Foreign exchange market

Yes. Financial intermediaries are free to determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients. Banks, financial institutions, and exchange bureaus participate in the foreign exchange market. Banks are licensed by the BNB. Financial institutions are registered by the BNB based on Ordinance No. 26 of the BNB on Financial Institutions; exchange bureaus are registered by the National Revenue Agency (NRA). As of December 31, 2018, there were 25 banks and 2445 exchange bureaus. By the end of 2018, nine financial institutions were providing supplementary services in the spot foreign exchange market. Reporting requirements for financial institutions were transferred from the BNB to the NRA and the Financial Supervision Commission (FSC). MOF Ordinance No. 4 regulates exchange bureaus, which may buy and sell foreign currency in cash only. Exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad and report the details of those accounts regularly to the BNB. The rate exchange bureaus use for a given currency must be market based and may deviate up to ±5% from the official exchange rate set by the BNB for that currency on the day of the transaction. Clients of exchange bureaus can be both individual and legal entities. As of December 2019, there were 2506 exchange bureaus registered in NRA.

Effective February 21, 2020, extraction, processing, and trade of precious metals and gemstones and items containing them or made of them by occupation may be carried out by: (1) merchants registered under the Commerce Act or under the legislation of an EU Member State or of another State which is a party to the Agreement on the EEA, as well as legal persons established on the basis of a legal act. The activity of the merchant or the business of the legal person must include carrying out activities with precious metals and gemstones and items containing them or made of them by occupation; (2) companies under the Obligations and Contracts Act, if they engage in such activities by occupation and are entered in the public register of the persons carrying out activities with precious metals and gemstones and items containing them.

Effective February 2, 2019, persons carrying out extraction, processing, and trade of precious metals must be registered with the Ministry of Economy within 14 days prior to commencing activities. The Minister of Economy or an authorized official thereby issues a certificate of the registration. The register which is maintained by registration officials, appointed by an order of the Minister of Economy in electronic format, is publicly available on the website of the Ministry of Economy.

On external trade

Precious metals and stones or products thereof may be freely taken across the border in unlimited amounts as per an amendment of the Currency Act of December 6, 2011. According to Article 4 of Ordinance No. H-1 from February 1, 2012, the transfer across the border of precious metals and precious stones in unprocessed, semi-processed, and processed form, as well as products with and from them, may not be declared to the following amounts: (1) gold and platinum in raw and semi-processed form and coins in total until 37 grams irrespective of the content of gold or platinum; (2) jewelry and accessories of gold or platinum alloys in total up to 60 grams irrespective of the content of gold or platinum; (3) silver in raw and semi-processed form and coins, as well as jewelry and accessories from silver alloys, totaling up to 300 grams regardless of the silver content; (4) precious stones incorporated in the articles referred to in Items 2 and 3.

Transfer across the border of the country of precious metals and precious stones and articles with and from them above the amounts specified in Article 4 of Ordinance No. H-1 from February 1, 2012, as well as the transport in powder or other type of articles with and from precious metals and precious stones must be declared to customs. A declaration (single administrative document) is required if the precious metals and stones or products thereof are being transported for commercial purposes; these are treated as commercial goods irrespective of the amount. Precious metals and stones or products thereof exceeding the prescribed amount transported to or from another EU member must be declared to customs on demand. Transportation across borders of precious metals and stones and products thereof by mail is prohibited, except for parcels with declared value. Importation and exportation of raw diamonds are subject to the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme.

Domestic currency

Yes. Cash amounting to €10,000 or more in leva or another currency taken across the border or from another EU member must be declared to customs on demand. Persons may export domestic or foreign currency less than the equivalent of €10,000 to a third country without a customs declaration; larger amounts must be declared. Persons may export cash exceeding lev 30,000 or its equivalent to a third country only on presentation of a certificate from the appropriate directorate of the NRA of payment of taxes or exemption. Effective February 21, 2020, when cash in the amount of BGN 30,000 or more or their equivalent in another currency is carried across the border of the country to a third country, the customs authorities must request through official channels information concerning the existence or non-existence of liabilities (under Article 87, Paragraph 11, of the Tax and Social Insurance Procedure Code with regard to the person concerned). Where the information provided ex officio contains data of existence of public liabilities in excess of BGN5,000, the customs authorities do not permit such cash to be carried across the border (Paragraph 2 of Article 11a of the Currency Law, supplemented in 2020).

Foreign natural persons who export cash that does not exceed what they previously imported and declared are exempt and need only declare the type and amount of exported funds. Exportation of domestic banknotes by mail is prohibited, except for parcels with declared value. Parcels to a third country with banknotes or cash equal to or exceeding €10,000 require a declaration.

Foreign currency

Yes. Cash amounting to €10,000 or more in leva or another currency taken across the border or from another EU member must be declared to customs on demand. Persons may export domestic or foreign currency less than the equivalent of €10,000 to a third country without a customs declaration; larger amounts must be declared. The banking authorities automatically provide foreign exchange for goods to be imported as well as to cover import licenses. A license is not required as a condition to obtain foreign exchange.
payments abroad to a third country in foreign or local currency exceeding lev 30,000 or its equivalent are required to provide documentation to the payment services provider. Ordinance No. 28 of the MOF and BNB on the Information and Documents Submitted to Payment Service Providers in Executing Third-Party Cross-Border Transfers and Payments provides the details on this requirement.

After the second review investigation carried out by the European Commission, effective July 1, 2020, the Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2020/894 of 29 June 2020 amending Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 imposing definitive safeguard measures against imports of certain steel products has been in force.

Agricultural imports are licensed for statistical purposes under an automatic licensing system. Import licenses require lodging a security and are valid in all EU member countries. Some EU agricultural tariff quotas are subject to import licensing. Licenses may be issued on a pro rata or historical basis or related to quotas of exporting countries. Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013 requires licensing of certain agricultural imports, which are listed in Annex, Part I, of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2016/1237 and include cereals, rice, sugar, olive oil, flax and hemp, fruits and vegetables, processed fruits and vegetables, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pork, eggs, poultry, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. Import licenses are issued by the relevant authority on request. Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade voluntary partnership agreements with the EU are subject to licensing. Under these agreements, timber-producing countries agree to verify the legality of their shipments of timber and timber products to the EU. Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade voluntary partnership agreements were signed with Ghana (2010), the Democratic Republic of the Congo (2011), Cameroon (2011), the Central African Republic (2012), Liberia (2013), and Indonesia (2014). Negotiations are ongoing with Côte d’Ivoire, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Gabon, Guyana, Honduras, Laos, Malaysia, Thailand, and Vietnam.

Bulgaria applies all EU trade policies. The EU acquis includes a number of legal provisions that engage customs to carry out checks in the context of the enforcement of many different policies aiming at the safety and security of the EU. In accordance with Articles 134 and 267 of Regulation (EU) No. 952/2013 (Union Customs Code), prohibitions or restrictions may be imposed on imports, exports, or goods in transit when they are justified on grounds of:
· public morality, public policy, or public security,
· the protection of health and life of humans, animals, or plants,
· the protection of the environment,
· the protection of national treasures possessing artistic, historic, or archaeological value, and · the protection of industrial and commercial property.

Open general licenses No.

Import surveillance applies to the following agricultural products: rice, flax and hemp, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. These products are subject to automatic licensing for statistical purposes and to maintain better control over their origin. The EU licenses a range of firearms and ammunition. Imported food must comply with the requirements of EU food and animal health laws, conditions recognized by the EU as equivalent to these requirements, or requirements contained in specific agreements. The EU has sanitary and phytosanitary agreements with Andorra, Canada, Chile, EFTA, the Faeroe Islands, Liechtenstein, Mexico, New Zealand, San Marino, Switzerland, and the United States. Imports of live animals and animal products are prohibited except from previously approved areas, which are on the Commission’s relevant “third country list.”

Products and live animals generally may be imported only from countries on the approved third country import list for that product or animal species. Products of animal origin usually must be from establishments approved for exportation to the EU. In October 2010, the EU adopted legislation that prohibits the sale of illegally harvested timber and timber products in the EU—Regulation No. 995/2010. Under Regulation No. 995/2010, operators who sell domestically produced or imported timber and timber products in the EU for the first time must exercise due diligence to ensure that such products do not contain illegally timber harvested. Due diligence systems involve a risk management exercise based on information and criteria in the regulation. Anyone trading in timber and timber products within the EU, except first-time participants in the EU market, must keep records of their suppliers and customers. Timber and timber products with valid Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade or CITES licenses are considered to be in compliance. On January 1, 2021, a new law will come into full force across the EU—the Conflict Minerals Regulation—Regulation (EU) No. 2017/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2017 laying down supply chain due diligence obligations for Union importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold originating from conflict-affected and high-risk areas. It aims to help stem the trade in four minerals—tin, tantalum, tungsten, and gold—which sometimes finance armed conflict or are mined using forced labor.

Imports of the following items are prohibited in accordance with UN or EU regulations: antipersonnel mines, torture equipment, and certain products from the Islamic Republic of Iran, the DPRK, and Syria.

Effective February 20, 2019, regulation (EU) No. 2019/125 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 January 2019 concerning trade in certain goods which could be used for capital punishment, torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment (codified version of Regulation No. 1236/2005), Council Regulation (EU) No. 692/2014 (as amended) restricts imports into the EU of goods from Crimea or Sevastopol, in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol.

Council Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1509 of 30 August 2017 concerning restrictive measures against the DPRK and repealing Regulation (EC) No. 329/2007 introduced restrictions on the import and export of certain goods, services, and technology which could contribute to the DPRK’s nuclear-related, ballistic missile-related, or other weapons of mass destruction-related programs, luxury goods embargo as well as an asset freeze on persons, entities, and bodies that have been linked to the weapons of mass destruction programs. Further measures target the transport sector, including inspections of cargo and prohibitions pertaining to DPRK vessels and aircraft, the financial sector, such as a provision of certain financial services, and the diplomatic sphere, to prevent abuse of privileges and immunities. Bulgaria applies import tariffs according to the Community Customs Code for trade with countries outside the EU and does not levy tariffs on trade within the EU. Under the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, common customs tariff duties are set by the European Parliament and the Council or by the Council based on a proposal from the Commission. The basic customs legislation is the EU Customs Code and its implementing regulation: Council Regulation (EEC) No. 2913/92, October 12, 1992, establishing the Community Customs Code (OJ L 302, October 19, 1992), applied as of January 1, 1994, and Commission Regulation (EEC) No. 2454/93, July 2, 1993, establishing Provisions for the Implementation of the Common Customs, as amended. The EU has exclusive authority in customs matters. Customs procedures, as defined in EU legislation, are harmonized and monitored at the EU level. The tariff nomenclature, known as the Combined Nomenclature, is based on the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS). The 2013 tariff reflects the fourth amendment to the HS (HS 2007). The EU has harmonized the structure and established a number of minimum rates for excise duties—indirect taxes on the consumption or use of certain products—on alcohol, tobacco, and energy. The EU maintains a public online database that integrates tariff rates and other measures, including quantitative restrictions and contingency measures applied on imports (and exports)—known as TARIC (Integrated Tariff of the European Communities).

Under the Customs Law and its regulations, exports of goods require the following documents: customs declaration, invoice, pro forma invoice, packing list, Form A, EUR 1, ADR (European Agreement concerning the International Carriage of Dangerous Goods by Road) documents, CMR Convention (Convention on the Contract for the...
International Carriage of Goods by Road), TIR Convention (the Convention on International Transport of Goods Under Cover of TIR Carnets), ATA Convention (Customs Convention on the ATA Carnet for the Temporary Admission of Goods), CPD Convention (Customs Convention on the Temporary Importation of Private Road Vehicles that provides for CPD (Carnet de Passages en Douane) – international customs document which covers the temporary admission of motor vehicles to the territory of one or several states), etc.

Export licenses  Yes. Export licensing for agricultural products serves statistical purposes. Export licenses are subject to lodging a security and are valid in all the member countries of the EU.

Without quotas  Yes. Bulgaria has adopted EU policies for export licenses. An export authorization or license is required for cultural goods and certain agricultural products and for the control of exports of dual-use items and technology. Under Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013, the Commission may require an export license for one or more products from the following categories: cereals, rice, sugar, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pigmeat, eggs, poultrymeat. Article 2(2) of Regulation No. 1237/2016 requires a license for exports of products listed in Part II of the Annex (rice) and the following Union products referred to in Part II of the Annex to be exported:

1. products that are under the customs procedure of inward processing;
2. products that are basic products as listed in Annex III to Regulation (EU) No. 510/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council and that are under the customs procedure of outward processing;
3. products that are subject to the recovery or remission of the amount of import or export duty as set out in Chapter 3 of Title III of Regulation (EU) No. 952/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council in respect of which a final decision has not yet been taken. Export licenses are issued by the relevant authorities at the request of economic operators.

There are quantitative restrictions and controls on exports for foreign policy or national security reasons. These follow EU common rules governing exports of military technology and equipment, as defined in Council Common Position (CFSP) No. 2008/944, which aims to standardize members’ arms export policies to meet agreed minimum standards. Exports of dual-use items are controlled at the EU level. The EU’s dual-use export control system in Council Regulation No. 428/2009 setting up a Community regime for the control of exports, transfer, brokering, and transit of dual-use items (as amended) defines dual-use items as “items, including software and technology, which can be used for both civil and military purposes, and must include all goods which can be used for both nonexplosive uses and assisting in any way in the manufacture of nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices.”

Restrictive measures were imposed in view of Russia’s actions destabilizing the situation in Ukraine. Also, restrictive measures related to exports were imposed on Iran and Syria.

With quotas  Yes. Article 2(2)(b) of Regulation No. 1237/2016 requires a license for exports of EU products for which an export license needs to be presented for admission under a quota that is administered by the Union or by a third country and has been opened in that country for those products.

Tariff quotas must be administered in one of the following ways: (1) based on the chronological order of submission of the applications (first-come, first-served principle); (2) distributed in proportion to the quantities requested at the time of application (simultaneous examination method); or (3) taking into account traditional trade patterns (traditional/new comers method). Export licenses are issued by the relevant authorities at the request of economic operators.

According to Article 200, Paragraph 4, of the Insurance Code, security derivatives, including options, futures, and swaps related to activities covering the technical reserves, must be recognized as cover for technical reserves only in case these contribute to the decrease of investment risk or facilitate effective portfolio management. These must be valued observing the prudence concept and may be taken into consideration in the valuation of the underlying assets.

For all the insurers which apply the EU Solvency II Regime, Article 124 of the Insurance Code applies in terms of investments with regard to the prudent person principle. The provisions of Article 124 are also applicable with respect to investments in derivatives (Article 124, Paragraph 7).

A supplementary pension fund may invest its assets in foreign securities. According to Article 179b, Paragraph 1, of the Social Insurance Code (SIC), for the purpose of reducing the investment risk associated with the assets of the pension funds, a retirement insurance company may conclude transactions which provide for deferral of the fulfillment of the obligations thereunder until a specified future date or within a stated time period. According to Article 179b, Paragraph 2, of the SIC, transactions in futures, transactions in options, forward exchange rate contracts, and the interest rate swaps must qualify as transactions under Article 179b, Paragraph 1, of the SIC.

Outward direct investment

Yes.

The Bulgarian Currency Law defines direct investment abroad as follows: (1) acquisition of general partner’s rights or an equity stake of 10% and more than 10% of general shareholders’ voting rights of a foreign company; (2) establishment of a company in an economic territory other than that of the investor; (3) lending money for the purpose of direct investment under (1) or (2) or in connection with an agreement for participation in the distribution of profit; (4) additional investment in an investment under (1) or (2); and (5) acquisition of real estate in an economic territory other than that of the investor. For statistical purposes, any transaction in connection with direct investment abroad made by local legal persons or sole proprietors is subject to declaration with the BNB within 15 business days after the transaction is closed. Resident legal entities and sole proprietors must submit a quarterly statistical form with detailed information on their direct investments abroad to the BNB except for investments in real estates abroad information on which is reported annually.

Inward direct investment

The amendments to the Law on Limitation of Cash Payments, effective April 10, 2018, create a new possibility of collecting revenues by means of card payments to the budget organizations and their subordinate budget authorizers by delegation serviced by the BNB. In this way, these budget organizations can optimize the management of their revenues as the amounts directly come to the account with the BNB, designated for the purpose. In this way, cashless payments in the public sector are optimized, and the costs for servicing cash payments are reduced.

With regard to natural and legal persons, this amendment to the Law creates one more free and convenient way for them to pay their obligations to the budgets of these budget organizations. Article 4, Paragraph 8, of the Law expressly says that natural and legal persons pay no bank charges or fees for making card payments to budget organizations.

Yes.

Pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council, if the sum of an institution’s overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position, calculated according to Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Yes.

The Solvency II Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 transposed into the Bulgarian Insurance Code introduces prudential requirements tailored to the specific risks which each insurer bears. Those prudential requirements are not restrictions and apply equally to all insurers. The directive requires insurance companies to hold capital in relation to their risk profiles to guarantee that they have enough financial resources to withstand financial difficulties. Also the Insurance companies under the scope of the Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market of the EU and EEA) have to put in place an adequate and transparent governance system and conduct their own risk and solvency assessment on a regular basis. These insurers should invest its assets in accordance with prudent person principle (Article 124 of the Insurance Code). There are no restrictions on investing in financial instruments issued by nonresidents for insurance undertakings under the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market).

Chapter XVII, Article 198, of the Insurance Code defines the technical reserves requirements and the provisional fund of an insurer excluded from the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers without a right of access to the market of the EU and EEA). The general rules for diversification, the currency conformity rules, and special rules for the cover of reserves for the investment funds of life insurance companies apply. The requirement of Article 198 is not a restriction, because it is a general rule applicable equally to all insurers that fulfill the requirements of Part IV of the Insurance Code. Chapter XVIII, Article 208, of the Insurance Code and the following defines own funds; the solvency margins, and guarantee capital, which applies only to the insurers without a right of access to the common market. Different types of assets may cover technical reserves of insurance companies without a right of access to the common market (Article 200 of the Insurance Code). The requirement of Articles 208 and 200 is not restrictions, because they are general rules applicable to all insurers equally.
There are no restrictions on investing technical reserves in financial instruments issued by nonresidents. Investments to cover technical provisions such as shares, bonds (to be qualified), and other debt securities (to be qualified) must be listed on internationally recognized and liquid regulated securities markets as it is described in Article 200, Paragraph 1, p. 1, of the Insurance Code. There are other assets that may cover the technical provisions of the insurers without a right to access of the common market. All assets must be invested in compliance with the prudent person principle. According to the rules on diversification, the technical provisions can be invested: (1) up to 20% in real estate, but not more than 10% in a single property or in a group of properties that may be regarded as one investment because of their location; (2) up to 80% in securities under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Items 1 and 3, but not more than 30% in assets other than qualified bonds and other qualified debt securities; (3) without any restriction whatsoever in assets under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (4) up to 5% in securities of a single issuer, where this restriction may not apply to assets specified in Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (5) up to 50% in bank deposits, but not more than 25% of the gross amount with one bank; and (6) up to 3% in cash in hand and under current accounts.

Territorial distribution rules stipulate that the technical reserves must be covered by assets located on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or on the territory of a member state. By permission of the Commission, issued in each specific case, technical reserves may also be covered by assets, located within the territory of a third country.

The requirement for territorial distribution of assets under Article 205, Paragraph 1, may not apply to cases where the technical reserves are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers in the proportion set under Article 202.

The assets’ location according to Article 205, Paragraph 1, must be:
(1) For ownership of real estate – the real estate’s location;
(2) For securities:
  (a) the issuing enterprise’s seat of business;
  (b) the bank’s seat of business – in case the securities are guaranteed by a bank;
  (c) the Depository’s seat of business – in the case of dematerialized securities;
(3) For deposits – the place where the deposit contract has been concluded;
(4) For any other receivables – the debtor’s seat of business;
(5) For shares in investment funds – the location of assets included in the fund with a predominant share, fixed pursuant to the terms and conditions under Items 1–4.
Requirements for professional qualification and reliability – Article 80(7) stipulates that each member of a management or control body of an insurer or of a reinsurer, respectively, as well as each person authorized to manage and/or represent it must hold a permit for long-term residence in the Republic of Bulgaria if he is a person from a third country.

In terms of granting consent in the case of a transfer of an insurance portfolio within the EU, the FSC must refuse to grant consent, when insurance contracts, under which risks located in the Republic of Bulgaria are covered, are transferred to:
(1) a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in another member state;
(2) an insurer from a member state which does not have the right to cover risks on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria.
In terms of certification of the capital solvency requirement of an insurer with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria on transfer of insurance portfolio by an insurer from a third country established in a member state through a branch – the FSC must issue a document, certifying that, following the transfer, the undertaking insurer will have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement.

The FSC must refuse to issue such certificate, if: (1) following the transfer, the undertaking insurer or the branch of an insurer from a third country registered in the Republic of Bulgaria, respectively, will not have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement and therefore the interest of the insured person is jeopardized or (2), as a result of the transfer, a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria will undertake a portfolio of contracts covering risks located in other member states.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not participate in procedures for obtaining a license to perform insurance or reinsurance activity under the Insurance Code or participation in a company carrying out such activity, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the Insurance Code.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes.

There are no limits on securities and on investment portfolio held abroad. The assets of the insurers must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of undertakings, or market, and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole.

For small insurers without a right of access to the common market, the maximum amount may be 20% in case an insurer invests technical reserves in debt securities issued by a credit institution having its seat of business in a member state, subject to special supervision, for the purpose of protecting the holders of such securities. Furthermore, the technical provisions of such insurers must be covered by assets situated in the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or in the territory of a Member State. With a permission by the FSC granted on a case-by-case basis, the technical provisions may also be covered by assets situated in the territory of a third country. The requirement for territorial distribution of the assets does not apply to cases where the technical provisions are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers. Freedom of investment is regulated in Article 196 of the Insurance Code, and it is relevant to the insurers with a right to access of the common market:

(1) The insurer or the reinsurer, respectively, may not be placed under an obligation to invest in specific asset categories.

(2) The investment decision of the insurer or reinsurer or of the persons managing the investment operations may not be subject to a preliminary approval or to a notification procedure.

(3) The Commission may, by an ordinance, limit the assets or the benchmark values, with which the insurance policies related to investment funds are to be associated.

Location of the assets and prohibition to pledge assets are regulated in Article 197 of the Insurance Code: The assets for covering the technical reserves as regards risk located within the boundaries of the EU may be located in any member state, as well as in a third state.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Yes.

There are no limits on securities and on investment portfolio held abroad. There are no restrictions on investing technical reserves in financial instruments issued by nonresidents. The only limit is on the eligibility of those assets to cover the technical provisions of an insurer.

However, for an insurer without a right of access to the common market (small insurers), the technical provisions must be covered by assets situated in the territory of Republic of Bulgaria or in the territory of a Member State. With a permission by the FSC granted on a case-by-case basis, the technical provisions may also be covered by assets situated in the territory of a third country. The requirement for territorial distribution of the assets does not apply to cases where the technical provisions are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers. This provision applies only for small insurers without a right of access to the market of the EU and EEA.

Assets covering technical reserves must be in the same currency as the liabilities ensuing from contracts under which the technical reserves were set up. Currency matching is required when the assets in any one currency exceed 7% of the assets in the other currencies. Up to 20% of the total amount of technical reserves may be covered by assets in a currency other than the one in which they were set up, provided the total amount of assets for cover of technical reserves in all currencies is at least equal to the total amount of liabilities in all currencies. If the technical reserves were set up in leva, euros, or another currency of an EU member, the assets for their cover may be in euros (Article 206 of the Insurance Code).

Pension funds | Yes. |

Controls specific to pension funds in Bulgaria are provided in the SIC. Chapter 14 on Assets and Investments and Chapter 25 on Investments contain the requirements for the investment of mandatory and voluntary pension funds, respectively. The reserve requirements are in Chapter 16 on Pension Reserves. There are no restrictions on investing the assets of a supplementary pension fund in foreign securities. However, some limits apply to the diversification of supplementary pension funds’ investment portfolios (Articles 178 and 251 of the SIC). These limitations are the same for investments in both local and foreign securities.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not, directly and/or indirectly, participate in procedures for obtaining a license for carrying out the activity as a company for additional social security under the SIC or participation in such a company, where the percentage of contribution represents 10 or more than 10% of the capital of the company.

The activity of supplementary pension insurance can be carried out only by pension insurance companies licensed by the FSC (Article 121 and Article 353 of the SIC). Foreign companies are not allowed to provide services except for institutions for occupational retirement provision based in the EU and the EEA (Article 120a, Article 229d, and Article 353 of the SIC).

| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | No. |
| Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad | No. |
| Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally | No. |
| Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition | Yes. |

The legal framework does not contain any limits in this regard.

No more than 20% of the assets of a supplementary mandatory pension insurance fund may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 178, Paragraph 16, of the SIC).
No more than 30% of the assets of a supplementary voluntary retirement insurance fund or of a fund for supplementary voluntary pension insurance under occupational schemes, as appropriate, may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 251, Paragraph 13, of the SIC).

The law on CISs and other collective investments applies as of 2011. CIS investment policy requirements in Chapter 6 outline the legal obligations regarding the investment policy of CISs. Detailed rules are given in Ordinance No. 44, which incorporates Directive (EC) Nos. 2010/43 and 2010/44. In 2013, the Alternative Investment Fund Managers Directive was transposed in Part III, Title 2, of the law on CISs and other collective investments, and in Part III, Title 1, a new type of investment fund was introduced—the national investment fund. National investment fund investment policy requirements are mentioned in Article 187. Investments in local and foreign securities are treated the same.

In terms of the investment firms Bulgaria fully transposed the EU framework on markets in financial instruments, which consists of Directive (EU) No. 2014/65 (effective February 16, 2018) and Regulation No. 2014/600. In terms of capital requirements Bulgaria complies with the EU rules under Capital Requirements Directive (EU) No. 2013/36 and Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013. The own funds requirements are specified in Article 92 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013. The calculation of the total risk exposure amount (credit risk and dilution risk, position risk, concentration risk, foreign exchange risk, settlement risk, commodities risk, credit valuation adjustment risk, operational risk, counterparty risk) is specified in Article 92(3) of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013. The liquidity requirements are specified in Part Six of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013. The leverage requirements are specified in Part Seven of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013. Additional capital requirements for determining capital buffers are set out in Chapter Nine of Ordinance No. 50. In such terms, we do not apply any national measures outside the scope of the EU rules.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, there are prohibitions for companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby directly and/or indirectly to participate in procedures for obtaining a license for providing services or carrying out activities under the Markets in Financial Instruments Act or participation in a company that has been licensed under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the said Act, or participate in procedures for obtaining a license, permit, or in a registration procedure under the CISs and Other Undertakings for Collective Investment Act or participation in a company that owns a license, permit, or is registered under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of that Act.

There are exceptions, described in Article 4.

| Investment firms and collective investment funds | Yes. |
| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | No. |
| Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad | No. |
| Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally | No. |
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition
Yes. In the terms of the investment firms, pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council, if the sum of an institution’s overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position, calculated according to Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk.

Exchange tax Yes. The commission rate charged on transfers to all countries that are not members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655,957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU went into force November 10, 2015.

Spot exchange market Yes. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) continuously post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post a notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions based on the requestor’s identity document.

Banks and licensed exchange dealers are intermediaries authorized by the minister responsible for finance to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. As of December 31, 2019, there were 13 active banks and 104 authorized exchange bureaus operating in Burkina Faso. They may conduct transactions in foreign currencies, except euros with the BCEAO. Licensed exchange houses may not make transfers or payment in foreign currency with other countries or maintain accounts abroad.

The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister responsible for finance, with the consent of the BCEAO.

In their operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.

The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and on payments made by banks and financial institutions.

Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2019, 11 banks participated in the domestic currency interbank market. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.

Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps.

Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur in respect of derivatives instruments traded with their customers.

The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company.

All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations  No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  Yes.

Burkina Faso is linked to the French Treasury via the BCEAO through an operations account, through which settlement of transactions with France, Monaco, and other operations account countries (WAEMU and CEMAC members and the Comoros) is made mainly in euros. Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.

Controls on the use of domestic currency  Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for settlement of current or capital international transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.

For current transactions and payments  Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU. However, there is an unlimited guarantee for the CFA franc in the form of an operations account with the French Treasury.

For capital transactions  Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments  Yes.

The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF) authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments  Yes.

Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

| On exports | Yes. |

Domestic currency

| Yes. | Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.

Foreign currency

| Yes. | The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler’s checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler’s checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports

| Yes. |

Domestic currency

| Yes. | Resident and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency from other WAEMU areas. However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.

Foreign currency

| No. | Residents and nonresident travelers may freely import CFA area banknotes denominated in foreign currencies. If such means of payment exceed the equivalent of CFAF 1 million, they must be declared to customs. Resident travelers are required to surrender foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of their arrival in the national territory.

Resident Accounts

| Foreign exchange accounts permitted | Yes. |

Held domestically

| Yes. |

Approval required

| Yes. | Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Held abroad Yes.

Approval required Yes. Individual who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements: Yes. Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled within 30 days of the payment due date. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.

Surrender requirements: Yes. Export proceeds must be surrendered by ADs to the BCEAO within 30 days of the payment due date, which may not exceed 120 days after shipment of the goods. To cover its current foreign exchange needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as owned foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that the total foreign exchange resources that cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Surrender to the central bank: Yes. Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date, which must not be more than 120 days after the shipment of the goods. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the bank of issue. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are permitted, provided the domiciling bank has documentation to verify domiciliation.

Surrender to authorized dealers: Yes. Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.

Financing requirements: No.

Documentation requirements: Yes.

Letters of credit: No.

Guarantees: No.

Domiciliation: Yes. Exports of diamonds, gold, and all other precious metals are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Exports of ivory require special authorization by the Ministry of Foreign Trade. Exports of sesame are subject to the delivery of a certificate of origin and to the presentation of a phytosanitary certificate, verification notice, and certificate from an authorized laboratory. A visa system, called the Burkina Faso AGOA Visa, has been set up for exports of clothing and textiles to the United States under the AGOA preferential arrangement.

Without quotas: Yes.
With quotas No.

Export taxes Yes.

Collected through the exchange system No.

Other export taxes Yes. Most exports are subject to a customs stamp tax of 6% and a statistical duty of 3%.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions
Yes.  Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.

Repatriation requirements
Yes.  Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone’s investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.

Surrender requirements
Yes.

Surrender to the central bank
Yes.  Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers
Yes.  Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents’ investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.

Controls on capital and money market instruments
Yes.  RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

On capital market securities
Yes.  The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature
Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents
No.  Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to prior declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents
Yes.  The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from the RCPSFM ( ), with authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.

Bonds or other debt securities

Yes. The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

No. These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. The issuance of securities and sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. ### Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

No. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Issuance by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone of securities constituting a loan must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes.

exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. The purchase of derivatives by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone on the domestic market is treated as a loan contracted by a resident with a nonresident. As such, it is permitted. The purchase must be executed through an authorized intermediary and must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign exchange derivatives from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes. These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.

Controls on credit operations Yes. Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister responsible for finance.

Commercial credits Yes. There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).

By residents to nonresidents Yes. There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.

To residents from nonresidents No. There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries’ foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.

A share is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.

The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions: Yes. Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the minister of finance.

Loans: Yes. The regulations governing securities and investments apply.

By residents to nonresidents: Yes. These transactions require authorization by the minister of finance. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.

To residents from nonresidents: Yes. These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies: Yes.

By residents to nonresidents: Yes. Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to authorization by the MOF and the BCEAO. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.

To residents from nonresidents: No. These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants: Yes. Immigrants with resident status must obtain approval from the minister responsible for finance to settle debts incurred abroad when they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.

Transfer of assets: Yes.

Transfer abroad by emigrants: Yes. These operations require authorization by the minister of finance if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.

Transfer into the country by immigrants: Yes. Foreign accounts of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, they may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require approval by the minister responsible for finance.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings: No. These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions: Yes. The Law on Money Laundering defines the legal framework relative to money laundering in Burkina Faso, to prevent the use of the WAEMU’s economic, financial, and banking channels for laundering money or other illicitly obtained assets (Article 4). The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 set the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of WAMU members. It has been incorporated into Burkina Faso national law.

Spot exchange market Yes. Banks and exchange bureaus are free to set traded market exchange rates, which they post for the clients. Banks can freely purchase and sell foreign exchange for trade and capital transactions. The BRB has set a fluctuation margin on foreign currency purchases and sales by commercial banks and exchange bureaus of ±1% of the reference rate, which it publishes each morning. The BRB licenses banks. Ten commercial banks operate on the spot exchange market. Licensing of exchange bureaus has been suspended since August 2016. The BRB licenses exchange bureaus, for a period of five years, renewable. However, their current business activity is severely controlled. Sixty-four licensed exchange bureaus are in operation. They may engage in foreign currency note purchases and sales with the public, but may not hold accounts abroad or make foreign exchange payments or transfers on behalf of their clients.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes. The currency of settlement is prescribed by Law No. 1/34 of December 2, 2008, Article 25, which stipulates that the currency unit of Burundi is the Burundi franc (FBu) and that all monetary transactions taking place in the territory of Burundi must be expressed in FBu, unless a waiver is granted by the BRB.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes. All payments for goods and services in Burundi must be made in domestic currency. However, nonresidents staying in a hotel or guesthouse in Burundi may pay their hotel bills in foreign currency. Residents are required to repatriate receipts from exports of goods and services. Foreign exchange acquired for specific operations is to be rendered, if the relevant operations have not taken place.

For current transactions and payments Yes. All payments for goods and services in Burundi must be made in domestic currency. However, nonresidents staying in a hotel or guesthouse in Burundi may pay their hotel bills in foreign currency. Residents are required to repatriate receipts from exports of goods and services. Foreign exchange acquired for specific operations is to be rendered, if the relevant operations have not taken place.

For capital transactions Yes. Domestic currency may not be used for international settlements for capital transactions.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments Yes. Domestic currency may not be used for international settlements for capital transactions.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments Yes. Domestic currency may not be used for international settlements for capital transactions.

U.S. dollar

Yes. The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.

The Bank of Cabo Verde (BCV) collaborates with the government in defining the country’s monetary and exchange rate policy, which aims to achieve and maintain price stability. However, the implementation of monetary and exchange rate policy is done autonomously by the BCV.

The operational framework for monetary policy uses the interest rate as its operational target, exchange rate stability as an intermediate objective, and the maintenance of price stability as a final objective. The (semiannual) Monetary Policy Report and the monetary policy guidelines are analyzed/discussed (bimonthly) in the Monetary Policy Committee and approved by the Board of Directors of the BCV.

Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign currency. They may freely negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currency, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate.

Under the terms of Article 12 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, foreign exchange trading in Cabo Verde is generally done only by financial institutions expressly authorized thereto by the legal and regulatory rules governing their activity, except in specific cases of international money orders (Article 13) and manual exchange (Article 14).

On an exceptional basis, the Central Bank of Cabo Verde may authorize entities not referred to above to trade in foreign exchange and travelers’ checks, provided they meet the requirements defined in an Official Notice (Aviso).

The operations of the foreign exchange market are regulated through CB Technical Instruction No. 121/2005.

There is a parallel foreign exchange market in Cabo Verde. The exchange rates practiced in this market have been close to the rates applied in the formal market.

As of end-2019, there were two foreign exchange bureaus operating in the country. Foreign exchange bureaus can buy and sell foreign banknotes and coins and traveler’s checks and may also provide money transfer services to and from abroad (under the conditions specified in Aviso No. 3/2003). Foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad, within the framework of the liberalization promoted by Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018. Licensed foreign exchange bureaus are authorized to conduct foreign Operated by the central bank
Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility
Yes.

The BCV buys and sells escudos for euros at the announced exchange rate. There is no official bid-ask spread for euros. The BCV engages in sales and purchases of foreign currency with commercial banks and the government on demand. There are no restrictions on access to foreign currency.

Allocation
No.

Auction
No.

Fixing
No.

Interbank market
Yes.

Commercial banks may trade foreign currency with each other. All seven commercial banks participate in the interbank foreign exchange market, but there are virtually no interbank foreign exchange transactions.

Entities authorized to trade in foreign exchange may freely negotiate the exchange rates and fees to be applied when trading in the quoted currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate because the Cabo Verde escudo is pegged to it.

Over the counter
Yes.

Banks are free to negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate.

Brokerage
No.

Market making
No.

Forward exchange market
Yes.

The regulation governing the forward foreign exchange market (BCV Technical Instruction No. 121/2005) dates from 2005. Only credit institutions are authorized to contract and engage in foreign exchange forward transactions, in Cabo Verde and abroad, for the purpose of hedging the foreign exchange risks inherent to commercial or financial transactions in foreign currency. The said institutions may enter into contracts with residents, with each other, and with nonresident credit institutions.

Official cover of forward operations
No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements
No.

Most dealings in foreign exchange with the general public are conducted by seven commercial banks: (1) Banco Comercial do Atlântico, (2) Caixa Económica de Cabo Verde, (3) Banco Caboverdiano de Negócios, (4) Banco Interatlântico, (5) Banco Africano de Investimentos, (6) Ecobank, and (7) Internacional Investment Bank de Cabo Verde.

Controls on the use of domestic currency

For capital transactions
No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments
No.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments
No.

Credit operations
No.
Under Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, there are no restrictions against the use of foreign exchange among residents. Also, there are no restrictions against the use of foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents. Article 18 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that residents may reciprocally assume debts or grant credits denominated in foreign currency or in units of account used in international payments and clearing arrangements.

Foreign exchange transactions were fully liberalized, according to Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018. The BCV serves as the country’s foreign exchange authority, pursuant to the terms of Article 25 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018.

The June 2018 foreign exchange law fully liberalized foreign exchange transactions and economic and financial operations with entities abroad. This rendered irrelevant the prior authorization, prior verification process, and the special and prior authorization to which certain operations were previously subjected. However, in exceptional circumstances and in consultation with the BCV, the government may impose temporary restrictions on economic, financial, and foreign exchange transactions undertaken by residents with nonresidents (Article 23 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018).

Article 15 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that foreign exchange transactions must be conducted through an institution authorized to trade in foreign exchange, except in the cases identified in the decree.

As per Legislative Decree No. 3/2018, there are no limits on exports of domestic currency.

Article 10 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that economic and financial transactions may be freely contracted with entities abroad, without prejudice to the provisions of Article 23.

The only requirement is to provide statistical data and conserve their respective elements, pursuant to Aviso No.6/2018 of August 27. Institutions authorized to trade in foreign exchange may, subject to their Due Diligence, the Know Your Customer principle, and the application of legislation of another nature (for example, within the scope of anti-money laundering and the financing of terrorism), request the documentation necessary to provide the service, irrespective of whether the transaction involves foreign exchange.

Domiciliation requirements | No. |

Article 16 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that payments between residents and nonresidents to settle economic and financial transactions with entities abroad may be made directly through any means of payment denominated in escudos or in foreign currency.

Article 20 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts with nonresident institutions may be freely opened and operated.

Preshipment inspection | No. |

Letters of credit | No. |

Import licenses used as exchange licenses | No. |

Other | No. |

Import licenses and other nontariff measures | Yes. |

Import licensing was delegated to the Chambers of Commerce in 2000 through the protocols published in B.O. 1, Series II of January 3, 2000. A series of subsequent trade legislation maintained the option to delegate powers through the signing of a protocol to enable the two Chambers of Commerce existing in Cabo Verde to issue import licenses on behalf of the government.

Import licenses that are issued will be valid for one year and may be renewed for a further year.

Positive list | No. |

restrictions and a list of goods which may not be imported into Cabo Verde.

Chapter III of the Customs Code defines prohibited goods as those whose importation or exportation is prohibited in Cabo Verde in any way or is subject to restrictions relating to quality, packaging, or special formalities. Similarly, goods whose importation or exportation is not accompanied by the appropriate specific document, legally required for this purpose, are also considered prohibited.

Import licenses are generally issued freely, with the exception of certain goods that are prohibited or restricted by law. For example, drugs are imported exclusively by the national pharmaceutical firm Empresa Nacional de Produtos Farmacêuticos (EMPROFAC) - Decree-Law No. 53/79 of June 9, 1979.

With the exception of imports channeled through the small packages regime, which are of a noncommercial nature with a value of up to CVEsc 100,000 and a weight not exceeding 150 kg, as well as donations and aid to the government/municipalities and nonprofit entities that are not required to submit import licenses, all other imports are subject to licensing and/or administrative authorizations (sanitary and phytosanitary certificates, authorization to import arms, munitions, etc.).

Article 4 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005 established specific products exempt of licensing:

“The following must be exempt from licensing:
(1) Imports of merchandise without commercial value as defined by order of the member of government responsible for foreign trade;
(2) Active and passive processing operations, temporary imports, reimporting on an as-is basis, reexporting, and transit operations;
(3) Merchandise imports subject to special duty-free, bonded warehouse, free warehouse, and special customs warehouse systems;
(4) Industrialized merchandise earmarked for consumption in international congresses, fairs, exhibitions, and similar events;
(5) Imports of merchandise earmarked to supply ships and aircraft, as provided in the relevant legislation;
(6) Merchandise that is seized, abandoned, found at sea, discarded, or salvaged from wrecks, and sold at auction; and
(7) Imports of merchandise without foreign exchange expenditure, owned by airlines or maritime navigation companies and intended for their exclusive use.”

As per Article 5 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005:

“The following merchandise must be subject to non-automatic licensing:
(1) Merchandise subject to health, phytosanitary, and safety inspections;
(2) Merchandise subject to mandatory restrictions defined by law. Applications for the importing of merchandise referred above must be accompanied with a certificate of compliance issued by the competent authorities.”

Pursuant to Article 43 of Legislative Decree No. 4/2010 of June 3, 2010:

1. For purposes of this Code, all merchandise for which importing or exporting is prohibited in any way or that are subject to restrictions deriving from rules applicable to quality, packaging, or special formalities will be considered prohibited merchandise.
2. Merchandise for which importing or exporting is not accompanied with the appropriate specific document required by law for that Import taxes and/or tariffs: Yes.

There are currently 13 tariff bands with a maximum rate of 55% and an unweighted average of 11%.

Import duty has been reduced in accordance with the commitments made by Cabo Verde in connection with List CLXI List appended to the Protocol of Accession of Cabo Verde to the WTO, approved under Resolution No. 73/VII/2008 of June 19, 2008, as subsequently amended under Resolution No. 99/VII/2009 of May 11, 2009, covering reductions for information and communication technology and civil aviation products that began in 2010 and ended in 2018.

The Customs Statistics Tax was established under Article 31 of Law No. 23/VIII/2012 of December 31, 2012.

In the context of providing incentives for domestic industry and fighting the use and abuse of alcohol, tobacco, and sugar products, the import duty and excise duty rates for the products listed in Article 32 of Law No. 5/IX/2016, B.O. 73, Series I of December 30, 2016, were increased in 2017. The taxes are applicable to all imports from third-party countries.

As a member of the ECOWAS, Cabo Verde applies the trade liberalization scheme under which originating products benefit from import duty exemptions.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Commercial banks and money changers are free to set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients. The ADs are allowed to determine freely foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. There is no formal spot exchange market. Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at their own rates. Money changers may also buy and sell banknotes and traveler’s checks at their own rates. The NBC licenses commercial banks and other foreign exchange agents (money changers). Foreign exchange dealers may conduct foreign exchange business, maintain accounts abroad, and buy and sell banknotes and traveler’s checks. There were 94 licensed money changers and 2,819 authorized money changers as of end-2019. Licensed money changers can directly transact with the NBC, and they are able to make foreign currency payment and transfer on behalf of the clients.

Operated by the central bank Yes. The NBC intervenes in the foreign exchange market through purchases and sales of US dollars to maintain a stable exchange rate to achieve price stability. The NBC holds foreign exchange reserves in US dollars, euros, pounds sterling, Australian dollars, and other currencies in accordance with the guidelines of the Investment Committee. The NBC interacts with the market using three channels:
(1) auction; (2) bilateral transaction with money changers and banks; and (3) direct transaction with the government. The current format of NBCs’ interaction with market participants appears to be managing riel liquidity (demand for Cambodian riel (KHR) tax payment, etc.) rather than managing exchange rate volatility. On bilateral basis, the NBC uses the official quote.

| Foreign exchange standing facility | Yes. | The NBC buys and/or sells US dollars and Cambodian riel (KHR) to manage the supply of foreign and the local currency to the market. The NBC also buys and sells US dollars and Cambodian riel directly to the government and public entity, except the Electricité Du Cambodge (EDU). The NBC sells Cambodian riels to market according to market conditions. Since 2012, the NBC has ceased to sell US dollars to market. |
| Allocation | No. | |
| Auction | Yes. | Auction takes place occasionally, depending on the demand from the market. The NBC provides guidance on rates and announces amounts in advance. There is a minimum bid rate, but there is no limit on amounts. There are some penalties for those who do not settle on time. There are no restrictions on the use of currency obtained at auction, but the NBC requests information beforehand on the intended use of local currency purchased. Banks and licensed money changers may participate and are not required to submit information on the intended use of the foreign currency exchange on a transactional or an aggregate basis. Auction results are regularly disclosed to the public. |
| Fixing | No. | |
| Interbank market | Yes. | The interbank foreign exchange market is still at an early stage of development, with the operation taking place on a retail customer basis. Banks conduct transactions among each other through NBC platform (NBCP). There is no limit on the bid-ask spread and commission fee. The number of banks participating in the interbank foreign exchange market in 2019 is 64. The NBC grants licenses to banks, and foreign exchange is one of the businesses that they can operate under bank license. There are a few number of money changers who are the market makers. Money changers are not allowed to participate in the platform. They can trade with the NBC and banks, but not through NBCP, since they do not possess current accounts at NBC. However, NBC is considering the possibility to include money changers via various means of payment options. |
| Over the counter | Yes. | The informal interbank market may operate over the counter, and there are no brokers. |
| Brokerage | No. | Foreign exchange market does not operate based on a brokerage system. |
| Market making | Yes. | There is no exact year when the market-making activities emerged. There are a few money changers who are the market makers, yet the operations are not under control of the CB. The CB also proposes its own quotes to market participants through NBC platform. Money changers are not allowed to participate in the NBCP where banks conduct transactions among each other. |
| Forward exchange market | Yes. | Forward exchange market exists among commercial banks. The CB does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. There is no exact year when the forward exchange market was formed. |

The securities market (stock market) was launched in Cambodia in 2011, and the trading activity in the secondary market began in April 18, 2012. The NBC issues negotiable certificate of deposits (NCDs) to facilitate liquidity management and promote interbank market.

In the primary market, 20% of each subscription for equity is reserved for Cambodian investors, and the remaining 80% is for both Cambodian and non-Cambodian investors. However, director general of the Securities and Exchange Commission of Cambodia (SECC) may define the reallocation, if the above allocation is not fulfilled. There are no restrictions in the secondary market.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes. Authorized banks must provide the NBC with periodic statements of transfers or settlements and of outflows and inflows of capital between Cambodia and other countries. Loans and borrowing, including trade credits, may be freely contracted between residents and nonresidents, provided the loan disbursements and repayments take place through authorized intermediaries. However, during a foreign exchange crisis, the NBC may issue regulations to be implemented for up to three months that temporarily restrict authorized intermediaries’ activity, particularly for certain transactions specified in the law, foreign exchange positions, and loans in domestic currency to nonresidents.

Borrowing abroad | No. The reserve requirement of 12.5% is placed for external borrowing.
Maintenance of accounts abroad | No. There is no restriction on the maintenance of accounts abroad by commercial banks and other financial institutions.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) | Yes. Banks and financial institutions cannot grant loans (including lease loans and all types of signatory guarantees) to use overseas.
Lending locally in foreign exchange | No. Authorized banks may lend locally in foreign exchange and must submit reports to the NBC from time to time.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange | No. There are currently no foreign-exchange-denominated securities issued in Cambodia.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange | Yes. The reserve requirement is 12.5% for foreign currency deposits and external borrowing and 8% for riel deposits and is the same for resident and nonresident accounts. The NBC does not remunerate the additional 4.5% reserve requirement on the foreign deposits. In the wake of the pandemic, effective March 18, 2020, the reserve requirement for local currency deposits and foreign currency deposits & borrowing were cut to 7%.

Reserve requirements

Yes.

Liquid asset requirements

No. Effective January 1, 2020, banks must at all times have a liquidity coverage ratio of at least 100%, regardless of the denomination of the currency of the account. This requirement was gradually phased in since September 1, 2016 from 60%.

Interest rate controls

Yes. For microfinance institutions (including Microfinance Deposit-Taking Institutions (MDIs), Microfinance Institutions (MFIs), and Rural Credit Institutions), the interest rate cap is 18% per annum.

Classification

No separate legal tender |
Currency board |
Conventional peg | Yes. |

The exchange rate arrangement of the Central African Monetary Union is a conventional peg. Cameroon participates in the Central African Monetary Union and has no separate legal tender. The MCA between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country’s renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax  Yes. Effective June 10, 2019, transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1% (previously 0.5%), excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes.

Spot exchange market  Yes. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries, after the consent of the CB. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct exchange transactions with their customers. Licensed intermediaries consisted of 25 exchange bureaus and 14 banks, as of December 31, 2019. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
| Operated by the central bank | Yes. | The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. |
| Foreign exchange standing facility | Yes. | Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. |
| Allocation | No. |
| Auction | No. |
| Fixing | No. |
| Interbank market | Yes. | There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). Effective June 10, 2019, a fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All the 14 banks are allowed to participate to the interbank market. |
| Over the counter | Yes. | Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis. |
| Brokerage | No. |
| Market making | No. |
| Forward exchange market | Yes. | There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission. |
| Official cover of forward operations | No. |

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements | Yes. |
| Controls on the use of domestic currency | No. | Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction. |
| For current transactions and payments | No. |
| For capital transactions | No. |
| Transactions in capital and money market instruments | No. |
| Transactions in derivatives and other instruments | No. |
| Credit operations | No. |
Use of foreign exchange among residents: Yes. The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.

Administration of control

Yes. Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the CB, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the MOF, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears

No. Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

| Official | No. |
| Private | No. |
| Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) | Yes. |
| On domestic ownership and/or trade | No. |
| CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC. |
| On external trade | Yes. |
| Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement. |
| Controls on exports and imports of banknotes | Yes. |
| Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins. |
| On exports | Yes. |
Domestic currency

Yes. CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000). During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Foreign currency

Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 5 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.

On imports

Yes. CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Foreign currency

No. Effective March 1, 2019, resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Yes.

Held domestically
Yes. Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.

Approval required
Yes. The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. Effective March 1, 2019, the authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.

Held abroad
Yes. Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM effective March 1, 2019. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.

Approval required
Yes. The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive effective June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad

Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency

No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Yes. There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

Approval required

No.

Domestic currency accounts

Yes. There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

Convertible into foreign currency

No.

Approval required

No.

Blocked accounts

No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget

No. The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.

Financing requirements for imports

No. Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.

Minimum financing requirements

No. There are no financing requirements.

Advance payment requirements

No.

Advance import deposits

No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents.

Domiciliation requirements

Yes. Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.

Preshipment inspection

Yes. There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, imports with an f.o.b. value exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 2 million are subject to inspection by the Société Générale de Surveillance.

Letters of credit

No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses
No. Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

Other
Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Effective March 1, 2019, legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures
Yes. In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply. In Cameroon, importers are required to file an import declaration with the Société Générale de Surveillance when the value of the imported goods exceeds the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. The import of certain goods on the list issued by the Ministry of Industrial and Commercial Development (MINDIC) each year requires licenses.

Positive list
No.

Negative list
Yes. Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.

Open general licenses
Yes. There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in Cameroon this system applies mainly to long-term supply contracts. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.

Licenses with quotas
Yes. In Cameroon, quotas apply to container imports.

Other nontariff measures
No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs
Yes. The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.

Taxes collected through the exchange system
Yes. Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

State import monopoly
No.

References to legal instruments and hyperlinks
This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements
Yes. Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Surrender requirements
Yes.

Surrender to the central bank
Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Surrender to authorized dealers

No.

Financing requirements

No. Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.

Documentation requirements

Yes. Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings immediately after collection, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Letters of credit

No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Guarantees

No. No guarantees are required. However, export companies applying for VAT refund should submit proof of repatriation of export earnings signed by the MOF.

Domiciliation

Yes. Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.

Preshipment inspection

Yes. There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, exports, whatever their destination, are subject to Société Générale de Surveillance inspection.

Other

Yes. In Cameroon, a health certificate is required prior to shipment for exports of fresh foods (such as fruits and vegetables).

Export licenses

No.

Without quotas

No.

With quotas

No.

Export taxes

Yes. Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.

Collected through the exchange system

Yes. Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

Other export taxes

Yes. In Cameroon, a tax of 17.5% is levied on exports of lumber; the rate applicable to exports of semi-worked wood is 12.5%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Yes.

Trade-related payments

Yes. There are no exchange restrictions on service-related transactions. Payments for such transactions are subject to the same requirements as the underlying commercial transactions.

Prior approval

No.

Quantitative limits

No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test

Yes. All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be settled through Investment-related payments Yes.
Prior approval No.
Quantitative limits No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test Yes. There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc. payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided.

Payments for travel Yes.
Prior approval No.
Quantitative limits No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test Yes. Indicative limits are established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. Effective March 1, 2019, a single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business and CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission). However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Licensed intermediaries must serve their customers’ foreign currency needs, to the extent that funds are available to them, and check supporting documentation, including, as applicable, a valid travel document and ticket, a mission order, a health evacuation authorization, or a certificate of registration at a school or university, and report to the appropriate authorities.

Personal payments Yes. Transfers are unrestricted, on submission of supporting documentation.
Prior approval No.
Quantitative limits No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, a single indicative limit of CFAF 5 million is established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business and CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission). However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Foreign workers' wages Yes.
Prior approval No.
Quantitative limits No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test Yes. There are no restrictions on transfers by residents and nonresidents of income from wages, subject to a declaration for statistical purposes. On presentation of a pay slip, resident foreign wage earners may transfer a portion of their net remuneration, provided all transfer requests justified to cover family expenses will be satisfied.

Credit card use abroad: Yes.

Prior approval: No.

Quantitative limits: No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test: Yes. The use of credit cards is considered equivalent to a transfer and is not subject to specific regulations in the context of invisible transactions and current transfers. Residents may use credit cards within the CEMAC and abroad.

Other payments: Yes. These are treated the same as trade-related payments.

Prior approval: No.

Quantitative limits: No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test: Yes. All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be settled through licensed intermediaries with stronger verifications. Licensed intermediaries must obtain a pro forma invoice or other supporting documents for payments for service-related expenditures under CFAF 100 million.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements: Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements: Yes.

Surrender to the central bank: Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of receipt.

Surrender to authorized dealers: No.

Restrictions on use of funds: No.

References to legal instruments and hyperlinks: This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions: Yes. The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the CB must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”

Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior CB approval is required. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. If the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeded CFAF 100 million, the transaction is subject to the MOF and BEAC approval. Moreover, the provisions of Article 255 of the COSUMAF General Regulations specify that “the regulations governing the management of a collective investment fund and the articles of incorporation of an open-ended investment company may, subject to COSUMAF prior approval, allow purchases and sales of securities on markets outside the CEMAC.”

Controls on derivatives and other instruments No. These instruments are not regulated.

Purchase locally by nonresidents No. There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents No. There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.

Purchase abroad by residents No. Licensed banks are free to deal in derivatives, subject to compliance with the prudential rules issued by the Banking Commission, which is responsible for supervision of the banking system.

Sale or issue abroad by residents No. There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.

Controls on credit operations Yes. There are no specific regulations on borrowing and lending by instrument type or by maturity.

Commercial credits Yes. Borrowing directly related to the financing of commercial transactions and borrowing and lending contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.

By residents to nonresidents Yes. Banks may verify and then execute commercial credits granted to nonresidents. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.

To residents from nonresidents No. Only banks are authorized to verify and then execute commercial credits received by residents, which they must declare to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.

Financial credits Yes. Loans contracted or granted by resident licensed banks and loans constituting FDI, which are already being authorized, are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction. Banks may verify and execute borrowing and lending transactions for their customers, as well as their repayment. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.

To residents from nonresidents  No.

By residents to nonresidents  No.

To residents from nonresidents  No.

Controls on direct investment

Outward direct investment  Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, outward direct investment by CEMAC countries is subject to prior approval by the CB. Previously, transactions exceeding CFAF 100 million must be reported to the MOF 30 days in advance. Only licensed banks may verify and execute such transactions. The following may serve as supporting documents: (1) the list of registered shareholders of the direct investment enterprise; (2) a copy of the decision to create the enterprise or increase its capital; (3) a description of the enterprise’s type of business; (4) the balance sheets, income statements, and auditors’ reports for the previous three years, if the investment exceeds CFAF 100 million; and (5) projected balance sheets and income statements, in cases of new enterprises.

Inward direct investment  Yes. Inward direct investment to CEMAC countries is unrestricted. Only licensed banks may verify and execute such transactions. Transactions must be reported to the CB and MOF within 30 days in advance, except for capital increases resulting from the reinvestment of undistributed earnings. The following may serve as supporting documents: (1) the list of registered shareholders of the direct investment enterprise; (2) a copy of the decision to create the enterprise or increase its capital; (3) a description of the enterprise’s type of business; (4) the balance sheets, income statements, and auditors’ reports for the previous three years, if the investment exceeds CFAF 100 million; and (5) projected balance sheets and income statements, in cases of new enterprises.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

Yes. The total or partial liquidation of CEMAC countries’ outward (and inward) direct investment must be reported to the MOF 30 days before execution.

Controls on real estate transactions

Yes. This category of transaction is not subject to specific regulations. It is implicitly subject to the same regulations as FDI.

Purchase abroad by residents  Yes. The transaction should be reported to the CB and MOF as in the case of FDI and the CB should approve the transaction.

Purchase locally by nonresidents  Yes. The transaction should be reported to the CB as in the case of FDI.

Sale locally by nonresidents  No. There is no restriction.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Exchange tax
06/10/2019
Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1% (previously 0.5%), excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax.

Foreign exchange market
Spot exchange market
Interbank market
06/10/2019
A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes
On exports
Domestic currency
03/01/2019
Departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Foreign currency
03/01/2019
Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

On imports
Domestic currency
03/01/2019
Arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Foreign currency
03/01/2019
Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.

Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

Imports and Import Payments

Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business and CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission).

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

A single indicative limit of CFAF 5 million is established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business and CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission).

Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days).
Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019
Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of receipt.

Capital Transactions

Repatriation requirements 03/01/2019
Foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated, immediately after collection (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements
Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt (previously 30 days).

Controls on capital and money market instruments

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)

Canada imposes sanctions, which may include exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, for the preservation of national or international security against the following: (1) under the SEMA: the Islamic Republic of Iran, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK), Myanmar, Nicaragua (effective June 21, 2019), Russia, South Sudan, Syria, Ukraine, Venezuela, and Zimbabwe; (2) under the United Nations Act (UN Act), to implement UNSC decisions, pursuant to Articles 25 and 103 of the Charter of the UN, with respect to Al-Qaida and the Taliban, the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iran, Iraq, DPRK, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, and Yemen. Sanctions under the UN Act also affect certain individuals and entities in connection with terrorist activities under the Regulations Implementing the UNs Resolutions on the Suppression of Terrorism; and (3) On June 20, 2018, the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) (S.C. 2017, c. 21) was established and authorizes the government to place controls on the movement of currency to individuals suspected of contributing to acts of significant corruption and/or gross human rights violations. Foreign nationals from Myanmar, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Sudan, and Venezuela are currently listed pursuant to this Act. Canada may also implement exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions under other mechanisms, including the Criminal Officials Act, against specific individuals, groups, and entities but not against entire jurisdictions or economic sectors in Tunisia and Ukraine. Sanctions against Côte d’Ivoire, Eritrea, and Liberia have been repealed.

On November 29, 2018, the Regulations Amending the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2018-259) were adopted. These amended the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2017-233) to include 17 foreign nationals from Saudi Arabia, who, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, are responsible for or complicit in gross violations of internationally recognized human rights, particularly the torture and extrajudicial killing of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi. These individuals were listed pursuant to the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (S.C. 2017, c. 21).

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating, with the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar determined by supply and demand. However, under an intervention policy established by the government in close consultation with the BOC, the BOC may intervene in the foreign exchange market on behalf of the government. The current policy is to intervene on a discretionary, rather than systematic, basis and only in exceptional circumstances. The last time the BOC intervened was as part of the concerted intervention with authorities in Europe, Japan, the United Kingdom, and the United States to counter an excessively strong yen following the March 2011 earthquake in Japan. Previously, the BOC intervened in September 1998 to influence movements in the Canadian dollar. Interventions are announced on the BOC’s website, and the amount of intervention is published in the government’s monthly official press release on international reserves.

The amount of any BOC intervention in foreign currency markets is published in the monthly release of the government’s official international reserves. This release is generally published three business days after month end.

The inflation target is set jointly by the BOC and the federal government. The BOC and the government have renewed the inflation-control target framework six times since its adoption in 1991—most recently in October 2016 for five years to the end of 2021. The target aims to keep the total CPI inflation at the 2% midpoint of a medium-term target range of 1%–3%. The BOC raises or lowers its policy interest rate to achieve the target, typically within six to eight quarters—the time usually needed for policy action to work its way through the economy and have its full effect on inflation. Decisions are made on a consensus basis.

Band/Range

Yes.

Target measure

Yes.

CPI

Yes. The inflation target is expressed as the year-over-year (y-o-y) increase in the total CPI. The bank also monitors a set of “core” inflation measures. The BOC’s preferred core inflation measures are CPI-trim, CPI-median, and CPI-common. CPI-trim (trimmed mean): a measure of core inflation that excludes CPI components whose rates of change in a given month are located in the tails of the distribution of price changes. CPI-median (weighted median): a measure of core inflation corresponding to the price change located at the 50th percentile (in terms of CPI basket weights) of the distribution of price changes in a given month. CPI-common (common component): a measure of core inflation that tracks common price changes across categories in the CPI basket. CPI is published by Statistics Canada.

Core inflation

Target horizon

Yes. BOC’s target horizon is six to eight quarters.

Operating target (policy rate)

Yes.

Policy rate

Yes. The BOC raises or lowers its policy interest rate (overnight rate) to achieve the inflation target, typically within six to eight quarters—the time usually needed for policy action to work its way through the economy and have its full effect on inflation.

Target corridor band

Yes. The target corridor band ranges from a low value of 0.25% to a high value of 2.75%. The BOC operates a system to make sure that trading in the overnight market stays within an “operating band.” This band is one-half of a percentage point wide and has the target for the overnight rate at its center. For example, if the operating band is 2.25% to 2.75%, the target for the overnight rate would be 2.50%. The top of that band (2.75%) is the bank rate—the interest rate that the bank charges on one-day loans to large value transfer system. The bottom of the band (2.25%) is the deposit rate—the interest rate that the Bank pays on any surplus funds that participating institutions leave on deposit at the bank overnight.

There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants.

The foreign exchange market operates over the counter with the majority of transactions occurring between foreign exchange dealers and its clients, but with significant volume conducted through interdealer brokers.

The foreign exchange market operates based on a brokerage system.

The operation of the foreign exchange market is based on a market-making agreement. Market makers are market participants who continuously quote buying and selling prices to other market participants.

Forward exchange rates are freely determined in the exchange market.

Import permits are required (under various laws) for a broad range of items, including certain endangered species of flora and fauna, natural gas, material and equipment for the production or use of nuclear energy, and certain internationally controlled drugs. Under Canada’s Export and Import Permits Act, import permits are also required for products that are included on the Import Control List, including certain small arms, large-caliber armaments or weapons, military products, chemicals, and a number of other textiles and apparel, agricultural, and metal products. In addition, Health Canada does not permit the importation of unregistered drugs. Imports of used motor vehicles (less than 15 years old) are generally prohibited for reasons of safety and environmental standards. Exceptions are generally available for vehicles imported from the United States and Mexico. Some regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above include import restrictions. Imports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC. Imports prohibited under SEMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order. Effective January 1, 2019, the exemptions for used vehicles originating from Mexico (which began to be phased in on January 1, 2009) were entirely phased in.

Measures consistent with international trade obligations are in effect. Measures are imposed, taking into consideration competition policy factors and other economic costs, as appropriate.

On average, import tariff rates are low. Canada’s trade-weighted average tariff rate for all products, including agricultural products, has been less than 1% since 1998, largely as a result of duty-free access under the 1988 Canada-US Free Trade Agreement. Canada is an active participant in bilateral and regional free trade negotiations and currently has agreements with Mexico and the United States (under the Canada-US-Mexico Agreement), Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, the EFTA countries, the EU, Honduras, Israel, Jordan, Korea, Panama, Peru, and Ukraine. In addition, the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) entered into force between Canada and the six other countries in the Asia-Pacific region to have ratified the agreement: Australia, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, Singapore, and Vietnam. Canada is also engaged in ongoing negotiations with the MERCOSUR bloc (Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay), and the Pacific Alliance. Canada has also been engaged in exploratory discussions with the ASEAN toward a potential FTA. Canada maintains three preferential... treatment for developing economies: the General Preferential Tariff, the Least Developed Country Tariff, and the Commonwealth Caribbean Countries Tariff. Canada also continues to reduce tariffs on a unilateral basis. Since 2009, Canada has eliminated more than 2,470 tariffs, including on both imported machinery and equipment and manufacturing inputs (making Canada a tariff-free zone for industrial manufacturers) and a broad range of goods used as agri-food processing ingredients. The highest tariff rates apply to a limited number of over-quota, supply-managed agricultural products (dairy products, poultry, eggs). Canada's other sectors with higher-than-average tariffs include textiles and apparel, footwear, and ships.

In 2020, Canada implemented two unscheduled temporary changes to its tariff regime. Effective March 16, 2020, goods imported for emergency use by or on behalf of certain health-related entities, including hospitals and first-response organizations to respond to COVID-19, are eligible for relief from tariffs and sales taxes. Effective April 6, 2020, goods imported by or on behalf of public and private care residences, such as seniors’ residences, retirement homes, nursing homes and shelters, are also eligible for relief. Effective May 5, 2020, imports of certain goods, including medical supplies, such as personal protective equipment, are eligible for relief from tariffs. Relief is available to all importers of the specified goods including businesses, distributors, and individual Canadians. These measures will remain in effect for as long as warranted by the COVID-19 crisis.

Canada participates. In addition, certain items are controlled to ensure the orderly export marketing of certain products subject to import limitations by other countries, to implement bilateral agreements, to ensure adequate supply and distribution, and for nonproliferation purposes (that is, chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and their delivery systems). The Automatic Firearms Country Control List is a positive list of destinations to which Canadians may apply for permits to export prohibited firearms, weapons, or devices (as defined in the Criminal Code). The export of these prohibited items to countries that are not listed on the Automatic Firearms Country Control List is not allowed. The Area Control List includes countries to which the exports of all items are controlled. At present, only North Korea is on this list. Permits are required for the exportation of controlled goods and technologies to all countries except, in most cases, the United States, as well as for the export of all items destined for countries on the Area Control List. Acts and Regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above contain export restrictions, excluding the Freezing Assets of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act. Exports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC. Exports prohibited under SEAMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order.

With quotas Yes. Certain items are controlled to ensure orderly export marketing of products subject to import limits by other countries and to implement bilateral and FTAs and/or ensure adequate supply and distribution. Canada administers export quotas and issues export permits or certificates for textiles and apparel goods exported under NAFTA, for high sugar and sugar-containing products, processed food, dog and cat food, and vehicles exported under Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement, and for peanut butter, sugar, and sugar-containing products exported to the United States.

Export taxes Yes.
Collected through the exchange system No.
Other export taxes Yes. Since 1994, Canada has imposed an export tax on some tobacco products. This export tax is administered under the Excise Act, 2001.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions  Yes.
  The Special Economic Measures (Russia) Regulations prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from transacting in, providing financing for, or otherwise dealing in (1) new securities, including shares or any other ownership interest, in relation to a designated person listed in Schedule 2, the property of that person, or the interests or rights in property of that person; (2) new debt of more than 30 days’ maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, LCs, bank drafts, bankers’ acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper or similar instruments in relation to designated persons listed in Schedule 2, the property of those persons, or interests and property of those persons; and (3) new debt of more than 90 days’ maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, LCs, bank drafts, bankers’ acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper or similar instruments in relation to designated persons listed in Schedule 3, the property of those persons, or interests and property of those persons.

Similarly, regulations made under the United Nations Act, SEMA, and the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act restrict all financial services to designated individuals, including capital transactions.

The Special Economic Measures (Ukraine) Regulations (SOR/2014-60) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment in the Crimea region of Ukraine that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine that is held by or on behalf of the Crimea region of Ukraine or a person in the Crimea region of Ukraine. SOR/2014-60 was amended June 29, 2015, to prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment in the Crimea region of Ukraine that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Ukraine) Permit Authorization Order. In addition to the limitations on debt and equity financing, the Special Economic Measures (Russia) Regulations (SOR/2014-58) place limitations on the provision of financial services associated with property and oil exploration. The Special Economic Measures (Iran) Regulations (SOR/2010 165) were amended February 5, 2016. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are prohibited from dealing in property, entering into transactions, or providing financial or related services to persons listed in Schedule 1 of the Regulations or to a person acting for the benefit of a listed person. The broad prohibition against financial services was lifted following the February 5, 2016, amendments. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Iran) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (Syria) Regulations (SOR/2011-114) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in Syria if the investment involves property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of Syria, a person in Syria, or a Syrian who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are also prohibited from providing or acquiring financial or other related services to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of Syria or any person in Syria for the purpose of such an investment. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Syria) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Regulations (SOR/2011-167) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in any entity in the DPRK that involves dealing in property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of the DPRK, any person in the DPRK, or a DPRK national who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. The regulations also prohibit the provision or acquisition of financial services—including those that are intended to facilitate an investment in any entity—to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of the DPRK or persons in the DPRK. Provision of such financial services requires a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Permit Authorization Order.

Inward direct investment

Yes.

There are controls on direct investment by nonresidents in (1) activities related to Canada’s cultural heritage and national identity, in particular (a) publication, distribution, and sale of books, magazines, periodicals, and newspapers in print or machine readable form, but not including solely printing or typesetting any of the above; (b) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of film and video recordings; (c) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of audio and video music recordings; (d) publication, distribution, and sale of music in print or machine readable form; and (e) radio communication intended for direct reception by the general public; radio, television, and cable broadcasting companies; and satellite programming and broadcast network services; (2) air transport—foreign ownership of Canadian common carriers is limited to 49% and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned directly or indirectly by any single non-Canadian and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned by one or more non-Canadians authorized to provide air services in any jurisdiction, and only Canadians (as defined in the Canada Transportation Act) may register an aircraft as Canadian and obtain an operator certificate for the following commercial air services: (a) domestic air services; (b) scheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under air services agreements; (c) nonscheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under the Canada Transportation Act; and (d) specialty air services; (3) maritime transport; (4) telecommunications—foreign investment in a facilities-based telecommunications service supplier is restricted to 20% direct investment and 33.33% indirect investment. Restrictions do not apply to satellite and sub-sea facilities and do not apply to providers with less than a 10% revenue share of the telecommunications market; (5) uranium—51% minimum Canadian ownership requirement in individual uranium mining properties at the first stage of production unless the project is controlled by Canadian nationals, as defined in the ICA; the Cabinet may grant exemptions if Canadian partners cannot be found; and (6) fish harvesting. Under the Investment Canada Act, significant acquisitions of control of Canadian businesses by non-Canadian investors are subject to net benefit review. The thresholds for direct acquisitions of control by WTO members and trade agreement partners are adjusted annually by a formula to reflect changes in nominal gross domestic product. The new thresholds become effective on January first of each year. Effective January 1, 2020, the review thresholds are: Can$1.075 billion in enterprise value for private sector WTO investments, Can$1.613 billion in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments, and Can$428 million for state-owned enterprise WTO investments. Previously, effective January 1, 2019, the review thresholds were Can$1.045 billion, Can$1.568 billion, and Can$416 million, respectively. The trade agreements that offer this private sector trade agreement investment threshold are: the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership, Canada-European Union Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement Implementation Act, Canada-United States-Mexico Agreement, Canada-Chile Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act, Canada-Peru Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act, Canada-Colombia Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act, Canada-Panama Economic Growth and Prosperity Act, Canada-Honduras Economic Growth and Prosperity Act, Canada-Korea Economic Growth and Prosperity Act. The Canada-United States-Mexico Agreement went into force effective July 1, 2020. The review threshold for non-WTO investments is Can$5 million for direct acquisitions and Can$50 million for indirect acquisitions. For all non-Canadian investors, acquisitions of Canadian cultural businesses are also reviewable at these thresholds (that is, Can$5 million and Can$50 million), except for (1) (e) of the paragraph above, for which non-cultural business thresholds apply. Under the guidelines on the acquisition of control of major investments in Canada by SOEs, the governance and commercial orientation of SOEs are examined as part of the net benefit review of those investments. In addition, in December 2012, the government issued a policy that SOE applications for the control of a Canadian oil-sands business will be approved only in an “exceptional circumstance.” An SOE includes entities influenced directly or indirectly by a foreign government. A direct acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian directly acquires a Canadian business. An indirect acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian acquires a business outside Canada and that business has a subsidiary in Canada. Decisions to allow an investment are based on “likely net benefit” to Canada. The net benefit factors are set out in Section 20 of the ICA. Decisions regarding investments by non-Canadians into non-cultural industries are made by the Minister of Innovation, Science and Economic Development. The Minister of Canadian Heritage makes decisions on investments related to cultural businesses. A list of cultural businesses is given in Schedule IV of the Investment Canada Regulations. Ministers have 45 days to make a decision on a reviewable investment. The review period may be extended by 30 days, and beyond only with the agreement of the Minister and the investor. Investments by non-Canadians in the cultural sector (below threshold value acquisitions and establishments of new Canadian businesses) that are only subject to a notification under the Act may be subject to a review if the Governor General in Council orders it, based on the belief that it is in the public interest to do so and the investment is related to Canada’s national identity and cultural heritage. Foreign investments of any size are reviewable for national security.

Temporary COVID-19-related measures were taken. Effective April 18, 2020, the government issued a Policy Statement on Foreign Investment Review and COVID-19. Under this policy, the government will apply enhanced scrutiny under the Investment Canada Act to foreign direct investments of any value, controlling or non-controlling, in Canadian businesses that are related to public health or involved in the supply of critical goods and services to Canadians or to the Government; or by state-owned investors or private investors assessed as being closely tied to or subject to direction from foreign governments. Effective July 31, 2020, the Minister of Innovation, Science and Industry issued a Ministerial Order pursuant to the Time Limits and Other Periods Act (COVID-19). This Order lengthens the initial review period and the extended initial review period of the national security review timeline for any investments for which an application or notification has been certified as of the date of the Ministerial Order, July 31, 2020, up to December 31, 2020. The Ministerial Order also extends the deadline for the Minister to take action under Part IV.1 for investments that are subject to the Investment Canada Act but do not require a filing. For these investments, the relevant period continues to be determined from the date of implementation of the investment.

The Regulations implementing the UN Resolutions on Iran (SOR/2007-44) were amended February 5, 2016. The UN Resolutions on Iran prohibit financial or related services or the facilitation of any transaction related to uranium mining in Canada, or to the production or the use of nuclear materials and technologies listed in Information Circular INFCIRC/254/Rev.

Ontario has a 15% nonresident speculation tax (NRST) on the purchase or acquisition of an interest in residential property located in the Greater Golden Horseshoe (GGH) by individuals who are not citizens or permanent residents of Canada or by foreign corporations (“foreign entities”) and taxable trustees. The NRST applies to the transfer of land which contains at least one and not more than six single-family residences. Examples of land containing one single-family residence include land containing a detached house, a semi-detached house, a town house or a condominium unit. In a situation involving the purchase of multiple condominium units, each unit would be considered land containing one single-family residence. Examples of land containing more than one single-family residence that are subject to the tax include land containing duplexes, triplexes, fourplexes, fiveplexes, and sixplexes. The NRST does not apply to other types of land such as land containing multi-residential rental apartment buildings with more than six units, agricultural land, commercial land, or industrial land. The NRST applies on the value of the consideration for the residential property. If the land transferred includes both residential property and another type of property, the NRST applies on the portion of the value of the consideration attributable to the residential property. For example, if the purchase price of the transaction is $1,000,000 and contains one single-family residence with a value of the consideration of $400,000, and commercial land with a value of the consideration of $600,000, the 15% NRST would apply to only the $400,000 portion. An additional 20% property transfer tax applies to foreign entities or taxable trustees on transfers of residential property located in the Greater Vancouver Regional District. The tax applies in relation to purchases or gaining interest in a property.
Effective June 1, 2020, the Regulations Implementing the United Nations Resolutions on the DPRK were amended to prohibit any person in Canada or any Canadian outside Canada to knowingly sell or lease or otherwise make available real property to the DPRK, to a national or to any person acting on behalf or at the direction of the DPRK or a national.

Sale locally by nonresidents No. There are no controls; however, withholding taxes apply.

Controls on personal capital transactions No.

Loans No.

By residents to nonresidents No. The Special Economic Measures (Russia) Regulations prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from transacting in, providing financing for, or otherwise dealing in (1) new debt of more than 30 days’ maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, LCs, bank drafts, bankers’ acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper or similar instruments in relation to designated persons listed in Schedule 2, the property of those persons, or interests and property of those persons; and (2) new debt of more than 90 days’ maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, LCs, bank drafts, bankers’ acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper or similar instruments in relation to designated persons listed in Schedule 3, the property of those persons, or interests and property of those persons.

There are no limits on investments abroad. Banks may make investments abroad in financial sector entities, subject to the prudent person test, and are required in some instances to obtain approval.

No controls are placed on the ownership of banks that specifically preclude nonresident ownership. The shares of large banks must remain widely held, and fit and proper investors may own up to 20% of voting shares and 30% of any class of nonvoting shares, provided no single shareholder or group of shareholders controls the bank. Medium banks may have individual shareholdings of up to 65% with a public offering of at least 35% of the voting shares. Small banks may be 100% closely held. Residents and nonresidents may set up or acquire a smaller bank, subject to ministerial approval.

There are no limits specific to nonresidents. Pension plans in Canada are generally subject to the prudent portfolio rule, which governs the overall reasonable level of risk and the appropriate level of diversification. There are also quantitative investment limits, which are set out in the Federal Pension Benefits Standards Act and its accompanying regulations. Most provinces in Canada have adopted the federal pension investment rules. The investment rules limit pension funds to owning no more than 30% of a company’s voting shares to elect directors. Based on the market value of a pension fund’s assets, the pension fund may invest a maximum of 10% in any one entity. There are certain exemptions to the quantitative limits such as investment in real estate corporations, resource corporations, and investment corporations. There is also an exemption to the 10% maximum investment in any one entity limit for securities or funds composed of mortgage-backed securities issued or fully guaranteed by the Government of Canada, the government of a province, or any agency thereof.

<td>The exchange rate arrangement of the Central African Monetary Union is a conventional peg. The CAR participates in the Central African Monetary Union and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (“Joint Monetary Committee”) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member from the BEAC automatically results in that member’s renunciation of the MCA.</td>
</tbody>

Stabilized arrangement
The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.

There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). Effective June 10, 2019, a fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.

Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.

An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC. Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000). During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.). Effective March 1, 2019, resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions Yes. The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc zone, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc zone countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which entered into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF...
Repatriation requirements: Yes.

In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, effective March 1, 2019, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements: Yes.

Surrender to the central bank: Yes.

Effective March 1, 2019, amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days (previously 30 days) after receipt.

Surrender to authorized dealers: No.

Controls on capital and money market instruments: Yes.

On capital market securities: Yes.

The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature: Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Effective March 1, 2019, the issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million (previously CFAF 10 million). Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.

Purchase abroad by residents: Yes.

Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding debt of the issuer exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF and BEAC approval.

Sale or issue abroad by residents: Yes.

Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Effective March 1, 2019, prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions. Previously, MOF approval was required when the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million.

Bonds or other debt securities: Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Effective March 1, 2019, the issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million (previously CFAF 10 million). Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by residents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared 30 days before when the transaction is no more than CFAF 20 million.
Above this amount, prior CB approval is required. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding debt of the issuer exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF and BEAC approval.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared 30 days before when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million.
Above that amount, prior CB approval is required. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, the issuance, advertisement, and sale of money market instruments within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million (previously CFAF 10 million). Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment abroad for purchases of money market instruments by residents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before if the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior CB approval is required. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. If the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeds CFAF 100 million, the transaction is subject to MOF and BEAC approval.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before if the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the prior CB approval is required. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amounts. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF approval.

On collective investment securities nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, the issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million (previously CFAF 10 million). Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior CB approval is required. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. If the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeded CFAF 100 million, the transaction is subject to the MOF and BEAC approval. Moreover, the provisions of Article 255 of the COSUMAF General Regulations specify that “the regulations governing the management of a collective investment fund and the articles of incorporation of an open-end investment company may, subject to COSUMAF prior approval, allow purchases and sales of securities on markets outside the CEMAC.”

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes. Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval. Currency  Yes.  The currency issued within the CEMAC, which is legal tender in Chad and the other member countries, is the CFA franc.

Other legal tender  No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary  Yes.

Dual

Multiple

Classification

No separate legal tender

Currency board

Conventional peg  Yes.  The exchange rate arrangement of the Central African Monetary Union (CAMU) is a conventional peg. Chad participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CAMU member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country’s renunciation of the MCA.

Stabilized arrangement
The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.

Exchange tax  Yes. Effective June 10, 2019, transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1% (previously 0.5%), excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC’s OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. Commercial banks may also acquire euro notes at 1.5% from the CB. There are eight authorized foreign exchange bureaus in Chad.

Operated by the central bank  Yes. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. Commercial banks may also acquire euro notes at 1.5% from the CB.

Foreign exchange standing facility  Yes. Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). Effective June 10, 2019, a fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All banks approved by COBAC and authorized by the Monetary Authority to operate in the country are automatically eligible to participate in the interbank market. Only participation in BEAC intervention requires the approval of the governor after COBAC’s consent. There are eight authorized banks, all of which participate in the interbank market.

| Over the counter | Yes. |
| Brokerage       | No. |
| Market making   | No. |
| Forward exchange market | Yes. |

There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission.

| Official cover of forward operations | No. |

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency No.

Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

| For current transactions and payments | No. |
| For capital transactions             | No. |
| Transactions in capital and money market instruments | No. |
| Transactions in derivatives and other instruments | No. |
Credit operations No.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.

Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements No.

Operative No.

Inoperative No.

Regional arrangements Yes. An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements No.

Barter agreements and open accounts Yes.

Administration of control Yes. Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears No. Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official No.

Private No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) Yes. CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

On domestic ownership and/or trade No.

On external trade Yes. Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes. Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries. Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements. Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this area.
regard. In Chad, imports with an f.o.b. value exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 2 million are subject to preshipment inspection. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance).

Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Effective March 1, 2019, legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.

Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.

There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.

The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.

Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Yes. The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member country, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”

Repatriation requirements
Yes.

In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, effective March 1, 2019, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements
Yes.

Surrender to the central bank
Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days (previously 30 days) after receipt.

Surrender to authorized dealers
No.

Controls on capital and money market instruments
Yes.

On capital market securities

Yes. The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature
Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, the issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million (previously 10 million). Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding debt of the issuer exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF and BEAC approval.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Effective March 1, 2019, prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions. Previously, MOF approval... was required when the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Exchange tax

| 06/10/2019 |
|---|---|
| Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1% (previously 0.5%), excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. |

Foreign exchange market

Spot exchange market

Interbank market

| 06/10/2019 |
|---|---|
| A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

On exports

Domestic currency 03/01/2019
Departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Foreign currency 03/01/2019

On imports

Domestic currency 03/01/2019
Arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Foreign currency 03/01/2019
Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, and instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held domestically

Approval required 03/01/2019
The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.

Held abroad 03/01/2019
Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad 03/01/2019
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

Imports and Import Payments

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Other 03/01/2019
Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements 03/01/2019
Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019  Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Payments for travel

Indicative limits/bona fide test 03/01/2019  A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business, CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission).

Personal payments

Indicative limits/bona fide test 03/01/2019  A single indicative limit of CFAF 5 million is established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business, CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission).

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements 03/01/2019  Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019  Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of receipt.

| Floating | Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangements is free floating. The Central Bank of Chile (BCCH) reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market, in exceptional circumstances, to keep the currency | near its equilibrium value to avoid costly future reversals. These interventions take the form of transparent, well-founded measures, including explicit definitions of the periods and amounts involved and clearly explained reasons for the intervention. The BCCH usually announces the amount of foreign exchange it intends to buy or sell in its monthly bulletin. It publishes its auction results daily and its reserves weekly. Effective November 28, 2019, the BCCH announced a preventive program aimed at facilitating the management of liquidity in the financial system in dollars and pesos, together with a program to sell foreign currency aimed at reducing excessive volatility in the exchange rate. This program was implemented to sell up to US$20 billion in foreign currency, which would be in effect up until May 29, 2020, according to the following plan: sale of up to US$10 billion in the spot market and sale of up to US$10 billion in exchange hedging instruments.

However, the initial announcement of this program did not specify the daily or weekly amounts. Instead such details were announced at the end of each week for the daily amounts sold the following week. Given that the initial November 28, 2019 announcement lacked sufficient detail, each subsequent weekly announcement was counted as an intervention. The weekly announcements occurred each week for interventions starting December 2, 2019. Under the program US$2.55 billion was sold in the spot market and was suspended on January 3, 2020. And only the stock of forwards in effect on that date, equivalent to US$4.5 billion, would be renewed.

The three-intervention limit allowed under the free-floating arrangement for the period under review from May 1, 2020 through end-April 2020 was reached on the fourth announcement on December 20, 2019. Hence, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from free floating, effective December 20, 2019.

Free floating

Official exchange rate  Yes.  The exchange rate in the Formal Exchange Market (MCF) is the rate freely agreed by the participants. The BCCH publishes daily exchange rates of the foreign currencies generally accepted in international exchange markets in the Official Gazette, based on the previous day’s transactions in the MCF and, where appropriate, on reports on transactions in international markets. The Law of the CB specifically states that the exchange rate in the MCF is the one freely agreed by the intervening parties. Nevertheless, the Law of the CB also requires it to authorize “adjustment systems” (“sistemas de reajuste”) for credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives (Article 35.9), and the US dollar and other foreign currencies have been authorized as one of those “adjustment systems.” Only for those specific transactions (credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives), the exchange rates published in the Official Gazette are mandatory.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

- U.S. dollar
- Euro
- Composite
The Board of the BCCH sets targets and carries out such functions in accordance with the Organic Constitutional Law. In general, the adoption of Agreements by the Board requires a majority vote by its members. The Board is free to change the target.

Since 2007, the explicit objective of the BCCH has been to maintain annual inflation of the headline consumer price index at about 3% most of the time, with a tolerance range of ±1%. There are no automatic consequences from missing the inflation target, but rather the authorities use their discretion to return inflation to within the target band.

Since 2007, the explicit objective of the BCCH has been to maintain annual inflation of the headline consumer price index.

The target is always for a two-year period.

The BCCH executes its monetary policy by influencing the overnight interbank interest rate, the rate at which banks lend to each other from one day to the next.

The Monetary Policy Meeting (MPM) is the BCCH’s Board instance to decide any change in the Monetary Policy Rate. There are 8 scheduled Monetary Policy Meetings in a year. The dates for these meetings are published the previous year, although the Board reserves the right to hold special monetary policy meetings if deemed necessary. As of August 11, 2020, the policy rate was 0.5%.

The target corridor band is set symmetrically in relation to the monetary policy rate ±50 basis points. The permanent liquidity facility (PLF) provides overnight liquidity at the monetary policy rate +25 basis points, while the permanent deposits facility absorbs overnight liquidity at the monetary policy rate of ~25 basis points.
Accountability  Yes.
Open letter  n.a.
Parliamentary hearings  Yes.  The BCCH presents its Monetary Policy Report to the Finance Commission on a quarterly basis and the Financial Stability Report every six months. In total, there are 6 hearings in the year, one of which (the September IPOM) is in front of the entire Senate. It should be noted that Article 4 of the Organic Law of the BCCH states that the BCCH must inform the President of the Republic and the Senate of the policies and general rules it sets in the exercise of its functions.

Other  n.a.

Transparency  Yes.
Publication of votes  Yes.  The minutes of the monetary policy meeting state whether the decision was unanimous or, if not, the number of votes in favor and against the decision. These votes are not anonymous, although the reasons behind the votes are.
Publication of minutes  Yes.  On the day of the monetary policy meeting, the decision adopted is reported to the public through a communiqué published at 6 p.m. The Minutes of Monetary Policy Meetings, which present the contents and basis for the voting, are published 11 business days after the meeting is held. The official records of the meetings are published 10 years later.
Publication of inflation forecasts  Yes.  The Monetary Policy Report (IPOM), which is signed by the Board and published quarterly (in March, June, September, and December), includes the inflation projections.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax  No.
Exchange subsidy  No.
Foreign exchange market  Yes.  Commercial banks may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market  Yes.  Only institutions licensed by the BCCH may conduct foreign exchange transactions, which must be carried out through the MCF. As of August 11, 2020, 19 banks and 9 nonbank entities (8 stock exchange brokers and 1 securities dealer) are authorized institutions. Under Article 39 of the Organic Constitutional Law of the BCCH anyone may freely engage in foreign exchange operations. Without prejudice to that provision, Article 42 of that law authorizes the BCCH to limit execution of certain operations to the MCF. The MCF comprises all banking institutions; the BCCH may authorize other entities and individuals, provided they meet the requirements in Chapter III of the Compendium of Foreign Exchange Regulations (CNCI). A list of these entities is given in the annex to Chapter III. Chapter II also lists operations that must be conducted exclusively through the MCF, executed in the MCF, and reported to the BCCH, and those that need only be reported.
Therefore, exchange bureaux may operate in the exchange market, except for transactions that must be executed exclusively through the MCF. At present, no exchange bureaux participate in the MCF, although they are not legally barred from requesting authorization to do so if they meet the CNCI requirements.

Operated by the central bank  No.
Effective December 2, 2019, a foreign currency sales program was launched. The program was initially intended to sell up to USS 10 billion in the spot market until May 29, 2020. However, the auction was suspended, effective January 6, 2020, after US$ 2.55 billion were auctioned.

The interbank market includes 19 banks licensed by the Superintendency of Banks and Financial Institutions (currently the Financial Markets Board, CMF). There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants.

The CB has not intervened in this market.

The interbank market is operated as a continuous electronic OTC market by the Bolsa de Comercio (Stock Exchange), based on market-making agreements. Banks and other members of the MCF also deal on their own account.

Effective December 2, 2019, a special operations program was launched which included the sale of up to US$10 billion in exchange hedging instruments and an auction program for the purchase of up to US$4 billion in currency swaps.

Controls on capital and money market instruments

Nonresidents may sell securities and other instruments through the extraterritorial mechanisms of the securities exchange.

On capital market securities

Yes.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature

Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Yes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

No.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes.

The purchase of shares and other securities of a participating nature may be affected by laws on inward direct investment.

Effective January 1, 2020, the currency restriction on foreign currency denominated securities is abolished. Previously, such securities could be denominated only in US dollars and euros. To facilitate the development of a broader range of investment alternatives in the local market, admission of shares and other securities, such as exchange-traded funds, denominated in pesos and issued by nonresident on the domestic market is authorized based on the conditions established by the BCCH.

Limits apply to purchases of foreign securities by (1) insurance companies that would cause foreign assets to exceed 25%, and 30% of technical provisions and risk capital reserves; (2) managers of DL 3500 pension funds, Retirement Bonus Fund of Law 19882 funds, and Unemployment Fund of Law 19728 funds that would cause foreign assets to exceed the limits established in DL 3500, as amended in 2008; and (3) managers of housing funds that would cause foreign assets to exceed 30% of total assets under management.
Effective January 1, 2020, the currency restriction on foreign currency denominated securities is abolished. Previously, such securities could be denominated only in US dollars and euros. The issue of bonds in pesos locally by nonresidents can be done without prior approval requirement, however, registration with the Financial Market Commission is required. There are no quantitative limits on it. In addition, funds associated to the issuance of peso denominated bonds by non-residents are required to be conducted through the Formal Exchange Market and be reported to the CB.

On money market instruments

Effective January 1, 2020, the currency restriction on foreign currency denominated securities is abolished. Previously, such securities could be denominated only in US dollars and euros. To facilitate the development of a broader range of investment alternatives in the local market, admission of shares and other securities, such as exchange-traded funds, denominated in pesos and issued by nonresident on the domestic market is authorized based on the conditions established by the BCCH.

On collective investment securities

Effective January 1, 2020, the currency restriction on foreign currency denominated securities is abolished. Previously, such securities could be denominated only in US dollars and euros. To facilitate the development of a broader range of investment alternatives in the local market, admission of securities denominated in pesos and issued by nonresident on the domestic market is authorized based on the conditions established by the BCCH.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions: Yes. Banks and financial institutions may conduct the following foreign currency operations: (1) engage in credit operations with the rest of the world; (2) acquire credit granted abroad to residents, including for foreign trade; (3) participate as agents in international financing operations in favor of residents; (4) discount commercial paper whose obligors are not banks established in Chile; (5) purchase bonds issued abroad by residents and by state enterprises; and (6) invest in bonds issued by foreign enterprises and in claims issued or guaranteed by foreign governments, CBs, and foreign or international banking or financial institutions. Banks may also engage in financial derivatives operations under BCCH rules. Banks must limit their exposure (including foreign exchange risk) as recommended by the BCBS.

Borrowing abroad: Yes. Banks may issue certificates of deposit (CDs) and bonds abroad. Loans with up to one-year maturity are subject to a 3.6% reserve requirement.

Maintenance of accounts abroad: Yes. Banks may hold foreign exchange accounts and demand or time deposits within the margin for financial investment abroad. Nonbank financial institutions are allowed to maintain accounts abroad. External current accounts are not subject to controls.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits): Yes. Banks may deal in debt instruments and sovereign bonds issued abroad and may grant loans to individuals and legal entities residing abroad, observing the prudential margins and provisions set by the BCCH.

Lending locally in foreign exchange: Yes. Banks may grant loans and purchase securities issued in Chile and denominated or expressed in foreign exchange. Banks are required to limit interest rate and currency risk exposure, in accordance with the recommendations of the BCBS.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange: Yes. There are no restrictions on the purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange: banks may purchase such securities. Banks must, however, abide by the restrictions in the General Law on Banks, which specifies allowable transactions, and they must limit their risk exposure (including exchange risk) in keeping with the recommendations of the BCBS.

Foreign financial investments by commercial banks are subject to prudential regulations.

The incorporation of a bank in Chile requires, among other things, that the company be incorporated in the country as a corporation. In addition, the founding or controlling shareholders are required to comply with a set of fit and proper requirements, but none concerning nationality (Articles 27 and 28 of the General Banking Law, LGB).

In addition, Article 29 of the LGB regulates how financial institutions incorporated abroad can significantly participate in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank: “A financial institution incorporated abroad that requests to take a significant part in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank or to establish a branch in accordance with Article 32 may only be authorized if, in the country in which its head office operates, there is supervision that allows adequate monitoring of the risk of its operations and, in addition to complying with the provisions of the previous article, if it has prior authorization from the supervisory authority of the country in which its head office is incorporated. Additionally, to grant authorization, the supervisory bodies of both countries must be able to exchange relevant information on these institutions on a reciprocal basis.

In the case of investment holdings or other types of companies incorporated abroad, they must assure the Financial Market Commission, in whatever manner the latter deems necessary, that the provisions of the foregoing paragraph shall be permanently complied with if they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country.

As for the companies referred to in the previous paragraph, which are incorporated in a country that applies the rules of the Basel Committee, the preceding paragraphs shall not be applicable, if they are obliged to deliver, in the manner and within a time frame determined by the Board, reliable financial information regarding said companies and their subsidiaries, it being understood that such information emanates from the supervisory bodies. When these companies are not subject to the supervision of a body or are not required to provide such information to the body, the information must be endorsed by internationally recognized external auditors. To grant the corresponding authorization to these companies, they must assure the Board, in the manner it determines, that the provisions of this paragraph will be permanently complied with when they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country.

In the event of non-compliance with the provisions of this article, the provisions of the second and final paragraphs of Article 36 of this law shall apply.

For the purposes of this article, a significant shareholding in a Chilean bank is considered to be one which, according to the rules of Article 36, requires authorization from the Board."

Open foreign exchange position limits Yes. Banks are required to observe a limit on interest rates and currency risk exposure.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes. Chapter III B. 2 of the Compendium of Financial Standards of the BCCH states that the difference between payables, in the liabilities and expenditure accounts, and receivables, in the assets and revenue accounts, that have different maturities—the so-called maturity mismatch—must comply with the following: (1) The sum of the 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (2) The 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (3) The sum of the 90-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed twice the core capital.

On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes. Chapter III B. 2 of the Compendium of Financial Standards of the BCCH states that the difference between payables, in the liabilities and expenditure accounts, and receivables, in the assets and revenue accounts, that have different maturities—the so-called maturity mismatch—must comply with the following: (1) The sum of the 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (2) The 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (3) The sum of the 90-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed twice the core capital.

Provisions specific to institutional investors Yes.

Insurance companies Yes.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents Yes. Limits apply to purchases of foreign securities by insurance companies that would cause foreign assets to exceed 25%, and 30% of technical provisions and risk capital reserves. Foreign financial derivative products purchased or exchanged for other assets may not exceed 3% of insurance companies' technical reserves or risk assets.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad Yes. Limits apply to lending abroad by insurance companies that would cause foreign assets to exceed 25%, and 30% of technical provisions and risk capital reserves.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition Yes. A degree of consistency between asset and liability flows, both in terms of currency and maturity, must be maintained.

Pension funds Yes. There are five types of pension funds: A, B, C, D, and E.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents Yes. Pension funds of types A, B, C, and D may invest up to 1% of their assets in equity shares issued by foreign capital investment funds and may invest no more than 1% of their assets in the equity shares of a... single foreign capital investment fund. Limits apply to the purchase of foreign securities by managers of DL 3500 pension funds, Retirement Bonus Fund of Law 19882 funds, and Unemployment Fund of Law 19728 funds that would cause foreign assets to represent an amount greater than the limits established for them in DL 3500, as amended in 2008.

Limits apply to investment abroad by managers of DL 3500 pension funds, Retirement Bonus Fund of Law 19882 funds, and Unemployment Fund of Law 19728 funds that would cause foreign assets to represent an amount greater than the limits established for them in DL 3500, as amended in 2008. The sum of investments in foreign securities of A, B, C, D, and E funds managed by the same pension fund manager plus the amount of their investments abroad through mutual fund and national investment shares may not exceed 80% of the total value of the funds.

The limits on foreign currency investments without hedging applicable to A, B, C, D, and E funds are, respectively, 50%, 40%, 35%, 25%, and 15% of the total value of the fund. Investment funds must state their investment policies in their regulations and must stay within the limits they are free to set.

China officially maintains a de jure managed floating exchange rate arrangement with a view to keeping the RMB exchange rate stable at an adaptive and equilibrium level based on market supply and... demand with reference to a basket of currencies to preserve the stability of the Chinese economy and financial markets. The floating band of the RMB’s trading prices is 2% against the US dollar in the interbank foreign exchange market—that is, on each business day, the trading prices of the RMB against the US dollar in the market may fluctuate within a band of ±2% around the midrate released that day by China’s Foreign Exchange Trading System (CFETS). The People’s Bank of China (PBC) announced that the RMB’s floating range would be expanded in an orderly manner, based on the developments of the foreign exchange market and economic and financial situation. Based on the market demand and their pricing capacity, banks can determine their quotes of RMB against other currencies. There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand (PBC No. 2014/188).

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as other managed. The CFETS publishes its exchange rate index, and other RMB indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket.

Floating

Official exchange rate  Yes.

The PBC authorizes the CFETS to publish the daily midrates for the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hong Kong dollar, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso, New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, Thai baht, and the US dollar at 9:15 a.m. each working day to serve as the day’s midrates for the interbank spot foreign exchange market (including the OTC method and the bid-offer method). At the same time, the CFETS also publishes the daily reference rate (similar to the midrate) of the RMB against Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel.
For bank’s counter transactions (that is, bank customer transactions), banks can determine their RMB quotes against other currencies.
There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot foreign exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand.

The method for determining the RMB–US dollar midrate is as follows: The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opening quote, asks for quotes from all market makers in the interbank foreign exchange market and uses their quoted prices as the calculation sample for the RMB–US dollar midrate. The quotes for the US dollar must refer to the closing price of the previous day and take into account foreign exchange supply and demand and changes in the exchange rates of the main international currencies.
After eliminating the highest and lowest quotes, it takes the weighted average of the remaining market makers’ quotes and obtains the daily RMB–US dollar midrate. The weighting is determined by the CFETS based on indicators including the transaction volume of the quoting parties in the interbank foreign exchange market and the circumstances of the quotes.

The method for determining the midrate of the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso,
New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, and Thai baht is as follows: The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opens, asks for quotes from market makers of the corresponding currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market, eliminates the highest and lowest quotes, takes the average of the remaining market makers’ quotes, and obtains the daily RMB midrates against the corresponding currencies.

The midrate against the Hong Kong dollar is determined by the CFETS through cross-rates based, respectively, on the day’s midrate of the RMB against the US dollar and the exchange rate for the US dollar against the Hong Kong dollar on international foreign exchange markets at 9:00 a.m.

The reference rates for the Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel are determined by the CFETS by asking for quotes from quoting banks before the opening quote and then taking a simple average of the quotes.

The CFETS publishes its exchange rate index, and other RMB indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket. The number of currencies included in the CFETS RMB currency basket was increased from 13 to 24 in 2017. The new currencies account for about 21% of the new basket and are included as they have become directly traded in the onshore foreign exchange market in 2016.

Monetary aggregate target Yes. The Law of the People’s Republic of China on the PBC stipulates that “the aim of monetary policies must be to maintain the stability of the value of the currency and thereby promote economic growth.” The current reality in China requires that monetary policy take into account multiple objectives such as inflation, growth, employment, balance of payments, and also set aside space for financial stability and financial reforms. Therefore, in developing and implementing monetary policies, the PBC needs to consider multiple factors such as currency stability and economic growth and to properly adjust the weights of each objective according to key tasks of economic management.

To effectively achieve the monetary policy objectives, in recent years, the PBC has continuously enriched the monetary policy toolkit and applied a set of comprehensive quantity- and price-based tools to flexibly adjust the banking system liquidity, guide the market interest rates, and promote an appropriate money and credit growth. At the same time, the PBC constantly improves the monetary policy framework, promoting the transformation from a mainly quantity-based to a mainly price-based framework. Moreover, based on lessons and experiences from the global financial crisis and taking into account the specific conditions in China, the PBC also took a lead in using macroprudential policies to guide the overall credit growth and better prevent systemic financial risks.

Of these, 105 are qualified to initiate forward and swap transactions for their customers. Banks may determine their RMB exchange rates to the US dollar with their clients without any limit on the spread, based on market supply and demand. On August 2008, the State Administration of Foreign Exchange (SAFE) launched a pilot project to license institutions to provide foreign currency conversion services to individuals. As of the end of 2019, there were 70 institutions across the country licensed to provide such services. These institutions are only permitted to handle banknote conversion transactions for individuals; they are not permitted to handle foreign currency payments and transfers, maintain accounts abroad, or engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the PBC. The licensed institutions may freely determine the currencies they trade unless otherwise required by the State, and set their exchange rates according to relevant regulations of the PBC and SAFE regarding banks’ exchange rates.

Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, sovereign wealth funds, offshore RMB operating and clearing banks, and participant banks may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including spot, forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements  Yes.
Pursuant to the Regulations of the People’s Republic of China on the Administration of Foreign Exchange, for all cross-border trade (including border trade), there are no restrictions on the foreign currencies that can be used. In cross-border transactions, contractual parties may agree to use freely convertible currencies or RMB. When transnational trading companies carry out cross-border trade with foreign trading agencies, they may value and settle accounts in freely convertible currencies, the currency of the neighboring country, or RMB.

Controls on the use of domestic currency  Yes.

For current transactions and payments  No.
Enterprises and individuals in all regions of China may settle cross-border transactions for current account items using RMB because the deregulation of personal cross-border receipts and payments of renminbi under current accounts became complete under Yin Fa [2018] No. 3.

For capital transactions  Yes.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments  Yes.
RMB may be used for both outward and inward FDI. Eligible institutions outside mainland China may invest in China subject to conditions. Eligible institutions include all types of financial institutions, including commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, that meet the requirement listed in PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3 and are legally registered and established outside China; the investment products issued to clients by the aforementioned financial institutions according to law and in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may engage in bond and spot bond trading approved by the PBC on the interbank bond market. All types of foreign institutional investors can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, bond forwards, forward interest rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on hedging needs, without investment limits. RMB clearing banks may participate in the domestic interbank lending market. Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out bond repo business in the interbank bond market. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, or bond lending without restriction on the amounts. The financing ratio of domestic correspondent banks with respect to the renminbi accounts of foreign participating banks must not exceed 3% of the domestic correspondent bank’s total renminbi deposits at the end of the previous year. Foreign institutional investors (formerly qualified foreign institutional investors (QFIIs)) and renminbi qualified foreign institutional investors RQFII may use foreign currencies or renminbi to invest in domestic securities markets, including stocks, bonds, and warrants traded on securities exchanges, and fixed-income products, securities investment funds, stock index futures, and other instruments permitted by the China Securities Regulatory Commission (CSRC) traded on the interbank bond market. The national and regional restrictions on QFII/RQFII quotas and the RQFII pilot have been canceled, and administration by registration has been instituted for the domestic securities and futures investment funds of qualified investors. Qualified investors may autonomously...
choose the currency to be remitted inward to engage in domestic securities and futures investment operations. Domestic banks, securities, and insurance institutions may invest in external capital markets as qualified domestic institutional investors (QDIIs) or RMB qualified domestic institutional investors (RQDIIs). QDIIs have an overall total limit on the size of their investments (currently US$180 billion), but RQDIIs have no size limit. However, they need to invest in security products denominated in RMB. As of June 30, 2020, a total of 152 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$103.983 billion.

On April 30, 2018, the PBC published Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81, perfecting and clarifying that QDIIs can use RMB to invest in offshore financial products valued in RMB. On May 2, 2018, the Shanghai headquarters of the PBC published the supporting Shanghai Headquarters Notice (2018) No. 1, clarifying requirements related to macroprudential management and information disclosures of RQDIIs.

Hong Kong institutions and individuals may invest in domestic A shares through Hong Kong brokerage agencies and institutions (northbound Shanghai stock connect and Shenzhen stock connect), and domestic institutions and individuals may invest in Hong Kong shares through domestic securities companies (southbound HK stock and Shenzhen stock connect). The Shanghai–Hong Kong stock connect has a daily cap on investments, and investment targets are limited.

Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets. They do not need to get the approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance. Domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China) may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their capital or net asset, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement.

To support the engagement of QDIIs in various types of foreign investment, in addition to the QDII plan, since 2013, the SAFE launched a qualified domestic investment enterprise (QDIE) pilot program in Shenzhen, and a qualified domestic limited partnership (QDLP) pilot program in Shanghai. These programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The QDLP/QDIE schemes are currently pilot operations; the SAFE exercises regional quota controls, and the competent local financial administrative authorities have led the formation of joint review teams charged with managing the qualifications of qualified institutions and individual institution quotas within the pilot regions. Under the QDLP and QDIE schemes, under preconditions of authenticity and regulatory compliance, investors can invest overseas in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The quota for the QDLP scheme is US$5 billion, and that for the QDIE scheme is US$5 billion.

Foreign CBs, monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may initiate bond forward and interest rate swaps, forward rate agreements, and other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC without limitation on the amount.

companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products the aforementioned financial institutions issue to clients legally and in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may carry out spot bond trading on the interbank market, and can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, forward bond, forward rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on hedging needs, with no investment limit.

Domestic correspondent banks, foreign clearing banks, and foreign participant banks can process renminbi purchase and sales operations for capital and financial accounts based on cross-border renminbi settlement needs for current account items, direct investment, and approved securities investments; transaction varieties include spot, forward, foreign exchange swaps, currency swaps, and options. Bank financial institutions initiating derivative product trading operations must be approved by the China Banking and Insurance Regulatory Commission (CBIRC) and be subject to supervision and examination by the CBIRC.

On March 26, 2018, formal trading of RMB-denominated crude oil futures targeting domestic and foreign investors began on the Shanghai Energy Exchange.

On May 4, 2018, foreign investors were introduced into iron ore futures trading on the Dalian Commodity Exchange.

On November 30, 2018, foreign investors were formally introduced into purified terephthalic acid (PTA) futures trading on the Zhengzhou Commodity Exchange.

On August 12, 2019, formal trading of RMB-denominated natural rubber futures and technically specified rubber (TSR) 20 futures began on the Shanghai Energy Exchange.

Credit operations: Yes.

Domestic institutions can engage in cross-border RMB lending and must obtain approval. The sum of their overseas RMB and foreign currency loan balances should not exceed 30% of shareholder’s equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year. Additional requirements on the loan’s objectives, funding sources, lending period, usage, withdrawal, etc., are also in place.

Domestic correspondent banks may offer RMB financing accounts to banks participating in foreign RMB operations within certain limits and maturities. Domestic enterprises and financial institutions may, subject to macroprudential policies, attract RMB funds from abroad. Domestic parent banks or head offices may provide RMB liquidity support to foreign RMB clearing banks. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business.

Use of foreign exchange among residents: Yes.

The use of foreign exchange for pricing or settlement of transactions among residents is prohibited.

Payments arrangements: Yes.

As of August 10, 2020, the PBC has signed or renewed bilateral local currency swap agreements with CBs or the monetary authorities of 40 countries or regions, of which 28 are currently in effect.

Held domestically Yes. Resident institutions setting up foreign exchange accounts for current account transactions and resident individuals setting up foreign exchange savings accounts, etc., do not need to register with or be approved by the SAFE. Resident individuals may, with valid identification documents, open foreign exchange savings accounts and, in accordance with the related SAFE regulations, purchase foreign exchange and deposit it in foreign exchange savings accounts up to the amount equivalent to US$50,000 a year at banks on the basis of personal identification. Cumulative withdrawals of foreign currency by individuals not exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 a day can be transacted directly at banks. If the cumulative total withdrawals exceed this amount, the transactions must be filed in advance with the bank’s local foreign exchange bureau, based on information including the individual’s valid identification document and an explanation of the purpose of the cash withdrawals.

Approval required Yes. Mainland institutions opening foreign exchange accounts for capital account transactions must register with or be approved by the SAFE. Generally, mainland institutions open an account for current account trading directly with the bank. Only a small number of special business current accounts (foreign currency cash accounts and offshore foreign exchange accounts) require SAFE approval. To borrow and raise external debt, a domestic bank may directly open the necessary accounts in domestic or foreign banks and follow the procedures of drawing and repaying external debt.

Held abroad Yes.

Approval required Yes. Export enterprises may open foreign exchange accounts abroad to deposit proceeds from bona fide and legitimate export transactions with SAFE registration. To deposit the foreign exchange proceeds from exporting goods abroad, enterprises should meet the following requirements: (1) They should have proceeds from exports and have payment needs abroad in line with the Detailed Implementation Rules for the Guidelines for the Foreign Exchange Administration of Trade in Goods; (2) they must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years; (3) they should have in place a well-established internal control system on making deposits abroad; and (4) other requirements as prescribed by the SAFE. When a service trade enterprise deposits its proceeds in foreign currencies abroad, it should be subject to the following conditions: (1) It should have proceeds in foreign currencies from service trade and continue to have a need to make payment in foreign currencies; (2) it must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years; (3) it should have in place a well-established internal control system on making deposits abroad; (4) it should engage in service trade that is related to trade of goods; (5) for domestic enterprise groups that make deposits abroad and have centralized collection and payment system, they should have a centralized system for their domestically held foreign exchange in the first place; and (6) other requirements as prescribed by the SAFE. Domestic enterprise groups that have a centralized collection and payment system may designate one domestic member enterprise (including finance company) as the main enterprise to carry out centralized collection and payment of foreign exchange proceeds from overseas service trade for all member enterprises that participate in overseas deposit business. Other resident entities that meet the following requirements may open foreign currency accounts abroad with SAFE approval: (1) The institution receives recurrent and sporadic proceeds abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad to pool such proceeds before repatriating them. (2) The institution makes recurrent and sporadic payments abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad. (3) The institution engages in project contracting abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad. (4) The institution issues foreign-currency-denominated securities abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad. (5) The institution has special operational requirements abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad. Resident entities must submit regular reports to the SAFE regarding changes in funds in their foreign currency account abroad.

Resident entities may deposit their RMB proceeds received from RMB cross-border transactions in their offshore accounts without SAFE approval/registration.

When making external payments, institutions and individuals must present valid evidence and commercial documents to designated foreign exchange banks to convert domestic currency to foreign currency. Current account transactions do not require permission, but capital account transactions require permission or registration; cross-border payments for direct investment require registration with SAFE or a bank. The registration serves information collection and statistical purposes. For cases subject to registration, institutions need only to comply with the relevant laws and regulations. Because approval involves market access, the authorities have the discretion to grant approval (for example, QDII quota). Annual quota controls are in place for the settlement of foreign exchange by individuals and the purchase of foreign exchange by domestic individuals. The annual quota is the equivalent of US$50,000 an individual a year. Within the annual quota, these transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification; where the annual quota has been exceeded, for current accounts, these transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification and documentation of the existence of a trading quota; under capital accounts, such transactions are completed in accordance with the relevant regulations concerning individual foreign exchange controls for capital accounts.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. Foreign individuals with valid identification documents may open foreign exchange savings accounts in banks. Domestic banks that open foreign exchange accounts for foreign institutions should verify the documents provided such as their proof of legal registration abroad. Pursuant to the Notice of the SAFE Concerning Questions Related to the Administration of Foreign Exchange Accounts of Foreign Institutions, without approval, funds in the domestic foreign exchange accounts of foreign institutions (as referred to in this document—-institutions legally registered and established outside China (including the Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwan regions)) must not be directly or covertly used for foreign exchange settlements. Foreign institutions in free trade zones are permitted to settle foreign exchange using their domestic foreign exchange accounts. Where RMB is remitted onshore for use after settlements of foreign exchange, domestic banks must first review the valid commercial documents and vouchers of domestic institutions and domestic individuals concerned before processing the transactions, in accordance with the relevant provisions on cross-border transactions.

Approval required Yes. On registration by SAFE or a bank, foreign investors may establish foreign exchange accounts to retain foreign exchange related to Hong Kong and Macao RMB business clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts with the PBC; other RMB clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts at their China head office or at branches designated by their China head offices. Domestic correspondent banks may open RMB interbank current accounts for foreign participating banks and act as agents for foreign participating banks to carry out cross-border RMB payments. Account financing is also available on correspondent bank accounts. Foreign participating banks may use RMB funds from RMB cross-border trade and investment business including RMB funds in domestic interbank current accounts to invest in China’s interbank bond market subject to conditions.

Nonresidents who engage in cross-border RMB business settlements may open RMB bank settlement accounts domestically. Foreign CBs and similar institutional investors investing in the interbank bond and foreign exchange markets may open special RMB deposit accounts at the PBC or at commercial banks.

Foreign individuals may convert and transfer abroad RMB (1) obtained from their legitimate current transactions in China and (2) originally converted but not yet completely used, in accordance with the relevant SAFE regulations.

Nonresident enterprises may convert to foreign exchange RMB funds deposited on settlement accounts in domestic banks and transfer abroad. Domestic correspondent banks and nonresident clearing banks may process trade of goods and services and direct investments for nonresident participating banks and enter China’s interbank foreign exchange market to clear their positions.

Foreign institutions issuing RMB bonds in China may follow rules and open nonresident RMB accounts to deposit proceeds from bond issuance.

The SAFE registers and maintains a list of resident institutions that have trade receipts and payments in foreign currencies and publishes the list through an electronic information platform for financial institutions. Institutions registered at the SAFE on this list may directly buy foreign exchange from banks and make payments for legitimate needs. If payment is made in foreign currency to a foreign party and the settlement is on a payment on delivery basis, companies must provide one of the following: a customs clearing form, import contract, or invoice; if the settlement is on an LC or collection basis, a commercial invoice is required in accordance with international practice; and if the settlement is on a prepaid loan basis, an import contract or invoice must be provided. When a single service trade transaction (including transport, travel, communication, building installation, labor contracting, insurance, financial, computer and information, exclusive right to use and franchise sports, cultural and entertainment services, other commercial services, government services) exceeds the equivalent of US$50,000, the resident payer must also submit a “Taxation Registration Form for Foreign Payments under Trade in Services and Other Items” (hereinafter, the “Tax Filing Form”) to the financial institution making the transfer. The “Taxation Registration Form for Foreign Payments under Trade in Services and Other Items” confirms that the withholding tax has been paid and that foreign exchange may be paid through a financial institution. No verification of the tax registration form is needed for the payment of trade-related commissions, insurance premiums, etc.

The submission and verification of the Taxation Registration Form is not required for the following foreign payments in foreign exchange by domestic institutions and individuals:
(1) Travel, conference, product exhibition, and other expenses incurred overseas by domestic institutions;
(2) Office expenses incurred by the overseas representative offices of domestic institutions and project payments for projects contracted overseas by domestic institutions;
(3) Import and export trade commissions, insurance premiums, and compensation paid overseas by domestic institutions;
(4) International transportation payments that overseas institutions obtain under import trade;
(5) Insurance premiums, insurance benefits, and other relevant expenses under the insurance item;
(6) Repair fees, fuel costs, port charges, and other expenses incurred overseas by domestic institutions engaging in transportation or distant fishery;
(7) Group charges of domestic travel agencies for overseas tourism and boarding, travel, and other relevant expenses paid for reservations on behalf of tourists;
(8) Income or revenues that the Asian Development Bank or International Finance Corporation under the World Bank Group obtain in China, including profits distributed from and income from transfer of shares in joint ventures in which they invest, revenues from leasing out or transferring property (including real estate) in China, and interest on loans to institutions in China;
(9) Interest under foreign government loans (onlending) (including mixed foreign government loans (onlending)) and international financial organization loans provided to China by foreign governments and international financial organizations. The term “international financial organizations” herein includes but is not limited to the IMF, the World Bank Group, the International Development Association, the International Fund for Agricultural Development, and the EIB;

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements | Yes. Foreign exchange proceeds of resident entities may be repatriated to China or deposited abroad; the conditions and terms for deposit abroad are regulated by the SAFE based on the international balance of payments status and foreign exchange management needs. Resident entities with bona fide and legitimate export revenues and external payment needs in line with foreign exchange regulations and who have not violated the foreign exchange regulations for the past two years, and domestic institutions that have complete internal control systems, may open accounts abroad and deposit the proceeds from bona fide and legitimate export transactions after registration with SAFE. The registration needs to be revised in case the total funds deposited abroad annually exceed the amount of funds originally registered with SAFE. Resident entities may freely determine the period for keeping their deposit abroad, except when SAFE requires the repatriation of the funds because the entity violated the regulations. The RMB revenue of resident entities and individuals may be repatriated to China or deposited externally without PBC or SAFE approval.

Surrender requirements | No. Resident entities may retain foreign exchange revenue from current account transactions in foreign exchange demand deposit accounts.

QFIIs should authorize custodians to apply, on their behalf, to China Securities Depository and Clearing Co., Ltd., to open securities accounts and an institution qualified by China Securities Depository and Clearing Co., Ltd., for clearing activities to conduct funds settlement operations on their behalf.

QFIIs and RQFIIs may invest in domestic financial instruments, including exchange-related securities and fixed-income products on the interbank bond market, portfolio investment funds, and stock index futures.

Institutions that invest in the interbank bond market include: foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds; various types of financial institutions incorporated outside the borders of China, in satisfaction of the requirements listed in PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, and the investment products issued by such institutions, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as retirement funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds; foreign clearing banks, foreign participating banks, foreign insurance companies, and those that access the market through QFII and RQFII channels.

Since March 11, 2020, the macroprudential adjustment parameter was raised from 1 to 1.25.

Proceeds from the issuance of shares by an overseas-listed enterprise controlled by foreign shareholders may, after registration, be retained overseas.
Domestic institutions should repatriate profits from direct investment abroad in RMB or foreign currencies according to relevant rules. SAFE approval is not required for the repatriation of funds from settlements. In principle, domestic institutions should repatriate all proceeds from issuing foreign exchange bonds abroad unless being granted approval.

SAFE approval or bank registration is required for resident entities to open foreign exchange accounts to deposit capital account receipts in foreign currency. Foreign-owned domestic enterprises opening foreign exchange capital accounts at a domestic bank are required to register their basic information at the bank where the enterprises are registered. The prerequisite is to get verification or approval from the commerce authorities (in some cases submission of the foreign investor certificate may be required) or filing approval from the industry authorities; financial regulatory agency verification or approval is required for some transactions.

The domestic securities investments of foreign investors should comply with the restrictions on equity holding percentages set forth below: (1) Ownership by individual foreign investors in a listed company through a QFII may not exceed 10% of the shares of the company, and all foreign investors may not hold more than 30% of the A shares of a single listed company. Effective June 6, 2020, the formalities for the outward remittance of earnings on domestic securities investments by QFIIs and RQFIIs were greatly simplified, no longer requiring the submission of such materials as a special audit report issued by a Chinese certified public accountant or tax filing certificate; these have been replaced with a letter of commitment to complete tax filings.
Foreign investors may make strategic investments in A shares of domestically listed companies, but are subject to the following restrictions. (1) Investors must (a) be legally incorporated and operating foreign legal persons or other organizations that are financially sound and have good credit and mature management experience; (b) have actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million, parent company actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million, or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million; (c) have a sound governance structure and good internal control systems with standardized operations; and (d) have received no material penalties from domestic or foreign regulatory agencies in the past three years (including the parent company). (2) A shares of the listed company must be acquired through acquisition under contract or acquisition through issuance of new shares by the listed company or by other means set forth in national laws and regulations. (3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company’s shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of special industries with specific requirements or with approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors’ shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulations, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulations. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations.

Since November 2014, investors from the Mainland and Hong Kong SAR can invest in Hong Kong and Shanghai stock markets, respectively (SH–HK stock connect), under certain conditions and within the limit jointly published by the CSRC and the Hong Kong Securities and Futures Commission. Since December 2016, when certain conditions are met, investors from the Hong Kong SAR may invest in the Shenzhen stock market and vice versa (SZ–HK stock connect). The overall limit on the SH–HK stock connect was abolished in August 2016, while SZ–HK stock connect was established without overall limits, but both schemes had daily limits: for the Shanghai and Shenzhen component RMB 52 billion and for the Hong Kong component RMB 42 billion. Foreign investors may complete foreign exchange fund exchange and foreign exchange risk hedging operations at Hong Kong renminbi clearing banks or participating banks, incorporated into renminbi purchase and sales operations.

Global Depository Receipts (GDR): Based on the objective of hedging risk, domestic securities companies engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell underlying stocks corresponding to depositary receipts in accordance with the requirements of the relevant competent authorities. The first GDR was issued by Huatai Securities on June 17, 2019, and has been eligible for cross-border conversion since October 17, 2019. The Measures for the Administration of the Cross-Border Funds for Depositary Receipts (Provisional) (PBC and SAFE Announcement [2019] No. 8) were published on May 27, 2019. The CSRC launched a pilot program in March 2018 for the issuance of Chinese Depository Receipts (CDRs) by innovative enterprises, making arrangements for the issuance, public offering, and trading of CDRs, setting forth the basic conditions and procedures for CDR offerings, and producing the general requirements for the use of CDRs to engage in refinancing. Subsequently, the PBC and the SAFE issued regulations concerning the administration of cross-border funding of depositary receipts. In October 2018, the CSRC published the Regulatory Provisions of the CSRC on the Interconnection Depositary Receipt Business of the Shanghai Stock Exchange (SSE) and the London Stock Exchange (LSE) (Provisional) (CSRC Announcement [2018] No. 30), clarifying the institutional arrangements related to CDRs under the terms of Shanghai–London connect, including review and approval of offerings, listing and trading, information disclosures, cross-border exchange, and registration and clearing.

The Shanghai–London stock connect was formally launched effective June 17, 2019, to enable issuance of CDRs domestically in China on the SSE by qualified issuers of foreign underlying securities listed on the LSE, based on an interconnectivity mechanism between the SSE and the LSE. Capital raised by foreign issuers of domestic CDRs based on new securities can be remitted abroad in renminbi or foreign currencies and may also be retained for use domestically. In accordance with the dividends and allotments distributed by a foreign issuer, the domestic depository trustee of CDRs may provide corresponding services to the holders of CDRs and process the receipts, payments, and currency conversions of the related funds.

Overseas-listed companies controlled by foreign shareholders may repurchase their overseas-listed and traded shares, provided the SAFE verifies the source of the funds and approves payment abroad. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Effective July 17, 2020, a solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance companies’ investments in equity-type assets (previously no more than 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company’s own funds. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Investments in single assets refer to single specific investment varieties among the major investment categories. For investment varieties that are issued in installments, the book value of the investment in a single asset is the total investment amount in each installment period. Investments in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Insurance fund offshore investment in equity-type assets includes equity instruments or products such as common stock, preferred stock, global depositary receipts, American depositary receipts, and equity of unlisted enterprises. Stocks and depositary receipts should be listed and traded on the stipulated main board markets of national or regional securities exchanges. Direct investments in the equity of unlisted enterprises are limited to equity of enterprises in the financial services, pension, health care, energy, resources, automotive services, and modern agriculture sectors.

On approval, qualified fund management firms and other securities management organizations may, within limits, combine foreign exchange funds and RMB funds of resident entities and individuals and use the funds to engage in portfolio investment, including in stocks. QDIIs, including banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may use foreign exchange to purchase stock and other investment instruments as permitted by regulations abroad within their respective SAFE-approved investment quotas and regulatory limits. Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired and must be invested in RMB denominated products in foreign financial markets. As of the end of June 2019, 142 QDIIs were approved, with an aggregate investment limit of US$103.2 billion.

The market value of securities issued by the same institution (except governments and international financial organizations) held by a single fund or collective plan may not exceed 10% of the net value of the fund or collective plan; funds and collective schemes must not buy securities with the intention to control or influence the institution that issues the security or its management. The entire fund or collective plan managed by the same domestic institutional investor may not hold more than 10% of the total volume of the same institution’s voting securities. Index funds are not subject to these restrictions.

On registration with the SAFE, domestic employees of domestic affiliates of foreign listed companies may participate in these companies’ equity incentive programs and purchase shares or options under the terms of such programs.

China mainland and Hong Kong investors may invest in the Hong Kong stock market and Shanghai/Shenzhen stock markets, respectively, under certain conditions and subject to limits.

Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81 further standardized matters related to the investment products, use of funds, macroprudential management, and information reporting for foreign securities investments of qualified renminbi investors.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai since 2013. The QDIE scheme, with a total investment limit of US$1 billion at its origination, allows domestic investors that meet the qualifications to raise funds domestically to invest overseas in securities, bonds, monetary policy tools, collective investment securities, and real estate. Similarly, the QDLP scheme allows global fund managers to establish limited partnerships with domestic investors and raise funds domestically to invest in the overseas financial markets. Under the QDLP and QDIE schemes, investors can invest overseas in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate.

On April 25, the quotas for the Shanghai QDLP and the Shenzhen QDIE programs were increased. The quota for the QDLP scheme is US$5 billion, and that for the QDIE scheme is US$5 billion.

Approval by the CSRC and registration with the SAFE are required for the issuance of shares or depositary receipts abroad by resident enterprises. Funds originating from such issuance are not subject to the restrictions required for repatriation, but may be converted to RMB and used in China.

Renminbi capital raised by domestic enterprises by issuing stocks abroad can be remitted into and used in China.

Sale or issue abroad by residents Yes.

Bonds or other debt securities Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes. Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out spot bond trading and bond repo business on the interbank bond market. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international... financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, bond loans, bond forwards and interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements without restriction on the amounts.

Various types of financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products issued by the aforementioned financial institutions to clients in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may conduct spot bond trading on the interbank bond market, and can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, forward bond, forward rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on their hedging needs, with no investment limit.

QFIIIs and RQFIIs may invest in the following RMB-denominated financial instruments: (1) stocks, bonds, and warrants traded or transferred on a securities exchange; (2) fixed-income products traded on the interbank bond market; (3) securities investment funds; (4) stock index futures; and (5) other financial instruments permitted by the CSRC. These investors may also apply to participate in new stock offerings, convertible bond offerings, additional share offerings, allotments of shares, and other similar type investments. Such investments are subject to the upper limits on individual institutions.

Effective September 10, 2019, with the approval of the State Council, the investment limits of QFII/RQFII as well as the geographical restrictions of RQFII pilots have been eliminated. Previously, the QFII and RQFII schemes had investment limits and the RQFII pilots were only carried out in select countries and regions.

Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may participate in all listed transactions without limits on the amounts through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a commercial bank with international clearing qualifications and clearing agent qualifications, and through direct investment.

Foreign participating banks of RMB purchasing and selling business, after applying to the CFETS, can become members of the interbank foreign exchange market. They have access to all listed transaction products with no quota limits, but the transaction context is limited to the RMB purchasing and selling business. The arrangement of foreign RMB clearing banks was at the beginning a supportive arrangement for the RMB business in Hong Kong SAR and Macau SAR in 2003. In 2009, with the pilot program of cross-border RMB business, the arrangement was expanded. As has been gradually developed since 2016, direct investment can be made by foreign investors in the interbank bond market.

Indirect investment can be made in the domestic bond market by foreign investors through the bond market connect, with subject bonds comprising all bond types that can be traded and circulate on the domestic interbank bond market. This arrangement allows investors from mainland China and overseas to participate in each other’s bond markets. Currently, only the northbound trading has commenced, allowing investors from Hong Kong and other regions to invest in the China interbank bond market, while southbound trade has not been activated.

Foreign governmental institutions, international development institutions, foreign financial institution corporations, and non-financial enterprise corporations can all issue RMB bonds on China’s bond market. Of these, foreign financial institution corporations issuing bonds on the national interbank bond market should be approved by the PBC; foreign governmental institutions and international development institutions issuing relevant bonds on the national interbank bond market, and foreign non-financial enterprise corporations issuing non-financial corporate debt financing instruments on the national interbank bond market should apply to register with the National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors.

Effective January 17, 2019, the National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors issued guidelines that apply to issuances of renminbi bonds by foreign non-financial institutions.

On December 2015, the CSRC launched the pilot program to issue Panda Bonds on the exchange bond market; foreign institutions can issue Panda Bonds on the exchanges.

QDIIs, which include banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may purchase bonds abroad, within their respective SAFE-approved foreign exchange quotas and regulatory limits.

For QDIIs, the net amount of funds remitted abroad by banks, securities dealers, and insurance companies for investment in securities may not exceed their approved investment limits. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. The book values of single investments in fixed-income assets, equity assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single asset investments refer to single specific investment varieties among the major investment categories. For investment varieties that are issued in installments, the single investment book value is the total investment balance in each installment period. Investments in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the total assets at the end of the previous quarter.

Insurance fund foreign investment in bonds should be denominated in a major currency in circulation, and issuers and bond issues must have received a rating equivalent to BBB or higher from an internationally recognized rating agency. In the event that an issue is exempt from credit rating requirements in accordance with regulations, the issuer should have a credit rating not less than this bond credit rating requirement. Bonds issued abroad by the Chinese government are not subject to credit rating restrictions. Convertible bonds should be listed and traded on the required main board market of national or regional securities exchanges. As of the end of December 2018, 152 QDIIs were approved, with investment limits totaling US$103.2 billion.

Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired. RMB funds cannot be remitted offshore to purchase foreign exchange.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai since 2013. The QDIE scheme, with a total investment limit of US$1 billion at its origination, allows domestic investors that meet the qualifications to raise funds domestically to invest overseas in securities, private equities, commodities, real estates, etc. Similarly, the QDLP scheme allows global fund managers to establish limited partnerships with domestic investors and raise funds domestically to invest in the overseas financial markets. Under the QDLP and QDIE schemes, investors can invest overseas in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The quota for the QDLP scheme is US$5 billion, and that for the QDIE scheme is US$5 billion.

through repos is tied to the bonds held onshore. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, bond loans, bond forward and interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements without restriction on the amounts. An archival filing requirement is implemented instead of the previous quota approval.

Various types of financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products issued legally and in compliance with rules and regulations to clients by the aforementioned financial institutions, and other medium- and long-

For the purpose of hedging risk, based on hedge trading objectives, QFIIs and RQFIIs may invest in domestic stock index futures and engage in foreign exchange risk hedging. Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds, and foreign renminbi clearing banks and participating banks may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. These institutions may initiate bond forward and interest rate swaps, forward rate agreements, and other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC without limit as to amount. Foreign CBs, monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may initiate bond forwards and interest rate swaps, forward interest rate agreements, and other interbank market transactions approved by the PBC. Qualified institutional investors that meet the requirements of PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including all types of financial institutions legally registered outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, and the investment products legally issued to clients by said financial institutions, as well as other medium- to long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may initiate spot trading on the interbank bond market, and may engage in bond lending, bond forward, forward interest rate agreement, and interest rate swap transactions.

Financial institutions (including finance companies) that sell foreign exchange forward to their clients must deposit foreign exchange risk reserves, with the reserve ratio temporarily set as 20%. The calculation should be based on the amount of contracted forward foreign exchange sales of the previous month and the reserves should be deposited in dollars with the PBC. The holding period of the foreign exchange risk reserve is one year and the interest rate is tentatively set at 0.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes. Bank financial institutions under the regulatory jurisdiction of the CBIRC may purchase and sell derivative instruments with the approval of the former CBRC for the following purposes: (1) to hedge inherent balance sheet risk, (2) for profit, and (3) to provide customers (including financial institutions) derivatives trading services. Before such innovations as initiating new operational varieties or expanding to new markets, bank financial institutions should seek the opinions of regulatory agencies in writing. Commercial banks conducting overseas wealth management services on behalf of clients may not invest in commodity derivatives. Institutions that engage in derivatives trading related to foreign exchange, stocks, and commodities and exchange-listed derivatives must comply with SAFE and other relevant regulations. Banking industry financial institutions that comply with the relevant requirements may engage in domestic gold futures trading business. QDIIs may, in accordance with regulations, invest in foreign derivative instruments subject to their foreign exchange quotas. With the permission of the State-Owned Assets Supervision and Administration Commission, central-government-owned enterprises may conduct offshore derivatives products business. The CIRC allows insurance companies to use such products as forwards, swaps, options, and futures to hedge risks. On registration with the SAFE, domestic employees of domestic affiliates of qualified foreign listed companies may participate in these companies’ equity incentive programs and purchase shares or options under the terms of such programs. Since 2015, financial institutions or enterprises in Shanghai may participate in offshore derivatives trading by establishing free trade accounts. RQDIIs may invest in RMB-denominated foreign derivate products in accordance with the relevant requirements of the CBIRC.

Without approval, sale or issue abroad is not permitted by nonbank institutions. Banks require prior approval from the CBIRC, to engage in sale or issue abroad of derivative products.

Within their approved scopes of operations, bank financial institutions may provide commercial loans directly abroad.

RMB cross-border lending by domestic institutions is subject to approval. The sum of their offshore RMB and foreign currency loans should not exceed 30% of shareholder’s equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year. Additional requirements on the loan’s objectives, funding sources, lending period, usage, withdrawal, etc., are also in place. Domestic correspondent banks may offer RMB financing accounts to banks participating in foreign RMB operations within certain limits and maturities. Domestic parent banks or head offices may provide RMB liquidity support to foreign RMB clearing banks. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business.

Foreign loans to resident entities with a maturity of more than one year must be filed and registered in advance with the NDRC.
Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets. They do not need to get the approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance. Domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China) may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their capital or net asset, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business.

The aggregate balance of medium- and long-term foreign debt and outstanding short-term foreign debt of foreign-invested enterprises may not exceed the difference between total investment and registered capital. “Total investment” means the sum of construction funds and working capital required for production as stipulated in joint investment contracts and the enterprise’s articles of association. Within this scope, preapproval is not required to borrow from nonresidents; however, the borrower must complete the SAFE registration procedures. Converting such funds to RMB does not require SAFE approval.

Multinational enterprise groups, in accordance with their own operational and management needs, may engage in RMB fund pooling transactions with nonfinancial member enterprises both domestically and abroad.

| In 2014, the Ministry of Commerce amended the Administrative Measures on Overseas Investment, implementing an administrative model that “primarily relies on a filing system and is supported by approvals” for enterprises investing and incorporating overseas. With the exception of overseas investments in sensitive countries and regions and sensitive industries, for which an approval system is in place, all other overseas investments are administered using a filing system. Countries for which approvals are required refer to countries that have no diplomatic relationship with the People’s Republic of China and countries that are subject to UN sanctions; when necessary, the Ministry of Commerce may additionally announce a list of other countries for which approval management is required. Industries for which approvals are required are those that involve the export of products and technologies with export restrictions placed by the People’s Republic of China, and industries that affect more than one country’s (region’s) interests. At present, 99% of overseas investment matters are administered using the filing system. According to the Administrative Measures on Overseas Investment, for overseas investors that fall under administration by the filing system, state-owned key enterprises submit filings to the Ministry of Commerce, and local enterprises submit filings to the local provincial-level regulatory authority for commerce. Domestic legal entities may make direct outward investments after filing a record. Outward investments in nonsensitive industries are subject to record management. More specifically, outward investments carried out by enterprises managed by the central government, as well as those with funding from Chinese sources exceeding US$300 million or its equivalents in RMB and carried out by local enterprises, should be recorded at the NDRC; outward investment with funding from the Chinese sources below US$300 million or its equivalents in RMB and carried out by local enterprises should be recorded at the provincial authorities. As of March 1, 2018, NDRC Decree No. 9 governing outbound investment by Chinese companies was replaced by Decree No. 11. The NDRC revised the list of sensitive industries by delisting some of the industries, including operation of telecommunication; infrastructures; large-scale land development; main power transmission lines and power grids; and adding some other industries, including R&D, manufacturing and maintenance of weapons and military equipment; real estate; hotels; movie studios; entertainment; sports clubs; and equity funds or investment platforms established overseas without specific real-economy projects. Similar to Decree No. 9, any amount of investment in sensitive industries requires NDRC approval. Per Decree No. 11, approval requirement for outward FDI above US$1 billion in non-sensitive industries was abolished. As of March 1, 2018, overseas investment by domestic natural persons through foreign companies or Hong Kong, Macau, or Taiwan companies under their control, which was outside the scope of Decree No. 9, is subject to regulations specified in Decree No. 11. Specifically, NDRC approval is required for investment in sensitive industries, and for investments in nonsensitive projects that exceed US$300 million or its equivalent in RMB, the NDRC must be informed of the basic project information, but no review or approval is required. Outward direct investment should also be registered at banks. Banks may process such operations as opening accounts and remitting funds for enterprises on the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence.” Domestic institutions may use a variety of legitimate asset sources for outward direct investment, including their own foreign exchange funds, foreign currency loans obtained domestically in accordance with regulations, foreign exchange purchased using RMB, or tangible or intangible assets, and such profits as are kept abroad. During the preparatory stage of formal startup of a foreign project, resident entities may remit funds overseas in an amount not to exceed the smaller value of US$300 million and 15% of the Chinese investor’s total investment. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai since 2013. The QDIE scheme, with a total investment limit of US$1 billion at its origination, allows domestic investors that meet the qualifications to raise funds domestically to invest overseas in securities, private equities, commodities, real estates, etc. Similarly, the QDLP scheme allows global fund managers to establish limited partnerships and raise funds domestically with domestic investors to invest in the overseas financial markets. The quota for the QDLP scheme is US$5 billion, and that for the QDIE scheme is US$5 billion. Outward direct investment by state-owned enterprises (SOEs) and private enterprises should be filed with or approved by the NDRC and Ministry of Commerce. Except for setting up foreign special-purpose entities, domestic individuals are not allowed to make direct outward investment.

Inward direct investment Yes.

Foreign investment projects in China are divided into four categories: encouraged, permitted, restricted, and prohibited. Because the Foreign Investment Law and the corresponding implementation regulations went into effect, China has implemented a pre-establishment national treatment plus negative list administration system, with restricted and prohibited projects included in the negative list, and encouraged and permitted projects outside the scope of the negative list. Foreign investors are not permitted to invest in fields prohibited by the provisions of the foreign investment access negative list. Foreign investors investing in fields restricted by the provisions of the foreign investment access negative list should meet the conditions required in the negative list. Foreign investment in fields not contained in the access negative list is administered in accordance with the principle of equal treatment for domestic and foreign capital. Nonresidents may invest in China, provided they are in compliance with the requirements of laws and regulations concerning foreign investment and other laws and regulations. Foreign enterprises and individuals that establish a partnership enterprise in China must apply for registration of the enterprise to the local administrative department for industry and commerce authorized by the State Administration for Industry and Commerce; approval of the Ministry of Commerce is not required in such cases. Partnership enterprises whose main business is investment are subject to additional government provisions. Conversion of the invested funds from foreign exchange to RMB may be carried out as determined by the enterprise. FDI should also be registered at banks. The aggregate balance of medium- and long-term foreign debt and outstanding short-term foreign debt of foreign-invested enterprises may not exceed the difference between total investment and registered capital. “Total investment” means the sum of construction funds and working capital required for production as stipulated in joint investment contracts and enterprise articles of association. Within this scope, preapproval is not required to borrow from nonresidents; however, the borrower must complete the SAFE registration procedures. Converting such funds to RMB does not require SAFE approval.

Foreign investors currently are not subject to restrictions in investing in the B shares of domestically listed companies. Foreign investors may make strategic investments in A shares of domestically listed companies, but are subject to the following restrictions. (1) Investors must (a) be legally incorporated and operating foreign legal entities or other organizations that are financially sound and have good credit and mature management experience; (b) have actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million, parent company actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million, or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million; (c) have a sound governance structure and good internal control systems with standardized operations; and (d) have received no material penalties from domestic or foreign regulatory agencies in the past three years (including parent company). (2) A shares of the listed company must be acquired through acquisition under contract or acquisition through targeted issuance of new shares by the listed company or by other... means set forth in national laws and regulations. (3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company’s shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of industries with specific requirements or approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors’ shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulation, if such limits are in place for specific industries, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulation. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations.

Foreign investors may engage in direct investment activities in China using RMB legally obtained abroad. Legitimately obtained RMB includes RMB obtained by foreign investors from (1) cross-border trade settlement in RMB; (2) mainland China in the form of profits and earnings from equity swaps, reduction of invested capital, clearing, and advance recovery of investment; and (3) the issuance of bonds and shares denominated in RMB abroad and other ways. Banks may settle inward direct investment transactions in RMB on the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence,” relying on the income and payment instruction submitted by the enterprises.

Profit of less than US$50,000 from direct investments may, following a bona fide test by the bank, be repatriated without documentary proof. For the repatriation of profits above US$50,000, banks must verify documents related to the current profit repatriation, including the board of directors’ resolutions on the distribution of profits (or the partners’ resolution on the distribution of profits), originals of tax filing forms, and audited financial reports.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment
- Yes.

“A” shares of listed companies may not be transferred for three years. Premature liquidation before expiration of the term of operations requires approval of the original reviewing and approving authority or a judicial decision. On liquidation, after registering with the relevant bank, a foreign investor may purchase foreign currency and initiate repatriation of funds. RMB funds obtained from liquidation by foreign investors may be remitted abroad by banks, with no need for PBC approval.

Controls on real estate transactions
- Yes.

The regulations governing direct investment apply.

Purchase abroad by residents
- Yes.

Purchases of real estate abroad by resident entities are conducted similarly to direct investment abroad. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. A single investment in equity and fixed-income assets may not exceed 5%, and investments in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate investments may not exceed 30% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The total balance does not include real estate purchased with insurance companies’ own funds for their own use, the balance of which may not exceed 50% of their total net assets at the end of the previous quarter. A single investment in real estate may not exceed 5% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in additional to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai since 2013. The QDIE scheme, with a total investment limit of US$1 billion at its origination, allows domestic investors that meet the qualifications to raise funds domestically to invest overseas in securities, private equities, commodities, real estates, etc. Similarly, the QDLP scheme allows global fund managers to establish limited partnerships with domestic investors and raise funds domestically to invest in the overseas financial markets. Under the QDLP and QDIE schemes, investors can invest overseas in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. Since April 25, 2018, the quota for the QDLP scheme is US$5 billion and that for the QDIE scheme is US$5 billion.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes.

In accordance with China’s WTO accession, foreign financial institutions may establish wholly owned subsidiary banks, Chinese–foreign joint venture banks, or branches of foreign banks in China. Pursuant to the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-Funded Banks amended and announced in September 2019, foreign banks may simultaneously establish a wholly owned subsidiary bank and a foreign bank branch, or simultaneously establish a Chinese–foreign joint venture bank and a foreign bank branch.

Effective September 30, 2019, the restriction requiring foreign sole or major shareholders planning to establish Chinese–foreign joint venture banks to “present year-end total assets of not less than US$10 billion for the year preceding the application to establish” was eliminated, and the restriction requiring foreign banks planning to establish branches to “present year-end total assets of not less than US$20 billion” was eliminated.

Effective September 30, 2019, branches of foreign banks may accept time deposits from resident Chinese citizens for individual deposits in amounts not less than RMB 500,000 (previously 1 million).

Effective September 30, 2019, a subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank branch can engage in renminbi operations immediately on startup; no separate review and approval are needed.

Previously, they need to satisfy the following requirements: (1) has been operating within the territory of the People’s Republic of China for one year or more prior to submitting the application and (2) meets other prudential conditions prescribed by a banking regulatory institution of the State Council.

Business entities of a foreign-owned banks engaged in renminbi operations as set forth in Article 29 or Article 31 of the Regulation within their scope of operations should make preparations and complete the following tasks during the preparation period: A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank making its first application to engage in RMB operations should meet the following requirements: (1) allocate an appropriate number operating personnel who meet business development needs; (2) produce important business vouchers and forms for use with the public; (3) outfit themselves with security facilities approved by the competent authorities; (4) establish internal control systems and operational procedures for renminbi operations; and (5) if a business entity of a foreign-owned bank needs to increase registered capital or working capital to engage in renminbi operations, it should retain a certified public accounting firm registered in China to verify capital, and submit the capital verification certificate to the local office of the CBIRC.

Hong Kong and Macau banks that establish wholly owned banks, joint venture banks, and branches on the mainland must satisfy the relevant requirements of the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-Funded Banks.

Borrowing abroad

Yes.

Commercial banks and other financial institutions borrowing loans abroad with maturities in excess of one year must apply in advance to file and register them with the NDRC.

All foreign borrowing must be registered with the SAFE. Chinese-funded commercial banks issuing bonds must obtain the permission of the CBIRC. Domestic financial institutions may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their... capital and net assets. They do not need to get the approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance. Domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China) may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their capital or net asset, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. To promote the smooth linkage and transition of policies, in accordance with national treatment principles, the “cross-border financing leverage ratios” for Chinese and foreign-invested enterprises were uniformly increased. The leverage ratio for cross-border financing of bank type corporate financial institutions and branches of foreign banks is 0.8 (for enterprises the leverage ratio is 2 and for nonbank financial institutions it is 1), and effective March 11, 2020, the macroprudential adjustment parameter is set as 1.25 (previously 1).

Banking financial institutions may, within the approved scope of operations, directly provide commercial loans abroad. There are no quota and no requirement for approval for RMB loans. For domestic institutions other than commercial banks carrying out cross-border lending business, their overseas loan balance, in RMB and in foreign currencies combined, should not exceed 30% of shareholder’s equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year.

Banks must comply with provisions of the Commercial Banking Law of China concerning asset–debt ratio management. SAFE registration and permission are not required for residents who borrow foreign exchange from domestic Chinese financial institutions to repay principal. However, creditors must submit regular loan registrations and report the principal and interest repayment status to the SAFE.

The PBC enforces different deposit reserve rates for differing types of financial institutions for RMB deposits. Effective September 16, 2019, and effective January 6, 2020, the PBC lowered financial institutions’ deposit reserve ratio on RMB deposits on each day by 0.5 percentage point. Deposit reserve rates of 12.5% (previously 13.5%) and 10.5% (previously 11.5%) are, respectively, in force for large banks and medium and small banks, and for those institutions which meet prudential management requirements and for which loans in inclusive finance areas meet certain percentages, the reserve rate can be further reduced by 0.5 to 1.5 percentage points compared to institutions of the same type. Deposit reserve rates of 7% (previously 8%) are in force for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks.

Effective April 15, 2020 and effective May 15, 2020, the PBC reduced the deposit reserve ratio on RMB deposits for medium and small banks on each day by 0.5 percentage point and also for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks. As a result, deposit reserve rate of 9.5% (previously 10.5%) for medium and small banks and 6% (previously 7%) is in force for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks. For the latter four types of institutions, if a certain proportion of new deposits is used for local lending, their reserve rate can be reduced by an
The reserve requirement for foreign exchange deposits is 5%.
The ratio of the balance of current assets to the balance of current liabilities may not be lower than 25%.

The ratio of the balance of current assets to the balance of current liabilities may not be lower than 25%.

Commercial bank loans to single nonbank customers must not exceed 10% of their net capital; risk exposure to single nonbank customers must not exceed 15% of net Tier 1 capital.

The ratio of the balance of current assets to the balance of current liabilities may not be lower than 25%.

The ratio of the credit balance of a single borrower to a commercial bank’s capital balance may not exceed 10%.

For a Chinese-funded commercial bank to apply to invest in the formation of, hold shares in, or acquire an overseas institution, the applicant must meet the following conditions: (1) It must have a sound and effective corporate governance structure and internal controls, business line management, and risk control capabilities that are compatible with the development of its overseas business. (2) It must have a clear overseas development strategy. (3) It must have good consolidated management capabilities. (4) The primary main prudential regulatory indicators must meet the regulatory requirements. (5) The balance of its equity investments must in principle not exceed 50% of its net assets (on a consolidated accounting basis). (6) It must have been profitable for the latest three consecutive fiscal years. (7) The balance of its year-end assets must be at least RMB 100 billion for the year preceding its application. (8) It must have a team of professionals compatible with the foreign business environment. (9) Other prudential conditions prescribed by the CBIRC.

As referred to here, overseas institutions must mean the overseas level-one branches, wholly affiliated or controlled financial institutions of Chinese-funded commercial banks, representative institutions, and transnational (cross-border) institutions established by level-one branches or wholly owned subsidiaries.

As a founder or strategic investor of a Chinese-funded commercial banking institution, overseas financial institutions must meet the following conditions: (1) In principle, its most recent total year-end assets must not be less than US$10 billion. (2) It must have a good long-term credit rating in the most recent two years by an international rating institution accepted by the CBIRC. (3) It must have been continuously profitable in the most recent two fiscal years. (4) Commercial bank capital adequacy ratios must reach the local banking industry average in the place of incorporation and must not be lower than 10.5%. The total capital of nonbank financial institutions must not be lower than 10% of total weighted risk assets. (5) It must have sound and effective internal controls. (6) There must be a complete financial institution supervision and regulatory system in the place of incorporation. (7) Economic conditions must be good in the country (region) where the institution is located. (8) Other prudential conditions prescribed by the CBIRC.
As founders or strategic investors, overseas financial institutions that become shareholders of Chinese-funded commercial banks should abide by the principles of long-term shareholding, optimized governance, business cooperation, and competition avoidance. The CBIRC may adjust the requisite conditions for an overseas financial institution to become a founder in accordance with financial sector risk conditions and regulatory requirements.

Supervision and administration of Chinese-funded commercial banks with equity investments by foreign financial institutions are implemented according to the institutional type of the Chinese-funded commercial bank at the time that the equity was acquired. Supervision and administration of rural commercial banks with equity investments by foreign financial institutions are implemented according to the relevant regulations for rural commercial banks. Foreign financial institutions must also comply with the relevant national regulations concerning foreign investors who invest domestically in China (CBIRC Decree [2018] No. 5).

Financial institutions trading foreign exchange on their own behalf may not have a daily total transaction volume (total open foreign exchange position) and exceed 20% of foreign exchange working capital. As authorized by top management, financial institutions trading foreign exchange on their own behalf may retain a small overnight open foreign exchange position no greater than 1% of foreign exchange working capital or foreign exchange operating funds.

The cumulative foreign exchange open position ratio is the ratio of cumulative foreign exchange open positions to net capital, which is calculated on a quarterly basis and should not exceed 20%. Qualified commercial banks may simultaneously use other methods to measure foreign exchange risk (for example, the at-risk value method or the base-point present value method).

Cumulative foreign exchange open position is explicitly established in the Notice of the CBRC on the Printing and Distribution of Internal Guidelines for the Regulatory Ratings of Commercial Banks (Yin Jian Fa [2014] No. 32). Commercial banks must report their cumulative foreign exchange open positions on a quarterly basis; the content of the report is information about a bank’s foreign exchange holdings during the reporting period, including foreign exchange held as the result of engaging in option operations. Additionally, the SAFE Administrative Regulations for Financial Institutions that Handle Proprietary Foreign Exchange Trading Operations also put forward a related regulatory requirement.

The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ foreign investments may not exceed 15% of their total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total actually invested must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Insurance companies must calculate ratios for all types of investment products on a consolidated basis (including amounts of domestic and foreign investments); the ratio for a single product is required to be consistent with domestic products of the same type. Effective July 17, 2020, a solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance company investments in equity-type assets (both domestic and foreign). Previously, insurance companies’ investments in equity-type assets may not exceed 30% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company’s own funds. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate investments may not exceed 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter; this total book value does not include real estate purchased with insurance companies’ own funds for their own use, whose balance may not exceed 50% of their total net assets at the end of the previous quarter. The book value of an investment in a single fixed-income asset, equity asset, fixed asset, or other financial asset must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to single, specific investment varieties among the major investment categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of the single-asset investment is the total balance invested in each installment period.

The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ foreign investments may not exceed 15% of their total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount actually invested must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Insurance companies must calculate ratios for various types of investment products on a consolidated basis (including both domestic and foreign amounts); the ratio for a single product is required to be consistent with domestic products of the same type. A solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance company investments in equity-type assets (both domestic and foreign), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company’s own funds. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate investments may not exceed 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter; this total book value does not include real estate purchased with insurance companies’ own funds for their own use, whose balance may not exceed 50% of their total net assets at the end of the previous quarter. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of a single-asset investment is the total amount invested in each installment period.

The total amount of foreign investments of insurance companies must not exceed 15% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount actually investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Insurance companies must calculate ratios for the various types of investment products on a consolidated basis (including domestic and foreign investment amounts); ratios for individual projects are required to be consistent with domestic products of the same type. A differential, solvency-based proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance company investments in equity-type assets (both domestic and foreign), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company’s net assets.

For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period.

The Social Security Fund’s overseas investment ratios are calculated at cost and may not exceed 20% of total assets. The entrusted assets of the National Social Security Fund invested in a single security issued by an institution and managed by a single National Social Security Fund overseas investment manager may not exceed 10% of the quota for the security and fund. Calculation is at cost and may not exceed 20% of the total value of the National Social Security Fund overseas entrusted assets managed, unless the fund investment manager acts as an institutional investor to participate in overseas public listing placements and private placements for the Social Security Foundation and the Social Security Fund entrusts the shares it holds to the overseas investment manager for investment operations.

The market value of securities issued by the same institution (excluding governments and international financial organizations) held by a single fund or collective plan may not exceed 10% of the fund’s net value; funds and collective plans must not purchase securities with the intention to control or influence the institution that issues the security or its management, and all funds and collective plans managed by the same domestic institutional investor must not hold more than 10% of the total outstanding voting securities of the same institution. Index funds may not be subject to these restrictions.

The market value of shares of overseas investment funds held by a single fund or a collective plan must not exceed 10% of the net value of such fund or collective plan. The holding of shares of money

01/14/2019 The overall investment limit for qualified foreign institutional investors (QFIIs) was increased to US$300 billion from US$150 billion; the upper limit for a single QFII is a certain ratio of asset under management by the QFII (base quota), subject to a ceiling of US$5 billion (only investment quota exceeding the base quota requires examination and approval by State Administration of Foreign Exchange); and the upper limit of sovereign funds, CBs, and monetary authorities is determined by their investment needs, not their size or asset under management.

09/10/2019 The investment limits of qualified foreign institutional investors (QFII)/Renminbi qualified foreign institutional investors (RQFII) as well as the geographical restrictions of RQFII pilots have been eliminated, and administration by registration has been instituted for the domestic securities and futures investment funds of qualified investors. Qualified investors can freely choose the currency to remit to invest in domestic securities and futures. Previously, the QFII and RQFII schemes had investment limits and the RQFII pilots were only carried out in select countries and regions.

The formalities for the outward remittance of earnings on domestic securities investments by qualified foreign institutional investors and Renminbi qualified foreign institutional investors were greatly simplified, no longer requiring the submission of such materials as a special audit report issued by a Chinese certified public accountant or tax filing certificate; these have been replaced with a letter of commitment to complete tax filings.

The Shanghai–London stock connect was formally launched to enable issuance of Chinese Depository Receipts (CDRs) domestically in China on the Shanghai Stock Exchange (SSE) by qualified issuers of foreign underlying securities listed on the London Stock Exchange (LSE), based on an interconnectivity mechanism between the SSE and the LSE.

Capital raised by foreign issuers of domestic CDRs based on new securities can be remitted abroad in renminbi or foreign currencies and may also be retained for use domestically. In accordance with the dividends and allotments distributed by a foreign issuer, the domestic depository trustee of CDRs may provide corresponding services to the holders of CDRs and process the receipts, payments, and currency conversions of the related funds.

A solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance companies’ investments in equity-type assets (previously no more than 30% of the company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter).

Renminbi-denominated No. 20 rubber futures were formally listed for trading on the Shanghai Energy Exchange.

The restriction requiring foreign sole or major shareholders planning to establish Chinese–foreign joint venture banks to “present year-end total assets of not less than US$10 billion for the year preceding the application to establish” was eliminated, and the restriction requiring foreign banks planning to establish branches to “present year-end
Branches of foreign banks may accept time deposits from resident Chinese citizens for individual deposits in amounts not less than RMB 500,000 (previously 1 million).

A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank branch can engage in renminbi operations immediately on startup; no separate review and approval are needed. Previously, they need to satisfy the following requirements: (1) has been operating within the territory of the People’s Republic of China for one year or more prior to submitting the application and (2) meets other prudential conditions prescribed by a banking regulatory institution of the State Council.

The macroprudential adjustment parameter is set as 1.25 (previously 1).

Deposit reserve ratios on RMB deposits for large banks was reduced to 13% from 13.5%; for medium and small banks to 11% from 11.5%; and for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks to 7.5% from 8%.

Floating:

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. All foreign exchange transactions are conducted at the market-determined exchange rate.

In 2019, the performance of the Colombian peso was consistent with that of the majority of currencies of the countries in the region. Its performance is explained by the performance at the global level of the dollar, which strengthened during the year under the influence of the development of negotiations between the United States and its trading partners, China in particular, various events related to political uncertainty in different parts of the world, and lower expectations of economic growth at the global level. Other factors that have affected the dynamics of exchange rates in the region include the behavior of prices for various commodities and idiosyncratic factors such as social protests that took place in some of these countries toward the end of the year. Locally, the Colombian peso was also influenced by the uncertainty regarding the level and possible increase of the current account deficit and the likelihood of meeting the fiscal targets in the short and medium term.

During 2020, the currencies of countries in the region have declined in value against the dollar, in line with the increase in the perception of risk related to the effect of the pandemic at the global level. In addition, the Colombian peso weakened in the first quarter in line with the drop in oil prices, given the negative impact that this has on the country’s fiscal accounts and revenues in dollars. Subsequently, this trend was partially reversed, consistent with the global weakening of the dollar, the partial recovery of crude oil prices, and expectations of a gradual reopening of the economies globally.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The Banco de la República (BR) publishes daily data on interventions on the exchange market. The BR publishes the date, amount, and mechanism. When an intervention involves options, the information is published on the day that the option is exercised. Each month (on the fifth business day), the BR publishes a press release indicating the amount purchased or sold in the previous month (aggregate monthly amount).

Official exchange rate:

Yes. The representative market rate (RMR) is the economic indicator of the peso–US dollar exchange rate; it is not an official exchange rate. It is used as a reference for the quotation and settlement of foreign exchange transactions, for transactions indexed to the US dollar, and for the conversion of accounts in foreign currency to local currency.

The RMR is the weighted average amount of US dollar buy/sell operations in exchange for Colombian legal tender, for settlement in both currencies on the same day, conducted by exchange market intermediaries (EMIs) during the hours of operation established by the BR in its general regulations.

To calculate the RMR, derivative operations must be excluded, as well as operations conducted by EMIs with entities other than those supervised by the Office of the Financial Superintendence of Colombia (SFC) and with the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Also excluded are operations by EMIs with the following entities supervised by the SFC: foreign financial entities, foreign reinsurers, foreign financial entities with no trade offices, and representative offices of the foreign securities market. (External Regulatory Circular DODM-146 of May 25, 2018). The RMR is calculated daily and certified by the SFC-based available information, in accordance with the methodology established by BR in the External Regulatory Circular DODM.

Within the first 10 days of each period of regular meetings, the BR Board of Directors is required to submit a report, via the General Manager, to the Congress of the Republic on the implementation of the monetary, exchange, and credit policies, including broad guidelines, an assessment of the results obtained in the preceding period, and the respective objectives, proposals, and targets for the following period and the medium term.

The press releases issued by the Board of Directors disclose the number of votes in favor and against the decisions on interest rate interventions.

Effective October 1, 2019, the minutes are drafted as part of the agenda of the session of the Board of Directors and they are published on the next business day after meetings at which decisions on monetary policy are adopted (January, March, April, June, July, September, October, and December). They include elements of the discussion by members of the Board of Directors at the relevant session, the positions – not identified – of the members of the Board of Directors, and the decision regarding the benchmark interest rate, indicating whether the decision was adopted unanimously or by a majority, as well as the distribution of the votes (Internal Resolution No. 3 of August 30, 2019, which rescinded Internal Resolution No. 1 of 2007). Previously, they contained a summary of the economic information analyzed for the adoption of decisions on interest rates, an analysis of the economic outlook and price levels, an assessment of the risks to attaining the inflation target, and the decision on interest rate interventions. The minutes also indicated whether the decision was taken unanimously or by majority, as well as the distribution of the votes. The minutes were published five (5) working days after the meeting during which the decision was taken was held. (Internal Resolution No. 1 of 2007 as amended by Internal Resolution No. 2 of 2018 of the BR Board of Directors.)

Banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (with SFC authorization), stock brokerage companies, the government-owned National Development Financial Corporation (Financiera de Desarrollo Nacional—FDN), the government-owned Foreign Trade Bank (Bancoldex—Banco de Comercio Exterior), Special Financial Services and Exchange Intermediation Companies (Sociedades de Intermediación Cambiaria y Servicios Financieros Especiales—SICSFEs, formerly exchange bureaus), and Companies Specializing in Electronic Deposits and Payments (Sociedades Especializadas en Depósitos Electrónicos—SEDPE), the Financial Corporation for Territorial Development (FINDETER), the Agricultural Sector Financing Fund (FINAGRO), the Colombian Institute of Educational Credit and Technical Studies Abroad (ICETEX), the National Corporation for Promotion of Territorial Development (ENTerritorio), and the National Savings Fund (FNA) are the EMIs authorized to intermediate in foreign exchange market operations.

The BR Board of Directors determines the foreign exchange transactions that EMIs are authorized to carry out, based on the type of entity and its capital. EMIs may freely determine their foreign exchange buying and selling rates and commissions.

Effective February 28, 2020, the ICETEX also requires that the Office of the Financial Superintendence issue prudential rules that are applicable to EMIs to perform authorized exchange operations. As of August 31, 2020, there were 44 EMIs registered with the BR. Spot foreign exchange transactions may be conducted through or outside trading systems. All entities supervised by the SF, including EMIs as well as the State, are authorized to participate in foreign exchange trading systems. EMIs must record all spot foreign exchange transactions in a foreign exchange transaction registration system, with the exception of spot transactions with unsupervised entities or the State involving amounts less than US$250,000. Spot foreign exchange transactions conducted (1) between EMIs and (2) between an EMI and another entity that is supervised by the SF and participates in a foreign exchange trading system must be cleared through an authorized foreign exchange clearing and settlement system.

In addition, residents may engage professionally in the purchase and sale of foreign exchange and traveler’s checks, provided they are registered in advance in the trade register and in the register of professional foreign exchange dealers established by the National Tax and Customs Directorate (DIAN). Residents who engage professionally in buying and selling foreign exchange may not carry out foreign exchange transactions directly with the BR. Residents may also make foreign exchange purchases and sales on the unregulated market with other residents, provided they do not do so habitually or in a professional capacity. If they do so habitually, they must comply with the requirements applicable to professionals who buy and sell foreign exchange and traveler’s checks.

The Bank of the Republic may intervene in the foreign exchange market to regulate financial market liquidity and the normal functioning of the domestic and external payments of the economy, to prevent undesirable exchange rate fluctuations, and to increase and reduce international reserves, in accordance with the directives of the Board of Directors, through spot or forward foreign exchange purchases or sales, to or from the EMIs indicated in Article 8(1), (2), or (3) of R.E. 1 of 2018 of the BR Board, companies that manage pensions and severance benefits, foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems, and the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit, as long as they are registered with the BR as EMIs and have permanent instructions from the BR. The authorization to participate depends on the intervention mechanism, as explained below. The BR may conduct intervention operations through various systems and mechanisms. The authorized intervention operations are as follows:
(1) Direct uniform price auction sales of put or call options;
(2) Direct uniform price auctions (with three minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auction sales of foreign exchange (with three minutes of bids);
(3) Spot sales of foreign exchange and forward purchases of dollars by means of foreign exchange swap contracts with delivery in auctions and OTC transactions. (4) Effective March 12, 2020, forward dollar sales through forward contracts, by means of the auction mechanism (R.E. 4 of March 12, 2020).

The auction quotas of the different mechanisms are announced in advance in the invitations to bid. The amount of the direct purchase/sale intervention in the trading systems is not announced in advance, but the exchange intervention carried out over a month is reported on the fifth business day of the following month through a press release.

Delays, incompletion of intervention operations, and errors in the price of auctions by authorized agents are subject to sanctions. The sanction regime does not apply to: i) direct foreign currency purchase or sale operations with the national government – the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit; ii) dollar purchase or sale operations that are cleared and settled through foreign currency clearance and settlement systems; and iii) NDF contracts that are cleared and settled through a Central Counterparty Risk Clearinghouse (CRCC).

Option auction:
May be conducted with banks, financial corporations, finance companies, and financial cooperatives (provided they are authorized as EMIs by the SFC), the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit, Financiera de Desarrollo Nacional S.A., and Banco de Comercio Exterior (BANCOLDEX) whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation. Effective January 31, 2019, stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation may also be counterparties.

The entities must be registered with the Bank of the Republic and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR. The BR may intervene in the foreign exchange market through options to increase or reduce international reserves and control exchange rate volatility. The BR sells put or call options in uniform price auctions.

The participants must offer the option premium (bid price expressed in pesos per US$1,000), as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. In the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order based on the amount of the premium, and all bids with a premium equal to or exceeding the premium at which the auction limit is met (hereinafter the cutoff premium) are approved. All approved bids must pay the cutoff premium. The BR may partially approve bids it believes could give rise to an unacceptable concentration. The BR reserves the right to approve a put or call options auction below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. The general terms and conditions of auctions are announced in an invitation to bid on the immediately preceding business day. Options may be exercised only when the option exercise conditions established by the BR are satisfied. (a) Options to increase or reduce international reserves:
The BR may auction put options to increase international reserves. The total amount of call option auctions for the reduction of reserves is US$500 million. The regulations establish that call option auctions to reduce international reserves are held when the RMR is above its moving average for the preceding 20 business days plus a percentage (%) determined by the BR. The call option to reduce international reserves has been discontinued since May 27, 2016.

Effective October 31, 2019, the Board of Directors decided to terminate the reserves accumulation program announced in September 2018 because it considered that the level of international reserves and the expected outcome of the renegotiation of the Flexible Line of Credit would be sufficient to cover Colombia’s potential external liquidity needs.

In accordance with the regulations, put options may be exercised only when the RMR is below its recent average (average for the preceding 20 business days). The amount of the auctions is announced in the invitation. The participants must pay a premium established by means of the uniform price auction mechanism. The exercise price for options is the RMR in effect on the day the option is exercised. Entities that complied with the provisions of Regulatory Circular DODM 143 (now DOAM-143) participated in this program.

(1) Options to control exchange rate volatility:
It is established in the regulation that the BR will announce and hold a put or call option auction to control volatility when the RMR is 4% or more below or above its moving average for the preceding 20 business days. This instrument is discontinued.

(2) Purchase or sale of foreign exchange:
The BR may buy and sell US dollars directly in auctions or through other systems and mechanisms established for interbank foreign exchange operations. May be conducted with banks, financial corporations, finance companies, and financial cooperatives (provided they are authorized as EMI by the SFC), Financiera de Desarrollo Nacional S.A., and Banco de Comercio Exterior (BANCOLDEX). Stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation and the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit may also participate. The entities must be registered with the Bank of the Republic and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR. The BR buys and sells dollars in uniform price auctions (with 3 minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auctions (depending on what is announced in the invitation to bid). The BR announces the total amount of the auctions to agents. Participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to sell or buy dollars to or from the BR, as well as the amount in dollars. Each agent may submit only one bid, which may be altered in the first three minutes of the auction. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction to buy or sell dollars below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. Foreign exchange trading systems must grant access to the BR on special terms when it intervenes to implement exchange policy. These terms must be defined in the regulations governing the operation of such systems.

(3) Foreign exchange swap contracts: The BR may also intervene through foreign exchange swap contracts, under which a spot sale of dollars by the BR and a forward purchase of dollars in the amount traded are transacted simultaneously. The swap contracts are offered through auctions (uniform price) or over the counter. The auction may be held with the same entities authorized for option auctions, with the exception of stock brokers, whereas only foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems may participate in OTC transactions. In the auction, participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per US dollar) at which they would be willing to sell dollars to the BR on the maturity of the operation, as well as the amount in dollars to be exchanged. They may submit as many bids as they wish for a total not to exceed the total amount of the auction. The BR will announce the total amount of the auction. They may be conducted at 30, 60, 90, 180, or 365 calendar days. They are forward delivery transactions. Spot dollar sales are carried out on the day of the auction, and forward dollar purchases on the maturity date of the foreign exchange swap contract. OTC participants offer the amount in dollars to be exchanged. Ten minutes prior to the OTC operation, the BR announces the initial and forward exchange rates. 4) Non-delivery forward sale contracts. The BR may execute forward contracts in which it negotiates the future sale of dollars. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through auctions. The same entities authorized for option auctions may participate, but stock brokers may perform these operations only when the contracts are cleared and settled through a Central Counterparty Risk Clearinghouse (CRCC). Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through a uniform price auction. The participants offer the exchange rate (the offer price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which the dollars are available to the BR for purchase on maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. The general terms and conditions of the auction are announced through an invitation on the previous business day. Each authorized agent may present as many bids as it wishes and in a total amount that does not exceed the auction quota. In the process of the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order by the offer price and all bids that contain a price that is greater than or equal to the cut-off at which the auction quota is met (the cut-off price) are approved. All of the approved bids pay the cut-off price. The BR may partially approve bids which in its opinion give rise to an unacceptable concentration of the forward contracts. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction below the announced quota or to declare it void. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars may be performed for 30 calendar days. The plan for the performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CRCC is announced in an invitation through the means available. The BR intervention operations that are performed through a CRCC are subject to the terms and conditions set forth in the operating regulations of the given clearinghouse. The BR’s sanctions scheme is not applicable to operations that are cleared and settled through a CRCC. Performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CRCC was established by an amendment to DOAM143, effective August 14, 2020. Extraordinary and ordinary sessions during 2020: At an extraordinary session, effective March 12, 2020, against the backdrop of extreme global volatility, the Board of Directors decided among other measures to establish a new foreign exchange hedging mechanism through Non-Delivery Forward contracts (NDFs) for the sale of dollars at a future date under the following conditions: a) Mechanism: uniform price auction; b) Amount: US$1 billion; c) Forward price: To be determined in the auction; d) Term: 30 days, which may be renewed; and e) Counterparties: Eligible intermediaries in the foreign exchange market and the national government – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. This mechanism sought to facilitate trading in foreign currency by market participants in the context of the inflation-targeting scheme with a flexible exchange rate. At an extraordinary session, effective March 18, 2020, the Board of Directors decided to auction dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) in the amount of US$400 million, in which the Bank of the Republic would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days). The aim of this measure was to provide temporary liquidity in dollars to a broad group of entities including not only traditional intermediaries in the foreign exchange market, but also companies that manage pensions and severance benefits in terms of their own position and the funds managed by them, with the aim of easing pressure in the foreign exchange market. At an ordinary session, effective March 27, 2020, the Board of Directors adopted the following measures to strengthen liquidity in dollars: (i) Hold an new auction of dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) on March 30, 2020, in the amount of US$400 million, in which the Bank of the Republic would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days). The amounts not awarded at auction on one day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. This measure is intended to provide temporary liquidity in dollars to a broad group of financial institutions with the aim of easing possible restrictions on external financing and pressure in the foreign exchange market. (ii) Expand the foreign exchange hedging mechanism through a new auction on March 30, 2020, of Non-Delivery Forwards in the amount of US$1 billion for 30 days. The amounts not awarded at auction on one day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. In addition, the maturities of the Non-Delivery Forwards that were offered before May 1, 2020, would be added to the daily quotas of the NDF auction. These measures expand the hedge against the risk of depreciation in an environment characterized by great uncertainty and high volatility of the exchange market. Thus, the balance of foreign exchange swaps would reach US$800 million and the balance of NDFs would reach US$2 billion. At an ordinary session, effective April 30, 2020, the Board of Directors decided: (i) To increase the amount of the foreign exchange hedge by holding a new dollar sale auction through NDF transactions in an amount of up to US$1 billion. (ii) To renew the NDFs those are maturing before May 30, 2020. (iii) To continue holding foreign exchange swap auctions up to US$400 million. At an ordinary meeting, effective May 29, 2020, the Board of Directors decided to renew through auctions the foreign exchange hedging instruments (NDFs) that would be maturing in the month of June. It also decided to continue auctioning the unawarded amount of the authorized operations (NDFs and swaps). At its ordinary session, effective June 30, 2020, with regard to liquidity in foreign currency the Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic: (i) Would continue to offer in July NDF contracts through auctions in amounts equivalent to the maturities of contracts in force that are recorded each day; (ii) Would not continue the auctions of foreign exchange swaps given that the external liquidity has improved and that these auctions were not in demand. These contracts will be offered again when deemed necessary. At its ordinary session, effective July 31, 2020, the Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew in August the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

Almost all operations on the spot interbank market are carried out through foreign exchange trading systems. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or on the commissions of market participants. As of August 31, 2020, there were 44 EMIs registered with the BR (19 banks, 3 financial corporations, 6 finance companies, 10 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, Bank of Foreign Trade (BANCOLDEX), FDN, the foreign exchange clearinghouse, and 2 specialized deposit and payment companies).

Foreign exchange transactions may be conducted through trading systems or on the OTC market.

Authorized purchases and sales of foreign exchange by stock brokerage companies may be conducted through their proprietary position or under commission contracts.
Market making No.

Forward exchange market Yes.

Trades of non-standardized foreign exchange derivatives may be carried out through trading systems or other trading platforms used by the market (OTC market). Entities supervised by the Superintendencia Financiera de Colombia (SFC), the State, and foreign agents may participate in the trading systems. EMI must record all non-standardized financial derivatives transactions daily in a foreign exchange transaction register. Entities supervised by the SF of Colombia, other than EMIs, that engage in foreign exchange derivatives transactions with foreign agents on the OTC market must record those transactions in an authorized foreign exchange transaction register. This recording is mandatory for application of close-out netting. The EMIs referred to in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents with which they have signed a framework contract. They may also contract financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset denominated in foreign currencies with any other resident EMI. – EMI may carry out transactions in commodity derivatives with authorized foreign agents and contract commodity derivatives denominated in foreign currencies with residents and with other EMIs. The stock brokerage companies referred to in Article 8(3) of R.E. 1/2018 (EMIs) may offer their clients foreign exchange rate derivatives only when they are cleared and settled through a central counterparty clearinghouse authorized by the SFC. Residents (other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018) may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents that have carried out financial derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year amounting to more than US$1 billion or with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018. The BR also authorizes residents (other than EMIs) to carry out commodity-price derivatives transactions in foreign currency, provided they are carried out with authorized foreign agents. Effective January 1, 2019, entities supervised by the SF may enter into credit derivatives with authorized foreign agents exclusively in the form of credit default swaps (CDS). These instruments are no longer restricted to portfolio hedging, do not require the prior authorization of the SF, but must be issued by foreign issuers. Previously, entities supervised by the SF were permitted to conduct CDS only with authorized foreign agents with an investment grade credit rating and subject to regulatory restrictions, provided the operations are carried out solely for hedging its 2008 portfolio and have the prior authorization of the SF. The BR has not participated in the foreign exchange derivatives market although one of the authorized foreign exchange intervention mechanisms is the foreign exchange swap. The BR may execute forward contracts in which it negotiates the future sale of dollars. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through auctions.

Residents may not make foreign currency deposits or use foreign exchange for any other financial transactions or, generally, any type of domestic transaction with other residents, with the exception of the following special authorizations: (1) Sales to other residents. (2) Payments for goods in bonded warehouses. (3) Payments for freight and international transport tickets. (4) Payment of personal expenses using international credit cards. (5) Payment of insurance premiums denominated in foreign currency, pursuant to Decree No. 2821 of 1991. (6) Payment of obligations arising from reinsurance contracts abroad and payment in Colombia or abroad of damages payable in foreign currency by insurance companies based in Colombia, as determined by the national government in implementation of Article 14 of Law No. 9 of 1991. (7) Domestic enterprises with capital abroad that are engaged in oil, natural gas, coal, ferronickel, or uranium exploration and mining, and companies engaged exclusively in the provision of technical services in the hydrocarbons sector may pay one another for contracts in foreign currency within the country. (8) Purchases and sales of fuel for ships and aircraft used in international travel. (9) Purchases and sales of crude oil and natural gas produced nationally by Ecopetrol and other entities engaged in industrial refining, carried out with other residents. (10) Payments through clearing accounts of obligations derived from domestic operations. (11) Payments for landing rights in international travel between airport services concessionaires and other residents. Fiduciary transactions may be carried out in foreign currency in respect of resources received by residents when such payment is authorized, or payment for services with nonresidents in execution of the activities referred to in Article 8(1) (d) of R.E. 1/2018. Residents may engage professionally in the purchase and sale of foreign exchange and traveler’s checks. Residents may use clearing accounts to fulfill obligations derived from operations between residents.

| Controls on derivatives and other instruments | No. | The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 and residents may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with foreign agents, as well as in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset denominated in foreign exchange with residents and other EMIs. Stock brokerage companies specified in Article 8(3) of R.E. 1/2018 (EMIs) may offer their clients exchange rate financial derivatives only when they are cleared and settled through a central counterparty clearinghouse authorized by the SFC. Derivatives with cash settlement to cover any obligation may be contracted by EMIs and residents. Until December 31, 2018, entities supervised by the SF could engage in CDS with authorized foreign agents with an investment grade credit rating and subject to regulatory restrictions, provided the operations are carried out solely for hedging purposes and have the prior authorization of the SF. Effective January 1, 2019, the restrictions were eased. The limit on the gross leverage position of EMIs, which was 550% of equity, was in effect until May 25, 2018. |
Purchase locally by nonresidents: No. The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents who have framework contracts with EMIs, in accordance with the provisions established by the SF in the Basic Accounting and Financial Circular, and foreign clearing and settlement houses. The framework contract must include a close-out netting clause as of September 1, 2018 (Circular DODM 144). The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with residents other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents (including clearing and settlement houses abroad) who have carried out derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year in an amount exceeding US$1 billion in nominal terms.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: No. The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents who have framework contracts with EMIs, in accordance with the provisions established by the SF in the Basic Accounting and Financial Circular, and foreign clearing and settlement houses. The framework contract must include a close-out netting clause as of September 1, 2018 (Circular DODM 144). The foreign agents authorized to engage in derivatives transactions with residents other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents (including clearing and settlement houses abroad) who have carried out derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year in an amount exceeding US$1 billion in nominal terms. In the case of CDS sales to entities supervised by the SF, the foreign agents must also be rated investment grade by at least one internationally renowned credit rating agency.

Purchase abroad by residents: No. The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 and other residents may engage transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents. Foreign agents authorized to conduct derivative operations with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents that have framework agreements with EMIs, in accordance with the provisions established by the SF in the Basic Accounting and Financial Circular, and foreign clearing and settlement houses. The framework contract must include a close-out netting clause as of September 1, 2018 (Circular DODM 144). Moreover, the foreign agents authorized to conduct derivative operations with residents other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents (including clearing and settlement houses abroad) that have carried out derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year in an amount exceeding US$1 billion in nominal terms. Entities supervised by the SF may purchase credit default swaps (in accordance with the terms set out in the regulation) from foreign agents with whom they have signed a framework contract provided the nonresident has an investment grade credit rating from at least one internationally renowned credit rating agency.

Sale or issue abroad by residents: No. The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 and other residents may engage in transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying assets with authorized foreign agents. Moreover, foreign agents authorized to carry out derivative transactions with residents other than the EMIs specified in Article 1 [sic] of R.E. 1/2018 are nonresidents (including clearing and settlement houses abroad) that have carried out derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year in an amount exceeding US$1 billion in nominal terms.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

| Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions | Yes. |
| Borrowing abroad | Yes. |

Borrowing from abroad by EMIs is governed by R.E. 1/2018. The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in foreign currencies from nonresidents other than individuals, from EMIs, or through the placement of securities in international capital markets, to be used exclusively for the following activities: (1) lending operations denominated in the same currency as the financing, at equal or shorter terms than the financing; (2) lending operations denominated in Colombian legal currency at equal or shorter terms than the financing. The financing in foreign currency must be covered by a foreign currency derivative effective from the date the financing is disbursed until it reaches maturity, or by a capital investment abroad in subsidiaries and affiliates denominated in the same currency as the financing. As an alternative to a derivative, effective March 26, 2019, the financing in foreign currency may also be designated by the competent body of the EMI as a hedging instrument for the investments controlled abroad, in compliance with the hedge accounting requirements of the International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS). As long as the resources are used for authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets. (3) operations carried out in their capacity as local suppliers of foreign currency liquidity to foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems, in accordance with system operating rules. These operations must have a shorter term than the financing obtained. This financing is subject to the deposit requirement indicated in Article 47 of R.E. 1/2018, with some exceptions. The authorization to perform export leasing operations was removed from R.E. 1/18 given that they are already considered to be part of authorized lending operations. The EMI specified in Article 8(1) and (2) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in legal currency from nonresidents other than individuals or through the placement of securities on international capital markets for the purpose of carrying out lending operations denominated in legal currency. When this financing is disbursed in a foreign currency, the EMI must make the deposit required pursuant to Article 47 of R.E. 1/2018. As long as the resources are used in authorized operations in legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

Abroad by banks  Yes.  Entities subject to SF inspection and supervision may make capital investments abroad in accordance with the Organic Law on the Financial System, as well as financial investments abroad. EMIs in general are authorized to make financial investments abroad. Financial institutions supervised by the SF that wish to directly make or increase their capital investments in financial institutions, the securities market, insurance and reinsurance companies, and branches and agencies domiciled abroad must obtain prior authorization from the SF. Such authorization is also required if they intend to make such investments indirectly through their affiliates and subsidiaries abroad, provided the investment is made through one or more transactions within a period of one year and in compliance with any of the materiality criteria indicated in the regulation, namely: (1) the initial investment is no less than 10% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment and the increase in the investment is no less than 5% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment. For purposes of calculating the initial investment, it will be understood that, in addition to the first operation, the initial investment will include the investment increases made within the 12 months following the first operation; and (2) the financial supervisor in the location where the investment is to be made does not have a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with the SF. Capital investments or increases that do not meet the above criteria must be reported to the SF before the operation is carried out.

In banks by nonresidents  Yes.  The acquisition of 10% or more of the subscribed shares of entities subject to SF inspection or an increase in that percentage requires prior approval by the SF.

Open foreign exchange position limits  Yes.  Effective March 26, 2019, the proprietary position in foreign currency excludes the value of investments controlled abroad and derivatives and other obligations designated by the EMI as hedging instruments for these investments. The three-business-day arithmetic mean of EMI’s own foreign currency position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 20% of the EMI’s capital, and the position may be negative, but the absolute value of the negative position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 5% of capital. Moreover, EMIs are required to meet the limits on the following consolidated indicators: (1) positive exchange risk indicator (IRC+) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are greater than zero); the three-business day average of the IRC + may not be less than 40% of the EMI’s capital; (2) negative exchange risk indicator (IRC−) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are less than zero); the three-business-day average of the IRC− may not be less than 40% of capital; and (3) short-term exposure indicators. The “Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator” (the sum of (1) the EMI’s net surpluses per currency, adjusted by a foreign exchange haircut, and (2) the EMI’s net shortfalls per currency; net surpluses or shortfalls per currency are the difference between liquid assets per currency and net liquidity requirements per currency) will be calculated for periods of 7 and 30 calendar days and must be greater than zero. The “Consolidated Short-Term Exposure Indicator” (the sum of (1) the EMI’s “Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator,” considering significant currencies at the consolidated level, and (2) the Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicators calculated by country, where their affiliates are established, provided they are less than zero) will be calculated for a period of 30 calendar days and must be greater than zero.

Insurers and savings investment companies (sociedades de capitalización) may invest up to 40% of their technical reserves in securities or holdings of external issuers (indicated in numeral 2 of Article 2.31.3.1.2) and in demand deposits in banks abroad. The securities of issuers abroad that are part of the holdings in collective investment funds of authorized national issuers will be calculated for the purposes of that limit.

Insurers and savings investment companies may invest up to 40% of their technical reserves in securities or holdings of external issuers (indicated in numeral 2 of Article 2.31.3.1.2(2)) and in demand deposits in banks abroad.

Total unhedged foreign currency investments in the portfolio backing the technical reserves may not exceed 35% of the value of the portfolio.

The limits on investments in instruments, securities, or holdings of external issuers (indicated in Article 2.6.12.1.2(2)) and in demand deposits in banks abroad are 40%, 60%, and 70% for conservative, moderate, and higher-risk funds, respectively.

The limits on investments in instruments, securities, or holdings of external issuers (indicated in numeral 2 of Article 2.6.12.1.2(2)) and in demand deposits in banks abroad are 40%, 60%, and 70% for conservative, moderate, and higher-risk funds, respectively.

The maximum limits for the unhedged foreign currency position of pension funds are 15%, 35%, and 50% for conservative, moderate, and higher-risk funds, respectively.

Collective investment funds or families of collective investment funds must first define their investment policy in the prospectus and regulation, which must contain the investment plan, the parameters for the management of money market operations, the policy on deposits in current or savings accounts, the risk profile of the fund, the risk management policy, and other aspects determined by the SF.

Management companies may include in investment fund portfolios any economic asset or claim, including securities issued by banking institutions located abroad; securities issued by foreign companies in the real sector whose stocks are registered in internationally recognized stock markets; bonds issued by multilateral credit institutions or foreign governments; and shares in foreign investment funds or funds that mirror national or foreign indexes.

Previously, they contained a summary of the economic information analyzed for the adoption of decisions on interest rates, an analysis of the economic outlook and price levels, an assessment of the risks to attaining the inflation target, and the decision on interest rate interventions. The minutes also indicated whether the decision was taken unanimously or by majority, as well as the distribution of the votes. The minutes were published five (5) working days after the meeting during which the decision was taken was held. using forward dollar sales through forward contracts, by means of the auction mechanism (R.E. 4 of March 12, 2020).

03/18/2020 The Board of Directors decided to auction dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) in the amount of US$400 million, in which the Bank of the Republic would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days).

03/27/2020 The Board of Directors adopted the following measures to strengthen liquidity in dollars: (i) Hold an auction of dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) on March 30, 2020, in the amount of US$400 million, in which the Bank of the Republic would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days). The amounts not awarded at auction on one day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. This measure is intended to provide temporary liquidity in dollars to a broad group of financial institutions with the aim of easing possible restrictions on external financing and pressure in the foreign exchange market. (ii) Expand the foreign exchange hedging mechanism through a new auction on March 30, 2020, of Non-Delivery Forwards in the amount of US$1 billion for 30 days. The amounts not awarded at auction on one day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. In addition, the maturities of the non-delivery forwards that were offered before May 1, 2020, would be added to the daily quotas of the NDF auction. These measures expand the hedge against the risk of depreciation in an environment characterized by great uncertainty and high volatility of the exchange market.

04/30/2020 The Board of Directors decided: (i) To increase the amount of the foreign exchange hedge by holding a new dollar sale auction through non-delivery forward transactions in an amount of up to US$1 billion. (ii) To renew the NDFs those are maturing before May 30, 2020. (iii) To continue holding foreign exchange swap auctions up to US$400 million.

05/29/2020 The Board of Directors decided to renew through auctions the foreign exchange hedging instruments non-delivery forwards (NDFs) that would be maturing in the month of June. It also decided to continue auctioning the unawarded amount of the authorized operations (NDFs and swaps).

06/30/2020 The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic: (i) Would continue to offer in July non-delivery forward contracts through auctions in amounts equivalent to the maturities of contracts in force that are recorded each day; (ii) Would not continue the auctions of foreign exchange swaps given that the external liquidity has improved and that these auctions were not in demand. These contracts will be offered again when deemed necessary.

07/31/2020 The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew in August the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

08/14/2020 Performance of bilateral operations or operations through a Central Counterparty Risk Clearinghouse was established by an amendment to DOAM143.

The Comorian franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed rate of CF 491.96775 per euro. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation. The government of either the Comoros or France may change the exchange rate arrangement after notification to the other party to the monetary cooperation agreement.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The terms of government borrowing directly from the CB are defined and framed in the CBC charter. The discount rate is indexed to the euro overnight index average (European interbank rate).

| Administration of control | Yes. | The CBC has sole authority in exchange control matters but has delegated certain exchange control powers to authorized banks and financial establishments. The MOF supervises borrowing and lending abroad, inward direct investment, and outward investment. Except for gold-related transactions, the country’s exchange control measures do not apply to (1) France (and its overseas departments and territories), (2) Monaco, or (3) other countries whose banks of issue are linked with the French Treasury by an operations account (franc zone area members). |
| Payments arrears | Yes. | Official | Yes. | There are external public debt service payments arrears. |
| | | Private | No. | Private arrears consist solely of outstanding amounts for services provided to government units and are evidenced by cash bonds (bons de caisse). |
| Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) | Yes. | On domestic ownership and/or trade | No. | There are no restrictions on domestic ownership of gold or trading domestically in gold. |
| | | On external trade | Yes. | Prior authorization for imports and exports of gold bullion or coins is not required and is exempt with the exception of the business license. Exports and imports of gold, precious metals, and precious and semiprecious stones must be declared to customs. |
| Controls on exports and imports of banknotes | Yes. | On exports | Yes. | A limit of CF 2,000,000 applies to exports of currency by travelers leaving the Union of the Comoros on presentation of supporting documentation. |
| | | Domestic currency | Yes. | Residents traveling to France, Monaco, and operations account countries may take out the equivalent of CF 2,000,000 banknotes a person a trip and any amount in other means of payment. Residents traveling to countries other than France, Monaco, and operations account countries may take out any means of payment up to the equivalent of CF 2,000,000 a person a trip. Larger amounts require CBC approval on submission of supporting documentation. Nonresident travelers may export the equivalent of CF 2,000,000 in banknotes a person a trip and any means of payment issued abroad in their name on presentation of supporting documentation. In other cases, authorization is granted in accordance with exchange regulations when supporting documents are produced. |
| | | Foreign currency | Yes. | No controls apply to imports of Comorian francs, euro banknotes, or banknotes of countries connected to the French Treasury through an operations account. |
| | | | Resident travelers must surrender all foreign exchange to an authorized intermediary within one month of return. Nonresidents bringing in foreign currency banknotes are required to declare them to customs on entry. |

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices  Yes.  The IMF staff report for the Staff-Monitored Program and Request for Disbursement Under the Rapid Credit Facility states that, as of December 5, 2019, the DRC maintained one exchange rate restriction subject to IMF approval arising from an outstanding net debt position against other contracting members under the inoperative regional payments’ agreement with the Economic Community of the Great Lakes Countries. (Country Report No. 19/388)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons  No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)  No.

Other security restrictions  No.

Classification

No separate legal tender

Currency board

Conventional peg

Stabilized arrangement

Crawling peg

Crawl-like arrangement  Yes.  The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the Congo franc is determined by supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The BCC intervenes through an auction, which is the only operational framework for the BCC’s transactions with the market. From June 2019, the exchange rate has followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from stabilized, effective June 7, 2019. Information on foreign exchange market interventions is published on the Internet in the BCC bulletin.

Exchange tax Yes. A charge of 0.02% is levied by the BCC on all payments entering or leaving the country, regardless of the nature of the originator or the beneficiary.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes.

Spot exchange market Yes. The foreign exchange market is regulated by an agreement signed in 2003 between the BCC and the licensed banks. Participants in the exchange market are the BCC, the licensed banks, and all other licensed financial intermediaries (for example, exchange bureaus) that accede to the agreement. As of December 31, 2017, there were 17 active commercial banks. Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission. There is also a parallel market with a fairly large number of participants for which the volume of transactions is difficult to estimate. The daily spread between the official rate and parallel rate averaged 0.8% in 2017.

Any Congolese legal entity wishing to engage in activity as an exchange bureau must be licensed by the BCC. There are currently 27 authorized foreign exchange bureaus. The exchange bureaus cannot execute foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCC. Exchange bureaus are authorized to buy and sell foreign currencies for local currency in cash and to buy and sell foreign currencies for other currencies in cash. Exchange bureaus may not (1) maintain accounts abroad. They are required to maintain accounts in domestic currency and/or foreign-currency-denominated accounts opened in the Congolese banking system; or (2) conduct foreign exchange transactions in excess of US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies a person a day. The exchange bureaus may not execute transfers with the rest of the world, import or export banknotes, or hold deposits for their customers.

Operated by the central bank  Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility  No.
Allocation  No.
Auction  Yes. The CB organizes bilateral auctions. Only commercial banks and the CB are eligible to participate in the auctions, which are awarded at multiple rates. There are limits on the bids in terms of rates. A rate band determines the lower and upper limits within which banks may place bids to buy or sell, and the bid amounts may not exceed the equity of each bank.

The amount to be auctioned is not announced in advance. According to the schedule, the BCC organizes two auctions a month, but this schedule has not always been followed. There are no penalties in case of default by auction participants. The results of the auction are sent to commercial banks by email but are not disclosed to the public. The BCC announces its interventions on the day of the auction.

Fixing  No.
Interbank market  Yes. Operations in the interbank foreign exchange market take place over the counter or by auction. No charges or commissions are assessed. Only commercial banks and the BCC participate in this market.

There are currently 17 authorized commercial banks in the interbank market.

Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission.

As of December 31, 2017, almost all banks participated in the interbank market.

The BCC purchases US dollars sporadically at the banks’ initiative. In 2017, the BCC was a net seller of US dollars.

Over the counter  Yes. Foreign currency transactions are executed over the counter at prices determined by supply and demand.

Brokerage  No.
Market making  No.
Forward exchange market  Yes. A forward exchange market exists and is regulated by the same institutional mechanism as the spot market.

Official cover of forward operations  No.

not covered by exclusive mining concessions. Foreign individuals and legal entities may do so only on behalf of authorized marketing agencies.

On external trade Yes.

Gold from artisanal production may be exported only by authorized marketing agencies and does not require BCC authorization. However, they must comply with the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme and require, in addition to an export declaration made through a licensed bank, an appraisal certificate from the Centre for Evaluation, Expertise and Certification (CEEC) and a certificate of origin.

In addition to pre-financing, the repatriation of proceeds from exports of gold must be effected within 20 days of the date of shipment.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

On exports Yes.

Domestic currency No.

Foreign currency Yes.

There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. Travelers exiting the country may carry foreign exchange not exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currency, unless they are in transit internationally or on a service mission. Travelers must declare the amount of foreign exchange carried. Transfers of amounts exceeding US$10,000 must be made through a bank.

The transfer abroad of foreign banknotes representing part of the foreign exchange position of a licensed bank requires authorization by the BCC. The bank must apply to the BCC online, specifying in foreign currency the amounts to be exported and the name and address of the recipient correspondent bank abroad.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency No.

Foreign currency Yes.

There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. The amount of foreign cash that may be held on entering or leaving the national territory must be less than US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies. Larger amounts must be transferred via bank transfer. For their operations, licensed banks are authorized to physically export and import foreign-currency-denominated banknotes, which are, in their entirety, deemed to be part of the bank’s exchange position, based on BCC authorization requested online.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Held domestically Yes.

Licensed banks are authorized to open foreign-currency-denominated accounts for residents (RME accounts: “Résident en Monnaies Étrangères”) without prior authorization from the CB. These accounts may (1) be demand or time deposits; (2) bear interest; (3) be credited or debited without restriction; and (4) record domestic transfers between RME accounts, subject to the signature of exchange documents. Balances in foreign exchange accounts held domestically may be transferred abroad freely subject to the provision of a description and supporting documentation.

Approval required No.
Held abroad Yes. In accordance with the foreign exchange regulations, licensed banks are permitted to open bank accounts with foreign correspondents to execute transactions for their customers or themselves. Companies holding mining rights are permitted to hold foreign bank accounts with reputable international banks and report those accounts to the BCC. Accounts designated as “Principal Account” may be used to manage funds the company is permitted to hold outside the national territory, and other accounts to manage funds transferred from the principal account to service foreign debt, and for provisions and statutory, legal, and discretionary reserves.

Imports and Import Payments

| Foreign exchange budget | No. |
| Financing requirements for imports | Yes. Importer payments to nonresident suppliers must be accompanied by a declaration to which the goods and services contract, the invoice, and/or any other supporting documentation are attached. The importer is required to pay the invoice through an intervening bank. |
| Minimum financing requirements | No. |
| Advance payment requirements | No. |
| Advance import deposits | No. |
| Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports | Yes. |
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Domiciliation requirements

Yes. With the exception of border trade, all transactions relating to the import of goods, irrespective of the form of financing, require the prior filing of a model IB declaration for imports of goods with a commercial bank.

Preshipment inspection

Yes. Imports are subject to preshipment inspection. The amount, invoice price, and quality of imports must be verified and approved by the foreign agent of the Office of Congolese Control. Verification certificates are not required for imports of up to the f.o.b. equivalent of US$2,500 a shipment.

Letters of credit

Yes. Regulations on import payments follow generally accepted international payment methods.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses

No. An import declaration validated by a licensed bank constitutes authorization to import and/or make payments to a foreign supplier and does not limit the amount of the transaction.

Other

Yes. Written authorization from the relevant government department is required for certain goods, such as coins, commemorative coins, banknotes, weapons, and ammunition.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Yes. All products are authorized, except certain goods that require the consent of the relevant government department.

Positive list

Yes. The following may be imported without an exchange document, provided they are not intended for resale: (1) commercial samples without value; (2) newspapers, periodicals, and magazines for personal use and by subscription; (3) baggage and personal articles; (4) goods for the resupply of oil platforms carried from abroad aboard aircraft, ships, and other domestic means of transport; and (5) articles whose total value, including freight and insurance, does not exceed US$2,500 a shipment (cargo splitting is prohibited).

Negative list

No.

Open general licenses

Yes. The following may be imported without an exchange document, provided they are not intended for resale: (1) commercial samples without value; (2) newspapers, periodicals, and magazines for personal use and by subscription; (3) baggage and personal articles; (4) goods for the resupply of oil platforms carried from abroad aboard aircraft, ships, and other domestic means of transport; and (5) articles whose total value, including freight and insurance, does not exceed US$2,500 a shipment (cargo splitting is prohibited).

Licenses with quotas

No.

Other nontariff measures

No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. The tax and customs services determine and collect import taxes and duties.

Taxes collected through the exchange system

Yes. The BCC charges an exchange control fee of 0.02% on payments made abroad by the banks to cover import expenses and on imports for which no foreign currency is purchased.

State import monopoly

State import monopoly

Yes. Military materials are subject to a state import monopoly.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

Yes. With the exception of gold and diamonds produced by artisanal miners, for which the amount must be received at the bank no later than 20 days from the date of exit, export or reexport receipts from all other products of any nature must be repatriated no later than 60 calendar days from the date (1) the goods exit the national territory for a final destination or (2) the goods are shipped from an African country to a final destination. The exporter is required to transmit the transport document for shipped goods to the intervening bank for certification of the shipment date. In the case of exports on consignment, the export proceeds must be repatriated as soon as the merchandise has been sold and not later than the end of the validity period of the EB declaration form. As the sales progress, the exporter is required to receive a consignment accounting statement along with the relevant payment when the exporter must repatriate the proceeds. For companies holding mineral rights, export receipts from mining products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and from shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment period.

Mineral rights holders are authorized to keep 40% of export receipts in the primary account. Only mineral rights holders that have provided the bank references and regularly report activity in the primary account to the BCC may keep a portion of export or pre-financing receipts abroad. The 60% of export receipts required to be repatriated must be deposited to an account opened with the intervening bank within 15 days of the deposit of funds in the primary foreign account. The repatriated portion of export receipts must be used to cover domestic expenses payable to residents and may not be used to finance imports or any other international payment.

Accounts opened with the national banking system must also be credited with pre-financing and miscellaneous resources and obligations related to the firm’s operations.

Every mineral rights holder is required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month’s activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.

The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a mineral rights holder, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance. To that end, the mineral rights holder must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a notarized letter to its banker authorizing verification of the transactions in its primary account within 30 days of receipt of the BCC correspondence.

For petroleum production companies, export receipts from petroleum products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and of shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment. Every petroleum exploration and production company must be required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month’s activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.

The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a petroleum exploration and production company, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance. To that end, the petroleum exploration and production company must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a notarized letter to its banker authorizing verification of the transactions in its primary account within 30 days of receipt of the CB.

Surrender requirements  No.

Surrender to the central bank  No.

Surrender to authorized dealers  No.

Exporters are not required to surrender their export proceeds to banks or to the BCC. If they do surrender them, the terms, conditions, and arrangements must be agreed to by the bank and its customers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax

Yes. Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes.

Spot exchange market

Yes. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC’s OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Operated by the central bank

Yes. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Foreign exchange standing facility

Yes. Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC).

Effective June 10, 2019, a fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.

Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis. There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.

Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements No.

Operative No.

Inoperative No.

Regional arrangements Yes. An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements No.

Barter agreements and open accounts Yes. In the Republic of Congo, under production-sharing and investment contracts, clearing accounts used to make import payments from export receipts are held abroad under the control of MOF and BEAC departments.

Administration of control Yes. Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears No. Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official No.

Private No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) Yes.

- On domestic ownership and/or trade Yes. CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

- On external trade Yes. Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes. Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

On exports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries.
outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000). During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Foreign currency

| Yes. | Effective March 1, 2019, resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others. |

On imports

| Yes. |

Domestic currency

| Yes. | CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000). |

Foreign currency

| No. | Effective March 1, 2019, resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities. |

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

| Yes. |

Held domestically

| Yes. | Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. |

Approval required

| Yes. | The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. Effective March 1, 2019, the authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC. |

Held abroad

| Yes. | Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CAMAC/UMAC/CM effective March 1, 2019. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June [2019]. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law. |

Approval required

| Yes. | The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. |

Accounts in domestic currency held

| Yes. | Effective March 1, 2019, accounts in domestic currency held abroad... |

Letters of credit

No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses

No. Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

Other

Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Effective March 1, 2019, legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Yes. In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply. In the Republic of Congo, an import program is established each year for five separate zones: (1) CEMAC member countries, (2) France, (3) other operations accounts countries, (4) EU countries other than France, and (5) all other countries. Under this program, imports of nine products require licenses and all others are subject to ex post declaration.

Positive list

No.

Negative list

Yes. Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.

Open general licenses

Yes. There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in the Republic of Congo, imports of cement, forest products, oil products, and some staples require a license. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.

Licenses with quotas

Yes. In the Republic of Congo, licenses with quotas apply to imports of cement, wheat flour, and sugar.

Other nontariff measures

Yes. In the Republic of Congo, imports of commercial goods must be insured through licensed insurance companies.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry. In the Republic of Congo, a surcharge of 30% applies to imports of goods previously subject to quantitative restrictions. This surcharge is to be eliminated in three to six years, with the longer period applying to certain agricultural products and textiles.

Taxes collected through the exchange system

Yes. Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

State import monopoly

No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

Yes. Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Surrender to authorized dealers No.

Financing requirements No. Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.

Documentation requirements Yes. Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Letters of credit No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Guarantees n.r.

Domiciliation Yes. Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.

Preshipment inspection Yes. There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the Republic of Congo, the Société Générale de Surveillance (SGS) and COTECNA handle preshipment inspections.

Other No.

Export licenses No.

Without quotas No.

With quotas No.

Export taxes Yes. Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.

Collected through the exchange system Yes. Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

Other export taxes Yes. In the Republic of Congo, export taxes of up to 13% apply to certain products.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions  Yes. The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC.
member countries.
There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries.

Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”

Repatiation requirements
Yes.
In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, effective March 1, 2019, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements
Yes.
Surrender to the central bank
Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days (previously 30 days) after receipt.

No.

Controls on capital and money market instruments
Yes.
On capital market securities
Yes. The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature
Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents
Yes. Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Effective March 1, 2019, transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. Previously, transactions must be reported within 30 days regardless of the amount. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceeded CFAF 100 million, transactions were subject to MOF approval.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents
Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, the issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million (previously CFAF 10

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market
Spot exchange market
  Interbank market 06/10/2019 A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes
On exports
  Domestic currency 03/01/2019 Departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).
  Foreign currency 03/01/2019 Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

On imports
  Domestic currency 03/01/2019 Arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).
  Foreign currency 03/01/2019 Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, and instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
  Held domestically
    Approval required 03/01/2019 The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.
  Held abroad 03/01/2019 Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.

  Accounts in domestic currency held abroad 03/01/2019 Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating, on February 2, 2015, under Article 5 of the legal act adopted during session 5677-2015 of the Board of Directors of the BCCR held January 30, 2015. Under this arrangement: (1) the BCCR allows the exchange rate to be freely determined by foreign currency supply and demand, but it may participate in the market to meet its own foreign currency requirements and those of the nonbank public sector (NBPS) and, at its discretion, to prevent drastic fluctuations in the exchange rate, in such a way that these actions will not interrupt the trend determined by the macroeconomic variables of that price (sterilization interventions); (2) the BCCR may carry out direct operations or use foreign currency trading instruments that it deems appropriate, in accordance with current regulations.

Contrary to what was observed in the second half of 2018, there were no stress events in the exchange market in the first half of 2019. During this period, foreign exchange dealers’ operations with the public (“windows”) posted a cumulative surplus of US$812 million that, while lower than that which was posted at the same time the year before (US$928 million), enabled the CB to meet the SPNB foreign exchange requirements and partially replenish the currency sold to that end in previous periods. That surplus was particularly high for the second quarter (higher than that recorded during the same period in previous years), enabling authorized foreign exchange dealers to increase their foreign exchange position (FXP) by US$180.2 million in the second quarter and US$256 million in the first half of the year.

The increased availability of foreign currency was reflected in greater exchange rate stability (in relation to the second half of 2018), tending downward. The average exchange rate in the foreign currency market (MONEX) exhibited a cumulative change of −6.48% and a year-on-year change of 0.33% at July 31, while for the same period in 2018, these benchmarks were −1.07% and −0.35%, respectively.

The surplus from operations carried out by foreign exchange dealers with the public totaled US$2,158.1 million (concentrated in the second part of the year, particularly in the final two months), a figure that far exceeds not just the 2018 result, but the 2015–2018 average as well.

The increased availability of foreign currency was reflected in a downward trend in the exchange rate in MONEX. By the end of the year, this indicator posted a cumulative change of −6.0%, which brought the exchange rate back to the levels observed before the strong depreciation of the colón between September and November 2018. Therefore, a comparison of the exchange rate at end-2019 with that at end-2017 or end-June 2018 reveals a slight depreciation of the colón.

In 2019, the BCCR conducted US$75.9 million in sales for stabilization in the foreign exchange market (compared to US$452.8 million in 2018). Between January 2 and July 31, 2020, the surplus from “window” foreign exchange operations was US$1,036.6 million, which enabled the BCCR to buy dollars in the market to replenish the US$1,408.4 million in foreign currency sold to the NBPS.

During this period, only sales for stabilization were carried out, amounting to US$6.8 million, and the exchange rate posted a year-on-year change of 3.4%.

As of April 2020, forces have been acting on the depreciation of the colón, consistent with the seasonality of the foreign exchange market, in connection with the health measures to contain the spread... of COVID-19, which resulted in reduced income from goods and services exports (especially tourism) and lower direct investment flows in Q2.

However, monetary aggregates show no financial pressures on this smaller surplus, and movements in the FXP of foreign exchange dealers partly mitigated this effect of “window” operations.

From February 2019 to August 2019, the exchange rate followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar; then, the colon changed direction and has followed a depreciating trend also within a 2% band against the US dollar since August 2019, with one realignment in December 2019. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “crawl-like” from “floating,” effective February 11, 2019.

The BCCR publishes its intervention data on a daily basis right after the MONEX trading session closes.

Official exchange rate  Yes.  Costa Rica does not have an official exchange rate; however, for the liquidation of instruments, contracts, and obligations denominated in foreign currency, Article 48 of the Organic Law of the BCCR provides that, at the debtor’s option, the latter may be paid in colones at an amount equivalent to the actual market value.

The actual market value is determined by using the buying and selling benchmark exchange rate, which is calculated daily by the BCCR pursuant to Article 9 of the Regulation on Spot Exchange Operations (ROCC). Benchmark exchange rates will be used, as applicable, for all purposes set forth by the various laws, regulations, rules, and general provisions.

The buying and selling benchmark exchange rates for each day will be calculated by the BCCR based on online information submitted to the CB by each entity authorized to participate in the foreign exchange market.

The benchmark exchange rates are calculated as follows pursuant to Article 9 of the ROCC: The benchmark exchange rates (buying and selling) for day \( t \) are the average (weighted by amount) of the exchange rates of the foreign currency (buying and selling) transactions between foreign exchange dealers and the public on day \( t_1 \), during the period defined by agreement of the Board of Directors of the BCCR.

The exchange rate is a reference for the market; its use is not mandatory.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

- U.S. dollar
- Euro
The Board of Directors of the BCCR, under Article 5 of the legal act adopted, during session 5813-2018 of January 31, 2018, an inflation-targeting framework.

In the context of the 2020–2021 Macroeconomic Program, and its July 2020 revision, the BCCR upheld the institutional commitment to the domestic stability of the colón embodied in an inflation target of 3%, with a tolerance range of ±1 percentage point (pp).

The long-term inflation target is 3%, with a tolerance band of ±1 pp.

It is measured as the year-on-year change.

It is approximated as the simple average of the year-on-year change in the fixed exclusion indicators for volatility (IEV), truncated mean (IMT), reweighting for volatility (IRV), reweighting for persistence (IRP), and fixed exclusion of agricultural products and fuels (IEF).

It is biannual, associated with macroeconomic programming with a benchmark value of 3% (long-term inflation of key trading partners).

The policy rate is defined as the BCCR target interest rate used as a benchmark to bring the cost of overnight operations in the integrated liquidity market within a band consisting of interest rates for its standing deposit and credit facilities. It is determined by the Board of Directors of BCCR.

As at December 31, 2019, the rate was 2.75%.

As of June 18, 2020, this rate is 0.75%.

At the beginning of March, when the first case of COVID-19 was detected in Costa Rica, the CB reduced its policy rate by 150 basis points, bringing it down to its all-time low of 0.75%. This enabled a significant reduction in average borrowing and lending interest rates. This not only improves the conditions for new credit, but also provides some relief to debtors with variable rate loans.

Target corridor band
Yes.
This band is determined by the Board of Directors. The upper value of the band is the standing credit facility interest rate and the lower value the standing deposit facility interest rate. As of June 18, 2020, the standing deposit facility interest rate was 0.01% and the standing credit facility interest rate, 1.5%.

Exchange tax
Yes.
In accordance with Article 97 of the LOBCCR and Article 5 of the ROCC, foreign exchange dealers are charged a participation fee equivalent to 25% of the foreign exchange dealing spread on all their foreign exchange operations.

Exchange subsidy
No.

Foreign exchange market
Yes.
Article 2 of the ROCC authorizes the BCCR, financial institutions supervised by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities (SUGEF), stock brokers, and exchange houses to participate in the exchange market on their own account and at their own risk. Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the operations they carry out in the market.

Spot exchange market
Yes.
For the purchase and sale of currencies, the foreign exchange market has: platforms for the trading of foreign exchange by dealers with the general public (including both physical and electronic “windows,” automated teller machines (ATMs), and Internet banking), the MONEX, and operations between foreign exchange dealers outside MONEX.
MONEX is a foreign exchange market organized and operated through an electronic platform of the BCCR. Participants in the market include foreign exchange dealers, the BCCR, and nondealers (individuals and legal entities).
Outside MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves by means of transfers. As of December 31, 2020, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 7 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms.

For exchange houses, Chapter VI of the ROCC (Article 15) states that: “Exchange houses may make spot foreign exchange purchases and sales in notes, bank drafts, checks, transfers to and from other countries, and other payment instruments, on their own behalf and at their own risk.” Currently, their only operations in Costa Rica are foreign exchange swaps.

According to the foreign currency management strategy for the NBPS, the BCCR has the ability to: (1) directly meet the net daily foreign currency requirements by drawing on the sale of its international reserves and (2) replenish the foreign currency used to meet the net requirements of the NBPS through participation in MONEX on the basis of the prevailing conditions in the foreign exchange market.

Currently, the CB does not have a foreign exchange allocation mechanism; there is no foreign exchange auction or any exchange rate fixing mechanism.

The BCCR operates in the foreign exchange market as any market participant, in response to three reasons:
(1) Purchasing foreign exchange either to increase reserves it has previously sold to the SPNB or for future demands.
(2) Stabilization operations and own operations, associated with financial shielding.

Pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC, the Board of Directors of the BCCR is the body entrusted with authorizing entities to act as intermediaries in the foreign exchange market. Financial intermediaries supervised by the SUGEF are authorized to carry out foreign exchange intermediation operations and, by extension, to participate in MONEX.

Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the market. The BCCR does not establish limits on fees for foreign exchange dealing charged by foreign exchange dealers, or on the effective margin.

As of December 31, 2020, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 7 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms.

In MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may freely publish the exchange rates at which they buy and sell dollars. Exchange dealers must pay a fee of 0.02% on the amount traded.

The BCCR trades in foreign currency in MONEX directly like any other participant, but does not do so in the form of market makers. It does so to prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate and to meet its own needs (Article 87 of the Organic Law of the BCCR) as well as to meet the foreign currency requirements of the NBPS (Article 89 of the Organic Law of the BCCR).

Over the counter: Yes. In addition to MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves (outside of MONEX) by means of transfers.

Brokerage: No.

Market making: No. Foreign exchange dealers may offer buying and selling rates to other participants in the MONEX. The role of market makers is not taken into consideration in the Costa Rican exchange regulations.

Forward exchange market: Yes. The regulations governing foreign exchange derivatives make it possible to engage in hedging transactions by means of forwards, futures, and swaps. As of December 31, 2019, five banking entities undertake operations with foreign exchange derivatives. The derivative instruments used are delivery forwards and financial forwards, in addition to “contracts for difference.” The settlement periods for such operations are in the range of 2 to 180 days at present (the Regulation governing Operations in Foreign Exchange Derivatives permits a maximum on one year). The BCCR does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market; however, to ensure compliance with the limit established for the daily change in the foreign currency position of foreign exchange dealers, it receives information from these institutions regarding their foreign exchange derivative transactions.

Official cover of forward operations: No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements No. Pursuant to Law No. 7558, Article 42, the colón is the national currency and legal tender. Pursuant to Article 48 of the same law, acts, contracts, and obligations in foreign currency are valid, effective, and executable but may be paid, at the debtor’s election, in colones, based on the actual exchange value of the currency in question on the date of payment. There are no international treaties or conventions that limit or restrict the use of domestic or foreign currency in making or receiving payments.

The National Electronic Payments System (SINPE) was created on the basis of Law No. 7558 of the BCCR to offer a secure and efficient payment system. Services for administering and managing funds and securities were implemented on the platform. Funds are moved to customers through collection services, such as direct debits and real-time debits, and through payment services, such as Immediate transfers, direct credits, and SINPE Mobile. Services are offered through the SINPE platform via financial entities, which offer them to their customers, in accordance with the rules and standards established by the BCCR.

Transactions exceeding US$10,000 (or the equivalent in domestic currency) must be reported pursuant to Law No. 8204 for the purpose of monitoring drug trafficking, related activities, money laundering, terrorism financing, and organized crime.

The Treaty on Payments and Securities Settlement Systems in Central America and the Dominican Republic, Law No. 8876, was approved November 1, 2010, and published in the official gazette, La Gaceta No. 8 of January 12, 2011. This treaty aims to promote legal certainty, the development and strengthening of payments and securities settlement systems of systemic importance in Central America and the Dominican Republic, and stronger CB control over payment systems.

In addition, the new version of the Payments System Regulation, in effect since May 14, 2018, makes it possible to include regional partners, which will enable them to access funds mobilization services for third parties using the same SINPE platform.

Outward payments (PEX): The SINPE service was used to establish an interconnection with the payments system for Central America and the Dominican Republic (SIP) to offer customers the possibility of sending and receiving funds within the region.

The exchange market regulations are the responsibility of the BCCR. The SUGEFS is responsible for supervising foreign exchange bureaus and financial intermediaries authorized to participate as foreign exchange brokers. There are controls only on the gold trade for national archeological treasures.

The country has controls regarding the ownership of the so-called archaeological assets made of gold.

The National Archaeological Heritage Law No.6703, Article 1, establishes that furniture or real estate produced by indigenous cultures previous or contemporary to the establishment of the Hispanic culture in national territory, among which figures, coins, and gold tokens may be considered as national archaeological heritage.

According to Law 7 of 1938 and 6703 of 1982, the only possessor of archaeological objects is the State. However, individuals who already had this type of objects were given the possibility to become custodians, by registering in the Heritage Registry Archaeological of the National Museum.

Regarding the commercialization of gold within the country, Article 15 bis, of Law No. 7786, states that individuals or legal entities whose activity consists of being merchants of metals and precious stones must (1) register with the SUGEF, (2) be subject to supervision by the Suget regarding prevention of money laundering, terrorist financing and the financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and (3) be subject to the prudential regulations established by the National Financial System Supervision Council, as well as to the sanctioning regime established in Article 81 of the aforementioned law.

The Information Technology Customs Control system (TICA system) of the Directorate General of Customs specifies, for each import product, the requirements (technical notes) established by the Ministries of Health, Agriculture and Livestock, Public Security, and Environment, Energy, and Technology, and the National Seeds Office, among others. These permits are required for both the importation and transit of goods.

There is a list of prohibited imports (including, among other things, ozone-depleting substances, used tires, and weapons of war).

There are import quotas for dairy and poultry products (WTO); pork, refined sugar (Canada); chicken thighs, dairy products, potatoes, onions, hulled or unhulled rice (United States); pork, sausages, palm oil, tomato sauce (Panama); pork, black beans (China); beef (Peru); bacon and ham, cheese, powdered milk, prepared pork (EU); fish food (Colombia).

The Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock may impose nontariff measures of a phytosanitary nature, and the Ministry of Economy, Industry and Trade establishes technical regulations.

There is no uniform rate; customs tariffs on most goods vary: up to 15% in the manufacturing sector and up to 151% for certain agricultural products. The following taxes are also levied on imports: (1) Effective July 1, 2019, a VAT of between 1% and 13% was applied to a list of goods and services, from which certain essential items are exempt (previously, there was a 13% tax on sales), and (2) selective consumption taxes at rates ranging from 0% to 95%.

Trade defense measures: a 3.67% antidumping duty is applied to imports of refined sugar from Brazil. This measure will take effect until February 2022.
Effective August 19, 2020, an additional tariff was implemented for a safeguard measure on imports of refined sugar (tariff paragraph 170199.00.00) of 27.68%. This measure will be in effect for 3 years.

There is no surrender requirement in place. However, Article 83 indicates that if the Board of Directors of the BCCR determines that there are imbalances in the balance of payments that cannot be redressed using the instruments designated by law, it may, as a temporary measure, oblige any individual or legal entity to sell, in part or in full, the foreign currency it has obtained through exports of goods and services. This measure may be enforced for a maximum period of one year. The BCCR has not used the temporary instrument established under Article 83.

External debt transactions by the executive branch or guaranteed by the government must be authorized by the Legislative Assembly, in particular for the issuance of bonds in international markets. Further, pursuant to Law No. 7558 (Article 106) and Law No. 7010 (Article 7), external and internal debt transactions by the public sector (except state-owned banks, the Costa Rican Electricity Institute (ICE), public universities, and municipalities, in accordance with Law No. 8131) require prior authorization from the Ministry of National Planning and Economic Policy (MIDEPLAN), the Directorate for Public Credit, and the BCCR. In the latter case, a binding opinion is issued.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Yes.

Paragraphs (h), (i), and (j) of Article 49 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank state that debt instruments or securities, foreign currency deposits, and loans disbursed in foreign currency may be agreed to and must be paid in foreign currency, all corresponding to entities subject to oversight by SUGEF.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 86, states that only the CB, institutions supervised by SUGEF, and other institutions authorized by the CB may deal in foreign exchange. The latter two categories must meet a series of requirements established in the article.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 88, authorizes the CB to regulate the limits on own-account operations by supervised institutions, with respect to their transactions in foreign currencies.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 90, authorizes the CB to regulate forward or futures transactions and other similar transactions in foreign currencies.

The ROCC regulates foreign exchange dealing by authorized institutions as provided under the Organic Law of the Central Bank.

The regulations governing operations in foreign exchange derivatives regulate operations in foreign exchange derivatives by institutions supervised by SUGEF, SUFEVAL, and SUPEN.

The LOSBN, in Article 3(1), establishes collaboration in the execution of monetary, exchange, credit, and bank policy as a core banking function.

Article 75 of the LOSBN stipulates that “All operations carried out in foreign currency by commercial banks, as well assets and liabilities held abroad in foreign currency, are subject to the provisions of the LOBCCR and to the attendant resolutions and recommendations approved by the Board of Directors of the Central Bank.”

There is a limit on the direct and indirect lending operations that financial intermediaries may engage in with a given individual or legal entity, amounting to 20% of the subscribed and paid-in capital plus non-redeemable reserves, as provided for in Article 135 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank. This limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations.

According to the laws on money laundering, terrorism financing, and organized crime, financial institutions may limit the type or amount of services they offer to nonresident foreign individuals, taking into account customer risk classifications. Pursuant to Article 16 of Law No. 8204, financial institutions must require the following:

- Maintenance of registered accounts – they may not maintain anonymous accounts, encrypted accounts, or accounts under fictitious or imprecise names.
- In the case of legal entities classified as risky according to the parameters established by the National Council of Supervision of the Financial System, financial institutions must require that the legal and nonlegal representatives of a company be notarized. This must be verified especially when commercial relationships are established, in particular the opening of new accounts, the issuance of deposit passbooks, the creation of trust transactions, the rental of safe deposit boxes, or the execution of transactions, including inward or outward transfers in domestic or foreign currency, in amounts equal to or greater than US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies.
- The purpose of these regulations is to prevent money laundering and the financing of terrorism, which is why they do not relate to exchange rate controls.

Effective June 16, 2019, paragraph (C) of Title III of the Monetary Policy Regulations established a minimum reserve requirement differentiated for deposits and liabilities according to currency. The minimum reserve requirement for deposits and liabilities denominated in domestic currency is 12%, while the minimum reserve for deposits and liabilities denominated in foreign currency is 15%. Previously, the reserve requirement was 15% for both foreign and domestic currency. Minimum reserve requirements differentiated by nature of deposit-taking instruments are not considered. Reserve requirement rates in both national and foreign currency apply uniformly to deposit accounts regardless of whether their owners are residents or nonresidents.

Financial intermediaries do not receive any remuneration for deposits in the CB in consideration of the minimum legal reserve.

Investment regulations

Abroad by banks Yes. There is a limit to the active, direct and indirect operations that financial intermediaries can carry out with individuals or legal entities, of 20% of the subscribed and paid capital plus non-redeemable equity reserves. This is established by provision of the Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 135; but this limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations, so it is not a differentiated treatment for banks abroad or with nonresidents.

In banks by nonresidents Yes. There is a limit to the active, direct and indirect operations that financial intermediaries can carry out with individuals or legal entities, of 20% of the subscribed and paid capital plus non-redeemable equity reserves. This is established by provision of the Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 135; but this limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations, so it is not a differentiated treatment for banks abroad or with nonresidents.

Open foreign exchange position limits Yes. The FXP as a proportion of core capital must be within the range of ±100%.

The average monthly ratio of the FXP to core capital expressed in dollars must be equal to the value defined by the institution as desirable, with no objection by the BCCR management. The tolerance range for compliance with the monthly average of this indicator is between −3 pp and +1 pp of the ratio.

The daily change in the FXP ratio to core capital for foreign exchange operations may not exceed ±2% of the value of core capital expressed in US dollars.

The National Financial System Supervision Council, pursuant to Article 10 of the legal act adopted during session 1340-2017 of June 13, 2017, approved specific rules for financial intermediaries to improve their management of market, interest rate, and exchange rate risk in a manner that is consistent with their risk profile, systemic importance, and macroeconomic conditions.

The agreement is based on the fact that a neutral FXP protects the financial intermediary’s income statement from fluctuations in the exchange rate, but not necessarily its capital adequacy ratio; therefore, it was requested that: quantitative restrictions be determined for the FXP for “trading” and “nontrading” transactions.

The formula for calculating the capital adequacy indicator was changed, in particular the capital requirement component associated with exchange risk, such that greater exposure to exchange risk results in higher capital requirements.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes. There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, changes in these positions are subject to the conditions indicated in Article 4 of the Regulations for Exchange Operations. There are limits on changes in the foreign currency positions of foreign exchange dealers; however, no distinction is made between resident and nonresident positions.

On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes. There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, there are limits on the FXP with respect to capital, average monthly capital levels, and daily changes in capital, subject to the provisions of Article 4 of the ROCC.

Provisions specific to institutional investors Yes. On February 7, 2014, amendments were made to Agreement SGV-A-61 requiring entities to communicate relevant information to the markets and to Agreement SGV-A-75 relating to periodic reporting of information.

Insurance companies No. Article 25 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers only sets forth general principles regarding investment policies.
Specific provisions for the investments backing the technical reserves of insurance companies are set out in Article 23 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers. Although at least 40% of these securities must be instruments meeting the requirements of Article 27 of this chapter, for example, having at least one investment grade rating, investment in other types of instruments is not restricted. For derivative instruments (Articles 28 and 32 of the Regulations), entities can carry out only interest rate, price, and foreign exchange risk hedging operations.

| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | No. |
| Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad | No. |
| Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally | No. |
| Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition | No. |
| Pension funds | Yes. |

On November 2, 2018, the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, a comprehensive overhaul of the Regulations Governing Investments by Authorized Entities, was published in the Official Gazette.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Authorised entities may invest in securities issued in the foreign market up to 25% of the asset administered by the fund, which proportion may be increased up to 50%, provided it can be demonstrated, in accordance with the provisions set forth in “Title II. Governance of Investments” of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, that the limit increase complies with Article 62 of the Law on Worker Protection.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad

Article 67 of General limits:
Funds must comply with the following maximum limits:

Securities issued by the same issuer or its subsidiaries and affiliates, up to 10%.
Up to 10% for each external investment manager.

Article 68 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets established limits by type of instrument.
Funds must comply with the following maximum limits:
(1) Debt securities.
(a) Up to 5% in each of the following instruments: repos, securities lending, structured notes with protected capital, and level III standardized debt.
(2) Securities representative of ownership:
(a) Up to 25% in level I instruments.
(b) Up to 10% in level II instruments.
(c) Up to 5% in level III instruments.

Article 17 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets defines the types of instruments by level:
Level III standardized debt: the risk ratings corresponding to these instruments must be within the top two ratings of the scale below investment grade.
Level I securities representative of ownership: Shares, ADRs, and units in funds or special-purpose vehicles (financial, debt, equity, mixed, or index funds as well as ETFs that replicate financial indexes. Funds that in their investment strategies use derivative instruments whose purpose is different from the efficient portfolio handling criterion, defined by the UCITS, are exempt).
Level II securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into investment vehicles related to property management, real estate investment, real estate, and project development (past the feasibility stage).

Level III securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into funds that invest in private equity.

Article 69 of Limits by issuer: Funds must comply with a maximum investment limit of up to 10% from a single issuer of any type of securities, except the Ministry of Finance of Costa Rica, the BCCR, and issuers of international sovereign debt of countries with risk ratings within investment grade.

The requirements are not differentiated by investment destinations.

The Asset Management Regulations do not establish minimum limits. However, the Worker Protection Law (7983) in its article 61 provides that “pension operators must invest, at least, 15% of the Compulsory Regime of Complementary Pensions (ROP) in securities with mortgage guarantee or product of mortgage securitization processes, as long as their yield generates, at the operators' discretion, an adequate return according to the risk that these instruments present. Investment in securities issued by entities that are, at the time of making the investment, in a situation of financial irregularity, are prohibited in accordance with the provisions of the SUGEF.

The risks stemming from the above must be reported by the Management Body, in accordance with paragraph (f) of Article 5 of this Regulation. Previously, funds' investments in foreign currency-denominated assets were limited to those denominated in US dollars, yen, euros, and pound sterling.

There are no specific limits, unless a limit is set in the investment fund’s prospectus. There are no upper limits on the investment portfolio held abroad, unless a limit is set in the investment fund’s prospectus. There are no lower limits on the investment portfolio held locally, unless a limit is set in the investment fund’s prospectus. The investment fund indicates the currency in which shares (assets) are subscribed in its prospectus.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement
From February 2019 to August 2019, the exchange rate followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar; then, the colon changed direction and has followed a depreciating trend also within a 2% band against the US dollar since August 2019, with one realignment in December 2019. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “crawl-like” from “floating.”

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs

- 07/01/2019 A VAT of between 1% and 13% was applied to a list of goods and services, from which certain essential items are exempt. (Previously, there was a 13% tax on sales.)
- 08/19/2020 An additional tariff was implemented for a safeguard measure on imports of refined sugar (tariff paragraph 170199.00.00) of 27.68%. This measure will be in effect for 3 years.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Financial credits

To residents from nonresidents

- 06/16/2019 The external debt operations of commercial banks and financial institutions supervised by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities are subject to a 15% reserve requirement in foreign currency and a 12% reserve requirement in domestic currency. Previously, the reserve requirement was 15% for both foreign and domestic currency.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents

- 06/16/2019 Paragraph (C) of Title III of the Monetary Policy Regulations established a minimum reserve requirement differentiated for deposits and liabilities according to currency. A regional framework to combat money laundering (AML) and the financing of terrorism (AFT) through two WAEMU Directives, respectively, in 2002 (AML) and 2007 (AFT). This also framework facilitates the implementation of decisions taken by the UNSC on the basis of a list of persons and entities drawn up by the Committee. The WAEMU’ AML regulations were first incorporated into Côte d’Ivoire’s legal corpus through a law of December 2, 2005. A National Financial Information Processing Unit (CENTIF) was created in 2006, to combat clandestine financial channels, money laundering, and the financing of terrorism. The WAEMU AFT mechanism was first incorporated into Côte d’Ivoire legal corpus through an Ordinance of November 12, 2009. The WAEMU AML/FT framework was updated through regional Directive 02/2015/CM/UEMOA of July 2, 2015, of the WAEMU’s Council of Ministers on combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism in the WAEMU. This current regional Directive as incorporated into Côte d’Ivoire’s Law in November 2016.

Conventional peg

Yes.
The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Côte d’Ivoire participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAEMU member countries and France was concluded December 4, 1973. It was maintained after the French franc was replaced by the euro by the Council of the European Union decision of November 23, 1998. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility. In exchange for the unlimited convertibility of the CFA franc to euros, the WAEMU members are required to deposit 50% of their reserve holdings to the operations account with the French Treasury in accordance with the Amendment to the Operations Account Convention signed by France and the BCEAO September 20, 2005.

The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed exchange rate of CAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rates between the CFA franc and other currencies are automatically inferred based on the rates between those currencies and the euro. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may vote to modify the monetary cooperation accord between the WAMU member countries and France. Legally, the permanence of monetary cooperation accords is guaranteed by the November 23, 1998, decision of the Council of the European Union concerning exchange matters relating to the CFA franc and the Comorian franc (Decision No. 98/683/CE).

Authorized intermediaries may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients, except for the euro, which must be traded against the CFA franc at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. However, they can charge a commission of up to 2% of the transaction amount.

Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU went into force.

Exchange tax

Yes. The commission rate charged on transfers to all countries that are not members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes.

Spot exchange market Yes. The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect concerning the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic exchange operations with euro banknotes and issue a transaction receipt for any operation with a customer. In addition, to ensure that customers have satisfactory information, authorized intermediaries must (1) post at their windows, at all times, the rates effectively applied for the various currencies and (2) post a notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions based on the requestor’s identity document.

As of December 31, 2019, there were 29 banks and 99 exchange bureaus in Côte d’Ivoire. Exchange bureaus are dealers authorized, on the approval of the Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF), to transact in foreign exchange with the public. Exchange bureaus may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except euros) with the CB. Registered banknote exchange houses may not make transfers or payments in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad.

In their transactions with customers, these authorized intermediaries (licensed intermediary banks and licensed exchange dealers) freely set the buying and selling rates for foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed parity of CFAF 655.957 and may give rise to a commission of a maximum of 2.0%.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals).

However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU members on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries; and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.

Allocation No.

Auction No.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are permitted. There is no foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU. As of December 31, 2019, 15 banks participated in the interbank market in domestic currency.

Over the counter Yes.
Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes. Côte d’Ivoire is linked to the French Treasury via the BCEAO through an operations account, through which settlement of transactions with France, Monaco, and other operations account countries (WAEMU and CEMAC members and the Comoros) is made mainly in euros. Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes. CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions (both current and capital transactions) outside the WAEMU.

For current transactions and payments Yes. CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU. However, the CFA franc is guaranteed unlimited convertibility to euros through an operating account opened with the French Treasury.

For capital transactions Yes. The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments Yes. The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments | Yes.
--- | ---
Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following derivatives operations with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward foreign exchange contract and (2) foreign exchange swaps and options. Authorized transactions in foreign exchange derivatives can be carried out between two foreign currencies or between the CFA franc and a foreign currency with the exception of the euro or a currency whose issuing body has a transaction account with the French Treasury.

Credit operations | Yes.
--- | ---
Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.

Use of foreign exchange among residents | Yes.
The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.

An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases or sales of foreign currencies or euros against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.

Clearing agreements

Yes.
There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

Barter agreements and open accounts

Yes.
The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Côte d’Ivoire for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exportation of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Côte d’Ivoire are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

- On domestic ownership and/or trade: No.
- On external trade: Yes. Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

- On exports:
  - Domestic currency: Yes. Domestic currency (CFA franc (XOF) banknotes may be exported freely by travelers from one WAEMU member country to another. Shipments of banknotes issued by the BCEAO between any WAEMU resident individual or legal entity other than the BCEAO and its banking or commercial correspondents located outside WAEMU member countries are prohibited.
  - Foreign currency: Yes. The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler’s checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler’s checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

- On imports:
  - Domestic currency: Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone travelers may freely import domestic currency. However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.
  - Foreign currency: No. Resident travelers may freely import CFA franc area banknotes or foreign-currency-denominated means of payment. Means of payment must be declared if the amount exceeds CFAF 1 million. Resident travelers are required to surrender foreign banknotes or other foreign-currency-denominated means of payment exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5,000,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of their arrival in the national territory. Nonresident travelers may freely import CFA franc area banknotes or foreign-currency-denominated means of payment. Nonresident travelers must declare in writing all means of payment exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 1 million on arriving in and exiting the national territory.
Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Yes.

Held domestically
Yes.

Approval required
Yes.

Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Held abroad
Yes.

Approval required
Yes.

Individual who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Yes.

Approval required
Yes.

Nonresident accounts denominated in euros may be freely opened by intermediaries accredited in the WAEMU on justification by the beneficiaries of their status and residence outside of the WAEMU. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.

Domestic currency accounts
Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency
Yes.

Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and effective residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements
Yes. Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.

Surrender requirements
Yes.

Surrender to the central bank
Yes. The domiciling bank is responsible for the repatriation via the accounts of foreign correspondents of the BCEAO of at least 80% of the export proceeds received. For purposes of coverage of its current foreign currency needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as owned foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that the sum of the foreign exchange resources it has to cover its requirements does not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

The authorized intermediary bank surrenders foreign currencies to the CB immediately.

Surrender to authorized dealers
Yes. Exporters must collect and surrender to an authorized intermediary bank total earnings from sales of goods abroad within 30 days following the payment due date as stipulated in the sales contract, which in principle should be within a maximum of 120 days after the shipment of goods. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the issuing bank. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are authorized, provided the domiciling bank provides the necessary supporting documents to verify domiciliation.

Financing requirements
No.

Documentation requirements
Yes. Export transactions require a customs declaration.

Letters of credit
No.

Guarantees
No.

Domiciliation
Yes. Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.

Preshipment inspection
Yes.
Other

Export licenses Yes.
Without quotas Yes. Exports are permitted on the basis of a simple authorization from the Directorate of Foreign Trade, which issues certificates of origin, as needed. Exports of diamonds, gold, and precious metals, however, require MEF authorization, with the exception of articles with a small gold content, traveler’s personal effects weighing less than 500 grams, and coins (fewer than 10 pieces, irrespective of their face value or denomination).
With quotas Yes. Exports of lumber are subject to quantitative quotas allocated through an auction.

Export taxes Yes.
Collected through the exchange system No.
Other export taxes Yes. Exports of cocoa and coffee are subject to export tax and may be effected only by exporters authorized by the Authority for the Regulation of Coffee and Cocoa.

These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes.

Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, non-WAEMU resident) credit institution.

Controls on credit operations

Yes.

Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MEF.

Commercial credits

Yes.
By residents to nonresidents

Yes. There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).

To residents from nonresidents

No. There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.

Financial credits

Yes. These credits require MEF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MEF and substantiated by documentation. However, authorized intermediaries are permitted to grant the following credits to their foreign correspondents: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries’ foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

Yes. The granting of guarantees and sureties requires the authorization of the minister of finance. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MEF approval and the submission of supporting documents.

Outward direct investment

Yes. All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone, including... investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of Côte d’Ivoire and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in Côte d’Ivoire, requires MEF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU member countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

\textbf{Exchange Measures}

- \textbf{Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices}: No.
- \textbf{Exchange measures imposed for security reasons}: Yes.
- \textbf{In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)}: Yes.

Croatia imposes certain restrictive measures (freezing of funds and other economic resources and prohibition against making them available), in accordance with relevant UNSC resolutions and decisions of the Council of the EU solely for the preservation of national and international security.

- \textbf{Other security restrictions}: Yes.

In accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions, there are restrictions on financial transactions relating to persons or entities on the consolidated lists of the relevant sanction committees of the UNSC.

\textbf{Exchange Arrangement}

- \textbf{Currency}: Yes. The currency of Croatia is the Croatian kuna.
- \textbf{Other legal tender}: No.

- \textbf{Exchange rate structure}
  - \textbf{Unitary}: Yes.
  - \textbf{Dual}
  - \textbf{Multiple}

\textbf{Classification}

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Conventional peg
- Stabilized arrangement: Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating without a predetermined path. The Croatian National Bank (CNB) may set intervention exchange rates, which it applies in transactions with banks to limit exchange rate volatility. The CNB conducts foreign exchange auctions on a discretionary basis to ensure the stability of the kuna and provide liquidity for payments domestically and abroad (described under Section H.1.a.3. Auction).
Effective July 10, 2020, Croatia joined the ERM II with the central rate of the Croatian kuna at 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna and the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate.

Since April 2016, the kuna has stabilized within a 2% band against the euro. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement. While the exchange rate has increased its flexibility since March 2020, more observations are necessary to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as a stabilized.

Official exchange rate Yes.
The reference exchange rate published daily by the CNB is based on the stipulated turnover and foreign currency exchange rates in the foreign exchange market. The kuna–euro midpoint exchange rate is the arithmetic mean of the weighted buying and selling exchange rates of banks. The reference exchange rate is used by market participants for accounting and statistical purposes and for banks’ transactions with consumers that include currency clause.

Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor Yes.

U.S. dollar

Euro Yes.
The monetary policy framework is based on exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. Effective July 10, 2020, Croatia joined the ERM II with the central rate of the Croatian kuna at 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna and the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate. The CNB intervenes in the foreign exchange market to limit or reduce exchange rate volatility. Previously, there was no predetermined target level or range or fluctuation margin, and the CNB intervened on a discretionary basis to limit or ease exchange rate volatility.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. ADs are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. At end-2019, all 20 banks, one branch of a foreign bank, and 3 housing savings banks are licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange with the public.

In addition to banks, as of December 31, 2019, 1,229 foreign exchange bureaus were licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange. Foreign exchange bureaus may be legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople and may only buy foreign cash and checks denominated in foreign currency and sell foreign cash in exchange for kuna cash and may not engage in foreign exchange transactions with the CNB. They may buy and sell foreign cash only to natural persons – that is, they may not enter into foreign exchange transactions with legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople. Foreign exchange bureaus must sell foreign cash surpluses (difference between foreign cash bought and sold) to the credit institution with which it entered into agreement on currency exchange operations.
Foreign exchange bureaus may not maintain accounts abroad for the purpose of foreign exchange activity and may not make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility No.
Allocation No.
Auction Yes. Effective July 10, 2020, the CNB can conduct ERM II interventions intra-marginal and at the margin to maintain the exchange rate within the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate of 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna. Previously, there was no predetermined target level or range or fluctuation band, and the CNB occasionally intervened at its discretion to ensure the stability of the kuna and to provide liquidity for payments domestically and abroad. Access to foreign exchange auctions is granted only to banks. Three auction models are in use:
(1) a differentiated exchange rate model (multiple price auction) – the amount to be distributed is allocated to bidders from lowest to highest for purchases and from highest to lowest for sales; (2) a uniform exchange rate set by the CNB based on the bidders’ rates; and (3) a fixed exchange rate set by the CNB in advance. The auction is announced to the banks by the Reuters Dealing System, Bloomberg, and telephone. Banks are informed of the success or failure of their bids immediately and aggregate results are published on the CNB website the day of the auction. The minimum bid is €300,000/US$300,000.

Fixing No.
Interbank market Yes. Banks are free to set their bid-ask rates on the interbank market. All banks may participate in the interbank market. Banks quote buying and selling prices continuously, but there is no official market-making agreement. An auctioning process is described under Section H.1.a.3.

Over the counter Yes. There is an OTC foreign exchange market whose participants are monetary financial institutions and other legal entities.
Brokerage No.
Market making No. Banks quote buying and selling prices continuously, but there is no official market-making agreement.
Forward exchange market Yes. The CNB does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.
Official cover of forward operations Yes. The CNB has provided, on occasion, swap facilities at par for banks in a limited forward market.

Controls on capital transactions  Yes.  Capital transactions must be reported to the CNB for statistical purposes and are regulated by the Foreign Exchange Act and CMA. Under the Foreign Exchange Act, capital transactions are not restricted. Nevertheless, payments and collections in the Republic of Croatia in foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents are not allowed in the case of purchase and sale of real estate in the Republic of Croatia, stakes in companies headquartered in the Republic of Croatia, and securities listed or issued in the Republic of Croatia, irrespective of their denomination in kuna or in foreign exchange, except securities issued in the Republic of Croatia which are listed in another country. In other words, according to the Foreign Exchange Act and CMA, nonresidents are not allowed to pay directly in foreign exchange but are allowed to convert foreign exchange to kuna freely for purchases of real estate, company stakes, and securities. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. Provisions of the CMA that have been changed relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments. The CMA was amended in 2015 with the Act on Amendments to CMA (Official Gazette No.18/15) with a view to harmonization with provisions of the Directive 2014/59/EU establishing a framework for the recovery and resolution of credit institutions and investment firms, Directive 2014/51/EU in respect of the powers of the European Supervisory Authority (European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority) and the European Supervisory Authority (European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA)) and to facilitate implementation of the Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 on OTC derivatives, central counterparties, and trade repositories concerning definition of legal basis for services that provides central counterparties, opening of an insolvency procedure of one or more clearing members and risk control mechanisms enabling measuring and management of exposure. The new CMA, which came into force on July 27, 2018, has beside abovementioned regulations implemented Directive 2014/65/EU, Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014, and Regulation (EU) No. 596/2014.

Surrender to the central bank: No.
Surrender to authorized dealers: No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments: Yes.

Investments in capital and money market securities must be reported to the CNB for statistical purposes. Limits apply to investments by pension funds, insurance companies, and investment funds. A valid prospectus must be published before offering a security to the public or admission to a regulated market, except as prescribed by the CMA. The CMA was amended in 2015 with the Act on Amendments to CMA (Official Gazette No. 110/15) with a view to harmonization with provisions of the Directive 2013/50/EU amending Directive 2004/109/EC on the harmonization of transparency requirements in relation to information about issuers whose securities are admitted to trading on a regulated market, Directive 2003/71/EC on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading, and Directive 2007/14/EC laying down detailed rules for the implementation of certain provisions of Directive 2004/109/EC concerning financial reporting of an issuer of securities admitted to trading on the regulated market, administrative sanctions and measures. These regulations are also implemented in Capital Market Law No. 65/18. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.

On capital market securities: Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature: Yes.

Pursuant to approval from the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (Hanfa), the Zagreb Stock Exchange is the market operator of the regulated market and multilateral trading facility. Trading of shares or other securities is prescribed by the CMA and rules of the stock exchange. The stock exchange manages the regulated market, which consists of the regular market, the official market, and the prime market, according to its rules. Securities may be admitted to the regular and official markets in accordance with the provisions of the CMA and Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014. Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2017/568 and the rules of the stock exchange concerning the number of shares available to the public or the number of shares available in the near future that the stock exchange considers sufficient. Securities may be admitted to the prime market, the highest segment of the regulated market, in accordance with the rules of the stock exchange. Admission to trading must be approved by the stock exchange. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.

Purchase locally by nonresidents: No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents: Yes.

Under the CMA, issuers from another EU member and third-country issuers based in an EU member may make a public offering or apply... for admission of securities to a regulated market in Croatia, using a prospectus previously granted by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home member country. The prospectus and its supplements approved by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home EU country are considered valid under the CMA, provided Hanfa, as the relevant authority of the issuer’s host member, and the ESMA were notified. Third-country issuers for which Croatia is the host member may make a public offering or list securities in Croatia only through an authorized investment firm or credit institution. Shares of issuers whose registered office is in a third country that are not listed in either that country or in the country where the majority of the shares are held may be traded on the official market only with the approval of the stock exchange. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. Provisions of the CMA that have been changed relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

Effective February 22, 2020, Act on Amendments to the CMA raises the current threshold for the obligation to publish a prospectus for public offerings of securities from the existing EUR 5,000,000 to EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, with the obligation to prepare an information document on the offer for all offers of securities between EUR 4,000,000 and EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent.

This change represents an administrative relief for issuers (the approval of the prospectus by Hanfa is now required only for offers of securities which exceed the total consideration of EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months) and makes it cheaper to issue securities, and at the same time, investors receive through the information document uniform and relevant information on the basis of which they can make an investment decision.

Purchase abroad by residents  No. Residents may freely purchase securities abroad.

Sale or issue abroad by residents  Yes. If Croatia is the issuer’s home country, Hanfa, at the issuer’s request or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, must notify the relevant EU host member authority and provide (1) a certificate of approval, confirming that the prospectus conforms to the provisions of Directive 2003/71/EC; (2) a copy of the approved prospectus; and (3) a translation of the summary of the prospectus, if required by the CMA, produced by the issuer or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. CMA provisions that have been changed concern regulated sales and issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales and issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

When it comes to “resident foreign issuance,” the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: If it has a prospectus approved in the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.

Bonds or other debt securities

Yes. Bonds may be admitted to both segments (regular and official) of the regulated market in accordance with the provisions of the CMA, Regulation No. 600/2014, and the rules of the stock exchange. The following conditions apply to debt securities: Admission to particular segments of the regulated market for bonds is prescribed by the CMA. The form and content of debt securities submitted for admission to trading on the official market, which is a higher segment of the regulated market, must conform to the appropriate regulations, and the securities must be freely negotiable. However, a stock exchange may treat debt securities that are not fully paid up as freely negotiable as long as there are mechanisms to ensure that their negotiability is not restricted and the trading is transparent, thanks to publication of the appropriate data. If admission to trading on the official market is preceded by a public issue, the first admission to trading on the official market may be made only after the end of the period of subscription and payment in a public issue. This does not apply to continuous and repeated issues of debt securities whose closing date for subscription is not fixed. Application for official listing must be made equally for all debt securities. Admission to trading is approved by the stock exchange. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.

The prospectus and its supplements approved by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home EU member country – if Croatia is not the home member – are considered valid under the provisions of the CMA, provided Hanfa, as the relevant authority of the issuer’s host member country, and ESMA were notified. A third-country issuer for which Croatia is the host member may offer securities in a public offering or list securities in Croatia only through an investment firm or a credit institution commissioned for that purpose. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. Issuers of money market instruments with maturity of more than 12

Under the CMA, issuers of structured products, such as certificates, warrants, covered warrants, etc. (which are considered transferable securities within the meaning of Article 343, Point 2c, of the CMA) from another EU member country and third-country issuers based in an EU member country, may make a public offering or may apply for admission of securities to a regulated market in Croatia using a prospectus previously granted by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home member country. The prospectus and its supplements approved by the relevant authority of the issuer’s home EU member, if Croatia is not the home member, are considered valid pursuant to the provisions of the CMA, provided Hanfa, as the relevant authority, and ESMA were notified. A third-country issuer for which Croatia is the host member state may offer securities in a public offering or list securities in Croatia only through an investment firm or a credit institution commissioned for that purpose. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. Provisions of the CMA that have been changed relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents of shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

Effective February 22, 2020, Act on Amendments to the CMA raises the current threshold for the obligation to publish a prospectus for public offerings of securities from the existing EUR 5,000,000 to EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, with the obligation to prepare an information document on the offer for all offers of securities between EUR 4,000,000 and EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent.

This change represents an administrative relief for issuers (the approval of the prospectus by Hanfa is now required only for offers of securities which exceed the total consideration of EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months) and makes it cheaper to issue securities, and at the same time, investors receive through the information document uniform and relevant information on the basis of which they can make an investment decision.

If Croatia is the issuer’s home country, Hanfa must, at the issuer’s request or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, notify the relevant authority of the host EU member state and provide (1) a certificate of approval of the prospectus, confirming that it conforms to the provisions of Directive 2003/71/EC; (2) a copy of the approved prospectus; and (3) a translation of the summary of the prospectus, if required by the CMA, produced by the issuer or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. Following Croatia’s entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. When it comes to “resident foreign issuance,” the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: if it has a prospectus approved in the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions | Yes. CNB regulations apply.
---|---
Borrowing abroad | No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad | No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) | No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange | No. There are no restrictions imposed to credit institutions on lending locally in foreign exchange. However, banks are required to inform natural persons about the risks of borrowing in foreign exchange without having an income stream in these currencies.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange | No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange | Yes.
Reserve requirements | Yes. Deposits in domestic and foreign currency are subject to a reserve requirement of 12%. The calculation period follows the calendar month. The maintenance period covers the second Wednesday of the month to the day preceding the second Wednesday of the following month. Kuna and foreign exchange components are calculated separately. Seventy-five percent of the calculated foreign exchange component of reserve requirement is included in the calculated kuna component of reserve requirement and allocated in kunas. Banks must allocate a certain percentage of reserve requirements to accounts at the CNB. The percentage for allocating the kuna component of reserve requirements is 70, while that for allocating the foreign exchange component of reserve requirement is 0. At least 2% of the foreign exchange component of the reserve requirement is to be maintained by the average daily balance of funds in bank’s own foreign exchange (euro) settlement accounts in Croatian component of TARGET2 (Payments module (PM) accounts). The remaining portion of the reserve requirement may be met with the average daily balances of liquid claims. The CNB does not remunerate reserve requirement funds.

Liquid asset requirements Yes. Seventeen percent of foreign exchange liabilities (minimum required amount of foreign currency claims) must be covered by short-term foreign exchange assets with maturity of less than three months. In addition to foreign-exchange-denominated instruments, liabilities include foreign-exchange-indexed instruments (liabilities in kunas with a one- or two-way currency clause).

Interest rate controls No.
Credit controls No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents No.
Reserve requirements No.
Liquid asset requirements No.
Interest rate controls No.
Credit controls No.
Investment regulations No.
Abroad by banks No.
In banks by nonresidents No.
Open foreign exchange position limits Yes. Banks must report daily open positions in foreign exchange relative to the bank’s regulatory capital. A prudential capital requirement of 8% of a bank’s own funds is imposed by Article 351 of the CRR.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes.

Provisions specific to institutional investors Yes. Along with the Insurance Act, the following laws apply to institutional investors: (1) the Act on Mandatory Pension Funds and Act on Voluntary Pension Funds and (2) the Act on Open-End Investment Funds with a Public Offering and Alternative Investment Funds Act.

Insurance companies No. In accordance with the Insurance Act, the insurance supervisor was granted powers over the following: approval of ancillary own funds, classification of own funds items, undertaking specific parameters, a full or partial internal model, ancillary own funds of an intermediate insurance holding company, a group internal model, the use of the duration-based equity risk sub-module, the use of the matching adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the volatility adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the transitional measure on the risk-free interest rates, and the use of the transitional measure on technical provisions, to determine the level and scope of group supervision, to identify the group supervisor, and to establish a college of supervisors. In accordance with the Insurance Act the insurance supervisor was granted powers over the following: to decide to deduct any participation, to determine the choice of method to calculate group solvency, to make the determination on equivalence, to permit insurance and reinsurance companies to be subject of determination of the solvency capital requirement of the subsidiary, and to make determination of the equivalence in a third country and the application of transitional measures.

The Insurance Act, which came into force in 2016, transposed provisions of the solvency regime, including rules of capital requirement, technical provisions, quantitative and qualitative requirements, reporting and public disclosure, transparency and system of governance of Directive 2009/138/EC (Solvency II). According to the Croatian Insurance Act, investment in particular categories of assets is not required and therefore provisions on limits are not required any longer. The assets held to cover the technical provisions related to those risks are not required to be localized within the Community or in any particular Member States. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to all their assets in accordance with the Insurance Act, Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2015/35, and other regulations of the European Commission which determine qualitative requirements for identification, measurement, monitoring, and control and management of the investment risks, especially taking into account the prudent person principle. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to invest only in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. All assets, in particular those covering the Minimum Capital Requirement and the Solvency Capital Requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and maintain the localization of those assets such as to ensure their availability. Insurance company should invest in derivative instruments insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management. Investment and assets, which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market, should be kept to prudent levels. Assets should be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance companies to excessive risk concentration. Assets held to cover the technical provisions should also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets should be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity which manages their asset portfolio, should ensure that the investment is made in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

No. According to the Croatian Insurance Act assets should be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities.

Pension funds

Yes. Mandatory pension funds are regulated by the Act on Mandatory Pension Funds; voluntary pension funds are regulated by the Act on Voluntary Pension Funds.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes. The Act on Mandatory Pension Funds specifies three categories of mandatory pension funds (A, B, and C) and establishes limits on investments for each category. Mandatory pension fund assets may be invested as follows: (1) At least 30% A, 50% B, and 70% C of the fund’s net asset value (NAV) must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (2) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (3) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (4) Up to 50% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (5) Effective January 1, 2019, up to 65% A and 40% B of the fund’s NAV (previously 55% A, 35% B, and 10% C) may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). By the amendments to the law fund assets can be invested in infrastructure. projects and startups. (6) Up to 30% A, 30% B and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (7) Up to 15% A and 10% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of open-end alternative investment funds or shares of closed-end alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (8) Up to 20% A, 20% B, and 20% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (9) Up to 10% A, 5% B, and 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in the cash held on the business account of the pension fund. (10) Effective January 1, 2019, up to 55% A, 35% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable equity and/or debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia. Up to 10% C of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). (11) Effective January 1, 2019, up to 0.2% A and 0.1% B of the fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable equity securities and/or shares offered through regulated capital raising systems accepted by the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

Voluntary pension fund’s assets may be invested as follows: (1) No more than 10% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuing entity. If the value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer in which the fund is invested exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV, but with following exceptions: (a) Investments in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another EU member, units of local and regional self-government of an EU member, OECD member, or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members may be without limitations, provided the fund’s prospectus and promotional materials clearly indicate country members, units of local and regional self-government or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members in whose securities and money market instruments a fund may invest more than 35% of the fund’s NAV; (b) no more than 25% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions headquartered in Croatia or another EU member; (c) no more than 10% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments of issuers of related companies; (2) up to 5% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution whose head office is in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (3) the total value of investment in transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer, the value of deposits placed with that person, and exposures to OTC financial derivatives arranged with that person may not exceed 15% of the fund’s NAV; (4) effective January 1, 2019, up to 30% of the fund’s NAV (previously 10%) may be invested in units or shares of UCITS funds authorized in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18); and (5) effective January 1, 2019, up to 15% of the fund’s NAV (previously 5%) may be invested in units or shares of an alternative investment fund according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

If the value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer in which the fund is invested exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV, but with following exceptions: (a) Investments in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another EU member, units of local and regional self-government of an EU member, OECD member, or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members may be without limitations, provided the fund’s prospectus and promotional materials clearly indicate country members, units of local and regional self-government or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members may be without limitations, provided the fund’s prospectus and promotional materials clearly indicate country members, units of local and regional self-government or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members in whose securities and money market instruments a fund may invest more than 35% of the fund’s NAV; (b) no more than 25% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions headquartered in Croatia or another EU member; (c) no more than 10% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments of issuers of related companies; (2) up to 5% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution whose head office is in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (3) the total value of investment in transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer, the value of deposits placed with that person, and exposures to OTC financial derivatives arranged with that person may not exceed 15% of the fund’s NAV; (4) effective January 1, 2019, up to 30% of the fund’s NAV (previously 10%) may be invested in units or shares of UCITS funds authorized in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18); and (5) effective January 1, 2019, up to 15% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of an alternative investment fund according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition
Yes.

Investment of a pension fund’s assets must take into account the liability maturity of the fund. Invested assets must be adjusted for valuation changes resulting from risks and possible losses caused by changes in interest or exchange rates or by other capital risks. A pension fund’s assets must be invested in a way that is aligned with the currency of liabilities of the fund (40% A, 60% B, and 90% C of the mandatory pension fund’s NAV and 70% of the voluntary pension fund’s NAV – applicable only to IORP).

Investment firms and collective investment funds
Yes.

Open-end investment funds with a public offering are regulated by the Act on Open-End Investment Funds with a Public Offering; alternative investment funds are regulated by the Alternative...
Investment Funds Act. Investment firms’ investments are not restricted in the context of providing investment services to clients in accordance with the applicable regulations. Investment firms do have additional capital requirements for trade exposures if the total investment exceeds 25% of its eligible capital and limits to large exposures, which may not exceed 25% of its eligible capital to a client or group of connected clients according to Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on Prudential Requirements for Credit Institutions and Investment Firms.

| Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents | Yes. |

Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund’s assets are subject to the following limits:

1. Up to 10% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund’s NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund’s NAV;

2. up to 20% of the fund’s NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account;

3. exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund’s NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa);

4. limits of 40% of the fund’s NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa);

5. notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (d) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members; (e) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund’s NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions with a registered office in the Republic of Croatia or in another Member State, which are, pursuant to a separate law, subject to a special public oversight for the purpose of protection of investors in these bonds. Funds raised by the issue of such bonds must be invested, pursuant to the separate law, in assets which will, until the time of bonds’ maturity, allow for settling of liabilities arising from the bonds and which will, in the case of the issuer’s default, primarily be used for redeeming the principal and accrued interest attaching to these bonds. If more than 5% of the fund’s NAV is invested in such bonds of any single issuer, total value of such investments, accounting for more than 5% of the fund’s NAV, may not exceed 80% of the fund’s NAV; (f) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund’s assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1 and Article 258, up to 20% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS’ investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund’s NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund’s NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund’s assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund’s NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund’s NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund’s NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund is invested are not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCITS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Conventional peg Yes.
  - The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional pegged arrangement. Official buying and selling rates for certain other currencies are set daily on the basis of rates of the US dollar abroad. The current peg was established in a national decree on December 24, 1971.
The guilder is pegged to the US dollar, the intervention currency, at NA f. 1.79 per US dollar. The official selling rate is NA f. 1.82 per US dollar. This rate includes a 1% license fee on purchases of foreign exchange. Customs applies a rate of 1.82, and a rate of 1.79 is used for valuation. The council of ministers is authorized to make changes to the exchange rate arrangement.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the US dollar. Official reserves (excluding gold) must be sufficient to cover three months of goods and services imports.

Exchange tax No. There is no exchange tax, but a license fee of 1% applies to all transfers to nonresidents.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Ten local banks and three money transfer companies have been licensed by the Central Bank of Curaçao and Sint Maarten (CBCS) to deal in foreign exchange with the public. For transactions exceeding NA f. 25,000, the banks may determine the buying and selling rates themselves and for transactions up to NA f. 25,000, the official rates published by the CBCS have to be used. The banks can freely determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to operate in Curaçao and Sint Maarten, conditioned on the terms of the license. However, no foreign exchange bureau is active yet. Foreign exchange bureaus cannot make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB; they are required to have a local or foreign bank account. Foreign bank accounts must be established in a jurisdiction with membership of the FATF or CFATF and sufficiently comply with their recommendations. The types of transactions they can affect are limited to currency exchange services. Foreign currency payments and transfers are done by banks and money transfer companies. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to determine freely their bid/ask spread. In accordance with Article 9 sub 8 of the National Ordinance on the Central Bank, the CBCS fixes the exchange rates for foreign exchange transactions.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The CBCS buys and sells US dollars and other officially published currencies from/to foreign exchange banks, the government, and other parties. Other parties are institutions with accounts at the CBCS (for example, the public pension fund and the Social Security Bank). The buying and selling rates of US dollars are NA f. 1.7895/1.7905 for foreign exchange banks, NA f. 1.78/1.8018 for the... government, and NA f. 1.78/1.82 for other parties.

In accordance with the relevant regulations of the Council of the EU and solely for the preservation of national or international security, Cyprus maintains restrictive measures (sanctions) related to Afghanistan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Egypt, Guinea (Conakry), Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran (as amended), Iraq, Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (as amended), Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Myanmar, Russia, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, terrorist groups (foreign terrorist organizations, including Al-Qaida and ISIL (Da’esh)), Tunisia, Ukraine, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), and Zimbabwe.

Other security restrictions | Yes. |

On July 17, 2018, restrictions on Maldives entered into force. Effective June 18, 2019, these restrictions were repealed by Council Regulation (EU) 2019/985, which repealed Council Regulation (EU) 2018/1001 of July 16, 2018. Note: Regulation (EU) 2018/1001 provided for the imposition of measures (including freezing of funds and economic resources) against persons, entities, or bodies that were to be listed in Annex I of the same Regulation; however, no persons, entities, or bodies were included in Annex I.

On 16 October 2018, restrictive measures against the proliferation and use of chemical weapons entered into force, pursuant to Regulation (EU) 2018/1542. These measures are in line with UNSC Resolutions 1540(2004) 2118 (2013), 2209 (2015), 2235 (2015), and 2325 (2016). The measures include freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities or bodies that are listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) 2018/1542 after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for, providing support for, or being otherwise involved in the manufacturing, acquiring, possessing, developing, transporting, stockpiling, transferring, using or preparing for the use of chemical weapons. Effective January 21, 2019, nine natural persons and one legal person, entity, or body were listed in Annex I.

On May 18, 2019, Regulation (EU) 2019/796 entered into force, introducing EU sanctions to deter and respond to cyberattacks constituting an external threat to the EU or to EU countries, including cyberattacks against non-EU countries or international organizations where action is deemed necessary to achieve EU’s common foreign and security policy objectives. Sanctions include freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities or bodies that are responsible for cyberattacks or attempted cyberattacks, or provide support for such attacks, or are otherwise involved, as identified by the Council of the EU and listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) 2019/796. Effective July 30, 2020, six natural persons and three legal persons, entities, or bodies were listed in Annex I.

On October 16, 2019, restrictions concerning the situation in Nicaragua entered into force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) 2019/1716: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for serious human rights violations or repression of civil society or democratic opposition; or undermining democracy and the rule of law in Nicaragua. Effective May 4, 2020, six natural persons were listed in Annex I.

On November 13, 2019, restrictions concerning Turkey’s unauthorized drilling activities in the Eastern Mediterranean entered into force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) 2019/1890 in view of Turkey’s unauthorized drilling activities: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for, involved in, or supporting drilling activities that have not been authorized by the Republic of Cyprus, within its territorial sea or in its exclusive economic zone or on its continental shelf. Effective February 27, 2020, two natural persons were listed in Annex I.

- Floating
Free floating Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Cyprus participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at 14:15 Central European Time. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rates against the euro are the averages of the buying and selling rates.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty of the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Union with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union.” These include “sustainable development,” and “full employment,” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Authorized credit institutions may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients. Institutions that have been authorized by the CBC to carry on the business of a credit institution may engage in foreign exchange dealing with the public, and no separate license is required for this activity. As of December 31, 2019, 30 credit institutions were authorized to operate in Cyprus. Foreign exchange bureaus are allowed to operate in Cyprus subject to prior CBC approval, in accordance with the provisions of the CBC Bureaux de Change Directive of 2014. As of December 31, 2019, four foreign exchange bureaus were authorized to operate in Cyprus. Other institutions making currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients are subject to licensing by the CBC on the basis of the Provision and Use of Payment Services and Access to Payment Systems Laws, 2018–2019.
Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. Institutions that have been authorized by the CBC to carry on the business of a credit institution may participate in the foreign exchange market.

There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants.

Over the counter Yes. The foreign exchange market operates over the counter.

Brokerage No.

Market making No.

Forward exchange market Yes. Authorized credit institutions may trade in the forward market at rates freely negotiated with their customers. The CBC participates in the forward exchange market when managing its foreign exchange reserves and when acting as a fiscal agent of the government. These operations are mainly conducted with the CBC’s international counterparties.

<td>No. In accordance with the EU Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be detained by administrative order. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders. Under national law, individuals traveling within the EU who enter or leave Cyprus must also declare banknotes and gold equal to or in excess of €10,000 or its equivalent. Failure to declare the banknotes and/or gold is punishable by a fine.</td>

Bank loans in euro and foreign currency are subject to the prudential liquidity requirements prescribed by the CBC, Regulation (EU) No. 2015/61 with regard to liquidity coverage requirement, or the ECB in the context of the Single Supervisory Mechanism (SSM). No other controls apply.

Inward direct investment from EU member countries is unrestricted. Direct investment from non-EU countries is also free from restrictions in most economic sectors. However, there are restrictions (ceilings and/or discriminatory licensing requirements) in the participation of non-EU natural or legal persons in enterprises engaged in the following activities: radio and television broadcasting, tertiary education institutions other than universities, construction, travel agencies, issue or distribution of newspapers and magazines, and ownership of merchant ships and fishing vessels, as well as on the acquisition of real estate associated with direct investment. The acquisition of 10% or more of a bank’s share capital by any resident or nonresident natural or legal entity, either alone or with associates, is subject to approval in accordance with the Business of Credit Institutions Laws and EU Regulation No. 1024/2013. Moreover, approval is required for additional acquisitions that increase control up to or exceeding 20%, 30%, and 50% or to the extent that the bank would become the acquirer’s subsidiary.

Credit institutions may grant loans to residents in foreign currency, subject to the prudential liquidity requirements. These are subject to liquid asset and capital requirements prescribed for prudential reasons.

In accordance with ECB regulations, the minimum reserve ratio on deposit liabilities of credit institutions is 1% for deposits in both domestic and foreign currency.

There is a 100% liquidity coverage requirement.

Effective March 12, 2020, the ECB Banking Supervision allowed banks under its direct supervision (significant institutions) to operate temporarily (until further notice) below the 100% liquidity coverage ratio. Similarly, the CBC allowed banks under its supervision (less significant institutions) to operate temporarily below the 100% liquidity coverage ratio, effective March 18, 2020.

Credit institutions may invest directly abroad (for example, establishment of a subsidiary or branch abroad), subject to approval by the CBC, or the ECB in the context of the SSM. Investments over certain thresholds are subject to capital requirements according to EU Regulation No. 575/2013.

The acquisition of 10% or more of a credit institution’s share capital by any resident or nonresident natural or legal person, either alone or with associates, is subject to approval in accordance with the Business of Credit Institutions Law and EU Regulation No. 1024/2013. Moreover, approval is required for additional acquisitions that increase control up to or exceeding 20%, 30%, and 50% or to the extent that the credit institutions would become the acquirer’s subsidiary.

The overall net open/uncovered overnight (intraday) position in all foreign currency may not exceed 6% of a credit institution’s capital base, and its overall net foreign exchange intraday exposure may not exceed 8% of its capital base. The net open/uncovered overnight (intraday) position in any one foreign currency may not exceed 3% (5% for intraday) of the credit institution’s capital base. These limits do not distinguish between resident and nonresident assets and liabilities. Open foreign exchange positions are also subject to prudential own funds requirements in accordance with EU Regulation No. 575/2013.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of koruna is solely determined by supply and demand in the interbank foreign exchange market, in which the Czech National Bank (CNB) might participate. Data on CNB’s foreign exchange operations are published on the CNB’s web page with a monthly frequency. However, the CNB is legally allowed to conduct foreign exchange interventions to influence the koruna exchange rate and moderate excessive exchange rate volatility in exceptional situations. Also, the CNB might in the future renew its program of sales of a part of the CNB’s investment income on international reserves. Because the CNB has not intervened since April 2017, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to free floating from floating, effective April 3, 2017.

The CNB declares foreign exchange market rates on the basis of its monitoring the movement of currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market. The CNB publishes daily rates for 33 currencies against the koruna for customs and accounting purposes. The published exchange rates correspond to rates for individual currencies on the foreign exchange market at 2:15 p.m. local time. Under the Act on Accounting and other legal norms, the exchange rates are used for nontrading purposes (that is, for valuing assets and liabilities, tax and customs proceedings, etc.).

The CNB conducts its monetary policy within inflation-targeting framework as from 1998.

The target is set by the CNB’s Board, which can adjust all features of the target (targeted index, targeted level of inflation, tolerance band). All Board decisions are taken by majority vote.

Commercial banks and bureaux de change set their own exchange rates.

There are two types of nonbank foreign exchange institutions in the Czech Republic: (1) foreign exchange institutions authorized only for cash transactions (bureau-de-change activity—952 registration holders as of December 31, 2019) and (2) noncash foreign exchange institutions—135 as of December 31, 2019. Under the national legislation (Act No. 370/2017 Coll. on Payments) implementing the Payment Services Directive 2 (No. 2015/2366/EC, PSD 2), noncash spot currency exchange transactions are permitted only within the framework of payment transactions, and a payment institution license or a small payment institution registration (as defined in Article 32 of the PSD) is required. Therefore, all noncash foreign exchange institutions must have a new payment institution license or a small payment institution registration. There were 100 small payment institutions and 24 payment institutions as of December 31, 2019 (not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though). Under Directive No. 2009/110/EC on the taking up, pursuit, and prudential supervision of the business of electronic money institutions (EMD), electronic money institutions and small electronic money institutions may carry out this activity, provided they are authorized to provide payment services. There were 11 such small electronic money institutions as of December 31, 2019. (Not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though.) The CNB issues these licenses. Foreign cash foreign exchange bureaus must be licensed. The licensing requirements for foreign entities are similar to those for Czech entities. Payment institutions in an EU member state may operate in the Czech Republic under the European passport regime under Article 28 of the PSD 2. The operation of cash foreign exchange bureaus is governed by Act No. 277/2013 Coll. on Foreign Exchange Activities. This law sets out the reporting requirements to the CNB, registration of business premises, and information for customers about exchange rates and fees and requirements. Cash foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad and may purchase and sell only banknotes, coins, and checks. They may not make payments on behalf of their clients. Noncash foreign exchange operations are governed by the Payments Act implementing the PSD 2 and the EMD, EC delegated, and implementing regulations and decrees of the CNB. Foreign exchange services within the scope of Article 18(1)a of the PSD 2, which also apply to electronic money institutions under Article 3 of the EMD, may be provided in addition to the payment services listed in the annex to the PSD 2, including transfers on behalf of clients. Under Article 10 of the PSD 2 and Article 22 of the Payments Act, noncash foreign exchange institutions may have accounts in credit institutions in an EU member country or a third country with banking supervision similar to that of the CNB. The same rules apply to electronic money institutions under Article 80 of the Payments Act. All institutions must comply with measures for the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing under the Anti-Money-Laundering Directive (No. 2015/849) and implementing Czech legislation (Act No. 253/2008 Coll.). Under Act No. 136/2011 Coll., on the circulation of banknotes and coins, as amended, employees handling foreign currency of cash and noncash foreign exchange institutions must complete a CNB course on the identification of counterfeit banknotes and coins.

On October 18, 2016, the Foreign Exchange Act No. 219/1995 Coll. was repealed by Act No 323/2016 Coll. Act No. 323/2016 Coll. does not replace the Foreign Exchange Act as most foreign exchange activities have been already regulated by Foreign Exchange Activities Act No. 277/2013 Coll. and the remaining provisions by the Crisis Management Act No. 240/2000 Coll. The Czech government is authorized to apply restrictions during the state of emergency only. To resolve the state of crisis, the Czech government must discuss with the CNB measures that are within the scope of the activity of the above bank. Certain measures are in effect to prevent money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 of the European Parliament and the Council of October 26, 2005, on controls of cash entering or leaving the EU, cash controls have been implemented by National Act No. 253/2008 Coll. on Selected Measures against Legitimization of Proceeds of Crime and Financing of Terrorism in the Czech Republic. Cash controls are based on a mandatory declaration system. Natural persons must declare to the customs authorities in writing imports and exports of currency of the Czech Republic or another country in the amount of €10,000 or more on entry into the Czech Republic from a non-EU third country and on exit to any such territory. The customs authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to the financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler does not make a declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the national law, the customs authorities have the right to check natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. Cash may be confiscated in the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation. The national law allows penalties up to CZK 10 million or a forfeiture of the items for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, the customs authorities may exchange information with the appropriate authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. Because the Czech Republic has no external borders with third countries, cash controls are applied only at international airports and in respect to the international post. The Czech Republic does not apply cash controls to cross-border movements of cash within the EU. Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation harmonizes the system only for the EU’s external borders.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Held domestically Yes.

Approval required No.

Held abroad Yes.

At the request of the CNB, legal entities with branches in the Czech Republic and natural persons with permanent residence in the Czech Republic must report accounts and balances on accounts or other forms of deposit abroad, including money entrusted for deposit. Foreign legal entities and natural persons may be asked to fulfill this requirement for their business in the Czech Republic. Prudential limits apply to pension companies (that administer third pillar transformed and participation funds) and other institutions. Controls apply to transformed fund deposits in nonresident institutions by the pension companies unless the nonresident institution is a bank with a registered office in the Czech Republic, a branch of a foreign bank in the Czech Republic, or a bank with a registered office in an OECD member. Pension companies may invest assets in pension/participation funds (third pillar) in deposits that are freely redeemable or time deposits whose maturity does not exceed two years of a bank headquartered in the Czech Republic, a foreign bank headquartered in another EU member, or a bank headquartered in another foreign country whose prudential rules the CNB considers equivalent to those of the EU. The Solvency II regulatory regime was introduced September 23, 2016, and second pillar pension funds were abolished January 1, 2016, and liquidated by December 31, 2017.

Approval required No.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad Yes.

At the request of the CNB, legal entities with branches in the Czech Republic and natural persons with permanent residence in the Czech Republic must report accounts and balances on accounts or other forms of deposit abroad, including money entrusted for deposit. Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Act No. 21/1992 Coll. on Banking was amended to implement Basel III prudential requirements, including those of the capital requirements regulation (CRR; Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013) and the capital requirements directive (CRD IV; Directive No. 2013/36/EU). Decree No. 163/2014 Coll. on the activity of banks, credit unions, and investment firms fully implements CRR and CRD IV regulatory requirements. Credit institutions are not subject to foreign exchange position limits. However, if the absolute value of a credit institution’s net foreign exchange position in any foreign currency or in CZK, as per Article 352 of the CRR, exceeds 15% of its capital on an individual basis or its total net foreign exchange position, as per Article 352 of the CRR, exceeds 20% of its capital on an individual basis, the CNB must be notified immediately.

On resident assets and liabilities

Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities: Yes.

Provisions specific to institutional investors: Yes.

Insurance companies: No.

In the Czech Republic, investments of insurance and reinsurance companies are regulated by the Insurance Act (Act No. 277/2009 Coll.). The Solvency II Directive was transposed into the Insurance Act September 23, 2016. Since then, rules for investments of insurers and reinsurers have not changed. The rules are based on the prudent person principle. There are no legal quantitative limits; nevertheless, insurance and reinsurance companies must follow stipulated principles, for example:

(1) Investments are only possible in assets whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control and report, and take them into account appropriately in the assessment of its overall needs. All assets must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole.

(2) The assets intended to settle liabilities must be invested in a manner adequate to the nature and duration of insurance/reinsurance obligations and in the best interests of all policyholders and beneficiaries.

(3) Investments must be diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive dependence on a particular asset, issuer, or group of persons or geographical area and to avoid excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole.

Moreover, the relevant insurance/reinsurance company has to set the rules for its investments according to above-mentioned principles.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents: No.

No legal quantitative limits on securities issued by nonresidents are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad: No.

No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held abroad are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally: No.

No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held locally are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition: No.

In terms of currency matching, no legal quantitative rules on assets/liabilities composition are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.

Pension funds: Yes.

In the Czech Republic, the pension companies and pension funds are regulated by the Supplementary Pension Savings Act No. 427/2011 Coll., also known as third pillars of the National Pension Scheme. Pension funds and pension companies are supervised by the CNB, and the law prescribes their prudential rules on eligible assets, including investment limits. These limits vary, depending on the kind of fund and its strategy. There is only a limited prescribed strategy for third pillar funds, except for the conservative plan, which must comply with the portfolio composition and investment limits. Transformed pension funds (third pillar): In 2013, pension funds were changed from self-management to transformed pension plans managed by pension companies, and clients’ and shareholders’ assets are now separate. There is now a guarantee of zero plus yields for which the pension company must hold sufficient funds (or decrease its own funds). General robust prudential rules apply to the management of pension funds. The law prescribes eligible assets and investment limits—for example, 10% in instruments issued by the same entity, except government bonds; 10% in real estate; and 50%... in assets in the currency of liabilities to beneficiaries and use of derivatives only for hedging. Pension funds and pension companies are authorized and supervised by the CNB under Act No. 42/1994 Coll. on State-Contributory Supplementary Pension Insurance Act. Supplementary pension savings (third pillar): In 2013, the law adopted in 2011 established a new third pillar based on UCITS principles. Pension funds are managed by a pension company authorized and supervised by the CNB under UCITS-like prudential rules. Pension savings are in individual pension plans that allow investment in a broader array of participation funds (type of common fund). Employers are encouraged by tax law to contribute. Savings are supported by a direct government contribution. The conservative fund for the participation pension funds (third pillar) is the only mandatory fund. Similarly to the UCITS rules, the law prescribes eligible assets. The investments may consist only of transferable securities; risk management is required, and techniques and instruments for efficient portfolio management are allowed. The conservative plan (third pillar) may invest only in bonds, money market instruments, money market funds, and deposits. Investment limits are 30% for private bonds and money market instruments. Limits for a single issuer are 5%–100% for public bonds with a qualified rating. Other plans must invest in UCITS-like transferable securities. Limits for collective investment schemes are 5%–35%. IORP—second pillar: Domestic IORP are prohibited. EU-IORP are permitted if the contributing employer is in the Czech Republic.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents
Yes.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad
No.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally
No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition
Yes.

At least 50% of assets must be denominating in the currency of pension fund liabilities to beneficiaries for plans in the transitional-transformed pension fund. Only assets in the conservative fund for supplementary pension savings (third pillar) must be fully hedged against currency risk.

Investment firms and collective investment funds
Yes.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents
Yes.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad
No.

For transitional-transformed pension funds, bonds and other debt securities are not allowed unless they are issued by governments and CBs of OECD members; guaranteed by such governments; or issued by the EIB, EBRD, or IBRD (Article 33 of the Act on Pension Funds). For supplementary pension savings (third pillar), up to 100% may be in bonds and money market instruments issued by governments and CBs of OECD members with a qualified rating. Limits for other single issuers are 5%–20%. The limit for other financial instruments is 30% (conservative fund).

Safekeeping of assets is provided by depository banks located in the Czech Republic; deposits abroad are allowed only under an agreement with the depository bank.

General limits according to the UCITS IV Directive are applicable—some qualitative and quantitative limits on non-EU instruments.

Because the Czech National Bank has not intervened since April 2017, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to free floating from floating, effective April 3, 2017. The change is reflected as of January 1, 2019, corresponding to the first day of the period covered in this year’s Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.

The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg. The formal framework for the Danish fixed exchange rate policy is the ERM II. Denmark participates in the ERM II with a central rate of DKr 746.038 per €100. The central rate is a conversion of the central rate vis-à-vis the deutsche mark before the third stage of the EMU and was last adjusted in January 1987. Denmark has entered into an agreement with the ECB and the euro area member countries on a narrower fluctuation band of ±2.25%. In recent years, the Danmarks Nationalbank (DN) has consistently maintained a stable krone within less than 1% of the central rate. The DN’s net purchase or sale of foreign currency during a month is published at 4:00 p.m. on the second working day of the following month in the Foreign Exchange and Liquidity press release. The agreement on Denmark’s fixed... exchange rate policy vis-à-vis the euro within a narrow fluctuation band of ±2.25% around the central rate in ERM II was concluded at an informal meeting of the Economic and Financial Affairs Council (ECOFIN Council) of September 25–27, 1998, in Vienna, between the ministers of economy and finance and the CB governors of the EU member countries.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The DN is responsible for monetary policy; exchange rate policy is set by the Danish government in consultation with the DN. Section 2 (3) of the Danish Act on Foreign Exchange (Consolidated Act No. 279, April 11, 1988) states, “Guidelines for the foreign-exchange policy to be conducted while the Act is in force shall be laid down after negotiation between DN and the Royal Bank Commissioner.” The Royal Bank commissioner is the formal link between the government and the DN. The minister for business and growth is the Royal Bank commissioner. The DN publishes reference exchange rates (fixed by the DN against kroner).

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or: No.
In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Natural persons entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the competent authorities of the member state through which they enter or leave the EU. This measure is included in the Danish Customs Act, Section 10a(2) which also applies to cross-border transportation from Denmark to another EU member state and from another EU member state to Denmark and to legal and natural persons sending or receiving amounts of cash with a value of more than €10,000. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the person makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member states to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member state may exchange information with authorities in other member states. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member state to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purpose of the regulation; the regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.
than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the Danish customs and tax administration.

Natural persons entering or leaving Denmark and carrying amounts of cash with a value of more than €10,000 and legal and natural persons receiving or sending amounts of cash with a value of more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the Danish customs and tax administration.

Controls apply to (1) registration under the Danish flag of vessels owned by foreign entities. Foreign owners (EU/EEA and non-EU/EEA) of commercial vessels need to maintain and prove that economic activity in relation to the vessel is carried out in or from Denmark and appoint a contact for control and similar purposes that may be sued on behalf of the owner or the ship owner. Foreign owners (EU/EEA and non-EU/EEA) of fishing vessels and pleasure crafts: The vessel must be effectively administered, controlled, and directed from Denmark and owners fulfill an establishment requirement. For non-EU/EEA entities, the establishment requirement may be fulfilled by setting up a subsidiary, branch, or agency in Denmark. For EU/EEA entities, the requirement may also be fulfilled merely by appointing an entity in Denmark that may be contacted for control and similar purposes that may be sued on behalf of the owner or the ship owner; (2) ownership by non-EU residents of one-third or more of a business engaged in commercial fishing; (3) airlines established in the country that must be majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or nationals of EU countries, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement; (4) investment in accounting services by non-EU residents through indirect control—see the approval procedure in the Danish Act on Approved Auditors and Audit Firms, Section 13(2)—and in legal services by nonresidents; and (5) the extent that under EU Directive 2009/65/EF, a depository of a UCITS must either have its registered office in the...

Solvency II implies a principle of prudent person instead of the former quantitative regulation. Insurance companies and pension funds must invest all their assets in accordance with the prudent person principle but there are no specific quantitative limits. Institutions for occupational retirement provision are now subject to the principle of prudent person (from the Institutions for Occupational Retirement Provision (IORP) II directive). One quantitative restriction still exists in relation to maximum exposure toward the company, which has set up the institution (sponsor). Institutions for occupational retirement provision are not included as insurance companies nor as pension funds.

Currency board

Yes. Djibouti’s monetary system is based on a currency board. The Djibouti franc has been pegged to the US dollar since 1949, but the legislation establishing the currency board and determining the fixed exchange rate is Law No. 118/AN/11/6ème L of January 22, 2011. The Central Bank of Djibouti (BCD) guarantees and provides for unlimited conversion to US dollars of banknotes and coins used as legal tender in Djibouti. The full issuance of Djibouti francs is covered by foreign exchange reserves. The National Assembly of Djibouti has the authority to make decisions regarding changes in the exchange rate arrangement.

Foreign exchange market Yes. The official buying and selling rates for currencies other than the US dollar are set by local banks and money changers, based on cross-rates for the US dollar in international markets. Banks may freely set quotes and commissions in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Institutions that deal in foreign exchange with the public are authorized by the BCD. As of December 31, 2019, 12 credit institutions and 20 foreign exchange bureaus operating in Djibouti were authorized.

Foreign exchange bureaus may not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCD but may maintain accounts abroad. The operations of licensed foreign exchange bureaus are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes.

Transfer bureaus (hawalas) may engage in exchange operations and make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The BCD stands ready to exchange US dollars for Djibouti francs at the fixed exchange rate of DF 177.721 per US dollar without a margin or commission. The BCD exchanges unlimited amounts of US dollars with the treasury and banks at the fixed exchange rate through transfers between accounts held abroad. Foreign exchange bureaus handle the retail end of this business with large overseas transfers.

Yes.

A Paris Club agreement was reached in October 2008, and bilateral payments agreements have been signed with two creditors; one is pending signature. The authorities are requesting equivalent treatment of their arrears to Paris Club and non-Paris Club official creditors.

Djibouti had arrears to the Islamic Republic of Iran (US$4.7 million) and India (US$3.8 million). Said arrears are being renegotiated on a bilateral basis. There are also arrears to China (US$3.1 million), the Abu Dhabi Fund (US$3.9 million), and the Inter-American Development Bank amounting to US$0.9 million. The rest of the stock of arrears (US$1.99 million) is related to unpaid past due amounts to the African Development Bank, the European Investment Bank, Turkey, the Arab Fund for Economic and Social Development, and the International Fund for Agricultural Development.

Status of direct external debt arrears
The stock of the government’s external debt arrears (not including Iran, Exim Bank India, the Saudi Fund for Development, and Exim Bank China) at June 30, 2020, amounted to DJF 1,127 million, comprised of unpaid maturities with Exim Bank China (drinking water supply), Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), African Development Bank (AfDB), the EIB, and the IDB. A debt rescheduling arrangement is still pending for payments in arrears with Iran amounting to DJF 837 million. The stock of debt arrears with the Saudi Fund for Development and Exim Bank China amounts to 9,918 million and is subject to renegotiation with the relevant donors.

Exim Bank India debts, amounting to DJF 2,818 billion, are still pending settlement, awaiting the conclusion of an agreement for the sale of the cement plant.

Status of guaranteed external debt arrears
The stock of external debt arrears guaranteed by the State as of June 30, 2020, amounted to DF 3,857 billion. The arrears of the Société Immobilière de Djibouti (SID) and the Port of Djibouti are respectively DF 1,281 billion (33%) and FD 1,1160 billion (30%). The remaining stock of external debt arrears amounting to DF 1,415 billion is held by the FDED (a public financial institution) (21.4%), ONEAD (the water board of Djibouti) (7.02%), and EDD (the electricity board of Djibouti) (7.2%).

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. Most rates are ad valorem. Dominica applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET. The maximum tariffs on most CARICOM agricultural and nonagricultural products are 40% and 20%, respectively. Lower rates apply to machinery (0% to 15%) and some essential foodstuffs (0% to 15%), whereas higher rates apply to import-substituting domestic appliances (20%–35%) and motor vehicles (10%–40%). Specific taxes are applied to some goods. These include an excise tax levied on (1) motor vehicles, (2) alcohol, (3) petroleum products, and (4) tobacco and tobacco substitutes at the rates set out in the Excise Tax Regulations (SRO 5) of 2006. Certain imports are exempt. A VAT is levied, and legislation designates certain zero-rated items and exempt imports. Imports are subject to a 1.5% environmental surcharge in addition to the 3% customs service charge. An environmental surcharge of ECS$3,000 is payable on vehicles more than five years old. Vehicles less than five years old are subject to a rate of 1.5%, but a concessionary rate of 1% is extended to returning residents.

Stabilized arrangement

Crawling peg

Crawl-like arrangement
Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed float. The Central Bank of the Dominican Republic (CBDR) aims to increase gradually the flexibility of the exchange rate alongside the implementation of the inflation-targeting framework formally adopted in 2012. The CBDR does not pursue a particular fixed exchange rate level, but rather seeks to manage a pathway around its long-term equilibrium value, consistent with the fundamentals of the Dominican Republic economy and its inflation target. The CBDR intervenes in the foreign exchange market to avoid instances of excessive exchange rate.
volatility that might affect the inflation target given that the exchange rate pass-through remains high. Since February 2010, the peso has followed a depreciating trend against the US dollar within a margin of less than 2%. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

The CBDR publishes data on foreign exchange sales and purchases in the foreign exchange market by different institutional actors (financial intermediaries and remittance/foreign exchange agents). The data are published on a gross (all transactions) basis and a net basis (excluding interbank operations). The CBDR does not disclose data on its volume of foreign exchange transactions with financial intermediaries.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands

Other managed arrangement

Floating

Free floating

Official exchange rate Yes. The reference exchange rate used by the CBDR for its operations is set as the weighted average of daily exchange rates reported by authorized exchange intermediaries. The reference rate is used for accounting, legal, and reporting purposes.

Central Bank Yes.

Monetary Policy Committee

Central Bank Board Yes.

Other

Government and Central Bank

Inflation target Yes.

Target number Yes.

Point target
Target with tolerance band  Yes. The inflation target has been set as 4% ± 1% since 2015.

Band/Range

Target measure  Yes.

CPI  Yes. The target is set on the basis of the year-on-year (y-o-y) change in the CPI, and it is expressed in terms of the average annual rate of inflation.

Core inflation

Target horizon  Yes. The horizon over which the inflation target must be met is two years (24 months).

Operating target (policy rate)  Yes.

Policy rate  Yes. The CBDR holds a monthly Monetary Policy meeting to analyze internal and external risks in relation to meeting the inflation target. A Monetary Policy Communiqué is published after this meeting on the CBDR website containing the decision taken on the Policy Rate (PR), a summary of the reasons behind it, and a reference interest rate for daily expansion and contraction operations. As of August 2020, the rate was 3.5%.

Target corridor band  Yes. The target corridor band is set at ±1% for one-day standing expansion and contraction facilities.

Accountability  Yes.

Open letter  No.

Parliamentary hearings  No.

Other  Yes. Presentations are made during Governor’s press conference, including updates on macroeconomic conditions, such as activity, inflation, and growth in lending.

Transparency  Yes.

Publication of votes  No.

Publication of minutes  No.

Publication of inflation forecasts  Yes. The forecasts are published in the Monetary Policy Report, which is published on a half-yearly basis.

Other monetary framework

Exchange tax  No. Monetary Board Resolution No. 17 of January 24, 1991, established the collection of a foreign exchange commission fee. Between 1991 and 2006, the level was adjusted on several occasions, before the collection was abolished as of July 1, 2006, pursuant to Revenue Budget and Public Expenditure Law No. 17-06.

Exchange subsidy  No.

Foreign exchange market  Yes. Authorized foreign exchange intermediaries are free to set their exchange rates and foreign exchange commission in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market  Yes. The CBDR licenses financial institutions and exchange agents to operate in the foreign exchange market. As of December 31, 2020, the 83 authorized financial and foreign exchange entities comprise 17 full-service banks, 14 savings and loan banks, 10 savings and loan associations, and 42 foreign exchange agents and... remittance/foreign exchange agents.
The CBDR buys and sells foreign exchange through authorized foreign exchange intermediaries.
Operating in the foreign exchange market is defined as “exchange intermediation”: this term comprises the act of buying and selling currencies regularly (currency notes and currencies of foreign countries, irrespective of their denominations or characteristics, and regardless of the means of payment used to make such purchases and sales), including but not limited to bills of exchange, checks, payment orders, promissory notes, bank drafts, and transfers.

Banks trade foreign exchange freely with each other and their customers. Effective October 21, 2019, the CB implemented an electronic foreign exchange trading platform to be operated by the entity itself with the participation of various foreign exchange intermediation entities. The CBDR monitors the market closely and intervenes to limit excessive exchange rate volatility. The CBDR buys and sells foreign exchange through authorized foreign exchange intermediaries.

As of December 31, 2019, 17 full-service banks, 14 savings and loan banks, and 10 savings and loan associations actively participated in the interbank market.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes.

Settlements within the LAIA (ALADI) framework must be made in US dollars. Transactions are carried out through the Federal Reserve and are settled in US dollars. Other transactions between residents and nonresidents may be made in any currency.

Sums owed will be paid in the agreed currency and, if no explicit agreement exists, in the domestic currency.

The foreign exchange regime will be based on the free convertibility of the domestic currency with other currencies. Economic agents will be able to perform transactions in foreign currencies based on terms entered into freely in compliance with general contract regulations.

Under no circumstances shall the CB require certain foreign currency operations to be carried out exclusively with the CB or according to terms that do not guarantee the free determination of prices on the market.

For current transactions and payments Yes.

For capital transactions Yes.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments Yes.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments Yes.

Credit operations Yes.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. The second paragraph of Article 24 of the Monetary and Financial Law establishes that “cash debts must be paid in the currency agreed or, in the event there is no express agreement, in the domestic currency.”

Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements Yes. Agreements have been entered into with Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela. On April 15, 2019, the Central Bank of Brazil withdrew from the ALADI Reciprocal Payments and Credit Agreement.

Operative Yes. The agreements with Argentina, Brazil, and Peru are operative. In accordance with Article 18 of the ALADI Reciprocal Payments and Credit Agreement: “The rights and obligations that ensue from their participation in the ‘Agreement’ must remain in effect until they are fully extinguished.”

Inoperative Yes. There are inoperative agreements with Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Uruguay, and Venezuela.

Regional arrangements Yes. The CBDR manages an interconnected payments system (SIP) for Central America and the Dominican Republic and an electronic payments system for electronic funds transfers to bank customers in Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua.

Clearing agreements Yes. Settlements with Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela may be made through two accounts established under reciprocal credit agreements within the ALADI framework. Imports (debits) and exports (credits) are recorded in these accounts, and all payments must be invoiced in US dollars. Funds transfers in the form of remittances, import payments, invoice payments, etc. are settled through the Federal Reserve.

Barter agreements and open accounts Yes. Settlements take place under reciprocal credit agreements with Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela. For SIP operations, participating CBs maintain accounts in the CBDR, with real-time gross settlement (RTGS) debits and credits via Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication (SWIFT) messages. Deposits and withdrawals take place through a correspondent bank account. The Dominican Republic is a signatory to the PetroCaribe Agreement with Venezuela, which includes barter arrangements as part of the overall credit framework.

Administration of control Yes. Exchange rate policy is determined by the Monetary Board and administered by the CBDR. The Exchange Regulation of the Monetary and Financial Law, adopted February 5, 2004, applies as amended.

In the Dominican Republic, there are five tariff rates: 0%, 3%, 8%, 14%, and 20%, which apply to the temporary duty- and tax-free import system for certain goods reexported within 18 months of being processed, prepared, or repaired. A zero rate applies to imports of raw materials, machinery, and equipment to be used in the textile, agriculture, and tourism (within poles under development) sectors. The Customs Duty of the Dominican Republic, Law No. 146-00 and amendments proclaimed on May 4, 2007, provide for a 100% exemption from import duties for inputs, fertilizers, equipment, and machinery to be used in the agricultural industry, as well as a 100% exemption from payment of the Tax on the Transfer of Industrialized Goods and Services (Impuesto sobre Transferencia de Bienes Industrializados y Servicios – ITBIS). In addition, Law No. 158-01 as amended promotes the execution of new projects intended to develop the country’s tourist destinations (polos turísticos).

The free trade agreement between the Dominican Republic, Central America, and the USA (CAFTA-DR) allows duty-free entry for goods from the USA in respect of 97.1% of customs duty; only 2.9% of the customs duty, limited to agricultural products characterized by high production sensitivity, will be subject to tariff relief phased in over the next nine years. Under the CARIFORUM (Caribbean Forum)-EU EPA, there are 19 tariff rates: 0%, 2%, 3%, 4%, 5%, 6%, 7%, 8%, 9%, 10%, 11%, 12%, 14%, 15%, 17%, 18%, 20%, 36%, and 37%. Under the EPA-DR, duty-free entry of goods from EU signatories will be phased in over 17 years.

Operations in securities for public offering are regulated under Law No. 249-17 on the Securities Market of December 19, 2017, which repeals and replaces Law No. 19-00 of May 8, 2000, as well as the regulatory provisions issued by the National Securities Market Board and the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market within the scope of their authorities. Private investments are not governed by this law. Transactions related to FDI are regulated under Law No.
Only the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market has the authority to authorize public offerings of securities throughout the territory of the Dominican Republic, on submission of the documents required under this law and its regulations. Law No. 249-17 considers fixed and variable rate securities to be publicly offered securities.

In 2019, the Regulation to the Law on Public Offerings was approved, establishing the conditions and requirements for the issuance of securities by issuers entitled to differential treatment and companies in the Dominican securities market. The said regulation also provides for fixed-income exchange public offerings and public offerings for the acquisition of shares. On May 7, 2020, the Office of the Superintendent published instructions establishing the requirements for the authorization of a public offering and the preparation of the required documents.

In addition, the Regulation on Corporate Governance was approved in 2019, which sets out the voluntary regime for fixed-income securities issuers and mandatory provisions applicable to listed companies.

Also in 2019, the Regulation on Administrators and Investment Funds was approved and published, modernizing the regulatory framework and allowing for greater diversification of instruments as an investment alternative to funds. On February 19, 2020, an instruction containing guidelines for preparing the various documents provided for in the Regulation on Administrators and Investment Funds was published.

The Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market is currently preparing the Regulation on Public Offering Trusts and Securitization Companies and the Securitization Process, as required by Law No. 249-17 (Transitional Provision Three of the Law on the Securities Market).

Traded in our securities market are fixed-income securities from issuers as well as fixed-income and equity securities (of a participating nature) from autonomous trusts (patrimonios autónomos), that is, investment funds and publicly offered trust securities.

Public offerings by foreign issuers are governed by the Law on the Securities Market and effective March 1, 2020, the Regulation on Public Offerings, which was published on October 29, 2019. In addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into Spanish and be duly authenticated by the competent authorities in the home country and by consular officials of the Dominican Republic in that country. As well, they must comply with the provisions of Article 8 of the General Law on Commercial Companies No. 479-08, as amended, requiring them to register their domicile in the entry that they make in the Commercial Registry of the jurisdiction of that domicile.

Under paragraph III of Article 30 of the Regulation on Public Offerings, if the issuer is not domiciled in the Dominican Republic, local representation will be required for receiving communications and for dialogue with the Office of the Superintendent regarding any matters affecting its supervision as the issuer of a public offering, particularly any requirement that the Office of the Superintendent or the representative of the body of bondholders may establish for fixed income.

It should be clarified that the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regulates activities, operations, and transactions on the securities market of the Dominican Republic, including publicly offered securities that are offered or traded in the national territory. Only publicly offered securities that are promoted by a securities intermediary registered in the Registry and that meet the requirements established in the regulations and in the internal bylaws of the securities markets and the centralized securities depositary may be listed in the foreign securities trading system. Foreign securities issued by issuers entitled to differential treatment may be registered and promoted by their issuer or by a securities intermediary. The regulations will establish the details for the registration and trading of foreign securities publicly offered within the country, for which the approval of the Monetary Board is required.

Purchase abroad by residents

No. Effective August 13, 2019, the Regulation for Securities Intermediaries creates the position of “intermediary/introducer,” defined as follows: “the securities intermediary making a referral and providing assistance to a client in order for the latter to establish a contractual relationship with another domestic or foreign securities intermediary and to assist with opening and maintaining securities brokerage accounts on the client’s behalf.”

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes. Residents who are participants in the securities market for the issue of publicly offered securities abroad must report, as market sensitive information, the authorization to carry out the public offering, pursuant to Article 12 regarding the classification of market sensitive information established in Resolution R-CNV-2015-33-MV. Under the latter resolution, securities issuers and participants subject to this regulation are required to inform the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market of authorizations for a public offering of securities on the domestic market or abroad. Notification of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regarding the aforementioned market sensitive information is not required for residents who are not participants in the securities market.

Residents who are not participants in the securities market are defined as legal persons not registered in the Securities Market Registry and therefore not subject to supervision by the Office of the Superintendent.

Bonds or other debt securities

Yes. The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican Republic requires the prior authorization of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market. Certain issuers, such as the CB, the government, and multilateral agencies, and the securities they issue, are governed by their own laws and are exempt from the authorization of the Office of the Superintendent for public offerings. They must submit the legal basis for each issuance and the description of the essential characteristics of the securities for purpose of entry in the Registry. The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican territory is applicable to both residents and nonresidents. Participants in the securities market that issue abroad must comply with the provisions of Article 12 of the Regulation on Market Sensitive Information. If they are not participants in the securities markets, compliance with this provision is not required.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes. Intermediary financial institutions are not allowed to (1) obtain short-term foreign funds in an amount greater than 30% of their paid-up capital, (2) invest more than 20% of their paid-up capital in foreign financial institutions, and (3) open current accounts in foreign currency for their clients.

Full-service banks (bancos multiples) may grant loans in US dollars for up to 100% of their available resources obtained in foreign currency and held in the form of savings or time deposits. Eighty-five percent of these loans must be directed to individuals or legal entities that generate foreign exchange. The foreign-currency financing limit does not apply to financial resources in US dollars to be used for the importation, distribution, and promotion of the use of natural gas as an alternative fossil fuel for the power generation sector and public transportation.

The CBDR is authorized to phase out the amount of resources full-service banks are required to hold with the CBDR to meet the investment ratio, provided this authorization is stipulated under the legal reserve requirement policy set forth by the Monetary Board.

Borrowing abroad Yes. Intermediary financial institutions are not allowed to (1) obtain short-term foreign funds in an amount greater than 30% of their paid-up capital, (2) invest more than 20% of their paid-up capital in foreign financial institutions, and (3) open current accounts in foreign currency for their clients.

Full-service banks may obtain financing abroad on a short-term basis, subject to a limit of 30% of their paid-up capital and reserves.

Maintenance of accounts abroad Yes.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) Yes. The regulations do not discriminate in this regard. Full-service banks and credit institutions may extend direct or indirect loans and guarantees or securities to a single resident or nonresident individual, legal entity, or risk group for up to 10% of their paid-up capital and reserves, or up to 20% if such operations are secured with first-ranking mortgages or real guarantees.

Lending locally in foreign exchange Yes. Full-service banks may grant loans in US dollars for up to 100% of their available resources obtained in foreign currency and held in the form of savings or time deposits. Eighty-five percent of these loans must be directed to individuals or legal entities that generate foreign exchange. The foreign-currency financing limit does not apply to financial resources in US dollars to be used for the importation, distribution, and promotion of the use of natural gas as an alternative fossil fuel for the power generation sector and public transportation.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange Yes. The CBDR is authorized to phase out the amount of resources full-service banks are required to hold with the CBDR to meet the investment ratio, provided this authorization is stipulated under the legal reserve requirement policy set forth by the Monetary Board.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Yes. Foreign-currency-denominated current accounts are not allowed. The opening of current accounts in a foreign currency is not included in the list of operations or services that can be carried out or
Reserve requirements

Yes. Foreign currency reserve requirements, applicable to full-service banks and for the purpose of monitoring liquidity and imposing penalties, are calculated daily and weekly, respectively, at a ratio of 20% on liabilities subject to reserve requirements. Domestic currency reserve requirements of full-service banks are calculated daily, for the purposes of liquidity monitoring and penalty imposition.

Liquid asset requirements

Yes. Requirements to maintain liquid assets to mitigate liquidity risk apply equally to all currencies. Nevertheless, these requirements do differ based on reserves, which are determined by reserve requirements. Given that reserve requirements differ based on currency, this differentiation indirectly affects liquid asset requirements. Intermediary financial institutions must have liquid assets equal to or greater than 80% of their short-term liabilities at terms of up to 30 days and equal to or greater than 70% of their short-term liabilities at terms of up to 90 days.

Interest rate controls

No.

Credit controls

Yes. Full-service banks and credit institutions may extend direct or indirect loans and guarantees or endorsements to a resident or nonresident individual, legal entity, or risk group for up to 10% of their paid-up capital and reserves, and up to 20% of capital and reserves if such operations are secured with first-ranking mortgages or real guarantees. Restrictions apply to the extension of direct or indirect loans to related persons or institutions in excess of certain percentages of paid-up capital.

Abroad by banks

Yes. Full-service banks may invest up to 20% of their paid-up capital in branches, agencies, and representative offices abroad and they may make equity investments in foreign financial institutions. Full-service banks that invest abroad or open cross-border branches must fulfill certain minimum requirements, including (1) authorization by the Monetary Board, which requires approval of the Office of the Superintendent of Banks; (2) a solvency ratio equal to or greater than 10% and fulfillment of prudential requirements in the Monetary and Financial Law or in Monetary Board resolutions; (3) sufficient management capacity to perform offshore functions; (4) maintenance of a cooperation agreement between the Office of the Superintendent of Banks and the host-country supervisory authorities; (5) approval by the host-country authorities of the investment; (6) a favorable report from the host-country supervisory authorities regarding the rating and soundness of the financial intermediary in which investment is to be made; and (7) submission of necessary documentation to the Office of the Superintendent of Banks.

In banks by nonresidents

No.

Open foreign exchange position limits

Yes. The net short or long foreign currency positions of full-service banks... are subject to limits as follows: (1) for the short or long position for all financial intermediaries, the equivalent of 20% of liabilities denominated in foreign currency plus contingent liabilities without foreign currency collateral or 100% of paid-up capital and legal reserves, whichever is larger; and (2) for the short position for financial intermediaries, the equivalent of 20% of their assets denominated in foreign currency or 100% of the paid-up capital and legal reserves, whichever is larger.

Exchange Arrangement

- Currency: Yes.
  The currency of Ecuador is the US dollar.
- Other legal tender: Yes.
  In accordance with Article 94 “Currency in the Republic of Ecuador,” all transactions, monetary and financial operations, and the relevant accounting records executed in the Republic of Ecuador must be drawn up in US dollars in accordance with this Code. The circulation, exchange, withdrawal, and demonetization of US dollars, the currency of the Republic of Ecuador, must be exclusively incumbent on the Central Bank of Ecuador (CBE), as provided under this Code and the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The CBE is the sole entity authorized to provide and manage national coins in the Republic of Ecuador, equivalent to and convertible to US dollars, as provided under this Code and subject to the regulation and authorization of the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board.
  The currency determined in this article is a means of payment. The currency is valid as legal tender in the Republic of Ecuador in the framework of the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The state may not in any case require any individual or legal entity under private law to accept currency.

Exchange rate structure

- Unitary Yes.
- Dual
- Multiple

Classification

- No separate legal tender Yes.

The exchange rate arrangement is an arrangement with no separate legal tender. All transactions, monetary and financial operations, and the relevant accounting records executed in the Republic of Ecuador must be denominated in US dollars in accordance with Articles 43 and 94 of the Monetary and Financial Organic Code.

The circulation, exchange, withdrawal, and destruction of US dollars, which is legal tender in Ecuador, must be the exclusive power of the CBE, in accordance with the provisions established in this Code and the regulations prepared by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board.

The CBE is the sole entity authorized to supply and manage currency in the Republic of Ecuador, equivalent and convertible to US dollars, in accordance with the provisions of this Code and the regulations and authorization of the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board.

The currency specified in this article is the means of payment. The currency is legal tender in the Republic of Ecuador pursuant to the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. Under no circumstances can the government force a natural or legal person established under private law to receive currency other than US dollars.

Exchange tax Yes. Ecuador has no tax on foreign exchange operations. However, all transfers abroad are subject to the 5% ISD tax, barring certain exemptions. Outflows in connection with bank loans exceeding one year are exempt for specific sectors indicated in the Productivity code (such as housing and microfinance).

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes.

Spot exchange market Yes. Exchange bureaus that engage in transactions in the country may obtain a license from the Banking Superintendency (SB) and may only engage in the following transactions in accordance with Section II: Constitution, Functioning, and Operation of Exchange Bureaus; Chapter XXXVI: Financial Service Institutions; Title II: National Financial System, Book I: Monetary and Financial System, Codification of Monetary, Financial, Securities, and Insurance Resolutions.

1. Buy, sell, and exchange foreign banknotes or coins.
2. Buy and sell traveler’s checks denominated in foreign exchange.
4. Buy payment orders in foreign exchange.
5. Arrange draws or transfers in foreign exchange charged to accounts that the company holds with banks in the country or abroad in connection with their business activities.

According to the SB register, there are two active exchange bureaus.

The SB must indicate which entities are authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations (not only exchange bureaus). Purchase and sale or currency swap operations carried out in the usual manner on a permanent basis in the free currency market, as well as the purchase and sale of checks, draws or transfers in foreign exchange, made against accounts in domestic or foreign banks, must be carried out solely by banks or exchange bureaus duly authorized by the SB.

Effective August 14, 2019, the CBE publishes the price table (reference exchange rates) on its website. This information is a reference for operations carried out in the public and private sectors.

Operated by the central bank No.

Foreign exchange standing facility No. Because the Ecuadorian economy is dollarized and the law does not provide for the use of currencies other than the US dollar for making domestic transactions, there are no exchange markets, except of a marginal nature in financial institutions and on an informal level. Thus, the CBE does not intervene or engage in any type of activity in the national financial system in any currency other than the US dollar.

Allocation No.

Auction No.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. As of August 5, 2020, 24 institutions (23 national banks) hold licenses granted by the SB. In accordance with Article 312 of the Constitution, financial institutions may not engage in any activity that is unrelated to the financial system. Article 194, Indent d, Numeral 5, of the COMF states that, with regard to services, financial entities may “on their own behalf or on behalf of third parties, carry out foreign exchange transactions, repo transactions, and issue and negotiate traveler’s checks.” Article 43 of the COMF regarding information on trading in foreign currencies other than the US dollar states that entities in the national financial system authorized to trade in foreign currencies other than the US dollar are required to report to the CBE, following the form and periodicity specified by the Board, on the amounts and exchange rates of their transactions and to provide information needed by the Bank concerning movements in their foreign currency accounts. Failure to comply with this provision will be punishable as a serious infraction in accordance with the said Code.

| Over the counter | Yes. |
|Brokerage         | No.  |
|Market making     | No.  |
|Forward exchange market | Yes. |

The economy of Ecuador is dollarized, and therefore, there are no foreign exchange markets other than the dollar, except on a marginal basis. Accordingly, the CBE does not engage in any operations or practices with currencies other than the US dollar with the national financial system.

The functions of the CBE include the administration of resources abroad, for which it has the Policy for the Investment of International Investment Assets and which entail the authorization to conduct swap operations solely with the gold portfolio.

At present, there are no portfolios in other foreign currencies for “Contingent State.” There are only minimum balances in euro and yen, which are the currencies with the highest movement. To keep accounts abroad active, cash management acquires other foreign currencies to fulfill specific obligations, as required by the Payments System.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes. Transactions with all countries must be carried out in convertible currencies, except for those that are channeled through the Single Regional Payments Clearing System (SUCRE), which must be recorded using the “sucre” unit of account, with clearance every six months in convertible currencies. Whenever possible, import and export payments and collections must be made in the currency stipulated in the customs documents.

Controls on the use of domestic currency No. Because the US dollar is the legal tender in Ecuador, it can also be generally used worldwide for all types of international transactions.

For current transactions and payments No. Because the US dollar is the legal tender in Ecuador, it can also be generally used worldwide for all types of international transactions.

For capital transactions No. Because the US dollar is the legal tender in Ecuador, it can also be generally used worldwide for all types of international transactions.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments No.
Credit operations No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. Because the US dollar is the currency that has been adopted by Ecuador, its use is not only authorized by law but it also the legal tender within the country. No other currency is allowed to be used by residents.

Payments arrangements Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements Yes.
Operative No.
Inoperative Yes. Payment arrangements exist with Cuba and Hungary but are currently inactive.
Regional arrangements Yes. Ecuador is a member of the LAIA and of the SUCRE, which are now in operation.
Clearing agreements Yes. The LAIA Reciprocal Payments and Credits Agreement is a multilateral payment clearing mechanism. The SUCRE is based on direct payments in virtual currency (the sucre, in lowercase) between CBs, in which the surplus and deficit balances will be cleared during a semiannual clearing period. In the case of Ecuador, US dollars are received.
Barter agreements and open accounts No.
Administration of control No.
Payments arrears No.
Official No.
Private No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) No.
On domestic ownership and/or trade No.
On external trade No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.
On exports Yes. Ecuadorean citizens and travelers abroad may leave the country with cash amounting to up to three times the base wage an adult (US $1,182) and one base salary a minor (US$394). In addition, the tax on outward transfers (ISD) of 5% must be paid.
Foreign currency Yes. Ecuadorean citizens and travelers abroad may leave the country with cash amounting to up to three times the base wage an adult (US $1,182) and one base salary a minor (US$394). In addition, the tax on outward transfers (ISD) of 5% must be paid.
On imports Yes. The CBE is authorized to import funds in cash from its accounts in the rest of the world. According to the Law on Economic Reactivation, Article 96 of the Organic Code states that: “When the demand for currency, which entities of the national financial system make to the CBE, exceeds the limits established by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board, remittances to Ecuador will be made via liquid external assets that financial institutions have abroad.”

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.
Held domestically Yes.
Approval required Yes.
Residents may open and maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad. Public and private financial institutions require approval for accounts denominated in currencies other than US dollars. The CBE may open accounts in currencies other than US dollars on behalf of public sector entities for funds received as grants or loans. There are no restrictions on transferring funds from these accounts abroad. Approval is not required for private sector entities. However, the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board approves the opening and maintenance of accounts abroad for use by public sector entities, subject to prior favorable reports from the regulator of government finances and the CBE.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad Yes.

Minimum financing requirements No.
Advance payment requirements: No.
Advance import deposits: No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports: No.
Domiciliation requirements: No.
Preshipment inspection: No.
Letters of credit: No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses: No.
Other: No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures: Yes.

Inspection documents are required for agricultural, medical, arms, and psychotropic imports. In addition, EP Petroecuador (the government-owned oil company) may, without a license, import supplies, materials, and equipment during emergencies. Consideration is being given to introducing import license requirements on a range of goods. COMEX is responsible for issuing rules on import procedures, other than customs procedures, such as registrations, authorizations, prior control documents, and licenses. It also determines what goods are prohibited. The reshipment of goods whose importation is prohibited is mandatory, except for clothing, perishable goods, and educational material, which will be donated to the Secretary of State in charge of social policy (COPCI Regulation). Most of the import prohibitions are maintained for sanitary, plant protection, and environmental reasons and to comply with international agreements.

Positive list: No.

Negative list: Yes.
Ecuador prohibits imports of certain products (221 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the Harmonized System (HS)), regardless of origin. The bans mostly affect organic chemicals (71 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 29 of the HS) and the other products of the chemical industry (56 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 38 of the HS), followed by nuclear reactors (35 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 84 of the HS), and fish and crustaceans, mollusks, and more aquatic invertebrates (34 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 3 of the HS). In addition, Ecuador prohibits the importation of other products (692 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the HS) according to the origin of the products for phyto-zoosanitary reasons and to implement, among others, the resolutions of the UNSC, and other international agreements in which Ecuador is a party.

Open general licenses: No.
Licenses with quotas: Yes.
Five percent of the import quotas for “cotton not carded or combed” with a zero tariff is distributed to textile manufacturers not affiliated with the Association of Textile Industries of Ecuador. There are also import quotas for vehicles, parts for vehicle assembly, and for cell phones.

Other nontariff measures: Yes.
Measures include safeguards, quotas, and contingencies. Plant protection and animal health care certificates are required, as are quality certificates for imports of certain products. A set of technical standards applies to imports of certain goods for consumer, health, and environmental protection.
Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes.

The MFN tariff of Ecuador consists of 42 rates ranging from 0% to 85.5%, including tariffs resulting from the application of the price band, but excluding estimates of ad valorem equivalents. In 2018, 98.5% (99.3% in 2011) of the tariff lines were subject to tariff rates lower than 30%; 37.3% applied a tariff equal to 0% (46.7% in 2011); and only 1.6% of the total tariff lines had a tariff higher than 30%. Imports are also subject to other charges that include: the customs tax (until 2018), foreign currency transfers abroad (ISD), the VAT, the special consumption tax (ICE), and the contribution to the Development Fund for Children (FODINFA).

Taxes collected through the exchange system

Yes.

All transfers abroad are subject to the 5% ISD tax, barring certain exemptions. The Law for Productive Development, Investment Attraction, and Employment Generation and its Regulation exempts the payment of the ISD tax for new productive investments that sign investment contracts for the import of capital goods and raw materials necessary for the development of the project, up to the amounts and terms established in the aforementioned contract.

The 5% tax on transfers abroad is waived for the outflows relating to bank loans of over one year for specific sectors identified in the Productive Code (for example, housing and microfinance).

The Law for Productive Development, Investment Attraction, and Employment Generation and its Regulation establishes the following exemptions to the payment of the foreign currency transfers abroad tax (ISD) in the case of investments:

1. Dividends distributed by national or foreign companies domiciled in Ecuador, after payment of income tax, when applicable, in favor of effective beneficiaries who are natural persons domiciled or resident in Ecuador or abroad, shareholders of the company that distributes them, up to the term established in the aforementioned investment contract, as long as the resources of the investment come from abroad and the investor demonstrates the income of the foreign currency to the country.

2. Companies that reinvest in the country from at least 50% of the profits, in new productive assets, will be exempt from payment of the ISD Tax for payments abroad, for distribution of dividends to resident beneficial owners in Ecuador, of the corresponding fiscal year.

For the application of this exemption, the corresponding capital increase must be made, which must be completed until December 31 of the fiscal year following that in which the profits were generated, subject to reinvestment.

3. Payments made abroad, for the amortization of capital and interest generated on loans granted by international financial institutions or specialized non-financial entities qualified by the... corresponding control entities in Ecuador, which grant financing with a term of 360 calendar days or more; payments made abroad, for dividends distributed by national or foreign companies domiciled in Ecuador, after payment of Income Tax (IR).

EGYPT

(Position as of June 30, 2020)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership: December 27, 1945.

Article VIII: Yes. Date of acceptance: January 2, 2005.

Article XIV: Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2017 Article IV Consultation Second Review Under the Extended Arrangement Under the Extended Fund Facility, and Request for Modification of Performance Criteria with Egypt states that, as of December 11, 2017, maintained one exchange restriction subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3 arising from a net debtor position under an inoperative bilateral payments arrangement with Bulgaria. (Country Report No. 18/14)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: Yes. Banks have been instructed to freeze accounts and assets of listed individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, in accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions. Further, in 2002, the authorities established the EMLCU, which is the Egyptian financial intelligence unit responsible for combating money laundering and terrorism financing. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and designated nonfinancial businesses and professions concerning transactions suspected of being proceeds of a crime or involving money laundering or terrorism financing or attempts to conduct such transactions. The EMLCU takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. AML/CFT Law No. 80 of 2002 was amended in May 2014, to address deficiencies in Egypt’s AML/CFT regime, including with regard to international standards on combating money laundering/financing of terrorism and proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Egypt exited from the follow-up process at the Middle East and North Africa Region Financial Action Task Force (MENAFATF). In accordance with the amendments, the EMLCU will carry out Egypt’s commitment under international conventions, treaties, and charters with respect to terrorism financing and financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

Crawl-like arrangement: Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. On November 3, 2016, the CBE announced its decision to move, with immediate effect, to a liberalized exchange rate regime to quell any distortions in the domestic foreign currency market. Pursuant to the above, banks and other market participants are at liberty to quote and trade at any exchange rate. Bid and ask exchange rates are determined by forces of demand and supply. The CBE uses the prevailing market rate for any transactions it undertakes. In light of the unprecedented blow to the global financial markets arising from the Coronavirus epidemic spread, which resulted in the sharpest portfolio flows reversal on record from emerging markets, including the Egyptian market, the CBE intervened in the foreign exchange market in March and April 2020 consistent with its mandate to preserve financial stability and maintain domestic confidence. This was communicated to the market through a press statement with the announcement of the Reserves Figures in March and April 2020. The statements are available on the CBE website. From January 2019, the exchange rate has followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from stabilized, effective January 28, 2019. While the exchange rate appears to have stabilized from March 2020, more observations are necessary to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as crawl-like.

Monetary policy operates under a flexible money-targeting framework, where policy tools are utilized to anchor inflation expectations, to contain demand-side pressures and second-round effects of supply shocks to achieve inflation targets over the medium term, as well as to achieve reserve money targets that were designed to be consistent with the inflation targets. Policy tools include a corridor of overnight deposit and lending standing facilities, open market operations, and reserve requirements. The monetary policy rate is set by the CBE’s Monetary Policy Committee (MPC), which has six members comprising of the governor of the CBE, two deputy governors, three other members of the Board of Directors.

The MPC convenes every six weeks to decide on appropriate actions with respect to key policy rates. The MPC’s decisions are communicated to the market through a monetary policy statement that gives an analysis of the committee’s decision, which is published on the CBE’s website following each MPC meeting. Egypt is in a transitional period to shift toward a full-fledged inflation targeting regime. In May 2017, the CBE announced for the first time in its history its inflation target of 13% (+/-3%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2018. In December 2018, the new target was set at 9% (+/-3%) on average during the fourth quarter of 2020. The Central Agency for Public Mobilization and Statistics (CAPMAS) is the entity responsible for calculating and publishing the headline CPI every month, which the CBE uses to derive the core CPI index as an indicative index for research purposes only. The transition from the direct-quantity target to targeting short-term interest rates was made in June 2005. The CBE adopted a corridor system using an overnight lending facility as the ceiling rate and an overnight deposit facility as the floor rate. The CBE employs open market operations as a monetary policy tool to achieve its operational target to ultimately attain its intermediate target. Open market operations achieve that by regulating the supply of reserves in the banking system. The CBE main operation could be deposit auctions or reverse repo depending on the market liquidity condition.

The CBE licenses nonbank foreign exchange dealers (foreign exchange bureaus, bazaars, and duty-free markets). As of December 31, 2019, there were 113 licensed foreign exchange bureaus, 61 bazaars, and 9 duty-free markets. Foreign exchange bureaus may buy and sell domestic and foreign means of payment (banknotes and traveler’s checks) on their own behalf. These transactions are conducted in cash. Foreign exchange bureaus may not make transfers into or out of Egypt and must sell all working-day foreign currency exceeding their authorized operating balance to commercial banks. Almost all banks licensed to operate in Egypt (currently 38) are involved in foreign exchange transactions.

Banks are required to manage and maintain their positions in foreign currencies through the interbank market on a daily basis without breaching their authorized net positions. The CBE does not buy commercial banks’ foreign currency balances exceeding their
The multiple price auction mechanism, which allows the CBE to buy and sell foreign exchange (exclusively in US dollars), follows these rules: (1) The CBE sets the amounts (not the price). (2) Each bank may submit up to three bids, for which the total amount submitted is determined by the quota assigned to the bank by the CBE, based on its commercial utilization and previous sales in the interbank market. (3) On the auction day, the CBE announces the auction amount one hour before the auction. (4) Banks authorized by the CBE may participate. (5) Auction results are announced to the public through several data service providers, such as Reuters and Bloomberg, as well as on the CBE website. No auctions have been conducted since November 3, 2016.

Banks that are members of the interbank convention on foreign exchange trading buy and sell foreign exchange at freely determined rates.

Dealers may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market through an electronic dealing system during regular dealing hours.

Authorized commercial banks are permitted to conduct forward foreign exchange transactions on their own behalf. The banks are free to determine the rates for forward transactions and conduct forwards and swaps on behalf of their customers strictly for business needs. The CBE does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. In practice, the CBE permits authorized commercial banks to conduct forward foreign exchange and swap transactions to cover five genuine needs: supplier payments, LCs, transfer collections, dividend payments, and export proceeds.

institutions, and financial groups, related mainly to the bank’s capital base, countries’ ratings and their gross domestic product. The regulation sets concentration limits to high-risk exposures and does not specify exposure limits to each type of borrower as follows: The total high-risk exposure for each country should not exceed 40% of the concentration limit of that country. The total high-risk exposures for all countries should not exceed 100% of the bank’s capital base. The total high-risk exposures for non-investment grade countries should not exceed 20% of the bank’s capital base. The unutilized portion of the high-risk exposure limit may be directed to low-risk exposures, but not vice versa.

In banks by nonresidents  Yes. Investments in banks are subject to “fit and proper” tests: shares held by residents or nonresidents in a bank in Egypt exceeding 5% of the issued capital must be reported to the CBE. Shares exceeding 10% require CBE approval.

Open foreign exchange position limits  Yes.

On resident assets and liabilities  Yes. The net long or short position in any foreign currency of a bank operating in Egypt, including branches of foreign banks, may not exceed 10% of the capital base, the long or short position in all currencies may not exceed 20% of the capital base, and the long or short position in local currency (that is, in an opposing position) may not exceed 10% of the capital base.

On nonresident assets and liabilities  Yes. The net long or short position in any foreign currency of a bank operating in Egypt, including branches of foreign banks, may not exceed 10% of the capital base, the long or short position in all currencies may not exceed 20% of the capital base, and the long or short position in local currency (that is, in an opposing position) may not exceed 10% of the capital base.

Provisions specific to institutional investors  Yes.

Insurance companies  Yes. Pursuant to Law No. 10 of 1981 (as amended), if an individual or entity owns more than 5% of the total shares of an insurance or reinsurance company, the company must notify the FRA within two weeks on the appropriate form. No individual—except by inheritance—or corporate entity may own 10% or more of the issued capital of an insurance or reinsurance company, except with the approval of the prime minister. The approval requirement applies to residents and nonresidents.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents  No.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad  Yes. By law, insurance and reinsurance companies must allocate funds in Egypt at least equal to the value of their technical reserves for business carried out in Egypt. Companies must maintain the funds of life insurance completely separate from the funds of property and liability insurance. Cash and securities that form part of these funds must be deposited in one of the banks registered at the CBE. Therefore, by law, investments may not be held abroad.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally  Yes. Insurance and reinsurance companies must invest their allocated funds with respect to life insurance plans as follows: (1) at least 25% in government securities or guaranteed certificates; (2) a maximum of 20% in bonds, provided the amount invested in bonds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing the bonds, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (3) a maximum of 20% in stocks and investment funds, provided the amount invested in stocks and investment funds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing these stocks, 20% of the total issued instruments of the investment fund, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (4) a maximum of 10% of paid-up capital in bonds, stocks, and investment funds of a single issuer; (5) a maximum of 30% in real estate in Egypt that is registered by notarization or recorded with the relevant notary public office, provided the value of the real estate does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (6) loans guaranteed by insurance policies within 90% of their recovered value, which is determined at the end of the financial year according to the company’s actuarial certificate; (7) a maximum of 20% in mortgage loans, provided the loans do not exceed 5% of total allocated funds, 60% of the market value of the real estate, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (8) a maximum of 50% in bank deposits or savings or certificates of deposit issued by the CBE or registered banks; and (9) a maximum of 20% in other investments approved by the FRA.

Insurance and reinsurance companies must invest their allocated funds with respect to property and liability insurance plans as follows: (1) at least 20% in government securities or guaranteed certificates; (2) a maximum of 15% in bonds, provided the amount invested in bonds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (3) a maximum of 25% in stocks and investment funds, provided the amount invested in stocks and mutual funds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing these stocks, 20% of the total issued instruments of mutual funds, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (4) a maximum of 10% of paid-up capital in bonds, stocks, and mutual funds of a single issuer; (5) a maximum of 30% in real estate in Egypt that is registered by notarization or recorded with the appropriate notary public office, provided the value of the real estate does not exceed 10% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (6) a maximum of 50% in bank deposits or savings or certificates of deposit issued by the CBE or registered banks; and (7) a maximum of 20% in other investments approved by the FRA.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Yes.

FRA procedures govern currency matching on the composition of insurance companies’ assets and liabilities. According to these procedures, an insurance company must define its requirements for personal and property operations in foreign currencies and pounds to be sure it satisfies currency-matching requirements for assets and liabilities composition.

El Salvador is a member of the Central American Monetary Council (CMCA) and is a signatory of the Treaty on Payment and Securities Settlement Systems in Central America and the Dominican Republic, which has been in effect in the country since December 2008. The Treaty enables the CMCA to establish regional payments systems that are legally protected under the Treaty. An interconnected payments system for Central America and the Dominican Republic (SIPA) had been in effect since January 2011.

Clearing agreements

No.

Barter agreements and open accounts

No.

Administration of control

Yes.

All private sector foreign exchange transactions take place through commercial banks and exchange bureaux. There are no exchange controls, and economic agents may freely carry out legal transactions in foreign currency through legally authorized institutions, that is, commercial banks, Banco Hipotecario, Banco de Fomento Agropecuario, exchange bureaux, and cooperative banks. Article 122 of the Law on Supervision and Regulation of the Financial System states: “The powers conferred upon the Central Reserve Bank of El Salvador under the Law on Foreign Currency Exchange Houses shall be transferred by operation of law to the Superintendency of the Financial System governed by this Law, except for the authority to issue the Instruction implementing the law on foreign currency exchange bureaux which regulates the operations of exchange bureaus, which will continue to be the responsibility of the Central Reserve Bank. The files containing information on the exchange bureaus currently in operation, as well as the pertinent guarantees, shall be transferred by the Central Reserve Bank to the Superintendency, within the three months after the date of this Law.”

As a result, on November 1, 2011, the CRB delivered to the SSF the records and guarantees for exchange bureaus Puerto Bus, S.A. de C.V., Gigante, S.A. de C.V., Latín Faz, S.A. de C.V., and Corfinge, S.A. de C.V., and formalized the delivery through instruments of delivery for each exchange bureau.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures
Yes. Certain products require import licenses issued by specific government agencies, in areas related to (1) Ministry of National Defense: arms, ammunition, explosives, combustible chemical substances, lead, and pyrotechnic products; (2) Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock through the General Directorate of Plant Health and the General Directorate of Livestock: animal- and plant-based products and subproducts, agrochemicals, and biological products; (3) Ministry of Health: food products and beverages processed industrially, dangerous ingredients and potable and nonpotable alcohol, and fishery products; (4) Ministry of Environment and Natural Resources: ozone-depleting substances, solid waste, hazardous materials, and wildlife; and (5) National Directorate of Medications; pharmaceutical products and chemicals; cleaning products, cosmetics, narcotics, psychotropic substances, aggregates, precursors, medications for human consumption, and controlled substances.

Positive list
Yes. Licenses issued by the MOF are required for authorized imports of ethyl alcohol, whether denatured or not, and authorization is required to import refined or raw cane sugar. The minister of health issues permits for ethyl alcohol, except when raw materials for various food industries are involved. Authorization by the Ministry of Defense is required for imports of weapons and explosives. An environmental permit is also required for imports of chemicals, either from the Ministry of Environment and Natural Resources, the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, or from the Ministry of Health. Importation of regulated industrial products requires registration with the Ministry of Health. The National Directorate of Medications is the regulatory agency for the import of pharmaceutical products, medical inputs, cosmetics, hygiene products, drugs and psychotropic products, and aggregates.

Negative list

El Salvador prohibits imports of the following products for reasons of health, security, public morality, or environmental protection: subversive material or teachings contrary to the political, social, and economic order; obscene materials; unethical or indecent films; abortion-related products; and slot machines. Imports of coffee in a form that can be used as seeds for planting and imports of coffee bushes are prohibited. Also prohibited are lightweight passenger and freight motor vehicles more than 8 years old and heavy passenger and freight vehicles more than 15 years old (except collector’s items and vehicles donated to the government or to public service or charitable organizations; those used exclusively by physically challenged persons; those providing a specific service, such as agricultural, earth-moving, or industrial work; and those connected with power generation plants, well drilling, and water purification units).

Open general licenses

No.

Licenses with quotas

Yes. The Ministry of Economy grants import permits or licenses for products that are subject to some form of agricultural quota under the United States Free Trade Agreement, meaning that a given quantity may be imported with a zero tariff, including beef, pork, milk in liquid or powdered form, other dairy products, yellow or white corn, sorghum, chicken parts, and rice. A cheddar cheese quota is granted under the WTO commitments. Under the Partnership Agreement between Central America and the European Union, licenses are granted for products subject to agricultural quotas, such as whey, cured and streaky hams, prepared and preserved pork, milk powder, and cheese. Finally, an import quota is granted on a “first-come, first-served” basis to access the cheese quota negotiated in the Free Trade Agreement with Panama and for the yellow corn quota under the Free Trade Agreement between Central America and Mexico. It is important to clarify that these are not limits on imports but rather quotas with preferential tariffs. In addition to these set amounts, importers are free to import any amount subject to payment of the corresponding tariff.

Other nontariff measures

Yes. Sugar intended for the domestic market must be fortified with vitamin A. The importation of dairy products prepared with reconstituted milk is prohibited.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes. The Central American Import Tariff has the following base rates: 0% on raw materials and intermediate and capital goods not produced in the CACM, 5% on raw materials produced in the CACM, 10% on intermediate and capital goods produced in the CACM, and 15% on finished goods. El Salvador also has trade agreements with Bolivia (signed on November 16, 2018, pending ratification), Chile, Colombia, Cuba (Partial Scope Agreement), the Dominican Republic, Ecuador (Partial Scope Agreement), the EU (27 countries), Mexico, Panama, South Korea (effective January 1, 2020), Taiwan Province of China, the United Kingdom, and the United States, under which certain products included in tariff elimination programs are duty free. All goods originating in Central American countries may be traded without restriction within the region, except for those defined in Annex A to the General Treaty on Central American Economic Integration.

The average of the applied tariffs of El Salvador is 6.0%, the agricultural average is 11.8%, and the nonagricultural average is 5.1%. The minimum tariff is 0% and the maximum 164%.

Effective March 20, 2020, certain foodstuffs, pharmaceuticals, and personal protective equipment were temporarily eliminated of the Central American Import Tariff (Harmonized System Chapters 04, 07, 10, 11, 19, 20, 21, 28, 30, 34, 38, 40, and 96), because of the COVID-19 pandemic. Some products are also exempt from VAT.

The relevant directorate of the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock conducts preshipment inspections of exports of basic foods such as beans, rice, sorghum, fresh loroco, and fresh papayas before exportation; agricultural precertification is also required. Dairy products require authorization from a quality control laboratory. All products of animal origin are subject to inspection.

All products containing wood or packed in wooden crates or pallets require inspection and fumigation by the Organismo Internacional Regional de Sanidad Agropecuaria (OIRSA, The International Regional Organization for Plant and Animal Health).

Exports must pass through a nonintrusive inspection system conducted by the customs authorities prior to shipment.

and export operations in conformity with their respective responsibilities. The Integrated Foreign Trade System (SICEX) is used for exports, and if the transaction destinations are Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua, the operation is recorded in the exit customs of El Salvador and the entry customs of the relevant importing Central American country; the amount of taxes payable is reported by the Internet. This process allows exporters to obtain the three authorizations through a single, integrated procedure.

An imports system (SIMP) software tool allows importers and exporters to register and pay for the nonintrusive inspection service. There are service charges for obtaining prior processing for imports, covering the services of the Ministry of National Defense, the Ministry of Health, and the National Directorate of Medications. The system allows payment to be made electronically via two banks of the financial system, thus facilitating the handling of prior processing for imports through the SIMP, which is administered by the CIEX El Salvador. There is one-stop invoicing (facturación única) on behalf of third parties, which allows using a single tax number for various services provided by government institutions, registered in the CIEX El Salvador. The electronic payment system was also implemented for the product registry, the mutual recognition registry, and the updating of the product registry; these three services, which cover food products, thus simplify compliance with the required procedures for importing such products that fall within the purview of the Ministry of Health, which participates in the foreign trade one-stop window.

Export licenses

Exporters must be registered with the CIEX before exporting any products. Exports are authorized via the Internet through the SICEX, which is designed exclusively for that purpose. El Salvador has signed the CITES agreement (currently in force), which prohibits exports of endangered plant and animal species, cultural heritage goods, as well as products, such as red beans that suffer domestic shortages. Other export products require authorization by other institutions before processing at the SICEX and the CIEX because of quota controls—for example, for cane sugar; agrochemicals; biological products; drugs and food for veterinary use (which also require registration); wildflowers and plants; basic foods such as beans of domestic origin, rice, sorghum, fresh loroco, and fresh papayas (which also require preshipment inspection); dairy products (which also require laboratory testing); meat; fish products (which may not be harvested without a permit); foodstuffs for human consumption; coffee (including roasted and ground); machinery; maquila textiles and garments subject to quotas; diesel fuel; propane; and butane gas. Ferrous and nonferrous products require authorization by the Directorate General of Customs. Exports of waste products from melting ferrous and nonferrous products included in tariff items 7204.10.00, 7204.29.00, and 7404.00.00 are prohibited. Citizens, foreigners, and legal entities are exempt from this provision if they are registered with the Directorate General of Customs and the waste products originate directly from their industrial processes.

Without quotas

Yes.

Exports of sugar require the approval of the Salvadoran Sugar Council (CONSAA) and are administered under two arrangements. The portion traded with the United States, which is called the American quota or preferential market, is subject to preferential treatment that consists of a negotiated quantity of metric tons to be exported. Exporters are free to export the remaining sugar production to any country. In addition, under CAFTA-DR, quotas have been allocated for other products, such as beef, dairy products, ethanol, and peanuts. A reciprocal tariff quota arrangement with Panama has been introduced to protect the monetary value of certain types of cheeses. Under the Association Agreement with the EU, export tariff quotas are negotiated for garlic, cassava starch, sweet corn, mushrooms, sugar including organic sugar and products with a high sugar content, rice, beef, bulk rum, tuna loin, plastics, electrical harnesses and conductors, certain clothing products, and articles made of aluminum. An export quota for cheese was negotiated in the Free Trade Agreement with Panama.

There are no export taxes. The Tax on Transfer of Movable Property and Services Act reduced the export tax rate to 0%.

Under Article 45 of the Banking Law, banks’ cash reserves may be invested abroad, deposited in first-tier banks rated and authorized for this purpose by the Superintendency, or invested in highly negotiable low-risk securities. Insurance companies may invest abroad up to 20% of investments of net technical reserves.

Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank’s equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank’s equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country in which the assets are held.

Investments in certain public works (for example, railroads, ports, canals) require government approval. FDI and inflows of capital with a maturity of more than one year must be registered with the Ministry of Economy. There are minimum capital requirements for businesses owned by foreign residents and those with foreign resident shareholders. Foreign individuals and legal entities may invest in El Salvador and enjoy the same rights and obligations as national investors and corporations. The constitution restricts foreign investment in the following activities: trade; industry; and small-scale services—specifically, coastal fishing—which are reserved for Salvadorans. The subsoil belongs to the government, which may grant concessions for its exploitation. Investments in shares of banks, finance companies, and exchange bureaus are subject to applicable laws.

Foreign investors may transfer abroad funds related to their investments without delay. Such transfers include net profits and dividends generated by their investments, proceeds from partial or total disposal of investments, and proceeds from the transfer of investments to third parties. As part of the 2012 amendments to the Law on Income Tax, Title VII Chapter III of Article 7 now includes a section titled “Income Tax on Distribution of Profits,” which requires income tax withholding of 5% of profits paid by domiciled taxpayers, parent companies, subsidiaries, branches, agencies, and other permanent establishments to partners, shareholders, associates, trustees, members, investors, and beneficiaries not domiciled in El Salvador.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes.

The Financial System Supervision and Regulation Act modified the financial sector regulatory and supervisory architecture through (1) creation of the Financial Supervision and Regulation System, consisting of the CB and the SSF; (2) establishment of a single superintendency for banking, insurance, securities, pensions, and other financial intermediaries; and (3) transfer of regulatory authority over the financial system to the CB.

The Law against Usury defines usury and sets the maximum rate of interest on loans obtained by individuals. This law applies to individuals and legal entities, financial institutions, commercial firms, savings banks, merchants engaged in the delivery of goods and services, pawn merchants, and in general, any person or entity who lends money, regardless of the manner used to record, conceal, or hide the operation. The CRB sets maximum rates based on the simple average of the effective interest rate on loans, expressed as a percent and published semiannually.

Effective January 1, 2019, the Constitutional Division of the Supreme Court of Justice declared the Financial Transactions Tax Law unconstitutional; this is no longer in force. Previously, the Financial Transactions Tax Law established new taxes on financial transactions as follows: (1) There is a tax on the amount paid for all checks and electronic transfers in El Salvador, in legal tender in circulation in the country, according to this law’s regulations. (2) All entities authorized to make these payments and transfers must withhold, as a tax to control liquidity, 0.25% of amounts exceeding US$5,000 on cash deposits, payments, and withdrawals a transaction or in aggregate on a monthly basis.

Borrowing abroad

Yes.

External borrowing by financial institutions is subject to a reserve requirement of 5% (less than the cash reserve for deposits).

However, as a result of the Pandemic Emergency, effective March 27, 2020, the BCR Standards Committee issued the “Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities,” to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement, so that institutions have more financial resources to tackle the COVID-19 crisis; therefore, the above-mentioned reserve requirement was temporarily reduced to 3% from 5%. The validity of these regulations is 180 days, which will be extended for an equal period of time if the underlying circumstances persist.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

Yes.

Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank’s equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank’s equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country where the assets are held.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Yes.

Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank’s equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank’s equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country where the assets are held.

Lending locally in foreign exchange  No. There is no distinction in the treatment of loans in local currency and in foreign currency.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange  No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange  No. There is no distinction in the treatment of deposits in local currency and in foreign currency.

Reserve requirements  No. In El Salvador, the term reserve requirement (encaje legal) is not used. The term liquidity reserve (reserva de liquidez) is preferred. There are no specific reserve requirements on foreign (nondollar) currencies. The average reserve requirement is currently about 22% of deposits but would vary as it depends on the maturity of deposits. Effective March 19, 2020, however, as a result of the Pandemic Emergency, the BCR Standards Committee issued the “Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities,” to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement. So, after making the corresponding calculation, the current liquidity reserve is approximately 10% of deposits and the liquidity reserves actually held by the institutions is approximately 17% of deposits.

On the other hand, the Standards Committee of the CRB approved, during Session No. CN-01/2019, effective February 20, 2019, the extension of the Temporary Measures for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (Medidas Temporales para el Cálculo de la Reserva de Liquidez – MTL) to February 23, 2023. These measures reduced the liquidity reserve by 10% of the productive credit granted by financial institutions. However, in response to the emergency caused by the Pandemic, these measures were repealed as of March 19, 2020, and replaced by the “Temporary Technical Regulations for the Granting of Loans,” effective March 19, 2020, for a period of 180 days, which also reduce the liquidity reserve based on the increase in the loan balance of certain economic sectors.

Liquid asset requirements  No.

Interest rate controls  No. The Law against Usury defines usury and sets the maximum rate of interest on loans obtained by individuals, without establishing differential treatment of foreign currency. This law applies to individuals and legal entities; financial institutions; commercial firms; savings banks; merchants engaged in the delivery of goods and services; pawn merchants; and in general, any person or entity who lends money, regardless of the manner used to record, conceal, or hide the operation. The CRB sets maximum rates based on the simple average of the effective interest rate on loans, expressed as a percent and published semiannually.

Credit controls  No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents  No. There is no distinction between residents and nonresidents.

Reserve requirements  No.

Liquid asset requirements  No.

Interest rate controls  No.

Credit controls  No.

Investment regulations  Yes.
Yes. Under Article 45 of the Banking Law, banks’ cash reserves may be invested abroad, deposited in first-tier banks rated and authorized for this purpose by the Superintendency, or invested in highly negotiable low-risk securities.

In banks by nonresidents No.

Open foreign exchange position limits Yes. The limit on the net open foreign exchange positions of commercial banks is 10% of capital and reserves. Regulations governing banks’ foreign currency borrowing and lending operations limit the difference between the institution’s total foreign-currency-denominated assets and future and contingent rights and its total foreign-currency-denominated liabilities and future and contingent obligations to 10% of equity. Since the Monetary Integration Act went into effect January 2001, the volume of foreign currency managed by financial intermediaries declined considerably.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes. The regulations make no distinction between resident and nonresident.

On nonresident assets and liabilities Yes. The regulations make no distinction between resident and nonresident.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Insurance companies Yes.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents Yes. Insurance companies are permitted to invest abroad up to 20% of investments of net technical reserves.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad Yes. Insurance companies are permitted to invest abroad up to 20% of investments of net technical reserves.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition No.

Pension funds Yes. The Savings System Law for Pensions was reformed in September 2017, modifying, among other aspects, the investment regime of the pension funds. The definition of foreign securities and the respective limits were amended. Within the limits established by law, the maximum limits are still set by the Risk Committee, which is comprised of the Superintendent of the Financial System, Deputy Superintendent of the Pension System, Deputy Superintendent of Securities Market, President of the CRB, and representatives of the workers and employers.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents Yes. Pursuant to Decree Law No. 787 of September 28, 2017, under Article 91(o) of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest between 10% and 30% in foreign securities and foreign investment fund participation certificates. Additionally, differentiated limits may be established for investment in these instruments, depending on whether they are open funds or closed funds.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad Yes. Under Article 18, letter (d), of the Investment Rules for the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest up to 10% of fund assets in foreign securities recorded in the SSF public stock exchange register, excluding securities issued by regional and international financial organizations of which the government or the CRB is a member.

All instruments in which the fund may invest must be registered with a national stock exchange, except for banks’ deposits and pension obligations. Pursuant to Decree Law No. 787 of September 28, 2017, under Article 91(o) of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest between 10% and 30% in foreign securities.
and foreign investment fund participation certificates. Additionally, differentiated limits may be established for investment in these instruments, depending on whether they are open funds or closed funds.

Under Article 223-A of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds must buy social security investment certificates that are part of the Annual Issue Program of the Social Security Bonds Trust, provided the total stock purchased does not exceed 45% of the pension fund’s assets, as provided for in Article 91(m) of the Law on the Pension Savings System (amended by Legislative Decree No. 1036 of March 29, 2012).

Under Article 91(a)–(n) and (p) of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest in the following: (1) Securities issued by the Directorate General of the Treasury of El Salvador, traded either on a Salvadoran securities exchange or on organized international securities markets, between 20% and 50%; (2) Securities issued by the CRB of El Salvador, between 20% and 30%; (3) Securities issued or guaranteed by state-owned enterprises and official autonomous institutions, except those of Banco de Desarrollo de El Salvador and the Social Housing Fund, between 5% and 20%; (4) Securities issued by Banco de Desarrollo de El Salvador, between 20% and 30%. Issues of social security investment certificates by this bank in the capacity of trustee should not be included in the calculation of this limit; (5) Marketable bonds having a maturity of more than one year issued by Salvadoran companies, between 30% and 40%; (6) Shares and convertible bonds of Salvadoran companies, between 20% and 45%; (7) Salvadoran investment fund participation certificates, between 5% and 40%, with the possibility of establishing differentiated limits for investment in the certificates of participation, depending on whether the funds are open or closed; (8) Certificates of deposit and securities issued or guaranteed by Salvadoran banks, between 30% and 40%; (9) Mortgage-backed or collateralized securities for housing financing purposes, including those issued by the Social Housing Fund, between 30% and 40%. In any case, investment in securities issued by a single entity may not exceed 10%; (10) Financial instruments of the insured mortgage system or insured mortgage certificates, between 15% and 20%; (11) Publicly offered securities issued by Salvadoran securitization companies and trust participation certificates, between 10% and 20%; (12) Other publicly offered instruments, including securities registered with a national securities exchange, between 10% and 30%; (13) Social security investment certificates issued by the Social Security Bonds Trust for the payment of services for members of the Public Pension System, a maximum investment limit of 45%; (14) Securities issued for the financing of real estate, infrastructure, or development projects such as roads, ports, and other works, between 5% and 15% of the managed fund’s assets. With the backing of multilateral organizations, governments, or first-line reinsurers, between 10% and 30% of the managed fund’s assets; and (15) Distributions traded on local markets, up to 5% of the pension fund’s assets, provided the collateral security meets the criteria specified in the regulation.
Superintendency. The investments made by Investment Funds in securities issued by foreign issuers may not exceed 80% of the Fund’s assets.

The Securities Market Law requires that these funds be invested in securities issued by the CRB or the government, in bank deposits, and in publicly offered securities registered with the Superintendency.

The investments made by Investment Funds must be made on a Salvadoran Securities Exchange, except for investments in shares of local and foreign open investment funds.

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs

- 01/01/2020 The trade agreement with South Korea entered into force.
- 03/20/2020 Certain foodstuffs, pharmaceuticals, and personal protective equipment were temporarily eliminated of the Central American Import Tariff, because of the COVID-19 pandemic. Some products are also exempt from VAT.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

- 01/01/2019 The Constitutional Division of the Supreme Court of Justice declared the Financial Transactions Tax Law unconstitutional, which is no longer in force. Previously, the Financial Transactions Tax Law established new taxes on financial transactions as follows: (1) There is a tax on the amount paid for all checks and electronic transfers in El Salvador, in legal tender in circulation in the country, according to this law’s regulations. (2) All entities authorized to make these payments and transfers must withhold, as a tax to control liquidity, 0.25% of amounts exceeding US$5,000 on cash deposits, payments, and withdrawals a transaction or in aggregate on a monthly basis.

Borrowing abroad

- 03/27/2020 As a result of the Pandemic Emergency, the BCR Standards Committee issued the “Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities,” to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement, so that institutions have more financial resources to tackle the COVID-19 crisis; therefore, the reserve requirement was temporarily reduced to 3% from 5%. The validity of these regulations is 180 days, which will be extended for an equal period of time if the underlying circumstances persist.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Reserve requirements

- 02/20/2019 The Standards Committee of the Central Reserve Bank approved, during Session No. CN-01/2019, the extension of the Temporary Measures for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (Medidas Temporales para el Cálculo de la Reserva de Liquidez – MTL) to February 23, 2023. These measures reduce the liquidity reserve by 10% of the productive credit granted by financial institutions.
- 03/19/2020 The BCR Standards Committee issued the “Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities,” to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve.
So, after making the corresponding calculation, the current liquidity reserve is approximately 10% of deposits and the liquidity reserves actually held by the institutions is approximately 17% of deposits (previously about 22%).

The extension of the Temporary Measures for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (Medidas Temporales para el Cálculo de la Reserva de Liquidez – MTL) to February 23, 2023, approved, during Session No. CN-01/2019, which would reduce the liquidity reserve by 10% of the productive credit granted by financial institutions, was repealed and replaced by the “Temporary Technical Regulations for the Granting of Loans.”

Conventional peg
Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the Central African Monetary Union is a conventional peg. Equatorial Guinea participates in the Central African Monetary Union and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country’s renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Interbank market Yes. There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). Effective June 10, 2019, a fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.

Over the counter Yes. Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.

Brokerage No.

Market making No.

Forward exchange market Yes. There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency No. Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

For current transactions and payments No.

For capital transactions No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments No.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments No.

Credit operations No.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements No.

Operative No.

Inoperative No.

Regional arrangements Yes. An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements No.

Barter agreements and open accounts Yes.

Administration of control Yes. Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears No. Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official No.

Private No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) Yes. CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

On domestic ownership and/or trade Yes. Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes. Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

On exports Yes. CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000). During their trips outside the CEMAC,
Travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget

No. The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.

Financing requirements for imports

No. Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.

Minimum financing requirements

No. There are no financing requirements.

Advance payment requirements

No.

Advance import deposits

No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.

Domiciliation requirements

Yes. Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.

Preshipment inspection

No. There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard.

Letters of credit

No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses

No. Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist they are used for trade policy purposes.

For import payments of less than CFA 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFA 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Effective March 1, 2019, legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.

Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.

There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.

The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.

Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFA 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.

Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFA 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Letters of credit

No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions Yes. The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which entered into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. Changes during 2019 and 2020

Exchange Arrangement

Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1% (previously 0.5%), excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax.

For foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks, a fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

On imports

Domestic currency 03/01/2019
Arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Foreign currency 03/01/2019
Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, and instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held domestically 03/01/2019
The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.

Held abroad 03/01/2019
Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No.02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad 03/01/2019
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

Imports and Import Payments

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Other 03/01/2019
Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements 03/01/2019
Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019
Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Payments for travel

Indicative limits/bona fide test 03/01/2019
A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. Previously, indicative thresholds are set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business, CFAF 4-5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, and official mission).
Indicative limits/bona fide test 03/01/2019  A single indicative limit of CFAF 5 million is established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. Previously, indicative thresholds were set according to the type of travel (CFAF 10 million for business, CFAF 4.5 million for leisure, study, medical treatment, official mission).

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements 03/01/2019  Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019  Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of receipt.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Repatriation requirements 03/01/2019  Foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection (previously within 30 days).

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank 03/01/2019  Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days (previously 30 days) after receipt.

Controls on capital and money market instruments

On capital market securities

Floating
Free floating

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Estonia participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) is around 4:00 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates. The publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the ECB reference rates that are published for information purposes only.

Target number
To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term. For the BOE, the price stability as the primary objective is set down by the BOE Act, Section 2(1).

Transactions in convertible currencies are effected by commercial banks, which are free to quote their own exchange rates. According to the Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing Prevention Act (MLTFPA), foreign exchange bureaus are required to have authorization by the FIU, an independent structural unit of the Police and Border Guard Board. Foreign exchange bureaus are supervised by the FIU.

Operative  No.

Inoperative  Yes. Estonia has bilateral agreements with Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Kazakhstan, the Kyrgyz Republic, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, Russia, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, and Uzbekistan. Euro balances held by the CBs of these countries in their correspondent accounts are fully convertible without delay. No swing credits or overdraft facilities are provided by these arrangements. These agreements were concluded at the end of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as an ad hoc measure, to regulate bilateral obligations with the former Soviet Republics after the demise of the central authority. For now, all these agreements have been inoperative for a very long time.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. Foreign exchange accounts are permitted according to banks’ own terms and conditions of current account agreements. The principal currency is the euro, unless specified otherwise by the client in the agreement. Clients may change the principal currency. Only currency quoted by the bank may be held in the account. Clients must specify the currencies to be held in the account in the agreement, and they may change the currencies during the term of the agreement. The procedure for fulfillment of payment transactions in foreign currencies is in the bank’s settlement terms and conditions.

Held domestically Yes. Commercial banks in Estonia may open correspondent accounts with commercial banks worldwide, including in Russia and other CIS countries. Restrictions according to the MLTFPA apply.

Approval required No.

Held abroad Yes. Accounts in domestic currency held abroad

Approval required No.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency Yes.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts Yes. In the event of suspicion of money laundering or terrorism financing, the FIU may issue an instruction to suspend transactions for up to 30 days after the percept is issued and impose restrictions on disposal of the proceeds of an account or other property constituting the object of the transaction, professional operation, or professional service or other suspect assets or property (MLTFPA, Section 57(1)). Within the term specified in this section of the MLTFPA, transactions may take place or restriction of disposal of an account or other property may be waived only with written consent of the FIU. During the restriction period, the credit institution or financial institution may not execute any account debit requests by the account holder. In addition to the provisions of this section of the MLTFPA, the FIU may, on the basis of an instruction, restrict the use of property for up to 60 days if (1) during verification of the origin of the property there is suspicion of money laundering and the owner or possessor of the property fails to submit evidence certifying a legal origin of the property to the FIU within 30 days of the suspension of the transaction or as of the imposition of restrictions or (2) the property is suspected to be used for terrorism financing. The Tax and Customs Board may block accounts used to enable illegal gambling through issuance of an order to the relevant bank instructing it to block the account and freeze the assets. The Tax and Customs Board specifies a period during which anyone who has transferred funds to this account may apply for a refund. The application must be accompanied by evidence (proof of transaction). After investigation, but no more than 30 days later, the Tax and Customs Board decides whether the application is substantiated and the refund should be granted. Seizure of any assets held in an account with a credit or financial institution means imposition of such restrictions on the use of the account during which the credit institution or financial institution does not comply with any account debiting instructions to the extent of the assets seized.

The International Sanctions Act (2020) regulates the internal imposition, implementation, and supervision of international sanctions of the UN, EU, other international organizations, and the Estonian government. It imposes obligations, including to block accounts and notify the FIU of possible international financial sanctions. International sanctions are imposed with regard to a state, territory, territorial unit, regime, organization, association, group or person by a resolution of the UNSC, a decision of the EC or any other legislation imposing obligations on Estonia. International sanctions imposed by a resolution of the UNSC must be implemented with regard to the subjects of the international sanctions listed by the committee established on the basis of the resolution until the regulation of the EC is updated or adopted.

Controls apply only to the extent that UCITS may invest in covered bonds that are issued by a non-EU credit institution—up to 10%, and up to 25% of those issued by EU credit institutions.
Inward direct investment | Yes.
For nonresidents, controls apply to (1) the acquisition of agricultural land and forestland and real estate on Estonia’s islands (except the four largest) and in seven territorial units bordering Russia. The reservation on the acquisition of agricultural land and forest ceased to apply May 31, 2011; (2) majority ownership of an Estonian flag maritime vessel by non-EU residents, except through a company established in Estonia; (3) majority ownership of an airline by non-EU residents; (4) the extent that under EU Directive 2009/65/EC (former Directive 85/611/EEC), a depository of a UCITS must either have its registered office or be established in the UCITS home member country (EU country).

Controls on liquidation of direct investment | No.

Controls on real estate transactions | Yes.
Regulations on the purchase and sale of land are harmonized with EU regulations.

Purchase abroad by residents | No.

Purchase locally by nonresidents | Yes.
Ownership of large parcels of agricultural land and forestland (exceeding ten hectares) may be transferred to foreigners and foreign legal entities only with the permission of the relevant local government unit. Foreigners, foreign entities, and foreign countries may not acquire real estate on islands (except the four largest) or in seven territorial units bordering Russia. EEA nationals and OECD residents are not subject to restrictions. EEA and OECD legal entities may own up to 10 hectares without restriction. If they wish to purchase more than 10 hectares, they must have been active in farming or forestry for at least three consecutive years. Persons from third countries must apply for permission from the relevant local government unit.

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes. EU legislation applies (Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 text with EEA relevance). There is no differentiation on the basis of currency or residence. For example, interest rate restriction (annual percentage rate restriction for consumer credits) applies to all consumer credit contracts. Also, credit institutions have liquidity requirements, which do not depend on currency.

Borrowing abroad

No. There is no restriction on borrowing from abroad.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

No. Commercial banks may open correspondent accounts with commercial banks worldwide, including in Russia and other CIS countries. Restrictions according to the MLTFPA apply.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

No. Regulations regarding lending do not differentiate on the basis of nonresidents and residents. Regulations covering lending provisions are the same for all.

Lending locally in foreign exchange

No. There is no restriction on currencies. Contracting parties can agree between themselves as to which is the contract currency.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange

No. There is no restriction for purchasing locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange

According to the EU legislation (Directive 2009/138/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of November 25, 2009, on the taking up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II)), prudent person principle applies and there is no differential treatment of securities issued by nonresidents or residents.

EU legislation applies. There are no specific limits on investment portfolios held abroad just as there are no limits on investment portfolios held locally.

There are no currency-matching regulations on the composition of assets and liabilities.

A pension fund may invest up to 100% of its assets in foreign securities traded in regulated markets of Estonia or other countries, as specified in the fund rules. Pension funds may also invest their assets in money market instruments and units or shares of funds that are not traded in regulated markets. The investment portfolio must be diversified. Assets of a conservative pension fund (mandatory pension fund) may be invested in bonds (1) with at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency registered in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1060/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council on credit rating agencies (OJ L 302, November 17, 2009, pp. 1–31—hereinafter in this section “rating agency”); (2) whose issuer has at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency, if the bonds have no rating; (3) whose issuer, if the parent company is a credit institution, has at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency, if the bonds and their credit institution issuer have no credit rating; and (4) guaranteed by a contracting country or an OECD member with at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency. If the specified rating agencies have issued different credit ratings, the management company must take the lowest current credit rating into consideration. Up to 10% of the market value of the assets of a conservative pension fund may also be invested in unrated securities issued by a company of a contracting country or an OECD member or by a company in which a public sector entity of such a country has a majority holding or that is under the dominant influence of a public sector entity of such a country, if the country has at least an investment grade credit rating from a rating agency and the company meets at least one of the requirements specified in Subsection 91(2) of the Authorized Public Accountants Act. At least 50% of the bond investments in complying with the above-mentioned requirements must be rated no lower than A2 (Moody’s) or its equivalent or P-1 (Moody’s) or its equivalent.

The total net position of investments in securities denominated in foreign currency may not exceed 25% of assets of the fund for a conservative pension fund. The ceiling is 50% for other mandatory funds.

Conservative pension funds’ overall net open position of investments in securities denominated in foreign exchange may not exceed 25% of the assets of a conservative pension fund. The ceiling is 50% for other mandatory funds.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes. All investment funds may invest up to 100% of their assets in foreign securities. In general, the assets of UCITS and other open-end public funds must be invested in securities that are freely transferable and traded in regulated markets of Estonia and EEA members or other countries, as specified in the fund rules. As a general rule, no more than 10% of investment fund assets may be invested in transferable securities (including covered bonds) issued by the same body. However, UCITS may invest up to 25% of their assets in covered bonds of a single body if the bonds are issued by an EU credit institution.

The CBE conducts foreign exchange transactions with four ADs (commercial banks), two bureaus—ADs with limited authority—and the government; and issues licenses. Foreign exchange bureaus may engage in the purchase and sale of foreign exchange with travelers and other ADs. Two bureaus are currently licensed and they report to the CBE.

The CBE buys and sells rand at the official exchange rate with no commission charged. The CBE conducts foreign exchange transactions with four ADs (commercial banks) and with the government.

There is an interbank foreign exchange market, but the transaction volume is low. High-volume transactions in foreign exchange are conducted between local commercial banks and commercial banks based in South Africa. There are four banks participating in the interbank market.

The CBE permits ADs to engage in forward exchange operations. The forward exchange rates are market determined.

Exchange Measures

The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Ethiopia states that, as of December 11, 2019, Ethiopia maintained four restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, which relate to: (1) the tax certification requirement for repatriation of dividend and other investment income; (2) restrictions on repayment of legal external loans and suppliers of foreign partners credits; (3) the prioritization and rationing of foreign exchange to certain imports of goods and services, debt payments and invisibles, and (4) the requirement to provide a clearance certificate from the NBE to obtain import permits. These restrictions are inconsistent with Article VIII, Section 2(a), of the IMF’s Articles of Agreement. (Country Report No. 20/29)

Classification

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board

- Stabilized arrangement
- Crawling peg
Crawl-like arrangement | Yes.
---|---
The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating. Since July 2018, the birr followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as crawl-like. While the exchange rate has increased its flexibility since December 2019, more observations are necessary to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as a crawl-like arrangement. The NBE publishes the exchange rates and the amount traded in the interbank market on its periodical publications. Currently, the NBE intervenes in the foreign exchange market an amount of US$50,000 on daily basis to determine the indicative exchange rate. The intervention data is publicly available on monthly basis in the quarterly and annual bulletins of the Bank. After one-month lag of each quarter and fiscal year, the intervention information is available to the public.

Official exchange rate | Yes.
The official exchange rate of the birr against the US dollar is determined in the interbank foreign exchange market as the weighted average exchange rate. The official exchange rate applies to all transactions, including purchases from exporters, remittances, and purchases by commercial banks. The rate of change in the official exchange rate has been constant, except during periods of ad hoc adjustment.

Monetary aggregate target | Yes.
The objectives of monetary policy are to maintain price and exchange rate stability and support economic growth. In achieving these objectives, the NBE sets broad money as an intermediate target and reserve money as its operational target. The document for Ethiopia’s Monetary Policy Framework was formally developed in February 2009.

Exchange tax

Yes.
Authorized banks must charge a commission of 1.5% on sales of foreign exchange, which accrues to the NBE.

Exchange subsidy

No.

Foreign exchange market

Yes.
The foreign exchange rate for commercial banks is the NBE interbank indicative buying rate of the day. The margin between the buying and selling rates may not exceed 2% of the NBE interbank indicative buying rate of the day. Commercial banks must be licensed by the NBE to open a foreign exchange bureau. These bureaus may make legitimate payments for business and holiday travel, education, medical expenses abroad, etc. The NBE sells foreign exchange to commercial banks but not directly to foreign exchange bureaus. As of August 31, 2020, there were 2,510 foreign exchange bureaus. The NBE charges a fee of 1.5% on foreign exchange transactions.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility No.

Allocation Yes. The NBE supplies foreign exchange to finance priority sector projects through public banks based on estimates at the beginning of each fiscal year.

In the allocation of foreign currency, the NBE identifies the categories of priority or essential import goods as listed: The first priority import goods are categories as fuel and pharmaceutical. Second priority goods are input for agriculture and input for manufacturing. And the third priority import goods are motor oil, lubricant, liquefied petroleum gas agricultural input and machines, pharmaceutical product, procurement machinery for manufacturing industry, etc.

Auction No.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. All NBE-licensed commercial banks may participate in the market. As of September 23, 2020, 17 banks are licensed but only 13 are active. The NBE does not propose its own quotes to market participants, rather participants other than the NBE quote their buying and selling rates. The NBE sold US$50,000 daily to the interbank market; all commercial banks participate to buy the allocated foreign currency.

Over the counter No.

Brokerage No.

Market making Yes. The market operates based on a market-making agreement; eligible participants quote their buying and selling rates on their own behalf.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.
Three types of nonresident accounts are allowed: foreign exchange accounts, nonresident transferable birr accounts, and nonresident nontransferable birr accounts. Deposits to these accounts must be in foreign currency. Balances in the first two accounts may be transferred abroad or used for international payments; balances in nonresident nontransferable birr accounts must be used mainly for local expenses. Transfers from foreign exchange accounts and nonresident transferable birr accounts to nonresident nontransferable birr accounts do not require NBE approval. Diplomatic missions, members of international organizations, foreign investors, nonresident Ethiopians, and nonresident foreign nationals of Ethiopian origin may open all three types of foreign exchange accounts. Other nonresidents may open only nonresident nontransferable birr accounts. Nonresident accounts must be demand deposit accounts and may earn interest, but interest may not be paid on nonresident foreign currency current accounts. These must have the equivalent of US$100 as a minimum deposit. Foreign currency fixed accounts must have at least the equivalent of US$5,000, but there is no maximum. Foreign exchange accounts may hold only US dollars, pounds sterling, and euros. Banks may accept deposits in other convertible currencies, but they must be converted to one of the three above-named currencies. Foreign exchange accounts may be used for payments and transfers abroad, provided the account holder has a business license to do so.
According to the latest Diaspora Account Directive (No. FXD/64/2019 effective September 2, 2019, a bank is allowed to set their own interest rate on nonresident fixed foreign currency account upon negotiation but not less than LIBOR. Similarly, interest rate payment on non-repatriable birr account is also upon negotiation, provided the interest rate should not be less than the minimum deposit rate set by the NBE. Previously, a bank was allowed to set their own interest rate on nonresident fixed foreign currency account provided the interest rate did not exceed the prevailing LIBOR. However, interest rate payment on non-repatriatable birr account had to be double of the minimum saving deposit rate set by the NBE.

services. In such cases, foreign investor(s) can own up to a maximum of 49% of share capital. Previously, investment only in the telecommunications and defense industries was allowed in partnership with the government. Investment in the postal service (except courier service), the transmission and supply of electricity through the Integrated National Grid System, and air transport services using aircraft that seat more than 50 passengers was reserved for the government. All investment (except expansion of air transport services, the generation or transmission or distribution of electric power, and the provision of communications services) must be approved and certified by the Ethiopian Investment Commission (EIC). However, the issuance, renewal, amendment, substitution, replacement and cancellation of investment permits, and the issuance of investment expansion or upgrading permits for air transport services, the generation or transmission or distribution of electric power, and the provision of communications services must be carried out by the Ethiopian Civil Aviation Authority, the Ethiopian Energy Authority, and the Ethiopian Communications Authority, respectively, representing the commission. Income tax exemptions are granted for up to six years for new projects in manufacturing and agro-industry that export at least 50% of production or for which at least 75% of production is used in the production of export items. Expansion and upgrading of existing projects are also eligible for exemption from income tax for two years if the expansion or upgrade increases production value by 25% and if 50% of the production is for export. Investment activities that export less than 50% of their production and produce exclusively for the local market receive up to three years of income tax exemption. Imports of investment goods and inputs for such ventures are also eligible for exemption from customs duties and other specified import levies. The new investment incentives as well as the type and amount of investment incentives must be determined by a Regulation to be enacted by the Council of Ministers.

- Controls on capital transactions

  - Controls on direct investment

  - 04/02/2020

  Investment Proclamation No. 1180/2020 introduced a new framework to register and administer foreign direct investment. It included provisions for minimum capital amount a project a foreign investor must invest ranging from US$50,000 to US$200,000 depending on the type of investment being undertaken.

  - 09/02/2020

  According to the new Investment Regulation (No. 474/2020), any Investor (foreign or domestic) may only invest in the following sectors jointly with the government: defense industries, import & export of electrical energies, international air transport services, bus rapid transit and postal services excluding courier services. Investment Regulation (No. 474/2020) lists sectors which are reserved for only domestic investors. These include investments in finance sector except capital goods finance, the transmission and supply of electricity through the Integrated National Grid System as well as whole sale & retail trades, health services, export of raw coffee, khat, oil seeds, pulses, minerals, hides and skins, products of natural forests, chicken and livestock, and hospitality industries. In addition, a foreign investor may jointly invest with a domestic investor in freight forwarding and shipping agency services, domestic air transport services, and cross-country public transport using buses having a capacity of more than 45 seats, advertisement, audiovisual, accounting and auditing services. In such cases, foreign investor(s) can own up to a maximum of 49% of share capital. Previously, investment only in the telecommunications and defense industries was allowed in partnership with the government. Investment in the postal service (except courier service), the transmission and supply of electricity through the Integrated National Grid System, and air transport services using aircraft that seat more than 50 passengers was reserved for the government.

Exchange Measures

- Yes. Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices
- Yes. Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
- No. In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)
- No. Other security restrictions

The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Fiji states that, as of January 31, 2019, exchange restrictions subject to Article VIII arise from the Fiji Revenue and Customs Authority tax certification requirements on the transfer abroad of profits and dividends, on the proceeds of airline ticket sales, and on the making of external debt and maintenance payments and from limits on large payments (e.g., oil imports and dividends repatriation of foreign banks). (Country Report No. 19/57)

Exchange Arrangement

- Yes. Currency
- No. Other legal tender
- Yes. Exchange rate structure

- No separate legal tender
- Currency board
- Yes. Conventional peg

The currency of Fiji is the Fiji dollar.

The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg vis-à-vis a currency composite. The Reserve Bank of Fiji (RBF) does not publish intervention data. The power to establish the fixed exchange rate arrangement is provided in the RBF Act. A change in the exchange rate arrangement may be proposed by the RBF and approved by the minister for economy. The current exchange rate weights are: USD 39.8%, AUD 29.3%, NZD 21.9%, JPY 4.8%, and EUR 4.2%. The weights are now published in the RBF’s annual report.
The external value of the Fiji dollar is officially determined on the basis of a weighted basket of currencies comprising the Australian dollar, Japanese yen, New Zealand dollar, euro, and US dollar. The relative weights are based on three-year moving averages of Fiji’s direction of trade and are reviewed annually. The exchange rate of the Fiji dollar vis-à-vis the US dollar, the intervention currency, is fixed daily by the RBF on the basis of quotes for the US dollar and other currencies in the basket. The spread is 5 basis points (bps) on either side of the midrate. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes.

The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite. The fixed exchange rate regime combined with capital controls allows some autonomy in monetary policy. The main policy instrument is the overnight policy rate. Its target corridor comprises a 25-bps band around the overnight rate with the repurchase rate at the upper bound and the deposit rate at the lower bound.

While the current system targets interest rates through monetary operations, the bank continues to monitor monetary aggregates such as liquidity /bank demand deposits which serve as indicators and cross-checks.

Foreign exchange market Yes. The RBF determines the maximum spreads of the currencies in the basket within which commercial banks may deal with their customers, which are 170 bps for the US dollar, 120 bps for the euro, 300 bps for the Japanese yen, 250 bps for the Australian dollar, and 330 bps for the New Zealand dollar. ADs are permitted to determine freely their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Six commercial banks, nine foreign exchange dealers, and one money changers are licensed. Foreign exchange dealers are licensed by the RBF. Under their permitted scope of operations, they may make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients and maintain foreign exchange accounts with domestic commercial banks. Their transaction limits are based on their total paid-up capital. Foreign exchange dealers may only deal among... themselves and not with the RBF. Money changers may only deal in travel-related transactions and the purchase and sale of banknotes.

Operated by the central bank: Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility: Yes. The RBF buys and sells US dollars at the official buying and selling rates. It deals – with commercial banks – once a day and with selected account holders. The width of the spread is 0.0005 cents on either side of the midrate.

Allocation: No.

Auction: No.

Fixing: No.

Interbank market: Yes. ADs are allowed to trade among themselves. The RBF deals only with commercial banks and selected account holders at its own quoted rates. There are six banks participating in the interbank market.

Over the counter: Yes. The market operates over the counter.

Brokerage: No.

Market making: No.

Forward exchange market: Yes. Forward exchange facilities are provided by banks. Each authorized bank may write net forward sales contracts up to F$50 million. The RBF does not participate actively in the forward foreign exchange market.

Official cover of forward operations: No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements: Yes. Although no specific requirements exist, settlements between entities from two countries must be made in convertible currencies acceptable to both countries.

Controls on the use of domestic currency: Yes. There are controls on the use of domestic currency and on foreign exchange that may be remitted offshore for the settlement of international current and capital transactions. ADs are allowed to transfer up to certain delegated limits without obtaining RBF approval depending on the type of payment as specified in the Exchange Control regulation.

For current transactions and payments: Yes. ADs are allowed to transfer up to certain delegated limits without obtaining RBF approval depending on the type of payment as specified in the Exchange Control regulation.

For capital transactions: Yes.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments: Yes. ADs are allowed to transfer up to certain delegated limits without obtaining RBF approval depending on the type of payment as specified in the Exchange Control regulation.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments: Yes. ADs are allowed to transfer up to certain delegated limits without obtaining RBF approval depending on the type of payment as specified in the Exchange Control regulation.

Credit operations: Yes. ADs are allowed to transfer up to certain delegated limits without obtaining RBF approval depending on the type of payment as specified in the Exchange Control regulation.

Use of foreign exchange among residents: Yes. RBF approval is required for transactions to be settled in foreign currency between residents.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

| Held domestically | Yes. | Effective April 2, 2020, offshore investment was suspended including the delegation to open foreign currency accounts. Previously, a family or business entity could invest offshore up to F$25,000 a year, and commercial banks could open foreign currency accounts for investments within the F$25,000 limit. |
| Approval required | Yes. | The opening of foreign exchange accounts by resident individuals requires RBF permission. The opening of foreign exchange accounts for film production companies is fully delegated to the ADs. ADs may also open foreign exchange accounts for locally registered business entities up to F$100,000 a company without RBF permission. |

| Held abroad | Yes. | Foreign exchange accounts are permitted, but RBF approval is required. |
| Approval required | Yes. | Residents are not allowed to open accounts in Fiji dollars abroad. |

| Accounts in domestic currency held abroad | No. | The conversion of domestic currency to foreign currency requires RBF approval. |
| Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency | Yes. | This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx. |

Nonresident Accounts

| Foreign exchange accounts permitted | Yes. | Foreign exchange accounts may be credited freely with the account holder’s salary (net of tax), with interest payable on the account, and with payments from other external accounts. Commercial banks may open foreign exchange accounts for regional and international organizations without RBF approval. Balances on nonresident accounts may be freely transferred abroad. |
| Approval required | No. | Domestic currency accounts may be credited freely with (1) the account holder’s salary (net of tax); (2) interest payable on the account; (3) payments from other external accounts; (4) proceeds of sales of foreign currency or foreign coins by the account holder; and (5) Fiji banknotes the account holder brought into Fiji and acquired by debiting an external account or through the sale of foreign currency during a temporary visit. Residents may also credit external accounts with payments that are generally or specifically authorized. External accounts may be debited for (1) payments to residents of Fiji; (2) transfers to other external accounts; (3) payments in cash in Fiji; and (4) purchases of foreign exchange. Authorized banks may credit domestic currency accounts with up to F$500,000 in proceeds from sales of Fiji assets. ADs may deposit living allowances/fees/bonds up to F$2,000 a month and reimbursement of rental bonds/immigration bonds/other up to F$10,000 a month. Other unspecified funds up to F$200 a month may also be deposited. There are no restrictions on Fiji-dollar-denominated deposits with commercial banks if these investments originate abroad. |

By residents to nonresidents

Nonresident-controlled entities may borrow locally up to F$10 million, but must adhere to the 3:1 total-debt-to-equity ratio (exceptions require RBF approval): total debt includes local and foreign borrowing, and equity includes paid-up capital, shareholders’ non-interest-bearing loans, retained earnings, and subordinated interest-bearing loans. Nonresident individuals may borrow up to the full amount to purchase property for tourism projects (acquisition of vacant land and constructed units, villas, etc.), but must adhere to the 3:1 total-debt-to-equity ratio and must settle their purchase in Fiji. Nonresidents may borrow up to the full amount to finance construction of residences, but must adhere to the 3:1 total-debt-to-equity ratio: equity includes the amount invested from abroad in the acquisition of land. Nonresidents may borrow up to F$200,000 to finance house maintenance and repairs, but must adhere to the 3:1 total-debt-to-equity ratio: equity includes the amount invested from abroad in the acquisition of property. Nonresidents may not borrow locally to buy vacant land without plans for development. Nonresidents may borrow locally 50% of the total cost of their residence to finance its acquisition. Authorized banks may lend up to F$2.0 million in foreign currency loans.

To residents from nonresidents

These transactions are allowed up to F$5,000,000 a borrower. RBF approval is required for offshore borrowing above F$5,000,000 a borrower.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities

By residents to nonresidents

Bank guarantees on trade-related transactions are fully delegated to commercial banks. For other types of guarantees, RBF approval is required if the guarantees will result in future outflows in the event of default.

To residents from nonresidents

RBF approval is required if there is a charge over a Fiji asset.

Controls on direct investment

Outward direct investment

Effective April 2, 2020, investment abroad by individual, companies, Fiji National Provident Fund, and other nonbank financial institutions is prohibited. Previously, a family or business entity could invest offshore up to F$25,000 a year, and commercial banks could open foreign currency accounts for investments within the F$25,000 limit. Evidence of proposed investment (prospectus, where applicable) was required, which had to be reviewed and stamped by the AD. Foreign investment by nonbank financial institutions and companies was permitted with RBF approval.

Inward direct investment

Foreign investment must be financed from nonresident sources and must be registered with the RBF to facilitate repatriation of dividends and capital. Previously approval for the transfer of profits and dividends declared and distributed to nonresident individuals up to the limit of F$1 million a company a year was delegated to ADs.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

Effective April 2, 2020, approval is required for the withdrawal of investments. Approval is required for nonresident-owned companies to repatriate the proceeds from sales of assets and capital gains on investments. Previously delegated limit to ADs was up to the limit of F$500,000 a company a year.

Controls on real estate transactions

The purchase of personal property abroad for investment purposes is not permitted.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Approval by the Ministry of Lands and the Native Land Trust Board is required for purchases of state-owned property and designated...
Native Lease properties. Settlements offshore of sales transactions in which both parties are nonresidents require RBF permission.

Sale locally by nonresidents Yes. There are controls on settlements to safeguard local interests before proceeds from sales may be remitted abroad.

Controls on personal capital transactions Yes.

Loans

- By residents to nonresidents Yes. Making personal loans to nonresident individuals is delegated to authorized banks up to F$100,000. Locally borrowed funds may be remitted abroad for medical, education, and travel needs.

- To residents from nonresidents Yes. Repayment is subject to current exchange control guidelines.

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies Yes.

- By residents to nonresidents Yes. The limit for the transfer of gifts, maintenance, and wedding expenses to nonresidents is F$2,000 or its equivalent. RBF approval may be granted for larger amounts.

- To residents from nonresidents No.

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants Yes. Effective April 2, 2020, ADs may approve emigration allowances up to F$150,000 a family a year (previously F$250,000), except those funded by government pension funds, for which approval is fully delegated to ADs.

Transfer of assets Yes.

- Transfer abroad by emigrants Yes. Effective April 2, 2020, ADs may approve emigration allowances up to F$150,000 (previously F$250,000) a family a year, except those funded by government pension funds, for which approval is fully delegated to ADs.

- Transfer into the country by immigrants No.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings Yes. These transactions are allowed up to F$500 a year.

Floating

Free floating Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Finland participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate Yes. Euro foreign exchange reference rates are based on a regular daily concertation procedure between CBs across Europe and worldwide, which normally takes place at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. On July 1, 2016, the ECB changed the publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) from around 2.30 p.m. Central European Time to around 4.00 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates. The publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the ECB reference rates that are published for information purposes only.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2%.

<th>In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Floating
Free floating Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. France participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The euro, the common currency, floats freely and independently against other currencies. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of CBs. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework

- Yes.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Exchange tax

- No.

Exchange subsidy

- No.

Foreign exchange market

- Yes.

ADs may freely set their exchange rates and commissions in foreign exchange transactions with their clients. Registered banks in France and Monaco, which may also act on behalf of banks abroad or in Operations Account countries, are permitted to deal spot or forward in the foreign exchange market in France. Registered banks may also deal spot or forward with their correspondents in foreign markets in all currencies.

Spot exchange market

- Yes.

Currency exchange offices (“changeurs manuels”) are allowed to operate in France; they must obtain a license from the Autorité de contrôle prudentiel et de résolution (ACPR—Prudential Control Authority and Resolution) before starting their activity. As of December 31, 2018, 179 currency exchange offices were registered in France. They are authorized to conduct foreign exchange activities following Article L524-1 of the Monetary and Financial Code: “A money-changing transaction entails the immediate exchange of bills or banknotes denominated in different currencies. The fact of accepting, in exchange for cash delivered to a client, a settlement via another means of payment, also constitutes a money-changing transaction, provided it is denominated in a different currency.”

To conduct money transfer activities, companies must either obtain a license to operate as a credit, electronic money, or payment institution or be an agent of an authorized credit, electronic money, or payment institution. The ACPR is in charge of on-site and off-site control of currency exchange offices’ compliance with the Anti-Money Laundering/Combating the Financing of Terrorism regulations. Accounts in foreign countries are not prohibited. Currency exchange offices submit to the ACPR their total foreign currency sales and purchases annually.

Interbank market | Yes.
There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. As of December 31, 2018, there were five major French banking groups active in the interbank foreign exchange market in France. In addition, subsidiaries of foreign banks provide quotes for foreign exchange transactions. The CB intervenes directly with market participants at their quoted rates.

Over the counter | Yes.
The foreign exchange market operates over the counter.

Brokerage | Yes.
Brokerage is used marginally.

Market making | Yes.
The interbank foreign exchange market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement, under which participants commit to a maximum spread and a minimum amount to trade.

Forward exchange market | Yes.
All residents, including private persons, may purchase and sell foreign exchange forward without restriction. Forward sales of foreign currency are not restricted, whether or not they are for hedging purposes. The Bank of France participates in the foreign exchange market on its own account. Under Article L151-2 of the Monetary and Financial Code, the government may, in the national interest, by decree subject to authorization, control, or declaration regulate exchange operations between France and foreign countries.

Official cover of forward operations | No.

Official No.
Private No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)
On domestic ownership and/or trade No.
On external trade No.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.

In accordance with EU Regulation No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash (domestic or foreign currency) entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

Licenses are required for some countries and some products. Imports of goods that originate outside the EU and are subject to quantitative restrictions require individual licenses. Common EU regulations are also applied to imports from non-EU countries. Imports of certain goods originating in the EU that are of a strategic nature or of national interest (for example, works of art) require licensing.

Some imports from non-EU countries require administrative visas issued by the Central Customs Administration or the appropriate ministry. Imports of products of the ECSC originating in non-ECSC countries require such administrative visas. Products governed by Common Market regulations require import certificates. Imports from countries under international sanctions may be subject to licensing.

Duties are collected at the time of entry into the EU based on the origin of the products and the tariff structure. An agricultural levy (within the CAP) and, if necessary, an antidumping levy may be added.

Notes:
- Controls apply to the purchase and sale of shares or other securities of a participating nature, with particular emphasis on nonresidents.
- Controls apply to the purchase by non-EU residents of securities not quoted on a recognized securities market that may be affected by laws on inward direct investment and establishment.
- Controls apply to the issuance of certificates of deposit (CDs) by nonresident banks.
- Controls apply to foreign collective investment securities, except those that are of EU origin and comply with EU Directive No. 2009/65/EC.

Controls apply to (1) the establishment of an agricultural business by citizens of countries that are not EU members and the acquisition of vineyards; (2) investment in airlines, which must be established in France and majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or EU citizens, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (3) the ownership after acquisition of more than 49% of a French flag vessel, except through a company incorporated in the EU; moreover, citizens of countries that are not EU members may not engage in cabotage; (4) the establishment of branches of insurance companies not headquartered in the EU, which are subject to special authorization with respect to their representatives and to specific requirements relating to the deposit, withdrawal, and transfer of funds; (5) the extent that under EU Directive No. 2009/65/EC, a depository of a UCITS must either have its registered office in the same EU country as that of the company or be established in the EU country if its registered office is in another EU country; and (6) the acquisition by non-EU residents of more than 20% in the voting rights or the authorized capital of a company holding a license for radio or television services via terrestrial hertzian channels broadcast in French.

Pursuant to articles L.151-1 and R.151-1 et seq. of the financial and monetary code, foreign investments in France in sectors listed in article R.151-3 of the financial and monetary code are subject to prior approval from the Minister for the Economy.

Effective April 1, 2020, decree n° 2019-1590 of December 31, 2019, came into effect, which expanded the scope of the FDI review and introduced major changes to the FDI review process. Effective May 1, 2020, biotechnology was added to the list of critical technologies subject to the foreign investment screening procedure.

Effective July 23, 2020, in the specific context of COVID-19 crisis, the voting rights threshold in sensitive companies which triggers screening procedure was lowered from 25% to 10%, only for listed companies and according to a special procedure. EU and EEA investors are exempted from this measure, which is set to end on December 31, 2020, but is expected to be extended until the end of 2021. Effective October 11, 2020, the FDI screening regulation adopted in March 2019 established an EU-wide framework in which the European Commission and the Member States can coordinate their actions on foreign investments.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment
No.

The proceeds from liquidating FDI in France may be freely transferred abroad, provided the corresponding funds are reported to the Bank of France. The liquidation must be reported also to the Ministry of Economy and Finance within 20 days.

This requirement is the sum of its overall net foreign-exchange position and net gold position in the reporting currency, multiplied by 8% (Article 351 of the above-mentioned regulation).

Institutions’ own funds requirements against positions in relevant closely correlated currencies may be lower. Two currencies are deemed closely correlated if the likelihood of a loss—based on daily exchange rate data for the preceding three or five years—of 4% or less of the value of the matched position in question (in terms of the reporting currency) on equal and opposite positions in such currencies over the following 10 working days has a probability of at least 99% for a three-year observation period and of 95% for a five-year observation period. The own funds requirement on the matched position in two closely correlated currencies is 4% of the value of the matched position (Article 354 of the above-mentioned regulation).

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad  No.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally  No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition  Yes. Insurance companies in the EU must cover their technical reserves with assets expressed in the same currency. In accordance with EU regulations, the French regulation requires insurance entities to cover their technical reserves with “congruent” assets. As a derogation, a maximum percentage of the technical reserves may be covered by “noncongruent” assets—that is, 20% for life insurance and non-life insurance (Insurance Code Articles R.332-1 and R.332-1-1).

Pension funds  Yes. Pension fund activity in France is performed by insurance companies (as allowed by European Directive No. 2003/41/EC on Institutions for Occupational Retirement Provisions). A specific “congruence” requirement applies to the technical reserves relating to occupational pension activities.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents  No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition  Yes. Insurance companies in the EU are required to cover their technical reserves with assets expressed in the same currency (rule of congruence). In accordance with European regulations, the French regulation requires insurance entities to cover their technical reserves with congruent assets. As a derogation, a maximum percentage of the technical reserves may be covered by noncongruent assets—that is, 30% for the technical reserves specifically relating to occupational pension commitments (Insurance Code Article R.332-61).

Investment firms and collective investment funds  Yes. For investment firms, pursuant to European Directive No. 2013/36/EU and Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013, the institution must separately sum all its net long positions and net short positions in accordance with Article 327. The sum of the absolute values of the two figures is its overall gross position. The institution must calculate, separately for each market, the difference between the sum of the net long and net short positions. The sum of the absolute values of those differences is its overall net position (Article 341 of the above-mentioned regulation).

For undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS) and money market funds, purchases of securities issued by nonresidents are subject to the same limits as securities issued by residents, namely for UCITS (1) diversification ratios (5/10/40)—that is, no more than 10% of the fund’s assets may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of the same issuer, and none of the fund’s holdings in single issuers that exceed 5% of the fund’s assets may cumulatively exceed 40%; and (2) borrowing ratios (10% an issuer). Specific categories of alternative investment funds shall fulfil a combination of rules defined in national law and at European level (AIFMD directive), including diversification and concentration rules, but no specific limits on securities issued by non-residents apply to these funds.
For investment firms, pursuant to European Directive No. 2013/36/EU and Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013, if the sum of the institution’s overall net foreign-exchange position and net gold position, calculated as set out in Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk. The own funds requirement on the matched position in two closely correlated currencies is 4% of the value of the matched position (Article 354 of the above-mentioned regulation).

Changes during 2019 and 2020

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Controls on direct investment

Inward direct investment

- 04/01/2020 Decree nº 2019-1590 of December 31, 2019 came into effect, which expanded the scope of the Foreign direct investment (FDI) review and introduced major changes to the FDI review process.

- 05/01/2020 Biotechnology was added to the list of critical technologies subject to the foreign investment screening procedure.

- 07/23/2020 In the specific context of COVID-19 crisis, the voting rights threshold in sensitive companies which triggers screening procedure was lowered from 25% to 10%, only for listed companies and according to a special procedure. European Union and European Economic Area investors are exempted from this measure, which is set to end on December 31, 2020, but is expected to be extended until the end of 2021.

- 10/11/2020 The Foreign direct investment screening regulation adopted in March 2019 established an European Union-wide framework in which the European Commission and the Member States can coordinate their actions on foreign investments.

Exchange Measures

- Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices: Yes.
  - The IMF staff report for 2019 Article IV Consultation Fourth and Fifth Reviews under the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, and Request for Waiver of Nonobservance of Performance Criteria, and Rephasing of the Remaining Purchases with Gabon states that, as of December 4, 2019, Gabon maintained a 1.5% tax on wire transfers abroad that is not consistent with Gabon’s obligations under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the Articles of Agreement. The proceeds of this tax are used to fund Gabon’s health insurance scheme. (Country Report No. 19/389)

- Exchange measures imposed for security reasons: Yes.
  - For security reasons, Gabon supports UNSC Resolution No. 1373 to combat money laundering and terrorism financing (Regulation No. 01/03/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of April 4, 2003).

Exchange Arrangement

- Currency: Yes.
  - The currency issued within the CEMAC, which is legal tender in Gabon and the other member countries, is the CFA franc.

- Exchange rate structure: Unitary Yes.
  - The exchange rate arrangement of the CAMU is a conventional peg. Gabon participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between the CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country’s renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax Yes. Effective June 10, 2019, transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1% (previously 0.5%), excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC’s OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted...
Gabon, nine banks are licensed to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public.

Operated by the central bank Yes. The BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC’s OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Allocation No.

Auction No.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). Effective June 10, 2019, a fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes (previously no more than 4%) and 5% for other currencies (previously no more than 10%), not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler’s checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. Nine banks are licensed, and all participate in the interbank market.

Over the counter Yes. Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.

Brokerage No.

Market making No.

Forward exchange market Yes. There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. However, licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency No. Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.

For current transactions and payments No.

For capital transactions No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments | No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments | No.
Credit operations | No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents | Yes.

The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.

Payments arrangements | Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements | No.
Operative | No.
Inoperative | No.
Regional arrangements | Yes.

An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.

Clearing agreements | No.
Barter agreements and open accounts | Yes.

Administration of control | Yes.

Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.

Payments arrears | No.

Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers’ payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.

Official | No.
Private | No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) | Yes.

CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

Domestic currency

| Yes. |

CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000). During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler’s checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Foreign currency

| Yes. |

Effective March 1, 2019, resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.

On imports

| Yes. |

CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, effective March 1, 2019, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million (previously 100,000).

Foreign currency

| No. |

Effective March 1, 2019, resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million (previously 1 million) to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

| Yes. |

Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.

| Yes. |

The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. Balances may be transferred abroad freely. Effective March 1, 2019, the authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.

| Yes. |

Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM effective March 1, 2019. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.

Approval required Yes. The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad Yes. Effective March 1, 2019, accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes. There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

Convertible into foreign currency No. Nonresidents may not convert the balances of their domestic currency accounts to foreign currency or transfer them abroad.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No. The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.

Financing requirements for imports No. Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.

Minimum financing requirements No. There are no financing requirements.

Advance payment requirements No.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFA 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately (previously within 30 days of the date stipulated in the contract), through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

Surrender requirements

Yes.
Effective March 1, 2019, export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days (previously 30 days) of collection.

Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.

Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Guarantees are required.

Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.

There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard.

Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.

Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.

This information can be found at the AREAER ONLINE database: http://www.elibrary-areaer.imf.org/Pages/Reports.aspx.

There are no exchange restrictions on service-related transactions. Payments for such transactions are subject to the same requirements as the underlying commercial transactions.

All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be settled through

Capital Transactions

| Controls on capital transactions | Yes.       |

Capital flows within the CEMAC are not subject to exchange controls. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and to all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), from January 15, 2009, specifies that... when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained."

The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”
