2) for liabilities in Armenian drams, Belarusian rubels, Kazakhstani tenge, Chinese renminbi, and Russian rubles in the amount of 4.0% of liabilities in domestic currency, included in the calculation base; and
(3) for liabilities in foreign currency in the amount of 12.0% of total liabilities in domestic currency, included in the calculation base.
The list of liabilities included in the calculation base for required reserves includes all deposits of individuals and legal entities, as well as deposits of the Kyrgyz Republic Government and local government authorities. Commercial banks deposit required reserves in a correspondent account with the NBKR. The NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 16/5 of April 23, 2014, specifies the procedure for compliance with reserve requirements, in accordance with which the base period for compliance with reserve requirements is four calendar weeks. The volume of required reserves is determined on the basis of the average daily calculation base for the previous base period, and the amount of required reserves is established by the NBKR Executive Board. The required reserve value that is established remains in effect throughout the four weeks of the base period. The som equivalent of foreign exchange liabilities included in the calculation base is calculated daily at the NBKR’s official exchange rate. Monitoring of compliance with required reserves is carried out at the end of the four-week base period. Reserve requirements are deemed to have been met if for the base period as a whole the difference between the amount of funds in a commercial bank’s correspondent account with the NBKR and the amount of required reserves is positive or equal to 0.
The volume of funds on a commercial bank’s correspondent account for compliance with the reserve requirements on a daily basis must not be below the minimum threshold level determined by the NBKR Executive Board. The minimum threshold level is, effective April 1, 2019, 80% (previously 90%) of a bank’s required reserves for the relevant period. The amount of required reserves, the list of liabilities to be included in the calculation base, and the interest rate for meeting required reserve standards are set by the Executive Board of the NBKR. The interest rate for meeting required reserve standards is equal to 0. In the event of a failure to meet the requirements regarding the daily minimum amount of required reserves, a commercial bank must pay an interest penalty equal to three times the National Bank’s discount rate on the amount of the daily shortfall.

Insurance reserves:

At least 80% of insurance entities’ insurance (technical) reserves, minus a reinsurer’s share, must be invested locally, unless stipulated otherwise by law or in international agreements to which the Kyrgyz Republic is a party and that have been ratified in accordance with legally established procedures.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

No.

Pension assets must be invested according to the principles of reliability, safekeeping, liquidity, and diversification.

A pension savings fund (referred to hereinafter as a fund) is a legal entity engaged in activity to attract pension contributions and make pension payments on the basis of a license under Kyrgyz law: for the purpose of providing private pension security to the fund’s participants under private pension agreements; as a participant in the mandatory pension insurance savings system pursuant to Kyrgyz laws on mandatory pension insurance; for the purpose of providing corporate pension security to the fund’s participants under corporate pension security agreements; for the purpose of providing professional pension insurance to the fund’s participants under professional pension insurance agreements (Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 101 of July 25, 2019, on Amendments to the Kyrgyz Republic Law on Pension Savings Funds in the Kyrgyz Republic).

The State Financial Market Regulation and Supervision Service under the Kyrgyz Republic Government regulates the issue, trading, and public offering of securities of the Kyrgyz Republic and securities of foreign issuers, as well as the prospectuses of such offers, in accordance with the requirements of the given law and other laws of the Kyrgyz Republic governing the nonbank financial market. In accordance with the Kyrgyz Republic laws on Pension Savings Funds in the Kyrgyz Republic and on Investing Funds to Finance the Funded Part of the State Social Insurance Pension in the Kyrgyz Republic, there are no maximum limits on the purchase by domestic pension funds of securities issued by nonresidents. In the Kyrgyz Republic, a pension fund is not a joint-stock company and may not issue securities (Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 216 on Pension Savings Funds in the Kyrgyz Republic of December 11, 2013).

The rules for the investment of pension savings assets, approved by Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 590 of August 19, 2015, do not provide for the investment of pension savings assets abroad.

Pension savings may be placed in the following investment assets:

1. government securities – at least 40% of the value of pension savings;
2. bonds secured by issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic traded on the stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic – no more than 30% of the value of pension savings;
3. shares of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic created in the form of open joint-stock companies listed on the stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic – no more than 40% of the value of pension savings;
4. mortgage-backed securities and housing certificates issued in accordance with the legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic – no more than 15% of the value of pension savings (mortgage-backed securities refer to mortgage-backed bonds and housing certificates);
5. deposits in financial organizations – no more than 30% of the value of pension savings. It is allowed to invest in bonds with the security of one issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, shares of one issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, mortgage securities (housing certificates) of one issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, deposits of one credit organization – no more than 10% of pension savings.
savings for each type. Pension savings may be placed or invested in corporate securities of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic included in the quotation list of the stock exchange in the first (highest) and second (following the highest) categories.

Article 24 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the Investment of Funds for the Financing of the Savings Portion of Pensions under State Social Insurance in the Kyrgyz Republic, and the Rules for the Investment of Pension Savings Assets, approved by Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 463 of August 29, 2016, apply. Pension savings may be placed in the following assets:

1. government securities, in an amount not to exceed 40% of the value of pension savings;
2. secured bonds of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic that are traded in stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic – in an amount not to exceed 30% of the value of pension savings;
3. stocks of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic that were established in the form of open joint-stock companies and are listed on stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic, in an amount not to exceed 40% of the value of pension savings;
4. mortgage securities and housing certificates issued in accordance with the laws of the Kyrgyz Republic, in an amount not to exceed 15% of the value of pension savings. For the purposes of these rules, mortgage securities are understood to mean mortgage-backed bonds and housing certificates;
5. deposits at financial and lending institutions – in an amount not to exceed 30% of the value of pension savings.

Furthermore, investments in secured bonds of a single issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, in the stocks of a single issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, in the mortgage-backed securities (housing certificates) of a single issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, and in deposits at lending institutions are not to exceed 10% of the value of pension savings for each type of investment.

Pension savings may be placed or invested in corporate securities of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic included in the quotation list of the stock exchange in the first (highest) and second (following the highest) categories.

Legal entities that are registered in offshore zones or whose stakeholders, stockholders, and affiliates include legal entities registered in offshore zones, or individuals residing in offshore zones, or who are stockholders (stakeholders) in legal entities registered in offshore zones, are not permitted to serve as management companies for pension savings assets.

An investment fund does not have the right to invest more than, effective April 29, 2019, 20% (previously 15%) of the fund’s total net assets in the securities of a single issuer, or in the shares of a limited liability company, with the exception of investment funds for qualified investors and investments in government securities and securities guaranteed by the Kyrgyz Republic Government.

Investment funds are permitted to invest in foreign corporate securities (shares, bonds), in the following cases: (1) the issuer has a credit rating determined by the Kyrgyz Republic Government to be acceptable for investment of an investment fund’s resources, assigned by a rating agency authorized by the government agency responsible for the regulation of the securities market; (2) the securities must have an official quote (listing) rating determined by the government agency responsible for the regulation of the securities market to be acceptable for investment of an investment.

An investment fund does not have the right to invest more than 20% of the fund’s total net assets in the securities of a single issuer or in the shares of a limited liability company, with the exception of investment funds for qualified investors and investments in government securities and securities guaranteed by the Kyrgyz Republic Government.

The composition of an investment fund’s portfolio must comply with the following requirements based on a percentage of the value of its net assets: (1) a minimum of 10% in deposits in highly liquid assets, such as cash, Kyrgyz Republic Government or NBKR securities, or deposits in commercial banks with maturity up to six months; (2) a maximum of 20% in commercial bank deposits; (3) a maximum of 15% in securities of the same issuer, except for government securities and securities guaranteed by the Kyrgyz Republic Government; (4) a maximum of 20% in a single real estate investment; and (5) a maximum of 15% in the authorized capital of limited liability companies.

These requirements are the maximum limits on the portion of the investment portfolio held locally.

An investment fund may not: (1) invest in assets not indicated in its investment statement; (2) invest resources in securities issued by persons related to the investment fund, or by its depository, independent auditor, independent appraiser, or their affiliates; (3) conclude agreements on the sale of securities it does not possess and has no right to possess; (4) provide loans of cash or other property; (5) guarantee or promise the repurchase or buyback of shares issued by a joint-stock investment fund without an obligation to repurchase the shares; (6) acquire securities issued by other investment funds; (7) perform transactions with its affiliates; (8) establish subsidiaries; (9) guarantee or promise profit (income) or an increase in the value of securities it issues; or (10) solicit loan capital if the total amount subject to repayment would exceed 10% of the net asset value of the investment fund on the day the credit (loan) agreement is signed. The credit (loan) may be obtained for a period of not more than six months, without right of extension. A credit (loan) agreement may be concluded by a joint-stock investment fund or a mutual fund management company only to meet a short-term need for cash for the redemption of securities issued by the investment fund.

There are no currency-matching regulations on the assets/liabilities composition in investments funds provided for under the legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic, that is, an investment fund may perform all operations in both the local currency and foreign currency. The value of the net assets of investments funds is determined in the domestic currency of the Kyrgyz Republic, however.

The de jure exchange arrangement is a managed float. The Bank of Lao P.D.R. (BOL) allows the exchange rate to be determined by foreign currency supply and demand, but it may participate in the market as the last resort when needed. In 2019, the kip followed a depreciating trend against the US dollar which contributed by external factor such as the appreciation of USD against major currencies and internal factor such as high demand of USD in Lao.
Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement. Data on interventions are not published.

Official exchange rate

Other monetary framework
Yes. The monetary policy framework is a mixed regime of monetary targeting and an exchange rate anchor. The BOL’s ultimate targets are to ensure the gross domestic product growth at 7% or higher and to maintain single-digit inflation below the gross domestic product growth rate. As of October 1, 2019, BOL for the first time issued the foreign currency saving bonds with the minimum face value of $1000 per bond. The purpose of issuance of these bonds was to execute monetary policy to maintain currency stability. BOL engaged in direct selling through authorize commercial banks. Yes. There were 44 commercial banks and 255 authorized foreign exchange bureaus as of the end of June 2020. Commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus must keep their buying and selling rates for kip–US dollar within ±0.25% of the daily reference rate set by the BOL. For the kip-euro, the margin between the buying and selling rates must not exceed 0.50%; for kip-baht, the margin between the buying and selling rates must not exceed 0.75%; and for other currencies, the margin must not exceed 2%. Both commercial banks and exchange bureaus are required to report daily their rates and transaction volumes to the BOL. The kip–US dollar exchange rate may move within ±5% of the previous year’s average. Commercial banks must conduct foreign exchange transactions in domestic and international markets according to BOL regulations. Foreign exchange bureaus may conduct foreign exchange transactions only in the domestic market and may buy only foreign notes and traveler’s checks. They may not buy other commercial paper such as bank drafts, payment orders, bills of exchange, promissory notes, or other payment documents or instruments in foreign currency to be used in international transactions.

Commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus are required to sell foreign exchange to the public within the limits and procedures periodically determined by the BOL. From December 12, 2016, when commercial banks and exchange bureaus sell large amount of foreign currency to individuals and entities for international transaction, the money must be credited to clients’ accounts at commercial banks. The money cannot be withdrawn in cash or transferred to another individual or entity’s account for use within country, and it must be used only for oversea settlement purpose.

The BOL acts as buyer and seller of last resort against foreign exchange supply and demand that cannot be executed during the regular market session.

Commercial banks may transact with other banks and ADs within the prescribed daily buying and selling rates. As of the end of June 2020, there were 40 commercial banks that were registered as members of the interbank market: of which 20 were active participants. Products that can be transacted in the market are Spot, Swaps, and Forward contracts. The minimum bid size is US$10,000 equivalent. There are two daily sessions for market interaction: 09:00–11:00 and 13:00–15:30. The BOL uses the final time slot for any intervention, if necessary.

In order to make the management of foreign currency trading in interbank more effective, Decision No. 1077/BOL was issued to replace the Decision No. 374/BOL with the purpose of clarifying some aspects such as the role of BOL in the interbank, the prohibition and penalty for violation, the responsibilities of each relevant departments of BOL.

Commercial banks operating under the BOL law may buy and sell foreign exchange in the interbank market through OTC operations.

Banks may enter into kip and foreign exchange forward contracts with maturities of 7 days, 14 days, 3 months, 6 months, and 1 year. Transactions between the BOL and commercial banks may be executed in US dollars or Thai baht and must be made against kip. Transactions between commercial banks or between commercial banks and business units may be executed in various currencies (euros, Japanese yen, Chinese renminbi, Australian dollars, among others), but must always be made against kip. The exchange rate may be set according to forward contracts between the BOL and banks, between banks, or between banks and business units.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) Yes.

No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2019.

All UNSC sanctions are directly applicable and enforced in Latvia and are transposed by the EU. Moreover, to prevent the particular endangerments of peace and stability, the EU has adopted separate set of sanctions binding on its Member States, all of which are reflected as follows: directed against certain individuals, groups, enterprises, and entities in view of the situation in Afghanistan; in view of the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina; in respect of Belarus; in view of the situation in Burundi; restrictive measures in view of the situation in the Central African Republic (amended effective September 23, 2019); directed against persons acting in violation of the arms embargo with regard to the Democratic Republic of the Congo; directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Egypt; in respect of the Republic of Guinea; directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies threatening the peace, security, or stability of the Republic of Guinea; directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies threatening the peace, security or stability of the Republic of Guinea-Bissau; in relation to serious human rights violations in Iran; in relation to the non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction in Iran; specific restrictions on economic and financial relations with Iraq; in relation to the non-proliferation of the weapons of mass destruction in respect of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea; in respect of Lebanon and specific restrictive measures against certain persons suspected of involvement in the assassination of former Lebanese Prime Minister Rafik Hariri; in view of the situation in Libya; in view of the situation in Mali; in respect of Myanmar; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Nicaragua (effective October 15, 2019); directed against certain natural or legal persons, entities, or bodies, in view of the situation in Somalia; in respect of the situation in South Sudan; in view of the situation in Sudan; in view of the situation in Syria; directed against certain persons and entities associated with Osama bin Laden, the Al-Qaida network, and the Taliban; directed against ISIL (Da’esh) and Al-Qaida and natural and legal persons, entities, or bodies associated with them; directed against certain persons and entities with a view to combating terrorism; directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Tunisia; in view of Turkey’s unauthorized drilling activities in the Eastern Mediterranean (effective November 12, 2019); directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Ukraine; in respect of actions undermining or threatening the territorial integrity, sovereignty, and independence of Ukraine; in view of Russia’s actions destabilizing the situation in Ukraine; restrictions on the import into the Union of goods originating in Crimea or Sevastopol, in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol; in view of the situation in Venezuela; in view of the situation in Yemen; in respect of Zimbabwe; against certain persons, entities, and bodies in connection with proliferation and use of chemical weapons. Restrictive measures against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in the Republic of Maldives were repealed with Council Regulation (EU) No. 2019/985 (effective June 18, 2019). Effective May 18, 2019, restrictive measures were imposed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in connection with cyberattacks threatening the Union or its Member States. Amendments to the Law on International Sanctions and National Sanctions of the Republic of Latvia were made to achieve, inter alia, the following main objectives in accordance with FATF standards and Moneyval recommendations: On June 21, 2018, and July 4, 2019, new competent authorities were established to supervise the business and financial sectors in relation to sanctions internal control systems and to control the effectiveness of these systems. Effective July 4, 2019, (1) To clarify the binding nature of sanctions, it was clearly stated that all persons must comply with and execute international and national sanctions. (2) Considering that effective implementation of sanctions requires that all parties act swiftly and decisively, a legal framework was created for UNSC resolutions to be implemented without delay. (3) To fully commit to better the international sanctions regimes, a legal framework was created for Latvia to propose international sanctions (UNSC and EU) without having to impose national sanctions. (4) To ensure that sanctions are effectively applied, all persons (legal and natural) in accordance with their competence have the obligation to immediately and without a prior notice to freeze for an indefinite period all financial resources and financial instruments, which are directly or indirectly, completely or partially, under the ownership, possession, holding, or control of the subject of sanctions, including those financial resources and financial instruments that have been transferred to third persons. Similar provisions are provided regarding financial services and other material and immaterial assets, such as immovable property, ships, airships, etc. (5) The system for reporting the possible breaches or the possible circumvention of sanctions was clarified. (6) To unify the standards for the implementation of sanctions and to allow all competent authorities to share their know-how, the cabinet of ministers in accordance with the amendments created a Sanctions Coordination Council by issuing corresponding by-laws. It is tasked with creating unified informative materials about sanctions for all interested parties. The council will also discuss possible cooperative solutions to complicated cases, and the authorities may share information about potential issues and risks. (7) Failure to comply with the requirements for the internal control system of sanctions may result in fines for natural persons and legal persons of up €UR 1 million. These amendments are supplemented by corresponding government regulations explaining in greater detail the obligations as set by law, including delisting and exemption procedures, identification of subjects of sanctions, and asset-freezing procedures.

Floating

Free floating
Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Latvia participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate
Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community. These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is commonly defined as inflation rates at levels below, but close to, 2% over the medium term.

The Law on the Prevention of Laundering the Proceeds from Criminal Activity (Money Laundering) and of Terrorism Financing limits the engagement of Latvian financial institutions with certain types of shell entities. Shell arrangements are defined by Latvian law as any legal person possessing one or several of the following characteristics: (1) having no affiliation with an actual economic activity and operations that are of limited or no economic value; (2) not being subject to an obligation to prepare and submit financial statements in the state of incorporation; or (3) having no physical place of business in the state of incorporation. Financial institutions are prohibited from engaging with shell companies bearing characteristics of (1) and (2). Effective December 1, 2019, the legal framework on customer due diligence (CDD) and enhanced customer due diligence (EDD) was revised and the new Financial and Capital Market Commission (FCMC) Regulations No. 135 Regulations on the Establishment of CDD, EDD and risk scoring system were adopted. The regulations set the requirements for the client risk scoring system and enhanced due diligence, including the list of risk factors the credit and financial institutions need to monitor. In line with the regulations, the clients geographical risk factors need to be reviewed and nonresidents of EU or OECD countries need to be reviewed by conducting enhanced due diligence. Effective July 20, 2020, the FCMC manual on client due diligence and Anti-Money Laundering and Combating the Financing of Terrorism (AML/CFT) internal control system were adopted (Recommendations for the credit institutions and financial institutions). The recommendations give insight in the practical aspects of conducting and managing client risks, including determining the country of residence of the client, conducting due diligence, and the specifics of enhanced due diligence.

(2) Considering that effective implementation of sanctions requires that all parties act swiftly and decisively, a legal framework was created for UNSC resolutions to be implemented without delay. (3) To fully commit to better the international sanctions regimes, a legal framework was created for Latvia to propose international sanctions (UNSC and EU) without having to impose national sanctions. (4) To ensure that sanctions are effectively applied, all persons (legal and natural) in accordance with their competence have the obligation to immediately and without a prior notice to freeze for an indefinite period all financial resources and financial instruments, which are directly or indirectly, completely or partially, under the ownership, possession, holding, or control of the subject of sanctions, including those financial resources and financial instruments that have been transferred to third persons. Similar provisions are provided regarding financial services and other material and immaterial assets, such as immovable property, ships, airships, etc. (5) The system for reporting the possible breaches or the possible circumvention of sanctions was clarified. (6) To unify the standards for the implementation of sanctions and to allow all competent authorities to share their know-how, the cabinet of ministers in accordance with the amendments created a Sanctions Coordination Council by issuing corresponding by-laws. It is tasked with creating unified informative materials about sanctions for all interested parties. The council will also discuss possible cooperative solutions to complicated cases, and the authorities may share information about potential issues and risks. (7) Failure to comply with the requirements for the internal control system of sanctions may result in fines for natural persons and legal persons of up EUR 1 million. These amendments are supplemented by corresponding government regulations explaining in greater detail the obligations as set by law, including delisting and exemption procedures, identification of subjects of sanctions, and asset-freezing</td>

12/01/2019  The legal framework on customer due diligence and enhanced customer due diligence was revised and the new FCMC Regulations No. 135 Regulations on the Establishment of customer due diligence, enhanced customer due diligence and risk scoring system were adopted. The regulations set the requirements for the client risk scoring system and enhanced due diligence, including the list of risk factors the credit and financial institutions need to monitor. In line with the Regulations, the clients geographical risk factors need to be reviewed and nonresidents of EU or OECD countries need to be reviewed by conducting enhanced due diligence.

07/20/2020  The FCMC manual on client due diligence and AML/CFT internal control system were adopted (Recommendations for the credit institutions and financial institutions). The recommendations give insight in the practical aspects of conducting and managing client risks, including determining the country of residence of the client, conducting due diligence, and the specifics of enhanced due diligence.

Banks may engage in foreign exchange transactions in any currency except new Israeli shekels. Commercial banks may determine the exchange rate and commissions for transactions with their clients, taking into consideration the BDL’s bid-ask prices. Insurance companies may engage in foreign exchange transactions in any currency except new Israeli shekels. Such dealings are restricted to the extent that insurers must match their assets with their liabilities with regard to currency.

Foreign exchange bureaus are allowed to operate and are subject to licensing by BDL. As of December 31, 2019, the number of authorized foreign exchange bureaus was 303 (both Categories A and B). Foreign exchange bureaus (money dealers) may conduct foreign exchange transactions with commercial banks, but not directly with BDL. Category A money dealers must have a minimum capital of LL 750 million. Only the 46 Category A money dealers may perform transfers and they are prohibited from making any transfer in excess of US$1,500 that does not result from an exchange operation or a cross-border transport operation, when the transfer consists of receiving cash amounts from customers then transferring them to third persons whether in Lebanon or abroad through the institution’s bank accounts. Only Category A money dealers with a minimum capital of LL 5 billion may conduct cross-border transport of cash banknotes and precious metals.

Category B money dealers must have a minimum capital of LL 250 million if established before December 7, 2011, and LL 500 million if established on or after December 7, 2011. Category B money dealers whose capital was raised to LL 500 million may deal in cash and traveler’s checks up to the equivalent of US$10,000 in uncollected traveler’s checks and gold bars not exceeding 1,000 grams. Category B money dealers established before December 7, 2011, may raise their capital to LL 500 million if they wish to expand their operations to include the above. Category A money dealers with a capital greater than LL 750 million must be the only institutions entitled to perform hawala cash transfers, whether for their own account or on behalf of a third party.
These institutions are also prohibited from performing transactions, such as commercial financing, lending, and the management of funds, among others, which do not fall within the scope of exchange business.

The value of an incoming or outgoing hawala transaction must not exceed US$20,000 or its equivalent in any other currency, provided the total amount of hawala transactions in a single year does not exceed, at any time, tenfold the capital of the exchange institution. Effective January 14, 2019, nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle incoming transfers in Lebanese pound. Effective January 8, 2020, the provision that nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle any incoming transfers in Lebanese pound was repealed.

The BDL sets its bid-ask rates at the opening hour on Reuters (page BDL O1), and the rates do not change during the day. The closing rates are determined and published at the end of each trading day. The bid-ask rates were LL 1,501 per US dollar and LL 1,514 per US dollar, respectively, throughout 2018.

The BDL deals directly with the government and other public entities.

There is an active interbank foreign exchange market, and all commercial banks operating in Lebanon may trade among themselves at freely determined rates. There were 61 banks operating in Lebanon as of December 31, 2019, including 41 commercial banks, 16 investment and specialized banks, and 4 Islamic banks. Two banks not counted above are under liquidation. The BDL grants licenses and intervenes directly with market participants at their quoted rates.

The market operates over the counter.

Banks are permitted to engage in forward operations on their own behalf for hedging purposes only. Forward operations and spot operations on behalf of clients are allowed with a minimum cash margin deposit equivalent to 20% of credit facilities. The total shortage in margin for all operations may not exceed 8% of a bank’s capital. The BDL does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

Insurance companies may engage in forward transactions; nevertheless, no such transactions are recorded in practice because of restrictions on the admissibility of financial derivatives.

A minimum cash margin equivalent to 20% of credit facilities must be provided by the client for spot or forward foreign exchange operations for speculative purposes.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on transfers
Yes. All accounts are subject to the Law on Combating Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing (which also deals with terrorism financing and corruption). There are quantitative limits for nonbank financial institutions, financial intermediation institutions, and Category A money dealers. The above institutions may not transfer, internally or abroad, for their clients to a third party an amount exceeding US$1,500. Only Category A money dealers may conduct hawala transactions. The maximum amount of each hawala transaction (inward or outward) is US$20,000. Total hawala transactions may not exceed 10 times the capital of the money dealer each year. Effective January 14, 2019, nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle any incoming transfers in Lebanese pound. Effective January 8, 2020, the provision that nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle any incoming transfers in Lebanese pound was repealed.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions Yes. Law No. 161 of August 17, 2011, established the CMA. The CMA’s regulatory and supervisory authority includes (1) shares or other securities of a participating nature in commercial companies, (2) bonds or other debt securities, (3) money market instruments, (4) collective investment vehicles, and (5) derivatives and other instruments. The CMA began to exercise its functions toward the end of 2013. Three new financial expert board members of the CMA were appointed by Decree No. 6473 of June 10, 2020.

Repatriation requirements No.
Surrender requirements No.
Surrender to the central bank No.
Surrender to authorized dealers No.

On capital market securities Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature Yes. Shares or other securities of a participating nature of a single nonfinancial issuer may not exceed 10% of the equity of a bank or financial institution. Moreover, no shares, stocks, or other kind of capital participation may generate unlimited liability or responsibility for a bank or financial institution.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. Limits are imposed on the acquisition of shares in real estate companies. Acquisition of shares in nonbank financial institutions and financial intermediation institutions is subject to BDL Central Council approval for the former and the CMA board of directors for the latter (CMA Regulation (Series 2000)) if (1) it leads directly or indirectly to the acquisition by the purchaser of more than 10% of the institution’s total shares; (2) the purchaser already holds 10% or more of the institution’s shares; or (3) the purchaser or seller is a member or an elected member of the board of directors, irrespective of the number of shares to be sold. The 10% limit applies to spouses, minors, and any economic group. Approval of BDL Central Council is required for acquisition of shares in a bank if (1) it leads directly or indirectly to the acquisition by the purchaser more than 5% of total shares.
shares or voting rights; (2) the purchaser already holds more than 5% or more of total shares or voting rights; (3) the purchaser or seller of the shares is a member or an elected member of the board of directors of the bank involved; (4) the purchaser or seller of the shares is a member of the senior management or an employee of the bank involved and holds 1% or more of the total shares if such shares are listed; or (5) the purchase of shares by an employee leads directly or indirectly to his or her acquisition of more than 1% of the total shares if such shares are listed. Authorization and regulations also apply to ascendants, spouses, and descendants of sellers and purchasers.

When purchasers of shares in banks and financial institutions are companies or mutual funds, their respective by-laws or Articles of Association must explicitly include that all their shares are in registered form, and are fully and continuously owned, whether directly or indirectly, by natural persons or companies whose shares are in registered form (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).

Any legal entity, resident or nonresident, that acquires directly or indirectly a share in an issuing company or public company equal to or exceeding 5% of the shares or units of a fund with a voting right in the said company must submit a report to the CMA in this respect (Law No. 161).

Financial instrument transactions must be authorized by the CMA. Principal or secondary professional activity that involves solicitation of clients for subscription, purchase, swap, or sale of securities or financial instruments also requires CMA authorization.

Legal entities may not undertake a public subscription without CMA approval. Issuance, sale, or offers to sell financial instruments for public subscription are also prohibited prior to obtaining the CMA’s authorization. Invitations to potential investors for such financial instruments require CMA approval (Law No. 161).

No person, resident or not, may issue or invite the public to subscribe to or market or make any statement, announcement, or communication that has the effect of selling, issuing, or offering the following products without authorization from the CMA:

1. shares, debt securities, or units issued by a public or private company or entity or a collective investment fund;
2. bonds, notes, CDs, depositary receipts, and treasury bills and bonds;
3. financial rights, options, futures, and any other derivatives or structured financial products; and
4. any other financial instrument authorized by the CMA or its regulations, except an instrument specifically excluded by the law.

An exempt offer of securities (as defined in CMA Regulation (Series 6000)) must be notified to the CMA prior to the offer.

The offer of foreign securities in Lebanon (whether public or exempt) must be made through an approved institution licensed by the CMA.

The offer of securities issued by a foreign government or by a supranational authority recognized by the CMA is exempted from the above requirements (CMA Regulation (Series 6000)).

BDL approval is required for Lebanese banks and financial institutions to participate, directly or indirectly, and within the limits set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit, in any foreign financial entity (bank, financial institution, brokerage house, mutual fund, insurance company). BDL approval is not required (1) if a resident bank participates indirectly through foreign banks and financial institutions in which the resident bank has a stake greater than 20% and if the participation of these foreign banks or financial institutions in the foreign financial sector is less than 20% of their assets; or (2) if the stake of a resident bank is less than 20%.
Approval for Lebanese bank participation depends on specific BDL conditions regarding ethical and technical qualifications. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).

Sale or issue abroad by residents: Yes. Banks and financial institutions require BDL approval to issue shares locally or abroad.

Bonds or other debt securities: Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: Yes. Nonresident financial entities must obtain BDL approval when purchasing treasury securities issued in Lebanese pounds or BDL CDs denominated in Lebanese pounds, US dollars, or euros. Funds used to purchase treasury securities or CDs in Lebanese pounds must originally have been deposited in foreign currency and converted specifically for the purchase.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes. Financial instrument transactions must be authorized by the CMA.
Principal or secondary professional activity that involves solicitation of clients for subscription, purchase, swap, or sale of securities or financial instruments also requires CMA authorization.
Legal entities may not undertake a public subscription without CMA approval. Issuance, sale, or offers to sell financial instruments for public subscription are also prohibited prior to obtaining the CMA’s authorization. Invitations to potential investors for such financial instruments require CMA approval (Law No. 161).

No person, resident or not, may issue or invite the public to subscribe to or market or make any statement, announcement, or communication that has the effect of selling, issuing, or offering the following products without authorization from the CMA:
(1) shares, debt securities, or units issued by a public or private company or entity or a collective investment fund;
(2) bonds, notes, CDs, depositary receipts, and treasury bills and bonds;
(3) financial rights, options, futures, and any other derivatives or structured financial products; and
(4) any other financial instrument authorized by the CMA or its regulations, except an instrument specifically excluded by the law.
An exempt offer of securities (as defined in CMA Regulation (Series 6000)) must be notified to the CMA prior to the offer.
The offer of foreign securities in Lebanon (whether public or exempt) must be made through an approved institution licensed by the CMA.
The offer of securities issued by a foreign government or by a supranational authority recognized by the CMA is exempted from the above requirements (CMA Regulation (Series 6000)).
The following apply to banks’ and financial institutions’ holdings, including by their foreign branches and subsidiaries: (1) A 25% equity limit applies to the nominal value of structured financial products held and purchased abroad, provided (a) they are issued or guaranteed by an issuer or a guarantor rated at least A and (b) their capital is unconditionally and totally guaranteed. (2) A 10% equity limit applies to credit-linked notes (CLNs) related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs in foreign currencies and purchased from abroad, provided (a) their capital is unconditionally and totally guaranteed; (b) they are issued or guaranteed by an issuer or guarantor rated at least A; and (c) they include mandatory physical settlement in case of a credit event—such as default on Eurobonds or BDL CDs—whereby changes in the price of credit default swaps on Lebanese treasury bills not induced by an internationally recognized credit event are not categorized under a credit event and consequently do not call for mandatory physical settlement. (3) A 50% equity limit applies to non-Group of Ten (G10) sovereign bonds rated at least BBB and corporate bonds rated at least BBB; if guaranteed, the guarantor must be rated at least BBB. The applicable rating is the lowest of Standard & Poor’s (S&P’s) or another internationally recognized rating agency, provided it is BBB or higher. The 50% limit includes the 25% structured financial products’ equity limit and the 10% CLNs related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs in foreign currencies equity limit and deposits abroad with a maturity of one year or more. (4) A 10% equity limit applies to the total value of sovereign (except G10 countries) and other bonds, structured financial products, and CLNs of a single issuer. (5) A 10% equity limit applies to placements with banks abroad with maturity of one year or longer. (6) A 50% equity limit applies to the total value of sovereign (except G10 countries) and corporate bonds, structured financial products, CLNs, and interbank deposits. (7) Investments by Lebanese affiliates abroad in sovereign bonds issued in the currency of the host country may not exceed deposits in the same currency. With respect to item (3), the BDL may authorize banks and financial institutions to exceed the 50% limit, if they have a high capital adequacy ratio and they abide by BCC and BDL circulars, particularly on ethical and technical qualifications of specific functions in the banking and financial sector. In the calculation of ratios, the investments of banks’ and financial institutions’ branches abroad are included in the portfolio of bonds, structured financial products, and CLNs and deposits abroad with a maturity of one year or more. When placing bids, banks and financial institutions must also abide by the limits. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).

Financial intermediaries (that is, banks, financial institutions, financial intermediation companies) may not perform on their own behalf, or on behalf of their clients, a transaction in financial derivatives or an off-exchange retail foreign exchange transaction with a nonresident party except with (1) a party that operates in the United States, provided it is a member of the National Futures Association and licensed by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission; (2) a party that operates outside the United States or is not a resident of the United States, provided it has an investment grade rating and is licensed to trade in financial derivatives by the relevant regulatory authorities in countries with investment grade (Article 3602 of the CMA Regulation (Series 3000)). Banks, unlike other financial institutions and brokerage firms, may engage, on their own behalf, in derivatives transactions locally or abroad for hedging purposes only. Banks and financial institutions may not deal on their own behalf with nonresident sectors nor in any currency in structured financial products, except for unconditional capital-guaranteed structured financial products issued or guaranteed by an issuer or a guarantor rated at least A, provided their total nominal value does not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. The total value of corporate bonds and structured financial products of a single issuer may not exceed 10% of equity, and banks and financial institutions may not deal, on their own behalf with nonresident entities, in CLNs related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs denominated in foreign currency, except (1) notes that are capital guaranteed in the case of a credit event, such as default on Eurobonds or BDL CDs; and (2) notes issued or guaranteed by an at least A-rated issuer or guarantor, on condition of mandatory payment and delivery of the Eurobonds and BDL CDs when the credit event occurs, whereby changes in the price of credit default swaps on Lebanese treasury bills not induced by an internationally recognized credit event are not categorized under a credit event and consequently do not call for mandatory physical settlement. The nominal value of these CLNs may not exceed 10% of the capital of the bank or financial institution.

The following limits apply to banks’ credit facilities for borrowers:

1. For credit used in Lebanon and abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches and subsidiaries abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 20% of Tier 1 capital.
2. For credit used only abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 10% of Tier 1 capital.
3. Total credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad to a single borrower may not exceed four times Tier 1 capital.
4. Total for large exposure credits (that each one exceeds 10% of the bank’s consolidated Tier 1 capital) used in Lebanon and abroad may not exceed four times Tier 1 capital on a consolidated basis. The limits per country are as follows:
   1. Total credit by a bank and its foreign branches for use in a country rated at least BBB may not exceed 50% of Tier 1 capital.
   2. Total credit by a bank and its foreign branches for use in a country rated below BBB or unrated may not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. Total credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad for use in countries rated below BBB or unrated may not exceed 100% of Tier 1 capital.

Car or housing loans in domestic and foreign currencies to residents and nonresidents may not exceed 75% of the price of the car or the house (except housing loans by the housing bank and housing corporation and through the military housing plan and the Ministry of Displaced and Protocols for Judges and the Internal Security Forces and Public Security). The total monthly payment for all loans may not exceed 35% of a family’s income (family consists of husband and wife). The maximum is 45% if the family benefits from a housing loan, provided the monthly payments of the housing loan do not exceed 35% of the family income.

Banks and financial institutions may not extend credit in Lebanese pounds to nonresident financial entities. Banks may not extend credit to clients in domestic currency for the purpose of constituting deposits in foreign currency other than for commercial purposes. Banks and financial institutions may not extend credit in domestic currency for the purpose of settling a loan already originated in foreign currency by the bank itself or the financial institution itself or by another bank or another financial institution (BDL Basic Circular No. 46). Starting January 1, 2020, banks are required to maintain a LTD ratio in Lebanese Pound (LBP) of no more than 25% (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 503, which amended BDL Basic Circular No. 81).

Credit counters are not allowed to grant loans for one individual borrower or group of borrowers more than 5% of their equity or the equivalent of US$0.1 million whichever is less, provided the monthly payments for all loans granted by any credit institution do not exceed 35% of the family income (BDL Basic Circular to credit counters No. 2).
